VICTORIA R.

Victoria, by the Grace of God of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland Queen, Defender of the Faith:

To Our trusty and well-beloved George Morley Dowdeswell, Esquire, one of Our Counsel, Horatio Mansfield, Esquire, Barrister-at-Law, and Robert John Biron, Esquire, Barrister-at-Law, greeting:

Whereas the Lords Spiritual and Temporal, and Commons, of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland in Parliament assembled, have by a joint Address humbly represented unto Us that Sir Samuel Martin, Knight, one of the Barons of the Court of Exchequer, and one of the Judges selected for the Trial of Election Petitions pursuant to the Parliamentary Elections Act, 1868, has reported to the House of Commons that Corrupt Practices did prevail at the last Election for the City of Norwich, and that there is reason to believe that Corrupt Practices did extensively prevail at the said Election, and have humbly prayed that We will be graciously pleased to cause Inquiry to be made pursuant to the provisions of an Act of Parliament passed in the sixteenth year of Our reign, intituled "An Act to provide "for more effectual Inquiry into the Existence for Corrupt Practices at Elections for "Members to serve in Parliament," by the appointment of you, the said George Morley Dowdeswell, Horatio Mansfield, and Robert John Biron, as Commissioners for the purpose of making Inquiry into the existence of such Corrupt Practices:

Know ye, that We, in compliance with the Prayer of the said joint Address, have authorized and appointed, and do by these Presents in pursuance of the powers vested in Us by the said Act, authorize and appoint you, the said George Morley Dowdeswell, Horatio Mansfield, and Robert John Biron, to be Commissioners for the purpose of making Inquiry, under the said Act, into the existence of such Corrupt Practices in the said joint Address referred to.

Given at Our Court at Saint James's, the Twenty-third day of June One thousand eight hundred and sixty-nine, in the Thirty-third Year of Our Reign.

By Her Majesty's Command,

(Signed) H. A. BRUCE.

REPORT.

TO THE QUEEN'S MOST EXCELLENT MAJESTY.

We, the Commissioners appointed under Your Majesty's royal sign manual for the purpose of making inquiry into the existence of corrupt practices at the last election for members to serve in Parliament for the city of Norwich, humbly submit for the gracious consideration of Your Majesty the following general report upon the subject matter of that inquiry. In the special report laid before Your Majesty on the 10th day of October last we stated the conclusions at which we had arrived on portions of the evidence then before us, affecting the conduct of certain individuals therein mentioned. p. xix.

Before commencing our sittings at Norwich we directed our Secretary, Mr. John Herbert Secker, to proceed thither, and obtain all the information he could collect which might guide and assist us in the prosecution of our investigation. This he accordingly did, and we have much pleasure in recording our sense of the zeal, industry, and ability with which he performed that important duty. Throughout the whole of the inquiry, too, we must acknowledge that our labours were greatly facilitated and time economized by his assiduous exertions and judicious arrangements; great inconvenience was thus spared to the numerous witnesses, and a very heavy expense to the city.

In obedience to Your Majesty's commands we opened the Commission in the Shire House, Norwich Castle, on the 19th day of August last, and continued our sittings until the 4th day of September, when, by the permission of Your Majesty's Secretary of State for the Home Department, we adjourned the inquiry until the 27th day of September.

During those sittings we examined the agents for the several candidates at the last election for Norwich and a considerable number of electors, and we had by these means, and from other information afforded us, been enabled to form a judgment as to the class of voters among whom any corrupt practices at that election had prevailed.

In the interval afforded by this adjournment unceasing efforts were made, under our direction and the immediate superintendence of the Secretary, to select from the bulk of the constituency all the persons whose evidence we had any reason to believe would assist the inquiry, so as to avoid calling those who could throw no light upon it. By this course the duration and costs of the inquiry were materially curtailed, without, we believe, the sacrifice of any of its objects.

On the 27th of September we resumed our sittings, and continued them from day to day until the 16th of October last, when we adjourned to London. We thus sat 33 days, and during that time examined about 1,500 witnesses.

The magistrates of the county placed the Shire House at our disposal. We have much pleasure in acknowledging their kindness and courtesy.

The authorities of the city afforded us every assistance in their power. A number of the city constables were ordered by them to attend our court, and in consequence of the perfect manner in which their duties were performed under the able direction of the Chief Constable and Superintendent Sharpe, perfect order was maintained in the building throughout our proceedings. The witnesses, of whom a large number were in attendance every day, were introduced without delay or confusion; and we were thereby enabled to conduct the inquiry with greater expedition than might have been anticipated.

In the prosecution of our inquiry, we regret to say, we found great reluctance on the part of the electors of the city generally to afford us information with regard to what took place at the last election; and we experienced considerable difficulty in our efforts to draw from the witnesses the material facts with which we had reason to believe they were acquainted.

In order to conceal the truth many of the witnesses had recourse to obstinate reserve, prevarication and evasion, and in several instances did not scruple to commit wilful and deliberate perjury. This reluctance to divulge the facts we attribute to the strong party feeling prevailing among those whose conduct was impeached, and in many cases to personal animosity towards Mr. Tillett, whom they regarded as the originator of the inquiry, as he had petitioned against the return of Sir Henry Stracey.

But above all an apprehension prevailed that the city might be disfranchised; and this not only influenced the persons examined by us, but they were urged by others to "hold their own," as it was expressed, and so to suppress any facts
Evid. p. 200. which might lead to the result which they feared. The evidence of Mrs. Allen, a person who might reasonably have been expected to be superior to these influences, affords an example of the spirit which animated by far the greater number of the witnesses
Evid. p. 575. who could give us important information: and the letter of Mr. Waters illustrates the view taken by their fellow-citizens of their conduct in the witness box.

Thus the inquiry was protracted, and additional expense thrown upon the city.

Norwich was constituted a city by Royal Charter in the reign of Henry the First, and shortly afterwards was summoned to send burgesses to Parliament. It is also a county. Under the old charters freemen and freeholders were entitled to vote for members of Parliament. Mere householders were not entitled to vote until the Reform Act of 1832. The city contains 45 parishes, which are divided into eight wards. Its ancient boundaries, as defined by charter, remain unaltered. The register of voters in the year 1867 showed a total of 5,912 voters, consisting of 1,981 freemen, 1,324 freeholders, and 2,607 occupiers; on the register, after allowing for duplicates and deaths, there were, we think, about 5,000 persons actually entitled to vote.

According to the returns for the last census in 1861, the population of Norwich was 74,414, and if we take the increase since to have proceeded in the same ratio as in the previous years of the present century, the number of inhabitants must at the present time amount to nearly 85,000. The number of inhabited houses in the city exceeds 21,000, and the rateable value is 178,882*l*. There is a great deal of poverty among the lower classes, though in this respect there has been of late years a slight improvement. The standard of education is low; a large majority of the witnesses whom we examined were unable to write their names.

The Reform Act of 1867 very largely augmented the constituency, and after the revision of 1868. the numbers on the register of voters amounted to 13,296, consisting of 1,984 freemen, 1,488 freeholders, 9,798 occupiers, and 26 lodgers, leaving, after striking out the names of persons known to be dead and those entered twice under different qualifications, the real number of electors about 12,000.

The evidence taken by us shows, that for a long time past there has been a considerable number of voters in Norwich open to corruption; and the tradition is still cherished of the high prices which were given for votes at former elections. The greater proportion of the voters added to the register by the statute of 1867 consisted of the poorer class, and the facts disclosed before us show, that at the last election there was a very large number of voters open to be bribed or influenced by corrupt practices.

Evid. p. 10. 330, et. seq. The number of these persons was estimated by an experienced electioneering agent on the Liberal side, at 1,500, or about one-eighth of the present constituency. Looking at the evidence, however, before us we think the real number very considerably exceeded this.

Previously to the election of 1868 Sir William Russell, Baronet, and Edward Warner, Esquire, who had been elected as supporters of Lord Palmerston's ministry, were the sitting members, and were desirous in the first instance to offer themselves as candidates at that election.

The Reform Bill of 1867, however, had placed a large number of working men upon the register, and thereby added considerably to one section of the Liberal party. The immediate consequence was the formation, in October 1867, of a society called the Liberal Electoral Organisation, for the purpose of securing the return of a working man's candidate.

In furtherance of this object several meetings were held, and in the month of July 1868 this section of the party nominated Mr. Jacob Henry Tillett, the editor of the "Norfolk News," a well-known local politician, as their candidate, and thereupon many of the working men, members of the Organisation, at once commenced a canvass on his behalf, and by the end of October had procured such a number of promises as rendered them confident of success. A subscription or guarantee list had also been formed by his friends, with a view to return him free of expense; the subscriptions amounted to upwards of 1,000*l.*

Shortly after this resolution to bring forward Mr. Tillett as a candidate had been come to, the retirement of either Sir W. Russell or Mr. Warner was deemed necessary by the more influential portion of their political friends. Accordingly those gentlemen placed themselves unreservedly in the hands of their supporters, and Mr. Warner, in consequence of their decision, withdrew his claims to the representation in favour of Sir W. Russell. It is only fair to state, that in taking this course he acted with perfect honour and integrity. It has never even been suggested that he was influenced by any improper motive whatever in adopting this course.

Thus Sir W. Russell and Mr. Tillett had become in October the Liberal candidates, the former on what was termed the Whig, the latter on the Radical interest.

The Conservatives seem to have experienced considerable difficulty in procuring a candidate. They had no general organisation, but in the different wards of the city they had several political clubs, the chief of them being the Eldon Club, which numbered among its members many of the leading Conservatives.

About a fortnight before the election, a deputation of this club waited upon Sir Henry Josias Stracey, Baronet, a gentleman of considerable property residing a few miles from the city, well known and respected in the neighbourhood, and they invited him to come forward in the Conservative interest. This he ultimately consented to do, on the express understanding that he would not spend one shilling beyond the legal expenses on the election. His address was at once issued, and he held meetings and made speeches on various occasions, but from the extent of the constituency, and the lateness of his entering the field, a house-to-house canvass was deemed impracticable, and was not attempted.

No active steps, beyond those adopted by the Organisation above referred to, were taken on the Liberal side, until a candidate in the Conservative interest thus came forward. As it then became evident that a severe contest might be anticipated, it was deemed expedient that the supporters of Sir W. Russell and Mr. Tillett should combine. A meeting, therefore, was held of the whole party, when it was unanimously resolved to support those gentlemen as the Liberal candidates. They both promised to advocate the same principles and measures, and thereupon received the undivided support of the Liberal party.

After the coalition the main election expenses of these two candidates were borne by them jointly, Mr. Coaks and Mr. O. D. Ray acting as agents for Sir W. Russell, and Mr. G. A. Stevens for Mr. Tillett. The whole expenses of the election on the Liberal side were paid through the hands of these gentlemen.

Mr. J. C. Chittock, solicitor, was appointed general manager and financial agent to Sir H. Stracey, and all payments in respect of the election by Sir H. Stracey were made through his hands.

On the part of the three candidates and their principal supporters there was an avowed, and, we believe, a sincere desire to abstain from all corrupt practices, and on both sides precautions were taken to secure this result.

On the Liberal side, with the exception of one irregularity hereafter mentioned, these precautions seem to have been completely successful, and, on the part of the Conservatives, we entirely acquit Sir H. Stracey and the bulk of the party of all knowledge of, or participation in the corrupt practices which undoubtedly prevailed on their side.

In entire disregard of the precise and peremptory instructions received from Sir H. Stracey, Mr. Chittock, through Samuel Dawson, who acted as his clerk, hired and organised bands of men to parade the streets and attend the different meetings at which Sir Henry was present and addressed the electors. These men received each 2*s.* a day, and some beer, and in this manner about 81*l.* 5*s.* 6*d.* was distributed before the day of polling among the lower classes in the city, some of whom Evid. p. 711.

were electors. This money was mostly spent in the beer houses, and served no doubt to increase the popularity of the Conservative candidate.

Evid. p. 777. Sir H. Stracey was never made acquainted with this proceeding, and in the accounts of election expenses furnished the sum was included in the charge for "messengers," and under that head apportioned among the different wards. By these means the real nature of the outlay was effectually concealed, and Sir H. Stracey, in ignorance of the arrangement, was induced to pay the above amount to Mr. Chittock.

We find Mr. Chittock solely responsible for this proceeding.

Apart from this transaction we discovered no trace of any illegal expenditure until the day of the nomination.

Evid. p. 22. 702, et. seq. The nomination at Norwich takes place in the Guildhall of the city, a room capable of containing only 300 persons, and difficult of access from the narrowness of its approaches. It is in fact a place altogether unfit for the purpose, and with so large a constituency the nomination, so long as it is held there, must always be an idle, turbulent proceeding, productive only of riot and confusion. In the words of one of the witnesses, Mr. Stevens, "There is always a rush for the purpose of getting in there, and no man who has any respect for his life or limbs would care to encounter the rush."

For many years past it seems to have been the custom in Norwich to endeavour on both sides to secure the show of hands at the nomination, by hiring men to pack the hall, and support the different candidates. The nomination took place on the 16th day of November, and on this occasion there appears to have been some hesitation as to resorting to the usual practice. On the Saturday afternoon, immediately preceding the nomination, a meeting of the Liberal party took place, at which both the candidates, Mr. Coaks, Mr. Stevens, Mr. Ray, and Mr. Youngs were present, when, among other subjects, the propriety of securing the show of hands was under discussion. The gentlemen who were present and took part in it did not altogether agree in their account. Both Sir W. Russell and Mr. Tillett stated they had no notion that it was contemplated to hire anybody for the purpose, but on the contrary, believed that the intention was to arrange that volunteers from the different factories, where the workmen supported the Liberal cause, should early in the day obtain possession of the hall, and so secure the show of hands at the nomination.

Evid. p. 11. 358, et. seq. Evid. p. 689. 38769, et. seq. However that may be, it is clear to us upon the evidence, that, in the presence of Sir W. Russell and Mr. Tillett, the two questions were distinctly raised whether the show of hands should be secured, and whether it would be legal to do so, and in answer to an inquiry they were distinctly told by Mr. Coaks, that it would not "void the election." It is obvious that the legality of that step could not admit of argument, unless upon the assumption that payments were to be made for the object in view. We are satisfied that they did acquiesce in the arrangement, though the details of the plan to be adopted, and the expense that might have to be incurred, were not brought to their knowledge, so far as they can remember.

Evid. p. 42. Mr. Ray, acting upon what he, an experienced election agent, believed to be the deliberate decision of the committee and the candidates, employed Edward Ramsbottom Barnes to procure men to attend the nomination. Barnes, with the assistance of Robert Samuel Walter Long, a gamekeeper, hired a number of men who were paid about 2*s.* each, and early in the day they secured possession of a great portion of the hall, and thus, with the aid of some volunteers from Mr. Colman's factory, the show of hands was secured for the Liberal candidates.

The expense of this proceeding amounting to 8*l.* 10*s.*, was borne, we find, equally by Sir W. Russell and Mr. Tillett, but the exact nature of this payment was not brought to the knowledge of either of those gentlemen.

An effort to pack the hall was likewise made on the part of the Conservatives, without the consent or knowledge of Sir H. Stracey, by Mr. John Bishop, a member of the firm of Messrs. Barnard and Bishop, staunch supporters of the Conservative cause.

Evid. p. 768. At the instigation of an old servant of the firm, named Amiss, 110 men in their employment were allowed to, and did attend the nomination. In the first instance there does not seem to have been any arrangement for the payment of these men, but having heard that payments had been made on the other side for the like service, they represented it to Amiss, who prevailed upon Mr. Bishop to give him the sum of 14*l.* 10*s.*, which was distributed among them for their attendance.

Though in these cases instructions are said to have been given to the agents, who were entrusted with the business, to avoid employing voters, they exercised no discrimination whatever in their selection. Many voters we found were thus hired, but we were unable to obtain all their names.

The poll was taken on the 17th day of November, and at an early hour it became apparent that numbers of the electors, principally consisting of those who had been newly placed on the register, were indisposed to vote, either from indifference or in the hope of getting money. During the morning these persons wandered about the city, or stood in groups in the market place, and in open spots in the neighbourhood of the polling booths; but towards the middle of the day they congregated at various public-houses. When asked to go to the poll, they either directly, or indirectly intimated that they should not do so unless they were paid, or provided with beer for voting; in many instances they required their day's pay, which they had lost in consequence of the places where they were employed being closed. They were quite ready to vote for either party who would pay them, and this a considerable number of them when examined before us avowed.

It may be convenient here to state the progress of the polling during the day, as it furnishes a clue to the proceedings taken by some of the supporters of Sir H. Stracey to secure his return.

Hence it is evident, that up to 2 o'clock Sir H. Stracey was in a considerable minority, and after that hour his position rapidly improved. We cannot doubt that some of his independent supporters, who had till then kept aloof from indifference, or despair of success, were induced to vote for him, when they saw that there was some chance of his winning the election, but we are convinced that the turn in his favour was mainly due to the operation of corrupt influences, which, as will be presently shown, were brought to bear between 2 o'clock and the close of the poll.

Among the most active partisans of Sir H. Stracey was Mr. Joseph Allen, surgeon, a member of the Eldon Club, and a person of considerable political influence, who, at least at one previous election, had been instrumental in bribing electors. Mr. Arthur Bignold, the son of a former member for the city, Sir Samuel Bignold, was also a strong supporter of the Conservative candidate. For many years past he has taken an active part in the elections for the city, and we have reason to believe is chiefly responsible for the bribery and corruption on the Conservative side which has taken place on those occasions. In 1860 he plainly intimated to Messrs. Lewis and Forlonge, the then Conservative candidates, that it would be impossible to win the election without bribery, and suggested its adoption, but to the honour of those gentlemen, his counsel was disregarded. Again, in 1865 he introduced Mr. Waters as a candidate, acted as his friend and financial agent, and, in conjunction with Mr. Allen, received from him 500*l.*, to be handed to Mr. Kitton, a person who had for many years been engaged in bribery at elections at Norwich, in order that it might be, as it was, expended in the interests of Mr. Waters in bribery and corruption.

About 1 o'clock on the polling day Mr. Allen, finding that in consequence of the large numbers of voters who were abstaining from voting as stated above, it was, to use the expression of Mr. Coaks, "an open election," sought an interview with Mr. Edward Stracey, the eldest son of the candidate. He represented to him, that with the aid of a sum of money to be expended in bribery the election could be won, and suggested that he should provide it.

Mr. Stracey exhibited great reluctance to do this, but at the suggestion of Mr. Allen he discussed the matter with Mr. Bignold. We were unable to examine either Mr. Stracey or Mr. Bignold, in consequence of their absence from this country, we believe, for the purpose of avoiding an examination by us; but a consultation between them ensued, which resulted in a determination that Mr. Stracey should procure the loan of 200*l.* from Mr. Webster, the landlord of an hotel in Norwich, for the purpose of its being expended in bribery. Upon this Mr. Stracey requested Mr. Webster to lend him the money, which he consented to do, and thereupon Mr. Webster proceeded to the bank of Messrs. Harvey in Norwich, where he cashed his own cheque for 200*l.*, receiving in exchange two bags of gold, each containing 200 half-sovereigns. These, according to an arrangement made between Mr. Stracey, Mr. Allen, and Mr. Bignold, Mr. Webster took to the house of Mr. Allen, and there delivered them to Mrs. Allen. By the desire of her husband, Mrs. Allen gave them to Mr. Howse Allen, who was at the house, and to whom Mr. Allen had communicated the above arrangement.

In a conversation between Mr. Allen and Mr. Bignold, it had been agreed that the money should be entrusted for distribution to persons in whom they believed they could confide, and who had been mixed up in such transactions before, viz., Mr. Hulme a chemist, the chairman of the Eldon Club, Mr. Bunn, and Mr. Wiseman.

Upon the evidence it is quite clear that these were the persons, who would have been entrusted with the distribution of any money provided by the Conservative party for the purposes of bribery. They were at this time actually employed at different committee rooms, but were wholly unprovided with any funds for illegitimate purposes. Mr. Allen immediately after parting with Mr. Bignold, who accompanied him to his house, saw them, and told them that money had been provided; he instructed them to call at his house for it at once, and to take immediate measures to circulate it amongst the voters. They accordingly called there about 3 o'clock, and received from Mr. Howse Allen the following sums, viz., Mr. Hulme 40*l.*, Mr. Bunn 50*l.*, and Mr. Wiseman 100*l.* Mr. Howse Allen retained 10*l.*, and out of this he distributed 7*l.* 12*s.* 6*d.* in direct bribery, or in providing funds to enable other persons to bribe voters, but he had not time to make use of the balance before the close of the poll. Mr. Howse Allen thus personally bribed seven electors. We proceeded to trace the expenditure of the rest of this money, and it soon became apparent to us, that the agents so employed to distribute it, were at least as ready to cheat their employers, as to corrupt their fellow citizens. Mr. Hulme, on his first examination, stated that he gave 15*l.*, part of this money, to Thomas Mackley, 5*l.* each to John Houghton and William Houghton, and 5*l.* to John Hart Bowgen, to get up voters, and that he retained 10*l.* in his own hands, which he had not time to make use of. But upon further investigation we were convinced that this account of the expenditure was false. Mackley, it is true, swore he had received 15*l.*, and bribed one voter, but gave his evidence in a manner which created in our minds great distrust of his statements, and subsequently facts transpired, which satisfied us he had been tampered with by Mr. Hulme, and that he was wholly unworthy of credit. John Houghton stated that he only received 5*s.*, and therewith bribed a voter, who, on being subsequently summoned, confirmed this statement, while William Houghton swore, that instead of 5*l.*, Mr. Hulme only gave him 2*l.* 5*s.*, of which he expended 1*l.* 15*s.* in bribing five voters, and the rest he spent in treating. After a protracted and strict examination we were convinced these men had spoken the truth, and that Mr. Hulme had endeavoured to persuade them, as he had persuaded Mackley, to commit perjury in order to corroborate his story, and enable him to account for the money he had received. Bowgen admitted the receipt of 5*l.*, which he handed over to Charles Andrews, who with it bribed eight voters. Thus 15 votes only were shown to have been procured by this sum of 40*l.*; and we arrived at the conclusion that Mr. Hulme was guilty of bribery, and had deliberately appropriated to his own use the greater part of the sum entrusted to him; that he committed perjury before us, and suborned, or attempted to suborn others to do the same in order to conceal such appropriation.

Evid. p. 210. Mr. Bunn, when asked what he did with the 50*l.*, said, "I do not think I made myself so officious as I ought to have done on the subject, considering," and went on to confess that he kept 29*l.* 2*s.* 6*d.* for himself, gave 16*l.* to Henry Durrant to bribe with, and divided the balance between three persons, Henry Read, Robert Bacon, and David Harmer. Durrant kept all the money given to him, and, on the whole, not more than six or seven votes were procured by the 50*l.* entrusted to Mr. Bunn for distribution.

Evid. p. 305. The history of the 100*l.* handed to Mr. Wiseman for distribution is no less disgraceful. He swore in his examination that he gave his son, Robert Wiseman, 25*l.*; Richard Green, 20*l.* 10*s.*; Samuel Lake, 3*l.* or 3*l.* 10*s.*; Edward Christmas Dowson, 3*l.* 10*s.*; Richard Mackley, 3*l.* 10*s.* or more, and Daniel Keddington, 2*l.* 10*s.* or 3*l.* 10*s.*, leaving, according to his statement, about 40*l.* in his hands, which he excused himself for keeping, by saying that he had not time to distribute it. Further investigation, however, showed that this account was untrue, for he subsequently admitted that his son handed him back 20*l.*, Green swore he only received 5*l.*, and Lake insisted he only got 1*l.* These statements we believed, and thus were satisfied, that out of the 100*l.* Mr. Wiseman kept upwards of 75*l.* in his own pocket, and that the balance was the means of bringing to the poll about 20 voters.

It will be seen, therefore, that out of the sum of 200*l.* thus provided, sufficient only was expended to procure about 45 votes. This comparatively insignificant result we attribute in some degree to the brief space of time remaining for its distribution, but mainly to the dishonesty of the agents entrusted with it. It was abundantly clear that there was a large number of electors waiting to receive bribes, whose votes could have been easily procured, had these agents been disposed to carry out their instructions.

In another part of the city, about 2 o'clock, active bribery was commenced by Robert Hardiment, a tanner and fellmonger in a fair way of business in Norwich. He had previously to the polling day been canvassing voters in company with Mr. Stracey. Early on that day he treated voters in considerable numbers at Clarke's beerhouse, in St. Martin's. He then went about to different quarters of the city, and was evidently regarded as possessing the confidence of his party, and likely to be provided with any funds which might be forthcoming for bribery. About 2 o'clock he proceeded to the "Woolpack" public-house, where a large number of unpolled voters were assembled, and there paid several of them sums, varying from 7*s.* 6*d.* to a sovereign, to vote for Sir H. Stracey. He afterwards went to a beerhouse, kept by Henry William Cartwright, in St. Mary's, situate about 25 yards from one of the polling places, where he remained until the close of the poll. Here, in the like manner, he bribed voters, who, hearing that he was distributing money, crowded to the spot. As many as 30 of the persons examined by us admitted they had been bribed by Hardiment. The evidence of his proceedings satisfied us that he had bribed several other voters, some of whom denied it; but the conclusion we have come to is, that he expended not more than about 60*l.* in buying votes. We were desirous of ascertaining from what source these funds had been derived, and from an examination of his banking account we learned, that although ill able to afford to spend so large a sum, he had, at the time of the election, ample credit with his bankers, and during the two or three days covering the election, had drawn out in cash some 70*l.* in excess of his usual expenditure.

Upon these facts, finding that Hardiment was the person who had been most actively engaged in bribery at the last election, we thought it right to abstain from examining him, in order that any prosecution instituted against him might not be defeated by the certificate which, if he had told us the truth, we should have felt it our duty to grant.

Hence we were unable to learn with certainty the actual source of these funds, or the motives of his conduct; but we are inclined to believe that he spent his own money, trusting to reimbursement by Sir H. Stracey or his friends, as soon as the excitement of the election had subsided.

About the same time bribery was commenced at a public-house called the "Trumpet," by two persons, viz., Arthur Hunt, a fowl dealer, and Samuel Smith, the owner of considerable cottage property in Norwich. At this house about 25 men were collected early in the morning, who openly declared they would not vote without money. They remained there drinking till 2 o'clock, when Sir H. Stracey, having been informed that they might be induced to vote, if he spoke to them, went there with some of his friends, and urged them to vote. They intimated that they wanted money, and he left the house. Shortly afterwards Hunt and Smith commenced bargaining with them, and ultimately bribed 16 or 17 with 7*s.* 6*d.* apiece to vote for Sir H. Stracey. Under these circumstances we did not examine Hunt and Smith during our sittings at Norwich, but stated to Your Majesty our conclusions respecting them in the preliminary report. No information having been filed against them within the statutory period, on the 20th day of November we examined them at Westminster. The evidence they then gave was as unsatisfactory to us, as it was discreditable to them. p. xix.

There is no evidence before us that they had been furnished with funds by any other person, and it may well be, that they expended the money in the expectation of being afterwards indemnified or rewarded. We have reason to think that this has been the mode in which bribery has frequently been practised at Norwich elections. The leading citizens have not there been in the habit of trafficking in the representation of the constituency, nor has it been the practice to buy voters in gangs, as in some places. The poorer voters have been accustomed to act independently in selling their votes, to make their own bargains in the market place or the beer house, and the transaction has been conducted often through the medium of volunteers, who entered into it in the expectation, which has generally been realised, that they would afterwards be recouped their expenditure.

We also ascertained that some sums had been expended in bribery by zealous partisans acting independently, who had thereby succeeded in inducing several electors to vote for Sir H. Stracey. Thus the sum of 10*l.* was given for that purpose by Mr. Allen to Mr. Furse, who spent it in procuring eight votes. Owen Murrell, a livery stable keeper, paid 25*s.* in sums of 5*s.* each to five men for voting, and afterwards endeavoured to obtain from Mr. Alfred Stockings 2*l.* 10*s.* by representing that he had spent the latter sum in bribing them; and there are instances, in which other individuals gave small sums, and procured votes in like manner, but they are very few in number. Evid. p. 33 Evid. p. 17

Besides the cases above referred to, in which votes were actually obtained by bribery, we learned that late in the day of the polling some electors were induced, by conditional promises of money, to vote for Sir H. Stracey. The principal instance of this species of corrupt practice occurred at the "Thorn" tavern, kept by Robert Larkman. During the morning about 24 men had assembled there in the hope that offers would be made to them. About 3 o'clock in the afternoon Mr. Green, a timber merchant, called, and on learning from the landlord that the men would not vote without money, promised to make an effort to get them paid for voting. He then left the house; Larkman took down the names of the men, and induced a number of them to vote for Sir H. Stracey, by promising they should have their share of the money, if Green succeeded in obtaining it. Green, in fact, returned without money, but about 20 votes were obtained by these illegitimate means. Evid. p. 64

In addition to bribery, treating was also to a considerable extent resorted to on the day of the poll, and many voters were thereby corruptly induced to vote for Sir H. Stracey. David Cubitt, a shoemaker, admitted that he had spent about 12 sovereigns at different public-houses in treating voters. He stated that part of that sum was his own money, and that the remainder was supplied for the purpose by Mr. Woodrow, a land agent, and another person whom he did not know. This amount, according to his evidence, was sufficient, if spent in treating, successfully to influence 40 or 50 voters. He was evidently, however, inclined to exaggerate the sum spent by him, but he undoubtedly induced many voters to poll, and we think his estimate of 30 does not exceed the true number. Evid. p. 38

Evid. p. 536. A publican, Samuel Fletcher, of the "Anchor," Silver Road, on finding that the men in his house required some inducement to vote, addressed himself to Mr. Lamb, a clerk in the employ of Mr. Patteson, a brewer, and supporter of Sir H. Stracey, and was authorized by him to lay out a few shillings in treating. Fletcher thereupon expended 10*s.*, and by so doing got up about 30 voters. The money was subsequently repaid him by Lamb.

Evid. p. 528. William Maris, a potato salesman, on his first examination before us, swore that he knew nothing of corrupt practices. On being subsequently pressed, he admitted that Evid. p. 542. he treated almost anybody, and by that means got up about 20 voters altogether for Evid. p. 566. Sir H. Stracey. Thomas Worledge was extensively engaged on the day of the election in treating voters, and no doubt induced many to poll for Sir H. Stracey. This witness prevaricated grossly in giving his evidence, and, though he acknowledged he had spent 25*s.* or 30*s.* in drink, which he gave away, he professed not to know whether the men whom he treated were voters.

Evid. p. 565. Another publican, John Pratt, said that for a sovereign spent in treating during the day he got 50 men to vote, and found "plenty of them would vote for half-a-pint of beer." We might readily add to these instances, but consider it unnecessary to do so. In fact it was abundantly clear that, although in the early part of the day the corrupt portion of the constituency would not vote without money, towards the afternoon their demands were reduced, and as the close of the poll drew near, many of them were quite ready to vote either way, even for a small quantity of beer.

At many of the public-houses, among which we may mention the "Horse Shoes," the "Ship," the "Recruiting Serjeant," and the "Catherine Wheel," treating went on, but we had great difficulty in ascertaining to what extent; as the publicans when called before us, with one or two creditable exceptions, swore that they knew nothing of what took place in their houses on the day of the election.

In every instance we found that these practices had been resorted to in the interest of Sir H. Stracey. Those we have detailed above fully account for his majority of 119 over Mr. Tillett, and we have no doubt his return was secured by bribery and treating.

We are also satisfied that the evidence taken by us in effect discloses, perhaps with some trifling exceptions, the whole of the corrupt practices which prevailed at the last election.

We ascertained that immediately after the last election, Messrs. Ashurst and Morris, the solicitors for Mr. Tillett who petitioned against the return of Sir H. Stracey, commenced inquiries with a view to his claiming the seat under a scrutiny on that petition. In the prosecution of them they employed skilled detectives and other persons, who visited the public-houses, mingled with the electors, and used various means for the purpose of obtaining information. All that they learned, including even matters of mere report and rumour in the city, was set forth in the brief furnished to counsel on the trial of the petition, when the scrutiny was ultimately abandoned. We were furnished with that document, and examined almost every person whose conduct was impugned by it, and tested the truth of the statements contained in it by all other means to which we could resort. But, in addition to this investigation, we called before us most of those persons who were active at the election in the behalf of Sir H. Stracey, as well as a very large number of that class of voters, who were likely to be influenced by corrupt practices, and we are convinced that by these means the traces of any systematic bribery, had it existed, must have been detected, but we found none. Very little money was required to influence a large number of votes, but it was not forthcoming. If, too, any system had been organised, or any considerable fund provided for the purposes of bribery, we are satisfied that Mr. Bignold, Mr. Allen, Mr. Stracey, or some of the persons to whom the money provided by Mr. Stracey, as above detailed, was given, would at least have known of it, and that such a sum of 200*l.* never would have been obtained at so late an hour, and in so imprudent a manner, as almost inevitably to attract attention and secure detection. Upon the evidence it cannot be doubted that this was an improvised transaction, hastily adopted upon the exigency of the moment, because there was no fund in readiness or any organisation at hand to which recourse could be had.

Thus far we have in the main confined ourselves to the evidence of corrupt practices resorted to on the part of the Conservatives; we will now proceed to consider the evidence as to whether any similar practices were adopted by their opponents. With the exception that towards the close of the poll 10 or 12 of their paid agents or clerks voted for Sir W. Russell and Mr. Tillett, and that the arrangements, which have been already detailed, were made by them to secure the show of hands, we have come to the conclusion that they refrained from any such practices. We will presently state the reasons for this conclusion.

In the prosecution of our inquiry we not only made every effort to procure information, but from time to time we invited the Conservatives and their agents to lay before us any facts, or make any suggestions which might enable us to scrutinize the conduct of the Liberal party during the election, and we carefully investigated every allegation made against them, and every circumstance of a suspicious character affecting them. In particular it was imputed to Mr. Womersley, the manager of Colman's factory, a person of considerable influence in the city, that he had at the "Marquis of Granby" public-house bribed a number of men to vote for the Liberal candidates. We, therefore, called before us this gentleman, and every other person who, it was believed, could give any information upon the matter. What actually took place we find was this:

Towards 1 o'clock on the day of the election, news was brought to the central Liberal committee room that the Conservatives were buying votes at the "Marquis of Granby," and soon afterwards Mr. Womersley went to the house and saw John Mackley, the landlord. The latter stated that he had a number of men waiting for money, and at the instance of Mr. Womersley and Mr. Daynes sent out two men, Thomas Barber and James Tomlinson, to get them together. Between 30 and 40 voters were thus collected, and Mr. Womersley led them to believe that they should have money, if they waited, and he went away to the central committee room, where he had an interview with Mr. Coaks. We entertain grave doubts whether Mr. Womersley did not intend to bribe, but on his examination he explained his conduct by saying it was an "election dodge" to prevent the men voting the other way. If, as may be the case, he was willing to bribe, had he been able to procure the money, he certainly was effectually checked by Mr. Coaks, who was resolutely determined to permit no bribery, to use his own expression, "I saw that my horse's nose was in front, and I was perfectly satisfied with his position," and unequivocally conveyed that determination to Mr. Womersley. Mr. Coaks candidly refused to say what he might have done, had Sir W. Russell been behind the other candidates. Our province, we felt was confined to ascertaining what was done, and not what might have been done under other circumstances. Mr. Womersley did not return to the house, as he had induced the persons there to suppose he would do, and certainly no bribery was committed there by him, and his artifice, if it were one, recoiled upon the Liberal candidate, for many of these men, finding that they had been, as they thought, cajoled, became indignant, and voted for Sir H. Stracey. Evid. p. 1 436.

A second charge, which we carefully investigated, was made against Mr. Harper, of having bribed voters at the "Woolpack" public-house. Upon the evidence we came to the conclusion there was good ground for suspicion, inasmuch as he was proved to have been at this house in the afternoon, and he admitted that he had used expressions which induced a number of voters, who were waiting there, to believe that if they would give him time, he would go and procure money for them, and he left them with that impression.

In the event, however, it is clear upon the evidence he did not do this. He returned to the "Woolpack" it is true, but he then found Hardiment was dealing with the voters, as stated above, and there is no reason to suppose Mr. Harper gave money to any voter. It may be that he never really intended to procure money for this purpose, or failed to procure it, or was dissuaded by calmer counsel; but whatever the reason may have been, we were convinced he was not guilty of bribery.

These were the two prominent instances in which it was suggested to us, or we could discover that a disposition to bribe had been evinced by the Liberal party. We determined, however, to test our own experience with that of the professional gentlemen, who had been employed in preparing the case for the Conservative side when the petition was about to be tried before Mr. Baron Martin. The matter was still recent, party feeling was excited, and no doubt every effort would be, and was made to assert and, if possible, substantiate recriminatory charges against the petitioner, Mr. Tillett. There was, as we have before observed, a feeling of personal hostility to that gentleman, which satisfied us that no effort would be spared in this respect by his opponents. Accordingly we called before us Mr. James Stark Skipper, a highly respectable solicitor, in Norwich, who defended the seat for Sir H. Stracey, and in his examination as to what had come to his knowledge with regard to the proceedings of the Liberals, he deposed as follows:—

18,946. I suppose you, with a view to the scrutiny which was threatened, investigated the matter fully as far as the other side was concerned?—Oh yes, we went into a very elaborate investigation but it did not result in much. In fact, we could not make any substantial case out. Am I allowed to express an opinion? Evid. p. 35

18,947. Yes.—My conviction is this, that on the part of the Liberals there was no plant of money. I say that, from the elaborate investigation we went into, or we must have discovered it. On the part of the Conservative side I don't believe there has been any plant beyond what has been developed before you at this Commission. That is my conviction.

18,948. Were you not aware that persons were paid small sums of money for the purpose of influencing voters?—No doubt on both sides half-crowns were paid, but I said "no plant of money." I have no doubt there were small sums on both sides. It is hardly possible to avoid that in any election; but there was no "plant."

18,949. No considerable sum?—No, we must have discovered it if there had been, from the elaborate machinery we had out in the city.

18,950. You had a number of persons investigating it?—Yes, and going about to suspected people in the evenings at public-houses, and in every way we could to bring it out.

18,951. They were in the nature of detectives?—Yes; you may say in that kind of service.

vid. p 711. Samuel Dawson, who acted in this matter as the managing clerk to Mr. Skipper, was obliged to confirm the latter gentleman's opinion. The evidence of Mr. Coaks, Sir W. Russell, and Mr. Tillett leaves us no room to doubt the truth of this statement. Finding, then, the views at which we arrived from the examination of the evidence before us were so strongly corroborated by the persons most likely to be able to afford us trustworthy information, we are led to the conclusion that no corrupt practices whatever on the part of the Liberals, with the exception above mentioned, prevailed at the last election.

We are convinced, looking at the very strong party spirit which prevailed and still prevails in Norwich, and the ample opportunities afforded to the Conservatives to substantiate any charges against the other side, that if such practices had prevailed, evidence of them would have been forthcoming.

We examined the three candidates and their agents, and each of them stated to us that he was not aware of, nor had he been called upon to pay any sum on account of the election besides those, which had been returned and published in compliance with the statute. Those of Sir H. Stracey amounted to 1,915*l.* 1*s.* 9½*d.*, the joint expenses of Sir W. Russell and Mr. Tillett to 1,387*l.* 15*s.* 6*d.*; the separate expenses of Sir W. Russell were 559*l.* 5*s.* 8*d.*, and those of Mr. Tillett 137*l.* 6*s.* 8*d.*

We carefully examined the details of these accounts, and found no trace of any illegal payments by the Liberal candidates or their agents, except the sum paid to secure the show of hands in the manner explained in the former part of this report. On the part of Sir H. Stracey the only illegal payments we found were made by his agent, Mr. Chittock, to persons hired to attend the meetings as above stated.

After a thorough investigation of what took place at the last election, we found that there was an honest determination on the part of the leading citizens, both Liberal and Conservative, to discountenance corrupt practices of every kind, and we discovered no trace of some of the most ordinary illegal practices.

No demand, of late years at all events, has been made upon candidates to pay outstanding electioneering debts. The rates of the poorer householders have not been paid by the members, or persons acting on their behalf to keep them on the register of voters. And although, incidentally, evidence was given before us that bribery has been practised at municipal elections in Norwich, we did not find it was ever made a pretext, or the means for securing votes at the same time for the parliamentary candidates. Under these circumstances we did not consider it our duty to investigate the extent to which it prevailed.

At the last election we deem Mr. Allen, Mr. Bignold, and Mr. Stracey to be entirely responsible for originating the bribery above detailed, on which their ready agents (Mr. Hulme, Mr. Bunn, and Mr. Wiseman) were employed. Nothing could be more disgraceful or more dishonest than the conduct of these men. They are in a respectable position, and profess to hold strong political opinions, yet being entrusted on this account with considerable sums of money, they availed themselves of the opportunity to appropriate the greater part of it, no doubt trusting to escape detection by the danger of publicity, which would attend an inquiry as to the mode in which the money was spent.

The rest of the bribery was due to volunteers, who most probably expected to reap a profit by it, and this, as might be expected from the smallness of the sums employed, was practised upon the poorer class of voters. In Norwich unfortunately this class is very large; many of the electors are artizans and mechanics depending only upon fluctuating, casual employment. Among the householders there are likewise a large number of agricultural labourers, whose means of subsistence are precarious and whose wages are low. Their want of education is on a par with their poverty.

Among such, and so large a constituency it is obvious that small sums of money may have been given away by individuals acting independently, which it would be very difficult to detect. We do not doubt that some money was thus corruptly expended beyond that which we have succeeded in tracing. But we were satisfied that the entire amount so expended was insignificant, and that it could not influence our decision upon the main question, whether corrupt practices extensively prevailed at the last election. We considered that we ought not to protract this costly inquiry, when the only result we could possibly attain was the addition of the names of an inconsiderable number of persons to the schedules appended to this Report.

Having concluded our inquiry as to the election of November 1868, we considered to what extent it might be practicable or desirable to investigate the circumstances attending former elections in the city of Norwich. We found that Mr. Kitton, who had managed illegal payments for the Conservatives, and Mr. Wilde, who had performed the like office for the Liberals, had both died since the election of 1865, and that it would be impossible to ascertain what part was taken by them, though it was well known that both were corrupt. In addition to this, the difficulties we had encountered in our inquiry as to the recent election, by reason of the large population of the city, we felt would be greatly increased by the lapse of time. Moreover, as the constituency had been raised from 5,000 to 12,000 by the Reform Act of 1868, it was clear that the history of former elections, even if it could be satisfactorily ascertained, would be of little or no value as a means of estimating the extent of corrupt practices among the constituency as at present composed.

And lastly, we thought that, inasmuch as the expenses of the inquiry must, under the recent Statute, fall upon the present ratepayers, in the absence of any peremptory enactment, we ought to be chary in pursuing an inquiry at their expense into alleged malpractices on the part of their predecessors. 32 & 33 Vict. c. 21. s. 3.

We determined, therefore, to confine ourselves to inquiring, whether any considerable amount of bribery and treating had prevailed at those recent elections, which might be supposed to have any bearing on the last, and with this view called before us the candidates at the election of 1865 on the Liberal side, Sir W. Russell and Mr. Warner, and others, who had knowledge of the mode in which the election had been conducted on their behalf. Mr. Waters, one of the Conservative candidates, is now a confirmed invalid, resident in Dorsetshire; it was, therefore, impossible to examine him, inasmuch as under the Act which regulates the proceedings of Your Commissioners, we had no power to sit, except within 10 miles of Norwich, or within the cities of London or Westminster. Mr. Goldsmid, the other Conservative candidate, we learned was abroad. We called, however, before us, several witnesses who were acquainted with the mode in which the election was conducted on the part of the Conservatives. 15 & 16 Vict. c. 57. ss. 4, 5.

We ascertained that Mr. Waters was brought down to Norwich by Mr. Arthur Bignold, who throughout the contest controlled his expenditure. During his canvass circumstances relating to the personal history of Mr. Waters came to the knowledge of the leaders of the Conservative party, which led to the immediate withdrawal of their support. Mr. Waters, however, went to the poll, and succeeded in getting a considerable number of votes; this result was obtained by the corrupt expenditure, with his entire approval, of a sum of 500*l*., which was provided by the sale through Mr. Allen and Mr. Bignold of some colonial bonds, and expended principally by Mr. Kitton, Mr. Hulme, and Mr. Wiseman in corrupting voters by bribery and treating.

We found no trace of bribery or other corrupt practices on the part of Mr. Goldsmid or of the Liberals at the election of 1865.

We further made inquiry into the election of March 1860, which took place in consequence of the two former elections of April 1859 and June 1859 having been declared void on petition by reason of bribery. The candidates were Sir W. Russell and Mr. Warner on the side of the Liberals, and both those gentlemen were examined by us. Mr. Forlonge and Mr. Lewis were the Conservative candidates. Mr. Forlonge is now in Australia. Mr. Lewis died soon after the election, but Mr. Charles Edward Lewis, his brother, who had the sole management of the election, and through whose hands every payment was made, attended before us, produced his accounts and vouchers, and gave us every information respecting the conduct of that election. It appeared Mr. Arthur Bignold again suggested that money should be spent in bribery, but to the honour of the candidates his advice was disregarded, and the election passed without bribery or other corrupt practices being resorted to on their behalf. It was clear too that the election was a pure one on the part of the Liberals.

This result was in the main owing to a firm determination on the part of leading citizens on both sides to put down bribery and corruption. They seem to have been honestly indignant at the revelations before the Election Committee in 1859, and spared no effort to free the city from the reproach which had been cast upon it.

On the evidence, therefore, we find—

That corrupt practices did not extensively prevail in Norwich at the last election, in November 1868, for that city.

That Sir Henry Stracey was returned through such practices at that election.

That corrupt practices did not extensively prevail at the election of 1865, or that of 1860 for that city.

We also find—

That the several persons named in the schedule marked A. to this our Report were guilty of bribery at the last election.

That the several persons named in the schedule marked B. to this our Report were bribed at that election.

That the several persons named in the schedule marked C. to this our Report were guilty of corruptly influencing voters by treating at that election.

All which we humbly submit to Your Majesty's gracious consideration.

PRELIMINARY REPORT.

TO THE QUEEN'S MOST EXCELLENT MAJESTY.

We, the Commissioners, appointed under Your Majesty's royal sign manual for the purpose of making inquiry into the existence of corrupt practices at the last election for members to serve in Parliament for the city of Norwich, in exercise of the discretion vested in us to report from time to time to Your Majesty the evidence taken by us, and what we find concerning the premises, have thought it expedient during the progress of the inquiry humbly to submit to Your Majesty the following preliminary report:—

In obedience to Your Majesty's commands, we opened the Commission in the city of Norwich on the 19th day of August last, and continued the inquiry by daily sittings, with an adjournment from the 4th day of September to the 27th day of the same month with the sanction of Your Majesty's Secretary of State for the Home Department, until the present time.

The said last election for the city of Norwich was appointed for the 16th day of November 1868, when Sir Henry Josias Stracey, Baronet, Sir William Russell, Baronet, and Jacob Henry Tillett, Esquire, were duly nominated as candidates, and the show of hands having been declared by the returning officer to have been in favour of the two latter gentlemen, a poll was demanded in behalf of Sir Henry Josias Stracey, which was taken on the following day, and continued till 4 o'clock in the afternoon.

During our sittings under the said Commission it was proved before us that an arrangement was made between Edward Stracey, Esquire, a son of the said Sir Henry Josias Stracey, Arthur Bignold, of the city of London, stockbroker, and Joseph Allen, of the city of Norwich, surgeon, that the said Edward Stracey should procure the sum of 200*l.* for the purpose of being distributed among a number of persons who were active supporters of the said Sir Henry Josias Stracey, in order that they might therewith corruptly procure electors to vote for the said Sir Henry Josias Stracey at the said election, and that the said sum was so procured and distributed accordingly.

The evidence upon which we have come to this conclusion is contained in the examinations of the several persons set forth in the first schedule to this Report.

It has also been proved before us that on the said polling day, John Hughes Hulme, of the city of Norwich, chemist, did corruptly receive a portion of the said money, and did corruptly employ a portion of the same in distributing it to various persons to procure a number of electors to vote for the said Sir Henry Josias Stracey, by bribing them with various sums of money, and that in the account which, having been duly sworn, he gave to us of such expenditure, he did, in order to conceal that he had retained a portion of the said money, commit wilful and corrupt perjury in his examination before us.

The evidence upon which we have come to this conclusion is contained in the examinations of the said John Hughes Hulme, Joseph Allen, John Howse Allen, William Houghton, John Houghton, John Hart Bowgen, and Thomas Mackley, set forth in the first schedule to this Report.

It has also been proved before us, that Robert Hardiment, of the city of Norwich, fellmonger, did on the said polling day corruptly procure a number of electors to vote for the said Sir Henry Josias Stracey, at the said election, by bribing some of them with various sums of money, and also by treating them.

The evidence upon which we have come to this conclusion is contained in the examinations of the several persons set forth in the second schedule to this Report.

It has also been proved before us that on the said polling day, Arthur Hunt, of the city of Norwich, fowl dealer, and Samuel Smith, of the city of Norwich, did corruptly procure a number of electors to vote for the said Sir Henry Josias Stracey, by bribing them with various sums of money and also by treating them.

The evidence upon which we have come to this conclusion is contained in the examinations of the several persons, set forth in the third schedule to this Report.

It has also been proved before us that Thomas Benfather, of the city of Norwich, licensed victualler, did on the said polling day at the said election corruptly procure a number of electors to vote for the said Sir Henry Josias Stracey, by bribing them with various sums of money, and that the said Thomas Benfather having been duly sworn did commit wilful and corrupt perjury in his examination before us.

The evidence upon which we have come to this conclusion is contained in the examinations of the said Thomas Benfather and the several other persons set forth in the fourth schedule to this Report.

The said Edward Stracey, Arthur Bignold, Robert Hardiment, Arthur Hunt, and Samuel Smith, have not been examined by us, but the said Joseph Allen having been examined by us, has, as we believe, made a full disclosure of the matters within his knowledge, material to the said inquiry, and is therefore entitled to a certificate for his protection under the statute.

All which we humbly submit to Your Majesty's gracious consideration.

MINUTES OF EVIDENCE

TAKEN BEFORE

GEORGE MORLEY DOWDESWELL, Esq., Q.C.,

HORATIO MANSFIELD, Esq.,

AND

ROBERT JOHN BIRON, Esq.,

COMMISSIONERS APPOINTED BY HER MAJESTY

TO INQUIRE INTO

THE EXISTENCE OF CORRUPT PRACTICES AT THE LAST ELECTION FOR MEMBERS TO SERVE IN PARLIAMENT FOR THE CITY OF NORWICH.

At the Shire House, Norwich Castle.

JOHN HERBERT SECKER, Esq., Secretary.

FIRST DAY.

Thursday, 19th August 1869.

WACE LOCKETT MENDHAM sworn and examined.

1. (Mr. Dowdeswell.) Are you the town clerk of this city?—I am.

2. How long have you filled that office?—Since December 1855.

3. The city, I believe, is a very ancient city?—Very.

4. Have you the earliest charter?—I have not the charter with me. The first charter of which there is any note is the charter of Henry I. That charter has been lost; but the earliest charter we have is that of Henry II.

5. Does that recite the charter of Henry I.?—It mentions it.

6. Do you know when this city first returned members to Parliament?—Referring to Bloomfield's History of Norwich, which is the best in existence I believe, I find that it is stated to have been in the reign of Henry I.

7. Have you in your office any records of the earlier period of the city connected with the return of members to Parliament?—I am not able to say.

8. The ancient bounds of the city were enlarged by the Reform Act, I suppose?—No, they remained the same. The bounds of the city are set out by charter, and they were not altered by the Reform Act.

9. They were not altered by the Reform Act of William IV.?—No, they were not.

10. Before the Reform Act there were freemen of the city?—Yes.

11. Were they the only free voters, or were there scot and lot?—There were freeholders as well as freemen.

12. Freeholders and freemen were the only two classes?—Yes.

13. Under the Reform Act those classes still continue to have the right to vote?—Yes.

14. Can you tell me what was the population of this city at the last census?—At the last census it was upwards of 74,000, I believe. I speak from memory, but I think that is what it was.

15. Have you the register of voters at the last election?—The register formed in 1868 I have. That is the register upon which the election took place.

16. Have you a copy of the register also which was in force at the previous election?—I have.

17. You have it in your possession?—I have. I have the year preceding, I believe, 1867 and 1868.

18. Have you also the register formed in the year 1867?—Yes, I have.

19. What was the number of voters in this city upon the register of 1867?—The number on the register was 5,912, but there were many persons registered once, twice, or thrice, or even more than that; therefore that is not a certain number.

20. From there being freeholders as well as occupiers, and also there being freemen, I suppose that there were many duplicates?—Yes, many. One man would be registered as a freeman, as an occupier in several different parishes, and he might be also registered as a freeholder in different parishes.

21. Can you give me any idea of the number of duplicates or triplicates arising from that cause?—I cannot now. I did get them out for the purposes of the election, but they were handed over to some person, and have not been returned to me.

22. To whom did you hand them over?—To the agent of Mr. Tillett; but I am not quite certain.

23. What was the number of voters on the register of 1868?—13,296.

24. That is a very large increase?—A very large increase.

25. Was there a considerable number of duplicates upon that?—A great number.

26. Have you attempted in any way to make out the number of duplicates in that?—That is the number I spoke of in the former answer.

27. I thought you were referring to 1867?—No; I had no occasion to.

28. You have not made out the duplicates for 1867?—No, I have not.

29. Only the duplicates for 1868?—Only the duplicates for 1868. I have got it out roughly.

30. I was speaking first of 1867?—I should say that in the formation of the register of 1868 I gave the overseer instructions not to register (if he had knowledge of the fact) a man twice; if he was a freeman to let him stand on the freemen's list only, and to strike him off the freeholders' and occupiers' list, and to do that as much as possible.

31. Can you tell me anything like the number of dead men who were registered?—I cannot.

32. There was, I suppose, a considerable number?—There were many.

33. You have no means of estimating it?—I have not. I should say the agents for the candidates would be most likely to supply that information, because it was their interest to make inquiry.

34. Perhaps you can give me the number of freemen?—Yes; I can give you the number of each class.

35. Do so?—I have drawn them out here (referring to a paper).

36. What was the number of freemen?—Will you take 1867 or 1868 first?

37. We will take 1867 first?—In 1867 there were 1,981 registered as freemen, 2,607 occupiers, and 1,324 freeholders.

38. Then in 1868?—The number of freemen registered was 1,984; of occupiers, 9,798; of lodgers, 26; and freeholders, 1,488.

39. Do those papers which you have there contain the particulars?—They give the particulars, the number in each parish and each ward, and the gross total.

40. Into how many wards is your city divided?—Eight.

41. How many parishes are there?—A paper which I have handed up will show. There are the printed figures.

42. Including hamlets I see that there are 45?—Yes.

43. Will you just look at this map and tell me if it correctly represents the city (handing a map to the witness)?—I do not see any inaccuracy in it, taking a cursory glance at it. The wards are correctly marked, I believe.

44. I suppose as town clerk you swear the freemen?—Yes.

45. Before the Reform Act what constituted the right to be a freeman on the register of voters in this city?—Both before and after there has been no alteration in that; yes, there was an alteration by the Reform Act, but what consituted the right before was being born of a freeman.

46. Birthright?—Birthright, or apprenticeship to a freeman for seven years; and before the Reform Act the freedom of the city was acquired by purchase.

47. And gift, I suppose?—And gift. That has been abolished.

48. There were certain freemen under the Reform Act whose rights would die out with themselves. Were there any of those upon the last register?—No doubt.

49. Many?—Yes. A number always die every year.

50. But that reduces the number in one respect?—No, I do not think it does, because persons free-born make up the deficiency. If one man dies leaving three or four sons, then the number has rather increased, but it has not increased very much since the Reform Act.

51. Has the number of freemen been pretty well kept up since the Reform Act?—Yes, I think so.

52. It is pretty much the same now as it was at the time of the passing of the Act?—Yes.

53. You were resident in the city during the last election?—Yes, I was.

54. Are you cognisant of any bribery, treating, or corrupt practice having prevailed at that election?—I am not personally cognisant of anything of the kind, because I carefully abstained from interference in the election.

55. You took no part whatever in the election?—No. I merely kept an account of the poll for Mr. Tillett, and strictly on his behalf. Otherwise I did not interfere in any way.

56. But I suppose that you have heard of matters connected with the conduct of the last election?—I heard it on the day itself as the poll progressed. The numbers varied so materially.

57. What did you hear?—That there was corruption going on, and that voters were got together in batches, and induced to vote for some cause or other.

58. Did you hear where they were collected in batches?—In the seventh and eighth wards, the sixth ward, and I think in the third ward.

59. Can you tell me where in the first of those wards?—At what place, do you mean?

60. Yes?—No, I cannot.

61. Cannot you tell me at what place in any of those wards?—I heard in the seventh ward at the public house called "The Marquis of Granby," I think; and in the eighth ward at a place called "The Woolpack." I did not hear the name of the place in the sixth ward. I cannot remember how that was. There was also a talk about corruption in the fifth ward. That was at a public house called "The Trumpet."

62. Who gave you that information?—Persons who came backwards and forwards to the room where the poll was being kept.

63. Do you recollect the names of any of those persons?—Well, it was communicated to me, perhaps not publicly, because my own nephew, who is since dead, brought it to me.

64. What is his name?—Henry Tillett. He was very active in the seventh ward. He died about a fortnight since.

65. Any other person?—Well, there were other persons, but I really cannot call their names to memory. Several persons complained that corrupt practices were at work, but I took no special interest in the election.

66. This you heard in Mr. Tillett's committee room?—Yes, I did.

67. Who were the candidates at the last election?—Sir William Russell, Sir Henry Stracey, and Mr. Jacob Henry Tillett.

68. Have you made any inquiries since the election as to the truth of those reports which you then heard?—No, not the slightest. In my position, I thought it not right to interfere.

FIRST DAY.

W. L. Mendham.

19 Aug. 1869.

69. Besides Mr. Henry Tillett, can you give me the name of any other person or persons who were making those observations upon that day?—I cannot at this moment call names to memory, because, as I have said, I took no particular interest in it. I know there was a general complaint. Parties were running out and in and urging that the candidates should go down with a view to prevent it if possible.

70. Were the names of any persons mentioned as being active in those practices?—There were names mentioned, but I really cannot charge my memory with them now.

[The registers of the last election are put in.]

71. Are these the copies of the registers of the last election?—Of last year and 1867 they are copies. I have the originals if they are required. Those are more convenient because they are numbered.

72. Those are copies under the Act of Parliament?—Yes, like what I supplied the sheriff with for the conduct of the election.

JOHN PILGRIM sworn and examined.

J. Pilgrim.

73. (Mr. Mansfield.) You were acting under sheriff at the last election?—Yes.

74. Was that the first time of your so acting?—No, I have acted on several occasions.

75. You were the returning officer, were you not?—Yes.

76. Do you produce the return of the election expenses?—I produce the returns which the candidates' agents handed to me of their expenses. [The returns referred to are handed by the witness to the Commissioners.]

77. Are these the originals?—Yes; those are the original returns.

78. (Mr. Dowdeswell.) I see Sir William Russell's expenses are put down at 1,253*l.* 3*s.* 5*d.*?—Yes.

79. 1,915*l.* 1*s.* 9½*d.* for Sir Henry Stracey?—Yes.

80. And 831*l.* 4*s.* 5*d.* for Mr. Tillett?—Yes.

81. (Mr. Mansfield.) Who was Sir William Russell's agent?—Mr. Coaks.

82. And Sir Henry Stracey's?—Mr. Chittock.

83. And Mr. Tillett's?—Mr. Stevens.

84. Were there any other agents?—No.

85. Are you resident in Norwich yourself?—I am.

86. And you were present while this election was going on?—I was.

87. Do you know anything of the manner in which that election was conducted?—My attention was confined to the fifth ward, where I was superintending the poll, and I was not in any other part of the city.

88. Were you aware of anything happening in the fifth ward in relation to corrupt practices?—Not till I heard reports afterwards.

89. Afterwards did you become acquainted with them?—Only from report; nothing else.

90. Who brought you such reports?—I cannot charge my memory now. I believe I heard them in the office in conversation.

91. Who was in the office?—My clerks.

92. Were no names mentioned?—No.

93. And you know nothing more than that there was a general rumour of the existence of corrupt practices?—No.

94. Have you made any inquiries since upon the subject?—No.

95. Did you hear of any particular place where these practices were said to be going on?—I heard "The Trumpet" named. I do not remember any other place being mentioned to me in my ward.

96. Are you well acquainted with that ward?—Yes.

97. Do you remember when you heard "The Trumpet" mentioned?—The following day I think.

98. But you cannot say by whom?—No, I cannot.

99. Do you know the landlord of "The Trumpet" yourself, or anything about him?—No.

100. Did you know anything about the state of the poll in the course of the day?—No, I did not.

101. You had nothing to do with the election in 1867?—No.

102. Were you in Norwich at that time?—Yes.

ISAAC BUGG COAKS sworn and examined.

I. B. Coaks.

103. (Mr. Biron.) I believe you were agent for Sir William Russell at the last election?—I was.

104. He had contested this borough before, I think?—Yes, he had twice before.

105. Was he returned on both those occasions?—He was.

106. Then he, in fact, was your sitting member?—He was.

107. When did he first come forward, or when did he commence his canvass at the last election?—I should say that he formally declared himself as a candidate as far back as June 1868; but our canvassing was so irregular and was done in such an unsystematic way, if I may use that expression, that I can hardly tell you when he did begin to canvass.

108. I presume that from the time he declared himself he was canvassing more or less, either himself or his friends for him?—No, not so; the truth is that there was a division in our party, and that prevented our taking the ordinary steps of canvassing the electors as we had done at all other elections in which I had been engaged.

109. Sir William Russell was a Liberal candidate?—He was supposed to represent the Whig section of the Liberal party.

110. What other candidates were there upon the Liberal side?—In June 1867 Mr. Warner, the other old member, came down with Sir William Russell, intending and desiring to contest the city; but the result of their meeting the electors on that occasion was so unsatisfactory that it was thought that one of them must withdraw.

111. Mr. Warner was a Whig?—Mr. Warner had represented the Radical section of the party up to that time.

112. But it was thought that a more Radical candidate would please the new voters?—They desired a change; many of them did, at all events.

113. The result was that Mr. Warner retired?—Mr. Warner retired.

114. He did not come really into the field; when did Mr. Tillett, come upon the scene?—I should think about six or eight months before the election.

115. Then he declared himself as soon as Sir William Russell?—He had not actually declared himself when Sir William Russell and Mr. Warner met their constituents, but it was as well known in Norwich that he intended to be a candidate as if he had declared himself.

116. There was no disguise about his intention?—At that time there was none, because prior to that time we had held meetings as a committee of the party at which it was formally made known that Mr. Tillett intended to stand.

117. You have said that there was some split in the party. I presume that Sir William Russell's friends were not very eager to take up Mr. Tillett?—They were very reluctant to do so.

118. But, in fact, before the election came on did they take him up?—Certainly, with some few exceptions.

119. I am speaking of the great body?—Undoubtedly those gentlemen who were known as leaders of the Whig party consented to support Mr. Tillett, but that would only be about eight or nine days before the election.

120. When it came to actual fighting was there a joint canvass by Mr. Tillett and Sir William Russell?—There was not what I call a canvass.

FIRST DAY.
I. B. Coaks.
19 Aug. 1869.

121. Some would no doubt, if you got a thoroughly good Liberal, say, "You are going to give your other "vote for so-and-so?"—I think there was a perfectly honest canvass from the time of the coalition between Mr. Tillett's supporters and Sir William Russell's; but still there was not what I call the accustomed canvass, the thorough street to street and house to house canvass that we had had at former elections.

122. How many days before the election was it that the coalition took place?—I do not know whether you want the precise time.

123. No; give it us as nearly as you can?—The nomination was on the 16th of November, and as nearly as I can tell about ten days before that Sir William Russell and Mr. Tillett coalesced. I cannot say what the precise day was, but it would be about that time.

124. From that time was there a regular joint canvass carried on?—There really was not a canvass at all, not what I call a canvass.

125. You mean a systematic affair?—Not any systematic canvass; but Mr. Tillett, and Sir William Russell from that time addressed meetings jointly, and joint addresses were published and joint action was taken to secure the return of both candidates during those ten days.

126. Was there a joint committee?—We got no further than the proposition that there should be a joint committee; we found that it would not work. Names were submitted to me for Mr. Tillett's committee and there was a difficulty; the difficulty was where to draw the line for that committee, and there really never was a joint committee at all.

127. You got some organisation of your own of course before this coalition?—Yes, I will tell you what we had. We had six or eight gentlemen selected from the main body of the Liberals, the Whig section I am speaking of, and I can give you their names if you wish it: Sir William Foster, Mr. John Youngs, Mr. Henry Birkbeck, Mr. Robert Chamberlain, Mr. Samuel Daynes, and myself. Up to that time there were six other gentlemen representing Mr. Tillett. I think I can recollect their names. I will do my best: Mr. J. J. Colman, Mr. John Copeman, Mr. A. M. F. Morgan, Mr. C. H. Capon; those are only five, I forget the sixth.

128. You gave me the six names, Sir William Foster and the other gentlemen who acted with you, but did they canvass at all for Sir William Russell before the coalition?—Not at all.

129. Were you not feeling the pulse of the electors? Were you not taking any steps to ascertain your strength?—We had an organisation at a very short notice. We have certain hands who have been in the elections again and again, and they were understood to be engaged for Sir William Russell when the time was come to begin, but I say there was no systematic organisation for canvassing, and you will see the reason, that until we knew with whom we were allied, or whether we were to stand alone (for down to the last we were told there were two Radical candidates) it was utterly impossible to know what we were to do.

130. But do I take it from you that you did not in fact canvass for Sir William Russell up to ten days before the election?—Substantially we did not.

131. Of course I know how difficult it is to define canvassing?—That is my difficulty; of course we were all very much on the elert for Sir William Russell. We had our men in our different wards when we wanted them, but we had not made any house to house canvassing and had not even held any private or public meetings.

132. You told me that you had an organisation put in motion at a moment's notice?—At a short notice.

133. Were these men you have spoken of in every ward?—Yes, Sir William Russell had tried men in every ward.

134. Will you be kind enough to give me the names of those gentlemen, take ward No. 1 first; who were your principal supporters, the men upon whom you could rely to take action? You say you had those ready, and that you had tested them by fighting the borough before?—No, we had not, because I have been in every election since 1847.

135. You had fought other elections, so that you knew what it was?—I knew all the valuable changes on the Liberal side in Norwich, Radical or Whig, and as we never had any difficulty where to draw the line before, that really was our only difficulty this time. If you ask me with regard to the first ward, one of the most active men we had there happened to be a very good Tillett man, Mr. Bryant Allen, then there were certain men who would come at the call of Mr. Bryant Allen in the management of that ward.

136. Can you give me any of those names in the first ward, I mean those gentlemen you have spoken of who worked under Mr. Bryant Allen?—Well Mr. F. Clowes, the auctioneer, would be one, Mr. Dowson, the solicitor would be another; then there is a man who has always been active as a smaller man in the first ward, who keeps "The Compasses" in King Street, but I do not recollect his name just now.

137. He is a publican?—Yes, he has always been a thorough supporter of the Liberals.

138. Is his place one of the committee rooms or houses of call?—Certainly not a committee room, but it had been in some way made use of by the party I think.

139. It was a place probably where voters could be found?—No, not at all; the first ward is not a ward of that character.

140. Now had you in the first ward any of your own men proper, Russellites proper?—Well the first ward is a ward that would want less looking after on the Liberal side than any of the others, but I should say that we are weaker in the first ward than any of the wards as far as organisation is concerned.

141. The supporters would go straight?—Yes, they do not want much looking after. In the first ward there is a better class of voters than in the other wards.

142. (Mr. Dowdeswell.) It is a central ward?—No; round where we are now is the first ward, and it embraces the district all down to the railway station; but I should say it is a ward less open to corrupt influence than any ward in the city.

143. (Mr. Biron.) Did you have any paid agents in that ward?—Yes, one of my own clerks was a paid agent in that ward.

144. What is his name?—Warner Wright; he was the agent for Sir William Russell, and Mr. Bryant Allen was the agent for Mr. Tillett.

145. When you got into working order did you get your returns from Mr. Bryant Allen?—Yes, certainly, from all the ward managers in fact.

146. Now we will go through the wards first of all. You have given me what I want with regard to the first ward; now with regard to the second ward, who was your principal man?—My own nephew was the manager in the second ward, and Mr. Kent was the ward manager for Mr. Tillett.

147. Were they paid?—I cannot say anything about Mr. Tillett's manager.

148. You have given me the principal men for Sir William Russell in ward No. 2, and the manager for Mr. Tillet; will you give me the other principal men who worked with them in that ward?—That would of course require some little time to think out the names. In the second ward Mr. Morgan was one of Mr. Tillett's great supporters, and Mr. Robert Thorns took an active part; then there were the Messrs. Bullard and Mr. Boyce, and then there are smaller men, I hardly know where to draw the line; there is a Mr. Bush who would take an active part in the second ward, and a Mr. Rapier who is an active man in the second ward, and I think that is pretty well the list of them there.

149. Who was the paid agent in that ward?—My nephew, Mr. Cooper, was my paid agent. I ought to say here that with regard to the agency for Sir William Russell's and Mr. Tillett's coalition, it was distinctly understood, and as far as I know was the fact, that everything was borne jointly, with the exception of agency. Sir William Russell paid his agents distinct from Mr. Tillett, but what Mr. Tillett did with his agents, whether he paid them or whether he did not, I do not know, for that formed no part of the account between us. I paid my agents separately from Mr. Tillett.

150. Do you know whether Mr. Tillett had a paid agent in that ward?—I should say yes, Mr. Kent, the solicitor, because Mr. Kent after the election applied to me to pay him, and I said "No, I have to pay the "agents of Sir William Russell, and as you were "Mr. Tillett's agent you must look to him for "payment."

151. Had you any paid canvassers in that ward?—Sir William Russell certainly had not, and Mr. Tillett had not to my knowledge, but I do not know so much about Mr. Tillett's part in the election as Sir William Russell's, and cannot speak so positively about it.

152. Your paid agents you have spoken of, I presume, would make returns to you?—I think the returns were in Mr. Kent's handwriting, but they would act together.

153. They were vouched by him?—They were worked together. There was perfect harmony of management in the wards from the time of the Tillett and Russell coalition as far as it went.

154. Now with regard to this second ward, are there any public houses there?—There are lots of public houses there, in fact it might be said to be a district of public houses.

155. Which was Sir William Russell's house?—Our committee room was not at a public house.

156. Did you not take houses this last election?—Oh no.

157. Did you not placard them outside?—No, we did not adopt the Westminster plan at the last election.

158. But there would be some houses?—Oh yes, where we should have an hour's meeting perhaps; there are certain houses in each ward that are Liberal houses no doubt, but there was much less of that at the last election than formerly.

159. But there was something of that?—Yes, there was.

160. What are the houses in that second ward?—I think that is rather beyond what I can recollect, but we had two or three houses.

161. (Mr. Dowdeswell.) Here is a plan with every public house marked upon it?—Thank you, I do not want the plan, that will not help me; but I know every road and street in the second ward, and if I saw the signs of the houses I daresay I could recollect. (The plan is handed to the witness.) I recollect the principal place of meeting in the second ward, but I do not see it here; our principal house was "The Duke's Palace," and always has been since I have had to do with the elections.

162. Who keeps that?—A very respectable man indeed, named Snowling.

163. (Mr. Biron.) He will vote for you again, I suppose?—Oh yes, he is sure to. That has been our principal house in the second ward ever since I have had anything to do with the elections.

164. Did you pay Snowling?—No, I should think not.

165. Can you not tell me?—I think I may say certainly not.

166. May you say certainly not?—You mean for the use of his room.

167. Yes, for the use of his room?—I never knew him to be paid, and I should say certainly not; but at these meetings there is drink consumed, and that is pretty well recognised as discharging the value of the room. Of my own knowledge I only know of one room that was paid for at the last election; but there may have been some rooms for which ten shillings or a pound may have been paid, if so, they are all in my account.

168. What were the other places in that ward?—I do not think we had another place of meeting there. There might have been another public house.

169. About this eating and drinking at the meetings, by whom would that be paid for?—That would be paid for by the persons who went there, the persons attending the meeting. As far as I know at the last election, and I may say at every election at which I have been engaged, I never knew drink paid for at any of these meetings; that has never been the practice in Norwich, and certainly not at the last election. I am speaking now on the part of the Liberals, and I say that is not the way in which money has been spent in Norwich; it has never been spent so long before the election with so much uncertainty; there has been better management here.

170. Then you say there are no other houses in that ward?—I am not quite sure whether that one you have mentioned on the cross has not been used for a meeting, but "The Duke's Palace" has been considered our principal house; there is a large yard there, and therefore there is more room. All the public houses in the second ward are very small, and you could scarcely get a meeting of any importance up at that time. At "The Duke's Palace," if the room was too full, we could turn out into the yard.

171. What is the house to which the voters would go just at the last moment on the day of the polling?—Not to "The Duke's Palace."

172. If you wanted them at 12 o'clock on the day of the polling, what would be the house you would go to find them?—I should say every small house in the second ward at 12 o'clock would have men who had not polled, and who wanted money; at almost every small public house you would find them more or less.

173. Can you give me now the names of those small houses?—As I understand they are all on the plan.

174. I do not mean the names of the houses but the names of the landlords?—I cannot; but there would be two or three men who had not voted hanging about at that time at almost every small public house.

175. They do not vote very early in the morning at Norwich, do they?—A great many do, but there are always some who do not.

176. Those who want money do not?—Those who want money do not of course, unless they get their money early in the morning.

177. I think you have told me all about the second ward, will you kindly now go to the third ward?—The third ward is a very important ward, it is in fact a borough in itself; our head-quarters in the third ward were at "The Grapes."

178. First let me have the name of your principal man who would be your manager there?—My manager was my cashier, Mr. Berry.

179. He would be the paid agent on your side?—Yes.

180. Who would be the principal men who would be at the head of the organisation there?—The organisation in the third ward was the most feeble I ever knew, in fact it was not an organisation at all; there were none of the accustomed hands united in the third ward this time. I can tell you who have always taken part in former elections in the third ward, but somehow or other they did not this time.

181. Who did actually take part in the management in the third ward this time?—The management fell chiefly to my cashier, Mr. Berry, who has had a great deal of experience in that ward and in elections, and upon Mr. White, a very energetic and earnest supporter of Mr. Tillett. Usually we have had some of our very best citizens on a committee in that ward taking a very active part, but at this last election there was nothing of the kind, in fact the last election differed so much in that respect from every other election in Norwich that you would have thought it was a different place altogether in which an election was going on.

FIRST DAY.
I. B. Coaks.
19 Aug. 1869.

182. Now under Mr. White and your cashier, Mr. Berry, were there any smaller men acting ?—Certainly there would be some, the third ward is a very large ward and a very important ward.

183. Could you give me the names of those who were acting for you ?—I had another clerk who took part in the management of a district in the third ward, whose name is Clark.

184. And he, I presume, was paid ?—He was paid and charged in my account, but to give you all the names I should have to refer to my books. I have brought with me a summary of my account, but of course every name is not inserted in that summary. If you will allow me I will take a note of this and will supply the information. There were many more men employed in the third ward than I can possibly recollect.

185. You have got the details somewhere ?—Oh yes.

186. Then will you kindly let us have them ?—As I understand, you want the names of the parties employed in the third ward.

187. Yes, distinguishing those who were paid from those who were unpaid ?—I should not in my account, of course, have the unpaid ones at all, but they would be very limited indeed.

188. What is your principal house there ?—" The Grapes."

189. Who keeps " The Grapes " ?—Mr. Clark.

190. Is that a house where you hold your principal meetings ?—It is a house where the entire management of the ward springs from.

191. What other Liberal houses are there ?—Well, I should think perhaps 30 or 40 Liberal houses. There are a very large number of Liberal houses in the third ward, but I cannot tell you the signs of all of them. There is the wine stores, in St. Giles' Street, where we have an active supporter and one who ever has been so.

192. What is his name ?—Savage.

193. What other is there in the third ward ?—There are so many that it is difficult to tell you. We had a house on the Dereham Road that has always been our house, and I believe our district committee was there. A man of the name of Betts keeps that house, but I forget the sign of it.

194. What houses are there there at which the late voters would be found ?—Well, not at public houses. My experience of late voters in the third ward is that they would come well on the plain near the polling booth.

195. They would meet you half-way ?—That is four-fifths of the way.

196. Is there any spokesman, any head man from the late voters there ?—No, nor anywhere I should say. They are too independent, they like to strike their own bargains.

197. Then you say in the third ward they come to you ?—Not to me.

198. I do not mean to say " you." I used that word as an impersonation of the Whigs ?—I do not say that they come anywhere ; the late voters are to be found near the polling places.

199. Hanging about near the polling places ?—Yes.

200. We have a notion that these men form themselves into gangs of, say, perhaps ten or a dozen, and that they would send a spokesman to some one or other ?—Then I can say that is quite a mistake. I do not say that there are not ten or a dozen people very near together on an election day at Norwich to be bought, but they are not in gangs, neither have they spokesmen. They make their own bargains and act independently.

201. They do go about together in company ?—Hardly that. I think the public house is the place of meeting of men who have not polled and who want money, but they might by chance. That is my experience of Norwich elections, and that not to any great extent, not to a tithe of the extent some people have formed a notion of, and I should say at the last election to a less extent than at any election that I have ever been connected with.

202. You say you do not think it is a plan to act through a spokesman ?—I never knew it, and I am now speaking of the elections at which I have known money was spent. I do not know that any money was spent at the last election, but I am speaking from the experience of elections when money has been spent. I do not say that I know it was spent, for I have never seen a shilling paid in my life, but when it was patent that there was money being spent on both sides, I never recollect that even then there were gangs of men represented by spokesmen. They like to make their bargains themselves unknown to other people. That is the rule of action here.

203. Did you not hear during the progress of the polling at this last election that there were men waiting at different public houses ?—Yes, we did, one in particular ; that was down in the seventh ward, and they were at a house that had always been and was even at the last election in our interest.

204. Now with regard to the fourth ward, can you give me the names of the managers in that ward ?—The manager in the fourth ward was my partner, Mr. Rackham, he was for Sir William Russell, and Mr. Skippon was for Mr. Tillett.

205. And who were the principal gentlemen in that ward ?—Mr. John Copeman and Mr. Etheridge, but there again, as no canvassing parties were formed as at other elections, I cannot bring in the usual men who supported us. We have always been very strong in our canvassing party in the fourth ward, but I believe there was not a day's canvass there this time.

206. Can you give us any smaller men if you cannot remember the principal supporters ?—To give you all the names of the smaller men I shall have again to refer to information which I have not got here.

207. Will you just make a note of that and supply us with this information ?—Yes.

208. Can you give me the names of the paid agents there ?—So far as my paid agents are concerned my partner was the agent.

209. Will you take a note to give us that information ?—Yes ; but as you are on paid agents at the present time I may say that I was not a paid agent myself at the last election.

210. Now with regard to the public houses in that ward, what do you say about them ?—There were a great many public houses.

211. Which is the principal house ?—The principal house was our head quarters altogether, " The Royal Hotel," in the market place, but that was not used in any way in connexion with the election except that the candidates stayed there.

212. I was rather referring to houses of a different class ?—In the fourth ward they would not congregate at the houses at all. There is the market place, which is a more convenient place for seeing a man than a public house. There may be one or two low-class public houses in the big part of the ward, but I do not think the public houses in the fourth ward would be used in any way on the election day, so far as I am able to state, and that is more from general experience than from the experience of the last election itself. The fourth ward is a ward that polls extremely well, honest, and straight for both sides.

213. Now with regard to the fifth ward, who are the principal men there ?—In the fifth ward one gentleman represented both Mr. Tillett and Sir William Russell. Mr. Henry Miller was the agent of both.

214. Was he a paid or an unpaid agent ?—I believe he was unpaid. Certainly as far as Sir William Russell was concerned he was unpaid.

215. Who were the gentlemen that acted with him ?—Well, we were every week in the fifth ward. Scarcely anybody in the fifth ward took an active part in the election, but Mr. Miller would have his clerk who had been in the elections previously.

216. What is his name?—I think Mr. Burton, an articled clerk, was with him there.

217. And another clerk, I suppose?—I should say he would have another clerk, but Mr. Miller has always been in the fifth ward, and is able to take the management of the fifth ward with less assistance than those who are strangers to a ward.

218. Had you any paid agents there?—We considered Mr. Miller a paid agent, but he did not take a fee, therefore I considered he represented Sir William Russell on the same terms as the other agents, but Mr. Miller was not paid by me for Sir William Russell.

219. I understand that you had no other paid agents?—I did not, in fact, as Mr. Miller did not take the fee. I had paid agents in the fifth ward.

220. Had Mr. Tillett any paid agents there?—Mr. Miller represented Mr. Tillett, but as he declined to take a fee from Sir William Russell, I should say he took none from Mr. Tillett. "The Crown and Anchor" is our head-quarters in the fifth ward, if you want to know the public house, but the committee would not be held there.

221. Where is the committee room there?—The committee room was at a small shop close by in St. Stephen's Street.

222. Is the fifth ward a place where there would be late voters?—Yes, there are some in the fifth ward.

223. Where is the place to find them?—Well, the evidence at the inquiry told us that there were several congregated at "The Trumpet," but for that evidence I should not be able to say that. That was a very convenient place for the polling; and I should say if there were any men waiting to vote belonging to the fifth ward they would be somewhere thereabouts in St. Stephen's Street showing themselves.

224. Are there any other public houses in St. Stephen's Street besides "The Trumpet?"—"The Trumpet" was the Tory house. I did not look how the landlord voted, but I should say that in St. Stephen's Street the proportion of public houses is about three to two; there were three Liberals to two Conservatives.

225. Will you tell us what other houses there are in this fifth ward?—St. Stephen's Street is lined with public houses on both sides, and my experience is that they vote in about the proportion of two to three, two for the Liberals, and three for the Conservatives; but there are very few of the publicans, and it is only fair to say that there are very few of them who really take an active part beyond voting,

226. Then I should think any public house in St. Stephen's Street would be a likely sort of place for one side or the other to find the late voters?—Certainly public houses, plains, and market places are the places where men who have not voted, and who want it to be known that they have not voted, promiscuously assemble, but I do not know of any gang system or of any spokesman or leader of any kind.

227. Can you give me the names of any other houses?—Almost every house in the street, I should say, might have had two or three men who had not voted in it, but I cannot give you any in particular.

228. Do I understand you to say that in St. Stephen's Street there is no house more specially likely to be used than another?—That is my opinion, either on one side or the other. As far as the Liberals were concerned there was no one waiting at any time, because there was no show or pretence for it.

229. Did you hear of any message coming to the Liberals in a house in St. Stephen's Street on the polling day?—I kept the poll on the polling day, and I did not want any message. I could see quite well how things stood when money began to be spent, and how it began. The poll is the best test of that, and I could see as well in keeping the poll as if I had been on the spot. I do not believe there is a person in the fifth ward who would harbour men or who was engaged in getting men, if there was, I do not know such.

230. The sixth ward, who was the manager there?—Mr. Asker, the solictor, represented Sir William Russell, and Mr. Dean represented Mr. Tillett.

231. Were they paid men?—I cannot say anything about Mr. Dean, but Mr. Asker was; all the gentlemen who represented Sir William Russell in the several wards, except Mr. Miller, were paid agents.

232. Who were the principal men who acted with them?—Mr. Colman would be the principal man; he is the proprietor of the large works by the river side, and he is a most influential supporter of the Liberal party in the sixth ward.

233. He is a large employer of labour?—Very large indeed.

234. Who were the smaller men?—There is another gentleman in the sixth ward also extremely active and influential, Mr. John Youngs. I should say that perhaps the sixth ward was better attended to at the last election than any ward in the city on the part of the Liberals.

235. Can you give us the names of any of the smaller men?—There would be a great many paid men in the sixth ward, and I will furnish you with the principal names; it is a very large ward and lies a great deal about, and we should have a great many persons employed there.

236. Now about the public houses in the sixth ward, what have you to say?—Of the public houses in the sixth ward "The Greyhound" in Ber Street has always been our head-quarters at all elections.

237. And with regard to the other houses?—One that I should mention as the principal house on the Conservative side is "The Richmond Hill Tavern;" there is a very active supporter of the Conservatives there. There are a great many public houses, but I should imagine those to be the principal ones. "The Richmond Hill Tavern" is a Conservative house; it is the house where the sixth ward Conservative Club held their meetings, and as far as we are concerned, "The Greyhound" is our principal house.

238. Would those be the houses of call?—Our committee rooms were at "The Greyhound" I believe.

239. With regard to the late men who wanted something, where would you go for them in the sixth ward?—I should say "The Richmond Hill Tavern" would not be far off; there is a plain there, and a polling place close by.

240. Now we will go to the seventh ward?—That is my ward.

241. Then you know all about it, you are the principal man there of course?—No, not at all, but I happen to reside there.

242. Who was the paid man there?—The paid man on Sir William Russell's part was another of my clerks.

243. And who was the manager, or the principal man?—For Sir William Russell my clerk was, but a Mr. Sadd, a solicitor, represented Mr. Tillett.

244. Can you say whether he was paid or not?—I cannot say, but I should think he was.

245. Who were the principal men acting with them?—Well, two of the principal men, as far as I was concerned, were Jesse Minns and Robert Hart, as knowing everybody in the seventh ward, but there were a great many others in the seventh ward; there was Mr. Womersley, who took an extremely active part for Mr. Tillett, and there was M ith, also another active supporter of Mr. Tillett.r. Sm

246. What was he, I should like to distinguish him by something?—Well his name is Joseph, that will distinguish him.

247. Who else?—There was a gentleman, since dead, who also took an active part in the election, Mr. Kitten, a wholesale grocer in Stamp Cross. Mr. Jarrold would take an active part to some extent;

FIRST DAY.

some of the Tillyards also took part, and a great many others. The seventh ward is a ward in which we had for many years an organisation called the seventh and eighth ward club.

248. Who is the secretary or chairman?—It has been for two or three years defunct.

249. What was its head-quarters?—They used to meet at two or three public houses weekly or fortnightly.

250. At what public houses did they meet?—Well, I cannot tell you the signs.

251. Could you tell me the names of the landlords?—No, it is so long ago.

252. What is the principal public house in the seventh ward?—The principal public house is a smaller house kept by Mr. Minns, the brother of the Jesse Minns that I spoke of; another is where the seventh ward association used to meet, and a third one is kept by Mackley, called "The Marquis of Granby." Of course it is very difficult to recollect all the signs of these public houses, but I am reminded that Minns keeps "The Queen's Arms;" that is the house where the seventh ward association used to meet. "The Marquis of Granby" is a house kept by Mackley, a man who always supported the Liberals.

253. What other public houses were there in the ward which the late men would be at?—The public houses in that ward are of a lower class, and any public house tolerably within reach of the polling place, I should say, would have a few voters drinking their glasses; but I cannot mention any one in particular.

254. What streets are they in?—Pockthorpe, St. James' Street, St. Paul's Plain, St. Paul's Opening; those are places where the lowest class of voters in the city live.

255. And the public houses in those streets would be close to the polling places of that district?—Yes, there are four or five polling places in the ward, and there would be one in St. Paul's Plain. Pockthorpe, St. James', and St. Paul's are in, I regret to say, the poorest district in the city, and undoubtedly if men are corruptly influenced that is the ward in which the corruption more especially takes place.

256. That is one of the poorest wards?—Yes; the seventh ward is most undoubtedly the most corrupt ward in the city.

257. Now will you go on to the eighth ward, and give me first the managers?—The manager of the eighth ward for Sir William Russell was another of my clerks, A. J. Berry, the brother of my cashier, and Mr. Abel Tillett, a nephew of Mr. Tillett's, for Mr. Tillett.

258. What gentlemen were there working with them?—It is rather difficult in the eighth ward to find any; the eighth ward is essentially a working man's ward, and we have always regarded it as one of the strongholds of liberalism. There are some very active men. One of the most active men there was a Mr. Harper. Mr. Samuel Spinks is a very active man. There is a Mr. Lofty, Mr. Cossey, Mr. Gilbert; in fact one or two of the Gilberts are very active indeed.

259. Who were the paid agents there?—As far as our paid agents were concerned, of course I cannot tell you about Mr. Tillett's, my clerk was charged for in the account as a paid agent.

260. What is the name of that clerk who had that eighth ward?—A. J. Berry; and with regard to other men who were paid, I should say that Mr. Cossey, and certainly Mr. Spinks, was not paid to my knowledge; but there would be several men paid in the eighth ward.

261. Perhaps you will just make a note of that?—Yes, I will; both as to the seventh and eighth.

262. (Mr. Dowdeswell.) Would those paid agents appear upon the account which you rendered to the Election Expenses Officer?—Most assuredly; all the agents that we paid, as far as Sir William Russell is concerned, are charged in this account. I had no other means of getting the money. Here are the items:—"Eight ward managers at twenty guineas "each, 168*l.*"

263. (Mr. Biron.) Do you know of any other agents or canvassers who were paid than those which appear in your account?—So far as Sir William Russell is concerned not a shilling. I know of no outside payments whatever in connexion with the last election, and so far as Sir William Russell is concerned this account reflects every shilling that was paid, and is the sum which Sir William Russell has since paid me. I do not know of a shilling outside it.

264. Now about the public houses in the eighth ward?—Well, there are a great many, and as the eighth ward is also a very poor district the public houses naturally sympathise with the district and are not of the higher order.

265. Can you give me the names of any of them there?—The streets are full of them. I should think there are not less than sixty public houses in the eighth ward, so that it is impossible to give their names. There is "The Fighting Cock," "The Pheasant," "The Lion," in fact almost every animal you can mention in nature.

266. In and out of nature?—Yes.

267. Do I understand that you cannot specify any particular public house in the eighth ward?—No.

268. I think we have now gone through the different managers and so forth in these wards. You told me when I began your examination that before the coalition the canvassing was very imperfect?—Both before and after. It was the worst managed election that ever took place in Norwich during the present century.

269. But badly though it may have been managed, something was done I presume?—Really very little. I cannot alter that. We ought not to have been in the position in which we were, and should not have been.

270. What was done?—Two or three meetings were held of a night at St. Andrew's Hall, two or three altogether, and some driving about the city. That was the extent of the canvass. There really was no canvassing.

271. Was Sir William Russell down here himself?—He was for nine or ten days, and then he went back. I do not think Sir William Russell was in the city more than that time.

272. When was it that he came down?—Immediately prior to the election; but after the joint candidature he was away two or three days in London.

273. Did he not appear in the city until after the coalition?—Not until just before.

274. Had he not addressed any meeting shortly after Parliament was dissolved?—No, we had only one meeting; that was when Warner and he came down, and at that time it was evident that the Radical section were determined to have another candidate, which kept us in a state of uncertainty, so that no decided action could be taken. We had our meetings for conference, but we did not go out, and had not public meetings; in fact we did nothing towards winning the election.

275. Was there not a society called the Election Society?—The Electoral Organisation Society. That was a society which espoused Mr. Tillett's cause entirely; I know nothing of that. That was in operation twelve months prior to the election.

276. Did not the Organisation Society work with you until after the coalition?—Certainly not.

277. Who is the chairman of that? Mr. Morgan, is it not?—Yes, the gentleman whose name I mentioned as a supporter in the second ward.

278. Was he very active?—Yes, night and day.

279. Was he personally in communication with you before the coalition? I mean to say was he helping you in canvassing?—Quite the reverse. In fact until the coalition we were quite as much opponents, or more I should say, even than the Conservatives were.

280. Do I understand that you cannot tell me yourself about the proceedings of this Electoral Organisation Society ?—I cannot, only as I have seen them reported.

281. Did you attempt to make an estimate of the strength of your party before the coalition ?—That would be a very difficult thing to do, considering the new voters that were coming on. If we had had only the old register to deal with we could have made a very correct calculation, but with the new register it would have been impossible to say, especially when we were split up into three parties ; it would have been a more difficult line to draw as between a Whig and a Radical than between a Liberal and a Conservative.

282. You did not do that until after the coalition ?—Certainly not.

283. After the coalition the Electoral Organisation Society pulled with you ?—They did.

284. And Mr. Morgan acted with you ?—Certainly.

285. I take it that he went heart and hand with you in the contest ?—Certainly ; and I should like here to say, as I have an opportunity of speaking out, that all the Whig gentlemen of our party went as heartily in support of Mr. Tillett as they did in support of Sir William Russell. It has been suggested otherwise, and I desire to speak out as far as my knowledge is concerned that there was a perfectly fair contract entered into and kept between these gentlemen.

286. You say that after the coalition it was a fair party fight ?—Certainly. Of course there were exceptions ; some gentlemen felt they could only vote for Sir William Russell, but certainly, as a party, good faith was kept.

287. I am asking you now about what occurred after the coalition, that is a sufficient date for you ; after that you were managing the whole election for Sir William Russell ?—Yes, we had two very active assistant managers, Mr. Ray and Mr. Daynes ; those gentlemen were my assistant managers.

288. Did you continue then to act solely for Sir William Russell ; I mean in this sense, was there another person acting for Mr. Tillett ?—Mr. Stevens represented Mr. Tillett.

289. But you worked together and helped each other ?—Certainly ; from the time of the coalition everything was open from the one to the other. We had no secrets.

290. After that did you not commence to canvass ?—Well, reports were brought to the central committee room of the canvass, but that was a canvass which was so imperfectly conducted and managed as not to be relied upon. However, towards the approach of the election I did as I always have done ; I took stock of our canvass, such as it was, and of that I have the figures before me.

291. I should like those figures please, but perhaps before that I may ask you this, you say that the canvassers made reports from time to time, but did you deal with them ; did you mark them on the register ?—Certainly ; we kept a marked register, and kept the names.

292. They brought you the names ?—They would bring names.

293. Who brought them ?—I should say here that to my knowledge no stock had been taken of our canvass until the Saturday before the election ; and then I was pressed very much by Sir William Russell to go to the committee rooms and see exactly how things stood ; that was really the first moment of my taking an active part in the election. The nomination was on the Monday, and this was on the Saturday ; and I really had personally taken no part in the election until that Saturday.

294. By that time there were materials upon which you could form a judgment, but how were they brought to the committee room ?—By the ward managers ; and there was some communication with the Electoral Organisation Society, with which I never was made familiar.

295. That would probably be through Mr. Morgan ?—I cannot tell you at all, but the markings of the society were forwarded to the central committee room somehow, and I had the result of those markings before me when I first took stock of our position on the Saturday night.

296. That was upon some register ?—Our marked register.

297. Have you got it here ?—The secretary applied to me for it, and I told him where it was. I have not it, but it can be fetched ; it is at Mr. Ray's.

298. It is in existence, that is all ?—Certainly, as soon as I was applied to for it I had it found and placed it at the disposal of the secretary. This is my original stock-taking (referring to a document).

299. You have got there the very paper ?—I have. First of all I should tell you that there was a much larger per-centage for doubles taken off the register than was entitled to be deducted in the calculation. The actual number of voters on the register, striking out the doubles, was 11,959, which you may call 12,000 in round numbers.

300. That is the actual voting power ?—That is the voting power ; it was spoken of as 11,000.

301. (Mr. Dowdeswell.) Striking out doubles ?—Striking out doubles. The register is something like 12,900, and striking out known dead men and doubles we had net 11,959 voting power. There would not be very many dead ; the register had been perfected so recently before that there would be very few deaths.

302. (Mr. Biron.) We may take it in round numbers at about 12,000 ?—12,000 is near enough for all practical purposes.

303. How many of those do you make out were pledged to you ?—Do you want each ward, or the totals ?

304. Have you got them made out in wards ?—This is my tabular statement made upon the Monday night before the election, (producing a document, which is handed to the Commissioners).

305. (Mr. Dowdeswell.) It shall be taken great care of ?—If you please ; it is a document which I rather value, because it is entirely borne out. The great feature of it is that there were over 5,000 unmarked men, which will tell you at once what sort of a canvass we had had.

306. Not necessarily ?—It was so, I assure you. There is a very exaggerated notion of what did take place or what Norwich is subject to, and as far as I possibly can I wish to correct it. I am certain that the state of things has been very much exaggerated, both at the last election and prior elections, and I say that these 5,000 men do not in any way speak as to the number of corrupt men ; I wish distinctly to say that they were men who were left open because they were never properly canvassed. It is only fair to the city to say that I speak behind the experience of six elections.

307. (Mr. Biron.) I find by this statement that in the first ward you calculate 373 for Russell, 365 for Tillett, and 328 for Stracey ?—Yes, but I did not calculate that at all. I knew they were wrong, but that was the result of the book ; it was not a calculation, for I calculated quite the contrary.

308. There are 273 open ?—Quite so.

309. In the second ward there are 282 for Russell, 286 for Tillett, 171 for Stracey, and 241 open ?—Yes.

310. In the third ward, 1,203 for Russell, 1,198 for Tillett, 527 for Stracey, and 1,617 open ?—Y

311. In the fourth ward, 144 for Russell, 134 for Tillett, 184 for Stracey, and 82 open ?—Yes.

312. In the fifth ward, 364 for Russell, 341 for Tillett, 275 for Stracey, and 387 open ?—Yes.

313. In the sixth ward, 852 for Russell, 868 for Tillett, 364 for Stracey, and 803 open ?—Yes.

FIRST DAY.

I. B. Coaks.

19 Aug. 1869.

314. In the seventh ward, 785 for Russell, 784 for Tillett, 233 for Stracey, and 1,319 open?—Yes.

315. In the eighth ward, 564 for Russell, 545 for Tillett, 143 for Stracey, and 411 open?—Yes.

316. Making a total of 4,577 for Russell, 4,521 for Tillet, 2,215 for Stracey, and 5,132 open to conviction?—Not open to conviction, I do not subscribe to that at all. There were 5,000 men who had never been seen to be marked.

317. Now, upon the returns made up from the marked register, how many did you calculate?—I will tell you where I found fault with that. As soon as I took that I put 1,500 more down to Sir Henry Stracey, 1,250 certain, that was my calculation, and all those would be taken out of the 5,000 unmarked men. The great fault of our canvass, if canvass it can be called at all, was that the canvassers put down their own promises, and instead of dealing with the other side if they could not get a promise, and did not know, they merely put down the men who said, "We are going to vote" on the other side, but that in no way represented the other side; and as soon as I had those figures before me, to save my own common sense and judgment, I went to Mr. Youngs, a well-known leader of our party, and I said the state of things is so entirely different from what I have been led to believe, the canvass is in a most unsatisfactory state, that it is anybody's election. That is the opinion I expressed to Mr. Youngs, as soon as I got these facts before me, of course in the strictest confidence; but those figures were so entirely at sea with regard to the position it was supposed we had until I took stock of things, that personally I should not have been surprised to have seen two Conservatives returned if two had been nominated, and so I told Mr. Youngs on the Sunday morning before the election.

318. Those figures, at all events, make up the result of the information which your managers and agents in the wards had got together?—Yes; it includes the canvass of the Organisation Society; that was not reported directly to me, but was brought to the committee room from some channel, and found its way into our marking.

319. I understand you to say that those figures were the result of the information furnished by the different managers and so forth in the different wards, and also of the information furnished by the Electoral Organisation Society?—Certainly.

320. Which was brought to the committee room?—Yes, and which found its way into our marked register.

321. So that those figures were the result of the whole information?—The whole information that we had on the night before the election, or, in fact, the Saturday before the election, because things were not altered on the nomination day. I stayed on the Saturday night until 12 o'clock working these figures out, and on the Sunday morning I made a communication to Mr. Youngs.

322. You say that in dealing with these figures they were illusory to your mind?—Perfectly, as far as Stracey's canvass was concerned, I knew the contrary; it was patent to me, with the information we had, that Stracey would poll more than the number of votes put down there. Will you allow me to say here, taking the third ward, it is well known that the third ward is as nearly evenly balanced as possible; in former times we had just obtained a majority over our opponents; there the mark was 1,200 for Russell and 597 for Stracey, which was simply ridiculous. That is one of the most respectable and reliable wards, and would have polled more freely than any ward in the city without money.

323. On the Saturday night, speaking from your judgment and knowledge of the city, what number did you calculate Stracey would poll?—I calculated Stracey would poll 3,500 certain, and that is what I told Mr. Youngs; that is 1,250 more than are down here. I put him at 3,500 certain.

324. What did you put Russell at?—I believed we should poll 4,500, that was my calculation. My calculation was (and I thought to be quite within the mark) Russell and Tillett 4,500, and Goldsmid and Stracey 3,700 or 3,750.

325. That would make 8,000, and that would leave, according to your calculation, 3,000 men on the register who would not vote, that is to say, 3,000 voting power?—Yes, we should expect there would be about a fourth of the whole. We rarely poll more than three-fourths in Norwich, unless a very large sum of money is spent.

326. Now with regard to the 3,000 who would not poll, what class of men would they be. I suppose the poorer the voter the less he is inclined to poll?—I do not think you can say that; I think there were a great many men who would take money and who did not want it. There are some, of course, who would take it almost from necessity.

327. But 3,000 of unpolled men seems a large number in a town like this?—I think you will find on the general poll in the country that a fourth is not a large number to remain unpolled. In the manufacturing districts they will poll closer, but in these districts a fourth is not at all a large number to be left unpolled, because there are a variety of influences here, and of the 3,000 that would stand still I should say 1,200 to 1,500 would remain neutral from choice, and not because they could not be paid.

328. From being pulled different ways?—Yes, they think it is to their interest to stand still and not to offend anybody.

329. That would leave a residue of about 2,300 that could be got at?—I should not like to subscribe to that. You have reduced it down to one-fourth not polling; if you take off all those it would leave about 1,500, in fact that would be just half.

330. (Mr Dowdeswell.) 1,500 would be the open constituency, if I may so term it?—I should think it would, but it is much more difficult to speak positively after having had a new register. If we had been polling with the old register I could have given you a very accurate calculation.

331. (Mr. Biron.) Of course we are not pinning you to this?—No, I should not like to subscribe to what I have a doubt about. I wish distinctly to say that the numbers that are to be bought in Norwich are very much less than we have the credit for, that is my opinion.

332. When had you fought an election before?—The last election that was fought was in 1865.

333. What was the last register you fought upon before 1868?—That of 1865.

334. Was there any great change in the registration between 1865 and 1867?—No, none between 1865 and 1867, not until the Reform Bill; of course that made a great change.

335. But I am asking you with regard to the numbers before the Reform Bill, was there not an increase?—Oh yes, it was 6,000 against 12,000.

336. I am speaking of the 1867 register, the register before the Reform Bill?—The registers of 1865 and 1867 would not vary to the extent of 200, but they might vary 200, not more; they would be almost substantially the same.

337. In round numbers that would be about 6,000?—That is practically the state of things.

338. Now in 1865 you were managing the election for Russell and Warner?—Yes, for both candidates then.

339. What numbers did you poll?—In 1865 we had a smaller poll, we polled 1,845 for Russell, 1,838 for Warner, 1,466 for Goldsmid, and 1,393 for Waters; therefore taking the two highest there were 3,478 or rather less than 4,000 polled out of 6,000, so that there were not two-thirds polled then; but I think perhaps there would be rather more than that, because Waters had some plumpers. There was a split between the Conservatives on that occasion.

340. That will bring it up to 3,800?—Yes, I daresay it would.

341. At all events it will be under two-thirds of the constituency ?—We always consider that to poll three-fourths is a grand thing, and not only in Norwich, but you will find that that is so throughout the country. I have looked myself purposely, and I find it is so, except in the manufacturing towns.

342. That would be two-thirds ?—Two-thirds is about the thing in Norwich. You may take it to be that, because I have noticed it at previous elections.

343. In 1865 you worked the thing a little better I presume ?—No, we worked it better in 1860.

344. Better than 1868 ?—Oh yes ; it was a different thing altogether, and simply on the question of management. We never spent a shilling in 1865 to my knowledge, and I am saying that we worked it better in that way. There was not a shilling spent in 1865 on the part of the Liberals in bribery to my knowledge, but we had a thorough organisation, and a thorough working canvass in every ward.

345. What do you say about 1860 ?—Do you want the numbers in 1860.

346. Yes, if you please ; but first I will ask you about the poll book. Was there about the same voting power in 1860 as in 1865 ?—It was not varied much in my time, that is, during the last 20 years ; it was slightly increased.

347. We may take it for our purpose at about 6,000 ?—That is about the thing. In 1860 the Liberals polled 2,083 and the Conservatives 1,631, but there were no split votes then, it was a fair fight between Warner and Russell on the one hand and Goldsmid and Forlonge on the other ; 3,700 would be about it.

348. That would be about two-thirds ?—Less than two-thirds, that is our experience here, and having been through the whole you will find it was so, except when very large sums of money have been spent.

349. Now with regard to 1865, there were over 2,000 standing out ?—Well I should rather think, taking off the doubles, we were a short 6,000 in 1865. I should say in 1865 there were not 2,000 unpolled, that would be two or three hundred short. Then you want to know how many of those would not poll.

350. I want to know first how many of those stayed away ?—I should say about 1,500 or 1,600.

351. But of the unpolled men were there not more than 500 in 1865 ?—There were a good many men bought in 1865 by Waters, who was the Conservative candidate. The other Conservative candidate, I believe, fought as pure an election as we did, that was Mr. Goldsmid. I took the trouble to go through the cards after the election, and I could see pretty well what had been done, but we did not follow it, although it was done to a certain extent.

352. If Waters bought some in 1865 what should you think he bought ?—Well four or five hundred, 400 at least.

353. How many did he poll altogether ?—1,633.

354. (Mr. Dowdeswell.) How many for the Conservative ?—He was a Conservative, but he never was supported by the heads of the Conservative party, and therefore could never have got the lead he did over Goldsmid except by money. The weakest candidate, so to speak, polled the largest number of votes, and he could only have done that in one way.

355. (Mr. Biron.) Now with regard to 1860, what do you say ?—In 1860 Warner polled 2,083, Russell 2,045, Lewis 1,631, and Forlonge 1,636. The numbers are so close that you will say that that was a perfectly fair fight; there were no split votes and no plumping.

356. You mean to say that the candidates acted together ?—Yes they did.

357. Was there any corruption in 1860 ?—Certainly not. I have not the figures before me, but I am bound to say there has always been some outside payment at the election. I am bound to speak out and say what I know of the whole matter, although otherwise I should not wish to do so, and this is the first time I have said it ; but ever since I have had to do with the elections there have always been certain outside payments, such as payments for bands, and the show of hands, and items of that kind, not such as we have considered corrupt and not certainly affecting the city, but we have not thought it right to put them in the public accounts, and after the election the amount has been paid to me. I have always paid money. I think, speaking from memory, some 180*l.* would be the sum that the outside payments have come to, certainly they would be under 200*l.* generally, and never exceeding 300*l.* I mean outside the account for things which I had thought were not strictly legal, but I will say here if an election is properly managed without even direct bribery there will always be some payments that you cannot very well put into the account, and to that extent I commit myself and have committed myself, but no further.

358. Was that so at this 1868 election as well as on former occasions ?—No, there were no outside payments this time, except for the show of hands.

359. What about the show of hands, how much a hand did you pay ?—We always like a show of hands in Norwich, it is a forerunner of success. We never were beaten when we pulled together.

360. How did you buy them, by the lot, or did anybody contract for the show of hands ?—I can hardly tell you how we did buy them. I know we got them from somewhere, and it has been the universal custom on both sides to make the show of hands if they can, and we have always been successful.

361. What does it cost in a lump ?—I should say about 30*l.* or 40*l.*

362. A little more than that, is it not ?—Certainly not 50*l.*

363. Who does the 50*l.* go to in the first instance ?—Well I hardly know ; I can scarcely tell you who would pay for the show of hands; that is one of those irregular things that is provided for.

364. It cost, we may take it, then 50*l.* at the last election ?—I should say the cost would not be more than 30*l.* or 40*l.* at the last election. I never knew it to be more than 50*l.*

365. Who paid the 40*l.*, or whatever the sum was, at the last election ?—The candidates.

366. But in the first instance to whom did the candidates pay it, did they pay it to you ?—It would not want to be paid to me ; those who arranged for the show of hands would be respectable men who would be paid afterwards. There would be no payment made over to them in advance.

367. Who are they ?—I really do not know who received the money for the show of hands last year. If you ask me whether it was paid for or not I say it was, but I cannot tell at the present moment by whom. I will turn the matter over in my mind.

368. But Sir William Russell has paid for that ?—There is no doubt whatever if it was paid that he has paid his half of it.

369. You were managing financial matters for him and you can tell ?—I can say that I never parted with 20*l.* or with 10*l.* specially for the show of hands.

370. But for something that you did not inquire about; who was it who got the 20*l.* for which there was no voucher ?—I do not know, there are certain amounts that we pay that we do not get vouchers for, such as the day labour of clerks and so on, and probably the show of hands was included in one of the cheques that I gave for labour, but it was not specially mentioned to me.

371. Was it mentioned to one of your clerks, do you think ?—No, not to one of my clerks.

372. With reference to the show of hands, I understand that Mr. Tillett and Sir William Russell bore the expense between them ?—Certainly.

373. Sir William Russell's share would be about 20*l.* of it ?—Yes, I should think it would not be more, but I never drew any specific cheque for that, and it could only be taken from me in the way I say ; it was arranged that the show of hands was to be had. I have no reservation as to the payment; it was not before me however as to the particular sum or amount, but it came from me somehow as agent to Sir William

FIRST DAY.

Russell. I paid all my cheques to one person, Mr. Ray, but in drawing the cheque it was not stated to me that it was for a show of hands.

374. The cheque, at all events, whatever it was for, got into Mr. Ray's hands?—Certainly.

375. Who is Mr. Ray?—He was one of the assistant managers at the election. He is a gentlemen who attends to our registration, and who is thoroughly up to his work.

376. Is he the registration agent for the borough?—He is for the Liberals.

377. You have told me that the show of hands was a matter that had always been arranged?—Yes; that has been the univeral custom in Norwich.

378. On the occasion of the last election in 1868, was it arranged between you and anybody on the part of Mr. Tillett that the expense was to be borne between Sir William Russell and Mr. Tillett?—There would not be an express arrangement to that effect, but that would be quite within the understanding.

379. These matters, though perfectly well known, have at some time or other to be discussed or mentioned to the candidates?—No, not necessarily. You would not discuss with them an expenditure of 30*l.* or 40*l.* in the management of an election.

380. Was anybody present when an arrangement was made about the show of hands at this time, or who did you see about it, Mr. Ray?—Yes, Mr. Ray would be there.

381. And who else; would there be anybody on the part of Mr. Tillett?—Yes, Mr. Stevens, the agent.

382. Anyone else? — Mr. Youngs, who I have mentioned before; and I of course was there.

383. Do you recollect anybody else; was Mr. Tillett there?—Yes.

384. The candidate, I mean?—Yes, and Sir William Russell.

385. When was that arrangement made, on the Saturday?—Yes.

386. After the examination of the register?—Oh no.

387. It was one of the preliminary matters that had to be arranged?—Yes, that was one of the first things that were arranged after I went. I did not myself, as I have already told you, take any part till the afternoon of the Saturday before the election, and then we discussed the question of cabs and a variety of things, and this point would be incidentally raised also.

388. Was it arranged who was to pay for the show of hands?—Certainly not; that would not be excepted out of the general arrangement, everything was arranged to be joint.

389. You were talking about the show of hands?—Not a word was said as to whether one or two should pay it; it was quite understood.

390. Was it said who should collect it?—Not a word; the question simply was whether we should go for a show of hands, that is, how it would be put, whether we should hire cabs, or do this or that, but no details were gone into.

391. The question was whether you should go for a show of hands?—Whether we should secure it or take steps to secure it; it was quite understood. I went into the council at that time, it was half-past three in the afternoon.

392. Was it Mr. Ray who was to arrange the matter?—No; it was not said who was to arrange it, but it was subsequently arranged.

393. Did Mr. Ray subsequently arrange it?—I think so, or if he did not he knows who did. I did not, and I know it was a matter that was left to him.

394. Was anything done about cabs?—Yes, I advised that we could not engage any cabs; and we did not engage one.

395. Do you know what Mr. Tillett's people did?—With regard to cabs and everything of that kind, we were perfectly joint in action; throughout there was no separate action or separate payment whatever, except as regards the agents from the time of the coalition.

396. Was there any other matter discussed at that meeting on the Saturday; you elected to go for a show of hands?—Yes; nothing was said as to what it would cost or as to who should do it. It was just one of those matters that came up for consideration on the eve of the election, and it was decided. We considered the question of hiring cabs, and we thought we could not do it with safety, and therefore that was abandoned.

397. What other matters were discussed?—Whether we should have another meeting on the Monday, and the question of making arrangements for the election day came into consideration.

398. Saturday, you know, was an important day, it was the day before the nomination; in the evening you went into the matter?—Yes; from 3 to 12 I stuck to it.

399. And things looked very well according to your information for the Liberals, did it not?—I did not think so. I was very dissatisfied with the state of things.

400. Did you not consider that the election was pretty secure?—No, I did not, indeed. I thought myself that it hung by a thread.

401. Did you not think it was pretty secure for Sir William Russell?—No, I did not. I should have thought that Mr. Tillett had the better chance of the two, but they were hanging together at that time; there was only about 150 difference between them. I was not satisfied with the canvass at all; I was, in fact, alarmed at it.

402. Of course you were anxious to secure the return of the two Liberals?—Unquestionably I was; to a certain point I had been a very decided opponent of Mr. Tillett, but from the time the parties coalesced I felt bound to do my best for them both; but then it was too late.

403. You were aware from your experience and from your knowledge of Norwich that there were a certain number of men upon the register who were open to persuasion?—I believe that a greater number of voters are open to proper persuasion than there are open to the persuasion of money.

404. But some of them are open to proper persuasion and some are open to money?—Undoubtedly; but I tell you that our position arose more from the want of proper persuasion than from any other cause.

405. After the examination that was made of the register what steps did you take to secure the election? You have told us of an organisation that was ready at short notice?—During the eight days prior to this Saturday when I went into the committee room to take charge of the whole matter I had been in communication with the staff who worked with me. There is a staff of agents provided in the case of all elections.

406. The object was to get together the information you had obtained on this Saturday; was anything done between the Saturday and the Monday?—It is all management from the beginning to the end.

407. The dangerous men have to be looked after or to be brought up?—Yes; there are a lot of people who, if they are looked after by a foreman or person of influence, will vote in a particular way, but who, if they are left to themselves, will vote for 5*s.* or 10*s.*; that was the kind of management we lacked.

408. After the night of Saturday did you not arrange anything to make your position more secure?—We did all we could; we steamed them up in every way we could. We did all we could to put the best face on it throughout the Monday.

409. Monday was the nomination day; did you not do anything during the Monday? There were a lot of these open men you know?—I should tell you that I was under sheriff for the county, and I happened to be absent at the nomination at Swaffham, and did not come back till four o'clock in the afternoon.

410. But I presume you left somebody to arrange matters here?—We were very actively at work on the Monday preparing for the election in organising our men with a view to their bringing voters up to the poll in the different wards and getting them to attend.

411. Had you got the supplies together on the Monday?—What supplies?

412. Any supplies to be resorted to in case of need?—No cash, if that is what you mean. Ours was essentially a pure election.

413. But were you ready for the worst?—No.

414. If you had found that matters had gone wrong at 12 o'clock were you not prepared to take any steps to secure the election?—No. I could have been ready no doubt, and I should have been sorely tempted. If my man had been in a difficulty between 12 and 1 o'clock I do not know what I might have done, but I had made no preparation for giving money. I could no doubt have got any amount of money if I had thought it right to do so; but I wish you distinctly to understand that there was no organisation or arrangement on our side with regard to giving money.

415. It had been done before however and could be done again?—It is a long time since it was done, and I have almost forgotten it. It is going back as long ago as 1857.

416. On the polling day, how did the election go on?—On the polling day, for the first two or three hours, we were ahead. We were ahead down to 2 o'clock, but from 12 to 2 o'clock I said in the committee room to those who knew anything of election matters that the election was trembling in the balance. There was a sufficient number unpolled at that time to turn the scale either way. At 12 o'clock I found that the state of the poll was not what it ought to be. We had not polled anything like the number that those who had been more in the canvass than I had been had estimated, and the number of marked men who were unpolled made it quite an open election. I looked through the canvass book myself, and could see a great number of men marked as having promised for us who would not vote for us on the day of the election.

417. From your experience in Norwich I presume you knew what they wanted?—That would be the case as to some of them, but not very many. I tell you that the number of men whose votes it is supposed may be bought is very much exaggerated.

418. But there are other influences that may be brought to bear upon them?—I quite assent to that.

419. I do not mean mere money?—No; there are hundreds of men in Norwich who will vote under what I call proper influence, persuasion.

420. Persuasion by a master, for instance?—No, I do not mean the screw being put upon them in any way, but simply a little courteous looking after. The men here like to be asked for their votes by gentlemen, and we always managed to get over the ground with canvassing parties of gentlemen until the last election.

421. The very late gentlemen,—the half-past 3 o'clock gentlemen,—were all standing out at 12?—A good many voted quite honestly after 12 o'clock; more than 1,000.

422. I am speaking of those who never vote till late?—Undoubtedly there would be a good many standing out at 12 o'clock.

423. And at this time there were a good many standing out?—Certainly. I may say that we got pretty nearly to a dead lock at 12 o'clock; they did not continue to poll, and there were, in fact, so many at that time unpolled that any practical mind turning to the numbers would at once see that there was a floating mass of voters whose votes at any moment would turn the election either way.

424. How many had polled at 12 o'clock?—I cannot give you the numbers exactly.

425. But can you give the numbers approximately?—The numbers are not correctly stated in the Chronicle. The figures here give the numbers polled by the Conservative candidate correctly all day, but we had polled nearly 200 more than appear here. At 12 o'clock our figures would be 3,200 for Russell, and Stracey would be about 2,850. We had a majority of 350.

426. And Mr. Tillett was a couple of hundred behind Sir William Russell?—No, not above fifty at that time.

427. Just give me his figures then?—He was about seventy-five behind, I see, at 12 o'clock.

428. There were plenty of polling places here?—Yes; the number of voters was largely increased; there were one-half more.

429. And there were ample facilities, of course, for voters to come up and vote?—No doubt.

430. Yet at 12 o'clock the polling was pretty well over?—It was very slack from 12 till 1 o'clock. I cast up the numbers of the voters who polled from 12 o'clock to the close of the poll.

431. Will you give us those figures, if you please?—I have it ready from 1 o'clock, but I have not got it from 12 o'clock. There was nothing amiss till after 1 o'clock.

432. From 12 to 1 the voting was slack?—Yes; and so it was from 1 to 2; there was no money afloat before 2 o'clock. The numbers polled from 1 to half-past 1 (that was the dinner hour, and I thought it important to take it) were 102 for Russell, 110 for Tillett, and 136 for Stracey. From half-past 1 to 2 o'clock the numbers were 119 for Russell, 117 for Tillett, and 157 for Stracey. There was a slight lead, but very slight. There was nothing to create alarm there. From 2 to half-past 2 the polling was very even; 110 for Russell, 111 for Tillett, and 141 for Stracey. Then from half-past 2 to 3 both sides polled more. There was a great effort made. We were getting too close, and in every direction our men were getting pressed. The numbers were 168 for Russell, 152 for Tillett, and 194 for Stracey. Then the altered state of things manifested itself in the polling from 3 to half-past 3; 124 polled for Russell, 118 for Tillett, and 209 for Stracey. From half-past 3 to 4 there was a large polling for all the candidates. 266 polled for Russell, 251 for Tillett, and 517 for Stracey. All the way through, until after 1 o'clock, keeping a very strict eye upon these figures, my only wonder was that our opponents had not operated before. I saw that nothing was being done from 12 to 2. At 2 o'clock the thing was virtually at a standstill.

433. Supposing they had begun this at 12 o'clock, what would you have done?—Nothing.

434. You had 350 votes to the good at 12 o'clock?—Yes. I may mention that we were pledged to fight a pure election.

435. Of course you were; but you know there was this organisation?—Allow me, if you please, to say that I am no friend to organisation, but I am bound to do the organisation justice, and therefore I say that there was not an organisation in any way for the purposes of bribery.

436. There were two Liberal candidates and one Tory. Supposing Sir William Russell's position had been shaky, what should you have done then?—I cannot tell you what I should have done. All I had my eye upon was my horse. I saw that my horse's nose was in front and I was perfectly satisfied with his position; and when I heard some suggestions as to the course to be pursued I said "It is absurd,—do "not entertain it for a moment." I was perfectly satisfied, and why should I jeopardise the position of my candidate?

437. But if it had not been as it was how would you have acted, that is what I want to get at?—I cannot tell you what I should have done. I should have been very unwilling to have lost the election myself for the sake of two or three hundred pounds.

438. You would not have lost it?—I was not tempted. I cannot say what I should have done. I certainly like winning.

FIRST DAY.
I. B. Coaks.
19 Aug. 1869.

439. You would not have sunk your ship owing to the want of a little tar ?—Personally, I should not, probably, but there was great difficulty about anything of the kind. We were pledged to the strictest purity.

440. You remember what Seneca said, "That "pledges are made to be broken" ?—Yes, but not in Norwich.

441. Supposing yours had been the ship that was about to sink, you would not have allowed her to sink for the want of a little tar, would you ?—When I go in I like to win, and I make a very great point of winning. I cannot say what I should have done if my horse had been behind; but he had, happily, a front place all day; and I was therefore perfectly satisfied and never entered upon the question in any shape or way. As I have said already, we had made no arrangement as to what should be done in case of need.

442. Was there not a financial agent ?—No; I was the only financial agent, and I paid every shilling of the expenses of the election out of my own pocket. I had no ally.

443. But on Saturday, when you were dissatisfied, was there no financial agent ?—I never told Sir William Foster how dissatisfied I was. I never breathed it even to Mr. Youngs.

444. But there is a discreet man that you know in Norwich ?—Yes, a great many; we are celebrated for them here.

445. I mean a man who divulges nothing, and who is as close as yourself in case of need ?—I think I am very open. I think that is my fault.

446. You are very frank, which is a much better recommendation ?—We had no secret arrangement with regard to money; I say that distinctly.

447. You have told us that there was an organisation ready to be set to work at short notice ?—Yes, all my own staff.

448. Supposing Sir William Russell had been behind at 12 o'clock, to whom should you have gone and whispered something into his ears ?—I should not have whispered anything to anybody. If he had been behind at 12 o'clock, I should have thought very seriously of his position, but I cannot say what I should have done. I had not anybody at my back to carry out any instructions to buy votes or anything of that sort.

449. Supposing Sir William Russell had been behind at 12 o'clock, what should you have done ?—In that case, if it had been left to me, Sir William Russell would not have lost his election for the sake of a couple of hundred pounds.

450. Or a couple of thousand, perhaps ?—I do not know, that is a different thing. I now say, speaking behind the election, that if I had seen the thing in doubt or difficulty, speaking personally (though I know that other gentlemen do not take the same view as I do), I should have made some wonderful effort to have saved him.

451. In conjunction with whom ?—I cannot say; there really was nothing of the kind, no provision was made for anything of the kind, nor was any provision necessary.

452. The whole arrangements here are very perfect as to the course to be pursued in case of need ?—They have been.

453. You could do it yourself, I am certain ?—That is very true; but there was, in fact, nothing of the kind done at the last election, and I can almost give you a reason why nothing was done.

454. I am accepting as a fact that nothing was done; it was not necessary that anything should be done so far as you were concerned; but who, in case of need, was the man to whom you would whisper that something must be done, ?—I like an election without a committee. I cannot tell you what I should have done, or if I did anything through whom I should have done it; but possibly it might have been done.

455. Could you make a guess at it ?—No.

456. Can you not give even a "wild" guess ?—No, not even a wild guess.

457. Should you not have gone to Mr. Wilde ?—Certainly not.

458. Is not he a discreet person ?—He is a very old hand at elections; but I should not have applied to Mr. Wilde, and if I had I believe I should not have succeeded.

459. That is a capital reason for not going to him ?—I believe I should not have gone to him. You see the position we were in. When we had rich men fighting who did not care about it, we trusted a little to Providence, but here there was nothing of that kind, and here the spending of money would be a question of spending our own money. Mr. Wilde is too clever a man to spend his own money, and I am sure there was no arrangement with regard to it. Most assuredly I should not have gone to Mr. Wilde.

460. How did you manage to pull up the last half-hour ?—We did not pull up, we pulled down.

461. But you polled more votes in proportion than you had polled before ?—We polled 390 in the last hour. There are a certain number of men who always hang back and go in with the winning side. At 3 o'clock they thought we had won, and at half-past 3 they thought we had not won, and it was not till after 4 that we knew what the result was. I can only account for the extra number of votes given towards the close of the polling by the voters wishing to go with the tide; they were not bought.

462. You say they were not bought ?—I do.

463. Did you at 12 o'clock get messages brought to your committee room ?—Yes, special messengers were sent every half hour in the day.

464. Plenty of men to turn the election ?—Plenty of men to do the work properly.

465. Who brought the messages ?—We had special poll messengers, who were paid a guinea a day.

466. But from the committees ?—Only one during the whole day, from the seventh ward, our house called Mackley's; they had received money or been treated, or had acted in some way before, and they were congregated at "The Old Ship," but they did not get anything from us.

467. Did those men vote ?—Some did, and some did not.

468. Did some of them vote for you ?—I cannot answer that question; but undoubtedly there were men there who wanted money, and they voted for the people who paid them.

469. About 1 o'clock, when you saw that Stracey was pulling up, you knew what was doing ?—Nothing was doing in my ward till after 2 o'clock; between 1 and 2 is the workmen's hour, when we expected a larger polling, but at half-past 2 we saw that something was stirring, and we sent out messengers, judging from what we saw that money was afloat.

470. Did you take any steps to counteract that by means of money on your side ?—I think I have answered that question a great many times already, and I am accustomed to speak the truth.

471. Do not misapprehend me ?—I tell you that there was no money spent on our side to my knowledge, and if there had been I should have known it. I cannot say that nobody spent 1*l.* or anything of that sort, but I can say that there certainly was no preparation for spending money, and that none was spent under any organisation or arrangement to my knowledge.

472. (Mr. Dowdeswell.) Just look at this paper (showing a paper to the witness), is it a correct list of the ward managers ?—This is Mr. Stevens' handwriting, these were my eight managers, they were ward managers, and I had two assistant managers, Mr. Ray and Mr. Daynes; that paper is quite correct.

473. Had you a central committee room ?—Yes.

474. Where was that ?—In St. Andrew's, close by St. Andrew's Hall.

475. Had you a committee room in each ward ?—

Yes; in the third ward we had three committee rooms.

476. In the two first wards were they private houses?—In the first and second ward, yes. I think we had three or four public houses only in which there were committee rooms; in the third ward our head-quarters were "The Grapes."

477. "The Coach and Horses"?—That is right and a place shown on the Dereham Road; I forget the sign, "Lord John Russell" I think. We never had "The Coach and Horses" before, but "The Lord John Russell" and "The Grapes" had been our two committee rooms ever since my first management of an election 20 years ago.

478. In the fourth ward the committee room was in a private house?—Yes; there we went to the opposite extreme, we went to a teatotal shop.

479. In the fifth ward was there a committee room in a private house and also at "The Crown and Anchor"?—"The Crown and Anchor" would be our head-quarters in the fifth ward, but I think the committee rooms were in a private house.

480. How do you distinguish your head-quarters from a committee room?—The fifth ward is a great place for Odd Fellows, a great many people meet there. I almost fancy we do not recognise it as a committee room, but there is as much done in "The Crown and Anchor" in the fifth ward as there is in the committee room.

481. Then the sixth ward?—That is another exception, "The Greyhound."

482. And also "The Roebuck"?—We had no committee room at "The Roebuck" I should say; "The Roebuck" is a house we should use, the occupier of it is an old supporter of the Liberals.

483. Did you make any payment to "The Roebuck"?—I believe we did.

484. For what?—We had it for Lakenham which is a very large district.

485. What did you pay for?—For the use of the house. We should have clerks there and make a committee room of it. We never paid for the use of any public houses unless they were bonâ fide made use of.

486. In the seventh ward had you a private house and also a committee room at "The Angel"?—At "The Angel" at Catton, an outlying district.

487. In the eighth ward it was a private house?—Yes.

488. Have you had any accounts for drink supplied at any of those public houses?—Yes, and I disputed them, and lopped off a great deal from "The Angel."

489. Have you got any of those accounts in your possession?—No formal account was delivered at "The Angel," there were only two accounts I think, because we found this difficulty: on previous occasions we had had scores run up at public houses, and on the last occasion the most strict injunctions were given that no order should be recognised or anything paid for that was sent up by any of our staff; but they will break through that in some measure. We had an assistant at "The Angel" at Catton, and the expenses of his being there, his refreshments only, not general refreshments in the house, came to some few pounds more than I thought was right, and I objected to pay them at the time. Whether I ultimately paid them or not I do not know, but I stood out for some time. There was one other case of a very few pounds. At previous elections those things had amounted to a good deal of money, but we had nothing of the kind at the last election. We adopted a different principle; they wanted refreshments on the election day, and instead of their getting them at any of these places, we arranged with three or four public houses to supply sandwiches and sherry to the poll clerks and the clerks engaged on the election day, all of which is charged in this account, amounting to 35*l.* 11*s.* 10*d.*

490. That would be for refreshments supplied to poll clerks?—Yes; I do not know of a shilling having been paid for refreshments supplied to voters.

491. Have you not received any claims in respect of beer and other refreshments supplied at any one of these houses, I have been mentioning to you or at any other public houses during the election?—I think only two; "The Angel" was one, and the other was only a small amount, but I cannot tell you what it was.

492. Although you may not have received formal claims, have you not received notice? Have they not come and spoken to you about having supplied beer and so forth?—Certainly not; it would be limited to two or three if it happened at all. I will take the third ward. We paid the man at "The Grapes" liberally for his committee rooms, and therefore we should not expect to have any trouble with him. It is the best situation in the ward.

493. After an election is over, a claim we know is often sent in to a candidate for beer supplied during the election?—Yes; but nothing of the kind has happened in connexion with the last election, and I do not know of any, except one or two disputed accounts. I thought our staff had consumed more than was required; but for general supply to voters I never heard of any claim, and I do not believe that any such existed.

494. No person has come to you and said he had supplied beer to voters?—No, I have not had any claim either preferred or mentioned.

495. On former occasions has that sort of thing occurred?—I have in my recollection the case of "The Grapes" in the third ward. When we were winning I recollect they would come and get something, and after the election I had 35*l.* to pay, and that satisfied me that it should not be repeated, and so we were extremely strict with regard to public houses.

496. Then there has not been to your knowledge any supply of beer to men staying at public houses?—Not at all; and I do not know of any treating at all. I have no reason to think there was any on either side. There was money spent on the side of the Conservatives after two o'clock, but I was looking about a great deal, and do not think there was any treating; certainly there was none on our side, and I do not think there was on theirs; but the election looked so doubtful at two o'clock that they could not resist the temptation. That is how I sum up the last election.

497. But suppose it had looked as if the result would be the other way?—I cannot possibly say what would have been done.

498. You say you would not have gone to Mr. Wilde?—I should not.

499. But although you would not have gone to Mr. Wilde for it, might you have gone to Mr. Wilde about its mode of disposal?—Certainly not; and it is only right to Mr. Wilde to say under what circumstances he came into the election. Mr. Wilde was not there in any way for the purpose of organising bribery at all. It was at my instance that he came in, and I think when I tell you that he kept the poll with me you will see that is the last place he would have been in if we had wanted any bribery done, because he would have been then conspicuous by his absence if anything had taken place. We should not have had him in the committee room keeping the poll if we wanted to do anything with him.

500. You are too old a soldier for that?—We take credit for doing things decently in Norwich.

501. Mr. Wilde would not have been used upon this occasion?—No, certainly not. I think if he had been wanted he would not have been used probably; but I can only say what I should have done myself. I asked Mr Wilde myself to come and keep the poll with me, and it was at my instance that he came, and it never ran in my mind, nor through my mind, that he was there in any way for the purpose of supplying money if money was wanted, or providing money or having anything to do with the spending of money.

502. Mr. Wilde did come over at your instance upon that day?—Mr. Wilde helped me upon the

FIRST DAY.
I. B. Coaks.
19 Aug. 1869.

Saturday night to take stock of the whole affair, and again on the Monday; and he was in the central committee room keeping the poll with me the whole day, and to the best of my belief never went out.

503. Did he come to Norwich?—No. He is the high bailiff of the County Court here, and has a residence in Norwich.

504. He was at home on the Saturday and Monday?—Certainly.

505. Is he very often at Brighton?—Certainly. I believe he has a house at Brighton.

506. And he happened to come on the Saturday?—Not "happened." I believe he came to render any service he could to the good old cause.

507. He had rendered services before?—On previous occasions. It is so long ago that one can hardly recollect that.

508. There are some things which one does not wish to remember?—I was taking an active part in the election then, but I had nothing to do with what was spent. I could not shut my eyes to the fact of its being spent on both sides.

509. When was that?—In 1857, when Lord Bury and Mr. Schneider contested the election with Sir Samuel Bignold.

510. Was Mr. Wilde acting then?—Wilde was the party through whom the outside payments, or the illegal payments, were made.

511. Was his father also acting?—His father was managing Sir Morton Peto's election at Finsbury at that time, and he had nothing to do with this. His father was nominally manager, but the Mr. Wilde you mean, the present Mr. Wilde, really filled his father's place, and the monetary arrangements were perfected through him; but, as I said, that is so long ago that it has no connexion whatever with the last election.

512. Mr. Wilde would not have answered your purpose?—I think he would have answered my purpose.

513. Not upon the circumstance of being with you on that day?—If I had made up my mind to spend money to secure Sir William Russell's seat I should not have gone to Mr. Wilde, nor said anything to him about it.

514. Then who is the man to whom you would have gone?—I cannot tell you. If I had been inclined to do it I might have confined the responsibility to myself. I cannot say.

515. Surely not yourself?—I should have had others no doubt.

516. That is the very thing we want to know?—We had nothing of the kind. I cannot tell.

517. The possibility of such a thing must, of course, have crossed your mind?—Never. We were told that we were going to win by such an enormous majority, and it was not known to the contrary until it was too late. If we had been inclined we could not have carried out an organisation for bribery at 11 o'clock on the Monday night. It was too late.

518. You said you know there were some persons whom you might have employed?—No, I never said that.

519. You said you might have done it yourself or employed others. Now, who would be the others?—What I have said is that I [cannot say what I should have done if it had been a question of 200*l.* or 300*l.* about winning the election; that I cannot say, but fortunately the temptation did not arise, and I had not to consider it, and did not consider it.

520. Cannot you mention the name of any man?—If the occasion arose I could select a true and good man.

521. You can now then?—No; the occasion does not arise.

522. If you say you could have selected a man if you were tempted, suppose you had been tempted who would have been the man?—That is speculating without facts, and I cannot do that.

523. Cannot you speculate without facts?—No, I cannot speculate without facts.

524. You know Mr. Daynes?—Certainly.

525. Is he a good man and true?—Perfectly.

526. Discreet?—Very.

527. Do you think Mr. Daynes might have crossed your mind under those circumstances?—You are taking me into difficulties again, and I do not like difficulties. Mr. Daynes is a very valuable aid to the Liberal cause in Norwich.

528. And a very good aid?—A very discreet aid.

529. And you would require a man of discretion?—Certainly.

530. Then Daynes would have been just the man?—I might have pitched upon a worse.

531. Could you have pitched upon a better?—I don't know that he would have done the work, but if he would, I could not have had a better.

532. Then if you could not have had a better you know you would have gone to Daynes?—Possibly. It is quite possible.

533. Is it not, probably?—Well, but he might not have listened to me. I cannot say.

534. You might have tempted him?—I cannot say what I should have done. I should have seized the best opportunity that turned up or offered itself if I had determined to do anything; but I do not say what I should have determined.

535. Was not Daynes the most discreet man?—Daynes is a very valuable man in our party; a man who has been in organisation all his life, and he is altogether one of the best and most valuable men in the Liberal party.

536. Mr. Womersley did not belong, if I may so term it, to Sir William Russell?—No; but he is so good a Liberal that he belonged to both.

537. He was very active, was he not?—Marvellously active.

538. And wonderfully zealous?—Very zealous, and discreet too.

539. As discreet as Daynes?—No. I should give the preference to Daynes.

540. He is rather a Tillettite than a Russellite?—He began as a Russellite, and he rather took Tillett into the same boat. I consider Womersley is as much a friend of Russell's as of Tillett's, and I believe he worked as hard for Sir William Russell.

541. You do not think he is so discreet as Daynes?—I like Daynes' management better.

542. Do you like Daynes' management better because Womersley did anything which seemed to you indiscreet?—No; but then I look upon electioneering as a profession; and as Daynes has been schooled through many elections he would naturally present himself to my mind as a more able and discreet man than Womersley, who is a more modern electioneerer.

543. Able and discreet and suited for certain purposes?—For every purpose in connexion with an election Mr. Samuel Daynes is a very valuable man.

544. Including those?—I never knew him to be engaged in improper purposes at an election. I do not believe he ever was. I wish you to understand that distinctly.

545. You say you do not think Womersley was so discreet?—Mr. Womersley is more impulsive than Daynes. Daynes is a quiet old hand, a steady goer, and will stay remarkably well.

546. Is there anything you have heard or known about Womersley that renders you rather distrustful of him?—Not in the least. I believe him to be a most honest and respectable man; but electioneering, as I say, is a profession, and Mr. Womersley has not given up so much time to electioneering work and to organisation as Mr. Daynes has. Daynes has spent his life in it.

547. Speaking of Daynes, do you recollect him acting under Mr. Wilde at the former elections?—Not under Mr. Wilde. Mr. Daynes has always taken part in our elections.

548. Was he acting in conjunction with Mr. Wilde?

—Not really with Mr. Wilde. He has always taken an active part.

549. Was he not acting under Mr. Wilde?—He would not like to be told so.

550. Although he would not like to be told so, was it the fact?—I think not. He is perfectly independent. Mr. Daynes is a very independent man, and he would not like it to be said that he was acting under anyone.

551. A soldier may be perfectly independent and yet be acting under the generalissimo?—If you want to know if Daynes did any of the irregular work in 1857, I say no.

552. Wilde had the direction, you know?—Will you kindly take that answer, sir? If you ask me if Daynes did any of the outside work in 1857, I say no; because I pretty well know who did it. Mr. Daynes took an active part.

553. You say you had information that there were operations being carried on in the afternoon of the day?—My ledger told me that.

554. Your ledger told you the effect. You also said that there were reports being brought to you?—Yes, there were reports of the large number of men in the seventh ward, and also the report that they were buying them in the eighth ward.

555. Who brought the report?—I think Mr. Smith, and I am not sure whether Mr. Womersley himself did not come in. I rather think he did, and pulled a very long face indeed. In fact, he told me he had seen those men, and that they were being bought by the other people, and that it was very distressing.

556. Did he suggest anything?—It was no use suggesting; we had not the stuff.

557. Although you had not the "stuff," you know that upon pressure the stuff might have been produced to the extent of 1,000*l.*?—It could not under the circumstances of Mr. Tillett being a candidate; that made all the difference. There was no money to be had from that side, and I do not think that our side were at all inclined to spend money to buy Mr. Tillett in. I think that is about the best reason I can give you.

558. When Womersley pulled that very long face which he did, did he say what a pity it was that there could not be something done to keep those men?—No; but he would know I should have some sympathy in losing those men.

559. He thought you were a sympathetic individual upon such a point as that?—He knew I did not like losing.

560. And he knew, perhaps, if there was a danger of the election, that it might be secured?—He never sounded me in that direction at all, and if he had, the answer would have been, "My man is ahead."

561. It was no use his pulling a long face to you?—He did pull a long face, because it was then beginning to affect Mr. Tillett, and as he so warmly espoused Mr. Tillett's party's cause; it made all the difference that Tillett's seat was becoming in danger at that time, and my candidate's was not.

562. You were, in fact, coming in with flying colours?—So we were all the day. We were winning all the day.

563. You were distancing the others completely?—We were perfectly safe.

564. And therefore I am afraid that your sympathy was not so strong with Womersley as it might otherwise have been?—Womersley had simply told it to me as a matter of disappointment; but, of course, we were generally discussing the thing. 60 or 70 men at one place going over to the other side would make a great difference.

565. Did anybody besides Womersley come and try to excite your sympathy?—Nobody.

566. Who were the other people that came with reports?—Mr. Mendham, the town clerk, was in the committee room the whole of the day.

567. But who else came and reported to you that these operations were going on?—Smith and Kitton came and said they were "buying like mad down the "seventh and eighth wards." I said, "Go into the "street, do all you can; follow them in, track them "up, and stick to them. It's no use talking to me, "look after them." If anybody else came and said, "There's bribery going on," I said, "Stick to the "fellow."

568. You said, "I am safe"?—No, I saw I was. I said, "It is useless coming to us in the committee "room," but as to coming there they never came respecting money. Not a single individual came to me with an eye to money the whole day. At 3 o'clock we thought the election, if not absolutely safe, looked pretty safe. Afterwards it was much too late to begin to save the election from what had been going on. If the poll had gone on half an hour longer, I am afraid to speculate upon what would have been the majority.

569. They took a rush at the last moment, and it was too late for the organisation to meet them?—I do not believe the organisation had the money or the power to meet them, or the will. I do not believe they started with that object in any way, but I am not in their secrets. I was not one of the cabinet.

570. Now I merely ask you with a different view; can you give me the names of the persons besides Mr. Womersley and the other gentleman you mentioned, who gave you the information that they were buying?—My impression is that Mr. Henry Tillett, a nephew of Mr. Tillett's, the candidate, also came. That was in the eighth ward. Harper especially came up half mad about it. His men were being bought away, he said, and the very occupier of that public house that the organisation had held so many meetings at had gone over to the other side. That was one of his bitter complaints.

571. Did they give you any specific complaints?—I recollect Harper stating that Hardiment was "tinning" the men in the eighth ward at this public house, where the man had always professed himself to be so good a Liberal, and where the organisation hung out a great many times.

572. Who were the men who complained?—Harper, Smith, Kitton, Womersley, Tillett, and it may be several others, but not one came with the view of getting money. They are all people who would not do anything of that kind.

573. Did those persons give you any definite facts?—They particularly referred to the buying going on at "The Woolpack," and to the number of men congregating at Mackley's in Pockthorpe. Those were the only cases of voters being bought in my hearing.

574. Was any list brought to you of people who were being bought?—No, there were too many. There was no attempt to draw that out.

575. (Mr. Mansfield.) When that message came to you from Mackley's, was there any suggestion that this should be stopped?—The only suggestion I made, knowing that we had no money to spend, and were not going to spend any, was "Go back to the "place, stick to the men who are being bought, and "prevent the thing being done." I had no other weapon to fight with; and I made some of them angry by almost ejecting them from the room to go into their wards again.

576. Was any suggestion made that they might be got hold of supposing that they wished to do so?—I knew they might. The fact is this. I do not know about the men in the eighth ward, but Mackley's men would very willingly have voted for the Liberals if they had been paid. It is the Liberal house, and if there is a rendezvous at all for that class of voters that is the place of all others, and I have no doubt but that all those men would have voted for the Liberals if they were paid for it. Mackley is a thorough working man for the Liberals, and although he is a little man, a poor man, he is a very honest man.

577. You said just now that you would not have liked Sir William Russell's election to be lost for a couple of hundred pounds; but supposing a couple of hundred pounds had been found, do you doubt that it would have been paid. Supposing the people who acted as his agents had produced a couple of hundred pounds, do you doubt that it would have been finally paid by some one?—That is a question which it is impossible to answer. I should not like to say that Sir William Russell would be so shabby as not to pay it, and yet I should not like to say he would be so indiscreet as to take the risk, therefore I cannot answer that question.

578. Do you doubt that he would have paid it finally?—I have very great doubt, and I think whoever spent money for the Liberals at the last election would have had to spend it out of his own pocket, and that is one good reason why there was not any spent.

579. You said that in 1865 there were at least 400 men bought by Mr. Waters?—Yes.

580. That is a very large proportion out of the then constituency?—Yes, in fact his money did not hold out or else he would have bought more.

581. Then you think in 1865 there were more than 400 voters in the market?—Certainly.

582. How many would you say, 700?—That would be the outside number, I should say.

583. And in the present enlarged state of the constituency I presume there would be more?—It has been said that the lower you go the purer they become, but that we have not had an opportunity of testing until this last election.

584. There would not be less than 700?—Certainly not. Undoubtedly there would be 700, but if the Liberals are pulling together in Norwich we have a much larger majority than that corrupt number of 700 or 800 can possibly pull down. I say that unmistakeably and most conscientiously, believing it to be true. There is not a doubt that there is a very large Liberal majority if we were thoroughly pulling together, but there was no pulling together until the mischief was done. For a long time we were educating the mind of a particular party who go in a particular direction, and when we wanted them to vote for Russell and Tillett jointly, some plumped for Tillett and many plumped for Russell. There was not anything like that zeal and courtesy in the Liberal cause that has ever manifested itself in other elections in which I have been engaged before. The last election was no fair criterion of the Liberal strength.

585. If there were 700 saleable in 1865, you cannot put it at a less number now?—No.

586. (Mr. Biron.) Would you double the 700 now under the present register?—I do not like to stamp men as bribees who have never been bribed.

587. (Mr. Mansfield.) From your knowledge of the working of this election and of the constituency?—I have had a great deal to do with the management of other elections. I had less to do with the last election than I had with any election for twenty years. I never took up this election until the Saturday before the election, and at other times I have been at work at it for weeks before. I consider that our position at the last election was not owing so much to the money spent by the Conservatives as to the want of proper organisation and proper earnestness and zeal on the part of the Liberals. That is my opinion. We ought at 12 o'clock to have had a majority past all buying, and so we shall when we pull together.

588. Can you tell us at all what proportion of those voters were men polled after 2 o'clock?—I can tell you from my cards the names of all of them.

589. You can get them?—Certainly, we have cards. I have not them in hand, but I can get them. We have them amongst us somewhere.

590. (Mr. Dowdeswell.) I suppose amongst those there is a certain number whom you would say were above all suspicion that they would be bribed?—Undoubtedly a large number of voters voted after 2 o'clock that were not bribed. Some voted thinking they were going in with the Conservatives to win, and some thinking they were going in with the Liberals to win. A great number voted at the last moment, and, of course, a great number were bought.

591. (Mr. Mansfield.) Well, you can produce that list, and at the same time mark off those persons who, in your opinion, were bribed?—I do not wish to brand any of my fellow citizens with my opinion.

592. Then mark off those who were respectable?—Yes, but that is just drawing the line the other way, and arriving at the same point.

593. (Mr. Dowdeswell.) We shall be obliged to get the list?—You shall have the list, but I do not wish to be the one to draw the line between bribees and those who were not bribed. It is not my business.

594. (Mr. Biron.) Have you got your polling books?—Do you mean the marked registers.

595. Yes.—Yes, and the next time you call me I will have the marked registers and the cards, but I did not know it would be wanted to day. I am told the secretary has the cards.

596. (Mr. Dowdeswell.) You know we are strangers in Norwich, therefore we do not know what persons are in such a position of life as that they would accept bribes?—The best suggestion I can make will be to give you the occupations of the several voters, and then you may draw your line where you think right.

J. Pilgrim.

JOHN PILGRIM recalled and further examined.

597. (Mr. Dowdeswell.) Do you produce the vouchers of the agents' expenses?—Yes.

Adjourned to to-morrow at 11 o'clock.

SECOND DAY.

Friday, 20th August 1869.

SECOND DAY.
G. A. Stevens.
20 Aug. 1869.

GEORGE ALDEN STEVENS sworn and examined.

598. (Mr. Dowdeswell.) Are you a solicitor?—I am under articles to a solicitor. I am not yet admitted.

599. In this city?—In this city.

600. Were you the agent at the last election for Mr. Tillett?—I was.

601. On his behalf did you manage his candidature?—I did.

602. Do you recollect when he first announced himself as a candidate?—I am not certain as to dates, but I think it was some time in July 1868.

603. After he had announced himself was any body formed for the purpose of promoting his election?—I cannot speak to what took place in connection with his candidature prior to the latter end of October or the early part of November. I was asked by him to be his agent some time in November; up to that time I had taken no part whatever in his candidature and I knew very little about it. I was desirous myself that the two old members, Sir William Russell and Mr. Warner, should be again returned, and I did not take any part until Mr. Warner had retired from the field, and then I felt myself at liberty to espouse Mr. Tillett's cause.

604. When you became his agent did you find that there was any body in existence arranged for the purpose of conducting his election?—The only thing I had heard of was that for some few years past there had been in Norwich what was called, I believe, a Reform League. That Reform League immediately after the passing of the late Reform Act resolved itself into an organisation of working men. The object of that organisation was, I believe, to obtain a working man's candidate. That organisation met, I believe, very frequently, and at one of their meetings they adopted Mr. Tillett as their candidate.

605. Who was the leading man in that organisation?—Mr. A. M. F. Morgan was the chairman of the organisation, Mr. John Copeman was the treasurer, and Mr. Causton was the secretary.

606. Can you give me the names of some of the leading men of the body besides those?—I should say Mr. C. J. Bunting and Mr. White.

607. Mr. Colman?—Yes.

608. Mr. Womersley?—He might have been. I do not know. I have not seen a book or paper in connexion with the electoral organisation. I was not a member of it, and I know very little of it, except the objects for which it was formed, and which they carried out as far as they could.

609. Did you find that they canvassed the city for Mr. Tillett?—Yes; immediately on my being appointed agent I was asked by Mr. Copeman to manage the third ward, which is the largest ward almost, and I consented to do so. Subsequently Mr. Tillett saw me, and asked me if I would be his recognised manager for the purpose of the election, and I consented to do that. That was, I believe, two or three days before the amalgamation took place between the Whig party and the Radical section of the party; it was two or three days before that I think. I consented, and waited until a meeting should be called for the purpose of ascertaining whether Mr. Tillett was or was not to be taken up, or to be adopted by Sir William Russell.

610. You say you found that there had been a canvass going on?—Yes; I should say that from that time I engaged central committee rooms and ward committee rooms.

611. Where was your central committee room?—Our central committee room I hired myself of Mr. Wilson, a solicitor in this city. It was a private house which happened to be unoccupied.

612. Have you on paper a list of the committee rooms?—I handed to the Secretary a list of them some time since.

613. Is that a correct list?—Yes, Mr. Tillett's and Sir William Russell's committee rooms. From the time of the adoption of Mr. Tillett as a second candidate the action was joint with Sir William Russell for all purposes, except that of management.

614. And this being adopted by you previously as Mr. Tillett's committee rooms, then were they carried on for the purpose of two candidates, or were they engaged by you after the coalition?—They were engaged by myself and Mr. Ray, who acted as Mr. Coaks' lieutenant, I may call him; they were engaged by myself and Mr. Ray jointly.

615. That was after the coalition?—That was after the coalition.

616. I was speaking of before the coalition; had you any committee room to which a return was made of the canvass up to that time?—I personally had no committee room and no knowledge of anything connected with the election until the joint committee rooms were engaged, and therefore we got those committee rooms into working order. Then I discovered that a canvass had been set on foot by the organisation, a canvass by working men of working men.

617. Was that canvass marked on copies of the register?—That canvass was marked on copies of the register. Books were handed to different members of the organisation, and they went out and canvassed and made their return to the Secretary of the organisation, Mr. Causton. I thought it advisable that we should have the result of their labours, and I sent our canvass books that we had prepared (joint canvass books) down to Mr. Causton, and marked them from the book that Mr. Causton had already marked.

618. Have you got the book which you so marked?—I handed it over; it can be here in a few minutes.

619. Then it is in existence still?—Certainly. I am speaking of the book that we marked from the one that Mr. Causton had; the one he had he still has, I believe. I have never had the custody of it.

620. Did you proceed after the coalition to carry on the canvass?—Certainly. As soon as we had formed the committee rooms in the different wards we instructed the managers of those wards to canvass their localities as far as they could; but I should say that with regard to the question of the canvass that we always considered, inasmuch as we had commenced our labours only about ten days before the election, it was utterly impossible and impracticable to have anything like a fair and proper canvass. Mr. Tillett and myself, therefore, and one or two of his friends said, "It is utterly useless for us to ascertain what "promises Sir Henry Stracey may have." Our system was this:—we said, "The register amounts to "so much, 11,000. We will mark canvassed against "the registers, and if we can find promises for Mr. "Tillett to anything like the amount of 4,500 voters, "we consider that he will be perfectly safe."

621. Were returns made by the persons who conducted your canvass to the central committee room after the coalition?—Certainly. They did what canvassing they could in the course of the day, and sent down returns to us at the end of the day, and Mr. Ray and myself, and some assistants we had, entered those returns into our canvass book.

622. Was that a different canvass book from the one you just now spoke of, that prepared by Mr. Causton?—I had only one canvass book. We first took it to Mr. Causton and marked our own from his. Subsequently we entered the result of our ward canvasses into our book.

623. Is there only one book then that represents the entire canvass on the part of Sir William Russell and Mr. Tillett?—They happen to be in two books; there is but one canvass book in two volumes.

624. In the different wards had you on behalf of Mr. Tillett paid agents?—I had not paid agents in every ward. I had paid agents only in three wards.

625. Which were those wards?—In the first ward I paid Mr. Bryant Allen ten guineas, I think, for his services. In the second ward we had Mr. Kent, a solicitor, and I paid him at the same rate that Mr. Coaks was paying his agents, twenty guineas. In the third ward I had a volunteer agent, Mr. White, to whom I paid nothing. In the fourth ward I paid Mr. Skippon ten guineas. In the fifth ward Mr. Miller acted on behalf of both candidates voluntarily without any pay. In the sixth ward Mr. Daynes was a volunteer and was paid nothing. We had our own managers quite separate from Sir William Russell. Sir William Russell had nothing to do with ours, and we had nothing to do with his. In the seventh ward Mr. Sadd, a solicitor, acted voluntarily on behalf of Mr. Tillett. In the eighth ward Mr. Abel Tillett, Mr. Tillett's nephew, acted also voluntarily for him.

626. Those were the agents?—Those were the agents.

627. Who were your managers, or the principal men or chairmen of your committee rooms in the different wards?—The managers of each ward would be the head in each committee room of that ward.

628. Would the paid agent be the manager in those wards where there was a paid agent?—He would be the manager of that ward. I should say that we had a meeting two or three days or about a week prior to the election, when a committee was appointed on behalf of Mr. Tillett; we sent a list of that committee to Mr. Coaks. It was arranged that there should be a joint committee and that the names we suggested and they suggested should be blended together and form one committee. At the meeting I have been speaking of we appointed a committee on behalf of Mr. Tillett, and I sent a list to Mr. Coaks, but subsequently I heard from Mr. Ray that Mr. Coaks or the gentlemen with whom he acted desired that there should be no committee, and nothing came of that, and no committee was published.

SECOND DAY.

G. A. Stevens.

20 Aug. 1869.

629. Did you make the return on behalf of Mr. Tillett?—I did.

630. Can you point out to me the payments that were made for those paid agents you have spoken of?—No, I cannot in that account, and I will explain why it was not entered there. I assumed that the gentlemen who were employed on behalf of Mr. Tillett, as there had been a subscription raised for the purpose of paying the expenses of his election, would do as I had done, work for him without pay, and I spoke to one or two of them about it, and they were quite agreeable to do so, and I spoke to the others (this was after the election) and they said "If our votes are jeopardised in any way by receiving pay, or if Mr. Tillett's election is jeopardised "in any way by our receiving pay for the services "we rendered, we will give up any remuneration that "we may feel ourselves entitled to, but if such is "not the case we shall expect to be paid." That was said by three, and those three I subsequently paid.

631. Were those three gentlemen you paid persons whose names were upon the register?—Two of them were, I think. Mr. Kent, I think, was not.

632. When did you pay those three gentlemen?—I paid them on the 15th of May last.

633. Then up to the 15th of May last had the only arrangement between you as to their payments been that which you have stated to me?—Certainly.

634. But originally had you not made arrangements that they should be paid?—I had not.

635. How had you engaged them then, if you had not made arrangements that they should be paid?—I asked Mr. Bryant Allen, who was an active partizan of Mr. Tillett's, if he would take the management of the first ward, and he said he would. In the second ward I asked Mr. Wood the same question. Nothing was said about pay or any remuneration whatever, and so I went to the different agents engaged for Mr. Tillett.

636. What was the reply of those persons?—Mr. Bryant Allen is a dyer doing a considerable business in Norwich; he is a most respectable man in a large way of business. Mr. Kent is a solicitor in Norwich. In the third ward Mr. White is assistant, I believe, to Tillyard and Howlett, curriers in this city.

637. Mr. Kent was a professional man?—Yes, he was a professional man.

638. Do you know Mr. Ray?—Yes, I know Mr. Ray well.

639. What part did he take with you?—Mr. Ray was Mr. Coaks' alter ego.

640. Then was Mr. Ray Mr. Coaks' sub-agent or representative, and in no way connected with Mr. Tillett?—He was in no way connected with Mr. Tillett.

641. Or with yourself?—Or with myself. I assumed at the commencement of the election that Mr. Ray and Mr. Daynes were to be joint agents for Sir William Russell; subsequently I understood that they were sub-agents to Mr. Coaks. I never saw Mr. Coaks in connexion with the election, or in connexion with any arrangements for the election, until the Saturday, I think, prior to the election, which was on the Tuesday. All my communications were with Mr. Ray or Mr. Daynes.

642. Were they not joint general managers for Mr. Tillett and Sir William Russell?—Certainly not. I was Mr. Tillett's sole manager. I had the entire control of his share in the election.

643. You say that you did not see Mr. Coaks until the Saturday preceding the election. On that day did you have a meeting with Mr. Coaks?—Mr. Coaks on the Saturday afternoon came into the committee room with Mr. Wilde, and wished to look at our canvassing books. They were handed over to them, and they went through them, I believe, on the Saturday afternoon.

644. Had you had no communication whatever, directly or indirectly, with Mr. Coaks till that moment?—I had not; by the bye I think he came into the committee room for a few minutes on the Thursday prior to the Saturday, but I do not think he spoke to me or I to him.

645. Was that Mr. Tillett's committee room?—We had no separate committee rooms; all our committee rooms were joint Russell and Tillett.

646. Into which committee room was it that he came?—The central committee room at the house I have spoken of, Mr. Wilson's, in St. Andrews.

647. Upon that day who were present at the meeting?—I think Sir William Russell was there; Mr. Tillett was there, I was there, and Mr. Ray; and I think that is all. There might have been others; those are all I remember at present. I think Mr. Daynes might have been there.

648. Was the mode of procedure arranged for the conduct of the election?—It was; we discussed what was legal and what was illegal. I believe I read Sir John Coleridge's opinion as to the engagement of carriages for the purpose of conveying the voters, and we discussed what might be done in that way.

649. Then was the hire of cabs and carriages the first matter that was discussed at that meeting?—I am not certain whether it was the first matter or not; it was the most important matter that was discussed at that meeting in my opinion at that time.

650. What did you determine with respect to that?—We determined upon being guided by Sir John Coleridge's opinion that it was illegal and very dangerous to do it, and we determined not to do it.

651. Do you recollect a discussion then taking place with regard to the show of hands?—There was no discussion took place upon that subject.

652. Had you ever been engaged in an election in Norwich before?—I had been engaged in a subordinate capacity in the last two or three elections.

653. Has it been customary to secure the show of hands if you possibly can?—Of my own knowledge I cannot say that I know it has been customary. I heard what Mr. Coaks said yesterday, and I believe it has been customary from what he has said. I may also mention that in one of the Norfolk elections a person wrote to a man in Norwich to provide him a certain number of men to secure the nomination, but I had nothing to do with securing nominations, or with spending money for that purpose.

654. Were you aware at that time that it was a thing that had been done before?—I had heard that such a thing had been done.

655. You recollect what Mr. Coaks said upon that subject; was an arrangement made such as Mr. Coaks has mentioned?—I will give you what my recollection is of what took place there. Some one whom I do not know, I think Mr. Coaks himself, said "What "about the show of hands, shall we secure it?" and Sir William Russell said "Is there anything illegal in "that," and Mr. Coaks answered "No." Sir William Russell then said "Very well, secure it."

656. Did you concur in securing it?—I took no part whatever in it.

657. Mr. Tillett was present?—Yes.

658. You did not object?—I did not object.

659. And Mr. Tillett did not object?—Mr Tillett did not object, but I should follow that up by saying what I did for the purpose of securing the nomination.

660. Was Mr. Ray there?—Mr. Ray was there. After that conversation took place I saw Mr. Womersley and asked him to get as many of his friends as possible up to the nomination, for the purpose of securing the show of hands if possible.

661. Had Mr. Ray instructions to secure the show of hands?—I gave him no instructions.

662. I do not suppose you did, but was it arranged?—No arrangement of that kind was made to my knowledge.

663. Was anything said about it?—Nothing was said that I remember on that occasion.

664. Do you say that nothing was said to Mr. Ray on that occasion, about securing the show of hands?—Nothing was said to Mr. Ray on that occasion about securing the show of hands.

665. Measures were taken, I suppose, for securing the show of hands?—I took what I considered to be a measure for that purpose. I should say, with reference to Mr. Coaks' evidence upon that matter, that I was taken very much by surprise at what he said, when he stated that a sum of 40*l.* had been expended for that purpose.

666. Did you afterwards on behalf of Mr. Tillett pay anything towards that show of hands?—Knowingly I did not.

667. Then you did it unknowingly?—That I should explain in this way. After the election Mr. Ray and I arranged to pay all the employees together, but inasmuch as there were two parties, and they had to be paid one moiety by each, we estimated the employees at the sum of 600*l.*; and for 300*l.* I obtained cheques from the committee appointed to manage the financial part of Mr Tillett's election, and 300*l.* Mr. Ray obtained, I believe, from Mr. Coaks, and those two sums were held by Mr. Ray for the purpose of paying the employees. We met together for the purpose of that payment, and I was present on almost all the occasions on which those payments were made. I took an account of the payments and Mr. Ray paid the money.

668. You say that you took part in the payments; was that to the employees?—Yes, to the employees. I was present, I think, on the first Saturday evening. I was busy about something else, and the men who were engaged wanted their money, and he commenced paying and furnished his own money for that purpose on the Saturday night, and I afterwards paid him a cheque to cover that and future payments that might be made. Altogether the cheques came to 300*l.* that I paid him.

669. In order to have a payment of that kind made it would be necessary for Mr. Ray to render you some account?—Mr. Ray has rendered me an account.

670. I suppose that was in writing?—No, he gave me the figures as to how the 600*l.* had been expended by him. I took it down from him myself.

671. Have you that paper on which you took it down from him?—I have.

672. Produce it, if you please.—(The paper referred to is handed by the witness to the Commissioners.)

673. Was that the paper made at the time?—Yes, that is the paper which was made at the time. You will see it is the second half of that paper.

674. Mr. Ray paid the employees 600*l.*?—600*l.*

675. Did you not make any inquiry as to how that 600*l.* was to be spent among the employees?—Certainly, and I was present when it was spent.

676. Who were the employees to whom it was represented to you that payment was to be made?—All the persons that were engaged in connexion with the election.

677. Including those persons who attended the nomination?—I knew nothing of any persons who attended the nomination.

678. Was any list or any account given to you of the persons to whom such a large sum as 600*l.* was to be paid as employees?—520*l.* odd of it I took an account of myself.

679. Have you got that account?—I have that account (producing it), and that I returned to the sheriff; that is an abstract of it.

680. Then if this was 520*l.*, 80*l.* remained over?—Yes; that paper will show you, I think. If you will hand it to me I will explain the different items. The 512*l.* 9*s.* 7*d.* was paid as per list; then Mr. Ray had paid small amounts amounting altogether to 12*l.* 3*s.* 9*d.*, which he debited that account with.

681. Do those sums appear upon this paper which I have here?—I should say not.

682. To whom were those small sums paid?—Mr. Kay will explain that.

683. But did he tell you?—Yes; there was his own, 5*l.* 8*s.* for cabs. I think we had a chop together paying the men. There was 2*l.* that he paid to Mr. Kay for services rendered during the election.

684. What services?—I see that he was a canvasser in the third ward.

685. Is he a voter?—That I do not know.

686. Did you inquire?—I did not. There was 3*l.* paid to someone else. He gave me a list of them I know at the time, and there was 5*l.* for our incidental expenses. I am speaking of the 12*l.* now. I cannot exactly say how the 12*l.* 3*s.* 9*d.* was made up. I satisfied myself at the time that it was correct. Then there was another item that he debited himself with of 23*l.* 6*s.* I asked him what that was, and he told me that it was for keeping the peace and for protecting our meetings. I should say that in the early stage of the election we had a meeting at "The Lamb" in Norwich, and a number of roughs were there; they broke our windows, and one of the stones very nearly hit Mr. Colman, our chairman. I was not present, but I heard of it afterwards. The rough element in the city we saw was with the Conservative party, and Mr. Ray told me that he felt it necessary that these men should be engaged for the purpose of protecting our meetings, and that this money was expended for that purpose. There was a sum of 8*l.* 10*s.* and 4*l.* 16*s.* and the 12*l.* 3*s.* 9*d.* that I have spoken of in the earlier part. 23*l.* 6*s.*, that was the 8*l.* 10*s.* and the 14*l.* 16*s.*; that would leave 52*l.* 0*s.* 8*d.* in Mr. Ray's hands.

687. In what way was that to be disposed of?—We had a separate account at our bankers. Cheques were paid in by myself on behalf of Mr. Tillett, and by Mr. Coaks on behalf of Sir William Russell. Upon that account there is a balance of 50*l.* due to the bank, and this sum of 53*l.* 0*s.* 8*d.* I assumed would be paid into the bank for the purpose of meeting that balance.

688. You assumed it was paid in?—I assumed that it would be.

689. Did you speak to Mr. Ray and ask him whether it would be paid into the bank?—I spoke to him several times about the balance, and he said we would have a meeting and settle up the whole thing.

690. This occurred a long time ago?—Yes; I should think I had the account some time in February, either in January or February.

691. When did you pay the 300*l.*?—To Mr. Ray?

692. Yes.—Immediately after the election.

693. So that having paid it to Mr. Ray in the month of November last you have never had an account, and thought it was to be paid into the bank, we being now in the month of August?—I have spoken to him several times about meeting for the purpose of squaring up the account. When I have been in the way he has not been in, and when he has been in the way I have not.

694. You had heard what had passed about securing the show of hands?—Yes, I had heard what had passed.

695. Having heard that, did it not occur to you that 52*l.* 0*s.* 8*d.* being in his hands, there was something to be supplied for securing the show of hands?—Certainly not. I should expect Mr. Ray to account to me for the 52*l.* 0*s.* 8*d.*, and I expect it will be accounted for to me.

696. Do you expect that still?—Certainly; most assuredly I do.

SECOND DAY.

G. A. Stevens.

20 Aug. 1869.

697. Mr. Ray was the paid agent of Sir William Russell?—He was. I should say that of the 52*l.* 0*s.* 8*d.* I should only be entitled to a moiety.

698. Of course. If the payment for securing the show of hands amounted to 40*l.* there would remain 12*l.* 0*s.* 8*d.* over, of which you would be entitled to 6*l.* 0*s.* 4*d.*?—I should not pay 40*l.*, nor the half of 40*l.*, and I may say here that I think Mr. Coaks is under a wrong impression when he says in his evidence that he thinks that sum was paid. I think he has assumed that that was done at this election which had been done at prior elections, but I think it will be discovered before this inquiry ends that no sum of 40*l.*, or anything like 40*l.*, was paid for that purpose. I believe from inquiries which I have made that a sum of 8*l.* 10*s.* was paid for the purpose of keeping the door to enable people to get into the nomination; that is what I spoke to Womersley about, but for anything else I do not believe anything was paid in connexion with the nomination. I believe that 8*l.* 10*s.* will cover every farthing that was paid on that occasion.

699. Then you did speak to Mr. Womersley for the purpose of securing the show of hands?—Certainly. I have said distinctly that I saw him and asked him to have his friends there early for the purpose of securing the show of hands.

700. Was that on the same day that the discussion had taken place?—My impression is that Mr. Womersley was in the committee room at the time, and that I saw him immediately after that.

701. Mr. Womersley is the manager for Mr. Colman?—He is a manager of one department of the Carrow works.

702. Were you present at the nomination?—I was. I should say that the nomination is held at the Guildhall, a place which would be too small for this inquiry; the greatest number it would hold would be about 300 people, and there is always a rush. The nomination is in fact a mere farce; there is always a rush for the purpose of getting in there, and no man who has any respect for his life or limbs would care to encounter the rush that he would have to endure to get into that place.

703. Then it would be a service of peril to get in, and it would be a matter for which persons probably would require consideration?—Well it has been so, I believe, but I believe that no consideration was given on this occasion.

704. You took an active part, I suppose, upon the day of the election?—I did all I possibly could.

705. On the afternoon of that day did you receive intelligence that bribery was going on?—I did. I was in the committee room, and received a note from Mr. Henry Tillett, I think it was, stating that he was sure that money was being spent in the eighth ward. I also received a message from the seventh ward, stating that money was being spent there.

706. Who brought you the message from the seventh ward?—I am not sure whether it was Mr. Harper or Mr. Spinks; it was some one I know from that locality; it might be the poll bearer when he brought up the state of the poll to the central committee rooms.

707. Was Mr. Coaks in the same committee rooms as you were?—He and Mr. Wilde kept our central poll in the committee room, in St. Andrews, not our own ordinary central committee rooms; those were found not sufficiently convenient, and we had two rooms in the Bazaar, for the purpose of keeping our central poll.

708. Then Mr. Coaks was in a different committee room from yourself?—No, we were all together, we moved from the one that was not convenient for taking the poll into the Bazaar.

709. You were then in the same room with Mr. Coaks?—I was in and out of the same room all day. Mr. Coaks, Mr. Wilde, and Mr. Mendham were there, and occasionally the candidates.

710. Do you recollect Mr. Womersley coming into the committee room and seeing Mr. Coaks?—I think I saw Mr. Womersley in and out two or three times; he spoke to me once or twice.

711. Do you recollect the time when he came in and spoke to Mr. Coaks?—I do not remember the particular conversation occurring that Mr. Coaks narrated yesterday. I was not present then.

712. It may have taken place in the room?—It may, but I think it would not, because Mr. Womersley would naturally come up to me as Mr. Tillett's agent, and would have spoken to me on a matter of that kind.

713. Did you go to "The Marquis of Granby"?—Mr. Daynes was in the room at the time, and I mentioned that I thought that buying was being carried on, and that I thought the best way was for us to go down and ascertain whether it was so or not.

714. Had you been down to "The Marquis of Granby" in the course of that morning, before you went with Mr. Daynes?—I think not, we went together.

715. I am referring to that circumstance now, because in the evidence which you gave before Mr. Baron Martin you said you thought you had been down to "The Marquis of Granby" before that day?—I do not think I had been down. I did not go down to "The Marquis of Granby" on that day to call at "The Marquis of Granby" only with Mr. Daynes. I passed there because I had been to our polling place, some little way beyond, but I had not called there till I went with Mr. Daynes, and I do not think from the evidence before Mr. Baron Martin it would appear that I had been there before.

716. You went down, you say, to "The Marquis of Granby" with Mr. Daynes?—I did.

717. At what time in the day was that?—Between 12 and 1 I think it was.

718. Just reflect, because in the evidence which you gave before Mr. Baron Martin, I find you said it was between 2 and 3?—I think that the first time we went down was earlier than between 2 and 3, but I will not be certain.

719. Did you go down with Mr. Daynes twice?—I went down with Mr. Daynes twice.

720. When you went down with Mr. Daynes the first time did you see Mr. Womersley there, or was that the second time?—I have not a distinct recollection.

721. You tell me that you went to "The Marquis of Granby" twice, you told me just now that you only went there once?—I went to "The Marquis of Granby" twice certainly.

722. With Mr. Daynes each time?—My present impression is that I went with Mr. Daynes each time. I may be inaccurate in that, but my strong impression is that Mr. Daynes was present with me each time.

723. Upon the second occasion did you see Mr. Womersley at "The Marquis of Granby"?—I saw standing outside the door Mr. Womersley, Mr. John Kitton, Mr. J. D. Smith, and some other gentlemen.

724. Will you undertake to say that that was not the second time you went?—My impression is that it was the second time.

725. When you went the first time did you see anybody there or was it a failure, or what was done?—My impression is that I went there and inquired for Mackley the landlord, and they told me he was up in the city, and I then went back to the committee rooms. I subsequently went down, and on the second occasion I am certain Mr. Daynes was with me, and then I saw those gentlemen about the door.

726. At what time was it when you went on the second occasion?—That would be very much later in the day; I should think between 2 and 3 o'clock.

727. Who were there?—Mr. Womersley, Mr. Kitton, Mr. J. D. Smith, and I think some other gentleman was there. I do not recollect now; they were standing by the door, we drove up, and Mr. Womersley said, "They are buying it here."

728. Then you went into "The Marquis of Granby"?—No; I had some other conversation with Mr. Womersley; they said "We shall lose the election," or something of that kind; the gentlemen around there said that. I said "It is infinitely better for "Mr. Tillett to lose his election than it would be to "buy it."

729. Then you went into the house?—Then I went into the house and inquired for Mackley. Mr. Daynes was with me, the other gentlemen did not go in. I inquired for Mackley. Mackley asked me to step with him out into the yard into a skittle ground, and we went there and he said he had a number of people standing out; he said that he could have had a number of people only they wanted to be paid. I said we could do nothing of the kind, and that I should recognise nothing of the kind and left him. Of course I have not refreshed my memory by looking at the evidence I gave before Mr. Baron Martin. I am not certain as to hours or words, but that is the substance of what took place.

730. Had these gentlemen, Mr. Womersley and Mr. Kitton, left before that?—I think when I came back from Mackley they were gone.

731. Did Mr. Womersley tell you that he had been up in the interval to see Mr. Coaks?—I think Mr. Womersley and Mr. Kitton too were complaining to me of the imperfect way in which the central poll was kept; they said there were no returns published, and that they seemed to be in a dreadful state of chaos there.

732. Did they tell you that they had been up to the central committee rooms?—They did not tell me so that I am aware of. No particular conversation was stated to me.

733. They had no conversation with you in the central committee room in the interval between the time of your first going down and your going down again to "The Marquis of Granby"?—Who?

734. Mr. Womersley.—Not one syllable. I do not think I had seen him at the committee room till after I had seen him at "The Marquis of Granby."

735. You have heard what Mr. Coaks said respecting the polling and as to the numbers who polled in the different half hours?—Yes, I heard what Mr. Coaks said. I should say that I have had a tabular statement prepared of the voting at different periods. I have gone through it with our check cards, and with our poll keepers' returns. I believe that it is substantially correct, and I gave the result of that in my examination before Mr. Baron Martin with reference to certain half hours.

736. Is this the table to which you are referring (showing a written paper to the witness)?—I have not seen that paper before.

737. Just look at it if you please (handing the paper to the witness); did you supply it for the purpose of the election petition inquiry?—I did not supply it. Mr. John Copeman prepared it, and I subsequently went through it before I gave my evidence before Baron Martin to test its accuracy.

738. You checked it?—Yes.

739. After you had checked it did you give it to anybody for the purpose of its being used on that inquiry?—No, I did not. I checked it for the purpose of my evidence. I should say that this is a copy of the same thing I have no doubt it is. I have it in print here.

740. You were examined as a witness upon the inquiry before Mr. Baron Martin, and that was supplied for the purpose of the inquiry. You gave it to the solicitor and would be examined upon it?—No, I extracted certain figures from that statement and drew my evidence out and handed it to counsel, and he examined me from my evidence. I did not see that particular statement.

741. Are you cognizant of efforts having been made except by payments on account of the nomination. Are you aware of any irregular payment having been made on behalf of Mr. Tillett?—I am aware of none; that list comprises all that I have paid, all that I intend to pay, and all that I believe was paid.

742. In addition to those sums which you have paid, have other claims or have other requests for money been made to you?—I cut down one or two of the bills which I have put down as paid. I taxed them, but they are all settled.

743. Have you got the originals of those bills?—I may say that the only one I now remember was a charge of 20*l.* for "The Grapes" committee rooms. I objected to that and subsequently paid 12 guineas.

744. Was anything included in that for refreshments?—No, not one sixpence.

745. It was simply for committee rooms?—Simply for committee rooms; 12 guineas were paid. I should say that immediately on my appointment I had a notice printed and sent round to all the agents that we would not be responsible for one shilling expended at any of the public houses, and I believe that that was strictly acted upon.

746. You were apprehensive of such claims, were you?—I was. I knew that at previous elections there had been bills run up on behalf of the candidates, which I objected to on this occasion.

747. Have you not had some other bills in reference to this election?—I have not; every bill that I have received is included in my published accounts.

748. Have you not received any other bills?—Certainly not.

749. Or claims?—No, not of any kind.

750. Any verbal claims?—Neither verbal nor written.

751. No claims by publicans?—No claims by publicans or any body else that I have not paid and entered in my accounts.

752. No claims for sums paid during the day of the election?—No claims for sums paid during the day of the election nor any other day. The paper I have handed in comprises, I think, all that I have been asked to pay.

753. You have a number of bills there, what are those?—These (referring to some papers) are vouchers for certain payments to the employees. We did not vouch the employees' accounts to the sheriff. These are some of the vouchers.

754. Will you let me see them, if you please (the papers referred to are handed by the Witness to the Commissioners), these sums were actually paid by you?—These sums were actually paid by a joint cheque signed by Mr. Coaks and myself.

755. And are all entered in this account?—They are all entered in the account which I have handed in.

756. They are all in the account which you returned?—In the account which I have now handed in to you; there were certain sums, 42*l.* for the agents of the three wards that I paid, that were not paid to the agents until May last, and consequently they were not in the sheriff's accounts.

757. Who is Mr. Gilbert?—He is clerk to his father, who is a builder in Norwich.

758. What was his bill for?—He was assistant manager at one of the committee rooms in the eighth ward.

759. Was he a voter?—I believe he is.

760. Where in the account does this payment to Gilbert appear?—None of those payments appear in the account, for the reason I have mentioned before, that all those parties were voters; they declined to be paid if it would jeopardise their vote or Mr. Tillett's seat on a scrutiny.

761. I see the letter of Gilbert is in these words, "I beg to remind you that my account with regard to "the late election has not been settled, and as full "accounts have been published in the papers I thought "this might have escaped your notice." Looking at that letter do you actually say that you had agreed with Mr. Gilbert that he should not be paid?—Most certainly not; I had not agreed with Mr. Gilbert in any way whatever.

762. Do you know whether Mr. Tillett had?—No; I think Mr. Tillett had not seen him at all upon the matter, but I declined to pay any voters who I knew had voted at the late election.

SECOND DAY.

G. A. Stevens.

20 Aug. 1869.

763. Who is Mr. Isaac Churchyard?—Mr. Isaac Churchyard is a shopkeeper in the first ward who was engaged upon the election day and canvassed prior to the election day.

764. Did he render you an account of disbursements?—Yes, I think he did; I think he had a horse and gig which was one guinea, and there were some small payments that he made; what they amount to I do not know.

765. What were those payments?—Personal payments of his own.

766. To whom?—For himself, I believe.

767. Refreshments?—Yes.

768. Is Churchyard a voter?—I believe he is.

769. Surely you, as election agent, would know whether you were paying a man who was a voter or not?—What I paid him for was for disbursements made by him in connexion with the late election, and what I believed to be legal disbursements.

770. But you said they were partly for refreshments for himself?—If he was engaged in our business he was entitled to be paid.

771. This was on the day of the election?—It was not confined to that, he was engaged before that.

772. I want to know what those refreshments were and on what days those refreshments were paid for?—I will get the account from him. I cannot give it to you now. I was satisfied at the time that they were right and fair and paid them.

773. Was there no item for refreshment on the day of the election?—Yes; one item was for a horse and gig. I do not remember how the 2*l.* 10*s.* was made up.

774. You, the election agent, paying a voter for refreshment, would know, would you not, whether it was on the day of the election?—My impression is that I did see and was satisfied that the charge he made was a charge which I might pay.

775. Do you mean to say that your memory is so faint that you cannot tell me whether it was for refreshments on the day of the election?—I do not think that there were any refreshments on the day of the election, but I am not sure about that.

776. I see that the next is Mr. Alfred Kent?—He is a solicitor, and he was the manager of the second ward.

777. The next is Runacres, is he a voter?—He is a voter.

778. Was he employed as a manager on behalf of Russell and Tillett?—Yes; he was a gentleman who told me that if taking payment for his services would jeopardise his vote he would not take it, but thinking it would not affect Mr. Tillett in any way I paid it.

779. That is after the election petition was over you paid these sums to the agents, did you?—I paid those sums that are put down there on the 14th of May.

780. Having made an arrangement that if the payment would jeopardise the election or would jeopardise Mr. Tillett in any way the payments were not to be made?—If they would jeopardise their votes in any way they would not accept payment for their services.

781. But if it would not jeopardise their votes they were to be paid?—Clearly.

782. Did you not know as well as possible, you being a member of the profession, that it would jeopardise their votes?—It would jeopardise their votes, I considered, if they received payment for their services.

783. And yet you afterwards paid them?—I afterwards paid them. I should say by way of explanation of that, that prior to the election there was not an arrangement; but a suggestion was made by us to the other side that inasmuch as there were many persons familiar with conducting and managing an election who were voters, and who were necessary on both sides for the purpose of properly managing an election, we should have so many voters on each side who should not vote, but that arrangement was not carried out.

784. Was not a direction given to the agents to poll in the last hour?—There was a direction given to the agents and their employees to poll in the last hour.

785. Did you give that order?—I gave the direction to some of them, and among them I saw Mr. Runacres, and Mr. Runacres said if the election is in jeopardy I will go and vote, and do not care anything about the pay.

786. The next is a receipt of 5*l.* for services rendered at the late election by Edward R. Barnes?—That was for canvassing and bringing up voters on the day of the election for the sixth ward.

787. Is Mr. Barnes a voter?—I believe Mr. Barnes is a voter.

788. Have you any doubt about it?—I have no doubt he is a voter. I believe that all those are voters.

789. Every one of them?—With the exception of Mr. Kent I believe they were all paid by the joint cheques of Mr. Coaks and myself, with the exception of our managers.

790. Let us see what these sums amount to?—You will find they amount to 97*l.*, I think.

791. And no accounts of any of these payments amounting to 97*l.* to voters were entered in the election expenses?—They were never entered either in my or Sir William Russell's expenses.

792. Was that by arrangement with Mr. Coaks?—No; I have made no arrangement with Mr. Coaks. Many of those claims I had not received on the day of the election.

793. Then you paid them without any arrangement with Mr. Coaks?—I saw Mr. Ray about them. Many of them were sent in to him, and he and I arranged that they should be paid, and cheques were drawn for their payment.

794. By you and Mr. Ray?—I think Mr. Ray drew the cheques and I signed them, and then he took them and obtained Mr. Coaks' signature.

795. Then Mr. Ray took them to Mr. Coaks?—Yes, and obtained his signature, and we paid them jointly.

796. When did you first receive these accounts?—With regard to some of them I received a written account, but in other cases they merely called upon me about them.

797. Did you not receive these accounts, or some of them, immediately after the election?—I might have received one or two, I am not sure about that.

798. Did you not receive the main of them immediately after the election?—I did not. I knew that they had been engaged.

799. Did you know that Mr. Ray received some of them immediately after the election?—I should say that if he had received them he would have handed them over to me.

800. Had you no communication with Mr. Ray upon the subject of these accounts immediately after the election?—Yes; I think that with regard to some of the persons employed I had. I knew there were certain persons who were employed who had voted.

801. This list which you have handed up contains the whole of those payments, does it?—That list contains the names of all the persons to my knowledge who were employed in the election on behalf of Sir William Russell and Mr. Tillett.

802. How many of the persons contained in this list were voters?—There may be a very few. I have not been through them; as far as I know those whose names I have given in were the only voters.

803. There may have been very few, but there may have been very many, you know?—I have not been through this list to dissect the voters, but my impression is, that with very few exceptions they are non-voters. We had great difficulty in managing our election, because with regard to the old voters who were formerly employed we could not have their services at this election.

804. The whole of the persons from whom you took the vouchers were voters, were they not?—With one exception, I think they were; Mr. Kent was not a voter.

805. Mr. Alfred Kent, 21*l.*?—He is not a voter, I think.

806. Those persons, with the exception of Mr. Kent, who appear in these vouchers were voters?—Yes, and they were necessary persons for the conduct of this election in my judgment.

807. Have any other monies been paid by you?—None but these appear in the account I have handed in. I am speaking of the small account now, the list which I handed in comprises the whole of Mr. Tillett's disbursements of every kind.

808. I see here "payments as per list, 512*l.* 9*s.* 7*d.*;" the list which you have given to me amounts to only 507*l.* 9*s.* 7*d.*?—The list I referred to there is the sheriff's published list, the list of employees; the list of payments made to employees will amount to the sum I have given there. I think there is an inaccuracy in the casting of that last list.

809. No return to the sheriff was made of these payments amounting to 507*l.* 9*s.* 7*d.*?—Certainly there was a return; they are made up in this way in the sheriff's return, "Clerks, managers, &c., central "committee rooms, committee clerks, 134*l.* 8*s.* 4*d.*, "messengers, 63*l.* 7*s.* 6*d.*, making a total of 197*l.* "15*s.* 10*d.*

810. If I understand you the payments contained in these receipts are distinct from those that appear in the sheriff's return?—Certainly; they are not entered in the sheriff's account at all.

811. Only these?—Only these.

812. You have not made out a list of these payments?—I have not a list of them. I have brought the vouchers for them, and they amount I know to 97*l.*, our half of which I have charged in that account.

813. You did not return the names of the clerks, messengers, and other persons to the sheriff?—No, we gave the sheriff an abstract of the account.

814. Then this, in fact, is a detail of them?—That is a detail of the sheriff's account.

815. And these are supplemental to the sheriff's account?—Those are supplemental to the sheriff's account.

816. The total of 507*l.* 9*s.* 7*d.* paid to messengers and those people is the aggregate of these sums which occur in the return to the sheriff?—Yes, in my return.

817. What time of the day did all the employees poll, between half-past 3 or 4?—I think the message came from the central committee room that they were to poll when we saw that they were getting too close.

818. What time of the day would that be?—Between 3 and 4.

819. The message came from the central committee room; where were you then?—I think I was either on my way from or going to the rooms. Mr. Coaks sent a message that all the employees were to be polled.

820. To you?—No, he did not send it to me. I heard of it on the way.

821. Who informed you of it?—I think one of the poll bearers; I do not know.

822. Did you see them going to the poll?—No, I did not. Yes, I think I saw Mr. Runacres, and asked him to poll, and he went. He said, if you are in danger I do not care about pay, I will go and vote. Of course we were rather excited at the time.

823. Mr. Runacres was taking a very active part in the election, was he not?—He was a very active partizan.

824. And he was very zealous?—Yes, he was very zealous.

825. You had no communication with him, if I understand you, respecting what was going on at "The Marquis of Granby" except when you went down there and saw him on the spot?—That was the only intimation I had.

826. You, on the part of Mr. Tillett, paid to Messrs. Daynes and Ray nothing?—Nothing.

827. They were, in fact, representatives of Mr. Coaks?—Yes, they were the representatives of Mr. Coaks.

828. And you regarded them as principals until you saw Mr. Coaks?—Yes.

829. Therefore, of course, you did not treat them in any way as the representatives of Mr. Tillett; you treated them exclusively as representatives of Sir William Russell?—Certainly.

830. And as persons who were to be paid as such?—Yes.

831. Before the order was given that the paid agents should vote you were in great excitement, and there was very considerable pressure. Do I understand you to say that?—No; I do not wish you to understand that. I say we were getting too close to be pleasant, and were fearing the result of the election, and if we could mend our position by polling our employees we thought it better to do so.

832. You felt that you were in very considerable jeopardy?—Yes, in considerable jeopardy.

833. Feeling that you were in considerable jeopardy, you gave an order for the doubtful men to vote?—The order was given for the doubtful men to vote, and I communicated it to one or two of them.

834. There was no doubt about Sir William Russell?—No, I think not; at least we did not know.

835. Then the order was that they might vote to support Mr. Tillett?—The order was that they should vote, and I believe that they all voted for Mr. Tillett and Sir William Russell.

836. But the order was given in order that Mr. Tillett might get in?—They were simply ordered to vote, and they voted for the two.

837. But there was no jeopardy in the case of Sir William Russell?—We did not know what the state of the poll was except when it was getting towards the close.

838. Did you not know that Sir William Russell was very much ahead of Mr. Tillett?—My impression was that Sir William Russell was ahead of Mr. Tillett.

839. You have said that there was a sum paid to keep off the roughs?—Yes, so Mr. Ray says. 8*l.* 10*s.* and 14*l.* 16*s.*

840. To keep off the roughs from the committee room?—Yes, from our meeting generally, I understood.

841. Were they roughs who complained that they were Liberal men, and that they were not paid by the Liberal side?—I never heard that.

842. Was not that said?—Certainly not, I never heard a suggestion of the kind.

843. Then you were merely afraid of them as general disturbers of the peace?—I never engaged them. When Mr. Ray presented his account to me, I asked him what those two items were, and he said that they were for protecting our meetings, and preserving the peace.

844. Preserving the peace against whom?—Against the rough element that was on the other side.

845. Did Mr. Ray say that?—Yes, certainly he said that.

846. Did you see any bill posted?—Yes, there was a bill put out by the deputy mayor; he was chairman at the meeting in the fourth ward when the stones were thrown in by which he was very nearly injured.

847. What was the purport of that bill?—I saw a bill in which he complained that he should be so treated by his fellow citizens; that was signed by the deputy mayor.

848. Was there a second bill put out?—There was.

849. What was that second bill?—The second bill was by Mr. Chittock, disowning any connection with those roughs who had disturbed our meeting.

SECOND DAY.

G. A. Stevens.

20 Aug. 1869.

850. Mr. Chittock was the agent on the other side?—He was.

851. And what did it state besides?—I do not remember the purport of the bill; I read it at the time I know. I think the bill went on to say something to the effect that the meeting was disturbed by our own roughs, or something of that kind.

852. Did it not contain a statement that it was in consequence of your own men not being paid by your own party?—I never heard that, I do not remember that that was in the bill.

853. If there was such a statement set forth you could not very well have forgotten it?—I think there was something of the kind, but the exact purport of it I do not know.

854. Have you any doubt that it was so?—I really do not know what the purport of the bill was, there may have been a statement of that kind in it.

855. Having seen that in the month of November last you allowed those payments, did you inquire whether there was any truth in the allegation?—Up to the time of that meeting at "The Bell" I think Mr. Ray will satisfy you he never paid one shilling.

856. But you say you allowed those two payments?—I did allow those two payments.

857. You allowed them in the month of May last?—Yes, somewhere about that time or it might be before. It would be in February or March, I should think.

858. You allowed those payments in February or March, having seen those two handbills posted in the month of November at the very last?—Yes, certainly.

859. Did you inquire of Mr. Ray whether the statements in the second handbill were true or not?—No, I did not, because I did not believe that they were true.

860. Did you make no inquiry at all of Mr. Ray upon the subject?—I made no inquiry of him.

861. You took it for granted and passed it?—I believe that that meeting was interrupted by Conservatives; I do not say in the pay of, but by Conservative roughs.

862. Were you at the meeting?—I was not. I went up directly I heard there was a fracas, but it was all over at that time.

863. What were the meetings that were so protected; they must have been after the fracas?—Yes, there were one or two meetings at St. Andrew's Hall. There were meetings in different wards I know, but how the men were employed or where I do not know.

864. Or who the persons were who were employed?—I have no knowledge whatever of that.

865. You do not know whether they were voters or not?—No. I have no knowledge upon the subject.

866. And you never made any inquiry?—No.

867. Perhaps you thought it convenient not to make any?—The amount was small.

868. 8*l.* and 12*l.* were amounts so insignificant that you did not think it worth while to make any inquiry about them?—They are not a heavy item in connexion with the election. I thought it a proper payment to be made for the purpose.

869. Whoever might have been employed?—The roughs employed in a general way are not voters; they are the lowest element in the city.

870. (Mr. Mansfield.) Were not the claims made by these employees who voted presented subsequently in most instances after the trial before Mr. Baron Martin?—Most of them were presented after the trial before Mr, Baron Martin.

J. C. Chittock.

JOHN CARSAY CHITTOCK sworn and examined.

871. (Mr. Mansfield.) You are a solicitor practising in this town?—Yes.

872. You were election agent for general purposes at the election of 1868 for Sir Henry Stracey?—Yes.

873. Had you been election agent on previous occasions?—No.

874. That was the first time you were employed?—Yes, except as a sub-agent.

875. You are acquainted with the constituents of Norwich generally?—Not so well probably as those who had acted previously.

876. At what date had Sir Henry Stracey become a candidate?—About a fortnight before the election. I have not the precise date, but I should say about a fortnight before, or it might be sixteen days.

877. Did he come down himself?—He did; he lives very near Norwich.

878. Did you conduct his canvass?—There was a very small amount of canvassing done. We had not the time for it.

879. To what extent was the canvass done?—About 4,000 persons, I suppose, altogether were canvassed.

880. Did you canvass from house to house in any part of the town?—No.

881. Did you appoint the different managers and canvassers?—I appointed the ward managers, but not the canvassers.

882. Were there any canvassers appointed?—There were no canvassers appointed. I mean by that that there were no paid officers appointed.

883. Was Mr. Stracey, the son, here too?—Yes, they were in and out of the committee rooms at different times.

884. Did either the father or son take any very active part personally in the canvassing?—Sir Henry Stracey went to see one or two large factories; he went down to the railway station where he could have a number of voters assembled, but he could not make a canvass from house to house.

885. Did Mr. Stracey attend any of those meetings?—I do not remember Mr. Stracey to have been with his father at any of those meetings.

886. Who was the chairman of the general committee of Sir Henry Stracey?—There was no general committee.

887. Were there district committees?—No. I cannot say there was a committee at all. We had committee rooms, and any person who was known to be Conservative who chose to come into the committee room, was admitted.

888. I suppose that in each district there was a manager?—I appointed one myself.

889. Were those paid managers?—They were paid managers.

890. And they continually reported to you?—Precisely so.

891. Was there any general organisation or system on the part of the Conservative party?—None.

892. Has there never been?—No; I am not aware of any; there are some small clubs in the city. I think there are six or seven clubs in different wards, but there is no general society for the city.

893. Those you mention are Conservative clubs?—Yes.

894. Where are their meetings held?—I cannot tell you that.

895. Are they held at public houses?—I presume they are, but I never attended one of their meetings, and I do not know where they are held.

896. During the early part of the canvass were there any public houses retained as committee rooms?—Two or three. I have handed in a description of the houses where the committee rooms were to Mr. Secker, the secretary to the Commission, but wherever we could find a house which was not a public house we engaged it, but we could not always find one.

897. In cases in which it was a public house, how was the payment made, was it made for the use of the room?—We agreed to pay so much for the use of the room.

898. And anything for beer?—No, nothing.

899. Or for liquors supplied?—No nothing. I may mention that I gave instructions to all the ward managers that I would not allow anything that was paid for beer, unless I gave them a written order myself.

900. Perhaps you had better give us the names of the managers in the different wards?—Mr. Page was the manager of the first ward, he is a solicitor.

901. Paid or unpaid?—All the ward managers were paid.

902. Was there any other person acting with him either paid or unpaid?—Only the usual staff of committee clerks and messengers; there were no assistant managers.

903. Were there no persons employed, either paid or unpaid, in working up the voters?—There would be leading men in the ward who would ask their friends to vote, I have no doubt, and who would go into the committee room and say how they were getting on.

904. Who was manager in ward No. 2?—Mr. Hulme.

905. What is he?—A chemist.

906. Is he a voter?—Yes.

907. Now No. 3?—No. 3 ward is divided into two parts, one was Mr. Buttifant, and the other was Mr. Stanley.

908. What were they?—Mr. Buttifant is the secretary to a building society, and the other is a solicitor.

909. (Mr. Biron.) Are they voters?—Yes, they would be voters; I daresay all the managers were voters.

910. (Mr. Mansfield.) Now No. 4?—No 4 was Mr. Atkinson, a solicitor.

911. Was he a voter too?—Yes.

912. Now No 5?—No 5 was Mr. Stockings, a chemist; he is a voter. No. 6 was Mr. Holmes, who was a clerk in Sir Samuel Bignold's office; he is a voter. No. 7 was Mr. Jarvis, a coal merchant, he is a voter; and No. 8 is Mr. Wiseman, a builder, he is a voter. None of them voted.

913. Now what did you pay to the agents in the first ward?—I will hand up the vouchers of the agents for those accounts. You will find that in all wards where there were agents the payment is about four guineas a day.

914. For how many days?—Some committee rooms were open, I think, a day earlier than others, so that there would be about eight or nine days.

915. Was all the expenditure managed through you?—Yes.

916. There is no other expenditure that you know of except through your hands?—Except through mine.

917. Are you aware of any payment having been made beyond those that are returned to the sheriff?—Only one sum of about 1*l.*, or it might be 22*s.*, and that was for a lad who was a clerk in the committee room; he was employed some evenings, and Mr. Dawson, who assisted me in my committee rooms, told me after I had sent in my account that I had directed him to pay his clerk; it was under 25*s.*, and he said he had done so and asked me for the money, I said "you should have told me of it before "I sent the account in," but as I promised him I would give him the money I gave it to him. That is the only sum I paid not mentioned in the account. That payment was made by me after I had sent in my account to Sir Henry Stracey.

918. About what day would that be?—I think I sent it into Sir Henry Stracey on the 16th of April, so that it would be since that time.

919. Have there been any claims presented since the 16th of April?—None.

920. Have you got a copy of your bill to Sir Henry Stracey?—I do not know whether I have, but my bill to Sir Henry Stracey was simply a copy of the abstract of the sheriff's return. I do not know that I have a copy of it. I do not think I have, but my bill to Sir Henry Stracey is precisely the same as the sheriff's account.

921. Have you no other claim against him except this?—None whatever.

922. Have you been concerned in doing other than election business for Sir Henry Stracey at any time?—No.

923. Are you aware of any payments having been made at this election to secure a show of hands?—I was not aware of it until I heard Mr. Coaks give his evidence here yesterday. I should tell you as to that that we met at the sheriff's office for the purpose of arranging as to the polling booths and supplying refreshments to the polling booths on the election day. I am not positive as to the day we met there, but I think it was on the Saturday previous to the election, and there were present at that meeting Mr. Coaks, Mr. Stevens, Mr. Ray, Mr. Daynes, the under-sheriff Mr. Pilgrim, and Mr. Foster. I had understood that it had been usual to secure the show of hands, and I myself suggested that there should be no person employed for the purpose of securing the show of hands, and that if they would promise me they would not do anything of the sort I would not do it myself, and I was promised that nothing of the sort should be done.

924. Who promised you?—The agents on both sides agreed to it. I remember that Mr. Stevens agreed to it for one, and I think everybody agreed to it.

925. Did Mr. Coaks agree to it?—Whether Mr. Coaks was actually in the room at the time I made that observation I will not undertake to say, but he was at the meeting. He was not at the meeting the whole of the time I was there, but I know Mr. Stevens was there, Mr. Daynes was there, and I am sure Mr. Foster and the under-sheriff were in the room.

926. Did you yourself take any steps about the show of hands?—None whatever. I fully expected they had carried out their part of the arrangement until I heard Mr. Coaks give his evidence here yesterday.

927. What did you do? did you send any of your friends to the hustings?—No; the only thing that was done was this, the under-sheriff gave to each of the agents so many tickets for admission to a private entrance, about twenty tickets each; we made use of them, and that is all we did.

928. You took no steps to get voters or other persons there?—No.

929. Was no payment made that you know of?—Not a penny, I am sure.

930. Have you got your canvassing books here?—I have the register with the result of the canvass marked upon it.

931. That is marked off, is it?—Yes.

932. Have you got it here?—I have.

933. Was not an application made to you for it some weeks ago?—Yes, an application was made to me for it when Mr. Secker first came down here.

934. Where was it then?—At my office.

935. Then why did you not give it?—I directed my clerk to look for it, and if he could find it to let Mr. Secker have it. He did search for it, and he told me he could not find it, but he afterwards did find it.

936. Where was it found afterwards?—In my office. The papers were not indorsed and done up in bundles, and there was some difficulty in finding it, but at any rate he afterwards found it. I did not find it myself at all.

937. Did you look for it?—No.

938. Why not?—Because I directed my clerk to do it. I thought that was sufficient.

939. Is it in the same state now as it was then?—I have not altered it.

940. Who was the clerk you gave it to?—Robert Swan.

941. How soon was it found after the application was made for it?—It was found, I should say, about five or six days ago. My clerk told me he found it tied up in a bundle with a number of returned letters.

SECOND DAY.

J. C. Chittock.

20 Aug. 1869.

942. Where is it now?—I have it here now.

943. Then you had better hand it in?—Yes, I will do so.

944. (Mr. Dowdeswell.) What are those other papers you have?—They are the poll keepers' books.

945. (Mr. Mansfield.) Who was the poll keeper on your side?—They were in different wards, there were eight of them.

946. But the chief one?—The central room was kept by Mr. Gilman.

947. How often did you receive accounts of the state of the poll?—Every half hour.

948. Have you the canvassing books sent from the committee rooms to the central committee room from which the list was made up?—I have the cards that were sent. I have them here.

949. Have you no books or lists?—They are the lists from which that one was made up.

950. Where are they?—I have them here.

951. (Mr. Dowdeswell.) From time to time your paid agents made you returns?—Those are the returns which were made.

952. And from those you would post these canvass books?—Yes.

953. Are those the whole of the returns from which this book was posted?—I expect every one is there; I have not taken one off the file, and I am not aware that any has been taken off the file.

954. Were they all filed after they were checked in the central committee room?—I suppose so, from finding that quantity on the file.

955. Was that the order which was given?—I gave no order on the subject.

956. I suppose you had some arrangement for the purpose of conducting that part of the election?—My instructions to the clerks were simply these, as these cards came in to mark them on the register.

957. And I suppose you saw that that was being done from time to time?—I know that was being done from time to time.

958. And were those returns from which this was made up put upon that file?—I presume so, from finding them there. I did not see them put on.

959. You do not suppose I am asking you that. I want to know the practice of the office?—That is the practice.

960. These ought to have been filed according to the practice of the office, and further you believe they were filed?—I believe they were filed, but if they had thrown them away I should not have been surprised, and should not have made any complaint, because they were useless after having been once marked on the register. That is what I mean by that.

961. (Mr. Mansfield.) Do you not know that some of the canvassing lists were made out in books?—There were some books used in the ward.

962. Where are they?—I have them here.

963. (Mr. Dowdeswell.) Those are the things we want?—That is not what I was asked for. I have kept nothing back that I was asked for. The books would be carried about by the persons who were canvassing; they would mark the promises in the books, they would then go to the ward committee and report those promises to the agent; the agent would mark them upon these lists and send them to the central committee room.

964. Those results of the canvass made by the paid agents would, in numberless cases, appear upon books, I presume?—The memorandum books carried round by those who canvassed.

965. Which, I suppose, were copies of the register?—Oh dear no, I will show you what I have, and you will see. These are all I have.

966. (Mr. Biron.) They are all taken out of the register, are they not?—No. I will tell you how it is done. The agent would look at the register and take the names out of one street mark them upon this book, and say "here is a street."

967. They are, in fact, copies of the register, only arranged?—Arranged for convenience.

968. (Mr. Mansfield.) These books contain the promises and the doubtful voters, do they not?—Well, there are very few in there except promises.

969. During the day of the election were you yourself about at all; were you going round to the different wards?—I went about early in the morning.

970. Were you yourself very active in the different wards?—No; I took no part in the canvassing or anything of that sort. I merely went round to the committee rooms to see that the staff were properly at work.

971. Which of the committee rooms did you go to?—I do not think I could tell you which. I should say that I went to them all.

972. Were you not aware that at a certain part of the day the voting for your candidate became much better than it had been in the earlier part of the day?—I found that late in the day we were gradually gaining, and winning, in fact.

973. Within what hours would that be?—I have no tabular statement before me, but I should say we improved from half-past 1 o'clock, or I may say from 1 o'clock.

974. To what do you attribute that?—Well, there are a great number of working men who would come out to dinner at 1 o'clock, and they would begin to poll up very fast.

975. Had you been keeping back any of your own men?—No.

976. You let them go just as they pleased?—Just as they pleased.

977. I suppose you mean that there were a great number of voters that were keeping back?—I could tell that of course by the number who polled.

978. And that they were keeping back for the purpose?—I do not know that they were keeping back for the purpose. I could not tell whether they would vote at all.

979. Are you not aware that there are a large number of persons in this city who have been accustomed to keep back to the last hour or the last hour and a half of the poll?—I know there are a number of persons who will keep back for the purpose of going with the winning side.

980. And for other purposes?—Do you mean for the purpose of being bought?

981. Yes.—I never thought anything about that.

982. Do you not know that as a fact?—No, I do not know that as a fact. I never conducted any previous election.

983. You have been in this city all you life, I presume?—I have, but as I never was engaged in bribery I have no personal knowledge of it. I only know what I read in the papers; and I was present at the inquiry before Mr. Baron Martin, and I know what I heard then, but beyond that I have no personal knowledge of it.

984. Do you know anything of a man named Hardiment?—Yes.

985. Did you instruct him?—I did not.

986. Do you know whether he took any part in the canvassing?—I believe he did, from the evidence given here upon the inquiry.

987. And at the time did you know whether he was doing so?—No, I did not, except that I might imagine he, the same as other leading men in their wards, would be canvassing, but whether he did or did not I cannot say. I did not see him canvassing, but I have no doubt he did canvass from what I heard.

988. Were there any persons who brought up messages to you, giving an account of what was going on in the different wards on the day of polling?—No.

989. Had you no communication?—We had half-hourly returns from the wards of the numbers polled.

990. Were not any of these managers communicating with you about the state of the poll in the different wards?—Oh no.

991. Were they not writing up to the central committee ?—Oh no.

992. Then do you mean to say that at the central committee you had no knowledge whatever of what was going on in these eight different districts except the poll returns ?—Except the poll returns and going round to see that they were properly at work; that is all I could do and all that I attended to.

993. When you went round was no communication made to you about the state of the voters in those localities ?—No.

994. Not by anybody ?—No.

994*a*. No statement was made about bringing up men to the poll at any of those places ?—No, certainly not.

995. What was your staff set to do ?—One part of their duty would be as the persons voted to mark their names off on the register. Then another part of the staff would be continually making out in streets the names of those who had not yet voted so that we might at a glance tell who had not voted.

996. Was it any person's duty to send messages to those who had promised you ?—They were all sent out from the ward committee rooms. The ward managers would do that; that is their duty. Each man attends to his own ward.

997. Then I suppose they will be able to tell us the names of the persons they employed ?—Undoubtedly they will. I have handed in the names of all I paid, and all I employed; and I may tell you this further that they had instructions from me not to employ any persons; if they required any further assistance they were to apply to me for it.

998. But do you know whether they did employ any further assistants in spite of those instructions ?—I am not aware that they did.

999. Do you believe they did ?—I believe they did not.

1000. Do you believe that the messengers and so on whose names they returned to you were the only persons they employed ?—I do believe that, because I have never been applied to to pay any others; therefore I believe they never did employ any others.

1001. Supposing any person was acting for Sir Henry Stracey whom you had not authorised to be employed, do you suppose he was acting independently or without authority from any of these ward committees ?—I do believe that.

1002. Are you aware whether Wiseman employed any persons ?—I was not aware that he did. I gave written instructions upon one occasion to two of the managers. They wanted an extra messenger or two and I had not any under my control at the time, and I sent them down a note to say "You must engage "one or two messengers yourselves;" but that is what I had told them before, that they were not to engage any without a written order, and I sent a written order.

1003. Do you know who they employed ?—No, I do not, but their names were sent in to me afterwards and were included in the account which I furnished.

1004. Were they voters ?—No; my instructions were not to employ any voter, and every person who came up to my central committee room to be employed I asked whether he was a voter before I employed him. After the election, upon going through the accounts for the purpose of paying them, I discovered that two persons who had been employed were voters. I ascertained also that they had voted, and I refused to pay them their accounts because they had voted, and they have never been paid up to the present time, and I do not intend to pay them.

1005. Was that the case with all these agents ?—They did not vote. I told them not.

1006. Are you certain they did not vote with the exception of these two ?—With the exception of these two, and they were messengers. I did not know they were voters at the time they were employed.

1007. Did none of the paid agents vote ?—None of them voted.

1008. Do you know anything of the places in which voters at the later hours of the poll at Norwich wait until people come to look them up ?—No, I do not.

1009. You never heard of such places ?—Yes, I have heard of them.

1010. Are you not aware that there are certain public houses which have belonged to each party in the city ?—I am not personally aware that there are houses where people congregate for the purpose of being bribed.

1011. Places where voters wait until they are sent for ?—I am not personally aware of that.

1012. You know it by hearsay, do you not ?—Yes, by hearsay, but I have never seen them there.

1013. Were any payments made at these committee rooms for refreshment ?—Only upon my order, and that was on the day of the election. I ordered them to supply the staff with refreshment.

1014. Does that appear in the accounts ?—Yes, that appears in the accounts; everything that I paid for refreshment is included in the sheriff's account.

1015. Now, in ward No. 3, there is a sum of 144*l*. 5*s*. 9*d*. for ward committee room; that is a very large sum, is it not ?—May I ask what it is for ?

1016. The item is this, "Ward No. 3, ward committee room, 144*l*. 5*s*. 9*d*."—No, sir, that is nothing large. You will find the items further on in the account. The first sheet is a mere summary. You see there are two managers there, 58*l*. 12*s*.

1017. The first name I see is "Stanley, 33*l*. 12*s*." —Yes, he is a solicitor.

1018. For how many days was he employed ?—For eight days.

1019. Were none of these voters, card writers, check clerks, poll keepers, messengers, and so on ?—Not that I am aware of. I inquired of them all whether they were voters, and you have the name of every person included amongst those clerks.

1020. You say the 4*l*. 4*s*. a day is the agent's fee ?—When they are professional men.

1021. Then the next manager is Mr. Buttifant; at what rate was he paid ?—I do not know that it was at any particular rate; it was a fixed sum of 25*l*. that I gave him.

1022. And what did these other men have each, people called writers, check clerks, and so on ?—Some of them a guinea a day, and some of them half-a-guinea.

1023. Was that 33*l*. 12*s*. the only payment made to Mr. Stanley ?—No, he would have a part of some other items in this account. That account I have now handed in, and it will show what I paid him. He would probably pay some of his own messengers in the ward himself, and I should give him the money for that purpose, so that I should actually hand over to him more than the 33*l*. 12*s*.

1024. Have you an account from him, item by item ?—Yes, I have it there. You will find it in the third ward.

1025. Is it your belief that no further payments were made to any of these managers than those which are given in the schedule ?—I have no doubt about it at all.

1026. That there was or was not more money given to them ?—That they had no more money than that mentioned.

1027. Not from any quarter ?—Not that I am aware of.

1028. Are you aware that Mr. Stanley took any active part himself in the working of this election, beyond being in the committee room to which he was appointed ?—No, I am not aware of it.

1029. Do you know whether he had anything to do with looking after the people out of doors ?—I do not know. I think very likely he would go out in the course of the day.

1030. Is he a very keen politician and a very zealous man ?—He is. I should not have instructed him to act in the ward if he had not been.

SECOND DAY.

J. C. Chittock.

20 Aug. 1869.

1031. Have you ever heard of his taking any steps in getting a mob together on the nomination day or at any other time?—No.

1032. You are quite certain of that?—Quite certain of it.

1033. Do you know whether he was present at the nomination?—I know he was. I saw him there.

1034. You were there yourself, were you?—Yes.

1035. Was it a very turbulent proceeding?—It was; because there were too many persons trying to get into a small building.

1036. When they got inside, was it a very disorderly meeting?—They were so crushed that they would be sure to be disorderly; they always are.

1037. Was any payment made in order to protect your people that went there?—None whatever.

1038. Was any payment made to him for attending there?—None whatever.

1039. Do you know anything about the state of the constituency with regard to the former elections in this city?—No.

1040. But you have been in the city for some years?—Yes; but I did not trouble myself about it. I was not interested in the matter at all.

1041. Not in any capacity at all?—Except as a voter.

1042. Were you not aware as a voter that there were a considerable number of persons who were reputed to be corruptible?—No.

1043. You knew nothing whatever about it?—I knew nothing whatever about it, and did not trouble myself about it.

1044. Do you mean to say that you lived in Norwich without being aware that previous elections had been conducted at considerable expense and under a suspicion of the grossest bribery?—I was not aware of it.

1045. Do you mean to say that you do not believe it?—I do not believe anything at all about it. Of course I was aware that there was bribery, because a Liberal member was turned out for bribery some years ago in Norwich, and I have no doubt bribery was committed or else he would not have been turned out.

1046. Are you not aware that at every election there are a number of voters waiting to be bought, and that it is perfectly notorious in the city and everywhere else that that is so?—I am not aware of it.

1047. Have you heard of it?—I have heard of it here.

1048. Have you heard of it before?—You asked me whether I am aware that at other elections that was so, and I say I have not heard it at all before.

1049. Have you not heard that that is the reputation of the electors of this city?—I have not heard of it, and I believe some elections have been conducted in Norwich as pure as anywhere else.

1050. Can you give me the date of one of those pure elections in Norwich?—You are asking me as to my belief.

1051. Yes, I am asking you to give me the date of an election which you believe to be a pure one?—I do not know anything about the bribery, because I was not interested in the matter at all; but I should imagine that when Lewis and Forlonge were down here there was no bribery; but I really do not know, there might have been, but I know nothing about it.

1052. But in the inquiries which you made in prosecuting this canvass you must have become acquainted with the character of the constituency?—I made no inquiries about it.

1053. Has nothing been told you about the state of the constituency?—No.

1054. Has it not been told you that there were many hundreds of voters doubtful or open to persuasion?—I have no doubt that a great many were open to persuasion, but I have not been told that they were open to bribery.

1055. Has no representation been made to you by persons better versed in the constituency than yourself that there are a number of persons open to bribery?—I am satisfied that there are a number of persons open to bribery from what I have heard on these recent inquiries.

1056. Has it not come to your knowledge while you have been conducting this election for Sir Henry Stracey that there are many hundred voters in this city who are open to bribery?—It has not come to my knowledge that there are many hundred voters open to bribery.

1057. That there are some open?—No doubt there are some open.

1058. Have you heard of any individual open to bribery?—No.

1059. Not of one?—I have heard of one in this way; I heard the names mentioned on the inquiry, but beyond that I do not know of any.

1060. Of your own knowledge do you know of no person in Norwich who is reputed to be open to a bribe?—Of my own knowledge I do not know of one.

1061. You have never been told of one?—The only ones I have been told of are those I have heard of here.

1062. Have you heard of men suspected of it?—I have not heard of any suspected of it.

1063. I suppose in your canvassing books there are a certain number of men marked doubtful, are there not?—I never saw those canvassing books until after the election.

1064. When promises are taken and duly made into lists, are there not also some persons who are noted as being doubtful voters?—I do not think there are any marked doubtful voters.

1065. But is it not the case in all elections when you are trying to ascertain the feeling of the constituency that there are a number of persons who are certain and others who are doubtful?—No doubt that is so.

1066. In your canvass books there are a great number of doubtful voters?—Not in the canvass books.

1067. Are you in possession of any documents which inform you of the number of doubtful voters in the city?—None at all, and it is impossible to tell.

1068. (Mr. Biron.) Are these the only canvass books you have?—The only ones I have.

1069. Do you know how many votes are marked for Sir Henry Stracey in these?—I do not suppose there is a great number.

1070. Would it surprise you to be told that there are not a hundred votes marked for Sir Henry Stracey in these books which you say are the whole of the canvass books?—I have not said that.

1071. We asked you for them and you said you had produced them?—I said I would give you all I had.

1072. You told us we had got them; you produced them and said "Here they are"?—You certainly misunderstood me then; I never said they were the whole of the canvass books that had been used.

1073. You know perfectly well what impression you intended to convey and did convey?—I never intended to convey the impression that they were the whole of the canvass books used.

1074. You were asked how you got at the number of voters, how your marked register was made up, and you said it was made up from returns which you received from your managers in each ward, their returns being framed from the canvass books. We asked you for the returns of the managers, and you handed them in. We then asked you for the canvass books from which those returns were made up, and you said, "I produce them, and here they "are"?—I said, "I produce all I have." I have never had any others.

1075. Who kept them?—The ward managers will be able to explain if they had any others, and if so where they are.

1076. Where did you get those from?—When the papers were brought down to my office from the central committee room after the election those books were among the papers, and I brought them; I have no others.

1077. But you know where the others are?—I do not.

1078. Did you inquire?—I did not.

1079. Can you tell to which ward those canvass books refer?—I have not looked.

1080. Have you read your subpœna?—I have.

1081. Do you not know that you were subpœnaed to produce the canvass books and all the papers relating to the inquiry?—I am aware of it.

1082. Have you made any inquiry as to where the papers are?—I searched everywhere in my office. I not only directed my clerk to do so but I have done it myself, and I have been unable to find any others.

1083. (Mr. Mansfield.) Did you make no inquiry from these gentleman at the heads of the wards who had them in their custody; did you not send to them for them?—I directed all the ward agents to return to me all the papers they had to the central committee rooms immediately after the election.

1084. Immediately after you received that subpœna?—No; immediately after the election.

1085. After you received this subpœna did you take any steps to make the chairmen of these committee rooms return these books to you?—I have not been to the chairmen of the wards.

1086. It is your business to get those books?—Well, it did not occur to me to go to them. I do not suppose they have any.

1087. (Mr. Dowdeswell.) You have become the agent for the Conservative party in this city?—For the conduct of the last election.

1088. Who was the person that acted before in that capacity?—Mr. Atkinson and Mr. Buttifant, I think, conducted the previous election.

1089. And you had acted under them?—I had been engaged for, I think, four days in one of the wards.

1090. Acting as manager for Sir Henry Stracey for this election, did you take any trouble to make yourself acquainted with the nature of the constituency?—I had no time to make myself acquainted with it; my instructions were given so shortly before the election, and the register was a perfectly new one.

1091. Although the register in part was perfectly a new one half of it you knew was old?—I supposed about 4,000 or 5,000 out of the 12,000 actual voters on the register would be old.

1092. Did you not know there were 5,900?—Yes.

1093. You could ascertain the character of those 5,900 which would constitute a considerable portion of the community with which you had to deal?—Yes; somewhat under half.

1094. Do you mean to say, acting for Sir Henry Stracey, that unless you knew the character of the constituency you would not take the trouble to make yourself acquainted with it?—The only way in which I endeavoured to make myself acquainted with it was by means of the slight canvass which I have spoken of.

1095. How came you to be employed, if you knew nothing about the constituency before?—Because I was the registration agent.

1096. How long had you been the registration agent of the party about which you knew nothing?—This is my second year, therefore I could only have been agent a few months.

1097. For what party were you agent?—The Conservative party.

1098. Having been the registration agent for the Conservative party, do you mean to say that previously to your employment by Sir Henry Stracey you had taken no steps to make yourself acquainted with the constituency?—I did not, and for this reason, when we went through the registration, we had the first of the new lists under the Reform Act. I went through the lists with Mr. Ray, who is the agent on the other side, and we both agreed that it was impossible to tell who would be Conservative and who would be Liberal; therefore there was very little done in the registration, merely objecting to paupers and defaulters, and that sort of thing.

1099. Have you been the registration agent under the old register?—No.

1100. But you had the means of ascertaining what was the state of at least one half of the constituency?—I had nothing more than the old poll books; I could have looked at them.

1101. But with regard to the nature of the constituency, when you became the agent of the Conservative party, and therefore were likely to be employed in any election, as you were ultimately employed, do you mean to say that you were utterly ignorant of the nature of the constituency?—I mean to say that I had made no inquiries as to the nature of the constituency.

1102. Did you not make any inquiries merely because you had heard sufficient to make you acquainted with it?—That was not the reason.

1103. But was it the fact that you knew so much about the constituency that it was not necessary for you to make any inquiries about it?—It was not the fact; it did not occur to me to make any inquiries.

1104. Do you really mean to tell me that you being the Conservative agent, with the probability of becoming the solicitor for Sir Henry Stracey, as you knew you would most likely be, at any election which took place, and having been the Conservative agent in the revision, that under those circumstances you thought it wholly immaterial what the character of the constituency was with which you were about to deal?—I thought it wholly immaterial until I should be instructed to act in the matter.

1105. But you thought you would be employed?—No, I did not.

1106. Having been the Conservative agent, you knew when you became agent for the Conservatives at the last revision that an election was imminent, did you not?—Undoubtedly.

1107. By whom were you appointed Conservative agent?—I cannot say who proposed me; there was a registration committee, and I presume they consulted as to who should be their agent, and they asked me if I would accept it.

1108. You were paid for it?—Well, I cannot say that I have been at present.

1109. Do you mean to say that you do not know who are to pay you for it?—I do say so.

1110. Have you never been paid to the present moment?—I have never been paid.

1111. Do you really mean that you do not know who are the persons who are to be your clients in the matter?—I can tell you this, although I must say I am being treated as if I were telling you that which is absolutely untrue, while at the same time I am telling, or endeavouring to tell you that which is not untrue.

1112. I may tell you that you are stating that which to my mind is incredible?—However incredible it may be it is perfectly true.

1113. Do you mean to say that you had not known or had not heard that there was a considerable portion of the old constituency which was corruptible?—I had not.

1114. Had never heard it?—I do not mean to tell you that I had not heard that there was never any corruption in the city, but when you asked me if I had heard of a considerable portion, I say I had not heard of a considerable portion.

1115. Do you know that there was some portion which was corrupt?—I have no doubt of it.

1116. What portion?—I have never made inquiry

SECOND DAY.

J. C. Chittock.

20 Aug. 1869.

to ascertain what portion, and for this very good reason, that we never intended to corrupt them.

1117. But you know it is not because you never intended to corrupt that a person in your situation would not look after a constituency, but you would look after it for the purpose of ascertaining whether anybody else corrupted them; did you do that as part of your duty?—I did not, because I had not the opportunity. I had not time.

1118. But you had been acting in the registration?—Yes.

1119. And you must have been acting in the registration before the month of July?—Yes, I think it was in June when I took it.

1120. Now, having been the agent in July, and having acted in the registration from the month of July down to the month of November, and having gone through the revision, it being part of the duty of an agent to ascertain the nature of the constituency with which he has to deal for the purpose of seeing that they are not corrupted by his antagonists, do you mean to say that you, being so utterly ignorant of this constituency, yet undertook the duties of Conservative agent?—I mean to say I did all it was possible to do in fourteen days, that being about the time I had to do it.

1121. But you knew you were likely to be employed before, did you not?—I never made the slightest preparation for it.

1122. But you had been appointed Conservative agent?—I had been appointed registration agent undoubtedly.

1123. Having been employed by Sir Henry Stracey, did you put yourself in communication with Mr. Atkinson upon the subject of the nature of the constituency with which you had to deal, and with which he had had to deal at prior elections?—I did not.

1124. Did you think it convenient not to do so?—I did not think anything at all about it. I thought I should be able to do it myself without asking Mr. Atkinson's assistance. My instructions were to conduct the election as well as it could be conducted within the short period we had to conduct it, and to spend nothing but that which would be allowed by the sheriff.

1125. Did you not consider it part of your duty to see that your antagonists did not corrupt any portion of the constituency?—I did not.

1126. You did not consider that any part of your duty as representing the candidate at the election?—I did not consider that my time would be profitably employed in that way, because I had more than I could do otherwise.

1127. What were you doing?—Well, there were many things to do in connexion with the election. In the first place we had about two meetings a day, at which Sir Henry Stracey attended.

1128. What was the object of the meetings? Was it not to discuss the constituency with which you had to deal, and everything about it?—To address the electors.

1129. Do you mean to say that the meetings were merely for the purpose of addressing the electors?—Those meetings were.

1130. Had you not also private meetings for the purpose of managing, and arranging, and seeing that the election was properly conducted?—No, the only meeting of that sort was the meeting when I was asked to conduct the election.

1131. Did you not consult with some persons of influence amongst your party for the purpose of arranging those things?—Undoubtedly.

1132. And protecting the interest of the gentleman whom you represented?—Undoubtedly there were gentlemen who came to the central committee room, and I do not say I did not speak to them.

1133. Did they not caution you that there was a likelihood of a portion of the constituency being corrupted?—No, they did not, because they knew very well that it was intended to fight the election without spending money.

1134. Yes, but did you not know that money might be spent on the other side? Do you mean to state that you knew so little about the conduct of an election as to suppose that it was wholly unnecessary for an agent to take any precautions against malpractices by the antagonists?—I have no doubt whatever that if there had been anything of the sort we should have had plenty of information brought to us.

1135. Then you believe there was no malpractice of any sort or kind on the other side?—I mean to say I had no information brought to me of it.

1136. But did you make no inquiry about it?—I did not, because after the election Mr. Skipper took the management.

1137. But during the time that the election was going on, and preparations were being made for it, when bribery would take place if it took place at all, do you mean to say that you never took any precautions to see that bribery should not be committed?—I took no precautions, because I did not expect that there would be any.

1138. Did you not fear that there might?—I did not fear that there would be bribery.

1139. You did not fear it at all?—No.

1140. Had not your employer given you instructions that you should be careful that there should be no bribery?—He told me that he would not spend a penny that would not be allowed upon a scrutiny; he said he would not spend one penny for any illegal purpose.

1141. That he would not allow that?—No.

1142. Did he not also tell you to guard as far as you possibly could against anybody doing that which might imperil his election?—Undoubtedly he did in every way he could.

1143. Now when your employer told you to take precautions against any acts which might imperil his election, did you not understand that your employer thought that there were persons who might be operated upon?—I did not understand anything at all of the sort. I understood this, that he wished me to conduct the election without spending any money for any illegal purposes, and therefore I instructed every person who I appointed as agent that they should not allow any money to be spent at any public houses, and should not allow any money to be spent for any illegal purposes.

1144. Did he not also tell you to take precautions to guard against its being done by your antagonists?—He did not give me those instructions.

1145. May I ask who originally spoke to you about conducting the election for Sir Henry Stracey?—Mr. Cross, who was a surgeon, came to my office and asked me to go to Sir Samuel Bignold's, where Sir Henry Stracey then was.

1146. Is he a very active person in this city in electioneering matters?—When the election was on he was, at least he was during the last election; I cannot say that I have ever seen him acting before.

1147. Did he send you over to Sir Henry Stracey?—He went with me.

1148. Did he tell you that he was acting in concert with a number of other gentleman to secure the return of Sir Henry Stracey?—He did not.

1149. Was there no deputation to Sir Henry Stracey to ask him to sit for the city?—I have heard there were some deputations.

1150. What did you hear about the deputations?—I heard that some members of the Eldon Club went to Sir Henry Stracey at Rackheath.

1151. What is the Eldon Club?—The Eldon Club is a Conservative club.

1152. Is it a club in this city?—It is.

1153. Who were the persons that you heard went from the Eldon Club?—Mr. Hulme was one.

1154. Is he the chairman?—He is the chairman; I have not the names of the people.

1155. You may not have the names, but you know the principal men of the Eldon Club do you not, you being the Conservative agent?—I know several of them.

1156. A good many of them?—No, I do not know many of them.

1157. Just give me some of the principal members of this Eldon Club?—There is Mr. Hulme the chairman, then Mr. Allen, a surgeon, Mr. Penrice. I do not know whether Sir Samuel Bignold is a member, I think he is; he was a member of the Eldon Club a few years ago. I should think it may be three or four years ago since I went there, and at that time he was a member of the club.

1158. Is Mr. Arthur Bignold a member?—I am not aware that he is.

1159. Do you believe that he is?—I have no belief upon the subject, I do not know.

1160. Who else?—I know that Mr. Thirkettle, who is a confectioner, is a member, or was.

1161. How many members of the club are there altogether?—I do not know.

1162. Who was it that employed you on the part of the Conservatives to conduct the registration?—Well, I cannot name anyone in particular, it is very difficult to tell you any particular person who employed me to do it. Probably if I had been employed by any person I should have sent in an account; but I think Mr. Field was one.

1163. Would you act in that capacity without knowing who employed you?—The registration has been generally paid for by subscriptions.

1164. I am not speaking about paying, but I am asking you who gave you instructions, and with whom did you communicate when you got the appointment?—I think Mr. Field was the gentleman who mentioned it to me, and Mr. Utten Browne also mentioned it.

1165. Because those two gentlemen mentioned it to you, am I to understand that you thereupon acted?—Other gentlemen mentioned it also; Mr. Gilman mentioned it to me.

1166. I want to know who retained you?—The retainer is more an honourable than a legal one.

1167. Then you say there is a retainer. I want to know who gave you that honourable retainer?—Well, I should say Mr. Field, Mr. Utten Browne, Mr. Gilman, and I think Mr. Hulme also was one.

1168. Then you had a meeting, had you, for that purpose?—No.

1169. Did they come to you in a body?—No, they did not. I believe they had a meeting amongst themselves.

1170. Did some one communicate to you the result of that meeting?—Yes, that was it.

1171. By letter?—No, verbally.

1172. Who communicated it to you first?—I believe Mr. Field was the first gentleman.

1173. How long have you been a solicitor?—Since 1862.

1174. In this city?—Yes.

1175. Were you articled in this city?—Yes.

1176. How long were you under articles in this city?—Five years.

1177. To whom were you articled?—Mr. Dye.

1178. Was he a gentleman of considerable practice in this city?—Not very large practice while I was with him. He had nearly retired from business.

1179. But he had been in considerable practice?—He had been.

1180. And you have been in considerable practice since you started, I suppose?—Not very considerable.

1181. "Considerable," I said; or have you been in no practice at all?—I have been in practice.

1182. Considerable?—I do not call it a considerable practice.

1183. A fair practice?—A fair practice.

1184. Having been for the whole of that period in this city, do you mean to tell us that you were not aware of or had not heard the common report that at the elections which have occurred during that interval corrupt practices had extensively prevailed in this city?—I was not aware of it.

1185. I asked you whether you had heard of it or were aware of it?—Neither the one nor the other.

1186. You were a voter?—I was a voter.

1187. You took an interest in politics?—Very little.

1188. Some, I suppose?—Just as much interest as would enable me to go up to the poll.

1189. You canvassed, I suppose?—No.

1190. You had only sufficient interest in politics to enable you to go to the poll?—Quite sufficient for that.

1191. Being a man who took such little interest in politics, you were the person selected to represent the Conservatives at their revision?—Precisely so.

1192. I asked you what you did after you were appointed, and you gave me an answer. Have you charged and been paid by Sir Henry Stracey the sum of 262*l.* 10*s.* for doing what you have described?—I was paid by Sir Henry Stracey 262*l.* 10*s.* for conducting his election.

1193. And doing that which you have described to me as having been done by you?—I have not told you everything that has been done at the election.

1194. I asked you what you did?—I gave you one portion of it.

1195. I should like to know the whole of what you did for 262*l.* 10*s.*?—It would be impossible for me now to tell you everything that I did in connexion with that election. Where there is a constituency of over 13,000 on the lists there must be a very large staff employed, and that it takes an immense deal of time to keep them at work.

1196. I find that there were messengers, clerks, and so on, the charge for whom amounts to a very considerable sum, very nearly in the whole 1,000*l.* exclusive of this 1,700*l.*?—I did not suggest that that sum included the clerks. I had to direct that staff.

1197. For sixteen days?—Precisely so; and after the election there is a considerable time occupied. There is the staff to pay; there are the accounts to make out for the sheriff; they have to be advertised; and there are many things to do after the election.

1198. There are some things to do after the election, but they are trumpery matters compared with the conduct of the election, you know?—You asked me what I had to do for that money, and I have told you.

1199. Do you mean to tell me that really you think that as an agent for conducting an election it is not the first duty of the agent to ascertain whether there is any corrupt agency going on against his candidate and to guard against it?—I did not take any steps to do it, because I had a sufficient staff all round the city in all the wards for legitimate purposes, so that I should imagine if they heard anything of the sort they would immediately report to me. I should not employ a separate staff for that purpose.

1200. But then you did take measures to guard against that, did you not?—I had better say no at once, and then I will give you an explanation.

1201. You may give us any explanation?—I took no further measures than my opponents did.

1202. I am not speaking of your opponents, but merely of what you did?—I employed no staff for that purpose at all.

1203. Did you give instructions to your staff?—I did not anticipate any corrupt practices, therefore I gave no special instructions; but as a matter of business, I am aware that they would report any corrupt practice to me that they heard of.

1204. Did not your employers guard you against any corrupt practice being committed on your side?—Only in the way I have already mentioned to you.

1205. Did you appoint the staff, or who appointed it?—I appointed the staff, except, as I have mentioned to you, that I gave special instructions upon one occasion.

SECOND DAY.

20 Aug. 1869.

1206. Who recommended the staff to you ?—As soon as my central rooms were open I had an immense number of applications.

1207. The more applications you had the more embarrassed you would be, unless you had somebody who could guide you in the selection of your staff? —Undoubtedly many of them would bring a recommendation. I inquired if they were voters, and if I was satisfied that they were not, and that they were suitable for my purpose, then I employed them.

1208. You know the third ward of the city ?—Yes.

1209. And you know who your manager there was ?—I do.

1210. Who recommended him ? You say they were recommended ?—I cannot tell you who recommended him. I can only tell you in this way : that there was a meeting as soon as I opened my central rooms, and I invited those present to suggest to me the names of persons for managers of the different wards, and if I thought they were suitable for that purpose I would appoint them.

1211. Who were present at that meeting ?—I kept no account of those who were present. I should think there were present at that meeting 100.

1212. Who were the most active persons ?—Mr. Patteson was the most active man. He was chairman.

1213. Was Mr. Stracey there ?—I believe not.

1214. Was Mr. Bignold there ?—I believe not.

1215. Reflect ?—I will not undertake to swear to that which I do not know.

1216. But what do you believe ?—My belief would be that he was not there, because I do not recollect seeing him there.

1217. Was Sir Samuel Bignold there ?—I believe he was not, because if he had been there he would have been in the chair.

1218. Do you know Buttifant ?—Yes, he is one of the agents in No. 3.

1219. And is Stanley one ?—Those are the two.

1220. Were they recommended to you because they had been conversant with matters at prior elections ? —Mr. Buttifant was the person who was recommended for the ward.

1221. On the ground that he was conversant with the conduct of prior elections ?—He had formerly been registration agent, and he had also partly conducted an election, I believe.

1222. Was he not selected for that cause ?—No, there was no reason given.

1223. You knew that was the fact ?—I had no doubt that that was the reason.

1224. With regard to Stanley, had he been engaged in the conduct of a prior election ?—I cannot say whether he had been engaged as a sub-agent the same as I had been myself, but never otherwise.

1225. Was he engaged by you, judging of the capacity of the men, on the ground that he had been employed upon a prior election ?—No, he was not recommended at that meeting at all.

1226. When was he recommended ?—He was not recommended at all. Mr. Buttifant, as my recollection serves me, was recommended for the third ward, and no other person. Mr. Buttifant thought the entire ward would be too large for him, and he applied for some assistance. He required a second, and I wanted to fill the place up. I knew Stanley was a Conservative, and being a solicitor, a man of business, I thought he would be able to take charge of it.

1227. And a person engaged in elections before ?—I am not aware.

1228. In judging of the aptitude of a man, particularly for electioneering business, which we know almost becomes a "profession," did you not inquire whether Mr. Stanley was not competent for that business ?—My impression was that he had been engaged like myself as a sub-agent ; therefore, I made no minute inquiries.

1229. I asked you before whether you did not take precautions against any mal-practices. If you did not make the inquiries yourself, did you abstain from making those inquiries because you felt you had such competent men as Stanley and Buttifant and some others with you ?—I had no reason for abstaining from making inquiries further than as I have already said.

1230. You must be aware that at many elections detectives have been employed to prevent anything being done irregularly on the part of your adversary ? —I do not know that there have been detectives employed.

1231. Throughout the country, I mean ?—I have no experience of that.

1232. Have you never heard that persons have been employed in the capacity of detectives to prevent corrupt practices on the part of the opponents at elections ?—The only intimation of the sort that I had would be a bill which I saw posted up, I think, in Norwich, offering some reward for information as to any person who had received any bribe ; therefore, from that I supposed that there was some society employed for the purpose.

1233. Do you not know that persons are employed at elections by those who represent and guard the interests of the candidates to prevent corrupt practices on the part of their opponents ?—I think it is very probable, but I do not know it.

1234. But are you not aware that it is a common thing ?—I am not aware that it is a common thing.

1235. That it is done sometimes then ?—I do not know positively that it is.

1236. Not positively ?—I assure you I do not require to be reminded in that way. It is perfectly unnecessary.

1237. It is very painful for me to speak to you in this tone.—It is perfectly unnecessary.

1238. I cannot sit here and hear what you say without being struck with very considerable incredulity.—I am sorry it should be so ; but at the same time what I have said I have said, and I shall alter nothing.

1239. That a man who stands in your position and one of your experience should be what you represent in these things is incredible.—I cannot alter anything I have said.

1240. I was in hopes that we should have had the fullest information from a person in your respectable position.—Everything I have said is perfectly true ; therefore I shall not alter a word of it.

1241. You were applied to by the Secretary of this Commission for the canvass books, were you not ? —Yes.

1242. You knew that it was of great importance to this city that this inquiry should be conducted as speedily and as effectually as it could be ?—Yes.

1243. You had possession of those books, had you not ; these very books which you now produce, at all events, and the returns ?—Undoubtedly I had.

1244. And those were pointed out by the subpœna which you received ?—Yes ; and I have produced them upon that subpœna.

1245. When were you first applied to by the Secretary for those papers ?—I have not the date, but I should say more than a fortnight ago. It may be more than three weeks ago.

1246. Was it not more than a month ago ?—I won't undertake to say.

1247. You knew that they were of importance for the inquiry which was about to take place, and you were told so by the Secretary, were you not ?—Certainly. I believe that you required them or you would not have summoned me to produce them.

1248. Did not the clerk attend upon you several times and press you for the production of them ?—He did, and he also heard me instruct my clerk to search for them, and if he could find them to let Mr. Secker have them.

1249. Did you tell your clerk to search for them?—I did.

1250. Immediately?—I told him in Mr. Secker's presence to do it.

1251. Did he report to you immediately what he had done?—My clerk reported that he could not find them.

1252. The clerk reporting to you that he could not find them, they are nevertheless found in your possession, are they not?—They are.

1253. Did you yourself when the clerk reported to you that he could not find them take a single step personally for the purpose of producing that which is now produced?—After I was served with a subpœna I told my clerk I must have every bundle in the office searched, and he did search again.

1254. And when did you find them?—They were found, I should think, five or six days ago.

1255. Did you, immediately you found them, send them down to the Secretary?—I kept them, in order that I might obey my subpœna and produce them here.

1256. Do you mean to say that the Secretary having told you that it was of the greatest importance that he should have them for the purpose of summoning witnesses and ascertaining who were to be summoned, you thought it was your duty to keep them in your hands for the purpose of producing them?—For the purpose of obeying the subpœna I was compelled to do so.

1257. You mean really to represent that you considered that to be your duty?—I mean to say that reading my subpœna I considered that it was my duty to produce those papers here.

1258. And did you not think it was your duty to go down and inform the Secretary that you had got them?—That is no part of my duty.

1259. But you knew it was of the very greatest importance to save expense to this city that the Secretary should know they were there, did you not?—If any person had come from the Secretary to ask me if I had got them, I should have informed him.

1260. Had not the clerk come repeatedly to your office for the purpose of ascertaining whether you had found them, and did not you tell him that you had not?—I had not found them when he came.

1261. When you did find them five days ago, did you take any step to inform the Secretary or the clerk who were in this town that you had found them?—I did not,

1262. Do you call that assisting this Commission, and saving the city expense?—It is of no assistance, certainly, my not informing them that I had found them; it was no assistance. If I had not been served with a subpœna to produce them I should have sent them. I had already told Mr. Secker that if they were found, as soon as they were found he should have them.

1263. Having told Mr. Secker that immediately they were found he should have them, and having found them five days ago, and made that promise, did you perform your promise?—Mr. Secker had treated me in a different way. If Mr. Secker had relied upon that, he would have had them as soon as they were found; but I was served with a subpœna to produce them here, and I obeyed the subpœna.

1264. Had not Mr. Secker asked for them in July?—That would be last month.

1265. In July, when he first came?—You said a month, and I said I would not undertake to say that it was not a month ago.

1266. I ask you whether the course of canvassing was not to make out canvass books and give them to persons?—In some of the wards, in the third ward in particular, I believe it was so.

1267. Was it in no other ward?—I won't undertake to say. I have made inquiries of three agents. I inquired of Mr. Hulme, the second ward agent, he told me he made none of those books out. I inquired of Mr. Page, the first ward agent, he told me he had not. I inquired of Mr. Stockings, the fifth ward agent, and he told me he had none.

1268. Then there was a canvass?—There was an irregular canvass.

1269. Regular or irregular there was a canvass?—There was a canvass.

1270. The object of that was to ascertain what was your strength relatively to your opponents?—Undoubtedly, as far as it could extend.

1271. You were superintending the whole of the proceedings and the canvass, which is the most important part of them?—One of the most important parts.

1272. What is more important than the canvass?—I should consider in so short a space of time that the meetings which the candidate attended to address the electors would be more important than the canvass.

1273. But that is the candidate, that is not you, the agent. You have only to make arrangements for the meeting. What could be more important for you, the agent conducting and by every means in your power promoting the candidate's election, than to secure that the voters should be canvassed and that some certain information should be given you respecting the result of that canvass? Would anything be more important for you as the agent?—I considered the other part was equally important; but at the same time you will bear in mind that the information conveyed to me as to the canvass is all contained on those cards which are filed, and not in those books, because those books would not come before me at all.

1274. Were these books never returned to you at all?—They were returned, but I am speaking of the conduct of the election.

1275. Where there were canvass books were they not returned to you?—I cannot say where they were. Those were returned to me, and therefore in that particular instance that was so.

1276. You would see the canvass books which would be returned to the central committee room and take charge of them?—No.

1277. Who would take charge of them?—These papers would be returned to the central committee rooms, and the books you now refer to would not be returned until after the election was over, with sundry papers from the wards, whatever they might be.

1278. You say that those returns were made?—Those returns were made.

1279. I see they are on the file.—They are; I have no doubt they were put on the file by the clerk who marked off on the register.

1280. They were amongst the papers relating to the election, were they not?—Yes.

1281. Obvious to sight if you searched for them?—Those papers were returned from the central rooms to an upper room in my office.

1282. They have been in your custody ever since?—They have been in my custody undoubtedly.

1283. Ever since?—They have been in my custody in an upper room.

1284. Where you put the papers which related to the election?—Where all the bundles and old papers were kept, relating not only to the election but to other matters.

1285. And that was the place where you knew such papers would be put?—Undoubtedly.

1286. Well now, having received an application a month ago for the returns, did it occur to you to send your clerk to the upper room and hunt out those papers?—That is the place he did search. I told him to search amongst the election papers for these returns and the canvass books, and he reported to me that he had not been able to find them.

1287. Did you yourself go up into this room where you knew all the papers were relating to this matter?—I did not.

SECOND DAY.

J. C. Chittock.

20 Aug. 1869.

1288. Why did you not?—Because I considered that if I directed my clerk to do it, it was sufficient.

1289. You were so desirous of facilitating the inquiry that you did not even go up into that room where you knew they ought to be, and where they were, for the purpose of producing them?—My clerk knew that equally well with myself.

1290. When your clerk could not find them did you yourself take any steps to find them?—No, because I thought they were never returned to my office; that these particular papers were never returned.

1291. Then how came they ultimately to be found?—Because they were not conveyed down to my private house by myself after the election was over.

1292. No doubt; but you thought they were altogether gone. How came they to be found? You said these were found on one particular file. How came those also to be found when you thought you had nothing in your possession?—I can give no further explanation. I was not present when they were found. I daresay my clerk, if he had been as diligent as he ought to have been when he received my instructions, would have found them.

1293. Mr. Stracey was very active on behalf of his father?—Mr. Stracey was.

1294. Was he active during almost every day after you were appointed?—I won't say every day, but he was very frequently.

1295. Was he canvassing?—I have no doubt he did canvass. I did not actually see him, but I have no doubt he did.

1296. You know Hardiment?—Yes.

1297. He had been a client of yours?—He had.

1298. Did you see him and Mr. Stracey canvassing together?—I did not.

1299. Did you know they were canvassing together?—I heard it afterwards. I won't say when I heard it, whether it was during or after the election, but I have heard that they did canvass together.

1300. How many days were they canvassing together?—I should say not more than one.

1301. Upon what day was that?—That I cannot say.

1302. Did you see Hardiment on the day of the election?—I have no recollection of seeing him on the day of the election.

1303. You know from what occurred afterwards, your seeing Hardiment on the day of the election would not be a matter of which your memory would be oblivious. Is your memory so frail on that subject?—My memory is very good.

1304. You can tell me whether you saw him then. Your memory having been called to it so soon after the election as it was on the trial before Mr. Baron Martin, you can tell me?—Amongst the hundreds of people I saw on the day of the election I cannot undertake to say whether I saw Hardiment.

1305. Hardiment was a very active man on your side, was he not?—With the exception of what I have heard as to his share in the bribery, I am not aware that he was more active than a number of other persons in the different wards.

1306. Was Mr. Bignold very active in the election, Arthur Bignold?—Certainly not.

1307. Did he take no part in the election?—He did.

1308. When did Mr. Arthur Bignold begin to take an active part in the election?—He attended one or two of the public meetings in the evenings, and addressed the electors, the same as other gentlemen who were there.

1309. He took an active part in promoting the interest of Sir Henry Stracey?— Undoubtedly, in that way he did.

1310. Did Mr. Arthur Bignold remain in Norwich the whole of the time during the canvass before the election?—I cannot say that. I saw him at two or three meetings; and I do not suppose they would be on consecutive nights.

1311. Did you hear of him going up to town and coming back from town?—I never heard of it.

1312. Have you seen Mr. Stracey lately?—Mr. Edward Stracey?

1313. Yes.—I have seen him. I should think it must be three weeks since I saw him.

1314. Do you know where he is now?—I do not.

1315. Have you made any inquiry?—I have not. I have not been asked to do so.

1316. Have you seen Mr. Bignold lately?—Mr. Arthur Bignold, I have not.

1317. When did you happen to see him last?—I have no remembrance of having seen him since the election. I won't undertake to say that I have not, but I have no remembrance of having seen him after the election.

1318. He went away, so far as you know, immediately after the election?—So far as I know.

1319. Have you heard where he is?—I believe he lives somewhere in the neighbourhood.

1320. He does not live here?—He does not live here.

1321. He merely came down for the election, did he?—I daresay he came down for the election, or he might merely come down to see his father. I cannot say for what purpose he came. He does not generally live in Norwich.

1322. How lately before the inquiry before Mr. Baron Martin was it that you saw Hardiment?—I cannot call to mind any time when I saw him between the day of the election and the day of the inquiry before Baron Martin.

1323. He had formerly been a client of yours?—He had. I do not think I had done any business for him, I should say, for a year and a half from the present time, or two years.

1324. You have not had anything to do for him for a year and a half?—Or two years, I should say, from the present time.

1325. Then you had no occasion to communicate with him?—None whatever.

1326. Hardiment was away during the trial, was he not?—He was.

1327. Do you recollect the Monday before the inquiry before Mr. Baron Martin?—Unless you call my attention to some particular circumstance I cannot.

1328. I will. I will call your attention to a very particular fact. Did you go down to Mr. Hardiment's house in a cab at half-past 10 o'clock in the forenoon of the 28th of December?—I did not.

1329. Did you go down to Hardiment's house on any day whatever before the election inquiry?—I have never been to Mr. Hardiment's house in my life, or to his premises where his business is conducted, and I do not even know which is his house.

1330. You do not know which is Mr. Hardiment's house?—No. I state that as a fact.

1331. You will undertake to swear, will you, that you were not there at any time in your life?—I have already undertaken to swear that.

1332. Very well. You were aware shortly after the election, were you not, that Hardiment was charged with having been guilty of bribery?—I heard the general report, the same as other persons in the town.

1333. You had had the conduct of that election?—I had.

1334. Did you take any step to ascertain whether there was any foundation for that report?—I made no inquiry, and for this reason: Mr. Skipper was appointed for the purpose of ascertaining all matters connected with the supposed bribery, and therefore I left everything in his hands.

1335. But Hardiment had been a man whom you had known. Hardiment had been active in the election. Do you mean that you never took the trouble to communicate in any way with Hardiment respecting what he was alleged to have done, you being the person superintending that election, and he being a person actively connected with you ?—I do say that.

1336. Why did you not do it ?—Only for the reason which I have already given you.

1337. For no other reason ? — For no other reason.

1339. You did not attempt to make any other sort of inquiry ?—I did not. I had other business to attend to.

1340. Did Mr. Skipper, who was employed for that purpose, come and consult you ?—He came to my office once or twice.

1341. To consult you ?—Not to consult me.

1342. For what did he come if he did not come to consult you ?—He came for some information which he required, for my papers, which papers I sent him.

1343. He came for papers ?—Yes, connected with the election ; papers relating to the election.

1344. Hardiment having been your client, did not Mr. Skipper make the communication to you respecting Hardiment ?—No.

1345. Not a word passed respecting Hardiment ?—No ; Mr. Skipper's visits to me were before he commenced his inquiries.

1346. The charge respecting Hardiment was made immediately after the election, and before even the presentation of the petition ?—I won't undertake to say whether I heard anything of Hardiment's proceedings. I might probably, I won't say I did not ; but I won't undertake to say I heard anything of Hardiment's proceedings until after the petition was presented, but I might probably have done so ; but, whether I heard it or not, I made no inquiries.

1347. Did you ever see Mr. Stracey after you heard of Hardiment's proceedings ?—Mr. Edward Stracey ?

1348. Yes.—I said that I thought I saw him three weeks ago, but I did not speak to him.

1349. Long before that, and immediately after you heard of Hardiment's proceedings and you saw Mr. Stracey, did you communicate with Mr. Stracey touching Hardiment's proceedings ?—I did not.

1350. You knew he had been canvassing with Mr. Stracey ?—Yes ; when I heard of Hardiment's proceedings, whenever it was that I heard of them, they all referred to what he had done on the day of the election, and Mr. Stracey was not with Mr. Hardiment on that day.

1351. Although it is not the day on which he was canvassing with Mr. Stracey, do not you know that Mr. Stracey was with him on that day, and had you not heard that he was with him on that day at one of the houses ?—I had not heard that.

1352. Do you know Hunt, a fowl dealer ?—The only way in which I heard of Hunt and knew him was from seeing him in this Court on the trial before Baron Martin.

1353. I suppose you heard a report that Sir Henry Stracey was to be unseated for bribery ; you heard the report ?—Undoubtedly. I knew that was the groundwork of it.

1354. It was all over the city, and in everybody's mouth ?—In everybody's mouth.

1355. Did you take any steps to inquire ; the election having been conducted under your auspices, did you take any trouble to ascertain whether there was any foundation for these reports, Mr. Skipper not having been employed at that time ?—Mr. Skipper was employed immediately ; whether he was employed before the petition was actually presented or not I don't know, but we knew by the newspapers that it was to be presented.

1356. You having been responsible for the conduct of the election, did you not take any means to inquire into the foundation for any reports of that kind ?—Only to this extent, I had no instructions from Sir Henry Stracey to do anything on his behalf beyond the conduct of the election, therefore I was not authorised to expend anything on his behalf ; but I did this, I told Mr. Dawson, who was a clerk in my service during the time of the election, that I had no instructions from Sir Henry Stracey on the subject. I said, "You may send out two or three messengers "about the city, and ascertain if there has been any "bribery of any sort, and I will undertake to pay "you to the extent of 5*l.* for the men making in-"quiries, but beyond that I will pay nothing."

1357. Then you did take measures ?—To that extent.

1358. You offered 5*l.* for the purpose of ascertaining whether there had been any bribery ?—Yes, and whatever was done under that was reported by Mr. Dawson to Mr. Skipper, who was immediately afterwards appointed, and I believe Skipper paid him the 5*l.* ; I am not sure, I have not paid it.

1359. Having appointed those people and undertaken to pay 5*l.*, do you mean to say you took so little interest that you did not hear the result of those inquiries ?—Immediately after I had done that, Mr. Skipper was appointed, and I at once referred Mr. Dawson to Mr. Skipper.

1360. But as a matter of natural curiosity, you having been responsible for that, and having employed those people for the purpose of making inquiries, do you mean to say you were really so indifferent about the matter that you made no sort of inquiry as to the result ?—I did not, because Mr. Skipper was appointed for that purpose, and I left everything in his hands then ; and I told Mr. Skipper what I had done in order that he might ascertain what the result of the inquiries of those men would be.

1361. Are these books precisely in the same state in which they were found ?—I believe them to be in precisely the same state. I have no doubt about it.

1362. You have no doubt ?—I have no doubt whatever about it.

1363. Have they been in your personal custody ever since they were found ?—They have been in my office ever since.

1364. Lying about in your office ?—They were lying in the open office I have no doubt, that is to say, they have not been tied up.

1365. Have they been locked up ?—They have not been locked up, but at the same time I am positive that nobody would interfere with them. My other papers are not locked up in my office, and they are never interfered with, therefore I have not the slightest reason to suppose that these have been interfered with. If there are any erasures in them they will show themselves.

1366. There are.—Probably there may be erasures in the clerks marking them ; they would put marks in the wrong place, perhaps, and then erase them.

1367. But there are numbers of erasures in the men's names, and so on ?—That has been already explained ; I think they are double.

1368. That would be quite so in the proper course of things, but my object is to inquire whether any alteration whatever could have taken place in them by any person interested in this matter ?—I should say certainly there has been nothing of the sort.

1369. It is your duty to see that they were kept securely ?—Undoubtedly, and I have not the slightest doubt but they are in the same state now as when they left the central committee rooms.

1370. (Mr. Biron.) A word or two about this registration association ; is that an association supported by subscription ?—It should be.

1371. But is it ? do gentlemen put down their names for certain sums of money that they are to pay ?—That is not so ; there is no regular subscription, any person who subscribes to the registration one year might not do it the next year ; there is no regular subscription.

1372. But do some people or other subscribe

SECOND DAY.

every year? — Undoubtedly some one or other does.

1373. Who receives the subscriptions?—Mr. Tallack, who is at the Guardian Office at the present time, is collecting subscriptions.

1374. Is any balance sheet of the subscriptions kept, or any account rendered to the subscribers? —There was by the previous registration agent, but I have never had any account to render at present. I have never had any subscriptions. When I say I have not had any, I will not undertake to say I have not had a pound or so.

1375. Have you ever inquired how much he has received?—In the last account I have from him he told me that he had received under 25*l.* I think it was 23*l.* odd.

1376. Do I understand that no arrangement was made for you to be paid for your work?—No.

1377. Did you do it out of pure love for the cause, because, you know, you are not much of a politician, as you told us?—Well, I said I would take the registration. I undertook to do it, and I have done it.

1378. When did this zeal seize you to undertake the duties of the registration?—In 1868.

1379. Why?—I cannot say why. I was asked whether I would accept the appointment of registration agent, and I did so.

1380. But you knew there was work to do?—Undoubtedly.

1381. And good hard work too?—And good hard work.

1382. Had you no notion what pay you would receive?—I expected to be paid by subscriptions.

1383. Have you ever asked Mr. Tallack about the subscriptions? how they were coming in?—I did ask him what subscriptions he had received, and he told me they amounted to something like 23*l.*

1384. What was the subscription in 1867?—I believe the subscriptions amounted to about 70*l.* or 80*l.*, and the gentleman who then had the appointment threw it up because it would not answer his purpose.

1385. You thought you would get 70*l.* or 80*l.* at all events?—I expected to get more than that.

1386. Then you are not quite so disinterested as you wish to be thought. Why could you not tell us that before?—I was never asked the question.

1387. But you knew perfectly well what was meant; and you would have saved a great deal of trouble if you had been more frank?—I am quite ready to answer any question.

1388. Oh, yes; you are quite ready to answer questions by the card. Now when you undertook to become Sir Henry Stracey's agent for the purpose of the last election you have told us that you appointed different gentlemen under you to manage the different wards?—Yes.

1389. And you arranged in some way or another that they should get reports from people serving under them?—No, I left that to them to do.

1390. But you knew it was to be done. You seem to have done as little yourself as need be?—That is a matter of opinion.

1391. You left that to be done, and you had every reason to believe it would be done; but what were these men appointed for except for some such purpose as to get reports and see how the canvass was going on?—Well, sir, there were different duties to perform.

1392. Was not that one of the duties?—It was one of them.

1393. Then as a matter of fact these managers in the different wards in the ordinary course of the election ought to have got reports and handed them to you?—They ought to have made those reports and handed them to me, and I have produced, I believe, everyone of them.

1394. Whether we call them reports or anything else you ought to have got from them materials to let you see how the canvass was proceeding?—Yes.

1395. Did you get those materials?—Yes, and I have produced them.

1396. Did you make up the register from time to time?—Yes, or my clerk did.

1397. When did you take stock to see how your canvass had proceeded?—I have searched amongst the papers, and I find from this one, which appears to be the last which was taken,—

1398. Answer my question if you please, how did your canvass go on before you came to that? Was it a pretty good canvass?—It was not a regular canvass.

1399. But as far as it went?—As far as it went it was a favourable canvass; these are the last figures I can find, and therefore I presume they are the last.

1400. Then will you allow me to have them?—These are the figures: Russell, 1,469; Tillett, 1,310; and Stracey, 2,825. Now you see that is a very small portion of the register, but that is only a portion of the canvass.

1401. A very small portion indeed. Is that the last return you have made up?—That is only a portion of the canvass.

1402. Of course I am speaking exclusively of your canvass. That is not from an examination of these books.—I presume these numbers to be the cast of that book.

1403. Probably the last cast you made.—I do not say it is the last cast, but I should imagine it is.

1404. Probably that was made about the Saturday night previous to the election.—I should imagine it would be so.

1405. Or on the nomination day probably.—No, I should think it would be made up on the Saturday night.

1406. Did you think that was a pretty good canvass?—It was a very good canvass as far as they had been able to ask the voters.

1407. You had been about it for a fortnight?—You say a fortnight, but I had been only appointed a fortnight, and the committee rooms had not been opened at that time.

1408. They had been open long enough for you to spend 2,000*l.*?—We did not spend so much as our opponents.

1409. Never mind that, I am dealing with you if you please. The result of your canvass after ten days, according to my calculation, would make it that you had got about one voter for each pound that you expended?—Yes, if that is the way you calculate it.

1410. That is my arithmetic, and you will find it is so within a few shillings.—That was expended for the entire poll, not the canvass.

1411. With this number of men pledged, and 11,000 registered, did you go to the poll on Tuesday with any notion of winning this election?—Yes, because the majority of those who had been asked had promised to vote in favour of Sir Henry Stracey.

1412. Do you mean to represent that that was any test?—I have never said so.

1413. When you went through at the last moment that total of pledges in favour of Sir Henry Stracey, looking at the 11,000 of voting power, did you think that was a canvass such as would win you the election?—Yes.

1414. Why?—Because out of the 4,000 persons, giving the amount in round numbers, who had been asked, 2,800 had promised to vote for Sir Henry Stracey, and I call that a good canvass.

1415. I ask you as a man worth 250*l.* to conduct an election, do you call that a good canvass?—I say if we had had time to continue the canvass there is no reason why the canvass should not have continued in the same ratio.

1416. How did it go on on the Tuesday when you got to the poll; you were behind the first hour, were you not?—I cannot say without looking at the returns.

1417. Do you not remember even that?—My recollection is that we were behind.

1418. What are those figures you are looking at?—I am looking at the figures of the canvass which I have alluded to.

1419. Does that go into the different wards?—This is divided into wards.

1420. Giving the result of the canvass in the different wards?—Yes.

1421. Perhaps you will just give me those figures and I will read them. Ward No. 1 is Russell, 183; Tillett, 126; Stracey, 466. Ward No. 2, Russell, 177; Tillett, 180; Stracey, 185. Ward No. 3, Russell, 509; Tillett, 448; Stracey, 738. Ward No. 4, Russell, 83; Tillett, 54; Stracey, 153. Ward No. 5, Russell, 169; Tillett, 152; Stracey, 370. Ward No. 6, Russell, 277; Tillett, 267; Stracey, 456. Ward No. 7, Russell, 26; Tillett, 32; Stracey, 297. Ward No. 8, Russell, 45; Tillett, 51; Stracey, 160; or, in the total, 1,469 for Russell, 1,310 for Tillett, and 2,825 for Stracey.—Yes.

1422. You knew that two Liberal members had been sitting, of course you knew that much?—Yes, I did.

1423. And do you mean to tell us now that it was your opinion that you would poll two to one, because that is the result of this canvass, and you told us that it would go on in just the same ratio?—I said that was a very fair reason for my supposing that Sir Henry Stracey had a very good chance of being returned on the morning of the election.

1424. You told me that you saw no reason why the canvass should not have proceeded as it had begun?—I never supposed that we should poll two to one.

1425. That is what you said in answer to my question. That return gives two to one in favour of the Conservatives, and you told me just now that you saw no reason why the canvass should not have proceeded in the same ratio?—I believe I made some such answer, but I had no intention of saying that I believed we should poll two to one.

1426. Now, when you got to the Tuesday, just for the first hour you were behind?—Yes.

1427. Did not that rather startle you with your two to one?—You are going back again to the two to one.

1428. Did you suppose on the Saturday night you were going to win the election?—I did not suppose that the first hour would have much effect upon it.

1429. But when it came to 10 o'clock you were behind then, were you not?—Yes.

1430. Were you not still a little in doubt?—You cannot tell so early in the day, because there are a great number of working men, and so many of them would vote at noon or in their dinner hour, that I could not tell by that.

1431. You could not be absolutely certain, but were you not getting rather anxious at 10 o'clock?—I should have been much more pleased if I had seen it the other way.

1432. Did you not think the election was in jeopardy?—No more than I should imagine every election in jeopardy when you are behind.

1433. How many hundred were you behind at 10 o'clock, just tell us that?—I have not the returns here to show me.

1434. This was the first election you had conducted. You were getting a good fee for it; it was an anxious day for you, and you were doing your best for it.—I believe so.

1435. At 10 o'clock were you not beginning to feel very anxious at your being hundreds behind?—I do not say I was very anxious.

1436. Were you not anxious?—When I found we were behind I should undoubtedly be anxious.

1437. And when it got to 11 o'clock you were still behind?—Undoubtedly we were, but we were behind almost the whole day.

1438. At 12 o'clock were you not nearly 400 behind?—I believe we were.

1439. Now do you not know that at 12 o'clock if there is no underhand practice, that to be behindhand to that extent is to lose the election in the majority of cases?—If you ask me as a fact whether I know it, I say I do not know it, but if you ask me as a matter of practice that is another thing.

1440. I ask you as a matter of judgment and common sense?—As a matter of common sense the one who is behind at 12 o'clock does not stand so good a chance as the one who is in front; as a matter of common sense and judgment the one who is behind would not stand nearly so good a chance as the other.

1441. Was this a great Conservative working man's place? Was it a great place for Conservative workmen's associations?—There are no great Conservative workmen's associations here.

1442. No particular strength on the Conservative side among the working classes?—Oh yes; I believe there is a very large number of Conservative working men.

1443. I should have thought they were about equally divided?—I daresay they are.

1444. 12 o'clock would be the workmen's hour, would it not? At 1 o'clock what was your condition?—We gradually improved, I believe, after 12 o'clock.

1445. How much did you improve between 12 and 1, about thirty, was it not?—The great improvement was after 2 o'clock.

1446. But the workmen had gone back by that time?—Undoubtedly they had; those who intended to work in the afternoon had gone back.

1447. How many had polled at 1 o'clock for Sir Henry Stracey? I do not pin you to the exact figures, but give me round numbers?—I prefer to refer to the figures; there is nothing to be concealed, because you have the figures before you, therefore I have no object in concealment.

1448. That is the reason I expect you to answer the questions at once, and not to fence with the questions?—If there is nothing to be concealed there is no use in concealing or fencing. I have nothing to conceal throughout this inquiry, and I have nothing I care about concealing.

1449. Then just tell me what the numbers were at 1 o'clock?—I will not undertake to say; I do not know.

1450. Was it just over 3,000 at 1 o'clock, which left Sir Henry Stracey 600 behind Russell, and nearly 500 behind Tillett?—I do not believe it was as much as that throughout the day.

1451. Here are the figures?—Then I do not believe them.

1452. You do not believe in arithmetic perhaps?—Yes, I believe in arithmetic.

1453. In the high sheriff's arithmetic?—No.

1454. I should have thought that 250 guineas would have impressed it on your mind; at 1 o'clock the numbers according to this return were Russell 3,569, Tillett 3,463, and Stracey 2,095, that makes a majority of nearly 500 in favour of the Liberal candidates?—I imagine you must have got some incorrect figures there; I do not believe in them.

1455. Did you get the state of the poll from time to time as it went on at your central committee that day?—Yes.

1456. Have you got here, or anywhere, the figures that were returned to you?—I have not; but the figures would simply amount to a cast of the different cards for the different hours.

1457. Of course, if that is done properly by anybody who knows how to do it, it would bring out that result?—Yes, but I do not believe in that account.

1458. To take you a little further on, even at 1 o'clock, the numbers were 3,674 Russell, 3,578 Tillett, and 3,246 Stracey?—That would only be about 300 difference.

1459. Pardon me, that makes a difference of 440, or thereabouts, that Russell was ahead of Stracey, and it makes Tillett ahead between 330 and 340?—I think that must be an exaggeration. I do not think that is the result.

1460. Did you not by the time it got to 1 o'clock, with the figures I read to you just now, think the election was gone?—Of course I knew we were very much behind.

SECOND DAY.

J. C. Chittock.

20 Aug. 1869.

1461. Or, in other words, you knew that you were beaten?—At that time undoubtedly we were.

1462. What steps did you take to try to poll up?—The only steps I could take, and the only steps I did take, were that to every person I saw at the committee room or anywhere else, I said, "If there are any of "our people about who have not voted, any person "who has promised and not voted, ask him to come "up directly and vote."

1463. Where were you performing this important duty, at the central committee room?—At the central committee room, and I also went round to some of the ward committee rooms.

1464. And if you happened to see anybody you said "Pray vote, we are a trifle of 500 behind."—I did not say we were a trifle of 500 behind.

1465. Did not people come to you and tell you the state of things?—I knew it from the cards that came from the wards.

1466. Did not people come to you and say "We are "losing the election—what are we to do"?—I cannot recollect any person making use of that expression.

1467. Was not young Mr. Stracey there, and did he not say a word to you?—I daresay I saw young Mr. Stracey, but I cannot say that he came and said anything to me in particular.

1468. Did they all take it as calmly as you did, you being 500 behind at 1 o'clock?—I did not believe we were 500 behind.

1469. But you were behind. You are convinced of that, are you not?—I am convinced of that.

1470. Was there not excitement amongst your party? Did they not say "We are losing the elec-"tion"?—I think probably they might say "We are "losing the election."

1471. Who were they who said that?—I cannot say.

1472. Some people must have come to you at the committee room?—Yes.

1473. You were the person they looked to for orders, you were the manager; do you mean to say that people did not come to you in the middle of the day when they saw the election was gone and ask for orders?—I mean to say that no person came to me for orders as to what he should do.

1474. Did they come and ask for advice?—Mr. Patteson came up just at that time.

1475. What did he want?—He came up with Sir Henry Stracey about that time, and they drove round the city into the different wards.

1476. Did he complain to you about the way in which things were going on?—He made no complaint about the way they were going on; he knew the same as all the others did that we were behind.

1477. But if everybody took it so philosophically as you, I should think you pretty well expected what you were getting?—I have not said that we took it philosophically.

1478. You say that nobody made complaints, and nobody asked you to do anything?—I said that I had no recollection of anybody coming to me to make a complaint.

1479. Was not the news brought to you that there were men waiting to be bought?—No.

1480. Did nobody come and say to you there are men to be bought if you would like to have them?—If they did they did not say it to me.

1481. Or in your hearing?—Or in my hearing.

1482. Did not people come to the committee rooms?—They did; anybody who wanted information would come there.

1483. Who was there about the middle of the day? I mean what members of your party were there?—Mr. Gilman was there, and of course Sir Henry Stracey would be backwards and forwards.

1484. And young Mr. Stracey, I presume?—Very likely indeed.

1485. Was Bignold there upon the polling day?—I think in all probability he was, because he is one of those I should have admitted to the room without any trouble.

1486. Was anyone else there from 12 to 2?—Mr. Sparrow was there, who is a solicitor.

1487. Who else?—Mr. Utten Browne was there.

1488. Those were all active supporters of yours?—Yes.

1489. Was there anyone else that you can remember?—I cannot recollect the names; if there is any person whose name you would wish me to remember, perhaps you will suggest it.

1490. Oh no; I daresay you have answered me as far as your memory goes with regard to this. Now you say these people came in saying something or other as to reports. You knew at this time that only about some 6,000 or 7,000 voters had polled?—Yes, just so.

1491. You knew there was an ample margin?—Oh yes; I knew there were plenty to poll.

1492. The poll had got comparatively slack from 12 to 1?—Yes.

1493. You knew that?—Yes.

1494. The polling was falling off, the men were not coming in such numbers?—I know they were not.

1495. Did not people say when they came to the committee room something must be done to stir up these people?—They did not to me, or in my hearing.

1496. Did not you perfectly well understand that?—No, I did not, and I tell you generally if any person had asked me for a single penny for that purpose I would not have given it to him.

1497. You know I am not asking you that question?—Very well, then I will hear your question.

1498. What I ask is this, was it not perfectly well known in the committee room that unless something was done to bring up the men who were standing out the election would be lost?—It was not perfectly well known.

1499. But you knew that the voting had fallen off?—We intended of course to go on polling, at least we could not do otherwise, till the end of the day, and to do nothing whatever for the purpose of gaining the election, whether we won it or lost it.

1500. You had made up your mind that it was all over with you at that time?—I had made up my mind at 1 or 2 o'clock that we were a great deal behind, as it appeared we were losing.

1501. And of course if something had not been done it would be lost?—I am not sure of that.

1502. Other people are of a different opinion; however, 2 o'clock came and you polled up at 2 o'clock a little?—Yes, and continued to do so till the end of the day.

1503. And at 2.30 you pulled up considerably; did you make any inquiry how that was being done?—No.

1504. Did you congratulate yourselves at the central committee about the change?—No doubt we were very pleased to see the change.

1505. Did not anyone say "How is this happening, "who is bringing these fellows up"?—No.

1506. Did it not suggest itself to anybody's mind as a curious thing that they should come up and poll so rapidly?—I cannot say what it did to other people's minds.

1507. Did it not to yours?—There are always a great number of persons who will remain to the end of the day.

1508. To go with the winning party you said?—Yes.

1509. But you were the losing party at half-past 1?—At half-past 1 we were gradually gaining upon them.

1510. I want to know how the turn of the tide was accounted for in the committee room; were they surprised at it?—No.

1511. Did anybody make any remarks about it?—I have no recollection of anybody making a remark about it.

1512. Yours is an innocent mind, and I should like to have your solution of it. What did you think when at 2.30 you were polling nearly two to one in your favour?—I thought a great number would vote for us as it got late in the day.

1513. But why should they vote for you late in the day, in preference to voting early and having done with it?—I considered that Sir Henry Stracey was a much more popular candidate than Mr. Tillett.

1514. You thought he was a very popular candidate, and that being a popular candidate people would wait until past 2 o'clock to vote for him?—I thought that if they could not get any money from the other side to vote, they would vote for him for nothing.

1515. Was that the reason; I thought you said this was such an incorruptible constituency?—I know what I have said.

1516. What you said in answer to both my friends was that you had not the least idea that there was anything of the corruptible element in this constituency to any extent?—Not to the extent of many hundreds, I said.

1517. You thought you were hundreds behind, because your men were waiting to see what they could get out of the other side?—I do not suppose they were all waiting for that.

1518. But that is your reason?—The reason is clear, because some of them undoubtedly received money; that I am satisfied of now from the inquiries which were made. That partly accounts for it.

1519. But I was asking you what was in your mind at 2 o'clock on that day, and you told me with a little element of frankness, the first you have disclosed to-day, that your solution of it was that they were waiting to get money out of the other side, and when they found they could not get it they voted for the man they liked best?—Yes, I have formed that opinion.

1520. Then I think you need not have given those answers which you did in the early part of the day to my friends, if that is your opinion of the constituency?—I do not believe there are many hundreds in Norwich who would receive bribes.

1521. So it went on you know, and did that account for it in your mind up to the very end, between 3.30 and 4 o'clock, and you still think it was Sir Henry Stracey's popularity operating on the unbribed masses, who could not get anything, much as they wanted it, from the other party, that accounted for his pulling up in the last half hour? Was that the solution in your mind, you being the managing man for Sir Henry Stracey. Did it not suggest itself to you in the afternoon that there had been money at work?—No.

1522. When the poll was made up and you found you had won, did you not suspect that there had been money at work on your side?—I did not suspect it, for this reason, that I had given such positive instructions to my agents. I told them that my instructions from Sir Henry Stracey were not to spend a penny for any illegal purpose, therefore I did not expect that anything of that kind would be done.

1523. Did you never hear of people doing it who did not happen to be agents?—Oh, yes.

1524. You have heard of Yarmouth?—Yes, I have.

1525. Have you heard of some one there who paid a thousand pounds out of his own pocket?—Yes, I have heard of that.

1526. And that did not come to your mind on the afternoon of the polling day?—No, it did not.

1527. One word upon another matter. You said you made 5*l.* worth of inquiries?—I said I undertook to pay to that amount.

1528. You knew that a petition was pending?—Yes; I knew it from the reports in the newspapers.

1529. Of course it was a matter of common talk?—Yes.

1530. You had been conducting the election, as we all know?—Yes.

1531. Were no complaints made to you about this bribery, did no one come to you and say, "How is "this; what have you been doing"?—No.

1532. Did not Sir Henry Stracey complain, and say you had been mismanaging this thing?—Sir Henry Stracey never said anything of the sort; I have no doubt that he is perfectly satisfied with the way in which it was conducted.

1533. Did not any of your supporters complain?—No, they did not.

1534. Was there no complaint at all?—No; I do not think they had any reason to complain.

1535. That was really so?—Yes.

1536. But at all events whatever information you got, or your clerk got, was in the papers which you handed over to Skipper?—Mr. Dawson, I believe, handed them to Mr. Skipper.

1537. You do not know where the papers are?—No, I do not; Mr. Dawson is not a clerk in my regular employ.

1538. He was employed pro hac vice?—Just so.

1539. (Mr. Mansfield.) Did I understand you to say that at a previous election you had been a sub-agent?—Yes.

1540. What election was that?—Waters and Goldsmid were the candidates.

1541. How many years ago was it?—It was in 1865.

1542. Were you then working as a paid sub-agent?—I cannot say that I was, for I was paid nothing; I acted as sub-agent, but I was not paid.

1543. Did you then become acquainted with the duties of a sub-agent?—Well, I was only engaged, I think, four days, therefore that was a very slight apprenticeship.

1544. I suppose during those four days you were associated with several persons?—Very little was done during those four days, because of the split between the candidates.

1545. During those four days do you mean to say you did not become at all acquainted with the character of this constituency?—No, certainly not.

1546. Had you no suspicion then that there were large numbers of persons who might be bought?—No, I had no opportunity.

1547. Do you mean to say you were engaged in an election at Norwich and did not form a strong opinion as to the character of the constituency?—I ascertained nothing of the sort.

1548. But had you not a strong suspicion, in consequence of what came before you?—No, I had not, because nothing came before me.

1549. Then did you not think it your business to make inquiries?—No, simply for this reason, that I was one of those who did not vote for Mr. Waters, and I took no active part in anything connected with the election during the last four days, and, therefore, if anything had been done it would be done in the last days when I had withdrawn from the working of it.

1550. Did you then become cognisant of any bribery?—No, I did not.

1551. Did you hear of any?—No, I did not; on the day of the election I did no work at all, I simply voted.

1552. You say you received no remuneration for what you did then?—No.

1553. Were you thanked for what you did?—Well, we very seldom expect to receive thanks after an election is over.

1554. Did any of the gentlemen with whom you came in contact then recommend you at the recent election; was it in consequence of your becoming known then that you were employed?—I should say certainly not. I was so little seen by anybody in any business connected with the election that I am sure I could make no impresssion on any one of the party, they would scarcely remember that I had anything to do with it.

SECOND DAY.

O. D. Ray.

20 Aug. 1869.

ORLANDO DENNIS RAY sworn and examined.

1555. (Mr. Dowdeswell.) Where do you live?—In King Street in this city.

1556. What are you?—An auctioneer.

1557. Were you a voter at the last election?—I was.

1558. Did you take an active interest in what is called the Liberal cause?—I did.

1559. Were you present at a meeting of the agents and others of the Liberal cause on the Saturday preceding the poll?—I was at every meeting in our committee room; I had chiefly the management of the central committee room, so that there would be no meeting there without my presence.

1560. Were Sir William Russell, Mr. Tillett, Mr. Coaks, Mr. Stevens, and yourself present?—Sir William Russell was there during the Saturday very frequently.

1561. Were they all present at that meeting?—What meeting do you refer to?

1562. The meeting on the Saturday before the poll.—There were very many meetings; they met continually during the day, they were in and out all day.

1563. Do you recollect a meeting at which there was a discussion respecting the payment for cabs?—Yes, I do remember that.

1564. Was a resolution come to respecting the payment for cabs?—Yes, it was decided that it would be illegal to hire cabs, and it was resolved that they should not be hired.

1565. That having been resolved, was anything said respecting a show of hands?—Yes.

1566. Had you been active at other elections for the city?—At the previous election of Warner and Russell I took very nearly the same part that I took on this occasion.

1567. Had anything been paid for a show of hands at previous elections?—I only know by hearsay; I had nothing to do with that department at any election previous to this.

1568. Was the subject of securing a show of hands mentioned at that meeting?—It was.

1569. Who first mentioned it?—I really cannot say; it was mentioned and generally spoken of at that meeting.

1570. In the hearing of all the persons present?—As far as I can remember the candidates were there, the agents you have mentioned, and Mr. Daynes was there, myself, and Mr. Stevens.

1571. Was any resolution come to?—There was no resolution come to, because the discussion upon the matter came to rather an abrupt termination; it was a question how we were to secure the show of hands, and the place being exceedingly small, unless a poll is demanded it is necessary to take measures to get your friends in, or else we should be outvoted at once, and the election would be over.

1572. There was a discussion as to getting your friends in?—There was.

1573. Was it then arranged that your friends should be got in?—No, it was not definitely arranged; it came to a termination of this kind: it was discussed, and certainly I myself was under the impression that we were going to secure the show of hands.

1574. Was the result of that conversation upon your mind that the show of hands was to be procured if possible to secure the election?—Certainly.

1575. Was your impression so strong that you proceeded to act upon it?—It was not necessary to act upon it in the way in which I first understood it.

1576. But was it necessary to act upon it, and did you act upon it?—I partially acted upon it, but I was told that 200 or a large number of men would volunteer from the Carrow works, and that it would not be necessary for me to take any steps to secure the show of hands.

1577. Is that Mr. Colman's place?—I perhaps ought not to have used the term "the Carrow works," but it was said that they would be marshalled by Mr. Womersley, and that it was probable they would come from there. He was the manager there.

1578. Did you take any steps, or were you prepared to take any steps, in case that should fail?—It was not likely to fail, but I did something else.

1579. What steps did you take?—I forget now how we proceeded, but I know I had an interview with Mr. Long and asked him to have a few men about the door.

1580. Who is Mr. Long?—I only know him as a man I have often seen at elections, an intelligent and very useful man.

1581. Where does he live?—I do not know where he lives at this moment, neither did I ever know where he lived. I knew the man, but I did not know where he lived.

1582. I presume he lives in some part of Norwich?—He does.

1583. In what particular part does he live?—That I cannot tell you.

1584. Can you not conjecture?—I believe that he lives in the parish of St. Mary, but when I looked at the register I found that his name was not there; he has either moved or has been left out of the register. I do not know where the man lived, and I never did know.

1585. What is he?—I think he is a gamekeeper.

1586. Where is St. Mary's parish?—In the eighth ward.

1587. How came you to employ him on this occasion?—Mr. Daynes recommended him to me.

1588. Was he preserving the game in the eighth ward?—I have only spoken to my belief.

1589. Did you make an arrangement with Mr. Long that he should be provided with a sufficient staff to fill the hall?—No.

1590. What did you tell him?—I think I told him that there would be a great many men there, some 200, to get the show of hands, and I wanted him just to superintend them, and to keep the peace with them.

1591. Having a gamekeeper keeping the peace unless he had somebody to assist him would be of very little use?—Exactly so, and he got some men to assist him.

1592. What men were to assist him?—I left that to his own discretion; he has to employ watchers, and I thought it very likely that he would employ some strong fellows.

1593. Mr. Long votes on the right side, I suppose?—If he had a vote I daresay he would, but he is not on the list of voters. I have looked at the register to see, and find that his name is not there.

1594. Did you arrange with Long what you would pay him?—Yes.

1595. What did you pay him?—I paid him 8*l.* 10*s.*

1596. Did you pay that to him down on the nail?—I paid him before the nomination; I paid him in gold.

1597. You took care to give the money to him in gold?—I would have given it to him in a note if I had had it.

1598. Was it in half sovereigns?—No.

1599. You gave him 8*l.* 10*s.* in gold to find the men; did you go to the nomination?—I did.

1600. Did you see the good men and true whom Long had provided?—No. I should not have known them if I had seen them.

1601. Did you see Long?—No. I should think Long would know better than to go in there.

1602. Long, the gamekeeper, would preserve himself?—Yes; he was to mind the door and to see that the others got in.

1603. You paid him, you say, 8*l.* 10*s.* Did you take no steps to ascertain whether Long had done his duty or not?—I knew that he had done his duty by the result.

1604. Then he, having done his duty, you were satisfied?—I was quite satisfied.

1605. What he did was overwhelming, was it?—It was sufficient for the sheriff to declare the show of hands to be in favour of Sir William Russell and Mr. Tillett.

1606. You do not know who the men were, do you?—No.

1607. Do you know Stanley?—A solicitor, do you mean?

1608. Yes.—Yes.

1609. I suppose that if you only had a majority the other side was pretty strongly represented?—Yes, I should say so. There was a succession of cries at the nomination, and, judging from the strength of the Tory cries, I should think that they had a very good number in the place.

1610. There was a little discordance?—Yes, there was a great deal.

1611. Did you see whether anybody was managing on the other side?—I only saw the gentleman you have alluded to, Mr. Stanley, come in.

1612. Was Mr. Stanley managing them?—I do not know whether he managed them or not. He came in with them. I never saw a gentleman in his position in the centre of a court before.

1613. He was acting as the general?—He came in as their general, and was protected by them.

1614. He had a very good place; he was not crowded so much as the others?—He had the best place among them.

1615. After the election did you see Long again?—I have seen him often since then.

1616. When did you see him last?—Perhaps a month ago.

1617. Was that in the city?—Yes, it was.

1618. Did you have any conversation with him then?—I had none whatever.

1619. Did you speak to him afterwards about what he had done?—No.

1620. You never spoke to him afterwards?—I do not think I have ever spoken to him about the matter since, or very vaguely if I did it at all. He did his work and the money was paid to him, and the matter was ended, and I have never said anything to him about it.

1621. You were active in the committee room for Mr. Tillett and Sir William Russell?—I was.

1622. You were one of their agents?—I was the sub-agent.

1623. You and Mr. Daynes?—That is so.

1624. And I suppose you received remuneration for your trouble?—I did.

1625. Did you vote for Mr. Tillett and Sir William Russell?—I voted for Mr. Tillett and Sir William Russell.

1626. How long did you act before the election?—I acted for Sir William Russell from May 1868, when there was considerable agitation in the city as to who should be the candidates, and I had acted before for Russell and Warner.

1627. With regard to this sum of 8*l.* 10*s.*, who repaid you that?—I paid myself.

1628. Was that out of funds provided by Mr. Tillett and Sir William Russell?—It was.

1629. Do you not know that the show of hands was secured on previous elections? Do you not know that money had been paid for it?—Yes, I know it well; it was always the case here.

1630. Mr. Stevens said something about there being 14*l.* 12*s.* due from you?—More than that is due from me. I have more than 50*l.* in hand.

1631. Striking out the 8*l.* 10*s.*?—No, not striking that out, charging it. For the purposes of the account, and for no other purpose, I was made a debtor for 600*l.*, 300*l.* from one side, and 300*l.* from the other. I did not pay the whole 600*l.*, but as there was a general sum some one must be debited with it and some one must be credited with the payments, and as I had begun to pay in my own money, Mr. Stevens and myself thought it convenient that I should be charged with the whole.

1632. You were debited with the 600*l.*?—I debited myself with it, but many of the sums have been paid by Mr. Stevens, but those which I paid were always paid in his presence, and were written down as I paid them.

1633. Then there is a balance still due and unsettled?—There is. You have seen that there was a sum of 529*l.* paid to employees, and that some other disbursements were made by me. The 50*l.* odd I have in hand will just pay the overdrawn account at the bankers, and that would have been paid before, but I think the account has only been made up within the last few days.

1634. Of those employees how many of them were voters in this city?—We endeavoured to select all we possibly could who were not voters, and many of them were very young men not on the list of voters, but there were some necessarily who were voters, perhaps 100 or 150. I am speaking entirely from surmise.

1635. Can you take off on those accounts who are voters in the city?—Yes, I could, a great many if I had the account before me.

Adjourned to to-morrow at 11 o'clock.

THIRD DAY.

Saturday, 21st August 1869.

ORLANDO DENNIS RAY's examination resumed.

1636. You were associated with Mr. Daynes, the safe man, the discreet man?—I think he is both safe and discreet.

1637. And I suppose you were selected because you were also a safe man?—I do not know, I will not estimate my own qualities.

1638. If you were discreet you looked before you?—Certainly.

1639. You were not certain about the result of the election?—Nothing is certain until it is perfected; but I felt certain about it.

1640. We have been told by Mr. Coaks that at 12 o'clock it looked as if it might be anybody's election?—We had made a much better canvass than our opponents.

1641. But a better canvass does not always insure a successful result?—No, and it did not on this occasion.

1642. Any person who was discreet would foresee that there were possible contingencies which might arise?—I did foresee that; I knew that if the other side bought we should lose, I quite knew that.

1643. And I suppose you had made some reservation in your own mind as to what should be done in the event of there being an unforeseen accident?—No.

1644. None at all?—No, none whatever.

1645. Were you not discreet enough to consider what you should do in a certain event?—No; my discretion went the other way, I was discreet enough not to do it.

1646. You may have been discreet enough because you were safe ultimately of winning, but you could not be safe of winning in the early part of the day?—No.

1647. Then it might have been discreet to make provision against a sudden storm?—I made no provision at all.

1648. Although you did not make any provision, had you not considered what provision might be made?—I had not; I suppose when you speak of "making provision" you mean providing money.

1649. No; you knew, I suppose, that there was an "element" in the market?—There always is in Norwich, there are always a certain number of voters in Norwich to be bought.

1650. Was there a meeting the night before the election?—There were two.

1651. What I may call a provisional meeting?—No; there was no meeting of that kind, there was a meeting at St. Andrew's Hall, that was one, and there was a meeting at the Bazaar.

1652. That was a public meeting?—Yes, there was no private meeting for the purpose of funds.

1653. Was there not a meeting at a place called the "Crown and Angel"?—No, not that I know of.

1654. Was there any meeting at the "Crown and Angel"?—I do not know of any. Mr. Daynes can tell you, I was not present at one.

1655. Who is the landlord of the "Crown and Angel"?—Mrs. Daynes is the landlady of it, the mother of Mr. Daynes.

1656. Were you not present at any meeting, I will not call it a meeting, but an assembly of some of the party at the "Crown and Angel"?—I will answer you as well as I can charge my memory; it is now nine months ago. I parted with Mr. Daynes after we left the committee room about 1 or 2 o'clock in the morning on St. Andrew's Hall plain. I was with Mr. Stevens and Mr. Daynes, my colleagues, we did not go to the "Crown and Angel" at all.

1657. Were you at the "Crown and Angel" at all on that day?—Not at all on that day, so far as I know.

1658. Nor in the evening?—No; that was a very important moment just prior to the election; we were getting the cards ready for the clerks and assistants.

1659. But there was other work to be done besides getting cards ready and so on?—Yes.

1660. Was Mr. Daynes at the committee room that day?—Not all day; he moved about.

1661. He was a more active man than you, perhaps?—I do not know whether he was or not; it was his duty more than mine to see after our committee rooms.

1662. Did not you and Mr. Daynes and other persons talk over the business and consult as to what was best to be done the next day, the day before the election?—Yes.

1663. Like prudent men, you laid your plan of fighting?—Would it not have been extraordinary if if we had not talked about it? it was the thing that was uppermost in our minds.

1664. I suppose financial arrangements formed part of your consideration?—We were the persons who engaged and employed all the clerks and other employés, and it was my duty to look after them.

1665. I am speaking of discussions at that meeting?—There was no meeting at which there was any discussion.

1666.—Not the day before?—No.

1667. Was it not said that the other side might possibly buy votes?—Yes.

1668. Therefore there was some conversation between you upon that subject?—There is always a possibility of one side or the other buying votes at Norwich.

1669. Then that was talked about between you?—Yes.

1670. Was not something arranged with reference to that?—No, nothing was arranged except that we were pledged not to use those means, and we had an injunction from both candidates, who said that they would repudiate any act of the kind, not only that act, but any illegal act of any kind whatever, even the hiring of conveyances.

1671. There is, is there not, in Norwich what I may call a "market" for the commodity?—There is the commodity, and necessarily there is a market for it.

1672. Do you know the markets or places where the article is to be procured?—I should imagine it may be found in places where men of that class generally congregate, where they are doing nothing, that is, at public houses.

1673. And I suppose that certain public houses would be well known as being those places of resort which you may call the market?—I should not expect to find them at the "Royal" or at the "Norfolk," for instance, or at any one of those places; but I have known more of it since the election petition than I ever knew before.

1674. Had you been engaged in prior elections?—Yes.

1675. It had been an open market then, had it not?—It was well known that hundreds of people in Norwich take money for their votes.

1676. And that there were certain houses which had the reputation of being places where voters might be found?—I should say that it was rather the landlords of the houses, who had the reputation of assembling those men so that they could be got at en masse instead of en detail.

1677. Can you tell me the names of those houses?—I heard of the "Trumpet," and I heard Mackley's house spoken of. I do not know the names of them.

1678. Do you know the names of the landlords?—I do not know the name of the landlord of the "Trumpet." I heard those two houses mentioned, but there are hundreds of houses of that class. In Ber Street, in St. Stephen's, in the seventh ward, in St. James's, in St. Saviour's, in Barrack Street, and in all those parts of Norwich there are houses of that sort where men are to be found who are hanging about at an election.

1679. Special houses?—No.

1680. Are there not any special houses?—No, I know of none; the low class of public houses generally are the places where they are to be found.

1681. May I take it generally that in the low class of public houses in Norwich the "article" is to be found?—I do not wish to brand the whole of the Norwich public houses.

1682. I suppose you were pretty well acquainted with the results of the canvass?—Yes, I marked it off; my markings are in that book.

1683. Which was the most unsatisfactory ward according to your canvass?—The first ward. There is a large Tory majority in that ward. It was not unsatisfactory, because we always expected it; but that was the ward that went against our candidates the most.

1684. That would be a ward of such respectability, that you would not suspect that anything like bribery would be available there?—We had heard of some bribery being initiated there; the half sovereigns were used in that ward.

1685. I am speaking of those who were to be operated upon, not of the operators?—There are fewer in proportion of that class in that ward, I think.

1686. Which is the ward in which there are the greatest number of what I may term doubtful voters?—I think in the sixth and seventh wards.

1687. (Mr. Biron.) Is the eighth a bad ward?—Yes.

1688. (Mr. Dowdeswell.) I am speaking now of the result of your canvass?—We had none marked of that class; we only had them marked as neuters.

1689. But according to your canvass you could tell to a very considerable extent in what ward there was a doubtful body?—Our canvass was not good enough for that, it was not such a canvass as we had made at former elections. At the election prior to that we had made our canvass in such a way that within 100 the late Mr. Wilde and I could have foretold, and did in fact fortell, the result of the election ; but on the last occasion the number of voters on the list was more than doubled, and there were thousands who had never voted before.

1690. Was not your canvass more or less perfect in all the wards but one?—We had canvassing in all the wards.

1691. Was it more or less perfect in all the wards but one?—Which one do you mean.

1692. Was the one in which your canvass was imperfect the third?—That would necessarily be so, because there are four times as many voters in the third ward as there are in the first. I think that that ward now numbers 3,000 or 4,000 voters. If my memory serves me correctly there are 3,000 voters, nearly half of whom are new voters, and we could not find them ; they live in small tenements and go out to work, and could not be seen, all of them I should think, in three months ; and we had nothing to go by from their former voting. As to some we knew what their political bias was, and we marked them without asking them for their votes.

1693. Then there were a large number of other voters in that ward?—There was a large number in all the wards.

1694. The less perfect your canvass was, the less certain the result would be, you know?—Yes.

1695. That being so, was there no suggestion made as to how that could be counteracted in case of accidents?—There was no suggestion of that kind made at all. I do not wish to appear here more pure than other people, but I may say that we never contemplated defeat at all ; we had, all through, an idea that we should win by at least 2,000. We had been told that for months by an organisation of the working classes, who had said that they meant to carry their man in by thousands, and that they would take our man with them. We thought it impossible to lose.

1696. You had seen Mr. Coaks?—Yes, I had.

1697. And Mr. Coaks had told you, had he not, that the report of the working men's organisation was all nonsense?—No, I knew that before ; I did not want to be told, I knew it by the book ; but I did not know that the bias of those men was nonsense. I knew that the organisation, as an aid to the election, was nonsense. The men knew nothing about electioneering ; they pretended to mark the books, and they sent them back in a way that we knew must be wrong. That did not alter my view as to what would be the result. I thought we should win notwithstanding.

1698. You were in communication with Mr. Coaks?—Yes, daily.

1699. And he told you what the state of things was?—It was I who furnished him with the information.

1700. And he told you that what they said was unreliable?—I knew it without being told. Mr. Coaks did not require to tell me what I knew before ; it was I who furnished him with the information. I knew that our books showed nothing that was reliable with regard to the result of the election.

1701. You felt, as far as your experience went, and looking at the actual canvass, that there was nothing reliable?—I felt that we should win.

1702. Upon the actual canvass?—We should have won on the canvass. We had many more promises than we had voters against us.

1703. The doubtful were a very considerable body, were they not?—The two candidates or sides openly and avowedly on every occasion disclaimed all idea of bribery, and Sir Henry Stracey never made a speech in Norwich in which he did not say that if he could not win the election without bribery he would lose. If that was to be relied upon, I felt we were sure to win, and I did rely upon it in some measure.

1704. In some measure?—Yes, exactly.

1705. Although you could rely on Sir Henry Stracey, you knew that there were other people on whom you could not rely?—Yes.

1706. Knowing that, did it not occur to you that a difficulty might arise?—Yes, it did.

1707. And were you not prepared to meet that contingency as a discreet man would?—I was not; my discretion failed me there, perhaps. I made no preparation whatever.

1708. Nor thought of it?—Nor thought of it.

1709. You knew sufficiently of former elections to know that if votes were wanted they would be forthcoming, did you not?—I did not know where they were to come from.

1710. If money had been spent on former elections somebody must have found it?—Certainly.

1711. That being so you knew that there were some squeezable persons?—Certainly.

1712. And you knew that there were some squeezable persons in Norwich, did you not?—No ; I do not know who I should have squeezed it out of in Norwich if I had spent any money.

1713. It had been squeezed out of somebody before?—I do not know. I had not spent any.

1714. But you knew that it had been spent?—Yes, in Bury and Schneider election I knew it had been spent; but I had nothing to do with it.

1715. On both sides?—On our side I know there was money spent.

1716. There are persons, are there not, who would on an emergency provide funds in order that the election should not be lost?—I do not know those persons.

1717. But you know that there are such persons?—No, I do not.

1718. Did you believe that there were persons in Norwich who had provided funds before?—I believed that Mr. Schneider, the candidate, had provided funds before.

1719. Did you not know that there were other persons in Norwich interested in the election who would provide money on an emergency?—I do not know one person in Norwich to whom an application could be made to provide funds to buy an election.

1720. (Mr. Biron.) Of the Liberal party, you mean?—Yes. I do not know any.

1721. (Mr. Dowdeswell.) Did you not believe that there were persons who would provide funds for this election, if necessary?—I did not.

1722. Is that your answer?—I have no wish to conceal anything, and if you will only put a name into my mouth, or suggest a name to me, I will say yes or no in a moment.

1723. Suppose you had found that the election could be made safe for 100*l.*?—If I found that it could be made safe for 100*l.*, or for 200*l.* or for 500*l.*, and I had felt that it would be consistent with my duty and my honour to spend it, I would have spent my own money and taken the chance of getting it back again.

1724. Then you would have acted on your own responsibility?—I would.

1725. (Mr. Mansfield.) You stated that there was an unascertained number of voters in No. 3 ward—about 3,000—of whom nothing was known?—No ; I said that there were 3,000 voters altogether in the ward.

1726. A large number of whom were not known?—Who had never been voters before.

1727. And who had not promised?—We had not been able to see them.

1728. You anticipated that you would get at least half, if not more, of those persons?—We expected to get more than half.

1729. You mentioned to the Chief Commissioner just now that no arrangement had been made by you or your colleagues with regard to looking after voters at the time of the election ; did you take any steps, or were you prepared to take any steps, to watch what your opponents were doing?—No. We have sometimes in Norwich had a system of watching when we thought that that kind of thing was being done; but we did not make use of that this time.

1730. Did no messages come from time to time?—Yes.

1731. Suggesting that anything wrong was being done?—I was about all day in the different wards, and I was told, I do not know how many times, that money was being spent; and I was asked, "What are "we to do; are we to lose the election?"

1732. Did you see anything of the sort going on?—Do you mean in money?

1733. Yes.—No. I did not go into any of the houses that have been referred to. I only went into our committee rooms. I never went anywhere else.

1734. Was the name of any person mentioned to you as being engaged in putting money about on the part of your opponents?—I do not know that any names were mentioned specially. Names were spoken of generally, but people very often say things in the heat of an election which are not true, and therefore I took very little notice of what was said.

1735. (Mr. Biron.) One part of our duty is to ascertain whether these floating rumours were true or not.—I cannot charge my memory with the fact of any persons being accused. I have no person's name, and no number of names, in my mind just now that I heard spoken of on the day of the election as spending money. My business was to go from one committee room to another. I always went in a cab, and saw very little of anybody, except just about the door of our own rooms. When I had done my business in one committee room I left it and went to another; and that was my duty all day.

1736. (Mr. Mansfield.) Did you hear any reports in your committee rooms as to what was going on?—I did.

1737. Will you state what those reports were?—I heard that a number of men had offered their votes in the seventh ward, I think at Mackley's. I heard of a lot of men being at Mackley's ready to vote if they were paid for voting.

1738. Who brought you that notice?—It came in, I think, with one of the special messengers who brought the return.

1739. Was it in writing?—No, those messages never go in writing.

1740. (Mr. Dowdeswell.) What time of the day was it?—Between 2 and 3. I heard it in the sixth ward at about 3 or a little after 3, because I know I went away from there to poll, and I see I polled at 20 minutes to 4. I heard that there were two houses not far from our committee room (I did not ask the names of them) where there were 40 or 50 in one, and 50 in another, ready to vote if they were paid for voting.

1741. What houses were those?—I cannot tell you. I remember one house was pointed out to me a little lower down Ber Street than our committee room on the other side; the committee room was at the "Greyhound." I should have no difficulty in getting the name of the house. I know the person who told me.

1742. (Mr. Biron.) Who told you?—I think Mr. Jeckel, of Ber Street.

1743. Did you hear any more reports of any other houses?—I heard reports all day, not only of money being spent, but of persons clustering together and wanting to be paid, but they were so numerous and we did not intend to make any use of them, that I took no notice of it.

1744. In fact you had no money to spend this time?—No, we were determined not to spend any money at all.

1745. And the result of the canvass was such, that in your opinion no money was required to be spent. You were ahead and certain to win?—Certainly, at 12 o'clock we had virtually won the election, and were 500 ahead.

1746. Mr. Stevens yesterday, in addition to the 8*l.* 10*s.* that you told us you paid to Mr. Long in gold, spoke of another sum of 14*l.* 16*s.*?—Yes, that was paid for a matter not connected with the nomination at all, but it went into that amount of 23*l.* 6*s.* I think it went all in one item to Mr. Stevens, and 5*l.* was paid to a man whose name I cannot remember, a man who lives at Cringleford. Mr. Daynes sent him to me, and there was 5*l.*, I think, for the hire of a conveyance to bring persons from Cringleford.

1747. The 9*l.* 16*s.* was paid on Mr. Daynes' voucher?—It was.

1748. On the day of the polling was there any meeting at all, or any consultation by the Liberals, when they found that the Conservatives were creeping up?—No, there was no special consultation, they met always where the central poll was kept.

1749. But they took no steps to counteract this influence which was at work?—No; I may say that if we had been disposed to do it, we should not have known what to do. We got into a mess about our poll about 10 o'clock, and never set it right all day.

1750. (Mr. Dowdeswell.) You were representing Sir William Russell?—Yes, but we acted jointly.

1751. But no man can serve exactly two masters?—I hope you do not mean by that to imply that I did not behave as well towards one candidate as I did towards the other.

1752. But there would be, no doubt, a predilection for one rather than for the other?—I should certainly say that if one of our two men had to lose, I should rather have seen Mr. Tillett lose, for whom I had been working only a short time, than Sir William Russell, for whom I had been working since May; but not one single act of mine, from the time of the coalition till the day of the polling, and until the polling had ceased, nor, so far as I know, any single act on the part of Mr. Tillett's supporters, was other than an honest and fair act to secure the return of the two candidates.

1753. (Mr. Biron.) Did you visit ward 5 in the course of the day?—Yes.

1754. Joseph Allen is a Conservative?—He is.

1755. Did you see him about ward 5?—Yes.

1756. Did you see him at all about the committee room?—I did not see him conspicuously in that ward, but he is always busy at all elections.

1757. Did you see John Bignold in that ward at all?—I do not know.

1758. On that day?—I do not know.

1759. Do you know young Joseph Stanley?—Yes.

1760. He is an active man?—Yes, very.

1761. Did you see him about in the fifth ward?—I think he was more in the third ward. I saw him about all day.

1762. He was an active man, and was active about the city on that day?—He is the man who was spoken of by Mr. Chittock yesterday as one of their paid agents.

1763. But sometimes people do not do a great deal of work who receive payment at election times?—No, but I thought you might fancy that there were two Stanleys. I have brought back the list which you asked me to mark (handing it to the Commissioners). I said yesterday that I thought there might be 150 voters, whereas I see there are only 30. We employed the sons rather than the fathers. You will observe that they are all juniors.

1764. They are all sons of voters?—Yes.

1765. That is the way in which it was always done?—Yes, always.

1766. (Mr. Dowdeswell.) As to the show of hands, can you give us any further information as to how it was arranged, or anything of that kind than that which you have given already?—If you will allow me to tell the tale in my own way I will tell you how it is in my mind at this moment that that matter came up, and how we acted with regard to it. There was a meeting, which has been spoken of, or rather the persons were all in the committee room, and after the question of hiring cabs came up, naturally the next point was as to the show of hands, which is about the first affair in the fight of an election; and although it was not arranged at that meeting, that is, not formally arranged, and there was no resolution that we should secure the show of hands, still I left under the impression, and I daresay other gentlemen were also under the impression, that we were to do something to secure it. I should have done that something without consulting anyone else, just as I should have undertaken that other expenditure that I have referred to, if I had thought I could do it legally and honestly; but hearing that I could have these 200 voters, or that there were a number of men who would come to the nomination for the love of their party, it was not necessary to hire any; but I think it is very likely that Mr. Coaks, on the one hand, may have thought that I did hire the men, whereas Mr. Stevens, who found the volunteers, would know, on the other hand, that they were not wanted, and were not hired. I know that from that day to this I have never mentioned the matter to Mr. Coaks, and I am equally sure that I have not mentioned it to Mr. Stevens, except as to the expenditure of 8*l.* 10*s.*, which is called in the account "keeping the peace." There was something came out which appeared rather like treachery on our part with reference to a verbal agreement not to spend money that was referred to by Mr. Chittock in his evidence. I knew from experience that any arrangement that we made with Mr. Chittock would be honourably carried out, but there was an outside element, the stone throwing element, which Mr. Chittock repudiated but could not control, and I therefore took upon myself, notwithstanding the verbal arrangement, to deal with and see the outside men.

1767. (Mr. Biron.) The fact was that you felt that Mr. Chittock could not keep his bargain if he made it?—He could not.

1768. (Mr. Mansfield.) You have said that if it could be safely done, and if it was necessary to be done, you would have been prepared to spend your own money?—Yes; I meant by that that I should not have shrunk from the expenditure of 200*l.* or 300*l.* for the purpose of the election without going to anybody and saying "If I spend this money you will "give it me back again," for I have never met with anything but honour from the gentlemen for whom I have acted, and I am sure that any expenditure I made, if it was a proper expenditure, they would repay me at once.

1769. Had you made any provision for such a contingency?—I had made no provision whatever; I had not 20*l.* in my possession on the election day in any sort of money. I must have gone to a bank and cashed my cheque if I had wanted money.

1770. Your credit is good, and the money would have been forthcoming for a cheque would it not?—At the bank.

1771. Can you tell me whether you had provided that there should be a good balance at the bank?—I had made no special provision; I had no other than the ordinary current account, the ordinary banking account which I have in my business; I keep more than one account. There was no extra sum paid in to meet any contingency; there was no sum provided with reference to the election.

1772. There was a good sum at your bankers, was there not?—Well, I could have overdrawn my account a thousand pounds if I wanted it, I dare say, and therefore it does not matter what there was there. I do not think they would have sent back my cheque for 1,000*l.*

1773. (Mr. Dowdeswell.) There was a credit as well as the half sovereigns?—I had nothing to do with the half sovereigns. I may say that we were not pure because we wanted the money, but we were pure because our principles were pure, and our determination was to be pure, and we adhered to it.

ARTHUR CHARLES WOODROW sworn and examined.

A. C. Woodrow.

1774. (Mr. Dowdeswell.) You are a voter in this city?—Yes.

1775. Did you take an active interest in the last election?—Yes, a little.

1776. More than a little, did you not?—No, because I was out of town before the election.

1777. Did you not take an active interest in it?—I did.

1778. You acted, I suppose, with a number of other gentlemen?—Yes.

1779. Who were they principally?—There was Mr. Steward, a tailor, of the first ward, Dr. Allen, Mr. Mitchell, and the two Taylors.

1780. In addition to those gentlemen were there also a number of gentlemen, who, if I may so term it, constituted the body who promoted the election of Sir Henry Stracey, a general body?—There were a great many attended the room, but they were the parties I was principally with.

1781. What room are you speaking of?—We had a room at the "Queen's Hotel," at the corner of Queen Street.

1782. You found yourself pressed in the middle of the day of the election, did you not?—I went out to get canvassers up, so that I knew nothing about how the books were kept.

1783. You knew that you were "in difficulties" about the middle of the day?—I was told we were behind.

1784. That is being in difficulties at an election, is it not?—Well, I do not know.

1785. You knew that?—Yes, I was told so.

1786. And the other men of your party also knew it?—Yes.

1787. And you were all anxious about it, were you not?—Yes.

1788. In consequence of that did you have a meeting?—No, I did not. I was busy getting up voters. I was present at no meeting on that day.

1789. Did you not have a meeting of your party in the middle of that day?—I was not present at it.

1790. There was a meeting was there?—That I do not know; there might be.

1791. You told me that you were not present at the meeting, which implied that there was a meeting; was there not a meeting?—We went up into the room as we liked during the day, but there was no special meeting.

1792. But there was, if I may so term it, an accidental meeting, or a number of persons congregated together from accidental causes during the day?—I was not present at it; if there was it was not to my knowledge.

1793. Was there no part of the day during which there were a number of persons present at the same time, and did you not consult together?—No.

1794. Did you have no consultation among yourselves?—I was not present at any consultation.

1795. And no discussion?—And no discussion.

1796. Pray be careful.—I do not mind telling you how I was engaged all that day.

1797. Did you not say, just before the inquiry that took place before Mr. Baron Martin, that you were present at a private meeting of the Conservatives on the day of the election; be careful how you answer that question; do cast back your memory and consider?—I shall not hesitate to answer any questions you may put to me.

1798. Did you not say that you were present at a private meeting of the Conservatives on the election day. I do not put those to you as being the precise words used, but is not that the substance of what you said?—I do not recollect saying it, and certainly I was not present at one.

1799. Now I will add something which perhaps will refresh your memory; did you not say that you were present at a meeting of the Conservatives on the election day, or at a meeting of the Conservatives, I will not say on the election day, the proceedings of which nothing on earth should induce you to divulge; now recollect and be careful how you answer that question?—No; I do not recollect being present at any such meeting.

1800. Did you not utter words to that effect?—I do not recollect it.

1801. Might you have said that?—Well, I do not think I could. I will not swear I did not; but I do not believe I did.

1802. But still you might have said it?—I do not think I did.

1803. Now reflect.—I say I was not present at any meeting where anything passed that I should be ashamed or afraid to divulge. I was not present at any meeting about which there need be the slightest secrecy; our meetings were too numerous for anything of that sort.

1804. I want to know whether you ever uttered those words, or words to that effect?—Well, I do not recollect it.

1805. Do you mean to say that you never uttered those words?—I have no recollection of having done so.

1806. But only consider.—There was no necessity to say so. It is not that I am fencing at all with your question. I assert that I was present at no meeting as to which I need make such a remark, and further, I do not believe that I did make such a remark.

1807. It is an extraordinary thing to me that there should not be something a little more than belief, if that is the case. Will you undertake to say that you did not make that remark, or that you did not use words to that effect?—I have no recollection of having used those words or of having occasion to use them.

1808. Were there not, whether accidentally or otherwise, a number of Conservatives who did have a talk together in the middle of the election day?—No; I do not recollect being present at any meeting of the Conservatives in the middle of the day.

1809. I will not say Conservatives, but was there not a number of men who were together, I will not say at a meeting, but men who had a discussion respecting the difficulties in which you were in the middle of the day?—I was not present at such a meeting.

1810. I do not put it as a meeting; do you mean to say that you were not present and had a discussion amongst some of your friends who were interested in the cause in the middle of the election day?—I do not recollect any such meeting at all.

1811. It is impossible for you not to recollect it if it occurred.—Time will prove, before you finish the inquiry here, whether I am stating the truth or not.

1812. Do you mean to say that you did not discuss with your friends the unsatisfactory state in which you found matters about 12 o'clock?—No, I do not think I should do so, because it was rather satisfactory than otherwise. I thought we should be more behind.

1813. You told me just now that you found you were behind about 12 o'clock, and that is not a satisfactory state of things, you know. I asked you about being in difficulties, and you admitted that you were in difficulties about 12 o'clock. Now, being in difficulties at 12 o'clock, do you mean to say that you did not talk the matter over with your friends?—No, not at any sort of meeting.

1814. The term "meeting" is a term which I expressly avoid using; my question is, did you talk the matter over with your friends?—Casually I might.

1815. Did you not casually talk it over with your friends?—I daresay I did.

1816. Casually you did?—Yes.

1817. If you casually talked it over and discussed it you must have discussed it for some purpose?—I was present at no meeting whatever where any improper propositions were made.

1818. That is not what I am asking you at all. I am not asking you as to any meeting; I am asking you whether you had not a discussion with your friends respecting the difficulties in which you were about 12 o'clock?—Only accidentally, when I met them.

1819. You had an accidental discussion with your friends. Now then, I will ask you who were the friends with whom you had an accidental discussion?—You will not find me mixed up with it; it is utterly impossible for you to get anything when there is nothing to get.

1820. You tell me that you had a discussion, and I ask you with whom, and when I ask you with whom you had a discussion you take a long time to consider.—I did not expect that I should be called upon to give an account of it, and I did not make any record as to those people.

1821. The object of our inquiry is to ascertain something which people are attempting to conceal, and get at it we must at any cost of labour or trouble. It is a public duty which we must do, and do it we will.—But I was not so mixed up with electioneering matters as to be able to give you an account of everything.

1822. You have said that you had a discussion with your friends, and I ask you who your friends were?—I have given you the names of Mr. Allen and Mr. Steward.

1823. Who else?—I really cannot recollect.

1824. You must know who you were acting with on that day. I am sure you do, you cannot forget it?—I have given you the names before of the parties with whom I was acting.

1825. You had a discussion with them?—They were not all present at the time. I might meet them and speak to them occasionally.

1826. I am speaking now of the friends with whom you discussed; you have admitted that you had a discussion, who were the persons with whom you discussed this matter?—Well, I really have given you the best answer I can; it was only casual conversation, we did not discuss anything.

1827. Then with whom had you the casual conversation?—I have given you the names of the parties.

1828. Where was it?—Well, I should say at our Conservative room, when we met there.

1829. In Queen Street?—Yes, I believe so.

1830. Who began the discussion?—I have told you that it was merely accidental. I cannot say who began it. I met them in the room; it was quite accidental.

1831. We have heard of things being called accidental which were done on purpose. We are now speaking of this very accidental conversation; who began it?—I have given you the best answer I can, that it was merely casual. We had no concerted meeting.

1832. Somebody must have begun it, you know?—There was no regular discussion.

1833. Who began the conversation?—It was merely casual, when we met each other. I do not know how to explain myself further; there was no such meeting as you hint at.

1834. My question is, who began the conversation?—I cannot say. I have said that we merely spoke to each other as we went into the room.

1835. When you got into the room, tell me what took place?—I have said that it was merely casual. I must suggest to you that we do not recollect all our casual remarks, nor can we.

1836. But I must refresh your memory. What were Dr. Allen's remarks?—I should say that I did not speak to him above half a dozen words on that day, though I met him in the room. When I say I did not speak half a dozen words to him, I mean I did not speak to him half a dozen times. It was merely casual.

1837. We have heard the word "casual" so often that I am quite tired of it. Tell me what this conversation was, and who began it?—I cannot recollect what the conversation might be. What I remarked was, that we could not account for the Whigs putting up a majority of 566 and the Conservatives of 240. I do not recollect any other discussion.

1838. You have said that you were in difficulties, and you knew you were in difficulties. Do you mean to say that, meeting those gentlemen there, you did not condole with them on the difficulties into which you had got?—No.

1839. I am trying to bring back your recollection.—If there is nothing to recollect you cannot bring it back.

1840. You had a common interest, and you met in that committee room, which was dedicated to the purposes of the election. Now do you mean to say that when you met in that committee room those difficulties were not the subject of your conversation?—I had no special conversation about it.

1841. Do you mean that your difficulties were not the subject of conversation?—I daresay they were; what else should we meet for?

1842. Then your difficulties were the subject of conversation?—I suppose so; yes, I daresay they were.

1843. Of course they were.—But I have told you already that we had no discussion, and therefore I cannot tell you, if we had no discussion, what was said.

1844. I do not speak about a discussion, but you say you were in difficulties; you were on the spot where those difficulties would naturally be the subject of conversation; what did you go there for but to discuss?—I went there to see if there were any people who had not voted and who were to be looked after.

1845. But you would not find them in the committee room?—No; but we marked them off and should see who had and who had not voted.

1846. You met the other gentlemen interested with yourself at that spot; do you mean to say that you did not talk to them about your difficulties?—I cannot give you any other answer than I have already given. I had much less to do with this election than people think, and therefore you cannot get anything out where there is nothing to get out.

1847. Surely it is a simple question, which you may answer aye or no, whether you did not talk about those difficulties?—I say we probably did.

1848. Do you not know that you did?—I say probably we did

1849. I will take it that you probably did; now then, what did you say?—I really cannot give you an answer to that question. I had so little to do with the election. You may disbelieve me if you like, but there are other persons to be examined, and you will be able to judge when you have heard their evidence whether I am telling you the truth or not.

1850. Tell me what was said by the others?—I do not know what answer to give you further than I have given.

1851. What did Dr. Allen, for instance, think about it?—He said he was going to look after certain people who had not voted; that is all.

1852. And who it was difficult to get up to poll?—No; there was nothing said about that. I do not recollect that.

1853. Persons who wanted persuading to go up to the poll?—Well, we had no means of persuading them. I suppose that would be the meaning of it.

1854. And you understood that to be the meaning of it?—I suppose I should.

1855. Did he not say where they were?—No; they were at various parts of the ward.

1856. In which ward?—No. 1 ward.

1857–8. Is that the only ward that he spoke of, in which there were people who wanted persuading to go to the poll?—We worked in wards.

1859. No doubt you work in wards, but if he could not get a voter to go up whether in one ward or another Dr. Allen would go and get him when you were in difficulties, would he not?—Yes.

1860. Did he happen to say in what ward the people wanted persuasion?—No; we were to go down a certain street and call on those who had not voted.

1861. Did he say it would be necessary to "pre-" scribe" anything for them?—No, certainly not.

1862. Did he not say that they were a little indisposed to vote?—I do not recollect such a remark.

1863. But did he say that they wanted a little persuasion of the right sort?—No.

1864. Do you mean to tell us that he did not say they wanted a deal of persuasion?—We had nothing to persuade with. I have stated before that I was not cognisant of anything of that sort in the ward, and I cannot say what I do not know.

1865. I do not suppose for an instant that you were cognisant of anything of the sort, but I am asking you about what Dr. Allen stated about these people who wanted persuasion; did he not say that they wanted a little persuasion of the right sort?—No, I do not recollect any such remark.

1866. He said that they wanted persuasion?—He said we must go and look after them.

1867. But you have told us that he said they wanted persuasion?—I will not say that those were the exact words he used.

1868. But you understood from what he said that they wanted persuasion?—Yes.

1869. Did he mention any names?—No.

1870. Did he mention the number?—He might mention the names. We take it in streets. We look through the register and see who have voted and who have not, and then we go into a certain street and see after those who have not voted.

1871. You were to go and get up the voters?—Yes.

1872. And what he said was with a view to your going and getting voters. I am speaking of Dr. Allen; he travels all over the city, does he not?—In his profession he does.

1873. He said to you, "Go and get up these voters"?—Merely as I have said before. We went through the streets to see those who had not voted.

1874. And he pointed out to you the voters it was necessary for you to get up. Did he also say that there were certain persons who wanted persuasion?—I will not say that he used those words.

1875. Did he not suggest that it would be necessary to go to them and to use a little persuasion?—It was no use his recommending that, because we had not anything to give.

1876. The Doctor has plenty to give, has he not?—Not that I am aware of.

1877. The Doctor is a prosperous man, is he not?—I believe so.

1878. And a thorough-going politician?—Yes, a very good one.

1879. He is none of your half and half men?—No.

1880. There are no half and half measures with the Doctor?—No.

1881. And he was the man who went to the people, was he not, to persuade them?—Well, I daresay he was; but Mr. Allen and myself are not exactly good friends. He is high church, and I am low, and therefore we do not work together very well.

1882. Although he is high church and you are low, yet you are both good Conservatives?—Yes, we are.

1883. You are hand and glove as far as Conservatism goes?—We are.

1884. And you acted cordially together?—Yes, we did.

1885. And the Doctor said that he had a number of persons who wanted persuasion?—He did not say that; he pointed out the streets in which we should go and look after them. We mutually went through the register of the parish, and saw who had not voted, and then went to look after them.

1886. You would not say that anything that was said then was a matter which "nothing would induce you to reveal;" there would be nothing in that?—I do not believe that I ever made use of that expression.

1887. But you are not certain that you did not. You had this conversation about persons requiring persuasion with Dr. Allen?—No, I have said generally, not specially, we went through the account of those that were not marked off, and those were the people we discussed; there was no special discussion on any particular voter.

1888. Dr. Allen had to persuade them?—That is not my word; that is not a word that I used.

1889. But that was what you understood. Though he did not use the word you understood that the Doctor had to "persuade" them. Do you know where the Doctor went to persuade them. This was about 12 o'clock, you know?—I made use of a word just now that you would not accept, and perhaps you will think that I am telling you a story. I told you it was all "casual," and now you are fixing me to 12 o'clock. He may most likely bring his book and say he was visiting his patients at 12 o'clock, and I do respectfully ask you not to press me as to the hour. I have used the word "casual," and must be allowed to adhere to it. It was during some portion of the day; I cannot say the hour.

1890. But there was a particular time at which he said there were a certain number of persons that it was necessary to persuade. Do you know where the Doctor went to persuade those people?—No, I do not.

1891. Have you not heard?—Only what I have read in the newspaper.

1892. Have you seen the Doctor since?—No, and if you will allow me I will tell you the reason why. We merely bow to each other; we are not personal friends.

1893. You met the next day at the committee room, did you not?—No, we met shortly after at our ward meeting, the first Tuesday in the month.

1894. But surely after the election you would talk over the matter. You were talking to each other and congratulating each other on having won the election. Do you not know where the Doctor went to persuade?—No, I do not.

1895. But he went out to persuade?—We did not go together; he went one way and I another.

1896. You went into your ward. Did you go to get voters up?—Yes.

1897. Where did you go to get voters up?—To various parts in my parish and the adjoining parish.

1898. That is a large term in this city?—Tombland, St. Michael-at-Plea, and St. Peter's, Hungate; those would be the places I should especially visit.

1899. Is there any particularly low locality in your ward?—I suppose St. Michael-at-Plea would have the largest proportion of the working classes.

1900. Did you go there?—Not on the day of the election. I do not recollect going there.

1901. Did not you go there to get up voters?—No.

1902. Who got up the voters in that part to which you have alluded?—I suppose the committee.

1903. Whose department was it to go to that particular part that you have mentioned as the lowest locality?—I suppose it would be the Taylors who would go there; it is where they reside.

1904. And you arranged that they should go there. Dr. Allen was talking with you and the Taylors, was he not?—I do not think that we all four went together.

1905. Did not the Doctor talk with the Taylors?—I did not see him talking with the Taylors.

1906. Who was with you besides when that conversation took place about the Doctor persuading?—I cannot recollect. I did not say about the Doctor persuading.

1907. I mean when something was said which you understood as the Doctor persuading?—Each took a certain part to look after.

1908. Whose part was that to which you allude as being the lowest part?—I do not know that I should pay much attention to that part, for that was not in my division.

1909. But you would know whose part it was?—I suppose the two Taylors.

1910. Did not Dr. Allen also go?—Not that I am aware of; that would not be his district.

1911. What would be Dr. Allen's proper district?—The same as mine.

1912. You both went into your districts?—Yes, we both went because there are a good many streets and a good many yards. We could not work the whole.

1913. You went about your part, did you?—Yes.

1914. You do not know where the Doctor went?—No, I do not.

1915. You would not be surprised to find him down in another ward, should you?—No, I should not.

1916. When you went, in which direction did Dr. Allen go?—I do not know; he would leave the room, and I should not exactly know where he went to.

1917. You did not see him afterwards that day?—I saw him several times during the day.

1918. You have spoken about a conversation which occurred at the time when you found yourself in difficulties?—I said I never had any except casually. You must take that answer if you please.

1919. You have said you know that you were in difficulties and that you had a conversation about it; pray recollect.—You must, with due respect, take the assurance I have given you that I did not go very deep into politics this time.

1920. We only want to ascertain what you did?—I will tell you all I did as far as I can.

1921. You were taking an active interest in the election; you were going out to get up the people. You would not do that at the close of the poll, you know, after 4 o'clock?—No, that would be of no use.

1922. Then this must have been some considerable time before the close of the poll?—Yes.

1923. Do you recollect the last time you saw the Doctor in the committee room that day?—No, I cannot say at what time I saw him there.

1924. Did you see him in the committee room at all after the conversation about the persuasion?—Well, I think I saw him accidentally, but I did not speak to him.

1925. Upon seeing him accidentally again, did the Doctor tell you that he had been using persuasion?—No, we did not speak to each other.

1926. You had no conversation with him?—No, I had no conversation with him then at all.

1927. Was he talking to anybody?—No, he was walking along the street. He was walking on one side of the street and I was walking on the other.

1928. I asked you whether you saw him in the committee room on that day?—I said I saw him again casually.

1929. Both casually and accidentally, did you not again see Dr. Allen in the committee room that day?—Not until the election was over.

1930–2. It is not a very big room, I suppose?—Yes, it is a largish room.

1933. You congratulated the Doctor after the event upon the result, did you not?—Well, I do not know that we specially spoke to each other.

1934. Not specially, but casually; did you not say, "Well, this is a glorious result," or something like that?—Yes, I daresay I did.

1935. Did not the Doctor say, "Yes, I made it all right"?—No, I never heard him use such an expression.

1936. Did he not say "We have done the trick"?—No.

1937. You knew that the Doctor managed the finances, did you not?—No, I did not know that we had any finances to manage.

1938. Who did manage them?—I was told that we had no finances.

1939. But you did not believe it?—Yes I did.

1940. Do you believe it now?—Well, I did at the time.

1941. But you do not believe it now, do you?—Well, I suppose the result of the petition shows that there was something of that sort.

1942. If anybody did manage the financial arrangements it was the Doctor, was it not?—I cannot say. I do not know.

1943. But "casually and accidentally" do you not conjecture? You may consider that I put that into every question I ask you. Did you not think that he was managing the matter financially?—No, I did not.

1944. The Doctor had managed other elections, had he not, you knew that?—Well; yes; I had known that.

1945. Financially?—Not that I am aware of.

1946. What do you mean? Come; "casually and "accidentally"?—I have no means of knowing. I do not know that he had anything to do financially with the election.

1947. But do you not believe that he did manage former elections?—I know he had charge of one.

1948. Financially?—No; I did not know that there were any finances.

1949. You had nothing to do with them?—I had nothing to do with finances.

1950. If the Doctor did not who did; because somebody must have managed financially?—I think it will save you a great deal of trouble if I say this: I once met an honest Whig in our city, and he said to me "Look here; I daresay you and I have never "bribed, but all we do is we go canvassing, and then "we find out who wants a bribe, but we always keep "ourselves from knowing anything about bribery."

1951. Did you canvass?—Yes.

1952. Had you a book?—Yes, part of the time; but I had to leave Norwich and did not go on with it.

1953. But you kept it as long as you canvassed?—I had a book of my own.

1954. What did you do with that book?—I gave it in to the manager of the committee.

1955. The central committee?—No, the ward committee.

1956. I suppose that, as a man of business, you regularly posted your book according to your canvass?—I have told you that I was only engaged a few days before the election and I had to provide myself with a book, and afterwards another book was bound up and my book was marked.

1957. As long as you used your book you posted it up regularly?—Yes.

1958. Who was your ward manager?—Mr. Page.

1959. Do you recollect whether he was present at the conversation when the Doctor said "they will "want persuasion"?—I should not think he was.

1960. Was a person named Gilman there?—Yes.

1961-2. What was he?—He was along with Mr. Page.

1963. Was he present when the Doctor talked about persuasion?—No, I should say not, because there were two rooms, there was a large room and an inner room, and this conversation would take place in the larger room, what I may call the public room. I do not recollect any conversation in the inner room.

1964. Were Gilman and Page marking the poll together?—Yes.

1965. At the time when you were having the conversation?—They would be in the inner room and I in the outer room; they would take the result and I should look down the register, and they would keep the sum of the register; the totals were sent into them.

1966. The totals would not indicate unless they were marked off whom you were to take up?—No; the cards are brought in and then they are marked off on these public sheets, and then they are sent in to the inner room and they record the number of votes on the card.

1967. I may have occasion to ask you some question by and bye in the course of this inquiry, and I think it would be desirable for you to refresh your memory?—You have not asked me about certain matters, but I do not mind volunteering them, because I have nothing to keep secret.

1968. It is a singular thing that you should have said that there was something which "nothing on "earth would induce you to divulge"?—I do not recollect using such an expression.

1969. A man does not recollect sometimes that he has done imprudent things, but perhaps you will try and refresh your memory, and consider what could possibly have induced you to make use of such an expression. Do you know of anything else that could have induced you to use such language as that which I have put to you?—No, I do not; but I wish now to state that I was the means of bringing up some voters out of the seventh ward. You may think that I am concealing if I do not tell you that now, and though you have not asked me about it I wish to tell you everything I did. There was a person met me who said that there were some voters in the seventh ward, and would I go down to see them.

1970. Was that at a place called the "Marquis of Granby"?—No, not at all.

1971. The "Marquis of Granby" is in the seventh ward?—The seventh ward is a large ward.

1972. Where was this place?—This was out at Magdalen Gates. I went to a public house there called the "Elm" I think. I was never there before that time; he said there were some voters there, and would I go to them. I went, and when I got there I found that there were none, they were all gone, but he picked up some on the road. How he induced them to vote I do not know.

1973. Who was that?—The person who keeps the inn.

1974. What is his name?—I do not know his name.

1975. He picked up some people on the road?—Yes, he did.

1976. Casually and accidentally?—I believe so, perfectly.

1977. Did you hear how he persuaded them to vote?—No, I did not.

1978. Was the persuasion only "casual and accidental"?—If there was any I knew of none.

1979. What time of the day was this?—Just about the last hour.

1980. Where did you pick them up?—I think one was picked up in Magdalen Street.

1981. Do you know his name?—No.

1982. In what part of Magdalen Street?—That I cannot say.

1983. Did he pick him up in the open street or where?—In the open street.

1984. How did he pick him up?—He saw him in the open street, and asked him to get into the cab.

1985. He went up to him?—Yes.

1986. Where were you?—In the cab.

1987. How long was the parley in the street?—I do not know, it might be a few minutes.

1988. Were you looking at them all the time?—No, I was inside the cab.

1989. I suppose the fly had windows?—Yes, but if you were leaning back you would not see much.

1990. You sat back in the fly?—Yes.

1991. You did not sit with the blinds down?—No.

1992. But you took care to sit back, did you?—It was the easiest way.

1993. And more convenient, perhaps?—No, I do not know anything about it being more convenient.

THIRD DAY.

A. C. Woodrow.

21 Aug. 1869.

1994. "Casually and accidentally" he persuaded that man to get into the cab, did he?—Yes.

1995. How did he persuade him to do so?—I do not know.

1996. Did he not tell you?—No.

1997. Did not you ask him?—No.

1998. Did you think it wise not to ask him?—Well, I do not know that I thought a bit about it.

1999. You say that he persuaded another man?—Yes.

2000. Where was that?—I think somewhere near St. James' Church.

2001. "The nearer the Church, the further," &c., you know?—I do not know about that.

2002. Was it in the house?—You see I was leaning back in the cab, and could not tell where he got him from.

2003. How long did he take to persuade him?—A very little time.

2004. How came you to go?—Because I met him and he asked me to go.

2005. Where did you meet him?—I met him in the central rooms in St. Peter's.

2006. Who was with him?—He was by himself.

2007. You know he is a man you did not know; did he come up and say, "Mr. Woodrow come down "with me into No. 7 ward"?—No, he said he wanted some one to go with him into the seventh ward.

2008. Quite casually and accidentally?—As regards myself it was so.

2009. Was he afraid of going by himself?—He said there were some voters there who could be had for a shilling or two shillings' worth of beer. I have volunteered this statement, and therefore I hope you will see that I am not fencing with your questions.

2010. You were bound to tell us this?—I have done so.

2011. This man you casually and accidentally met, and you were told that there were some men to be got for a shilling or so's worth of beer, and you consented to go?—I did not know who he was; I took him down to the seventh ward to know whether I ought to go with him.

2012. To know whether he was a reliable man or not?—That I do not know.

2013. Why did you not go at once with him, as you did afterwards?—I went to make inquiries about him.

2014. You found that he was a man who could get a voter or two who would vote for a shilling or two's worth of beer?—No, I was told not to go.

2015. But still you went?—I did.

2016. You went for the purpose of inquiring whether you should go or not, and being told not to go you went?—Yes.

2017. Did he pick up any more than two voters?—Not that I am aware of.

2018. Did they get inside the fly or did they ride on the box?—They got inside.

2019. The fly was full then?—Yes.

2020. It would only hold four. How many were on the box?—There were two on the box.

2021. There was one and the driver, I suppose?—Yes, and the other was a lad whom the driver picked up to give him a ride.

2022. You went down and got these men, and got them for a shilling's worth of beer?—No, they were all gone, there was no one there.

2023. But these two men that you picked up were picked up for a shilling or two?—I do not know that.

2024. You went down there for the purpose of picking them up for a shilling's worth or two of beer. Do you mean to say that you do not know that these men were got for a shilling or two's worth of beer; did you give the money for the beer?—There was no promise made of beer.

2025. Of course not, but did you give any money?—Yes, I gave some money.

2026. What money did you give?—We had left half-a-crown at his own public house for beer.

2027. For these men?—No, those men were not there; they were all non-voters.

2028. Then you left half-a-crown for beer at his house?—Yes.

2029. No men were in the house?—So I was told.

2030. I suppose you did not drink half-a-crown's worth of beer?—No, that half-a-crown was left for the good of the house.

2031. Was that after or before you picked up the two men?—Before we picked up the two men.

2032. Then, if I understand, you went down thinking there were a number of men in the house?—Yes.

2033. (Mr. Biron.) You got those two men pretty cheap; that is what it comes to?—But they did not come from that house; they were picked up in the street.

2034. (Mr. Dowdeswell.) Can you give us the names of either of those men?—No.

2035. You would know them again I suppose?—No, that I should not, the cab was full and we were all in a hurry.

2036. There were four of you in the cab?—I do not know whether there were not five; it was a complete squeeze.

2037. Are you sure that there was not another man that you accidentally and casually met?—He was not a voter.

2038. There was a man on the box?—The cab driver was on the box.

2039. You know you were squeezed in the fly, was there not a third voter. You have told me that there were five in the fly?—Yes, but they were not voters; there was only one voter at a time; out of those five there would be only one voter.

2040. There were two voters picked up on the road?—Yes, at different times.

2041. You told me you could not see because you were sitting back?—In the fly.

2042. Sitting back, you did not like to see what was done. On which side did he get out, on the same side as that on which he went to the man?—They passed through this fly in an extraordinary manner, in at one side and out at the other, till I got quite tired.

2043. There were so many of them?—There were only two voters.

2044. You say they were passing through so rapidly that you got tired?—People were running in and out of the fly. I do not know what for.

2045. Did the fly casually and accidentally (I must qualify it in that way) run to the poll?—Yes.

2046. And I suppose that the persons who were so brought casually and accidentally in the fly went up to the poll and polled?—Yes.

2047. (Mr. Biron.) What were their names?—I cannot tell.

2048. You saw them poll?—I did.

2049. (Mr. Dowdeswell.) How many times did you go up and down?—We only polled two voters.

2050. Did you go up and down more than twice?—We met the first man in Magdalen Street, I think, and he went and tried to vote first in Peacock Street; that was full, and we could not vote him there. Then we tried a little further down, and we could not vote him there. Then we got him to Magdalen Street, and when we got him there we found he belonged to the first ward.

2051. I do not quite understand at the present moment how it was about those men who were passing in and out of the cab so frequently and so rapidly. Who were those people?—I do not know, but if you call the man at the "Elm" tavern he will tell you.

2052. Where did they go and what became of them?—I really do not know.

2053. You say you gave half-a-crown; what other money did you part with?—I gave the man that voted in Magdalen Street a shilling after he had voted.

2054. But you saw that he polled before you gave him the shilling?—Well, I was told that he had.

2055. Do you know who he was?—No.

2056. You polled the other man?—Yes.

2057. What did you give him?—I do not know that he got anything.

2058. But do you not recollect that he did get something?—No, I cannot recollect.

2059. It is a very singular thing if there was only one, or was it that you paid so many that you forget how much money you parted with?—I do not even know that I paid the last one.

2060. Will you undertake to say that you did not pay the second man a shilling?—No, I will not undertake to say that; I cannot say.

2061. How many other men were there that you gave a shilling to?—I do not know that I did give the second. Whether I did the other I cannot say.

2062. You say that you went down twice, and you do not know how many times more you went down. How came you to go down three or four times?—I told you that there was such a crowd at the polling places that we could not get him voted. There were three polling places we had to go to, and then we found he was in the first ward, so I had to take him up there.

2063. Did you not bring some other men and drop them at the polling place as you passed towards the No. 1 ward, because you know they were passing in and out of the fly so rapidly. Were not those persons who got in persons who were dropped at the polling places which you passed, and you took these men on to the first polling place, which was a long way out? You say they passed in and out of the cab very quickly?—Yes, they did.

2064. Did they not pass in and out so quickly that you took them up to one polling place, dropped them at that polling place, and went on until you got to another?—No, I have told you the fact.

2065. Was it only these two? Did you not give more than half-a-crown?—Well, I spent another half-a-crown at that public house at St. James'.

2066. What public house is that?—Somewhere near St. James'.

2067. But you know St. James' is a large place?—But I told you it was near the Church.

2068. But you said the other public house?—I went near two public houses.

2069. In St. James', near the Church?—Yes.

2070. Was one the "Queen's Head"?—I do not know the signs.

2071. Do you know the name of the landlord?—No.

2072. You went there?—Yes.

2073. Was it the "Ship and Jolly Hatters," because I should think you would not forget that sign?—There were two there, and I cannot tell whether it was the first or the second.

2074. Do you know the landlord?—No, I did not see the landlord.

2075. Did you see the landlady?—Outside the door.

2076. What sort of a person was she—a stout person?—Yes, a stout person.

2077. What did you give her?—Half-a-crown.

2078. How came you to give half-a-crown to that landlady?—Because she said she had had a lot of people, and they were all gone up to vote for Sir Henry Stracey.

2079. What I understand is, that she had sent up a lot of persons to vote for Sir Henry Stracey, and wanted half-a-crown?—No, she did not want it, I volunteered it.

2080. How came you to give half-a-crown to a mere volunteer upon a statement of that kind? Had you any money provided for the purpose?—No, it was my own money.

2081. I suppose you had made up your mind to spend a certain amount?—No, I had not.

2082. Had you got a certain number down on your list?—No.

2083. (Mr. Biron.) How many publicans did you leave these half-crowns with?—Only two.

2084. To look after some voters?—Yes.

2085. To persuade them to go up to the poll?—I suppose so.

2086. But you went for an object, was it not to persuade them to go up to the poll?—Yes, of course it was.

2087. You would have been unnecessary unless it was for certain purposes?—Yes.

2088. You went down to provide the means?—No.

2089. You had got the means?—No, I had not.

2090. What money had you in your pocket?—I had half a sovereign and eighteen pence.

2091. Then if you got it changed you had 7*s.* 6*d.* out of the half sovereign?—Yes, I had.

2092. Where did the half sovereign come from?—Out of my own pocket.

2093. But how did it get there?—It was my own money.

2094. Did it come from Harvey's bank?—I cannot tell where it came from, but it was my own money.

2095. You went there to persuade these people to vote; was that in consequence of your conversation with Dr. Allen about its being necessary to persuade the people to vote?—No, Dr. Allen had nothing to do with that at all.

2096. It was after that conversation with Dr. Allen?—Yes, it was the last hour.

2097. You thought it was a good prescription of Dr. Allen's?—Oh no.

2098. (Mr. Mansfield.) After you had done this, did you report it to anybody? Did you tell anybody how many voters you had taken up?—No.

2099. No one at all?—No one at all.

2100. Have you not told anybody to this day?—No.

2101. You never told anybody until to-day that you had been successful in getting these two voters up?—No.

2102. (Mr. Biron.) Did you ever mention it until to-day?—I may have casually mentioned it.

2103. Just tell me what it was that Allen said on that afternoon?—I do not recollect any conversation specially with Mr. Allen.

2104. But he said something or other, I suppose?—Yes.

2105. What was it? Can you not tell?—I cannot tell.

2106. The next morning, what was it?—I do not know that I saw him the next morning.

2107. But after you knew you had won the election you saw him?—Yes.

2108. What was it he said then?—I do not know that we had any conversation, except simply that it was a jolly good thing to have won the election.

2109. Did he not say how you had won it?—No.

2110. Did he not say what he had done towards it?—No.

2111. Just think for a moment; you know you said something about it?—Have I not already told you that Mr. Allen and myself row together generally in politics, but we are not very intimate.

2112. But you had a conversation that afternoon with him?—It was merely an expression of general satisfaction at the result.

2113. Did he not say anything about the way the result had been arrived at?—No.

THIRD DAY.

S. Daynes.

21 Aug. 1869.

SAMUEL DAYNES sworn and examined.

2114. (Mr. Biron.) What are you?—I am a printer.

2115. I believe you have taken an active part in the electioneering matters of this city for some years past?—In some of the elections.

2116. What was the first election that you took an active part in?—For that I think I must go back as far as the year 1832.

2117. But more recently than that. Take the 1857 election; did you take part in that?—No.

2118. The 1859 election?—Yes, I had something to do with that; but the first election that I had really any official connexion with would be that of 1865.

2119. On that occasion had you the financial management of it?—Not in any way.

2120. You knew nothing about the money arrangements?—Nothing whatever.

2121. In 1868 you, I believe, were joint manager with Mr. Ray?—I was.

2122. In 1865 Wilde was alone, was he not?—Yes.

2123. In 1868 you and Ray were joint managers for Sir William Russell under Mr. Coaks?—We were.

2124. Had you anything to do with the money matters, or were they left to Mr. Ray?—Entirely to Mr. Ray, so far as Sir William Russell was concerned.

2125. And for Mr. Tillett did you interfere at all in the money matters?—Not in any way.

2126. That was left to Mr. Stevens?—Mr. Stevens and Mr. Ray dealt with the money matters. I was present on several occasions when the accounts were gone through; but, so far as regarded the dealing with the money, I had no dealings with that either on one side or the other.

2127. You, I suppose, examined the canvass and the results of it from time to time?—Well, my connexion with the joint election commenced, I think, about the 3rd or 4th of November. I had occasion to leave Norwich some three or four days afterwards, and was absent nearly a week. On my return on the Friday evening preceding the election I of course commenced an inquiry as to how matters had progressed during my absence, and how they then stood; and I continued that course down to the end of the election.

2128. Were you present on the evening of the Saturday when Mr. Coaks was in the central committee room?—I was in the central committee room many times on the Saturday.

2129. Were you there when the question about securing the show of hands was gone into?—Yes, but I think that was in the afternoon.

2130. I think the gentlemen who have been called substantially agree about that?—It is extremely difficult when you meet many times in the course of the same day to fix any particular transaction at a particular time.

2131. It was understood by all of you that the show of hands was to be secured for the Liberals?—I heard a conversation respecting the show of hands, but I may say that I attach very little value to the show of hands, and I have expressed that on many occasions. However, such a conversation did take place, and the impression on my mind was that it was the general desire to acquire that kind of prestige which the obtaining of the show of hands is supposed to give.

2132. In point of fact you assented to its being done?—I do not know that I volunteered an opinion about it.

2133. You thought it a small matter?—A very small matter.

2134. Did you on the Saturday go into the result of the canvass?—Not completely so; I partially looked at the canvass on the Saturday, but more minutely on the Monday evening.

2135. What was your opinion of the result of the canvass?—It seemed to me to be a very worthless canvass; in fact, it could not be called a canvass to be relied upon.

2136. Did you go into it at all with Mr. Coaks?—Mr. Coaks was present, but I think, so far as his personal examination of the canvass was concerned, it was with Mr. William Wilde, as far as I remember.

2137. Was the result of your examination that you thought the Liberals would not be able to carry both seats?—My opinion upon my return from the investigation which I made of the canvass on the Saturday and Monday was shaken very materially. Previously to that time I felt full confidence in the result of the coalition; that though we could not carry all parties with us that would settle the election; but that opinion was materially altered by the imperfect condition of the canvass and the results as displayed by the canvass.

2138. Did you think that night that you would win or not; what was your judgment upon it?—It was extremely difficult to form a judgment, and for this reason, that although in the eyes of the public, perhaps, we professed to be a united party, yet that was not the actual state of the case. Speaking now of Sir William Russell's section, we could not by possibility tell how many of Mr. Tillett's more ardent supporters would refuse to support Sir William Russell.

2139. You could not, in fact, tell how many of Tillett's supporters would go with you?—We could not tell at all what course events might take.

2140. Did you and Mr. Coaks agree upon that?—I believe we did agree, we thought it was a very hazardous matter.

2141. Now to go to the Tuesday, you polled up very well the first hour?—Not so well as we had been accustomed to.

2142. But still both the Liberal candidates had a considerable majority?—An error occurred with regard to keeping the poll in one of our wards, which prevents my speaking with certainty of the condition of the poll, except as we gathered it from the returns of our opponents.

2143. Some mistake occurred which left you in doubt as to the truth of your figures?—Quite so.

2144. But still with all that, you at the committee room knew that you were ahead?—The greatest certainty that I personally have of the matter would be as to the condition of the poll about a quarter to 12.

2145. At a quarter to 12 had you a substantial majority?—I should say that Sir William Russell at that time would be 420 or 430 ahead of Sir Henry Stracey, and Mr. Tillett would at the same time be about 390.

2146. Taking them in round numbers at that time, did you think that the election was pretty safe for both candidates?—I did at that time, in fact I felt sure that unless means were resorted to that we clearly should not have recourse to, we had won the election.

2147. That you had won both seats?—Certainly.

2148. Was there any discussion in the central committee room about the state of the election shortly after 12, or thereabouts in the day?—No; not at that time in my hearing.

2149. When did the first reports come in that at all alarmed you?—I should say we were not disturbed about the result of the election until 2 o'clock.

2150. About 2 o'clock did reports come in that money was going about?—Yes, there had been reports about that time which we had endeavoured to test, because we all know that at elections there are parties who will spread these reports for the purpose of inducing those who have the conduct of the election to have recourse to certain means which these men like to indulge in.

2151. When those reports came, did you have any consultation?—We never during the whole day had what I should call a consultation; people would gather together, but there were not many admitted into the central committee room.

2152. But those who were there would naturally speak about what was going on?—They would.

2153. What was said about anything being done?—These reports came and were tested from time to time.

2154. Did you go out into the wards to try if you could see what was going on?—I did.

2155. Did Ray go on the same errand?—I think not, Mr. Stevens went with me. Mr. Ray had been with me during the day, but the first occasion that Mr. Ray and myself went out together was when we went to every ward in order to ascertain the then state of the poll in consequence of the rumour to which I previously referred.

2156. You then came back with the result which you think is a tolerably correct result at 12 o'clock?—At 12 o'clock, whatever variations might have occurred, would be the time occupied in going from one ward to the other; but that would be the substantial result beyond all question.

2157. Besides yourself did any of the other gentlemen at the central committee room leave to go to the wards and make inquiries after the reports had come in that bribery had been going on?—I believe that would be principally confined to Mr. Ray, Mr. Stevens, and myself.

2158. Womersley came in with a report, did he not?—I saw Mr. Womersley both in the committee room and out of it in the course of the day.

2159. I am speaking about 12 or 1 o'clock.—I think it was much later than that. I think the first time I saw Mr. Womersley that day to remember him was about 1 o'clock, and that was down in Pockthorpe.

2160. I want to call your attention to a time when Womersley came and said that some men were being bought?—I should think that was past 2.

2161. Womersley is a great Tillettite, is he not?—Not in the early part of the election; in the matter of fixing the candidates Mr. Womersley was supposed to favour Sir William Russell.

2162. But towards the end he became a warm supporter of Tillett, did he not?—Yes, I think that was so; but I believe we had his name as belonging to our section in the early part of the time.

2163. You have told me that you found that as matters went on he was hotter for Tillett than for Sir William Russell?—No, I have never said that, nor do I think so; I think that Mr. Womersley simply fell in with the subsequent arrangement of the party.

2164. You do not think he was going for one more than for the other?—I think Mr. Womersley acted as a decided party man for both the Liberal candidates.

2165. You remember his coming in with a report, and you say it was about 2 o'clock?—I think it was.

2166. What was that report?—That was a report which was a repetition of a former report which I had satisfied my mind in the first instance was incorrect, and I went down again with Mr. Stevens to test it.

2167-9. Where to?—To Pockthorpe; that was the place where it was stated that bribery had been commenced, and that a number of men were waiting at several public houses in order to be bribed.

2170. Did you see Womersley there?—I saw him there on the first occasion when I went down there. I may say that up to that time I had no particular knowledge of Mr. Womersley; I knew him by name exceedingly well, but in fact so little did I know of him that I asked Mr. Stevens who he was; there were other gentlemen I knew very well. I think I saw Mr. Harper there, Mr. Smith, the chemist, and two or three others, who alluded to this report that the Stracey party were about bribing. Upon that Mr. Stevens and myself had some conversation, and we mutually agreed without the slightest hesitation that if the Stracey party chose to take that course we must submit to the results, without following them.

2171. Your opinion was that if the money was forthcoming the election was gone so far as one of the Liberal candidates was concerned?—Decidedly.

2172. Where was this?—In the street, near the "Marquis of Granby."

2173. Was the "Marquis of Granby" one of the houses you referred to?—Where we were told these men were to be found.

2174. Were any other houses named?—There might be, but I do not remember them, nor did I go to any others.

2175. There are two or three houses in that district?—Oh yes, there are a number of houses about Pockthorpe.

2176. Is that one of your low neighbourhoods?—Yes.

2177. Did you yourself see any men hanging about those houses?—No. On that occasion Mackley, who is a well-known man, and who is the landlord of this house, was not at home, nor were there any persons there at that time.

2178. Did you see any of the Conservatives on that occasion about the "Marquis of Granby"?—No, I did not, in fact there was no one about the place except ourselves. I am speaking of the first visit; that would be early in the day, about half-past 12, or it might be near 1.

2179. I will pass that first occasion and go to the time when you saw Womersley there?—That was the first occasion.

2180. Did you not see him on the second occasion when you went with Stevens?—No.

2181. Who did you see there on the second occasion?—I saw the landlord of the house, Mackley, and he, in a very mysterious way, asked Mr. Stevens and myself to go into the nine-pin ground, as he had some communication to make; we went into the nine-pin ground, which is at the rear of the house, and he then said he could get a certain number of voters for a certain amount of money.

2182. Do you remember how many voters he said?—I think he said 20 or 30, and he believed he could get them for from 10*s.* to 1*l.* apiece, as far as I remember.

2183. Did he say where they were?—He said he knew where to find them.

2184. What did you infer from that, that they were in his house or close at hand?—That they were either at his house or somewhere in the neighbourhood where he could easily find them, but as we did not intend to buy we simply amused him.

2185. Did you go into any of the rooms at his house to see if men were there?—There is a bar in the front part of the house; we passed through that bar into the yard, and from thence to this skittle ground, and we returned in the same way.

2186. Did you see any men about?—There were a few men in front of his bar, some ten or a dozen, perhaps; whether they were voters or not I do not know. There was one man recognised me, as they do at election times, in a very friendly way; he said, "I am one of the right sort." I said "Yes, I suppose "you are; have you voted?" and he said "Yes."

2187. Did you see any of the active Conservative voters there?—None.

2188. How long did you stay there?—So long as it took us to go to this skittle alley, where we might remain some three or four minutes, I should think; from the time we drove up to the place to the time of our getting out it would be a long time to say it was a quarter of an hour. I do not think it would be so long.

2189. Then did you go back to the central committee room?—Yes, as quickly as possible.

2190. What did you do with yourself for the rest of the day?—We remained in the central committee room until reports reached us which quite confirmed what was going on, and then I went up to the sixth ward and I saw then—

2191. About the fifth ward first, what did you hear about that?—I saw but very little of the fifth ward.

2192. Were reports brought to the committee room about it?—Yes, I understood that at a house called the "Trumpet" there was a very large assemblage of

THIRD DAY.

S. Daynes.

21 Aug. 1869.

Stracey's people, and that they were buying votes there.

2193. Passing along the street that day, did you see any fellows hanging about ?—I saw a crowd round the "Trumpet."

2194. You passed by the "Trumpet" ?—I did when I went to the third ward, and in fact many times visited every ward in the city.

2195. You are an old election hand, and understand this place perfectly. Did you observe men hanging about waiting for what they could get ?—No doubt that was so.

2196. In considerable numbers ?—Well, I should say in the third ward I observed the largest number. There is a plain very near the polling place; whether they were drawn there by curiosity I cannot tell, some might be drawn there by curiosity, but no doubt a large number were there as you say.

2197. To vote if they could get money ?—Yes.

2198. Did anyone make any offer to you to vote ?—No.

2199. You were in a fly of some sort ?—We had a fly or an open carriage just as it might happen.

2200. Now when you found that the Conservatives were coming up so fast did you take no steps at your committee room to get voters ?—The only steps taken, and the only steps that could be taken at this time, which would be something like a quarter past 3 o'clock, would be a step to encourage those who were employed to vote, that is to say, that voters who had been employed on our side with the understanding that they should not vote should be asked to vote. We were very anxious to keep within the law; Mr. Stevens, Mr. Ray, and myself had many anxious consultations as to how we were to keep entirely within the new law.

2201. Then do I understand that you had absolutely determined in no event to violate that law ?—Most decidedly, as far as I am personally concerned, I should not have consented to it.

2202. Supposing Russell had been behind ?—I should not then. My opinions were so fixed that it would be an imprudent step, to say the least of it, acting under the new law, without any decisions upon that law, without having any guide whatever as to what view might be taken of certain acts, it was our business, as the assistants of the manager of the election, to conduct it within the law, if we possibly could.

2203. You determined, win or lose, to fight the battle as one of purity ?—Most unquestionably.

2204. You were about the city, you say, during the course of that day ?—Yes, from before the opening of the poll in the morning. I live some distance from the city, and I came to Norwich about half-past 7.

2205. Did you spend any of your own money that day, I mean any trifling sums ?—Not a farthing; I never parted with a single coin until after the poll was closed, and that was to lend Mr. Coaks sixpence to purchase a newspaper.

2206. Then you were not tempted to give half-a-crown, or anything of that sort ?—Not a farthing.

2207. Before the coalition, had you been appointed to act for Sir William Russell ?—The original understanding, or at least the talk with Mr. Coaks, who in reality represented Sir William Russell, was that Mr. Ray and myself should be the agents for Sir William Russell.

2208. You convey to me the impression, I do not know whether it is correct or not, that there was no final arrangement made as to your acting for Sir William Russell alone ?—No; it seemed to be Mr. Coaks' wish that we should be considered as the actual agents, but he subsequently altered his mind, and himself became the unpaid agent, and wished us to act as joint managers of the election.

2209. That was not until the coalition ?—I could hardly fix that with certainty.

2210. There or thereabouts ?—I believe it was about that time.

2211. What did you do as joint managers; did you assist in appointing ward managers ?—Well, those matters were mainly arranged by Mr. Coaks himself, with regard to the ward managers, but there were a large number of other persons to appoint, who were appointed jointly.

2212. You did not take it upon yourself to appoint anybody other than the gentlemen whose names we have had furnished by Mr. Ray and Mr. Coaks ?—I appointed no person except in connexion with Messrs. Ray and Stevens, speaking now apart from the ward managers. The ward managers for Mr. Tillett were appointed without consultation with us, and I may say the ward managers on our side were appointed by Mr. Coaks.

2213. (Mr. Dowdeswell.) You acted entirely in the first instance as the representative of Sir William Russell ?—Entirely so.

2214. Then came the coalition, and then you acted for both ?—Yes, to a certain extent, but there always seemed to be a distinction between them.

2215. But, in fact, you were still the representative of Sir William Russell, and ultimately you were paid by him ?—Certainly.

2216. Other persons represented Mr. Tillett up to and after the time of the coalition, did they not ?—Yes.

2217. Distinct from yourself ?—Quite so.

2218. Before the coalition had you felt pretty sure about Sir William Russell's election ?—It was very difficult to speculate as to what would be the result.

2219. You were in doubt, were you ?—We were in doubt as to who, in fact, would be our candidates.

2220. But I mean after Sir William Russell started; he had been your representative before ?—There is rather a long history attached to that starting.

2221. But after Sir William started did you remain in doubt up to the time of the coalition as to success ?—Previous to the coalition it was extremely difficult and it would have been unwise to form an opinion, because we could not tell who we should have to oppose us; we could not tell whether we should have two Conservative candidates, or whether Mr. Tillett might not select a colleague, when we should have had to fight a sort of triangular duel.

2222. When the coalition was formed were you pretty certain as to Sir William's success ?—When the coalition was formed, from what I knew as to the state of the other side, I thought our victory was complete. After the union of the parties, although a certain number of what are called the "high Whigs" in this city refused to be parties to the coalition, I felt that the success of both the Liberal candidates was certain.

2223. You thought both would be successful ?—At that time; I am speaking immediately on the coalition being effected.

2224. Mr. Coaks has told us that about 12 o'clock it was anybody's election ?—Twelve o'clock on the day of the election ?

2225. Yes.—I considered at 12 o'clock, with a majority of 400, it was clearly the election of Russell and Tillett if the other party abstained from bribery.

2226. How did you get at that, because the canvass would not give it to you, and the numbers polling had not given it to you ?—Mr. Ray and myself, with the utmost speed, when we found the state of the poll, paid a visit to every ward in this city, and obtained the accurate state of the poll up to the moment that we were in the committee room. That gave us, as I said previously, more than 400 majority for Sir William Russell, and very nearly 400 majority for Mr. Tillett; and we felt that with that state of things at 12 o'clock, having regard to the number of votes then polled, it was utterly impossible that Sir Henry Stracey could beat down that majority without having recourse to unfair means.

2227. There were ample voters left behind to do it ?—There were plenty of voters left behind, but from our experience of previous elections, although I admit that with the great addition to the constituency we should have to modify our opinion to a certain extent, still I repeat it now, that my opinion at 12 o'clock on that day was that with 400 majority, unless bribery was had recourse to by the other side, we must win.

2228. There was ample time for any number of men to vote?—Yes.

2229. And your canvass had given you no information?—The canvass was no canvass at all.

2230. Then there being an ample margin of voters, and those voters being, at any rate as regards a great number of them, entirely unknown to you as to their quality, because they were new men, how could you feel certain that with only 400 majority at that time you would succeed?—I could see no reason why the same rate of polling should not continue on both sides if we both used the same weapons. I could see no reason why the superiority that had gone on from 11 to 12 should not continue from 12 to 1. So far as I knew of the city I could discover no reason for arriving at any other conclusion.

2231. There was eventually a considerable majority for Sir Henry Stracey?—Certainly.

2232. You spoke about going down to the "Marquis of Granby," and you said you went down there for the first time about 12 o'clock, I think?—Between 12 and 1. It is very difficult indeed to fix the time exactly.

2233. You found nothing going on then?—Nothing. My impression then was, and still remains, that no bribery had been practised up to that time.

2234. Are you quite clear as to when you met Mr. Womersley down there? Did you not meet him there the second time of your going down?—I think not. I am disposed to be confident in my memory, and I fix it that the first time I went to the "Marquis of Granby" was the first time I saw Mr. Womersley.

2235. But did you not see him when you went down there the second time?—In my opinion I did not.

2236. Because Mr. Stevens has told us it was the second time. I will call your attention to a circumstance relating to it. Had you not seen Mr. Womersley in the room in the interval, and had he not told Mr. Coaks in your presence that they were bribing down at the "Marquis of Granby," and did you not go down in consequence of that information?—Some one undoubtedly said that, and it might have been Mr. Womersley. You will be aware that in the course of the day there would be a great deal of conversation with a great number of persons.

2237. It may have entirely passed from your memory?—It may be so.

2238. Therefore I only call these facts to your memory to see whether you do not recollect that it was upon the second occasion that you saw Mr. Womersley?—I feel quite confident that it was on the first occasion.

2239. Were there many men down at the "Marquis of Granby" the second time you went there?—No, I think there could not have been more than some 14 or 15, that I saw.

2240. Where were they—in the bar, or where?—So far as I remember of the house, and I have never gone beyond the front part of the house except on one occasion previously, and that is some years ago, in connexion with some local election, I saw some persons in the back kitchen, but it was only a casual glance in passing from the skittle alley to the front part of the house, but it did not strike me as a crowd of persons, or anything of the kind.

2241. The landlord having made this communication to you, in going out did you take more particular notice whether they were there?—No, it really in no way interested me, because I knew perfectly well that we should not buy them.

2242. You had been told that they were buying them on the other side?—Yes.

2243. And you were told that they could be bought by your side?—Yes.

2244. Therefore one would have thought that you would have looked out to see what they were and who they were, and something about them?—I hardly required to be told they could be bought, because I knew that was perfectly certain; if they had told me so a week before I should have believed that.

2245. Is the vendible commodity so common in this city that you would have no doubt?—My opinion is, that at Norwich, as at every other place where the means are taken to buy votes, they can be purchased.

2246. Was the first report that you thought to be unfounded about 12 o'clock?—Between 12 and 1; it must have been nearly 1 o'clock, I think.

2247. What was the time that you went down into the city?—It must have been very nearly 2 or shortly after 2 o'clock.

2248. Did you go down at all in the interval between those times?—No.

2249. Did you go down later in the day?—I went down but twice that day.

2250. Now did you hear that there was bribery in any other ward besides that?—I did.

2251. Where was that?—I was in the eighth ward about 12 o'clock, and then rumours reached me at the committee room that certain parties were operating at a house which I think is called the "Woolpack."

2252. Who were the parties said to be operating?—Mr. Hardiment was mentioned to me as being one of the most conspicuous and active men in that ward.

2253. Was he mentioned as being engaged in bribery then?—He was.

2254. Did you go down again?—On the occasion of that visit I went down to ascertain the state of the poll in that district.

2255. Did you also go down to see whether there was any bribery going on?—That was the first time I had it reported to me that bribery had been commenced, and I did not believe it.

2256. Did you find anything of that sort going on at that time?—I did not.

2257. Was that report repeated?—Yes.

2258. Did you go down a second time?—No, the advice I gave (and I believe others did the same) to those parties who brought these reports was, that as we did not intend to buy votes, all we could advise them to do, in the interest of our party, was to watch those men who they suspected of bribing on the other side, to hang upon their skirts as much as possible, and to impede their operations.

2259. Can you tell me what time of the day it was that you heard the second report about Hardiment?—I think it must have been 3 o'clock.

2260. Did you hear any such reports with regard to the other wards?—The "Trumpet" was mentioned on two or three occasions at the committee room, but we gave the general advice which I have just stated.

2261. Do you recollect any other ward?—No, I do not.

2262. Did you yourself go to any other ward to see whether bribery was going on?—No, I did not.

HENRY BLAKE MILLER sworn and examined.

H. B. Miller.

2263. (Mr. Mansfield.) What are you?—A solicitor.

2264. You were one of the managers in this election?—One of the ward managers.

2265. Of which ward?—The fifth ward.

2266. Where were your head quarters?—At the "Crown and Angel."

2267. Can you give us the names of the persons who were acting with you on the committee?—We had no committee.

2268. Who were the people acting with you?—Well, I acted very much on my own responsibility; I asked two or three to assist me. I can give you the names of those if you like.

2269. Yes, if you please.—Mr. Hall was one, Mr. Edward Bennett was one, Mr. Aldis was another,

THIRD DAY.

H. B. Miller.

21 Aug. 1869.

there was a Mr. Betts, who assisted somewhat, and a Mr. Grimshaw, I think.

2270. Were they there throughout the day of the election?—No, they were out and in.

2271. Getting up voters for you?—Yes.

2272. In cabs?—No, we had no cabs. Mr. Hall used his own carriage.

2273. Who did the canvassing in that ward?—I did some of it myself, Mr. Aldis did some, Mr. Bennett, and Mr. Hall.

2274. Does the result of your canvass appear in a book?—Yes, I think it does.

2275. Did it appear afterwards that the persons who promised you their votes all voted for you?—In almost all the instances those who had promised did.

2276. Was there a large number of doubtful men in that ward?—I found that there were many hanging back.

2277. Did any of them make any proposal?—Not to me.

2278. Do you know of any suggestion being made on their behalf?—Not by any person with me. I formed the impression that some one on the other side had been canvassing, and I found that there had been some inducement held out to them to withhold their promises, that was my experience.

2279. Did you find out the name of any person by whom such inducement had been offered?—No, I did not; I can only give you my impression from some of the parties on the other side whom I saw canvassing.

2280. Perhaps you had better give us the names of those parties?—The first party I saw canvassing for the Conservatives were Mr. Fisher, a grocer in St. Stephen's, Mr. William Norgate, a wine merchant in St. Stephen's, Mr. Stockings, a chemist, and I think Mr. Watson, the son of Mr. Watson the solicitor.

2281. Did you see them canvassing on the day of the election?—No; I saw them on the day of the election, but not canvassing.

2282. Did you see them do anything on the day of the election?—I saw them very active on the day of the election.

2283. Did you see any one of them taking anybody to the poll on the day of the election?—I cannot say that I did, I had not an opportunity of doing so, only casually.

2284. Did you see any of them go to the public houses?—No; I myself was mostly occupied within on that day; I was out very little and had not an opportunity of going about. My duties were to superintend the election, and I kept to my own department.

2285. Were any reports brought to you of the operations of the Conservative party?—Yes, there were.

2286. At what time?—About half-past 1 or 2 o'clock.

2287. What report was brought to you then?—Well, I may say that before I heard the report, I observed that the Conservatives were getting certain votes which I thought looked suspicious. I saw that from the cards which were brought in from the polling places, and at the same time I observed a great activity in the street outside, as if some spurt was about being put on to bring up the numbers, and immediately upon that the Conservatives went on at a pace.

2288. What report was brought to you?—A general report that there were some monies being spent.

2289. Was any name mentioned?—No.

2290. Were any names mentioned as being active?—No, not any.

2291. Did you see anyone in the street that you knew?—I saw the gentlemen whom I have mentioned to you very active indeed, more active than they had been previously.

2292. Just at the time when the polling for the Conservatives was becoming quicker?—Yes.

2293. You saw each of those gentlemen you have named so employed?—Yes.

2294. (Mr. Dowdeswell.) You said that you entered the result of your canvass in a book?—Yes; I may have done so to some extent, but I should think the parties who were with me might probably have done it.

2295. However, there was a book in which the result of your joint canvass was entered?—Certainly.

2296. Can you tell me where that book is?—I believe it was sent to the central committee room; I should imagine that you have it.

2297. Did you send it to the central committee room?—I should think I ordered it to be sent; I have no doubt I did.

2298. What became of the contents of your committee room?—They were all sent to the central committee room in a bundle, papers and everything that was used.

2299. You have not seen them since?—No.

2300. (Mr. Biron.) You said that you observed by the return as it came in that certain men had voted, and that that roused your suspicions?—It did.

2301. Were they men that you had canvassed or that you knew had been canvassed?—No; I should think not.

2302. Then when you said that your suspicions were aroused by seeing that they had voted, were they men you knew as being likely to take bribes?—I did not know it of my own knowledge, but I had heard so.

2303. They were men that you had heard of?—Just so.

2304. Could you, taking the poll book, put a mark against them or any of them; I do not want you to mention them here?—I should think I could; I can give you a list of the names that voted after 2 o'clock.

2305. That you suspected?—I cannot quite say that, but I can give you a list for your guidance.

2306. We do not require more than that; perhaps you will give that to the Secretary at your convenience?—I shall be very happy, as far as I can.

2307. (Mr. Dowdeswell.) Do you know of your own knowledge of any money being spent improperly during the election?—Certainly not.

2308. Of course you were pretty well known as being an active supporter of Sir William Russell and Mr. Tillett?—Yes, I was.

2309. When you were travelling along the streets did any men speak to you and offer to vote for a consideration?—No; I was not out of the house on the day of the election for more than half an hour.

2310. What time was that at which you were out?—Early in the morning I visited each of the compartments, to see the check card writers were doing their duty, once or twice in the day, and between 3 and 4 I went out to ask one or two persons to come and vote.

2311. You did not meet any bodies of men who came and offered to vote?—No, we had no bodies of men.

2312. No party came to you as representing a body of men, or anything of that kind?—No, nothing of the kind.

2313. Was no overture of any kind made to you for the sale of votes?—No.

2314. You, I think, have been engaged in other elections, have you not?—Oh, yes.

2315. There has been corruption upon those occasions?—Yes, I believe so.

2316. Do you know whether that has been done by way of gangs represented by one man, or whether it has been done merely individually, if I may so term it?—I should say it has been done individually, but I have no personal knowledge of the matter at all.

2317. Not personal knowledge, do not assume that I impute that to you; but from your general knowledge of Norwich should you say it was done individually or in bodies?—From what I have heard I should say that the last election was the first time that numbers met together in gangs.

ROBERT SAMUEL WALTER LONG sworn and examined.

2318. (Mr. Biron.) Are you a gamekeeper?—Yes.

2319. In whose employment?—Mr. Osborn Springfield's.

2320. Do you live in this city?—Yes.

2321. Were you a voter at the last election?—Yes.

2322. Where did you vote?—I think it is the seventh ward.

2323. I presume you voted for Sir William Russell and Mr. Tillett?—Yes.

2324. Do you remember seeing Mr. Ray a day or so before the nomination?—Yes.

2325. He gave you, I believe, 8*l.* 10*s.*?—No.

2326. What was it that he gave you?—Not a farthing.

2327. Do you know Mr. Ray?—Yes.

2328. Perfectly well?—Quite well.

2329. Did not you see him at all on the Saturday?—Yes.

2330. The Saturday before the nomination?—Yes.

2331. Did you have any conversation with him about the show of hands?—Yes.

2332. Did he ask you to do anything for him with regard to the show of hands?—Yes.

2333. To get some men together?—Yes.

2334. Some of your watchers?—Different men. He cautioned me not to get men who had a vote.

2335. He wanted good broad-shouldered fellows, I suppose?—Men with decent voices, at any rate.

2336. Did he say what he was going to pay you for doing it?—I was to have been paid. I was paid, but not by him.

2337. Who paid you?—A man of the name of Barnes.

2338. What did he pay you?—It was 3*l.* or 4*l.*, I don't know which; but I could swear it was not more than 4*l.*

2339. Who is Barnes?—He used to be a baker, or something of that sort. I don't know what he is now.

2340. Was he present when Ray was talking to you about this show of hands?—No.

2341. When did Barnes pay you the 4*l.*?—I think on the Saturday night previous to the nomination.

2342. Where did he pay you?—I met him, I think, in St. Stephen's Street.

2343. Did he say anything to you when he gave it to you?—Yes, he told me what it was for.

2344. What did he say?—"You can get what men "you can;" and he said, "Keep back 10*s.* out of the "3*l.*," or 4*l.*, whichever it was, "for yourself," or something like that. What he gave me did not exceed 4*l.*

2345. Had you seen Barnes about it before?—No.

2346. He came up to you in the street?—No, I met him in the street.

2347. Was no reference made to Ray?—Oh, yes; they had been talking the matter over.

2348. Did you ask Barnes for the money?—That I forget. I know he gave me the money. Whether I asked him or not I don't know; I think it is very likely that I did.

2349. How came you to speak to Barnes about it at all?—I suppose Mr. Ray had had some previous conversation with him about it.

2350. Did Barnes come up to you?—No, I was walking in St. Stephen's, and I met Barnes.

2351. Then what passed?—He said, said he, "You "are engaged to get some men?" I said "Yes." He said, "I have got some money for you," and he paid me the money.

2352. Are you clear that he only paid you 4*l.*?—I am certain it did not exceed that. I don't know whether it was more than 3*l.*, but I am quite positive it was not more than 4*l.*

2353. You know Mr. Ray was examined here last night?—I heard of it, but I have not seen Mr. Ray since.

2354. He said, "Having made an arrangement with "Long I paid him 8*l.* 10*s.*"—Mr. Ray has made a mistake.

2355. Out of the 4*l.* or whatever it was, you kept the 10*s.* for yourself, I presume?—I do not think I did. I think I exhausted pretty well the whole of that.

2356. Whom did you get?—I had a list at the time. I didn't think there was no harm in it; it was a customary thing.

2357. You got these men together. How many were there?—I don't remember now exactly.

2358. About?—I should think about 30, or perhaps a little more.

2359. Were any of them voters?—No, I think not. I put the question to every one of them.

2360. Who were they? Can you tell me the names?—I really cannot tell you. You know the nature of a city like this, and a lot of poor fellows out of work.

2361. You can tell me the names of some of them?—One I remember of the name of Bunn.

2362. Where does he live?—In St. Martin's.

2363. Who else?—I really cannot remember.

2364. I daresay you may not call them all to mind at once, but consider?—I daresay I could soon ascertain who they were. I daresay I could find several others.

2365. You went to a certain number for the purpose?—They were about the streets.

2366. You can remember those for the most part?—I could find out some of them, but I did not think there was any harm in it.

2367. It is not a question of harm at all; we want their names?—I particularly put the question to every one of them if they were voters, and I said if they were voters I could not give them a job.

2368. You seem to be afraid of getting them into some harm if you tell their names. You need not fear anything of the sort?—I don't remember their names.

2369. If you say now that you do not recollect them I must take that answer for the present; but can you brush them up between this and Monday?—I might find some of them, but it would be impossible to find all, because many of them may be gone away.

2370. We only want their names, that is all. You say there were about 30, and you have only given the name of one. Surely you can recollect another or two?—No, I cannot at the present time because they were comparative strangers to me.

2371. (Mr. Dowdeswell.) You have been employed in this way before?—No.

2372. Never in anything of the sort before?—Never.

2373. This was your first experiment?—Yes.

2374. And a very good one?—I am sure I don't know.

2375. It was a successful one?—I don't know.

2376. You employed men whom you could depend upon, of course?—It was simply for the show of hands.

2377. They were men whom you could depend upon to go up?—I suppose they were all there. I don't know.

2378. Did you go with them?—Yes.

2379. You are a gamekeeper?—Yes.

2380. I suppose you go out at night, and you have got some trusty men whom you would resort to in case of emergency?—Yes.

2381. Did not you employ some of them for this purpose?—It is only a very small estate. It don't require many men.

2382. There are occasions near a city like this when you may want a man to prevent your head being broken, and you would like to know your man before you took him. You might want a good number. You have beaters, I suppose?—Sometimes.

2383. You know who your beaters are; you would select some of them, would you not?—There was not a row expected or anything of that kind.

2384. Then you did not take them there to keep

THIRD DAY.

R. S. W. Long.

21 Aug. 1869.

the peace; you took them for the show of hands?—That is all.

2385. Who are your occasional watchers?—They are generally men who live on the estate.

2386. Do you only employ them?—I do occasionally another one or two.

2387. Did you employ any of those who live on the estate to go to the hall that day?—No.

2388. None at all? You must remember whom you employed for such a service as this. It is not a year ago?—It is a matter that is thought very little of, and it is generally practised in Norwich.

2389. I daresay the people who did it, did it under the idea that there was nothing improper in it in any way, but it is a matter into which we have to inquire, and it in no way affects your character. Do not suppose that it does. I want to know who were the people you employed?—I do not remember now, but I have not the slighest reason for concealing their names. It was early in the morning of the nomination that I met with them in the streets. There was a lot came to me, and I put down their names at the time.

2390. What did you pay them apiece?—Various sums, but none less than two shillings.

2391. Where did you engage them?—In the street. There was nothing secret about it.

2392. At what time of the day?—Early on the Monday morning.

2393. Where did you muster them?—By Mr. Coleman's, in the Market Place, close by the hall.

2394. I suppose you appointed a regular place for the muster?—Yes.

2395. Then you took them up and headed them?—I was amongst them of course.

2396. Then really, do not you know who they were?—I should perhaps know them if I were to see them, but I do not suppose I know a quarter of them.

2397–8. But you know some of the names, surely?—Really I don't. I should tell you if I could. I should not keep their names back if I remembered them.

2399. I have no doubt you can between now and Monday morning, and you will come up again then?—Very well, Sir.

2400. (Mr. Biron.) You can see Bunn, and ask him whether he remembers any?—Yes.

2401. (Mr. Dowdeswell.) Or if you find one man you can ask him who the rest were?—Yes.

2402. (Mr. Mansfield.) Did you and your men get inside the hall?—Yes.

2403. You held up your hands for Sir William Russell and Mr. Tillett?—Yes.

2404. When Mr. Ray engaged you, or whoever engaged you, you were engaged to into the hall, and not to keep the peace at the door. Were you ordered to go in?—Yes, and we showed a party feeling which every one else would do.

2405. (Mr. Dowdeswell.) Who is Barnes?—At the present time I think he is a collector of rates. He was a baker, but he is now a collector of rates.

2406. Where?—In Norwich.

2407. Can you tell me where he lives?—I don't know where he lives, but he is a rate collector and anybody can easily find him.

O. D. Ray.

ORLANDO DENNIS RAY recalled and further examined.

2408. (Mr. Biron.) You have heard Long give his evidence?—Yes.

2409. There is some little mistake about this 8*l.* 10*s.* or 4*l.* Can you explain it?—I paid 8*l.* 10*s.*

2410. To Long?—Well, there were several persons in the room at the time I paid the money. Barnes was there, and Long was there too. Long was sitting near the door, and I gave the 8*l.* 10*s.* to Barnes, and he and Long went out of the room together, and I understood that Long had been paid in the passage. I never inquired afterwards. I paid 8*l.* 10*s.* to Barnes.

2411. Who was Barnes?—The person who has been mentioned—the baker.

2412–13. Now a rate collector?—Yes.

2414. Where was this room you speak of?—At the "Crown and Angel."

2415. Who else was there?—I cannot charge my memory. Long, I believe, was downstairs and was brought up to speak to me, and he sat near the door.

2416. Do you remember who brought him up?—Barnes went and fetched him. There was very little passed as between Long and me as to this matter. It was done through Barnes, but I certainly paid the 8*l.* 10*s.*

2417. And no more?—I paid that sum for that purpose, and no more and no less. If I may be pardoned for saying another word, it might happen that Long's statement is right and mine too.

2418. (Mr. Dowdeswell.) They may have divided the money.—Yes.

2419. (Mr. Biron.) Barnes might have got some on his own account.—Yes. I think perhaps you will find that was so.

A. Stockings.

ALFRED STOCKINGS sworn and examined.

2420. (Mr. Mansfield.) What are you?—A chemist and druggist.

2421. You were agent in the fifth ward for the Conservatives?—Yes.

2422. And who were the persons acting with you?—There was a committee formed of about a dozen, and those gentlemen's names were Dr. Pitt, Mr. William Norgate, Mr. Fisher, Mr. Lovett, Mr. Garnham, and Mr. Parker, of Timberhill.

2423. Were they all in and out of the committee room during the day of the election?—Yes.

2424. Were they active in their duties?—They were.

2425. Taking up voters to the poll?—I believe so. I was not out in the street the whole of the day.

2426. Did you desire any of them to take up voters to the poll?—No, not any of them. They all took their own lists off the register and went out.

2427. Were those lists distributed to them by any one?—No, they copied them themselves.

2428. And they took different beats in the ward?—I suppose so.

2429. Did they not tell you how many voters they had taken up?—Not at all.

2430. Did not you ask them?—No; it was no interest of mine to ask them.

2431. You were the chief manager?—I was.

2432. The returns were brought into you from time to time, were they not?—They were.

2433. And you did not mention the persons that were to be canvassed or taken up?—Not that I am aware of. I do not remember mentioning any one's name to be canvassed.

2434. When you found that your candidate was behind, was there anything particular done by your committee?—There was not.

2435. Did Dr. Allen come to your committee room that day?—He did not.

2436. Did anybody come to you from the Conservative rooms in Queen Street?—Not that I am aware of.

2437. You received no instructions from any other committee than your own?—Not any.

2438. How was that fifth ward canvassed?—The persons whose names I have mentioned canvassed different parts of the ward.

2439. Were any returns made out of their canvass?—The names were put down on little pieces of paper, about ten at a time. They were taken out and brought in, and they were marked off on a register.

2440. What became of that register?—It was sent to the central committee rooms.

2441. When?—As soon as the election was over.

2442. What became of the canvass book from which the register was ticked off?—There were no canvass books at all. They were pieces of paper.

2443. What became of those pieces of paper?—I cannot say. They might be torn up or anything of the kind at the time they were brought in.

2444. Did you vote yourself?—I did not.

2445. Who appointed you?—I was appointed at a meeting held at the "Swan."

2446. Upon whose recommendation?—I cannot say. I was chosen in a public room. About 120 persons were there.

2447. Did any other persons besides the gentlemen whose names you have given me come into your committee room during that day?—A great many.

2448. Any persons from other committees?—Not that I know of. I do not know the other committees, therefore I cannot say.

2449. Did any voters come?—A great many.

2450. Was any suggestion made that voters were hanging back?—Not at all; not to me.

2451. Had you no reason to believe that voters were hanging back?—I have no reason to believe so, as far as the fifth ward was concerned.

2452. In other wards then?—I knew nothing about other wards until after the election was over.

2453. Is there a house called the "Trumpet" in your ward?—There is.

2454. Did any reports reach you of what was going on there?—Not at all.

2455. When did you first hear of anything having been done at the "Trumpet"?—Two or three days after the election.

2456. What was the amount of information you gathered then?—That there had been bribery at the "Trumpet."

2457. Were any names mentioned to you?—There were no names mentioned.

2458. Then you had no suspicion of anybody who either received a bribe or was offered a bribe?—I had none till after the election petition was tried.

2459. Have you heard of anybody since having received a bribe?—I have not.

2460. Have you heard of anybody since who gave a bribe?—I have not, only by the papers according to the petition. I might just state that those men who gave evidence of receiving bribes at the "Trumpet" did not belong to the fifth ward at all. They were none of them fifth ward men.

2461. (Mr. Dowdeswell.) Do you know a person of the name of Garnham?—I do.

2462. Did he canvass with you?—I did not canvass at all. I was in the committee room all the time.

2463. He did canvass?—Yes.

2464. Did he keep a book?—To the best of my knowledge there was not a book kept.

2465. Do you know by sight a person of the name of Samuel Smith?—I do.

2466. You saw him, did you not, in your committee room on the day of the election?—I did.

2467. Twice?—I do not think it was twice. He came in the morning once.

2468. Did he not come again in the afternoon?—I believe not.

2469. Do you recollect what you swore before Mr. Baron Martin at the election inquiry. Did you not then swear that he came twice?—I do not think I did. I do not remember it at all.

2470. You were asked this: "Where did you see "him?" and the answer is, "He came into the com- "mittee room. Q. At what time?—A. In the morning, "twice. Q. When was the latest time?—A. About "noon." Now reflect. That is what was sworn at the inquiry before the judge.—I believed what I now stated was right—that it was only once.

2471. I daresay you may have believed that at the time, but when I call your attention to what was then sworn do you think that is correct?—I should think it is; it was nearer to the time.

2472. In what state was he?—He was sober first in the morning; when they came out first thing in the morning.

2473. In the afternoon how was he?—I don't know.

2474. I must call your attention to this:—"Q. Was "it about that time?—A. I say noon; I cannot say "whether it was near 12 or 1. Q. Was he sober?— "A. Tipsy." Now, pray be careful.—I know nothing but the truth, and I shall tell nothing but the truth.

2475. You then swore he was tipsy, and you have said now that he was sober?—I have not looked at it since the petition. I am come here to tell the truth, and I will do so.

2476. Having sworn on that occasion that he was tipsy, do you now think he was tipsy?—It is so long ago I cannot really say. I do not know anything about it.

2477. It is not so very long ago. You were speaking here in the month of January last, and you then swore that he was tipsy. What did Smith come into the committee room about?—I suppose he came in with the others. I really cannot say now, but I don't think, or at least I know, there was no one came into the room but asked how we were going on with regard to the state of the poll.

2478. Did not Smith come in and speak about there being men who were ready to sell their votes?—No.

2479. You are sure about that?—I will swear he did not.

2480. Did anybody come in and say that?—There was not a soul mentioned such a thing to me the whole day.

2481. What did Smith say to you?—I really cannot say. I suppose he was like the rest of the people, who wanted to know the state of the poll. I know nothing else.

2482. Did you see anybody speaking to him?—I really did not notice. I was busy marking off the whole day during the election. Several persons came to the committee room and waited for the returns being sent up from the central room.

2483. (Mr. Biron.) There were some people there when Smith came in?—There were the whole day.

2484. Can you mention the names of any who were there when Smith came in?—It is impossible for me to give you the names of those who were there when Smith came in. I can give you the names of gentlemen who were in during the day.

GEORGE FULLER sworn and examined.

G. Fuller.

2485. (Mr. Dowdeswell.) You are the landlord of the "Trumpet" public house, are you not?—Yes.

2486. Is that in the fifth ward?—Yes.

2487. Does your wife attend partly to your business?—Yes.

2488. Have you anybody else besides your wife who attends to your business?—Yes, a servant.

2489. Have you any daughter or grown-up son?—No.

2490. Are those the only persons in your house who attend to your business?—Yes.

2491. Are you a voter?—Yes.

2492. You recollect, I suppose, very well the day of the election?—Yes.

2493. How long have you occupied the house?—

THIRD DAY.

G. Fuller.

21 Aug. 1869.

I think it is a little over six years, or something like that.

2494. You held it at the preceding election ?—I have voted at three elections ; more than that, I think.

2495. Has your house been a Conservative house all the time, or a Liberal house ?—For myself, I have always voted Conservative.

2496. And has your house been a Conservative house ?—During the time of my keeping of it.

2497. On the day of the election were there a good many people in your house ?—Yes.

2498. All day ?—Yes.

2499. From the early period of the morning ?—Yes.

2500. Were they drinking there ?—Yes, they were drinking there all day ; different parties.

2501. I suppose they were voters ?—Not all of them.

2502. Not all of them, but the greater portion were ?—I suppose so ; I should think so. I had plenty of people in and out all day.

2503. Do you know a man of the name of Hunt ?—Yes.

2504. During the whole of that day I suppose you consumed a large quantity of beer ?—Yes.

2505. Do you keep any books ?—No.

2506. What quantity of beer did you consume that day ?—That I cannot tell you.

2507. You can tell me about ?—No I can't. I never measure my ale, what I draw, so far as that goes.

2508. You tap casks ?—Yes, I tap casks. When I want ale I go and broach it.

2509. When the cask is empty ?—I broach another.

2510. You can pretty well tell how many fresh casks you tapped on that day ?—That I could not tell you.

2511. Do not you recollect ?—It is so long ago.

2512. Yes, but a publican can pretty well recollect a good draught ?—All I can tell you is, that I had a very good day. That is all I can tell you.

2513. Now, about the quantity. If you had a very good day, you know what your ordinary quantity is, and you can tell me how many barrels would represent a very good day, two or three barrels ?—Not so much as that.

2514. Two barrels ?—I don't suppose so.

2515. A barrel and a half ?—I never counted my ales like that. I should not like to tell you wrong if I knew it.

2516. What should you call a good day with you ?—If I take 5*l.* or 6*l.* I reckon it a good day.

2517. What would that represent ?—That I cannot tell you. I never closely measured my ales like that.

2518. You have got a brewer's book, I suppose ?—Only the book I goes down to the firm for the ale with.

2519. You do not brew your own beer ?—No.

2520. Have you got your brewer's book ?—No, I have not.

2521. What do you pay per barrel for beer ?—The mild ale I pay 34*s.* for.

2522. How much for the other ?—2*l.* 15*s.* for the best ale. Stout I pay 2*l.* 6*s.* for.

2523. I suppose that yours being a good Conservative house you made provisions against the day ?—No, not particular.

2524. That being the price of your beer, you say you took—how many pounds ?—5*l.* or 6*l.* Something like that.

2525. That would be more than two barrels ?—I should not like to tell you what I took because I don't know.

2526. You know the Conservative voters in your neighbourhood ?—I know some of them.

2527. You also know another class, not Conservative voters, but doubtful voters ?—Yes ; I didn't understand exactly what you meant.

2528. You know those who are staunch Conservatives, and you know those who are doubtful voters ?—No, I don't.

2529. You don't ?—Oh no. I know some what they call Conservatives, but I never trouble my head so much about that.

2530. Now in your house that day were there some people who were what you may call uncertain voters then ?—That I don't know. My house was open for any one. I had plenty of Liberals there as well as Conservatives, I believe. My doors was open for anybody that liked to come.

2531. And there were some about whose politics you knew nothing ?—Well, sir, I am not a very strong sort of party-feeling man in that way.

2532. Being a Conservative, was there a quantity of beer supplied which was not paid for that day ?—No.

2533. No beer supplied but what was paid for down that day ?—What beer I drawed I took the money for.

2534. When did you take the money for it, that day ?—The same day, as I went along.

2535. From every customer ?—From every customer that I served beer for there.

2536. Did you require payment upon the spot for every drop of beer that you drew that day ?—Well, there was one time when there was a quart left in the room, and the man told me he would bring the money directly, and so he did afterwards. I don't know exactly now, but I think I took in half a gallon at that time.

2537. To whose credit did you put that half-gallon ?—Hunt's. No, not Hunt's. I took for a quart, and he said "I will bring you the money for "the other quart in a minute."

2538. Were there people drinking with Hunt ?—There were some people drinking in that room.

2539. Were they drinking with Hunt ? You know what I mean ?—They were all drinking together. In fact I believe they were, some of them, clubbing.

2540. And was Hunt standing the shot ?—No.

2541. Did not Hunt pay you ?—I took money of other people.

2542. Did not Hunt pay you ?—He paid me for that quart.

2543. Nothing else ?—I took money as I went along.

2544. Did you take money from Hunt ?—I took some from Hunt, and some from other people.

2545. Can you tell me about how much you took from Hunt ?—That I am sure I cannot.

2546–7. I suppose it was a considerable quantity, was it not ?—No, I don't think I took much from him myself.

2548. Did you see your wife and servant receive money from him ?—I don't know. They took the money as they went along, and I did the same.

2549. Was Hunt sober ?—No.

2550. Did he remain drinking there the whole day ?—Yes.

2551. And drinking with other men there ?—He was drinking all over the house, with one party and the other.

2552. He was drinking there with different men the whole day ?—Yes.

2553. Just listen to these names and tell me whether some of these people were not drinking with Hunt or in your house. Henry Taylor ? You know him ?—Yes.

2554. Was he there ?—Yes.

2555. Granville Bygrave ?—Yes, I have known the man since the election.

2556. He was there ?—Yes, he was there. Leastways I cannot now say that man was there, because I don't know that I saw him there. I didn't know the man at that time.

2557. Although you did not know him at that time, I ask you whether you know now that he was there ?—I believe he was.

2558. William Ward ?—There was a Ward there.

2559. William Warren ?—Yes, he was there.

2560. John Churchyard?—I saw a Churchyard in and out several times during the day.

2561. Robert Fuller?—Yes, he was in and out.

2562. George Barnes?—Yes, he was there.

2563. Samuel Smith?—Yes.

2564. Robert Walker?—Yes, he was there. I saw him in the bar myself, I didn't see him anywhere else.

2565. George Smith?—Yes, there was a Smith there, I know.

2566. William Flat?—No.

2567. Are you sure Flat was not there?—No; I never saw him in my house all day. I know him very well, but I didn't see him.

2568. Just consider; did you see him just outside your house?—Well, I fancy I did see him in the lane or the street. Somewhere there I saw him that day, I believe.

2569. Henry Smith?—Yes.

2570. George Gowing?—Yes, I saw him.

2571. Michael George Gilbert?—That is the one you were speaking of before, I think, and I said I didn't exactly know.

2572. Was there not a man of the name of Gilbert?—Yes, but I don't exactly know the man.

2573. Did you not see Gilbert there?—I scarcely know the man.

2574. But although you scarcely know him was he there?—It was Bygrave you mentioned before. I believe the two men were there, but I don't know one from the other. They have been mentioned to me since.

2575. Was there a person whom they now call Gilbert?—They have told me so since the election.

2576. Did you see him at your house on that day?—I don't know whether I did see him or not; because I didn't know him.

2577. Robert Callow?—Yes.

2578. William Wright?—Yes.

2579. John Cracknell?—Yes.

2580. John Greengrass?—I should not like to say I saw him there, though I know the man very well, yet I should not like to say I saw him there.

2581. Was he not there?—I would not say that. He is very often in and out at my place.

2582. Is that a house which he frequents?—Yes.

2583. Then he might have been in your house?—He might have been there, but I should not like to say.

2584. Is it likely he would be there?—I don't know.

2585. If it is a house that he frequents he would be likely to be there?—I should not like to say that he was there that day.

2586. Henry Craske?—Yes.

2587. Do you know the two Browes'?—Yes.

2588. Was either of them there on that day?—I don't recollect.

2589. Do they frequently come to your house?—Sometimes; not very frequently.

2590. Did you see Mr. Bignold in your house that day?—Yes, I believe he was there.

2591. What time was he there?—That I could not say exactly. He was there I believe.

2592. More than once?—No. I think he was there only once. I am pretty well sure it was he that was there.

2593. Did he come there alone?—I think he was there alone.

2594. How long did he stay?—I don't know how long he stayed.

2595. Did you see him speaking to Hunt?—No.

2596. Where did he come to?—I believe he was in the market room.

2597. Was Hunt also in the market room?—I don't know that Hunt was there at the same time.

2598. However, Mr. Bignold was in the market room. How long did he stay in the market room?—I cannot say.

2599. Which Mr. Bignold is it?—Well, I can't tell you which one it was.

2600. Mr. Arthur?—I don't know one from the other only by the look of them.

2601. Was he a lame man?—Yes.

2602. About what age is he?—I am sure I can't tell that.

2603. Is he a gentlemen resident in Norwich?—I don't know. I have seen him several times.

2604. Have you seen him constantly about Norwich?—At different times I have.

2605. Tell me about his age. I wish to know which Mr. Bignold it is?—I am no judge of age, I can't tell you that.

2606. Do you recollect Sir Henry Stracey coming there?—Yes.

2607. Was there a Mr. Bignold with him?—No, I don't think there was.

2608. Did you see Hunt speak to Sir Henry Stracey?—No.

2609. Was Mr. Patteson with Sir Henry Stracey in your house?—Yes.

2610. Is Mr. Patteson your brewer?—Yes.

2611. After they left did you draw a good deal more beer than you had done before?—Well, I can't say that. I don't know that there was any difference made.

2612. Did you find that you were drawing beer more rapidly in the latter than in the former part of the day?—That I can't say now. I can't recollect that.

2613. You cannot say whether it was more in the beginning or the latter end of the day?—No, I can't recollect such a thing as that.

2614. Did Hunt remain in your house the whole of the time after Sir Henry Stracey was there, until you closed?—Well, I can't say.

2615. Until 5 o'clock?—I don't know that he was. I was too busy about my own house. I could not tell that. I should not like to say such things as that.

2616. Were you very busy after that?—I cannot say whether I was very busy after that. I was busy all day.

2617. You were so busy that you have no recollection of it?—I can't recollect so long ago as that.

2618. You have given me all those names. Can you recollect anybody besides those persons who were in your house?—No, I don't know that I can; but the house was full. There was more persons than them there in and out.

2619. You heard a great deal of talk about the election of course?—Oh! yes.

2620. Did you hear some men say that they were ready to vote for 5s. or 10s.?—No, I can't say that I did.

2621. Did not you?—No.

2622. Do you mean to say you did not hear men in your house say they were ready to vote if they could get money for it?—No.

2623. No one?—No, I don't know that I did.

2624. Was there not a talk about the voting?—Of course there was a talk about the voting.

2625. Was there not a talk of Sir Henry Stracey being behind?—No, I don't know that I heard that.

2626. Did not you hear men talking that votes could be bought?—No.

2627. Nothing about money for votes?—No.

2628. Nothing of the sort?—No.

2629. Did you shut your ears altogether in your house?—I was after business in the house. I was not in one place all the day.

2630. Did you not pay any attention to the conversation?—I didn't hear anything of the kind.

2631. May you have heard it and have forgotten it?—No, I never heard anything of the kind. I have heard plenty of talk since the election, but not before.

2632. That men were bought in your house?—I have heard about that since the election.

2633. Have you heard Hunt say that he bought some men in your house?—I heard Hunt say that he gave some money away.

2634. Did you hear anybody else say that they gave money in your house?—No.

THIRD DAY.
G. Fuller.
21 Aug. 1869.

2635. Did you not hear people say that they had given money for Sir Henry Stracey's election ?—No, I don't know that I heard anything of the kind.

2636. You say you don't know, but such a thing as that would make an impression upon you. Do not you recollect men boasting in your house that they had given money, and that they had won Sir Henry Stracey's election ?—I heard some talk about it after the election.

2637. Who were the people that you heard say they had given money and won the election ?—I don't know that I heard any one say that.

2638–9. Who were the people you heard talking ? You said you did hear some people talking about it after the election ?—People talking about one thing and another—about money. That is all I have heard.

2640. Did not you hear people say they had given money and won the election ?—No. I heard Hunt say he had given some money. That is all I heard about money.

2641. When was that ?—I think it was the day after the election. He said he was money short—a day or two after the election.

2642. Did he say how much he was short ?—I can't say, I am sure.

2643. Have you had a claim against anybody for beer supplied upon that day ?—No.

2644. You have made no claim of any sort or kind ?—No.

2645. Do you intend to make any ?—No.

2646. On former occasions have you had claims ?—No.

2647. You have never had claims or a reckoning standing back ?—No.

2648. Have you always been paid on the spot ?—Do you mean at election times ?

2649. Yes.—No. What beer I drawed I took the money for.

2650. Upon any other election have you had a score against anybody connected with the supply of beer during the election ?—No.

2651. You understand what I mean ?—Yes. You mean other elections back.

2652. Yes.—No, I have had none.

2653. You have always been paid in the regular course ?—Yes ; what I have drawed I have had the money for.

Adjourned to Monday at 11 o'clock.

FOURTH DAY.

Monday, 23rd August 1869.

FOURTH DAY.
H. Taylor.
23 Aug. 1869.

HENRY TAYLOR called.

The Witness.—I want to ask the Commissioners, if I am not out of order, whether after I have given my evidence I shall be free from being molested.

Mr. Dowdeswell.—I will tell you and everyone in this city that if any person whatever molests or insults a witness who has given his evidence here because he has been a witness he commits a serious contempt of this court, and immediately information is given to us of anything of that sort having occurred, we will send a constable to apprehend the person who has done so, and if on examination of the facts the statement made to us is found to be true, we will commit him to the gaol, and there he will remain until he has cleared himself of that contempt, even though it may be until the end of this inquiry. That course will be inexorably pursued.

The witness is sworn and examined.

2654. (Mr. Dowdeswell.) Are you a shoemaker ?—Yes.

2655. Do you live in Coburgh Street ?—Yes.

3656. Were you a voter at the last election ?—Yes.

2657. I believe that you voted for Tillett and Russell ?—I did.

2658. You know the "Trumpet" public house ?—I do.

2659. On the day of the election were you there ?—Yes ; from about half-past 9 in the morning till about a quarter past 3 in the afternoon, or something like that.

2660. Were you in different rooms in the house ?—Yes.

2661. In the market room ?—Yes ; in the tap-room first, and then we went to the market room.

2662. Did you afterwards go anywhere else ?—Upstairs.

2663. In what room ?—In the bagatelle room, and in another room as well.

2664. Is that near the bagatelle room ?—Just off it ; just off it to the left.

2665. Do you know a man of the name of Hunt ?—Quite well.

2666. Was he there ?—I did not miss him only for a few minutes at a time.

2667. He was there the whole of the day, except during a few minutes ?—Yes.

2668. Do you recollect about 1 or 2 o'clock Sir Henry Stracey coming to the house ?—Somewhere about 2.

2669. Into what room did he come ?—Into the market room.

2670. How many people were there in the market room ?—There were about 25 then. I counted them myself.

2671. Were Granville Bygrave, William Ward, John Churchyard, Robert Fuller (that is, a brother of the landlord), George Barnes, Samuel Smith, Robert Walker, and George Smith there ?—Yes, pretty well all those. Bygrave and Walker were not there a wonderful while.

2672. Did you see William Flat there ?—Not in the house.

2673. Did you see Robert Callow there ?—Yes.

2674. William Rudd ?—I do not know him.

2675. John Cracknell, Henry Greengrass ?—I do not know that I know him.

2676. Were there two persons of the name of Browes ?—There were several there. I did not know the names of them.

2677. Several besides those I have mentioned ?—Yes.

2678. You know the Browes' ?—I do not know that I do. I might by sight, but not by name.

2679. Do you recollect their being there ?—I knew several who were there, but I did not know their names. I had seen them about the city.

2680. When Sir Henry Stracey came in did he speak to the men ?—Yes.

2681. What did he say ?—He asked them why they did not come and vote.

2682. And what did they say in answer to that ?—They said that they had to pay rates.

2683. What did Sir Henry Stracey say ?—He said, "Why do you not come and vote, it is no use waiting "here ?"

2684. Did he speak to them further than that ?—Not anything particular. He turned round to the gentlemen there and Mr. Smith, and then they went in the passage.

2685. And then did they go out into the market room ?—They went into the passage.

2686. Did you follow them out ?—I went out just as they did.

2687. Did you hear anything that was said ?—No ; I could not catch the words.

2688. Were they talking together ?—Yes.

2689. Who were talking together ?—Smith and Hunt went out, and some more gentlemen.

2690. You have mentioned the name of Smith ; is that Smith who was formerly a fowl dealer ?—Yes.

2691. Was there more than one Smith there ?—At one part of the day there was.

2692. What part of the day was that ?—That was about the time that they gave the money.

2693. Which Smith was that ?—The son of the old gentleman.

2694. Did you see Sir Henry Stracey get into his carriage ?—No, I did not.

2695. Did you go outside, and see the carriage there ?—No, I returned into the market room. I did not go out at all.

2696. But you saw some persons talking together in the passage, did you not ?—Yes.

2697. As Sir Henry Stracey went out ?—Yes.

2698. You did not hear what was said at all ?—No, I did not. They were whispering or talking very low.

2699. Did you see who were talking low ?—They were all assembled together, and I went round the corner. I thought that if they had seen me perhaps they would think I had no business there.

2700. You cannot tell me who were talking ?—Sir Henry Stracey was one.

2701. You know young Mr. Stracey, do you not ?—I have seen him. I saw him that morning.

2702. Did he not go out of the room too ?—Yes.

2703. Did he return into the room before you or after you ?—I was in first. I think I was, but I cannot be certain.

2704. Did he not return into the room shortly after that ?—I saw him in the room almost as soon as I got there. I went to the fire-place.

2705. Did you hear Hunt say anything ?—I heard him say he could give them 5l. among them for their votes.

2706. Before that did he say anything about beer ?—He kept bringing the beer in, he and others.

2707. Had beer been coming in before that ?—Before and after too.

2708. Were all the persons assembled there drinking beer ?—Yes.

2709. Did you drink with them ?—Yes.

2710. Did you pay for anything you had ?—I did not pay for anything after 11 o'clock.

2711. Did you see any other people pay for beer ?—No, it was taken in at the door, and then we drank it.

2712. Who took it in at the door ?—Mr. Fuller sometimes brought it in and Hunt took it, or else Smith ; sometimes one and sometimes the other.

2713. Were all the men who were there drinking ?—Yes.

2714. And they continued drinking ?—Yes.

2715. What quantity of beer do you think was brought in during the time you were there ?—A great many gallons.

2716. After Sir Henry Stracey had gone away, did you see Mr. Stracey come there ?—I saw young Mr. Stracey come in afterwards, after his father left.

2717. How long was it after Sir Henry Stracey had left that you saw young Mr. Stracey come in ?—About 10 minutes, as near as I can tell.

2718. Had anything been said about money before young Mr. Stracey came in ?—Oh, yes.

2719. What ?—They were offered 5l. for the lot that was there, and a great many of them said "That is of no use ; it is no use stopping here, "we will take our hooks, we will be going ;" and they went away, several of them did, so that there was not above 16 or 17 left.

2720. When they had gone away, you say Mr. Stracey came in ?—Young Mr. Stracey.

2721. Who came in with him ?—There were two or three gentlemen.

2722. Was Smith there ?—Yes.

2723. Did he come in with him ?—He conducted them in the door.

2724. What did Mr. Stracey do ; did he remain in your room, or did he go elsewhere ?—He came into the market room.

2725. Did you hear anything he said ?—He only spoke to the same effect as his father did, and got the same answers.

2726. Did you see then where he went to ?—He went out.

2727. Did you see where he went to ?—No, I did not.

2728. Who went out with him ?—Smith, and, I believe, Hunt as well.

2729. Did Hunt or Smith return into the room ?—Smith did. I cannot say whether Hunt went out or not.

2730. Was anything then said by either Hunt or Smith ?—Yes, he said he would give another pound out of his own pocket to make it up 7s. 6d. as long as there were 16 of us.

2731. Did Hunt say anything before that ?—No ; Hunt did not offer any money, he only said we could have 5l. for the lot, that was on the first occasion.

2732. Was that repeated ?—No, I think not. 7s. 6d. was offered them.

2733. Who offered the 7s. 6d. ?—Smith said that he would give 1l. out of his own pocket, and make it up 7s. 6d.

2734. What was done then ?—Then they said they might as well take it, or else they should not get nothing perhaps.

2735. Did the whole of the persons who were then there agree to take 7s. 6d., or did some of them agree ?—There was one or two refused.

2736. Can you tell me the names of the persons who refused ?—I do not know that I can.

2737. Do you know a painter who was there ?—Yes.

2738. Did he agree to take the 7s. 6d., or did he refuse ?—He agreed to take it, and went upstairs with me, or rather followed me upstairs.

2739. When you agreed to take it, what was said ?—"Come upstairs, my boys, and I will pay you."

2740. Who said that ?—Smith.

2741. Did you go upstairs with the other men ?—I did. I was the second one upstairs.

2742. Was that in the little room you have spoken of ?—That was in the bagatelle room.

2743. When you got into the little room, did you see Hunt there ?—Oh, yes.

2744. Was Smith in the little room ?—No ; he was standing on the landing conducting Callow and his son to take them to vote.

2745. Whose son ?—Smith's son.

2746. Then Smith's son took Callow to vote ?—Yes.

FOURTH DAY.

H. Taylor.

23 Aug. 1869.

2747. Was Callow one of the lot?—Yes.

2748. Was Callow paid first?—Yes, he was paid in the bagatelle room.

2749. When you got into the room you say Hunt was there?—Yes.

2750. Did you see anything that he had there in the shape of money?—Yes, I saw the gold on the table in the bagatelle room.

2751. Did you see about how much it was?—I should think Smith might sweep about a score of half-sovereigns up and put them in his pocket, and he gave about as much to Hunt.

2752. When did Smith do that, when you first went into the room or shortly afterwards?—He was doing it just as we went into the room, so that I just saw the gold lying on the table, and he swept some of it up and put it in his purse, and took the other up and put it into his pocket.

2753. You say that Smith went out of the room and Hunt remained in?—No; after the first man had been paid they took us to another room.

2754. Did they pay anybody in the first room then?—Callow was the only one.

2755. Was he the only one who was paid in that room?—He was.

2756. What did they pay him?—7*s.* 6*d.*

2757. And then did Callow go up to vote?—He went along with Smith's son.

2758. Was Smith's son in the room?—Yes.

2759. Did he go out with Callow?—He did.

2760. And took him to vote?—Yes.

2761. Where did you go to after that, into what room?—I went into a little room just across the landing, a little more backward in the house.

2762. How many of you went there?—Several of us. I cannot exactly say how many.

2763. I understood you at first to say that that was in the little room; was it in the bagatelle room then that Callow was paid?—Yes.

2764. You then adjourned to the little room?—Yes.

2765. Who was in the little room?—Hunt.

2766. Was Smith there too?—No, he stood at the top of the landing.

2767. What did Hunt do?—Paid his money.

2768. What did he pay?—7*s.* 6*d.*

2769. He paid 7*s.* 6*d.* to each of the men there?—Yes, what I saw paid he did.

2770. Did you receive yours first, or did you receive yours among the rest?—I received mine about the last but one or two, or two or three, or something like that.

2771. And did they all receive the money, and then did they go away to vote?—Yes.

2772. How many altogether were paid that 7*s.* 6*d.*?—That I cannot exactly say.

2773. About how many?—I should think I saw eight or nine paid.

2774. Besides Callow?—Yes.

2775. Did you see anybody with a bag of silver there?—Yes.

2776. Who was that?—Robert Fuller.

2777. Is Robert Fuller the brother of the landlord?—Yes.

2778. Where had he the bag of silver?—I saw it in his hand.

2779. But in what room?—In the little room where the money was paid.

2780. Was he with Hunt then when the money was paid?—Yes.

2781. Did he hand the money to Hunt?—He handed the change to Hunt, and took the half-sovereigns.

2782. When Hunt handed half-a-sovereign to Fuller, Fuller gave him the change out of the bag of silver, and then Hunt paid the money?—Yes.

2783. Did you then leave?—Yes, I left when I got my money, and went and voted.

2784. You say that Hunt said that he would give them 5*l.*, or that Smith said he would give 5*l.*?—Yes.

2785. Which of them spoke about the 5*l.* in the first place. I am speaking of long before the payment, when the first talk was about the 5*l.* Who spoke of it first?—Smith and Hunt almost got it out in a breath.

2786. Then they both said it, did they?—Yes.

2787. What did the voters say to that?—They said they should not take it.

2788. Do you know John Churchyard?—Yes.

2789. Was he in the room at the time when that offer of 5*l.* was made?—That I cannot say.

2790. Do you recollect his saying something about going to the committee room at the "Two Necked "Swans"?—No, I did not hear him say those words.

2791. Did you not hear him say something about head-quarters?—No, I do not know that I did.

2792. Just remember?—I heard him say, "Keep "all together, the members are coming now, if you "do not, you will not get a farthing."

2793. Do you recollect his going out after that?—Yes, he conducted the member in.

2794. Do you remember his saying on coming in that he had been to head-quarters and made it all right?—No, I do not.

2795. You did not hear anything of that sort said?—No, I did not.

2796–7. And then immediately afterwards young Mr. Stracey came up?—No, Churchyard made a little bit of a nonsensical speech, as I call it, and then Mr. Stracey came in.

2798. And Churchyard had been out before that?—Yes.

2799. He had gone out after Sir Henry Stracey had left?—Yes.

2800. Who was it who came in with young Mr. Stracey?—I do not know the gentlemen; a man about 5 feet 6, with a large beard, was one of them, and he made a speech about Mr. Tillett, not much on his behalf though.

2801. Do you know Mr. Bignold?—No, I do not know that I do. I was told he was there.

2802. Do you know either of the Mr. Bignolds, John or Arthur?—No, I do not. I have seen them, but did not take particular notice of them, not enough to know them.

2803. Do you recollect whether it was either of them that came in with young Mr. Stracey?—That I cannot say. I was told there was one with Mr. Stracey, an old gentleman.

2804. Do you know the name of the man that you say came in with young Mr. Stracey?—I do not.

2805. Was the gentleman who came in with Mr. Stracey lame?—I cannot say.

2806. If I understand you it was after Mr. Stracey had been in that Smith came and offered you the 7*s.* 6*d.*?—Yes.

2807. Immediately afterwards?—Yes.

2808. How long had Mr. Stracey left the room before Smith came and offered the 7*s.* 6*d.*?—A very few minutes.

2809. Had Smith gone out with young Mr. Stracey?—Yes, he went out the same as he did on the occasion of his father.

2810. Do you know George Barnes?—I know a man of the name of Barnes. I do not know whether his name is George or not.

2811. Was he there?—Yes.

2812. Did he refuse to take the 7*s.* 6*d.*?—I believe he did.

2813. Did you see whether he got anything more?—I did not. I did not see him paid.

2814. Have you heard whether he got anything more?—I did hear that he got half-a-sovereign.

2815. Who told you that?—It was the talk among one and another of us.

2816. Can you not give us the name of anybody who told you that?—I heard it talked over in different places by individuals, strangers as well as others.

2817. Did you hear who paid him the half-sovereign?—I did not.

2818. Or where he got it?—No.

2819. You only heard that he had got half-a-sovereign?—That is all.

2820. Did you hear that he got it for voting?—Yes, of course I should think he did get it for voting.

2821. When did you hear that—the same day?—No, I think about a day or two afterwards.

2822. Do you not remember who told you?—No, I do not.

2823. (Mr. Biron.) Who brought you to that house on the morning of the polling day—how came you there?—I went there because I heard there was bribery going on—that is why I went there.

2824. Who told you there was bribery going on?—I heard Mrs. Fuller speak of it, the landlady.

2825. She told you that there was bribery going on and then you went in?—Yes.

2826. She told you that, and then you went in where the other men were?—I was told of it the day before. I was told there would be bribery, and so I went in on the election morning.

2827. She told you the day before that there would be bribery there, and then on the next morning you went there and waited, I suppose?—Yes.

2828. You remember the 5*l.* being offered by Hunt and Smith?—Yes.

2829. You have told us that a good many men said "That will not do," and went away?—Yes.

2830. Can you give us the names of any of those men who went away?—I cannot. They were strangers to me. They were fetched in. I suppose they were there an hour and a half or two hours, and they said that they were humbugging them and keeping them from voting the other way.

2831. (Mr. Dowdeswell.) Can you give us the names of those persons who went into the little room. If I mention them to you do you think you can remember them?—I think I should.

2832. You say Barnes refused to take the money? He did.

2833. Do you know Granville Bygrave?—I heard him say he did not get anything. He went away before we went upstairs

2834. William Ward?—I saw him.

2835. Was he one of those that received the money?—Yes, he was.

2836. William Warren?—Yes.

2837. John Churchyard?—No, I did not see him.

2838. William Smith?—Yes, I saw two Smiths.

2839. Were they in the little room?—Yes, they went in the little room, and I stood against the door waiting to go in.

2840. Robert Walker?—No I did not see him.

2841. George Smith?—Yes.

2842. You said you did not know Flat, I think?—Yes, I know him; he was not there; he had not a vote.

2843. Henry Smith?—I do not know his name. There were two Smiths—George and his brother, I know.

2844. Michael George Gilbert?—No, he was not there.

2845. Robert Callow?—Yes.

2846. William Rudd?—Yes.

2847. John Cracknell?—I did not see him take it.

2848. John Greengrass?—I do not know the man.

2849. Henry Greengrass?—Yes, I saw him.

2850. Is there anybody else you recollect besides those you have mentioned who were in the little room and received money?—There are several that I do not know the names of that I saw take it. The names were put down of those that took the money.

2851. Who put the names down?—Cracknell.

2852. Where did he put them down?—On a piece of paper.

2853. In a book?—On a piece of blue sort of paper.

2854. Then there was a pen and ink in the room?—No, a piece of pencil.

2855. Were any of these men, except the first who was taken away by young Smith, taken away to poll?—Yes, Smith kept several of them on the top of the stairs, and he said "Do not go away, I may as well go "and see you poll." He said to me "You do not "want to go;" and I said "I am not going out of "the way;" and then I bolted off.

2856. Did you see the landlord go with anybody to the poll?—No, I did not.

2857. The landlord's brother Robert?—Several went out of the house. I saw them go out of the market room door.

2858. (Mr. Biron.) Did anybody take you to the poll?—No.

2859. (Mr. Dowdeswell.) Which polling place did you vote at?—St. Stephen's.

2860. Do you know of any other money having been given to persons to vote during the election?—No; I was at that house all day.

2861. Not by anybody?—No.

2862. Are you a freeman?—Yes.

2863. How long have you been a freeman?—Several years.

2864. Were you a voter at the election of 1865?—Yes.

2865. Were you a voter in 1860?—No.

2866. Then 1865 was the first election at which you were a voter?—Yes, it was.

2867. Did you on that occasion receive any money for your vote?—Never in my life.

2868. If anybody offers you the least molestation in consequence of your having told us what you have to-day, come immediately to us and we will take effectual means to protect you.—Thank you, sir.

JOHN CRACKNELL sworn and examined.

J. Cracknell.

2869. (Mr. Biron.) What are you?—A shoemaker.

2870. Did you vote at the last election?—Yes.

2871. For whom did you vote?—For Mr. Stracey.

2872. You mean Sir Henry Stracey?—Yes.

2873. In what parish?—St. Peter of Mancroft.

2874. Were you at Fuller's house on the morning of the polling day?—Yes.

2875. How came you to go there?—That is a house that I generally use when I go into a public house.

2876. What time in the day did you get there?—When I first went down it was about 11 o'clock or a little after.

2877. And did you stay there until Sir Henry Stracey came in the afternoon?—I went away before he came.

2878. And came back again?—Yes.

2879. Did you come back again after he had left?—Yes.

2880. In the morning when you were there can you give me the names of the other men who were there?—That I could not.

2881. You saw Henry Taylor there?—Yes.

2882. Granville Bygrave?—Yes, I recollect his coming in.

2883. William Ward?—Yes.

2884. William Warren?—Yes.

2885. John Churchyard?—Yes.

2886. Robert Fuller?—Yes.

FOURTH DAY.

J. Cracknell.

23 Aug. 1869.

2887. George Barnes?—Yes.

2888. Samuel Smith?—Yes.

2889. Robert Walker?—Yes.

2890. George Smith?—Yes.

2891. Henry Gowing?—I do not recollect seeing him there.

2892. Henry Craske?—Yes.

2893. Michael George Gilbert?—Yes.

2894. Robert Callow?—Yes.

2895. William Rudd?—Yes.

2896. Did you see Barnes there?—Yes.

2897. The two Browes'?—I do not know them; but I did not to the best of my knowledge.

2898. Did you see William Wright there?—Yes.

2899. Can you call to mind any other than those whose names I have read out to you who were there?—No. I saw plenty of people there that I did not know; plenty of people kept coming in and out.

2900. Did you drink beer there?—Yes.

2901. Did you pay for any beer?—Yes.

2902. How much beer did you pay for?—I think I spent a shilling altogether.

2903. A shilling of your own money?—Yes.

2904. How long were you drinking there; you went in, you say, a little after 11?—I kept drinking all the time I was there off and on with them.

2905. When did you pay your shilling; did you pay it all at once or by a pint or a pot at a time?—No; I took it in a pot at a time.

2906. And paid for it as you took it in?—Yes.

2907. Do you remember whether you paid Fuller, or Mrs. Fuller, or a servant?—I think I paid the servant for the first pot; but the last two pots—Mr. Robert Fuller owed me 8*d.*, so he had the money and told them to give me the beer for it.

2908. Then in fact you paid 4*d.* in money and the rest was what was owed you?—Yes.

2909. What did he owe you the 8*d.* for?—Mending some harness.

2910. He owed it to you for some work that you had done for him?—Yes.

2911. Did you drink any more beer than what you paid for yourself?—I cannot say. I drank with them that asked me to drink. I cannot say how much I did drink.

2912. Did you see anything of the beer brought in by Hunt and Smith?—No.

2913. You got in at 11 o'clock, what time did you leave?—I went away at 12 and at several different times.

2914. You were in and out, in fact?—Yes, I was in and out.

2915. Were you there when Hunt and Smith offered 5*l.* for the lot?—No, I do not recollect Smith and Hunt offering 5*l.* for the lot.

2916. What time did you get back after Sir Henry Stracey had been there?—I do not know, he had not been gone many minutes, but I do not know the time.

2917. Did you not hear Hunt and Smith offer 5*l.* for the lot?—No; I did not hear them offer it; they might do it.

2918. Was there not a talk about voting that day?—There was lots of talk about voting, I daresay.

2919. What sort of talk was there about voting?—I am sure I cannot tell you.

2920. (Mr. Dowdeswell.) Let me give you this caution. If you do not tell the truth here you may be indicted for perjury, and most assuredly you shall be.—I am telling you the truth as far as I can.

2921. And you are bound to tell the truth, the whole truth, and nothing but the truth.—I am doing it.

2922. There are many other witnesses to be examined, and I advise you to be very careful how you give your evidence now, because I quite see from the answer you last gave that you are not disposed to tell the truth if you can help it. Depend upon it you will be compelled one way or another to divulge everything you know. If it only comes out at last it will cost the city a great deal more money, but the truth will at last be got at as certain as water flows to the ocean.—I have told you the truth.

2923. (Mr. Biron.) Do you remember Hunt and Smith offering 5*l.*?—I do not recollect it; they might do it.

2924. You were not drunk were you?—I was not drunk, but I was not far short of it.

2925. Do you remember the men going up into the little room?—Yes, I remember some of them going up.

2926. Do you remember going up yourself?—Yes.

2927. With whom?—With Henry Taylor, Callow, Ward, Warren, and Wright.

2928. When you got into the little room, who was there besides those you have mentioned?—Hunt was there.

2929. Smith?—I saw him on the landing.

2930. And Robert Fuller?—I do not recollect seeing him.

2931. Did you not see him with a bag of silver?—No.

2932. Changing half-sovereigns?—No, I did not see that.

2933. Had you a piece of paper and a pencil?—Yes, I had a piece of paper and a pencil.

2934. And did you take down the names of the men who were there?—Of those I have named I did.

2935. What did you do that for?—That I cannot say.

2936. If you do not answer in a straightforward manner I shall have to deal with you in a very different way.—I do not know whether anybody asked me to put those names down.

2937. Who told you to put the names down?—I think Hunt asked me to put the names down.

2938. You know he asked you?—I am not quite positive of it.

2939. Did not Hunt ask you to put down the names on that piece of paper?—It was a piece of paper that I had in my own pocket.

2940. Did not Hunt ask you to write down the names?—Yes, I think so.

2941. Then why did you not say so at first; what was going on then?—He was paying the men, giving them some money.

2942. And as he paid them you put down their names on a piece of paper?—Yes.

2943. How many names did you put down?—Five, and my own, that made six.

2944. And what did you do with the piece of paper?—I put it in my own pocket, and when I came downstairs I do not know what I did with it; whether I lit my pipe with it or not, I do not know.

2945. Did you not give it to Hunt?—No.

2946. What was the use of your taking the names down on paper if you were to light your pipe with it?—I do not know what I did with it, I assure you. I did not give it to Hunt.

2947. Did you see any other persons up there besides those whose names you put down?—No.

2948. When you had taken down their names and gone downstairs yourself, what did you do?—When I went downstairs there was nobody there, and so I went and voted.

2949. Did anybody take you to the poll?—No.

2950. Did you go with other men?—Yes; there were two more men there went across the market along with me.

2951. Who were they?—Henry Smith and George Barnes.

2952. Had they been in the "Trumpet" that day?—Yes, I saw them there.

2953. And were they going off to vote when you overtook them?—Yes.

2954. Did you go to poll with them?—Yes.

2955. And you polled at the same place as they did?—Yes.

2956. What time was it when you polled?—Between 3 and 4 o'clock.

2957. Did you see young Mr. Stracey at the "Trumpet" that day?—No.

2958. Are you sure of that?—I am sure I did not see him. If I did see him I do not know him. I do not know young Mr. Stracey.

2959. Did you see two gentlemen come in and take Smith and Hunt out in the passage to talk to them?—No.

2960. Did you see Smith and Hunt talking to two gentlemen?—No.

2961. Did not a gentleman come into the market room and make a speech or say something to the men there as to why they did not come and vote?—I heard when I came back that Mr. Stracey had been there, but I was not there.

2962. Is it Sir Henry that you mean or the young man?—I mean Sir Henry.

2963. Did you see another gentleman come into the market room?—No.

2964. A gentleman with a beard?—No, I did not see him.

2965. What are you, a freeman?—I am an occupier, I suppose they call it.

2966. Did you ever vote before?—No.

2967. Was this your first time?—Yes.

ROBERT CALLOW sworn and examined.

R. Callow.

2968. (Mr. Mansfield.) What is your trade?—A shoemaker.

2969. How did you vote, as a freeman or what?—A householder.

2970. Of what parish?—St. Peter's.

2971. Had you ever voted before?—No.

2972. You never took part, perhaps, in any election before?—No.

2973. Do you recollect the day of the polling at the last election?—Yes.

2974. Do you recollect going to a public house called the "Trumpet"?—Yes.

2975. What time did you go there?—About 10 o'clock, or something like that.

2976. What led you to go there at that time in the morning?—I was going past and saw several people I knew there, so I went in. I went in for no particular purpose.

2977. Had you heard anything of what was going on there?—No.

2978. Did you find many people there?—Not the first part of the day.

2979. How long did you remain there?—Until 3 o'clock, or very nearly 3.

2980. You were drinking the whole time, I suppose?—Yes.

2981. Did you pay for your own beer?—No.

2982. Who did?—I do not know.

2983. Did you see anybody pay for beer?—The first two or three pints I saw paid for.

2984. Were they generally not paid for?—The greater part was not paid for.

2985. Drinking was going on there the whole day very freely, was it not?—Yes.

2986. At what time did you go and vote?—About 3 o'clock.

2987. For whom did you vote?—For Sir Henry Stracey.

2988. A plumper?—Oh yes.

2989. Had you seen Sir Henry Stracey during the daytime?—Yes; I saw him come into the "Trumpet."

2990. Where were you when you saw him come into the "Trumpet"?—In the market room.

2991. Can you give me the names of any of the people that you saw in this house during the daytime, stopping there drinking, and so on?—Some of them.

2992. Just mention their names if you please?—There was George Smith, Henry Smith, Henry Taylor, and John Cracknell.

2993. Anyone else?—William Wright.

2994. The Browes'?—No, I do not know the Browes'.

2995. And Ward?—Yes, Ward was there.

2996. And Warren?—Yes.

2997. Bygrave?—I do not know Bygrave to say he was there.

2998. Were there any others there?—Not that I can call to mind just now; there were plenty more there that I did not know.

2999. Smith the fowl dealer was there, was he not?—Yes.

3000. And Hunt?—Yes.

3001. And Smith's son?—Yes.

3002. And Robert Fuller?—Yes, he was there.

3003. Had you frequented this house before?—I had not been there more then a dozen times in my life that I can remember.

3004. But on this particular day you spent five hours there?—Yes.

3005. You knew that there was drinking going on freely there, did you not?—I did not know anything about it till I got inside.

3006. You heard Sir Henry Stracey make his speech?—Yes, at least he said something, I do not know what he said though.

3007. You heard what the men said to Sir Henry Stracey about voting?—No, I do not know what was said at that time.

3008. But you know that these men were asking for something to be done to induce them to vote?—No; I cannot remember anything that was said just then.

3009. After Sir Henry Stracey had left you had a little more drinking, I suppose?—Yes, drinking on as usual.

3010. A little more than before?—No, I do not know that, they all had as much as they wanted, both before and after too.

3011. Did anybody say that you could have as much as you liked there?—Yes, I believe that that remark was made.

3012. Who was the person who made it?—That I can hardly say, there were so many standing in a lump.

3013. In consequence of that everybody drank as much as they liked?—Yes.

3014. And you did not see that paid for?—No.

3015. Do you recollect anything being said by Smith the fowl dealer or by Hunt?—Hunt said he would give them a crown each to vote and they refused it, and Smith made some remark about half-a-crown, I cannot say what it was, to make it 7*s.* 6*d.*

3016. And what did the men say to that?—They received the 7*s.* 6*d.*

3017. Did you see it paid to any of them?—No, I left the room directly I had taken what was mine.

3018. You were paid yourself?—Yes.

3019. By whom were you paid?—Hunt paid me.

3020. In which room?—In the bagatelle room.

3021. Was Smith present then?—Yes.

3022. Had Smith any money?—I did not see him have any money.

3023. Who handed you the money?—Hunt.

3024. Was Robert Fuller there?—Yes.

3025. Had he anything in his hand?—He was giving change.

3026. Taking the gold and handing over silver?—Yes, he took half a sovereign and gave them three half-crowns.

FOURTH DAY.

R. Callow.

23 Aug. 1869.

3027. And Cracknell was writing down the names?—I did not see that.

3028. But Cracknell was there?—He was there.

3029. Did you see what money Hunt had, was it gold?—There was gold a lying on the table when I first entered the room.

3030. What was it?—It was gold; I could not say whether it was sovereigns or half-sovereigns.

3031. Was there any quantity of it?—About 5*l.* or 10*l.* worth, or something like that.

3032. And when the rest was taken up who removed it?—Hunt removed it.

3033. And put it in his pocket?—Yes.

3034. Did you see anybody receive money when you were up in this room?—No, I did not.

3035. How was that, because several people were present, and I do not suppose that they handed you your money and then turned you out of the house?—No, I was the first one that took it, and went out of the room directly.

3036. Who took you up to the poll?—Smith's son.

3037. Did several others go with them?—No, I did not see anybody else with them.

3038. You are quite certain about that, are you?—Oh yes.

3039. Are you certain that you did not go into the little room?—We were in the little room the first thing in the morning, the very first thing.

3040. And then you went to the bagattelle room?—To the market room, and from there to the bagatelle room.

3041. Did you go into the little room when you first went upstairs?—The bagatelle room was the only room that was used during the time I was there.

3042. (Mr. Dowdeswell.) Do you know know the little room that there is off the passage?—No, only one, the smallest room we were in.

3043. When you went up when there was a talk about the 7*s.* 6*d.* and you went upstairs did you not go into the little room first?—No, only into the bagatelle room.

3044. And were you paid in the bagatelle room?—Yes.

3045. (Mr. Mansfield.) Did you see Mr. Stracey there in the course of the day?—Yes.

3046. Did you see anybody with him?—Yes, a lot of gentlemen was with them.

3047. Do you know young Mr. Stracey as well as Sir Henry?—No.

3048. It was only Sir Henry that you saw and heard make a speech?—That was the only one I knew there.

3049. Was there a young gentleman who came in afterwards?—I did not see him.

3050. Were you in the market room?—I was in the market room.

3051. And did you not see a young gentleman and one or two more come in afterwards?—There was many in and out all day.

3052. Do you recollect seeing Mr. Patteson?—I do not know Mr. Patteson.

3053. Did you not see any gentlemen come in after Sir Henry Stracey left?—No; they were in and out all day. I did not notice them.

3054. Did you see any gentlemen come in and speak to Hunt and Smith?—I did not see them speak to anybody, because I stopped in the room all the time. I did not go out.

3055. Do you know Mr. John Bignold and Mr. Arthur Bignold?—No; I only know Mr. Samuel Bignold; that is all I know.

3056. (Mr. Dowdeswell.) How came you to go up into the bagatelle room instead of being paid in the other room?—Because Hunt said, "Come along with "me."

3057. And did he and Smith then go before you up into the bagatelle room?—Yes, they were there when I got into the room.

3058. Where was young Smith? Did he go with them?—He followed them upstairs.

3059. Then you were paid first, and sent off to poll?—Yes.

3060. Were you taken up in a cab or did you walk?—I walked down.

W. Ward.

WILLIAM WARD sworn and examined.

3061. (Mr. Dowdeswell.) Where do you live?—I live in Coburgh Street.

3062. In what parish is that?—St. Peter's.

3063. What are you by trade?—I am a chimney sweeper.

3064. Are you a voter now?—Yes.

3065. Were you a voter before the last election?—No.

3066. You know the "Trumpet" public house?—Yes.

3067. Were you there on the morning of the election?—I was there about 11 or 12 o'clock.

3068. Was that the first time you went in there?—Yes.

3069. How long did you remain in the "Trumpet"?—About a couple of hours.

3070. Did you then go out and return again?—Yes.

3071. At what time did you return?—About 2 or half-past 2 it might be.

3072. And did you remain there down to the time you went away to vote?—Yes, I think I did.

3073. For whom did you vote?—I voted for Sir Henry Stracey.

3074. When you went there, did you find Hunt the fowl dealer there?—Yes, I did.

3075. Did he remain there during the whole of the time you were in the public house?—Yes.

3076. In what room were you first?—I went only into one room, that was the room next to the lane, the big room.

3077. Was that the market room?—Next to the market room.

3078. Was Hunt there drinking?—Yes.

3079. Were there a number of other people there drinking also?—Yes, several more.

3080. Did you pay for anything that you had to drink that day in that house?—Oh, yes.

3081. What did you pay altogether for anything you had to drink?—I never spent more than about 6*d.* I might spend more, I cannot exactly say.

3082. You were there for two hours in the first instance, were you drinking during the whole of that time?—I drank some that I bought myself, and I drank also what I had given me.

3083. Were you drinking during the whole of the day? I am speaking of the time when you were there first?—Yes.

3084. Were you drinking the whole of the time you were there the second time?—No, not the second time, because I did not stop.

3085. Did you drink after you returned there?—Yes.

3086. Did you pay a single farthing for drink after you went there the second time?—No, I do not think I did.

3087. How many people were there drinking?—Well, I think there were about 23 or 24 of us.

3088. Do you recollect Sir Henry Stracey coming there?—No, I do not.

3089. You were not there when he came?—I never saw anything of the kind.

3090. Do you recollect when you came back the second time its being said that Sir Henry Stracey had been there?—I do not know the man, so I cannot say.

3091. But did you hear that Sir Henry Stracey had been in the house?—No, I never heard anything of the kind.

3092. Nothing was said to you about his having been there?—No.

3093. After you went back did any gentleman with a beard come into the market room ?—I believe Hunt came.

3094. I am asking you before any gentlemen came in ?—I did not see any gentlemen come in.

3095. Did you see any young gentleman come in ?—No.

3096. You were not so far gone, I suppose, in beer as to be blind, were you ?—No, I was not.

3097. Were you fresh ?—I was rather fresh.

3098. But six pennyworth of beer will not make you fresh, will it ?—No.

3099. Then you had had a good drop more than six pennyworth ?—Well, I daresay I had.

3100. You do not recollect seeing the gentleman ; was anything said about the money ?—I do not recollect anything being said about money.

3101. You do not remember it ?—No.

3102. Do you remember getting any money ?—Well, sir, I did.

3103. Then you remember something about money ?—Well, sir.

3104. Money would not get into your pocket by accident. Do you recollect Hunt saying anything about money in the first place ?—Well, he was throwing his money about, and that.

3105. Do you recollect Hunt offering 5*s.* apiece ?—No, I do not.

3106. Do you recollect his saying something about 5*l.* for the lot ?—No.

3107. Nothing of the sort ?—No.

3108. Come, be careful. There is a place very near here where the lodgings are not comfortable. Now, then, were you offered 7*s.* 6*d.* for your vote ?—Yes.

3109. Who was it who offered you the 7*s.* 6*d.* ?—Hunt.

3110. Did you hear Smith say that he would stand something towards the 7*s.* 6*d.* ?—No, I did not.

3111. Had he not offered you the 7*s.* 6*d.* ?—Yes.

3112. Did he offer that to the other men as well ?—That I do not know.

3113. Where was the offer made, in what room ?—Well, sir, it was mentioned in the big room.

3114. How many were there in the big room when the offer of 7*s.* 6*d.* was made ?—Well, I do not know how many there was exactly ; there were several of us, 20, I suppose. I daresay there was 20 of us.

3115. Did they agree to take 7*s.* 6*d.* ?—That I cannot say.

3116. How many agreed to take the 7*s.* 6*d.* ?—That I cannot say.

3117. Did several besides yourself agree to take the 7*s.* 6*d.*—I took the 7*s.* 6*d.*

3118. I do not care about yourself. Do you mean to tell us that you do not know that others agreed to take the 7*s.* 6*d.* ?—Well, I do not know, and that is the truth.

3119. Did you go up into the bagatelle room ?—I think I did.

3120. Had you had so much beer that you cannot recollect that ?—Well, I was rather far in drink, so I forgot, of course.

3121. A number of others went up into the bagatelle room with you, did they not ?—Well, I do not know, I think they did. I think there was some went up along with me.

3122. But you cannot recollect how many ?—No, I cannot, and that is the truth.

3123. You received the 7*s.* 6*d.* ?—Yes.

3124. To vote for Sir Henry Stracey ?—Yes.

3125. And you did vote for him ?—I did.

3126. Who took you to the poll ?—Hunt, I think, and another or two besides.

3127. Who ; Smith ?—I think Smith went, and Wright went as well.

3128. Did you require to be taken care of ?—Well, I took care of myself. I was not so far in drink that I could not take care of myself.

3129. But Smith was so kind as to take care of you. Is that the retired fowl dealer ?—I believe it is.

3130. Did you go up into the little room at all ?—Well, I did.

3131. The little room off the passage in the "Trumpet" ?—I went upstairs into the little room, I believe, but I do not know where it was, not now.

3132. Did you first go up into the little room before you went into the bagatelle room ?—That I do not know.

3133. Did you not go up into the little room before you went into the bagatelle room before the money was paid ?—I went into the little room upstairs.

3134. Had they offered you 5*s.* in the first instance ?—That I do not know ; that I cannot say.

3135. Do you recollect making up your mind that you would not have 5*s.* ?—That I do not know. I do not know whether he said anything of that. I tell you I was rather in beer, so that I do not hardly know what I did say.

3136. Did you stand out with the rest, and say that you would not take 5*s.*, that you would have 7*s.* 6*d.* ?—I do not know, and that is the truth, because I was forward in drink. I do not know what I did say hardly.

3137. Did you see Granville Bygrave there ?—I do not know whether I did ; he might be there for what I know.

3138. Do not say he "might be there," that is no answer to my question.—I do not know ; he might be there. I cannot say.

3139. William Warren ?—Yes, he was there.

3140. John Churchyard ?—I think he was there.

3141. Robert Fuller ?—I think he was there.

3142. George Barnes ?—Yes, he was there.

3143. Robert Walker ?—I do not remember his being there.

3144. Do you know the two Smiths, George and Henry Smith, father and son ?—I know them both, but he was not there, I think.

3145. And were they not there ?—He might be there, but he did not stop I know.

3146. William Flat ?—I do not know whether he was there or not.

3147. George Gowing ?—I do not recollect whether he was there.

3148. Michael George Gilbert, do you recollect him ?—I do not know whether he was there or not. I cannot say.

3149. William Wright ?—He was there.

3150. John Greengrass ?—I think he was there, I will not be sure.

3151. Henry Craske ?—I do not think he was there. I do not know rightly.

3152. You know the Browes', do you not, father and son, John Browes, senior, and John Browes, the younger ?—I do not know whether they were there.

3153. Will you undertake to say they were not ?—I do not know whether they were there or no.

3154. Did they all receive the money ?—That I do not know. I cannot say whether they did or no.

3155. How many were there that went up with you to receive the money ?—I do not know ; I cannot tell you.

3156. A lot of them went up with you, did they ?—I think there were several went up, but that they took any money or not I do not know.

3157. How many who went up with you altogether received the money—There might be eight or nine ; or there might be more, I cannot exactly say.

3158. They went up all in a lot ?—Yes ; there might be eight or nine ; I cannot say ; or there might be more.

3159. Do you not know that there were more ?—No, I tell you I was rather far in beer, and therefore I cannot tell.

3160. There were other people in the house then

FOURTH DAY.

W. Ward.

23 Aug. 1869.

besides these that I have mentioned ?—That I cannot say.

3161. Do you not recollect the names of any other persons ?—No, I do not ; as I told you I was rather far in drink.

3162. I suppose you had some particular friend who was there with you ?—I do not know any particular friends who were with me.

3163. Is this the house you generally use ?—It is the house I generally go to.

3164. Who was the particular friend with whom you were on that day ?—I do not know.

3165. (Mr. Biron.) Who did you drink with ?—First I drank myself what I bought. I spent a little of my own money, and of course I drank it by myself at first.

3166. (Mr. Dowdeswell.) I suppose you were generous, and that you gave somebody else a little of it ?—No, I did not, for I was very dry, and to tell you the truth I could have drunk more if I had had it.

W. Wright.

WILLIAM WRIGHT sworn and examined.

3167. (Mr. Mansfield.) What are you by trade ?—A bootcloser.

3168. Are you a voter ?—Yes.

3169. What is your parish ?—St. Peter of Mancroft.

3170. How did you vote, as a freeholder or as an occupier ?—As an occupier.

3171. Who did you vote for at this last election ?—Stracey.

3172. Have you ever voted before ?—No.

3173. Do you recollect on the day of the polling going to the "Trumpet" ?—Yes.

3174. What hour of the day was that ?—A quarter past 2.

3175. What led you to go there at that time ?—It is the house I generally use.

3176. Had you been there earlier in the day ?—No.

3177. When you got there at a quarter past 2 I suppose you had some drink ?—That I paid for.

3178. Did you have any drink that you did not pay for ?—No.

3179. Now, who did you see there ?—I saw Hunt, Smith, Callow, Taylor, Warren, and Cracknell.

3180. In what part of the house were you ?—I was in the market room.

3181. Were you there when Sir Henry Stracey came ?—Yes.

3182. And you heard him make a speech there ; you heard him say something ?—I think I did.

3183. And what did the men say after Sir Henry's speech ?—I do not know that there was anything said at all about it.

3184. Did they not say something to the effect that it would not do for them ?—I never heard it.

3185. Was anything said about votes ?—No.

3186. Nothing said about money ?—Not at the time Sir Henry Stracey was there that I heard.

3187. Did the men say they had rates to pay ?—No.

3188. After that did you remain in this room, or where did you go ?—I remained in the room some few minutes after that.

3189. Did you go into any other part of the house ?—Yes.

3190. Where did you go ?—Upstairs.

3191. Into which room ?—I do not know what room they call it ; it was a little room.

3192. Who was there ?—There was Hunt, myself, Callow, and Taylor.

3193. Was Cracknell there ?—Yes.

3194. What was going on there ?—Well, we got the money there.

3195. Who gave you the money ?—Hunt.

3196. Did you see Hunt with money before him ?—No.

3197. Was Robert Fuller there ?—I do not know ; I cannot recollect.

3198. Was there anybody there with a bag of silver changing the gold ?—I never saw anything of the sort.

3199. Cracknell was there, and wrote down the names, did he not ?—He was there, and he wrote down the names.

3200. Did you see any money paid to anyone else ?—Yes.

3201. Who did you see money paid to ?—Ward, Cracknell, Warren, Taylor, and Callow.

3202. Did you see anyone else receive money besides those you have mentioned ?—No, they were all that were in the room.

3203. After you had got your money what did you do ?—I went and voted.

3204. Who did you go with ?—A man of the name of Ward.

3205. And the younger Smith ?—No.

3206. Did not Smith take you up to the poll ?—No.

3207. Did you go with Callow ?—No.

3208. Only you and Ward went together ?—We two chose to go alone.

3209. Now I want to ask you this about the 7*s.* 6*d.*, did either Hunt or Smith make a bargain with you all round ?—No.

3210. How was that done ? How did you come to agree upon the sum of 7*s.* 6*d.* ?—Well, Hunt was bragging there about his money, his giving his money away ; he said, "Come upstairs and I will give you "some," and I went upstairs and held my hand out and got some.

3211. Had you made no bargain as to how much it was to be ?—Not at the time I was there. I believe there had been something said, but not in my presence.

3212. Then you believe they all agreed to take 7*s.* 6*d.* apiece ?—I suppose they did by that.

3213. (Mr. Dowdeswell.) You went into the house, about what time in the day ?—A quarter past 2.

3214. What was the first thing said about money after you first went in ?—I do not recollect anything being said about it.

3215. You do not drop into 7*s.* 6*d.* accidentally without anything being said about it, just remember ?—There was nothing else said but "Come upstairs "and I will give you some." I do not recollect anything else.

3216. Who was it said to you, "Come upstairs and "I will give you some" ?—Hunt.

3217. Did he say what he was going to give you ?—No, not until he got upstairs.

3218. How long was it after you went in that Hunt said "Come upstairs and I will give you some" ?—A very few minutes.

3219. Was he talking to the other men when you went in ?—Yes.

3220. Then all you heard was, "Come upstairs and "I will give you some" ?—That is all I heard about the money affair.

3221. They were talking about voting, I suppose ?—I do not know. I was not in the house many minutes before I went upstairs ; they were all jangling together at the time I went in.

3222. All about voting ?—I think they were, I cannot be sure about that. They were jangling at the time I went in, but about what I do not know.

3223. They were jangling about how much they should get for their votes, were they not ?—No, I never heard anything about what they should get.

3224. What did you think the money was to be given for ?—I suppose for voting ; but I do not know.

3225. You supposed it was to vote, did you not ?—I took it as such.

3226. You thought so ?—Yes.

3227. Had anybody come to you to ask you for your vote ?—Yes.

3228. Who ?—Mr. Hutton.

3229. What did you tell Mr. Hutton ?—That I should vote for the Conservatives.

3230. Then why had you not voted for the Conservatives before half-past 2 in the day ?—Because I did not leave off work till half-past 1.

3231. But you know this was half-past 2 ?—I had to go home to get my dinner, and I had no time to spare then.

3232. Then you were going to the public house instead of the poll ?—Yes.

3233. Now do you mean to say that you were going to vote for the Conservatives until you had some money ?—I went in there to get half-a-pint of beer before I went to the poll.

3234. Then this affair about the 7*s.* 6*d.* was purely accidental ?—I went into the house, and after I had been there a few minutes, I heard them say, "Come upstairs," and I followed the rest.

3235. You went up into the room and took your 7*s.* 6*d.* ?—Yes.

3236. Did you pay for a half-pint or whatever you had ?—Yes, I paid for two half-pints.

3237. Then you waited there long enough to drink two half-pints ?—Yes.

3238. What time was it that you went up to the poll ?—About half-past 3.

3239. That is rather late in the day for a man who had promised to vote, is it not ?—Better late than not at all, I should think.

WILLIAM WARREN sworn and examined.

W. Warren.

3240. (Mr. Biron.) What are you ?—A shoemaker.

3241. Do you vote as an occupier or as a freeman ?—A freeman.

3242. Of what ward ?—The fourth ward.

3243. Did you vote for Stracey at the last election ?—Yes.

3244. Had you voted at other elections ?—I had voted Conservative.

3245. Have you voted more than once before this last time ?—Yes, I voted for Mr. Waters and Sir Samuel Bignold and Lushington.

3246. Then you voted in 1859 and 1865 ?—I cannot remember the dates.

3247. Were you at the "Trumpet" on the day of the election ?—Yes.

3248. What time in the day did you get to the "Trumpet" ?—It might be 11 o'clock, but I cannot say the time exactly.

3249. I suppose you began drinking ?—Yes.

3250. And did you drink on until Sir Henry Stracey came ?—Yes.

3251. Did you hear Sir Henry Stracey ask the men to vote ?—Yes, I think I did.

3252. How many of you were there when he came in ?—I cannot say what number there were.

3253. But about how many, 20 ?—I cannot say for 20. I do not believe there were so many as that.

3254. Was Bygrave there ?—I do not know the man.

3255. Was Churchyard there ?—Yes, John Churchyard was.

3256. Was Robert Fuller the landlord's brother there ?—Yes.

3257. And George Barnes ?—Yes.

3258. And Robert Walker ?—I do not know the man.

3259. George Smith and Henry Smith, father and son ?—Yes, I believe there were some Smiths there, but I cannot tell the Christian names of them.

3260. Michael George Gilbert ?—I do not know the man.

3261. John Greengrass ?—I do not know him.

3262. Do you know old Browes and his son ?—No, I do not.

2263. What brought you there ?—I went to get a little drink. I live close by.

3264. Is that the house you generally use ?—In a general way.

3265. You told me you were there when Sir Henry Stracey was there, and heard his speech. Did you hear the men say anything ?—I do not remember.

3266. I mean anything about having to pay rates ?—Yes, I believe there was something said about paying rates.

3267. Sir Henry Stracey had asked you to go up and vote ?—Yes.

3268. And some of the men said "We have got to "pay rates" ?—Yes.

3269. Was not Smith there at the time Sir Henry Stracey came in ?—I think Hunt was, but I do not remember anything about Smith. I do not remember his being there.

3270. Did you see either Hunt or Smith come in after Sir Henry Stracey had left ?—I never noticed them coming in.

3271. Hunt was there the whole time, was he not ?—Yes, he came in after Sir Henry Stracey had gone.

3272. What did he say then ?—He said something about this. "I have got some money," or "I have "got 7*s.* 6*d.* for you." I do not know which it was.

3273. Did he not say "I have got 5*l.* for the lot" ?—No, I never noticed his saying that. He possibly might have said it, but I never heard him.

3274. He said he had got 7*s.* 6*d.* apiece for you ?—Yes.

3275. What did you do upon that ?—I went and took some shillings of him.

3276. Had any other offer been made in your hearing about 5*s.* ?—Not that I remember.

3277. Had not Smith said something about 5*s.* ?—No, not in my time.

3278. Nor Hunt ?—I never remember Hunt saying so.

3279. You remember the 7*s.* 6*d.* ?—Yes.

3280. Did you go upstairs to the little room after the 7*s.* 6*d.* was offered ?—Yes, I went upstairs.

3281. Were you paid your 7*s.* 6*d.* ?—8*s.*

3282. You got 8*s.* ?—Yes.

3283. How was that ?—I had not a sixpence.

3284. You had not change ?—No.

3285. Was he taking change ?—I do not know. I know he asked me, that is all.

3286. Who gave you the 8*s.* ?—Hunt.

3287. What coin did he give you ?—To the best of my knowledge four two shilling pieces.

3288. Did you see where Hunt got the money from ?—I think he got it out of his pocket.

3289. Did not Robert Fuller give it to him ?—No, I never saw him.

3290. Did you not see Fuller there ?—Do you mean the landlord ?

3291. No, Robert Fuller, the landlord's brother, was he not up there with a bag of silver ?—No, I never saw a bag of silver. I believe he was there.

3292. Did you not see Hunt hand him anything and get something back ?—I do not remember that, but he might do so.

3293. How many were there when you were paid ?—Upstairs ?

3294. Yes.—To the best of my knowledge there was me, Ward, Wright, Cracknell, and I believe Taylor and Callow, but I am not sure.

3295. Were they all the men who were there when you were paid ?—They were there.

3296. Did you see any of those other men up

FOURTH DAY.

W. Warren.

23 Aug. 1869.

in the little room?—No, only what I have now mentioned; I do not remember seeing any in the house.

3297. Did Barnes go up there?—I do not remember him.

3298. Do you not remember Barnes refusing to take 7*s.* 6*d.*?—No, I do not—not in the time I was there.

3299. Was George Barnes there?—He was downstairs.

3300–1. Now did you say you paid for your drink in the first instance?—Yes.

3302. How much did you pay?—I might spend sixpence, or I might spend more. I cannot say exactly.

3303. But just recollect what you did spend?—I cannot exactly recollect.

3304–6. How long were you there drinking?—I was there from about 11 till between 2 and 3, as nearly as I can recollect, but I went home between those times.

3307. How long were you at home?—I went home several times.

3308. Who paid for the rest of the drink. You drank more than your sixpennyworth?—I believe Hunt asked me to drink once or twice.

3309. Hunt and Smith, I suppose?—No, I do not remember drinking a glass of beer with Smith.

3310. Only Hunt?—Yes.

3311. What time did you vote?—I think it must have been between 2 and 3, but I cannot exactly say.

3312. Later than that, was it not?—It might be later, but I cannot say, for I never noticed the time.

3313. Who took you up to the poll?—I and Ward and Wright went.

3314. Did anybody go with you?—Hunt went with us.

3315. Did you see young Mr. Stracey there at all?—I do not know young Mr. Stracey.

3316. Do you know Mr. Bignold?—I know the old gentleman, Sir Samuel.

3317. Do you not know either of the young ones, Mr. Arthur or Mr John Bignold?—No, I do not.

3318. (Mr. Dowdeswell.) What quantity of beer did you drink?—I cannot say exactly what quantity I drank.

3319. How long did you remain in the house in the first place?—It might be an hour, or it might be half an hour, I cannot exactly say.

3320. But how long do you believe it was, or were you so tipsy that you have forgotten?—Well, I was a little the worse for drink, I had been drinking.

3321. Had you been drinking at any other public house?—Yes, I had been down at the bottom of St. Stephen's.

3322. What house was that?—The "Peacock" I think it was.

3323. Who had supplied you with drink there?—I paid for that, there was nobody there.

3324. How long had you been drinking down there?—Well, I might be there half an hour or so, but I cannot say exactly.

3325. What quantity had you down there?—Only two half pints, that is all.

3326. What quantity of drink had you the first time you went to the "Trumpet"?—A pint.

3327. Is that what you paid for?—Yes.

3328. Besides the pint you had paid for what more had you to drink, because you got drunk according to your own account?—No, I was not right drunk. We clubbed pennies together each for half gallons.

3329. Did you see other people drinking there?—Yes, there were plenty of people in and out of the house.

3330. Did you see them pay for the drink, or did they have it without paying?—I never took notice whether they did.

3331. How long were you away before you returned?—The first time?

3332. Yes.—Well, it might be half an hour or so, I cannot say exactly, or it might be less time.

3333. Did you go out again and come in a third time?—Yes, I might do that.

3334. Were you so tipsy that you cannot recollect?—No, I was not so tipsy as that.

3335. Just tell me did you go out and return a third time or did you remain there from that time until you got your money?—I believe I did go out again, I went home.

3336. How long were you away the second time?—For about half an hour, I should say, but I cannot exactly tell. I will tell you the truth as near as I can think of it.

3337. How long was it after you returned the last time that you went up into the little room?—I should say a couple of hours or an hour and a half, something like that.

3338. What were you doing during the whole hour and a half after you returned, drinking?—Yes.

3339. Now did you pay a single farthing for anything you drank after you returned that time?—Yes, I believe I did.

3340. Will you undertake to swear that you did?—I believe I did, but I cannot say.

3341. Who was it first spoke about the 7*s.* 6*d.*?—Hunt, I believe.

3342. Did you hear Smith say anything about money?—No, I do not remember it.

3343. Do you know the bagatelle room?—No, but I know the large room in the lane.

3344. That is the market room, but you went up to some other room to receive the money?—Yes.

3345. Did you up into a little room first, or did you go straight to the bagatelle room?—A little room to the left of the stairs, to the best of my knowledge.

3346. Was there a bagatelle board in it?—I never noticed one.

3347. Did you only go to one room upstairs?—That is all.

3348–9. Did not some of these men, and if so which of them, go up with you? I will give you the names: Granville Bygrave, John Churchyard, Robert Walker, George Smith, Henry Smith his son, William Hunt, Michael George Gilbert, John Greengrass, and the two Browes?—I do not remember those names at all. I do not know Bygrave nor yet Walker.

3350. Out of those which I have given you do you not recollect some of them going up to the bagatelle room, or at least that little room?—Not the bagatelle room, I went in the little room.

3351. I want to know whether John Churchyard did not go up with you?—I do not remember him.

3352. Do you recollect Robert Walker?—No, I do not know that man at all.

3353–4. Do you know George Smith and Henry Smith, father and son.—I saw them in the room downstairs.

3355. Did you not also see them in the room upstairs?—No, I do not remember seeing them.

3356. Will you undertake to say that you did not see them?—I at the end remember seeing them there, and that is the truth.

3357. Do you know the two Browes at all?—No, upon my word I do not.

3358. After you received the 8*s.* did you immediately go downstairs?—Yes.

3359. You went straight downstairs?—Yes.

3360. Those who received money after you left of course you do not know?—No.

3361. Was Hunt there with the money at that time?—He gave me mine upstairs.

3362. And the other people that you have mentioned, were they in the room upstairs?—Ward and Wright were upstairs at the time I was there.

3363. You went straight away?—Yes, I went with them.

3364. Did you meet any persons coming up the stairs?—No, I do not remember any.

RICHARD WILLIAM LADELL sworn and examined.

3365. (Mr. Dowdeswell.) Are you a freeman of this city?—Yes.

3366. How long have you been a freeman?—15 years.

3367. Have you voted at the three last elections?—I have.

I am afraid, in consequence of the determination of some persons and of the advice of others to withhold information from us, we shall be compelled before the termination of this inquiry to call every person upon the register. That is a most serious consequence, involving an enormous loss of time and expense, and it ought to be well weighed by those who have given that advice. I extremely regret it for the sake of this city, but more especially for the inconvenience to which we must necessarily subject a large portion of the voters. Now I am sorry that you and a number of other persons in your position of life should have been compelled to come here, but it is a necessity which we feel we have no alternative but to carry out.

3368. Can you mention the name of any person who you have heard has either given a bribe or received a bribe at this election?—None whatever.

3369. (Mr. Biron.) Or treated?—Or treated.

3370. Paid for beer in public houses?—No.

3371. Have you heard the names of any public houses where bribery or treating went on at the last election?—I have not except from the late inquiry.

3372. Do you know of anything except what you have heard?—I do not.

JOHN SWITHIN MADGETT sworn and examined.

J.S. Madgett

3373. (Mr. Mansfield.) Are you a voter?—A freeman.

3374. Have you voted before this last election?—Oh yes.

3375. On which side?—Well, I have voted for all parties.

3376. For whom did you vote this time?—For Stracey.

3377. Are you aware of any person at this election having received a bribe to vote?—No.

3378. Any money?—No.

3379. Have you heard any names mentioned by report?—No.

3380. Who canvassed you?—Well, I was asked by Mr. Wilding.

3381. In what ward is that?—The fifth ward. They were taking the parish rounds, and it was only the parish of All Saints, I believe.

3382. Did you promise him to vote?—I do not recollect whether I did or not, but I intended to vote for Stracey.

3383. Did you promise anyone?—No, I do not remember anyone else speaking to me.

3384. You voted the first thing in the morning?—I did vote in the morning.

3385. Did you receive any money from anybody?—No.

3386, Did you receive any promise of money?—No.

3387. Did you receive any beer?—No, I never drank at all, and have not done so for just upon 30 years.

CHARLES JOHN WATSON sworn and examined.

C. J. Watson

3388. (Mr. Biron.) Are you a voter?—Yes.

3389. A freeman?—Yes.

3390. How long have you been on the register?—I think I was on the register the first time last year.

3391. You did not vote before?—No.

3392. For whom did you vote?—Stracey.

3393. Were you canvassed?—There were three of them in our place. They merely came to put the name on a paper.

3394. Do you keep a shop?—I keep a shop, at least my mother keeps a shop, but I attend to it and superintend it for her.

3395. Did you receive anything for voting?—No.

3396. No money or anything of the sort?—No.

3397. Were you about the city on the day of the election after you had voted?—At half-past 12 or 1 I was in the city, but not for electioneering purposes.

3398. You were there so as to see what was going on?—I was there.

3399. Did you see any men hanging about the polling booths who had not voted?—No. I was only out about an hour or two in the afternoon.

3400. Did you see any men hanging about public houses?—No; I can't say that I passed any public houses.

3401. It is impossible to go far here without getting near a public house?—I didn't, not to notice anything.

3402. Have you heard any reports of people being bribed?—No.

3403. Or bribing?—No.

3404. Have you not heard anything about the last election?—Merely what I read in the paper about the inquiry before Baron Martin. All I knew about it is what I read in the paper during that inquiry.

3405. You take no great interest in politics?—No.

WALTER EDWARD BIRD sworn and examined.

W. E. Bird

3406. (Mr. Mansfield.) What are you by profession?—An ornamental painter.

3407. What is the nature of your qualification?—A freeman.

3408. How many elections have you voted at?—I should think about four or five. I cannot say exactly.

3409. For whom did you vote at the last election?—Stracey.

3410. What hour of the day did you poll?—As soon as the poll was open.

3411. Had you been canvassed before?—No.

3412. Had you given any promise?—No.

3413. Did anybody ask you to vote?—No.

3414. You have always voted on the Conservative side?—Yes.

3415. Are you cognisant of any money having been given at this last election on either side for votes?—No.

3416. Have you heard any reports to that effect?—No.

GEORGE HOLL sworn and examined.

G. Holl.

3417. (Mr. Biron.) What are you?—A shoemaker.

3418. In what ward?—The fifth ward.

3419. For whom did you vote at the last election?—Tillett and Russell.

3420. Are you a freeman or an occupier?—A freeman.

3421. Have you voted before?—Yes. I have been a freeman these 40 years.

3422. How have you voted?—I have always voted

FOURTH DAY.

G. Holl.

23 Aug. 1869.

on the Liberal side. I never voted Tory in my life.

3423. At what time did you vote at the last election ?—About 10 o'clock in the forenoon.

3424. Do you know of any place where bribery went on at the last election ?—No. I did not take any part in the election, I only voted. I walked about a little in the course of the day, but I did not see anything I could make anything of.

3425. Have you heard any reports since ?—No, not that I know anything about.

3426. Except what you have read of at the election inquiry ?—That is all.

J. Hall.

JAMES HALL sworn and examined.

3427. (Mr. Dowdeswell.) Are you a freeman of this city ?—Yes.

3428. How long have you been a freeman ?—I should think more than 20 years.

3429. Have you voted at the three last elections ?—Yes.

3430. For whom did you vote at the last ?—Russell and Tillett.

3431. Had you promised your vote before ?—No, certainly not. That is my opinion, and I voted that way. I was not canvassed by either side.

3432. Have you always voted that way ?—I did once vote for Douro and Peto, under circumstances, many years since.

3433. How long ago was that—More than 20 years ago.

3434. You were about, I suppose, on the day of the election ?—Very little indeed. I did not take much interest in it.

3435. Did you hear upon that day of anybody having received a bribe, or having treated anybody to make them poll ?—I might, perhaps, the latter part of the day, but I was not amongst them.

3436. If you heard it, who told you ?—I cannot say. It was public talk what I heard.

3437. Did you hear anybody mentioned ?—Not by name, but I heard that they were bribing.

3438. Did you hear whether they were bribing at any place ?—No ; it was public talk.

3439. It is quite public talk, I am sorry to say, that we have to inquire into ?—I was not amongst them, but in the evening or next day morning I heard about it, but I cannot say who said so.

3440. Did you hear any names of the people who were being bribed ?—Certainly not.

3441. Have you heard anything since ?—No.

3442. (Mr. Biron.) Did you hear any houses mentioned where bribery was going on ?—I heard about the "Trumpet" and the "Marquis of Granby."

3443. That came out in the election inquiry ; but that day or the day after the election did you hear anything ?—I might hear it the day after the election, about what took place at the "Trumpet," merely talk amongst the people I am intimate with. That is all.

T. N. Penton.

THOMAS NELSON PENTON sworn and examined.

3444. (Mr. Mansfield.) What are you ?—A porter.

3445. What is your qualification for voting ?—A freeman.

4446. How long have you been a freeman ?—About nine years.

3447. What previous elections have you voted at ?—For Russell and Warner.

3448. For whom did you vote this last time ?—Russell and Tillett.

3449. At what hour in the day did you poll ?—A quarter before 9 in the morning.

3450. Had you promised your vote to anyone ?—I had not promised particular, but Mr. Marston asked me a few days previous which way I was going to vote, and I said "blue," the same as before.

3451. Were you about the town that day ?—Yes.

3452. Did you hear anything going on ?—No.

3453. Nothing improper at public houses ?—No.

3454. Did you hear anybody's name mentioned in connexion with improper practices ?—No, not till after I see the newspaper.

E. P. Gedge.

EDWARD PETER GEDGE sworn and examined.

(Witness.) I have been a freeman in this city nearly 26 years, and never took a bribe.

3455–6. No one is imputing anything to you. You do not like bribery, I can see ?—No.

3457. I am perfectly certain you are speaking the truth, and that is why I want you to give evidence. You are the sort of man we want.—We shall help one another, I hope.

3458. Do not think I want to say anything that will hurt your feelings or the feelings of anyone else, I hope. Now tell me, did you hear anything about the bribery ?—I never went out anywhere.

3459. Did you hear anything about it ?—No, certainly not. After I voted I went with a friend. I said to him, "Old chap, will you have a glass of ale ?" and we had a pint together, and we paid for it.

3460. Then you did not hear anything about the bribery ?—No ; there was no bribery there, was there ?

3461. No, certainly not ; but did you hear of anything going on anywhere else ?—No ; I did not trouble myself at all. I don't care if my name is seen.

3462. You need not be ashamed of your name ; it is a very good name, and you seem to be a very good man.—It is the first occasion I have been called up, and mark my word, it shall be the last. I'll never poll again.

3463. You must not lose your temper, because we have to keep our tempers under very difficult circumstances. It gives us no pleasure to make these inquiries.—No, certainly.

J. B. Blackburn.

JAMES BERRY BLACKBURN sworn and examined.

3464. (Mr. Dowdeswell.) I believe you are a freeman in this city ?—I am.

3465. And I suppose you have been so for many years ?—About 16 years.

3466. Were you canvassed for the last election ?—I was by the Tories.

3467. Did you promise to vote for them ?—No.

3468. Did you promise to vote for the others ?—I did ; but I was not canvassed.

3469. Then you volunteered ?—I volunteered.

3470. I suppose you took a little interest in the election ?—Well, I did not take much interest in this ; very little indeed.

3471. Did you hear during the day of anybody giving or receiving bribes ?—I did hear something of it. That is always the case. I did not pay no attention to it.

3472. Did you act at all towards promoting the election ?—I canvassed about three days before the election part of Crook's Place.

3473. What part did you canvass?—The first part in Crook's Place, Chapel Street.

3474. Has that street got a number of doubtful voters in it?—There was a great many doubtful voters. I got very few promises.

3475. Did you return the result of your canvass?—The party who took my canvass was a man of the name of Grimshaw. I went with him.

3476. Did he make up the canvass book?—He had the canvass book.

3477. Is Grimshaw a member of what they call the "organisation"?—Yes, I believe he was.

3478. Now when the people were doubtful did they mention anything to you about money?—No.

3479. They merely refused to give you any pledge at all?—There was very few gave a pledge at all in that street to us.

3480. Is it a populous street?—A good many working men; not so many after all.

3481. How many voters were there in the street?—I could not say.

3482. Had you a book for the purpose of canvassing them?—No.

8483. Did you look after the men at all upon the day of the election?—No.

3484. You know the "Trumpet," do you not, in this ward?—I know the "Trumpet."

3485. Did you hear during the day of anything going on in the "Trumpet"?—I heard afterwards. I did not on that day.

3486. Where did you hear the talk about the "Trumpet"?—I heard them talk about it the next day.

3487. Did you hear of any other public house in your ward where anything improper was going on?—No, I did not hear of any in the fifth ward.

3488. Did you hear of any other public house in any other ward?—I heard there was bribing done in the seventh and eighth wards.

3489. Where?—At the "Woolpack."

3490. And at the "Marquis of Granby"?—Yes.

3491. Were those the only places in which you heard the next day of any bribery going on?—I heard there was a house close to what they call Jenkin's Lane. I heard there was bribery going on there.

3492. Do you know the name of the house?—No.

3493. Don't you know the sign?—No.

3494. You merely heard that it was a beer house in Jenkin's Lane?—That is all. I heard they were bribing there; that there were a lot of votes there.

3495. Did you hear who was bribing?—No.

3496. Did you hear who the voters were?—No; I heard that they would vote for anybody if they were paid for it.

3497. Did you hear the names of any who were bribed at the "Trumpet"?—No, I did not hear any particular names.

3498. Who was it that was talking about it?—Those that had used the "Trumpet."

3499. Who was it?—I don't know. They said a lot of men were bribed there.

3500. I want to know who told you?—It was general talk.

3501. Only general talk? Is there any person in particular that gave you the information of it, because you say you have been canvassing, you know?—Not that I know of.

3502. Did you hear whether any of the persons that you had canvassed had been bribed?—No, I did not.

3503. You would be particularly interested in that?—I did not hear anything of the kind; in fact, on the election day I took very little interest in it indeed. I went and voted; that is all I done.

3504. I am not speaking of the election day simply, but on the next day or any day immediately afterwards did you hear of any particular person who was said to be bribed or to have bribed?—I heard, but it is only hearsay.

3505. That is what I want. When did you hear of anybody who was bribed or who had been bribing?—I heard of Smith the fowl dealer and others.

3506. Anybody else?—I don't know what names there were.

3507. Have you heard anybody since the election up to the present time say that any particular person bribed any of the voters?—No, I have not heard anything particular about it.

3508. Who were the other canvassers in your ward?—There were so many canvassers, but they were not united together. There was Marston the leather cutter, and there was a man that lived down Timberhill. I forget his name; he kept a shop; a shortish man.

3509. Anybody else?—Those were the only ones that went with me. I don't think the ward was properly canvassed at all.

3510. I want to know who actually made any canvass at all, not only with you, but for the other parts of the ward?—There was canvassers, no doubt, but I don't remember who they were, I am sure.

3511. (Mr. Biron.) Was the Liberal committee for that ward held at your house?—What committee?

3512. The Liberal, Russell and Tillett's?—Yes, it was.

3513. Then I take it you had an interest in these elections?—In some of them I had an interest.

3514. You had an interest in the last?—I had not much interest in it.

3515. Did you see the Tories canvassing your ward at all?—They called in at me; they canvassed me. I did not follow them about.

3516. Who canvassed you?—I think Stockings was one, and John Calver, and I think Fisher, the grocer.

3517. Did you not see any other Conservatives canvassing that ward—No, I did not.

3518. During the whole ten days before were those the only three men you saw about?—I saw them about, but none came to me.

3519. You stayed at home looking after your own business?—Yes.

3520–1. Do you know Larkman's, Thorn Lane?—No.

3522. It is a public house in Thorn Lane?—I went to no public houses.

3523. Don't you know the man who keeps a public house in Thorn Lane?—I may know the man, but I don't know the house.

3524. Did you hear of any bribery going on there?—No.

3525. From whom did you hear of the bribery in Jenkin's Lane?—I was walking leisurely with a friend, and we were told they were bribing there; we did not go in.

3526. With whom were you walking?—Young Henry Tillett, who is just dead.

3527. Did he say they were bribing there?—We would not go in, and a man said, "There's a lot of "votes there;" and he said, "Let them be there;" he did not know me, he knew him.

3528. Do you know who the man was?—No, he came out of this very house.

3529. He said, "There are a lot of votes there." You understood by that that there were men who would vote if they were paid for it, and Henry Tillett said, "There let them be"?—Yes.

3530. Do you know who the man was that came up to Mr. Tillett and said that?—No.

3531. What time was that?—About half-past 3,

FOURTH DAY.

J. B. Blackburn.

23 Aug. 1869.

3532. Did you see anybody hanging about the house?—No, I saw no one. I did not go inside.

3533. Did you see any of the Tories there?—No.

3534. Did you see anybody whom you recognised as a Tory?—No.

3535. That is in your ward?—No; mine is the fifth ward.

3536. Where is Jenkin's Lane?—St. Martin's.

3537. What ward is that?—The eighth.

3538. You know where the house stands; you could go to it?—Yes.

3539. Could you get us the name of the house and of the landlord?—Yes, I should think I could.

J. Carter.

JOHN CARTER sworn and examined.

3540. (Mr. Dowdeswell.) Are you a freeman of this city?—Yes.

3541. I suppose you have been a freeman for many years?—Yes.

3542. Were you canvassed for the last election?—No.

3543. Did you vote at the last election?—Yes.

3544. Had you voted at the previous elections?—Yes.

3545. Which way had you voted at the previous elections, Liberal or Conservative?—Conservative.

3546. You have always voted Conservative?—Yes.

3547. Have you heard of any bribery going on at the last election, besides what you have heard in consequence of the inquiry before Mr. Baron Martin?—o I did not.

3548. No report?—No.

3549. Did anybody tell you of any particular act which had been done?—I have heard people talk, but I did not pay any regard to it, because I did not see any of it.

3550. Although you had not seen any of it, did they tell you of it?—No, I heard people talk.

3551. You took the common interest of other people in the conduct of this election?—Not much of that.

3552. You heard nothing?—No.

A. A. Marston.

ALFRED ABRAHAM MARSTON sworn and examined.

3553. (Mr. Mansfield.) You are a leather cutter?—Yes.

3554. What is your qualification?—Freeman.

3555. You voted at the last election?—I did.

3556. Which side?—Russell and Tillett.

3557. Did you always vote on that side?—Always.

3558. You were one of the canvassers in your ward?—I did canvass All Saints parish somewhat.

3559. For Russell and Tillett?—For Mr. Tillett, because at that time the coalition had not taken place.

3560. Had you anything to do with the organisation society?—Well, I was, I may say, on the committee, if I may use the term, at least I organised as far as I could, and got the opinions of the new voters as well as I could, and induced them to join with me in that organisation.

3561. You were active on Mr. Tillett's side?—I was not so active as I should like to have been, because my means and time were limited.

3562. During the day of the polling, were you about a good deal in the city?—In the former part of the day I was.

3563. Did you hear of any improper practices going on in any part of the city on that day?—I did in the latter part of the day.

3564. What places did you hear mentioned?—The "Trumpet" was one place more especially than any other.

3565. What others?—I don't know that I could say.

3566. Have you heard the names of any persons?—That would be after. I don't believe that was in my ward.

3567. Did you hear the next day when the polling was over the names of any persons?—No. I think the principal business was done at the "Trumpet."

3568. Did you hear of any other place?—No, nor did I go there.

3569. Did you hear of any place in your own ward where "business" was being done?—I cannot say that I did.

3570. The next day did you hear any stories going about as to how it had been carried?—No; I heard something about the "Coach and Horses," I think.

3571. Where is that?—I think I am wrong; the "Coachmakers' Arms," I think that would be the sign, in St. Stephen's, about St. Stephen's gates. I heard there was some there.

3572. Did you hear the names of any persons who were said to be active there?—Smith, a fowl dealer, and Hunt.

3573. At the "Coachmakers' Arms"?—No, at the "Trumpet." I did not hear the names mentioned at the "Coachmakers' Arms."

3574. Did you hear the names of any other persons mentioned as giving or taking money at this election?—After the election. As you asked me, I was canvassing somewhat the new electors, and I called on a person of the name of Blanchflower; he lives on the road, and he told me he would vote for anyone that would hang Disraeli. I said I did not want to do such a thing as that, and so on, and I put him down. I met there with him a son-in-law to the old gentleman (he is 90 years old), and he said, "You can put us down, we are all right." About 1 o'clock it might be on the election day, seeing they had not voted, I called upon that old gentleman, and asked him to go with me to the poll. He gets down within six or ten or twelve yards of the polling place, and then he says, "I am not going to vote now." I says, "Why?" and he says, "I am going to see my "sons-in-law." I says, "Where are they?" and he says, "They are at the 'Trumpet.'" "Oh," I said, "I am not going there," and I did not go; and ten minutes after I saw both the sons-in-law had voted for Stracey. Browes is the sons-in-law's name; and then the old gentleman volunteered a statement after the election. He said he did not go directly into the house, but his sons-in-law led him across the street, and told him he might have half-a-sovereign for his vote for Stracey, but the old gentlemen did not have it; he did not vote at all.

3575. But his relations did?—The two Browes did.

3576. Did he give any reason for not voting?—No, he did not.

3577. Do you know that the old gentleman had come to vote?—He went with me, and I walked with him along the road, and expected he was going to vote; but ten yards from the polling place he said he would not vote till he had seen his sons-in-law.

3578. You say you thought him safe till within ten yards of the polling place?—Yes.

3579. Do you know of anything that happened at the "Coachmakers' Arms"?—No, I don't. I was not in the house at all.

3580. Can you tell me any other circumstance that has been mentioned to you since the election in connexion with taking or giving money?—I cannot charge my memory just now with anything.

3581. Have you heard of anything?—No, general rumours.

3582. Can you mention any one of those general rumours?—No, I cannot, not now. I don't know but what I have disclosed all pretty well that I know, because my place is pretty well up to the work, we have not much fault to find with them generally; and I confined myself, what little I did, to that place.

3583. (Mr. Dowdeswell.) What is the name of this old gentleman?—Blanchflower.

3584. What is his address?— The fifth ward.

3585. In which parish?—All Saints.

3586. (Mr. Biron.) Do you know Larkman, of Thorn Lane?—No, I don't.

3587. He keeps a public house there?—I know the house, but I don't know the man.

3588. Did you hear of anything going on there on the day of the election?—After the election I did hear many reports concerning it.

3589. You heard the men were there waiting to be bribed?—Yes, I did hear it.

3590. Did you hear that any were bribed?—Yes; and I likewise heard that many of them were there waiting to be bought, and they voted under the promise of receiving money after they had voted. They did vote, and they did not get the money.

3591. Did you hear who that was who promised, and did not keep his promise?—No, he was in a private room, and they were let in one at a time.

3592. Did you hear who he was?—No.

3593. Who told you that?—I could not say, it might be ten people almost who told me that.

3594. If ten people told you you can tell me the name of one of them?—Mr. Maitland was one, I believe.

3595. Who is Mr. Maitland?—He lives in Golden Ball Street, and keeps an eating house there. I believe he was one.

3596. Who else?—I believe, if you refer to the author, if he was truthful to me, he would tell you; Mr. Palmer, who keeps a shoe shop close by.

3597. Was Mr. Palmer the man who made the promise?—No; Mr. Palmer was to have gone and received the monies, I understood; but his heart failed him, he daren't take it.

3598. What else did you hear about this Thorn Lane place?—I cannot say. I think it is more than likely you have got more than I can tell you.

3599. You are only telling what you heard?—That is all I can think of just now.

3600. Think a little more?—I mention Mr. Parker, a grocer, being very active in buying.

3601. Where does Parker, the grocer, live?—Timberhill, close by.

3602. Do you recollect anybody else?—No; just now I cannot think of it.

3603. What was the name of the man that you mentioned just now?—Blanchflower.

3604. Did you ever hear him called by the name of Browes?—I believe he is registered under the name of Browes.

3605–6. There are two sons-in-law of the old gentleman?— The two Browes are sons-in-law of Blanchflower.

JOHN BROWES sworn and examined.

J. Browes.

3607. (Mr. Biron.) Did you vote at the last election?—Yes.

3608. When did you vote?—I voted about 20 minutes past 3.

3609. For whom?—Mr. Stracey.

3610. Where had you been in the early part of the day?—I had been about in the city, different places, and had a glass of beer where I thought I would.

3611. Where did you take the first glass of beer?—I believe it was in the market.

3612. Towards 11 where did you get to?—About 11 o'clock I was up at Mr. Salter's, and had a glass of ale.

3613. Where is Salter's?—At St. Stephen's Gate.

3614. What is the name of the public house that he keeps?—They are wine vaults now, what used to be the "Bee Hive."

3615. Was there any talk about bribing there?—No, not to me.

3616. Two other men were there?—There was one talking about voting there.

3617. You did not stay there long?—No.

3618. To what place did you go?—I went home, and got my dinner.

3619. Where did you go to after dinner?—I come down into St. Stephen's again.

3620. Into what house did you go there?—I went to Fuller's, and had a pint of ale; I and my son.

3621. You heard some talk about voting?—No. There was only room for two people to sit where I went in, in the front of the bar. I sat there, and had a pint of ale; I and my son.

3622. You went to the "Trumpet." What room were you in?—In the front of the bar.

3623. Did not you go into the room below?—No, I did not.

3624. Who was with you there?—My son.

3625. What is his name?—John Browes.

3626. Did not you hear anything in the "Trumpet" about voting?—I did not, nor I never saw Fuller.

3627. When you came out did you see anybody who talked to you about voting?—They were talking in the street about voting.

3628. To whom?—I see Mr. Hardy, the grocer, and Mr. Fisher; he said, "Have you voted?" I said, "No, sir."

WILLIAM BLANCHFLOWER sworn and examined.

W Blanchflower.

3629. (Mr. Dowdeswell.) Are you a voter in this city?—No, not that I know of.

3630. Have you not a vote for members of Parliament in this city?—No. They left me a card for it, and they asked me to vote for Mr. Tillett, and I said I should not vote for Mr. Tillett, nor no other man.

3631. Then you have a vote?—Not that I know of. I never paid the rate. I have lived in a house for 90 years at 2*s.* a week; that is all in one house.

3632. Did you tell them that when they asked you for your vote?—Yes, I told them I would not vote.

3633. Who asked you for your vote?—I don't know; a gentleman that lives on Timberhill.

3634. Is that Mr. Marston?—I don't know his name. Timberhill, just going on to All Saints Green. I told him I would not vote for Mr. Tillett.

3635. You recollect the day of election, do not you?—Yes.

FOURTH DAY.

W. Blanchflower.

23 Aug. 1869.

3636. Do you recollect a gentleman coming to you that day?—Yes.

3637. Did he ask you to come and vote?—Yes.

3638. Did you walk down with him from your house towards the poll?—He says to me, "If you "can't walk, I'll go and fetch a fly for you."

3639. Did you walk down with him?—I said, "I "can walk, I thank you, sir; I have got legs."

3640. Then you walked?—Then I walked a little way, and he asked me to take hold of his arm. I said, "I don't want to take hold of your arm; I can "walk without." We walked as far as the "Angel," in St. Stephen's, and when we got there I told him I should not vote for Mr. Tillett nor no other man at present, neither Mr. Tillett nor Mr. Stracey. Them are the words I said. We stayed there a little while. Then I went to St. Stephen's.

3641. Did you not say to that gentleman that you could not vote till you had seen your son-in law?—No, I never used such a word.

3642. Did you go and see your son-in-law?—No. It is my own son.

3643. Did you say you could not vote till you had seen your son?—I could not vote at all.

3644. Did not you tell that gentleman that you could not vote until you had seen your son?—I never said no such words.

3645. Remember now?—I do remember.

3646. Did you not go to the "Trumpet"?—I never voted at all.

3647. That is not the question I put to you. Did you go to the "Trumpet"?—No; I never went into the "Trumpet." I stood just by the pastry-cook's shop, just beside it.

3648. Did you see your son there?—I see him in the street, close by the pastry-cook's shop. I call it past the "Trumpet."

3649. Is that next to the "Trumpet"?—Yes, it is close by. One side is what they call the Trumpet Lane.

3650. Did you not talk to him about voting?—No, not a word. I never mentioned anything to him.

3651. Now remember this?—I remember very well.

3652. Did he not tell you that you could have half a sovereign if you would vote for Stracey?—He said I should have half a sovereign if I would go and vote, but I never went nor never took it.

3653. I do not suppose that. But did he not tell you that you should have half a sovereign if you would go and vote for Stracey?—He did not say for whom. I am upon my oath.

3654. Then did he go into the house. Did he tell you to stay there for a little time?—No. I went away. I went home.

3655. Did he go into the "Trumpet"?—No, he went into the other public house across the way—Mr. what's his name, that keeps that public house across the street—not the "Bull," the other.

3656. He went into that house?—Yes. I went home and he went in, and I never see no more of him.

3657. Is that public house called the "Rose"?—I don't know what it is called. What's his name that keeps it.

3658. Salter?—Salter—that's his name. He went in to Salter's. I did not see him go in, but he was going to take me in there; but I went home and I left him.

3659. He wanted you to go in there, did he?—Yes, but I did not.

3660. Did he want you to go in there to get the half sovereign?—No, he never said that.

3661. Did he say for what he wanted you to go into that house?—No, he didn't say nothing at all about it.

3662. Did he simply ask you to go into that house?—I was a standing on the path, and another man was coming by, and he catched hold of the man by the arm, and whilst he was talking with him he left go of my arm, and I walked home. That's all I can say about it.

3663. Before he spoke to you about the half sovereign did not you see him go into the "Trumpet"?—No, I didn't see him go into the "Trumpet."

3664. Did he speak to you about the half sovereign immediately he saw you?—I never see nothing more. Then he walked across the street, and I left him by Salter's door.

3665. You say that he spoke to you about a half sovereign?—He said he would get me a half sovereign; but then I never see it nor never had it.

3666. You say you saw him, in the first place, near the pastry-cook's?—I saw him when I was a coming up the street, and he followed me a little way—my son. He said he would help me through the crowd beside the "Trumpet." Then I stood there against the "Trumpet" door, and he went and came back in about three minutes; and then I went across the road.

3667. He did go into the "Trumpet"?—I did not see him go in.

3668. Did he leave you for a minute or two before he came back again?—Yes.

3669. Did you see where he went to during that time?—No; because I was looking up that way.

3670. You do not know whether he went into the "Trumpet" or not?—No, I did not see him go in.

3671. Did he say who would give you the half sovereign?—No, he did not.

J. Browes.

JOHN BROWES recalled and further examined.

3672. (Mr. Biron.) You told me you went to the "Trumpet" that afternoon?—Yes, about 20 minutes past 2.

3673. Did you not hear anything about getting money for votes?—I did not all the time I was there.

3674. When did you hear about it then?—Not until after the election was over; I heard them talking, but I know nothing further.

3675. Did you see Blanchflower, your father, that afternoon?—Yes, certainly I did; he lives next door to me.

3676. Did you see him after 3 o'clock?—Oh yes.

3677. You mean to tell me that you heard nothing at the "Trumpet" about half sovereigns being given for votes?—I did not, upon my oath.

3678. About money being given?—I did not at the time I was there.

3679. Did you that afternoon?—I did not.

3680. Do you mean to say that you heard nothing about money being given at the "Trumpet" for votes?—I tell you I never heard a word about a farthing being given that afternoon.

3681. You saw your father after you left the "Trumpet"?—Oh yes; he lives next door to me.

3682. Did you say anything to him about voting?—Oh no, I did not say anything to him about voting. I went and voted according to my own opinion.

3683. Did you say anything about his voting?—He had no vote.

3684. Did you tell him that he could have half a sovereign?—No.

3685. Have you got a brother?—I have a son.

3686. Was your son with you and your father?—My son and I were together.

3687. Did your son say to your father "You can "have half a sovereign for voting"?—No, I should say not.

3688. You should say not, but did he?—I cannot say whether he did or not.

3689. You, and your father, and your son were there together?—We were not together; not in the street. When I went home I found my father at home. My father, I knew, had no vote, so how could he have half a sovereign?

3690. Never mind that; but did your son say to him he could have half a sovereign?—That I do not know; he will have to answer that himself.

3691. Did your son say anybody could have half a sovereign for voting?—I do not know, I am sure.

3692. Or that they were giving half a sovereign for voting?—I never heard it.

3693. Did you hear anything whatever about money being given for voting, on the day of the election?—I did not, and I will take my oath that I never took a glass of beer, or so much as a farthing, nor yet was promised anything.

3694. You have told me what time you voted?—Yes, 20 minutes past 3.

3695. What made you wait until that time?—My fancy.

3696. But why was it your fancy? You had been in the "Trumpet," had you made up your mind which way to vote?—I had made up my mind which way to vote the first thing in the morning.

3697. Was that the first time you decided?—This was the first time I had a vote.

3698. Having made up your mind to vote, you voted at 20 minutes past 3?—I voted when I thought fit.

3699. But what made you think fit to wait until after 3?—What makes other people wait?

3700. You answer for yourself and let other people answer for themselves.—I voted when I thought I had a just right to vote.

3701. That is your reason?—I had no other reason.

3702. What were you doing all day? Walking about?—Yes.

3703. Did you pass the polling place?—Well, yes, I passed it a little.

3704. How many times did you go backwards and forwards?—I might say I went backwards and forwards in St. Stephen's three or four different times, I was in the market twice, and I must pass that street because I live that way.

3705. You had never voted before?—No.

3706. Were you canvassed for the election?—Yes, by both parties.

3707. Did you promise either of them?—No, I would not promise either.

3708. You said you had not made up your mind?—No, I never promised no one.

3709. When they asked you, what did you say?—They left their card and compliments at my house.

3710. Did you not see anybody?—No, I was not at home when they left them.

3711. You had a pint in the "Trumpet"?—I and my son had a pint there.

3712. Who did you see in the "Trumpet"?—I saw nothing going forward.

3713. Who did you see?—There was no one there particular.

3714. Did you see Hunt?—No.

3715. Robert Fuller?—If they were there they were in the back room.

3716. Did you see Robert Fuller?—I do not think I saw him.

3717. Did you see George Fuller?—I might see George, but not Robert.

3718. Did you see Mrs. Fuller?—Yes, she drawed me the pint.

3719. Did she say to you, "There is money going "here, if you have not voted"?—No.

3720. Did she say anything about voting?—No, I never heard a word mentioned in the house to me about voting.

3721. Why were you wandering about that day?—I was at work.

3722. What are you?—A fishmonger.

3723. Were you selling your fish?—No; after the poll was over I took my stall.

3724. Why were you not selling in the morning?—I never do sell of a morning; my time would come on of an evening.

3725. Did you sell stale fish then?—I do not go down to the corner until 5 o'clock, and there I am until half-past 11 at night.

3726. Those are your hours?—Yes.

3727. (Mr. Dowdeswell.) Did you see young Smith down there?—I did not.

3728. Not at the "Trumpet"?—No, I did not.

3729. Do you know Hunt?—I know them all, sir. I have stood at that corner, not above thirty yards away from the public house, for this 28 years, therefore I must know them all.

3730. What time of the day was it that you went into the "Trumpet"?—About 20 minutes past 2.

3731. What were you doing between 20 minutes past 2 and half-past 3 when you voted?—I went down into the market.

JOHN BROWES, junior, sworn and examined.

J. Browes, jun.

3732. (Mr. Dowdeswell.) Are you the son of the last witness?—Yes.

3733. Are you a grandson of the old man who was examined here before?—Yes.

3734. What is your business?—I am a labourer.

3735. In what parish do you live?—All Saints.

3736. Are you a voter?—Yes, I did vote.

3737. For whom did you vote?—Mr. Stracey.

3738. What time in the day?—It might be about 3 o'clock, it might be a little after, but I cannot say.

3739. You know the "Trumpet"?—Yes.

3740. When did you first go to the "Trumpet" on that day?—About half after 2.

3741. Where did you go?—Into the bar.

3742. And from the bar where did you go then?—Across St. Stephen's Street to Salter's, and had a glass of ale there.

3743. Why did you go across the street to another public house, and not remain in the "Trumpet"?—Because I was asked to go in and have a glass of ale.

3744. Who asked you to go in and have a glass of ale?—My father.

3745. Did your father come into the "Trumpet" after you?—No, I never went into the "Trumpet" no more.

3746. You or your father never went into the "Trumpet" again?—No.

3747. How was it if you were in the "Trumpet" drinking ale that your father asked you to go across to another public house to drink?—He did not ask me until we got to the middle of the street.

3748. Where were you going?—I was not going anywhere in particular then.

3749. Had you been anywhere on that day?—I had been in the market.

3750. Doing what?—Looking about, the same as a lot more people.

3751. Had you voted?—No.

3752. Now who did you see in the "Trumpet"? Do you know Smith?—Yes, I know Smith.

3753. Did you see him there?—No.

3754. Did you see young Smith?—No.

3755. Do you know Hunt, the fowl dealer?—Yes.

3756. Did you see Hunt?—No.

3757. Did anybody speak to you in the "Trumpet"?—No.

3758. Now you saw your grandfather, did you not?—No.

3759. Did you not see the old man?—No.

3760. Did you not see him at all that afternoon?—No, nor yet that day.

FOURTH DAY.

J. Browes, jun.

23 Aug. 1869.

3761. Now be careful.—I am speaking the truth, sir.

3762. Mind, your father and your grandfather have been examined?—It will make no difference to me; I am telling the truth.

3763. The question will lie between you three?—I am telling the truth, and the whole of the truth.

3764. Do you mean to say you did not see your grandfather that afternoon near the "Trumpet"?—No.

3765. Did you not have any conversation with your grandfather near the "Trumpet"?—No.

3766. Did you not say to your grandfather that he should have half a sovereign if he would vote?—No.

3767. Did you not hear your father say that to the old man?—No.

3768. Do you know the pastrycook's near the "Trumpet"?—Yes.

3769. Did you not see your grandfather near the pastrycook's?—No.

3770. Had you any offer made you of money?—No.

3771. Did you receive any money?—Not a farthing.

3772–3. How came you not to vote until 3 in the day?—Because I was busy at work in the forenoon.

3774. Had you promised your vote?—No, I had promised it to no one.

3775. Had you been canvassed?—Yes.

3776. Had you refused to promise it?—No, I never refused.

3777. Bnt you never had promised it?—I never had promised, I said I did not know which way I should vote.

3778. Who canvassed you?—I don't know the people's names no more than Adam.

3779. They came to you and asked you to vote and you refused entirely to give them any promise?—I never gave them an answer about it. They left me a piece of paper and I told them I should make up my mind.

3780. Did anybody offer you money on that day for your vote?—No.

3781. Had you any conversation with anybody on that day as to money for your vote?—No.

3782. Did you receive any money that day?—No.

3783. Have you received any money since?—Yes, when I was subpœnaed up here before.

3784. But do you mean to say that you have not received money from anybody else?—Not on the election.

3785. Who paid you the money that you received?—I don't know the gentleman's name that paid the money.

3786. Was that for your attendance here before Mr. Baron Martin?—Yes, only I was not called for.

W. Blanchflower.

WILLIAM BLANCHFLOWER recalled and further examined.

3787. (Mr. Dowdeswell.) Which of these two men was it that said you should have half a sovereign for your vote? Look at them and tell us [pointing to John Browes and John Browes, junior]?—My own son.

3788. The oldest of the two?—Yes.

J. Browes.

JOHN BROWES recalled and further examined.

3789. (Mr. Dowdeswell.) Now you have heard what your father says, what have you to say to that?—I do not mind what my father says, I never said no such word to him with my breath. I never said no such word during my breath to him, and I never had so much as half a glass of beer nor yet a farthing, nor yet any promise of a glass of beer, that I say upon my oath if I was now dying, and as to my father and promising him 10*s.*, why he had not a vote.

3790. Have you seen anybody about this?—No.

3791. Has anybody been speaking to you and telling you not to give your evidence?—No, not a soul.

3792. Do you mean to say that?—I do.

3793. (Mr. Biron.) You were subpœnaed before the election judge?—Yes, but I never was called for.

3794. You were there?—I was there ready to be called for.

3795. Did anybody say anything to you there about holding your tongue?—No, because I had just the same to say then as I have now.

3796. You told us that you saw your father that afternoon?—Yes, I did.

3797. Was your son with you when you saw him?—No.

3798. Where did you see him?—I saw him at home just after dinner.

3799. You saw your father at home?—Yes, he lives next door to me; my son lives on one side of him and I live on the other. My father was born in the house where I live, and I live one side of him and my son on the other.

S. Malster.

STEPHEN MALSTER sworn and examined.

3800. (Mr. Mansfield.) What is your qualification for voting?—I am a freeman.

3801. At how many of the recent elections have you voted?—Only one.

3802. For whom did you vote?—Sir Henry Stracey.

3803. What are you by trade?—I am a railway clerk.

3804. Were you about at all in the city during the day?—I did not interfere in the least with political matters.

3805. Did you hear of anybody taking money with reference to the election?—No.

3806. Have you heard any stories of that kind?—No I have not.

3807. Or of anything going on in particular public houses?—No.

3088. You took no money yourself, I suppose?—None whatever, sir, and never did.

3809. Had you been canvassed?—Yes.

3810. Did you promise your vote?—I do not think I did.

3811. Who canvassed you?—I think Mr. Tillett canvassed me, and Sir Henry too.

P. Day.

PETER DAY sworn and examined.

3812. (Mr. Dowdeswell.) Are you a freeman of this city?—Yes.

3813. And I suppose you have been a freeman for many years?—I should think 50, or more than that.

3814. For whom did you vote at the last election?—Sir Henry Stracey. The fact is I am a Conservative, and always have been.

3815. Were you canvassed beforehand, or were your politics well known?—I was always certain; it was no use canvassing me.

3816. Did you hear during the election, or immediately after it, of any improper practices having been carried on?—It was a common report that it was so, but I do not know it of my own knowledge.

3817. Did you hear it on the day of the election?—Yes, I think I did.

3818. From whom did you hear it; do you recollect?—No, that I do not; it was in the public market.

3819. Did you hear what the practices were, or where they were going on?—In what respect do you mean?

3820. Did you hear of bribery being committed?—Yes, I did hear that it was committed.

3821. Did you hear where it was being committed?—No, I took no part in it; this is what I heard in public.

3822. Who gave you the information?—I cannot say; it was common report.

3823. No particular individual?—No particular individual.

3824. Was any particular spot, or place, or public house, or anything of the kind mentioned?—No, I do not think there was anything of the kind.

3825. Did you hear immediately after the election of any particular spot?—No.

3826. Or any particular person connected with it?—No; the fact is that at my time of life I do not run into these things.

3827. But still you might in general conversation with people of position have heard things?—I know nothing at all about it. I would tell you all I know.

3828. You have not advised anybody not to tell the truth, I am sure?—There are two things I should like to be put aside, bribery and lying, and then you would get on better, I think.

ROBERT FRENCH sworn and examined.

R. French.

3829. (Mr. Mansfield.) What are you by trade?—A tailor.

3830. What is your qualification for voting?—A freeman.

3831. What time did you vote?—As near as I can guess, about 3 o'clock in the afternoon. I do not know whether before 3 or after.

3832. Who did you vote for?—Sir Henry Stracey.

3833. Were you about the town during the day?—Yes, I was about the town.

3834. Did you hear anything about people being bribed or giving bribes?—I do not know that I did. I was at home a great part of the day. I was not out much.

3835. What did you hear?—I did not hear a great deal of talk.

3836. You heard something, no doubt?—Well, I heard how the election was going on, that is, the state of the poll during the different times of the day.

3837. Had you been canvassed for your vote?—Yes.

3838. By whom?—Mr. Bird.

3839. Did you make any promise?—Yes.

3840. Who did you promise to vote for?—I told him that I should vote that way.

3841. And you did vote that way?—Yes.

3842. Had you voted at any previous election?—Yes.

3843. On which side?—I voted for Sir Samuel Bignold once.

3844. Did you ever vote for any of the Liberals?—Yes.

3845. Did you always vote late in the day?—No, not always; just as it happened, about that.

3846–7. Where were you at 2 o'clock?—At home.

3848. Where were you at half-past 2?—I was at home then, I should say.

3849. What public houses did you go to?—In the evening I called in at a public house.

3850. Before you went to give your vote where did you go?—I did not frequent any public house in particular then.

3851. Had you been in any public house that day?—Yes.

3852. Which?—I called in at a public house, but I forget the name of the street; it was close by Rampant Horse Street, where I was working.

3853. At what hour?—About the middle part of the day.

3854. What house was it?—It was kept by Hutton. I don't know the sign of the house.

3855. What other house were you at?—At night?

3856. Oh no, not at night, but while the election was going on.—I called at Ive's in Ber Street; that is the direction in which I live. That is the only one I can remember being in before I went to the poll.

3857. Did you have anything at Ive's?—Scarcely any.

3858. Is that a Conservative house?—I think it is.

3859. Did you pay for your own beer?—Yes.

3860. Did you have any other beer?—No, not a drop.

3861. Were those the only publics you went to?—Those were the only two I went to on that day that I can remember before the polling, but in the evening I called in at a public house in St. George's.

3862. Did you meet any of your political friends at these public houses?—No, not anyone that I had any particular chat with.

3863. Who did you meet there?—Hutton's bar was full of people backwards and forwards, but I did not speak to them.

3864. Who were they?—I could not call any of them by name; they were customers, backwards and forwards.

3865. Was any money offered to you for your vote?—No, not a fraction, not a decimal of a fraction.

3866. Has any money been paid you since?—Oh, no.

3867. Do you know of anybody being paid money?—No.

3868. Or being promised money?—No.

3869. (Mr. Dowdeswell.) How came you to be so late in voting?—Well, I don't know about that in particular; it suited me that afternoon to go and vote. I was at work in my business.

3870. The polling place was close to you?—Oh, yes.

3871. Nearer to you than this public house?—Yes.

3872. And you passed the polling place two or three times in the course of the day?—Yes, I did do that.

3873. The polling place being so near to you, and you passing it so often during the day, why did you not vote before that time in the afternoon?—I cannot give any reason in particular for that.

3874. Can you give any reason at all?—No.

3875. Was there not a reason?—I had partly made up my mind not to vote at all.

3876. You said just now that you promised your vote?—Yes, I did.

3877. Had you promised your vote, and yet not made up your mind to vote?—Well, I cannot tell in particular.

3878. A man does not pass a polling place three times in a day if he has the cause which he is engaged in at heart, and not go and vote. What was your reason for not voting when you passed the polling place? You know you had voted both Liberal and Conservative before.—Yes.

FOURTH DAY.

R. French.

23 Aug. 1869.

3879. What was the reason ?—Well, sir, I did not like to have my name brought up in electioneering business after I had promised.

3880–1. But every man's name who votes is not necessarily brought up in electioneering business ?—Yes.

3882. Now, having promised your vote, why did you not go up and vote if you had not a reason for it ?—I have answered it once.

3883. (Mr. Biron.) What were you afraid of ?—I was not afraid of anything.

3884. (Mr. Dowdeswell.) Then if you had no reason on account of fear, what was your reason for not going up to vote until after 3 o'clock, having promised to vote ?—I did not know but that I could vote at any time in the day.

3885. Oh yes, you could vote at any time in the day, but you were passing the polling place three times in the course of that day, so that it would have been easy for you to vote. Why were you standing out until half-past 3 in the day ?—I was not standing out for money.

3886. Let us ascertain that. Are you sure that you were not standing out for anything else ?—No.

3887. Then what were you standing out for ?—I might disoblige different people.

3888. (Mr. Biron.) You were afraid you would disoblige people ?—Yes.

3889. (Mr. Dowdeswell.) But you had promised your vote, and you might oblige some people by voting, though you might disoblige others by not voting. I want to know, having promised your vote, and being likely to oblige some people by voting, and to disoblige others by not voting, was there not another reason why you stood out that day ?—No, I do not know that there is any other reason.

3890. (Mr. Biron.) How came you to vote at 3 o'clock if that was your reason ?—I do not know whether it was 3 or before 3 ; it was in the afternoon.

3891. (Mr. Dowdeswell.) You say you were afraid because you would disoblige some people, but you had an inducement to vote because you would oblige others. How came you to vote ultimately ?—Well, I went up alone, by myself.

3892. You understand what I mean, what brought you up to the mark ?—Just so.

3893. I will not trouble you to answer that question at the present moment, I will put another to you. You voted Liberal upon some of the other occasions ?—I have voted Liberal on other occasions.

3894. What had you received for voting upon either of those other occasions ?—I do not know that I had anything.

3895. May you have had something and forgotten it ?—I was employed as messenger at different elections.

3896. Was that the inducement to you to vote ?—On other occasions ?

3897. You say you were a messenger upon former occasions ?—Yes, I had been.

3898. A paid messenger ?—Yes.

3899. And then because you were paid, you voted ?—No ; I should have voted, whether I had been paid or not.

3900. You were a messenger for the Liberals, were you ?—Yes.

3901. And then you voted for the Liberals ?—Yes.

3902. And when you were messenger for the Conservatives you voted for the Conservatives ?—I believe I did.

3903. And you were paid for it ?—Yes.

3904. What were you paid for voting at the last election ?—Not anything, I was not employed.

3905. Do you mean to say you had nothing to overcome the diffidence which you had about voting ?—You mean the last election ?

3906. Yes.—I had nothing.

3907. Do you know Hardiment ?—No.

3908. Do you know Smith ?—I do not know him ; I have heard him talked about.

3909. Have you ever spoken to him ?—I should not think I have ; I do not know him.

3910. Do you not know Smith, the fowl dealer ?—No, I do not.

3911. Nor his son ?—No ; there is a Smith has some property on the road where I live, but whether he is the owner of that property I do not know.

3912. Did you ever speak to Hardiment in your life ?—I cannot say, because I do not know the man. If I have spoken to him I have spoken to him not knowing that it was Hardiment.

3913. Do you know George Fuller ?—If I was to meet him in the street I should not know him ; if I was to see him in his public house I might fancy that was Fuller ; but I do not know him in any other way.

3914. Do you know Worledge ?—No.

3915. Do you know Dr. Allen ?—Yes.

3916. Did you see Dr. Allen that day ?—No.

3917. Did you see him before the election day ?—Yes.

3918. How soon ?—It might be a month or it might be two or three days. I should only see him then riding about the city in his gig.

3919. Was it not two or three days before the election that you saw Dr. Allen ?—I should be inclined to think I did see him two or three days before, because I so frequently saw him riding about.

3920. I am not speaking of seeing him pass, but did you see him to have any conservation with him ?—I never saw him to speak to him.

3921. Did you not speak to him ?—No.

3922. Did he not speak to you ?—No.

3923. Are you sure of that ?—I do not remember it.

3924. Could you have forgotten it ?—I think if he and I had any talk about it I should recollect it.

3925. You said you did not speak to him ; do you mean to repeat that ?—Yes, I do.

3926. Do you mean to repeat that Dr. Allen did not speak to you ?—No, Dr. Allen did not speak to me that I am aware of.

3927. But did it so happen that unawares he did speak to you ?—To cut the tale short, Dr. Allen never spoke to me about my vote.

3928. I am not asking about your vote ; but did he speak to you at all ?—If he did, it would be on medical matters.

3929. We will come to the vote presently. Did he speak to you a few days before the election ?—I do not recollect that he did, in fact I am sure he did not.

3930. You must recollect whether a man who has never had any conversation with you in your life, according to your ideas, spoke to you a few days before the election ?—No, he did not speak to me a few days before the election.

3931. Who has told you not to tell anything that you know ?—Not anyone.

3932. Are you sure of that ?—Quite sure.

3933. Did you ask anybody to appoint you messenger upon this occasion ?—No, I do not remember that. I heard that there was not going to be anyone employed.

3934. Did you have any talk about being appointed messenger ?—No.

3935. Did you not apply to be made a messenger ?—I never applied for myself nor yet for my sons.

3936. Have you a son ?—I have two.

3937. Are they voters ?—No.

3938. Neither of them ?—No.

3939. Was either of your sons a messenger ?—No. Why I mentioned that was because other voters had sons employed as messengers, but mine was not, and I did not ask it.

3940. Who was the messenger in your ward?—It was the fifth ward, but I cannot answer that. I do not know who he was.

3941. Do you know Mr. Woodrow, the auctioneer or land agent?—I scarcely know him.

3942. Did he speak to you that day?—Never. I do not know that he ever spoke to me in his life; I do not suppose he knows me.

3943. Did anybody come to your house to get you to vote?—On the election day?

3944. Yes.—The man I have stated came.

3945. Who was he?—Mr. Bird.

3946. Where did he live?—He lives at the top of Surrey Street.

3947. What time of the day did he come to you?—I should think it was about 11 or 12 o'clock, somewhere about that time. I know I was at work.

3948. Did he ask you to come up and vote?—Yes.

3949. What did you tell him?—I told him that I dare say I should vote during the day.

3950. You know you promised to vote?—Yes.

3951. How came you to say you daresay you would vote, if you had promised to vote and intended to keep your promise?—I said I shall not vote against you if I do not vote for you.

3952. Having given him that answer I suppose that is what you thought at the time?—Yes, I did.

3953. How came it unless some one held out an inducement to you that you did not remain of that mind until the close of the poll?—I went up to vote.

3954. But how was it you came to vote, having told that man that perhaps you would vote for him, or perhaps you would not vote at all—having given him that undecided answer what induced you to go up and vote. Did he say anything to you?—No.

3955. Not to persuade you to vote?—No; of course he came and asked me.

3956. Did he say he would give you something to do?—No; certainly not.

3957. Was anything said about money?—Nothing.

3958. Are you sure of that?—I am sure of it.

3959. Not with him?—No.

3960. Do you know Mr. Stockings, the chemist?—Yes, I know him.

3961. Did you ask him to appoint you or one of your sons messenger?—No, I never spoke to him about electioneering business in my life, nor yet anything else, scarcely.

3962. Did you not expect one of your sons to be appointed messenger?—I never asked.

3963. A man may not ask and yet he may expect?—It would have done them good, and would have done me no harm.

3964. Then you expected that they would get in for a good thing, did you?—I did not ask.

3965. You did not ask, but there are other ways besides asking?—I can tell you if you will allow me. These lads teazed me to try and get them a situation, and I said no, I want nothing to do with it. They said "So-and-so," speaking of other lads that worked with them, "have got a situation; they are getting so "much for the day, cannot you get me one?" I said "I won't have anything to do with it," and the lads were at work all the day. That is what it was I did not make any application for it, although they teazed me to do so.

3966. There was a conversation about getting employment, was there?—Merely between the lads and me, not anything else.

3967. They urged you to get them employment?—They did.

3968. Did you happen to mention it to the gentlemen who called?—Not one.

3969. That you had sons?—I never mentioned that I had sons, nor yet anything else to them.

3970. Now being doubtful between 12 and 1, when that gentleman called for you, what induced you to make up your mind to go and vote?—Well, I would rather go and vote alone by myself than be walked up by a man like him, or be drove up in a cab, or anything of that sort.

3971. But they did not come in a cab for you?—Oh, no.

3972. You went of your own accord?—Certainly I did.

3973. How came you, having given that answer, and being perfectly undecided at 12 o'clock or 3 o'clock, to go and vote?—I wanted to get the right side of the election, one way or the other, and I voted for Stracey at the time to give him a lift up.

3974. What induced you between 1 and 3 o'clock to vote for Stracey. Something must have been done. A man does not do a thing of that sort without a reason. What was your reason, having refused to give a definite pledge at 1 o'clock, to go out at 3 o'clock and vote?—I was thinking about it all day; it did not come on me all at once.

3975. But what made you go up at 3 o'clock and vote?—I have no reason to give you, except that I exercised my right of voting at that time like the rest.

3976. Then you had no reason whatever according to your idea?—No.

3977. Not even your having given your vote previously?—No; nor any other reason.

3978. Do you know young Mr. Stracey?—No.

3979. Nor Mr. Bignold?—I know Sir Samuel Bignold.

3980. Do you know Mr. Bignold?—I know him, to see him about.

3981. Mr. John Bignold?—I do not know one from the other.

3982. Mr. Arthur and Mr. John?—I do not know which is Mr. John and which is the Captain.

3983. Did you see either of them on the election day?—I do not recollect it.

3984. Did you have any conversation with either of them that day?—No.

3985. Are you sure of that?—Quite sure.

3986. Do you know Mr. Stanley, the solicitor?—Yes.

3987. Did you see him that day?—I do not recollect seeing him that day. I did not go into any committee room.

3988. Did you see him or speak to him that day?—I do not remember seeing or speaking to him.

3989. Did you have any conversation with him that day?—No, certainly not.

3990. You mentioned Stockings, the chemist; is there another man of that name?—Yes, he is a butcher.

3991. Had you a conversation with him that day?—I do not recollect it.

3992. You do not recollect it?—I do recollect that I did not.

3993. Will you undertake to say that you had not any conversation with him?—No, I do not remember seeing him, unless I accidentally saw him.

3994. Do you know Gilbert?—No, I do not know Gilbert.

3995. Do you know Garnham?—No. What business is he? I might know him perhaps if you told me that; but I do not know him otherwise.

3996. He is a draper's assistant.—Oh no, I do not know him. I do not recollect the name.

3997. Had you no promise of any sort or kind?—No, not any.

FOURTH DAY.

J. B. Blackburn.

23 Aug. 1869.

JAMES BERRY BLACKBURN recalled and further examined.

3998. (Mr. Biron.) You mentioned to me a publican about whose house you had heard reports; was that William Clarke, a publican, at the corner of Jenkin's Lane, St. Martins-at-Oak? — That is the place.

W. Blyth.

WILLIAM BLYTH sworn and examined.

3999. (Mr. Mansfield.) What are you? — A licensed victualler.

4000. Where do you live?—In Ber Street.

4001. Are you a voter?—Yes.

4002. Were you engaged in the management of this election?—Yes.

4003. What part did you take?—I had some men down at the nominatlon.

4004. Who engaged you to get these men?—Barnes came to me.

4005. Where did you get the men?—They were men that used my house.

4006. Who are those men?—Well, sir, I cannot think of all the names; I know some of them.

4007. Can you give us some of the names?—Yes.

4008. Just give them? — There was James Roberts.

4009. Was he a voter?—No. I was told when they came to me not to get voters.

4010. Can you give the other names?—Joshua Roberts, John Oldham, Donald Oldham, Solomon James, I think, but I would not be certain about him, Henry March, and I cannot think of any more just now.

4011. (Mr. Dowdeswell.) How many did you get altogether?—I think something like 20.

4012. (Mr. Mansfield.) What engagement did you make with those men?—They were to go to the nomination in the market, and when they saw the working men from Carrow come they were to keep the place clear, and let them in.

4013. They were to hold up their hands?—To try to get the working men from Carrow in.

4014. What agreement did you make with them?—I think it was 2*s.* and a pint of ale each.

4015. They went into the hall, I suppose?—Into the market place on nomination morning.

4016. How much money did you spend altogether?—I think Barnes gave me something like 4*l.*

4017. Where did Barnes give you that?—In my own house. I think it was on a Saturday night.

4018. You spent all that money on the men, did you? Did your men go with you, or did they not, into St. Andrew's Hall?—I had no men go to St. Andrew's Hall at all. Not one.

4019. Do you not know where they did go?—At the nomination morning they were there, but there was such a crush at the doors that I do not know whether they got in. Some of them got in, I daresay, but there were hundreds round the doors.

4020. Were you inside?—Yes.

4021. Did you see any of your men there?—I could not swear whether there was or not.

4022. You meant your men to be in there?—I told them to be against the doors to let the Carrow men in.

4023–4. Did you give all that money to the men you employed?—I gave it all or spent it. I gave them some bread and cheese when they came back again. I will not be certain whether it was 20 or 25, but I could remember, I daresay, if I had time to get the names.

4025. (Mr. Dowdeswell.) You supplied them with beer and bread and cheese?—Yes.

4026. And deducted that from the money?—They had about 2*s.* each in money besides.

4027. The other went towards the supply of beer and bread and cheese, and so forth?—Yes.

4028. And something for your own trouble. Of course in an election nobody does anything without being paid for it, at any rate in Norwich?—Just so.

4029. (Mr. Mansfield.) You never made out any account of the bread and cheese and beer did you?—No, I never kept any account.

4030. And were not asked for an account by Mr. Coaks or Barnes?—No.

4031. (Mr. Biron.) Do you know Larkman's public house in Thorn Lane?—Yes.

4032. Did you go in there the day of the polling?—No, I did not.

4033. Did you see people standing about there?—Yes, I saw plenty of people standing about.

4034. Can you give me their names?—I never noticed them sufficient for that. I cannot remember any of the names that stood about there.

4035. Cannot you remember one?—No.

4036. (Mr. Dowdeswell.) On the day of the election were there a good many men in your house?—Yes.

4037. Who came to your house to manage the voters?—I was not at home but very little time during the day.

4038. Then did your wife manage the business during the day?—My wife managed the business in the bar.

4039. Who were the men managing the voters down at your house?—There were no voters at my house, I think.

4040. No voters at your house?—No, I believe not.

4041. They were in pretty nearly every Conservative public house and other public houses too on that day, were they not?—I do not know.

4042. You had a very good day had you not?—Well, I believe there was some money taken, but nothing extra, I think.

4043. If you had a very good day there must have been some one to drink; it is not a good day unless something is drunk?—No.

4044. If you had a good many people in your house they would be the right sort, would they not?—Well, I have plenty of times taken more money than I did on that day.

4045. I daresay on former elections you may have taken a great deal more, but you say it was a good day?—No, nothing extra, just middling, that is all.

4046. There must have been some one to drink to make it middling?—There is generally some one every day there.

4047. (Mr. Biron.) You are a Liberal are you not?—Yes.

4048. (Mr. Dowdeswell.) Then they were Liberals in your house were they?—I do not know at all.

4049. Was everything paid for that was had in your house on that day:—Nothing at all but what I paid for myself in the morning. Beer and bread and cheese that they had on the nomination day.

4050. Was there not a score standing out on that day?—No, I believe not.

4051. You must know whether you had got a score?—I had no people on the election day.

4052. But had you not a score at the end of the day?—No.

4053. Are you sure that you had not a score at the end of the day?—I hardly understand what you mean.

4054. Was there not a score standing against somebody at the end of the day at your house?—Not at my house, if there was it was unknown to me.

4055. You knew Barnes?—I had seen Barnes on the Saturday night.

4056. Was there not a score at the end of the day standing against Barnes?—Not that I am aware of.

4057. Are you sure of it?—I am not sure, but I think not, I do not remember seeing him there.

4058. You need not have seen him but still you may have had a score against him?—Do you mean a reckoning against Barnes?

4059. Yes?—No, I had not, I thought you meant a score of men. I had no reckoning against Barnes.

4060. Had you not a reckoning against anybody on that day?—No.

4061. Are you sure of that?—I am sure of it.

4062. (Mr. Mansfield.) Have you ever been asked before to get men together for a show of hands at other elections?—It is so long ago that I can hardly remember.

4063. Have you?—I believe I have.

4064. At which election?—Not very long ago because I do not remember many elections ago.

4065. You received your usual fees on those occasions I suppose?—Yes, I never did anything without.

4066. And you never were so badly treated as you were this time, I should think when you got this 4*l.* 10*s.* You never did it so cheap did you?—I cannot recollect about the sum I had at other elections.

4067. You never took less than that, surely?—I do not know.

4068. Can you tell us what sum you did get before?—I cannot.

4069. (Mr. Biron.) In 1865?—I really could not tell you.

4070. (Mr. Mansfield.) Do you recollect who paid it?—No, I cannot.

4071. You must recollect where you got the fees for such valuable services to the city?—No.

4072. (Mr. Biron.) Was it Barnes?—I do not remember Barnes ever giving me any at any other election.

4073. (Mr. Mansfield.) Have you no notion what the sum was?—No.

4074. If it were divided with some one else, might it be about 20*l.*; did you ever see as much as that?—No.

4075. Did you ever see as much as 10*l.*?—No, I do not think I ever did.

4076. How many men did you ever get at a previous election?—That I cannot say, it is so long ago that I have forgotten.

4077. You do not recollect any sum that you have received before for this purpose?—No, I cannot recollect anything about the other elections.

4078. Were these people always your customers or were they a roughish sort of people that were picked up in the streets?—On an occasion like that, if anybody uses my house and lives close by, I generally get him as quick as I can.

4079. Did you ever get fighting men; you have done that have you not?—There are so many of them about that one hardly knows them.

4080. But you can tell a fighting-man with a short bull-neck and a broken nose?—I have seen plenty of gentlemen with broken noses.

4081. (Mr. Biron.) Jem Macè was a friend of yours, was he not?—Yes.

4082. Did he ever go for a show of hands; he was a Norwich man, was he not?—I remember Jem Mace and me riding about with Mr. Schneider.

4083. He was a useful man at a show-of-hands time, I should think?—Yes, a great many have found him so.

4084. Did not you and Mace get 50*l.* for the show of hands?—No; the time I was talking of was when Lord Bury and Mr. Schneider put up; me and Mace rode about with them, because some one stopped Mr. Schneider's carriage, and ran a cart across the carriage, and threw some sand in the carriage, and he sent for me and Mace to ride about with him in the carriage to protect him as well as we could, and we rode about in the same carriage with him.

4085. I suppose no one did anything to him while you two were there?—No, they did not.

EDWARD RAMSBOTTOM BARNES sworn and examined.

E. R. Barnes

4086. (Mr. Biron.) Do you remember seeing Mr. Ray on the Saturday before the last nomination day?—Yes.

4087. Was Long, the gamekeeper, in the room?—At the time I went in he was.

4088. Did they speak to you about getting some men together for the show of hands?—Not at the time when Long was present.

4089. But afterwards?—Yes.

4090. Did he give you some money?—Yes.

4091. What was it?—He gave me 8*l.* 10*s.* in gold.

4092. You, I believe, gave 4*l.* 10*s.* to Long?—No, I gave him 4*l.* 5*s.*

4093. Did you tell him to get together some men for the show of hands?—I had no agreement with Long, but I performed that part of it for Mr. Ray, he had made an agreement with Long.

4094. You simply gave Long the 4*l.* 5*s.*?—Yes.

4095. And told him, I suppose, who you gave it to him from?—Well, I do not know that I did that.

4096. Did you yourself go to Blyth?—Yes, the same night.

4097. And did you arrange with him to supply some men?—Yes; I asked if he would supply some 25 or 30 men to the nomination to clear the way, so that the labourers from the Carrow Factory might get in for the show of hands; but of course they would follow afterwards.

4098. Did you arrange that with him?—Yes.

4099. You gave him 4*l.* 5*s.* also?—Yes.

4100. You divided the 8*l.* 10*s.* between Long and Blyth?—Yes.

4101. Were you there yourself on the nomination day?—I was not.

4102. Did you yourself take an active part in this election?—I have done on some elections previously to this.

4103. But at this election, were you about the city?—I was about the city canvassing of an evening.

4104. But during the day of the election did you see any of the men hanging about the public houses?—A great many.

4105. Waiting?—I do not know what they were waiting for.

4106. Did any one come up to you and offer to vote if he were paid?—No, I do not remember that any of them did; I have no recollection of it.

4107. Did anyone come and say, "Is there any "money going this time"?—They might possibly do such a thing; but I am sure I forget whether they did or not.

4108. Is that such a common thing in Norwich that it would escape your memory?—The day of the election is, of course, a very bustling day, and it is difficult to recollect what takes place.

4109. That sort of thing is very often heard of in Norwich?—Very frequently.

4110. "Is there any money going this journey"?—Yes; but I do not remember having the question put to me.

4111. Did you hear it put to any other people?—No; I watched the other party, but I never saw them do anything, neither did I hear anything.

4112. (Mr. Dowdeswell.) What are you?—A collector of rates to the city.

Adjourned to to-morrow at a quarter to 11 o'clock.

FIFTH DAY.

Tuesday, 24th August 1869.

FIFTH DAY.

J. B. Sillett.

24 Aug. 1869.

JAMES BANYARD SILLETT sworn and examined.

4113. (Mr. Dowdeswell.) Are you a freeman?—I am.

4114. How long have you been a freeman?—Upwards of 20 years.

4115. Did you vote at the last election?—I did.

4116. And at the two preceding elections?—I think I did. I may say I did. I have no doubt of it.

4117. What are you?—I am a tutor. I take a few young persons to educate.

4118. Did you take any active part in the election?—Not at all, only by voting.

4119. But were you canvassed?—I was, by the Conservatives.

4120. Did you promise?—I did not.

4121. For whom did you vote?—For Russell and Tillett.

4122. Are you aware of any bribes having been either given or received?—I am not at all aware of it. I took no active part in the election beyond voting.

F. Widdows.

FREDERICK WIDDOWS sworn and examined.

4123. (Mr. Mansfield.) Are you a freeman?—Yes.

4124. For whom did you vote at the last election?—For Russell and Tillett.

4125. Had you been canvassed?—No.

4126. What are you by trade?—A painter.

4127. Have you heard of anything improper connected with this election?—No.

4128. Only by report?—No.

4129. (Mr. Dowdeswell.) Were you at any public house on that day?—No.

4130. You were at your work till you went up to poll and afterwards?—Yes. I went at 9 o'clock and gave my vote in, and then went to my work directly afterwards.

P. Widdows.

PHILIP WIDDOWS sworn and examined.

4131. (Mr. Biron.) Did you vote at the last election?—Yes.

4132. Had you voted on previous occasions?—I had voted ever since Gurney and Grant's election.

4133. That is a long time ago?—I have been a voter these last 30 years.

4134. Have you always voted the same side?—Always.

4135. Which side is that?—The Liberal side.

4136. What are you?—A gardener.

4137. (Mr. Dowdeswell.) Were you at any public house on that day?—No; after I had voted I went to my employ.

G. Smith.

GEORGE SMITH sworn and examined.

4138. (Mr. Dowdeswell.) Where do you live?—I live in St. Peter's, Mancroft.

4139. What are you by business?—A plumber.

4140. Are you a freeman?—Yes.

4141. How long have you been a freeman?—30 years.

4142. Did you vote at the last election?—Yes.

4143. Did you vote at the two preceding elections?—Yes.

4144. What time in the day did you vote at the last election?—Between 3 and 4.

4145. For whom did you vote?—For Sir Henry Stracey.

4146. Where had you been on the morning of that day?—At the "Trumpet."

4147. When did you first go to the "Trumpet"?—I think it was a little after 10 that I was there.

4148. How long did you remain there when you went there first, or did you remain there all the time?—I remained there all the time, with the exception of going into the back yard. I stopped there all the time.

4149. You remained in the "Trumpet" from 10 o'clock till you went to vote?—That is right.

4150. Did you see Hunt there?—Yes, I did.

4151. Were you in the market room with him?—Yes.

4152. Do you recollect Sir Henry Stracey coming there?—Yes, I saw him there once.

4153. Did he come into the market room?—Just in the door.

4154. Did he say anything to the men there?—He wished them all to go and vote.

4155. What did they say when he wished them to go and vote?—Well, they wanted some beer, and he said he dare not give them any.

4156. Did they say anything about rates?—I never heard it mentioned.

4157. Did Hunt go out with Sir Henry Stracey?—That I cannot say.

4158. Did you go out when Sir Henry Stracey went out?—No.

4159. You remained in the room?—I did.

4160. Do you know Smith, the fowl dealer?—Yes.

4161. Do you recollect Hunt coming into the room after Sir Henry Stracey had left?—No; that was the time I was in the back yard.

4162. Was anything said in your presence respecting 5*s.*?—No.

4163. Was there 5*s.* apiece offered to the men to vote?—No.

4164. Not in your presence?—No.

4165. Was there a talk about money?—It was mentioned.

4166. Can you tell me when money was first mentioned?—I suppose that was about 12 o'clock.

4167. What was first said about money?—Some of them said they would not go and vote without they had money.

4168. To whom did they say that?—To me, but who they were I do not know; they were strangers to me.

4169. Did you hear that repeated later in the day?—No.

4170. How many men were in the room when they said to you that they would not vote without money?—There might be 22 or 23.

4171. Do you recollect Smith coming into the room some time after Sir Henry Stracey had left?—Yes.

4172. Did Smith say anything about money?—He only wished us to go and vote. I never heard money mentioned.

4173–4. Do you mean to tell me that nothing was said to you, either by Smith or by Hunt, about money?—Hunt said that we might have some money. Hunt said so, which we did not have at the time I was in the room.

4175. How much?—No quantity was named.

4176. Did you hear anything said about 5*s.*?—No.

4177. Was not an offer made to you of 7*s.* 6*d.*, and did you not refuse to take it?—I did.

4178. Was Hunt or was Smith the person who offered you the 7*s.* 6*d.*?—Hunt.

4179. Where did he make you that offer?—In the market room.

4180. Did he offer the same sum to other persons as well?—It was named in the room.

4181. Publicly amongst you all?—Quite so.

4182. How many persons were in the room at that time?—About the same number; about 22 or 23.

4183. You having refused to take the 7*s.* 6*d.*, what became of the other persons—did they go anywhere?—Some of them went upstairs.

4184. Did you see how many went upstairs?—No; there might be five or six, or there might be six or seven.

4185. Where did you remain?—In the market room.

4186. Did you see the men come downstairs after they had been upstairs?—Yes.

4187. Did they go away?—Yes.

4188. Did you see anybody taking charge of them?—No.

4189. All those that had been upstairs went away, did they?—They went away, to the best of my knowledge.

4190. How many remained in the market room after they had gone upstairs?—That I cannot exactly tell you; there might be a dozen or 14 there.

4191. Do you recollect the names of any of those who remained in the market room?—There was me and my brother.

4192. What is his name?—Henry Smith.

4193. Who else?—Well, I am sure I cannot tell you the names.

4194. Perhaps I can refresh your memory; was John Churchyard there?—No.

4195. Robert Fuller?—Yes.

4196. George Barnes?—Yes, I believe he was.

4197. Robert Walker?—No.

4198. William Flat?—No.

4199. Michael George Gilbert?—No.

4200. John Greengrass?—I believe he was.

4201. A man of the name of Craske?—I believe he was there too.

4202. Do you know Browes or Blanchflower?—He was not there.

4203. Do you know a man named Barnes?—Yes.

4204. Was he there?—Yes.

4205. Was there anybody else that you recollect there?—Not that I am aware of.

4206. When these people went away Hunt remained, did he not?—No, I believe not; not at that time; he was not there.

4207. When did you see Hunt again?—It might be half an hour elapsed.

4208. Did Smith remain?—No.

4209. Did you see Smith also go away?—He was not in the market room.

4210. Hunt came again, you say?—Yes.

4211. What did Hunt then say to you?—Nothing. Hunt had no conversation with me at all after that.

4212. Did you not get 1*l.* for your vote?—No.

4213. What did you get for your vote?—Nothing. I refused taking the money.

4214. Do you mean to say you refused to take any money for your vote?—I did.

4215. You had been at this public house all day; how was it that you had not gone and voted?—Well, sir, I thought more about drinking and smoking than I did about the election.

4216. But they were asking you to go and vote?—Yes; I thought I could go at my leisure.

4217. You had a quantity of beer there?—Yes; and that I paid for.

4218. How much did you pay for your own beer that day?—It cost me 2*s.* 9*d.*

4219. Did you not say you would not take 7*s.* 6*d.*, but that you wanted a sovereign?—No.

4220. The offer of 7*s.* 6*d.* was made to you?—Not to me; it was spoken openly in the room.

4221. You told me that Hunt offered you 7*s.* 6*d.*?—I told you it was spoken openly in the room before the whole of us.

4222. I asked you whether it was offered to you and to other persons?—To the whole of us.

4223. And you said it was offered to you, and that you refused to take it?—Just so.

4224. You refused to take it because it was too little?—Just so.

4225. How much did you want?—A different amount to that.

4226. What was it that you wanted?—I never named any amount.

4227. You had voted at previous elections, had you not?—Yes.

4228. What did you get at the election in 1865?—I never had nothing.

4229. The election of 1860?—No.

4230. At neither election?—No, only beer.

4231. Then you had beer at the previous election?—Yes.

4232. The beer houses were kept open, were they?—That is right.

4233. Did you vote for the Liberals or the Conservatives in 1865?—I have only voted a Whig once; that is all.

4234. That was in 1865, was it?—It is about 14 or 15 years back, I suppose.

4235. For whom did you vote in 1865, the preceding election to that of last year; did you vote for the Conservatives or Liberals?—For the Liberals.

4236. In 1860, the next preceding election, for whom did you vote?—I voted a Tory.

4237. You frequented, upon that occasion, the Tory house?—Yes.

4238. On this occasion you wanted a larger sum than was offered you, but you did not mention what?—No.

4239. Having wanted that larger sum, did you ask anybody for it?—No.

4240. Did anybody ask you what you wanted?—No.

4241. Wanting a larger sum, and not having had any beer, how came you to go and vote?—I had made up my mind to go and vote then.

4242. But what had made you make up your mind?—I made up my mind so far that I went and voted; that is how I made my mind up. I walked down the street and voted.

4243. What induced you to make up your mind to vote; who promised you anything?—No one.

4244. Had you no conversation with anybody that induced you to make up your mind to vote?—Not that I am aware of.

4245. Tell us what conversation you had with anybody upon the subject of voting?—The truth is I was too forward in drink to know much about who I was talking to at that time.

4246. Had anybody been drinking with you?—I asked several to drink.

4247. There was a good deal of beer going there, was there not?—Yes.

IFTH DAY.
G. Smith.
24 Aug. 1869.

4248. A good deal of free beer?—No; that I never see and never tasted.

4249. Do be careful; there was a good deal of beer, was there not?—There might be some brought in; if there was, it was unbeknown to me. I know I kept paying my pence for it.

4250. Did money get into your pocket unbeknown to you?—I should hardly think so.

4251. Did not somebody promise it to you?—No.

4252. How was it that having refused to vote for 7*s.* 6*d.*, and requiring more money to vote, as you swear you did, you afterwards went and voted?—Because I thought it was high time to go in.

4253. Was it because you had got some money?—No.

4254. How was it that having refused to vote unless you got more than 7*s.* 6*d.*, you went afterwards and voted?—I went and voted; that is all I know about it.

4255. More money being required to induce you to vote, and as you say you would not vote without, how came you not to keep your word?—Well, I did do so.

4256. I want to know how that came about?—The only thing I can say is, that I made up my mind to go, and I went. That is all I know about it.

4257. What induced you to do it, that is my question?—There was no motive, only I went and voted.

4258. Did you talk to the landlady, Mrs. Fuller?—No, Mrs. Fuller kept out of the market room; to the best of my knowledge I never saw Mrs. Fuller in the market room.

4259. Did you see Fuller?—Yes, he brought my beer in several times.

4260. But after they had gone upstairs to get the 7*s.* 6*d.*, did you see Fuller, the landlord?—No.

4261. You did not see him at all?—No.

4262. Did you see his brother?—Yes.

4263. Where did you see him?—In the market room.

4264. Did you have a conversation with him?—No.

4265. Did you not speak to him at all?—No, only in the morning time.

4266. You had been standing out, had you not, during the whole day for money?—No, not for money.

4267. You wanted money?—No; I did not want any money.

4268. If you did not want any money, how was it that you told the people you would not vote unless you had more than 7*s.* 6*d.*?—I would not vote for that money.

4269. You thought you were worth more?—I do not know about my being worth more. I laughed at the sum of money when it was named.

4270. It was too insignificant for your consideration or acceptance?—Yes.

4271. If it had been a 10*l.* note it would have been a different matter?—I think it might.

4272. Or even a sovereign?—No, I would not have taken that.

4273. What was your price?—I named no price at all.

4274. But what was your mental price. You put a pretty good value on your vote that day?—I do not know; there was no thoughts about money on my part at all.

4275. You once voted for the Liberals?—Yes, I did.

4276. What was your price then?—No price at all.

4277. What was your price when you voted for the Whigs?—Nothing.

4278. Having always before voted for the Tories how came you to vote for the Liberals?—I was rather compelled to do that by working for a Whig master at that time.

4279. Did the Whig master compel you to vote?—Yes.

4280. What did your Whig master give you to vote?—Nothing.

4281. Was the beer of the Conservatives and the compulsion of the Whig master, the sort of influence that was used?—Yes.

4282. You went up to the poll about 3 o'clock?—Between 3 and 4, as near as I can guess.

4283. What became of you after that?—I walked about the market then.

4284. Where did you get more beer?—My partner happened to be with me that I used to work with.

4285. Who is your partner?—A man by the name of Sandell.

4286. Where did you go with him?—We went into the "Bull," opposite the market.

4287. How long did you remain in the "Bull"?—A very little while.

4288. What had you there?—About a pot among three of us.

4289. Who was the third man?—I did not know him.

4290. Who paid for that?—My partner.

4291. Where did you go after that?—He led me home then.

4292. Do you know Bygrave?—No.

4293. Granville Bygrave?—No.

4294. After the men had gone, did you not go with Fuller and Smith into a room in the "Trumpet?"—No; only with Smith.

4295. Did not Smith count money on the table?—Yes, but I refused it.

4296. And did not you take that money up?—No.

4297. I asked you over and over again whether Smith had offered you any money; you denied that he did so, and now you swear he did. Did not Bygrave and another man look into the room while that was going on, and did not Smith turn round and slam the door in their faces?—No.

4298. You saw Smith slam the door in the men's faces, did you not?—No.

4299. Did you see him shut the door?—Not that I am aware of.

4300. Then Smith, the fowl dealer, did offer you the money there?—His son.

4301. After he had been away and returned, he offered you the money, did he?—His son did.

4302. What is his son's name?—I am sure I cannot say.

4303. What was the sum he offered you?—He offered me 7*s.* 6*d.*

4304. In that private room?—Yes.

4305. Did you not refuse to take so little?—I refused taking the money.

4306. Did he not then count down on the table more?—No.

4307. Now be careful; did you not take the money up off that table and put it into your pocket?—No.

4308. When Smith offered you 7*s.* 6*d.* the second time, and put the money on the table, do you mean to say you did not say what you would take?—No, it never was mentioned. I never mentioned anything about it.

4309. You said you would not take that?—Yes.

4310. Did not Smith bid higher?—No.

4311. Did he not offer you anything more?—No.

4312. Did he not offer you a sovereign?—As soon as ever I refused it I turned out of the room.

4313. (Mr. Biron.) You went into this little private room with young Smith?—Yes.

4314. You knew what he wanted you to go in there for, did you not?—No.

4315. You knew why you went into that room; you went in there to get some money, I suppose?—I did not suppose anything about it.

4316. You knew it probably?—Yes.

4317. Had he offered you money before he went in there?—No.

4318. But he was there?—Yes.

4319. Had any other men gone in there to him?—That I do not know. I saw some more as I was coming downstairs on the stairs.

4320. Coming away from the room or going to it?—Going to it.

4321. Did you say anything to them?—No.

4322. What were their names?—That I do not know.

4323. As you say you refused to take the 7*s.* 6*d.*, did you say anything to Smith?—No.

4324. How did you refuse to take it then?—I said, "I shall not take it."

MICHAEL GEORGE GILBERT sworn and examined.

4325. (Mr. Mansfield.) What are you by trade?—A patent axletree maker.

4326. Did you vote?—I did not vote at all.

4327. Where were you on the day of the election?—I was about in the city.

4328. Where?—I was in St. Stephen's some part of the day.

4329. At what time did you go to the "Trumpet"?—Somewhere about half-past 2.

4330. Are you a voter?—Yes.

4331. Who did you go to the "Trumpet" with?—With Robert Walker and Granville Bygrave.

4332–3. Did you see George Smith there, the last witness?—Yes.

4334. In what room did you see him?—He was in the market room.

4335. Afterwards, I believe, you went into a little room?—That was later in the day.

4336. Upstairs?—No; it was in a little room adjoining the market room.

4337. You saw George Smith there?—Yes.

4338. Did you see anybody else there?—There was Smith and Fuller.

4339. Samuel Smith?—Yes.

4340. And George Smith?—Yes.

4341. Smith the publican?—Yes.

4342. Do you know the two brothers?—Yes, well.

4343. What was going on in that room?—I am not able to say; the door was closed.

4344. You saw Smith and Hunt together, did you?—Yes, they were at the "Trumpet."

4345. And was Smith's son there too?—Yes.

4346. Were you there when the men who had agreed to take the 7*s.* 6*d.* came back?—I was there when the men agreed to take the money, but not when they came back.

4347. But had you seen these men go up into the little room?—No.

4348. Did you see 7*s.* 6*d.* offered to Smith, the painter?—No.

4349. Did you hear anything pass between George Smith, Samuel Smith, and Hunt?—No, not a word. You see the door was closed.

4350. Did you see anything with young Smith, the fowl dealer's son?—Not at that time.

4351. What did you see then?—There were a great many people there then, waiting, I suppose, for a little money for their votes, and this Hunt said that he had got a little money in his pocket, that he had got about 5*l.*; and he counted the men in the room at that time, which was about 16, and it would amount to about 5*s.* each man, and they were dissatisfied with that price and said they would not have it; and this Smith, the fowl dealer, said, "Well, I shall be a sovereign out of "my own pocket, and I will make it up 7*s.* 6*d.* each "for you," and some of them were agreeable to take it, and others were not.

4352. What happened after that?—I left the room after that.

4353. Which of the men were they that agreed to take it?—I do not know the men, in particular, that were there.

4354. Can you give the names of any of the men who agreed, or who refused to take it?—Not one. I know one or two would not have it.

4355. Who were they?—There was a man named Clayton, a fishmonger or fish dealer.

4356. Did you hear any of them ask for more?—Yes, he did; he wanted half-a-sovereign.

4357. Where does that man live?—I do not know.

4358. What is his Christian name?—I do not know. I think his name is Alec or Alexander.

4359. Did you hear anybody else make a bargain of that kind?—There was a man named Barnes; he would not take 7*s.* 6*d.* I believe his name is George Barnes.

4360. Did he ask for more?—Yes.

4361. Who bargained with him when he asked for more?—Hunt was bargaining with the whole of them in the room.

4362. Who was?—Hunt and Smith; they were all in the room together publicly. Hunt is a dealer by trade. I consider him a good dealer.

4363. How many of these men did you see come off to the poll?—There were three or four, I should say.

4364. Had they been upstairs?—Not then. I left the room. After the men were grumbling at the 7*s.* 6*d.* I left with Walker and Bygrave.

4365. You went down towards the poll, did you?—No, we went down into the city.

4366. Was George Smith there?—Not at that time. I did not see him at half-past 2.

4367. When did you see him?—At 4 o'clock we were coming back and called at the "Trumpet," and this Fuller, you understand, and Smith, the fowl dealer, Smith, the painter. We were coming up St. Stephen's, and this little Smith, and Smith the fowl dealer, and Fuller came back to the "Trumpet" from the polling place in St. Stephen's, you see, and they went into a little room adjoining the market room.

4368. Did you look in at the door?—I just made an effort to go into the door, not knowing what the rule was, and he slammed the door in my face, this Smith, the fowl dealer, did.

4369. Did you get a glimpse of what was going on?—No, I could not.

4370. Did you see some money, or rather did you hear it chinking?—No, I did not.

4371. Did you see these men come out?—Yes, they did come out.

4372. And did you hear anything said?—There was nothing further said.

4373. At that time had you heard Smith, the fowl dealer, say anything to Fuller or George Smith?—There was nothing said. They were saying something, but I did not observe what they were talking about; I left them. I had a glass of ale. We did not pay much regard to what they were talking of, or to what was going on, because we did not know anything more about this Commission coming down than about the bribery that was going on; it was not our business to look after that.

4374. Did you see George Gowing at this place?—Yes.

4375. Was he in conversation with Hunt?—No. I was at the bar of the public house when George Gowing came in at the "Trumpet," and he and Hunt went into another room.

FIFTH DAY.
M. G. Gilbert.
24 Aug. 1869.

4376. Had you heard Hunt offering beer to people in the place?—It was after Gowing went away that he ordered half a gallon of beer, I believe it was, or it might be a gallon.

4377. And you had some of that, I suppose?—No, I did not have none of that.

4378. Was Granville Bygrave there most of the time when you were there?—Yes, he was with me.

4379. In which room?—We were in the market room and in the bar too.

4380. Did you see Cracknell there?—I do not know Cracknell.

4381. Did you see Browes there, or either of the Browes'?—No, I did not see them at the "Trumpet," but I know who you mean.

4382. How many people do you think there were altogether when this conversation took place about the 5*s.* and the 7*s.* 6*d.*?—There were 16 in the room. Hunt counted them.

4383. Did you see Fuller with any money?—I did not see anybody with any money particularly.

4384. You only heard this bargaining?—Yes.

4385. And you afterwards saw these men in the private room when they slammed the door upon you?—There was only one man, and that was the little man; that was at 4 o'clock.

4386. After he had polled?—Yes, after he had polled.

4387. (Mr. Dowdeswell.) Do you recollect when Hunt first spoke about money?—Yes, it was somewhere about half-past 2 in the day.

4388. Had you been there when Sir Henry Stracey was there?—No.

4389. You had come in after he had left?—Yes; they told me he had been there.

4390. Was Smith in the room when the money was first spoken of?—Smith, the fowl dealer?

4391. Yes, Samuel Smith, the fowl dealer, was he in the room?—Yes.

4392. Before Hunt said anything about money did he give any order for beer?—Yes.

4393. Tell me what he said about beer?—Why, they were in the bar, and he said "Come in this "room together here, I will have half-a-gallon of "beer,"—or a gallon of beer—"I will treat you "together."

4394. To whom did he say that?—To the people of the bar.

4395. Did they bring in the beer?—He took it in.

4396. He took it in himself, did he?—He took it in himself.

4397. And where did he carry it?—Into the market room.

4398. In addition to the men who were in the bar at that time, were there a number of men in the market room also when you went in?—Yes, there were a few men.

4399. When you got in all the beer, did he say anything about the poll?—Yes.

4400. What did he say?—He first of all asked whether any of us had voted, and we said no; and he said "Come in and shut the door."

4401. Did he then shut the door?—The door was shut.

4402. After the door was shut what did he say?—"Are you all going to vote for Stracey?"

4403. What did they say to that?—They said "Yes."

4404. When they said that did he say anything about money?—Yes, he said he had got 5*l.*, a 5*l.* note, or something like that, and the men were counted and they numbered about 16, so that it would be 5*s.* each.

4405. The men were counted and it made up the 5*l.*, did it?—Yes.

4406. What did the men say to that?—They said they would not have it.

4407. It was not enough?—Not enough for them.

4408. Was Smith, the fowl dealer, there when that was said?—Yes, close by Hunt.

4409. And upon that what did Smith say?—"Look "here, my boys, I shall be a sovereign out of my own "pocket, and make it up 7*s.* 6*d.*" That is what he said exactly.

4410. Did they parley about the 7*s.* 6*d.*, or what did they say about it?—Some of them were dissatisfied at it.

4411. Were some of them satisfied?—Some of them were agreeable to take it in case they should not get nothing.

4412. How many of them were agreeable to take it?—There was, I should say, perhaps 8, 9, or 10 in the room that were agreeable to take it at that time.

4413. And did they say they would take it?—Yes.

4414. When they said they would take it, what was done?—At that stage I left the room; I did not wait a minute longer.

4415. Where did you go to?—Down St. Stephen's, down the city.

4416. What happened after that you do not know?—No, not for an hour or so, or an hour and a half.

4417. Did you see any of those men who were willing to take it go up into the city to poll?—No.

4418. Did you see them up in the city when they were polling?—No.

4419. Do you recollect seeing Smith, the painter, in the city after that?—Yes, I saw him.

4420. Whereabouts?—At the bottom of St. Stephen's, coming with Fuller and Smith.

4421. Which Fuller?—The publican.

4422. George?—Yes, I believe so.

4423. Which way was he coming?—He was coming up St. Stephen's, he was coming to the "Trumpet."

4424. He was going towards the "Trumpet"?—Yes; the polling place is between George Fuller's and the bottom of St. Stephen's.

4425. Were they coming from the direction of the polling place?—Yes, to the polling place.

4426. Did you go with them, or did you follow them?—We were coming behind them.

4427. Where did they go to, did you see?—They went to the polling place, and after that they went to the "Trumpet" again.

4428. Did you follow them down to the "Trumpet"?—Yes.

4429. When you got to the "Trumpet" did you see Smith, the painter, there in the house?—Yes, they were in the house in a little room. I saw them come out of a little room at the "Trumpet."

4430. Did you see Robert Walker speak to the painter?—No, not at the "Trumpet."

4431. But before you got to the "Trumpet" did you see Robert Walker go to the painter?—Yes, that was in St. Stephen's.

4432. Did you hear anything that Walker asked the painter?—Yes. I believe he asked him what he had got or what he was going to get.

4433. And what did the painter say?—He said, "All right, I will let you know."

4434. Then did he go on after that to the polling booth?—Yes.

4435. And afterwards you followed him, you say, to the "Trumpet"?—Yes.

4436–9. Who were in the little room?—George Fuller and Samuel Smith.

4440. Was there anybody else in the room besides?—Not in that small room.

4441. Was the door open, or was it shut?—The door was shut when they were in the room, but when they came out they opened the door.

4442. But while they were in the room did you see the door ajar?—Yes, the door was ajar.

4443. Did you attempt to go in?—Yes.

4444. Do you know a man of the name of Bygrave ?—Yes.

4445. Was he there ?—He was in the room.

4446. But with reference to this little room, was he there at the time they were in it ?—He was at the "Trumpet," but not in the little room with these people.

4447. Was he near the little room at the time you were there ?—Yes.

4448. Could you see inside the little room ?—I could just discern this Smith, Samuel Smith, and Fuller, and as soon as this Samuel Smith, the fowl dealer, saw me he closed the door ; he smacked the door in my face.

4449. Did you have any money ?—No.

4450. Did you hear anything said about money ?—No, not then.

4451. Did you see Smith, the painter, with any money ?—No.

4452. Did you hear Smith, the painter, say anything about money ?—Not a word ; I had not much knowledge of the men.

4453. Then you did not see what, if anything, occurred with reference to money inside the room ?—No.

4454. How long did they remain in the room after the door was shut ?—They were in the room at the "Trumpet" when I went to the "Trumpet."

4455. But after they shut the door in your face how long did they remain in the room ?—Not more than three minutes.

4456. Did they then come out of the room ?—Yes.

4457. All three ?—Yes.

4458. Did you hear anything that passed between them when they came out ?—No, we left the house then.

4459. Smith, the painter, left, did he ?—No ; I, Walker, and Bygrave left the house.

4460. Did you hear Smith, the fowl dealer, say anything to Fuller about yourself ?—No.

4461. Were you there and two others standing by at the time they came out ?—Yes.

4462. Do you recollect Smith saying anything to Fuller about settling or squaring with anybody ?—I believe it was Smith. Smith said to Fuller, "There "is three more here waiting to vote ;" but then it was too late ; it was 4 o'clock, so that we did not pay any regard to them.

4463. It was too late ?—Yes, the poll closed at 4.

4464. Did you hear anything said by Smith about their having stood out too long ?—Yes.

4465. What did he say ?—He said, "You have "been standing about all the afternoon, and now you "go and get nothing," and Bygrave made a reply, "Well, the fact is, if we wanted anything we could "have had it, but we did not intend to take any-"thing, only to watch your shameful villainy."

4466. Was Bygrave standing by at that time ?—Yes.

4467. Who else was with him ?—Robert Walker, and me, and Bygrave.

4468. (Mr. Biron.) When Hunt or Smith were beginning with the men and counting them, he included you, Taylor, and Bygrave. He counted you, and made the offer to you ?—Yes.

4469. After the offer was made, and some of the men had accepted and others had refused it, you went away somewhere for an hour and a half ?—We went out of the room because we had occasion to go out. I do not know that there was any particular reason why we went out.

4470. Where did you go ?—Down St. Stephen's.

4471. Did you go to any other public house ?—No, down to the city.

4472. You did not go into any other public house that day ?—Not between half-past 2 and 4.

4473. Before half-past 2 did you go into any other public house ?—Yes, but that was right through part of the city.

4474. What public house was that ?—That was a house on the hill leading down to St. James', at the bottom of Willow Lane.

4475. Were there any voters waiting there ?—No ; it is a public house, but there is not much custom attending it.

4476. During that day did you see any men hanging about at any other house ?—I did not observe it ; in fact, I did not think anything about it.

4477. How was it that you did not vote yourself ?—I made up my mind not to vote at all before.

4478. During the day did not you hear any other men say that they would not vote without money ?—Do you mean any other men besides those at the "Trumpet" ?

4479. Yes.—No, I have not been mixed up in any electioneering business. It only happened that we went into that house promiscuously, as we might go into any other.

4480. (Mr. Dowdeswell.) All the men at the "Trumpet," I understand, said they would not vote unless they had money ?—Yes.

4481. (Mr. Biron.) All except yourself, Bygrave, and Walker ?—Yes.

4482. The rest were ready to take the money ?—Yes, the others agreed to take the money, and we came away.

ROBERT WALKER sworn and examined.

R. Walker.

4483. (Mr. Biron.) What are you ?—I am a bootmaker.

4484. Did you go into the "Trumpet" on the morning of the last election ?—Not in the morning ; about half-past 2 o'clock in the day.

4485. Who went with you ?—Gilbert and Bygrave were with me when I went in.

4486. When you got there did you go into the market room ?—Yes ; I went into the bar, which was very full of people, and I had a glass of ale, and went into the market room ; the door was standing open.

4487. Did you hear Smith or Hunt invite the men at the bar into the market room ?—No, I did not hear that.

4488. You did not hear either of them say anything about standing a gallon ?—No, I did not hear that ; it was before I got there, if it was the case.

4489. In the market room did you hear Hunt say anything about money for voting ?—I heard him say that he had got 5*l.*

4490. Did he mention the number of men ?—He did ; he had 16 of them.

4491. What did Hunt say ?—He said he would give them 5*s.* each ; and Smith, who was behind, said the people were dissatisfied with that. A man named Clayton was very dissatisfied, and they disputed upon the thing, and some of them rose to go away, and some apparently did leave.

4492. How many stayed ?—I cannot say that. I cannot say how many stayed. It might be three or four went away.

4493. When Clayton and the others appeared dissatisfied, and said so, did Smith, the fowl dealer, say anything ?—He said that he would give a pound out of his own pocket, and make it 7*s.* 6*d.*

4494. What did they say to that ?—Some of them appeared to be dissatisfied with that.

4495. What did the others do ?—There was a difference among them.

4496. Did you see Smith, the painter ; little Smith ?—Yes, I did.

4497. Did he say anything ?—No, I am not aware that he said anything.

4498. After that did some of them go into another room with Hunt and Smith ?—I did not notice that. One man I was in conversation with told me that I had voted for Tillett in the morning. I said, "How

FIFTH DAY.

R. Walker.

24 Aug. 1869.

"do you know I did?" He said, "You told me so." I said, "If I told you so that is a proof that I have "told you an untruth, for I have not voted for any-"body."

4499. Who was it who said that?—I do not know his name. I saw the man here as a witness though.

4500. After Smith and Hunt had made this bargain what did you do?—I left. I had only had a glass of ale when I was there; that was all I had.

4501. Did you leave in company with Gilbert?—Yes.

4502. And Bygrave?—Yes; they came after me.

4503. Later in the afternoon did you see Smith, the painter?—I saw him in St. Stephen's Street with young Hunt apparently, which I see here.

4504. Young Smith, you mean?—No, young Hunt.

4505. With anybody else? Was Fuller there with him?—No.

4506. Fuller, the publican?—No, I think it was young Hunt that I saw with him.

4507. Had he voted then?—Apparently he was going to vote.

4508. He was going towards the poll?—He was going towards the poll at all events.

4509. Did you say anything to him?—No, I did not say anything to him. I beg pardon, I did say "Let us hear who you are going to vote for," but he did not make me any answer.

4510. Did he not say anything when you asked him that?—He held up his hands. Whether he said anything or not I do not remember.

4511. You ran up to him, did you not?—Yes.

4512. And did you not ask him what he was going to get?—I believe that is the question that I did ask him.

4513. And did he not say, "I cannot stop, I am in "a hurry. I will let you know"?—That was somewhere about the words.

4514. And did you then follow him and see him go to the poll?—He went to the poll. I passed him.

4515. You saw him at the poll?—Yes.

4516. And while he polled, were Fuller and Smith, the fowl dealer, there?—No, I never saw them; they might be there, but I did not see them.

4517. Did you see him again go back from the poll?—No.

4518. Did you not see him return from the poll to the "Trumpet"?—Yes, I saw him at the "Trumpet."

4519. Did you see him go from the poll, after he had given his vote, to the "Trumpet"?—No, I saw him at the "Trumpet."

4520. Where was he at the "Trumpet"?—He came in the bar, but I lost sight of him afterwards, and my eye was not upon him particularly.

4521. Did you see him go into the little room?—The room I never saw; I saw the passage.

4522. Did you see him go into it?—I cannot say I did.

4523. Did you see him in it?—No, I did not.

4524. Did you see Fuller or Smith then in the little room?—No.

4525. After some time the painter got back from the poll?—No. I never went into the little room. I never went farther than the bar.

4526. Did you go by that little room?—No, I did not. I went to the bar.

4527. Did you see Bygrave and Gilbert go up to the door of the little room?—Bygrave and Gilbert I believe did. I saw them against the doorway.

4528. Did you see anybody come out of that little room?—No, I am not aware in particular that I did.

4529. Did you see Smith, the painter, Smith, the fowl dealer, and Fuller, the publican, come out of that little room?—That appeared to me the way they had to go. I saw them come backwards and forwards, but I did not know their business.

4530. Did they not come and say something to you?—No.

4531. Did not Smith, the fowl dealer, say anything to you?—No, he spoke to Bygrave.

4532. Were you left there with Bygrave?—Yes.

4533. What did he say?—When we came back he said, "You can settle with these three men; here is "three men," says he, "you can satisfy them. I "have had a deal of trouble all day; I have been "running about all day, and I am tired."

4534. Fuller said they have not got any votes?—That is what Fuller said.

4535. Did you say anything?—No, I did not say anything.

4536. Did not Smith say, "You have been hanging "about the whole afternoon; now go and get "nothing"?—That he said to Bygrave. He said, "You have been hanging about all the day for "money, and now you are going not to have any." Bygrave made a reply, "We do not want to have "any money of yours," in that sort of way.

4537. Did you say anything?—No, I said nothing.

4538. How long did Smith, the painter, remain at the "Trumpet"?—I do not know. I left the "Trumpet."

M. G. Gilbert.

MICHAEL GEORGE GILBERT recalled and further examined.

4539. (Mr. Dowdeswell.) Do you know Fisher, a grocer in St. Stephen's Street?—No.

4540. Do you know a grocer in St. Stephen's Street?—I know one or two grocers.

4541. Do you know Mr. Stockings?—I know there is a grocer by the name of Stockings, but I do not think I should know him if I were to see him.

4542. Do you know Mr. Fisher, a grocer?—Yes.

4543. Is he in St. Stephen's Street?—Yes.

4544. Were you walking with Bygrave in the street near the "Trumpet" on the afternoon of the election day?—Yes.

4545. Did Mr. Fisher speak to you?—Yes.

4546. What did he say to you?—He asked us whether we were going to vote, and we told him "No, decidedly not;" and he said that if we went down to the "Trumpet," that was about half-past 2, things were working all right there, and most likely we should see what was going on, and get something.

4547. Did he say anything about coming to him at any time?—He said he would be at the "Trumpet" at that time.

4548. Did he say anything about 5*s.*?—Not that I am aware of. He might, but if he did it has slipped my memory, I forget; he might, but I am not aware that he did.

4549. Did he say anything about your coming to his shop?—I believe he did so to one of my friends.

4550. Who was the friend to whom he said it?—I think Walker, I am not sure.

4551. The last witness?—Yes.

4552. Did you hear what he said?—He said if we went and voted for Stracey, and called at his shop in about a fortnight, he would give us 5*s.*, or something of that sort. That is what he said.

R. Walker.

ROBERT WALKER, examination resumed.

4553. Do you know Mr. Fisher, the grocer?—Yes.

4554. Do you recollect seeing him in the street on the day of the election?—No; I have been trying to recollect that, but I do not remember it.

4555. Do you recollect his speaking either to you or to Gilbert?—He might speak to Gilbert; he did not speak to me.

4556. Did he speak to Bygrave?—He might do that.

4557. You did not hear anything he said?—No, I did not.

4558. Do you recollect seeing him?—I do not recollect seeing him in St. Stephen's Street.

4559. But do you recollect seeing him on that day; do you recollect his saying anything about the "Trumpet"?—Yes, I saw Mr. Fisher, that is right enough; but I never heard anything he said.

4560. Where did you see him?—Gilbert has explained to you.

4561. If you saw him, he stopped and spoke to you, did not he?—No, he did not speak to me.

4562. Did you hear him speak either to Gilbert or to Bygrave?—No.

4563. To neither?—No, I did not hear him.

4564. You said just now that you heard something about the "Trumpet." Come, reflect; did you not hear him speak about the "Trumpet"?—I never heard Fisher say anything about the "Trumpet" that I am aware of.

4565. You said just now that something was said to you about the "Trumpet."—What, from Fisher?

4566. Did you not hear him say something about going down to the "Trumpet"?—I never heard Fisher say that.

4567. Did you hear Fisher say anything about coming to his house in about a fortnight?—I didn't hear him say that. I never spoke to Fisher. I was not nigh to Fisher.

4568. I ask you whether Fisher did not say something in your presence and hearing?—He did say something to them, but I could not hear what it was; I was not nigh enough to hear.

4569. You heard him speaking to them?—Yes, I saw Bygrave speaking to him. I never heard what he said.

4570. Was anybody with Fisher when he spoke to them?—No, there was no one with him that I am aware of.

4571. You know Stockings?—I know Stockings, the chemist.

4572. Was he with him?—I didn't see that man.

MICHAEL GEORGE GILBERT recalled and further examined. M. G. Gilbert.

4573. (Mr. Biron.) You told us about Mr. Fisher speaking to you, Bygrave, and the other man, was anyone with him then?—Yes.

4574. Who was it?—There was a young gentleman, but I have no knowledge of him whatever. Mr. Hardy, the grocer, was canvassing with him.

4575. Was that the first occasion when he spoke about the "Trumpet"?—Yes, in Regent Street.

4576. Was anybody else with him?—There were three of them canvassing. I do not know the other man.

4577. Was Mr. Stockings, the chemist, one?—I do not know him.

4578. Was Stockings, the grocer?—No, I don't know him.

4579. There were three of them altogether?—Yes.

4580. When Fisher said that about the "Trumpet"?—No. Mr. Fisher and me and Bygrave were talking together in the garden, and this young man whom I don't know he was there, but Mr. Hardy kept out of the little garden.

4581. He was in their company?—Yes.

4582. Do you know young Mr. Stracey?—No, I don't.

4583. If you were to see the young man again whom you saw with Hardy and Fisher, should you know him?—No.

4584. You do not carry his appearance in your mind?—No; I know Hardy quite well, and Fisher. People as I know, I know; and them as I don't, I don't.

4585. When you see a man who is a perfect stranger, should you not know him again?—No, I should not recognise him again.

4586. That was on the first occasion, but you saw Fisher later in the day; was anybody with him then?—We went into the committee room because he was not at the "Trumpet," you see, and he came out of a room where Stockings, the chemist, was. They said Stockings, the chemist, was there, and Mr. Fisher. Mr. Fisher came out of the room, and spoke to us privately.

4587. That was the time about the 5*s.*?—Yes, that was it.

4588. Was anybody then present except yourself, Bygrave, Taylor, and Fisher?—Walker.

4589. Anybody else?—No.

4590. What room was it he came out of?—It was the committee room, I believe.

4591. For which ward?—The fifth ward.

4592. What did you go to the committee room for?—I went with my friends.

4593. What for?—Why, it was merely a holiday. Election day is generally a holiday, and I went round just merely for amusement. That's all.

4594. You did not take much interest in it, you did not vote.—It is a holiday, and we take it as such.

4595. What brought you to the committee room?—I went with my friends.

4596. What for?—Just merely to oblige them.

4597. How did you oblige them by going to the committee room?—I was not going to stop outside when they were going in.

4598. Did they say what they were going in for?—No.

4599. What brought you into the committee room about 3 or half-past 3? Had they said they had made up their minds?—I believe they had said they had made their minds up not to vote.

4600. What brought you to the committee room?—Merely for curiosity; we intended to see what we could see and hear what we could hear, and so on.

4601. Did you tell Fisher you would not vote when he offered the 5*s.*?—I never said I should vote or not vote.

4602. You said nothing to him?—He said, "Are "you going to vote?" We said, "No."

4603. Then what remark did he make?—That if we went to the "Trumpet" we should see things were working all right, and that we should be getting something there. He came there about half-past 2.

4604. You went to the "Trumpet" in consequence of the conversation with Fisher?—Yes.

4605. To see if anything was going on?—Yes, that is it, merely a lark, curiosity's sake.

4606. Whereabouts was this garden where you saw him?—A garden leading from Regent Street to Chapel Street.

4607. What were you doing there?—Walker lived there. I went to him.

4608. He lived there?—Yes, he is a boot and shoe manufacturer, and he had a pair of boots of mine doing at that time. Fisher and Hardy and this other gentleman were canvassing in Regent Street, and a boy that is there, Walker's boy, see these gentlemen canvassing there, and he told us.

4609. (Mr. Dowdeswell.) Have you ever seen that young gentleman since?—The gentleman that was with Mr. Fisher?

4610. Yes.—Not that I am aware of. I may have seen him and not known him.

4611. Do you know Mr. Bignold?—I know Sir Samuel Bignold.

4612. Do you know Mr. Arthur Bignold?—No; I know a Mr. Bignold, but I don't know his Christian name.

4613. Mr. John Bignold, the lame gentleman?—I know him by sight, but I didn't know his name was John.

4614. He was not so old as that gentleman?—It was not the lame Mr. Bignold, I know.

4615. The gentleman was not so old as Mr. John Bignold?—No, I don't think he was.

R. Walker.

ROBERT WALKER recalled and further examined.

4616–7. (Mr. Biron.) Do you remember Mr. Fisher and Mr. Hardy coming to your place?—I never saw them; but I heard Bygrave and Gilbert say they came, but I never saw them.

4618. Did you see the third person?—I was at work in the shop at the time.

4619. Did you see the third person who was with them?—No, I did not see any of them.

4620. (Mr. Dowdeswell.) They came to your shop?—No, they did not come to the shop; they came to the garden gate, and it might perhaps be as long from the garden gate to the door as from outside to here. If they did come into the garden they did not come beyond the gate, because I must have seen them.

4621. They came into your garden?—Gilbert and Bygrave told me so. I didn't see them.

W. J. B. King.

WILLIAM JAMES BRIEN KING sworn and examined.

4622. (Mr. Mansfield.) Are you a freeman?—Yes.

4623. Did you vote at this last election?—Yes; I voted for Tillett and Russell.

4624. What are you by trade?—Fish hawker and fish curer.

4625. Who canvassed you?—No canvassers came round; only a man called one evening.

4626. Did you vote at any election before?—No.

4627. Did anybody offer you any money in connexion with this election?—No.

4628. Did you hear of anybody receiving money?—No.

4629. What became of you during the day?—I was after my employment.

4630. After you had voted you went back to your employment; is that so?—Yes.

4631. Had you promised Sir Henry Stracey your vote?—No.

4632. You had not promised anybody before?—I did not promise anybody.

4633. (Mr. Dowdeswell.) Did you hear any persons say that they had got money for their votes?—No.

4634. Not on the day of the election?—No.

4635. Did you hear anybody say you might have money for your vote?—No.

4636. No offer was made to you of that kind?—None.

R. F. Alden.

ROBERT FOSTER ALDEN sworn and examined.

4637. (Mr. Biron.) What are you?—A lamp maker and brazier.

4638. Did you vote at the last election?—Yes.

4639. For whom?—Tillett and Russell.

4640. Did you go about the city at all during the day of the polling?—Yes.

4641. Did you see any men hanging about the public houses?—Yes.

4642. For money?—I don't know.

4643. Did anyone offer to vote your way if you would give them something?—No. I took no active part in it whatever.

4644. Did anybody say "Is there any money "going?"—No.

4645. Or "Can't you stand something if we vote?"—No.

4646. You heard nothing of that?—No, I don't think I did. I saw a great many people going up to vote drunk, but I took no active part in the election whatever.

4647. That was late in the day when they went up drunk?—Yes; afternoon time.

4648. Did you see who the drunken men voted for?—No.

4649. How long have you been a voter?—About 45 years.

4650. And have you voted at every election?—Yes; every election.

4651. Always for the Liberals?—Yes.

4652. In 1860 and 1865 you voted?—Oh, yes; at every election—municipal and general too.

4653. In 1865 did you hear of any corrupt treating or bribery; that was when Goldsmid and Waters were on one side and Warner and Russell on the other?—No, I heard nothing then.

4654. Or in the 1860 election?—No, I have been out of the electioneering machinery for about 20 years.

4655. You have retired on your laurels?—Yes.

J. C. Fisher.

JAMES CRACKNELL FISHER sworn and examined.

4656. (Mr. Dowdeswell.) Are you a grocer in St. Stephen's Street?—Yes.

4657. Did you take an active part in the last election?—I did.

4658. Were you a committeeman?—I was.

4659. In which ward?—The fifth ward.

4660. Did you canvass?—I did.

4661. Do you know a person of the name of Gilbert?—I don't by name. I don't know who you mean. I may know him by sight, but I cannot remember him by name.

4662. Do you know him by sight?—I may. I should not know then whether it was Gilbert or not. I fancy I should know if he lived in the parish.

4663. On the day of the election were you out canvassing?—Yes.

4664. Do you know a person of the name of Hardy?—I know two persons of the name of Hardy.

4665. Is there Hardy, a grocer?—Yes, I know him.

4666. Were you out canvassing with Hardy on the day of the election?—For a few minutes I was, I suppose half an hour, not longer; James Hardy that is.

4667. Did you go into Regent Street during the time that you were out in that half hour?—No, I did'nt. I don't think I went into Regent Street that day.

4668. Did you not go upon the day of the election into Regent Street with Hardy the grocer?—I think not.

4669. Remember?—I feel sure not.

4670. Consider. It is some time ago?—It is a long time ago; I do not think I did go into Regent Street.

4671. First I will speak to you about Regent Street. Did you not go with Hardy into a garden near or in Regent Street? You know Walker's?—No, I don't.

4672. The shoemaker?—No, I don't know Walker, the shoemaker.

4673. You don't know the place?—No.

4674–5. Will you undertake to say that you did not go into Regent Street with Hardy, the grocer?—I won't undertake to say that. I remember going into a garden, but whether it was with Hardy or not I don't know. I went into a garden and saw two men.

4676. Look at that man [pointing to Gilbert] and say whether that was not one man?—I could not say whether it was or was not. I do not remember seeing him before.

4677. But you saw two men in the garden?—I saw two men in the garden.

4678. Did you say to them that they were to go up to the "Trumpet" about half-past 2?—No.

4679. Did you mention the "Trumpet" to them?—No, I knew nothing about the "Trumpet."

4680. Was there anybody besides yourself and Hardy, the grocer, in the garden?—I don't remember Hardy being with me.

4681. If Hardy was with you, was there anybody besides?—If Hardy was with me there were two men besides. There were two men I saw in a garden.

4682. Was there anybody else canvassing with you?—Not at that time.

4683. Had there been anybody else canvassing with you that morning?—Oh yes, I think there was.

4684. Who was canvassing with you that morning, just reflect?—I really don't remember who did canvass with me.

4685. I will refresh your memory?—I will tell you the truth.

4686. Bring your memory back to the day of the election?—I think during the day I must have canvassed with three or four gentlemen besides Mr. Hardy.

4687. Was there any young gentleman who canvassed with you?—No, I don't think there was. The only person I canvassed with as a young man was young Mr. Norgate. He was the only young man I canvassed with that I remember.

4688. Did you canvass with him that day?—I really cannot say whether I did on that day or not. I might. I hardly know. Really there was so much confusion on that day that I forget. I think I canvassed with him on that day, but I certainly did canvass with him before the election at all events.

4689. Do you know Stockings, the chemist?—Yes.

4690. And Stockings, the grocer?—Yes.

4691. Was either of them with you that day canvassing?—Oh no. Stockings, the chemist, did not canvass that day at all.

4692. Did Stockings, the grocer, canvass with you?—I cannot remember. I don't think he did. I should say he didn't.

4693. Remember.—I would tell you in a moment if I knew.

4694. Your mind is a blank as to whether Stockings, the grocer, canvassed with you?—It is. I should say he didn't. I should say it is more probable he did not than that he did.

4695. Now I want to know whether you did not say to that man and to another man who was with him anything about the "Trumpet"?—I didn't.

4696. And that you would be down there about half-past 2?—I did not, most certainly; I knew nothing about the "Trumpet."

4697. You know the "Trumpet"?—Oh yes, well.

4698. Do you know the landlord of the "Trumpet"?—I did not know the landlord till that day.

4699. What time was it when you saw them in the garden in Regent Street?—I don't know what time in the day. I should have said it was the afternoon. I don't remember going out with Hardy until the afternoon, if Mr. Hardy was with me.

4700. Did you not tell them to be at the "Trumpet" at half-past 2?—Most assuredly not.

4701. Did you not tell them there would be some money going on at half-past 2 at the "Trumpet"?—Certainly not.

4702. Not a word to that effect?—Not a word to that effect.

4703. You had been at the meeting of the Conservatives that morning?—I had, at our own committee room.

4704. Had something occurred at that meeting which nothing on earth would induce you to reveal?—Nothing whatever. I will tell you everything that occurred so far as I am concerned.

4705. Tell me the names of the persons who were present at that meeting?—I cannot from memory. There was the committee. It was known who they were. Stockings was the leader or the chairman of the meeting, I think. There was Dr. Pitt, Mr. Lovett, but I cannot posivitely say who there were.

4706. Do you know Dr. Allen?—Yes, well.

4707. Was he there?—No, I should say not, certainly I think he was not.

4708. Will you undertake to say he was not?—I would say he was not, rather than I would say he was.

4709. Your mind is uncertain about whether he was there or not?—I do not think he had any right or business there. I do not remember seeing Dr. Allen there.

4710. A man may have no business in one sense, and a very great deal in another?—Yes, but I don't remember seeing Dr. Allen that day. I believe I did not.

4711. Do you know Mr. Woodrow?—I did not know him till I saw him on Saturday.

4712. You were here on Saturday whilst he was being examined?—For ten minutes while he was being examined.

4713–4. Stockings was a very active person, was he not?—There are three or four; which do you mean?

4715. Stockings, the grocer.—I don't think he was active more than another. We endeavoured to do all we could to return our candidate fairly.

4716. Was he not present at the meeting on that morning?—I really do not know; I cannot tell you.

4717. Had you any committee book to show you whether he was present or not?—I had not.

4718. Was there not a book to show who was present?—I don't know.

4719. Listen to these words, and say whether you did not utter these words, or words to this effect, to that man who is standing there (pointing to Gilbert). Before the words are read I will ask you this, did you not afterwards see that man in the committee room?—I don't remember seeing him before.

4720. Bygrave and another man with him. Do you recollect seeing that man in the committee room?—I don't remember ever seeing the man.

4721. Do you recollect coming out of the committee room and speaking to them alone?—No; I don't remember ever seeing the man before.

4722. But I ask you whether you came out of the room and spoke to two men privately?—I came out of the room several times and solicited several people to vote, you know.

4723. Did you not utter words to this effect, that if they would go up and vote for Stracey and come to your shop you would give them 5*s.*?—I had no funds to give. I could not.

4724. Did you not say this, or words to this effect, "If you go and vote for Stracey, and come to my "shop in a fortnight, I will give you 5*s.*"?—No, I could not say that.

FIFTH DAY.
J. C. Fisher.
24 Aug. 1869.

4725. Could you have said that ?—I don't think I did.

4726. You don't think you did ?—I feel sure I did not.

4727. Will you swear you did not ?—I could swear I did not.

4728. Will you swear you did not utter those words to those men ?—Yes, I can swear it, because I could not have uttered them.

4729. I don't want any reason. Will you swear that you did not utter those words to those men, or to one of them ?—No, I could not.

4730. A direct answer, yes or no ?—I could not have told them so.

4731. Will you swear you did not say that to those men ?—I could not.

4732. Did you utter those words or anything like it to those men, or either of them ?—I did not ; I could not have done so.

4733. I won't have that answer.—I say then, no, certainly not.

4734. Will you undertake to swear you did not ?—I swear I did not.

The shorthand writer will now read the exact words to you. Listen to them.

[An extract is read from Michael George Gilbert's evidence.]

4735. Did you not utter words to that effect, not those words necessarily ?—I could not have uttered words of that sort.

4736. Yes, you could have uttered them. Did you not ?—I could not have uttered those words.

4737. Will you undertake to swear that you did not utter words to that effect ?—I should swear I did not.

4738. Will you swear, sir ?—I did not utter such words as those at all. I had no motive for it whatever.

4739-40. You might have many motives ?—I had none.

[A further extract is read from Michael George Gilbert's evidence.]

(The Witness.) I saw the two men at the "Trumpet" that I saw in the garden, and they wanted me to promise to give them something, and I said I could do no such thing. I saw them, but not by appointment.

4741. Then you did go down to the "Trumpet" ?—Yes, twice that day. I went in the morning and in the afternoon.

4742. Have you any doubt that that is one of the men ?—I could not tell you if you were to give me a thousand pounds to tell you. The men I saw, to the best of my remembrance, looked like bricklayers.

4743. You went out with Hardy canvassing for half an hour ?—Yes.

4744. With whom else did you go down to the "Trumpet" ?—I went alone to the "Trumpet." I was alone at the "Trumpet," to the best of my knowledge.

4745. What took you down to the "Trumpet" ?—Oh, there were a lot of voters there, and I went to ask them if they had voted.

4746. Did you know that there were a lot of voters for sale there ?—Yes, I did.

4747. Did you know Hunt, the fowl dealer ?—I did not.

4748. Did you know Smith, the fowl dealer ?—I have known him a long time.

4749. He is a personal friend of yours ?—No, not a personal friend. I have known him for many years. I don't suppose I have spoken to him twenty times in my life.

4750. Did you see Smith at the "Trumpet" ?—I do not remember seeing Smith at the "Trumpet."

4751. Whom did you see ?—The two men I have named, and that is all, to the best of my knowledge ; and I asked them to vote for Stracey.

4752. What did you go down to the "Trumpet" for, to see the two men whom you had seen in the garden ?—No ; I went to ask if there were any to vote.

4753. You asked if there were any voters for sale there ?—No, I did not do any such thing.

4754. You went down to the "Trumpet" and saw the two men ?—I did see the two men.

4755. Did you not see anybody else there ?—I saw several people there.

4756. You know you went down for some object to the "Trumpet ? "—If I had been asked to swear at the end of the election I should have sworn there had been no money spent at all. I was called in to the "Trumpet" by some one who knew me.

4757. I want to know.—If you will let me tell my tale in my own way I shall be able to convince you. I was called in in the morning. They said there were 15 or 20 men—I don't know how many they said—and was there any money stirring that they could have ? I said I would have nothing to do with making any risk at all. I said "I will have nothing "to do with that."

4758. Who called you into the "Trumpet" ?—I really cannot say. I don't know at all.

4759. Were you passing by the "Trumpet" ?—I was passing by it and was called in.

4760. In passing by the "Trumpet" somebody called you in and told you there were a number of men there for sale ?—Yes.

4761. Cannot you recollect who it was that called you in and made that unimportant communication to you ?—I cannot, indeed. I do not remember the least who it was.

4762. Who was with you when that communication was made ?—I was alone.

4763. What time in the morning was that ?—I really don't know. I should say perhaps 11 or 12 o'clock. I should suppose it was 11 or 12 o'clock. They appeared to be all tipsy, from what I could see.

4764. Did you see Smith, the fowl dealer, there ?—No, I did not.

4765. When did you see him ?—I don't remember seeing him that day at all.

4766. Did you see his son ?—I don't know him.

4767. You had received the communication in the morning that there were a lot of men at the "Trumpet" for sale ?—Yes.

4768. Having received that communication, how came you to go down afterwards to the "Trumpet" ?—To know if they had voted. I was going past again.

4769. At what time?—I really don't know what time it was. I should say it was after 2 o'clock in the day. They were not people in our ward. I knew nothing about them.

4770. When you heard that there were a number of men down there for sale how came you to go down—you, a Puritan—for the purpose of seeing whether those men who were for sale had voted ?—Our committee room was very close, and I had to pass two or three times ; I don't know how many times in the day.

4771. How came you, having learnt that these men were for sale, to go down to ascertain whether they had voted ? — Only that I might get them to vote for Stracey, but to hold out no inducement.

4772. The men being in the market, you went down to get them to vote for Sir Henry Stracey if they had not voted already ?—Yes.

4773. What were the means by which you thought you were going to get men who wanted to be paid to vote for Sir Henry Stracey ? — Legitimate means.

4774. Did you find that they had voted ?—I found that a great many of them had gone away. I was told so.

4775. You found that man and his companion there?—They might be there.

4776. But you said you saw them; you saw two men there?—Yes, I don't remember this man (pointing to Gilbert).

4777. You said you saw two men whom you had appointed to meet there?—No, no such thing.

4778. You saw the two men who say they had an appointment to meet you there; they were persons who had not voted?—They had not voted when I saw them.

4779. What means did you take to persuade them to vote?—I don't remember taking any means but asking them to vote.

4780. You went down to persuade them to vote?—I used the best means I could to persuade them.

4781. You find two men to whom you had spoken before who had not voted. Do you mean to say that you took no means to persuade them to vote?—No other than legitimate means.

4782. What was the use of your going down?—I went past the place several times.

4783. Going in there for the purpose, how did you try to persuade them to vote?—I really cannot tell. I said I would rather have Stracey returned than Tillett. I said that Sir Henry Stracey was the man who ought to represent the city.

4784. Having gone in for the purpose of persuading men who were for sale, do you mean to say that you said nothing to the men but that?—I spoke to two men; that was all. Who they were I don't know. One man said he came from Yarmouth, I think.

4785. Having gone down there to persuade those men to vote, did you not say to them "You go and "vote for Stracey, and come to my shop in a fort-"night, and I will give you 5s."?—I could not possibly have said that.

4786. What did you say if you did not say that?—There are lots of things a man may say besides that. I endeavoured to persuade them to vote for Sir Henry Stracey in opposition to Mr. Tillett.

4787. Did you not say to them—going there to persuade them to vote, and knowing that money would persuade them—"You go and vote for Stracey, and "come to my shop in a fortnight, and I will give you "5s.," or words to that effect?—No, I could not have said so, because I had no means for paying them.

4788. (Mr. Biron.) Half-a-sovereign would not have ruined you?—I would not give half-a-sovereign to turn the best election that ever was.

4789. (Mr. Dowdeswell.) You are a wealthy man?—I don't profess to be a wealthy man.

4790. You could have afforded half-a-sovereign?—I would not have given half-a-sovereign to turn the election.

4791. Did you not say to those men "You go and "vote for Stracey, and come to my shop in a fortnight, "and I will give you 5s.," or words to that effect?—I could not have said so.

4792. Might you have said that?—No, I could not have said that. I could not possibly have said that, because I had no means to be recouped, and I could not unless I had.

4793. Was that the only reason that you had?—Certainly; because I would not put my hand in my own pocket.

4794. Not having the money being the only reason, you had no scruples about giving money?—I had none to give. I had scruples because I did not wish—

4795. You said the only reason was that you had not the money.—I had, because I did not wish to infringe the law.

4796. Why did you tell me the only reason was because you had not the money? You go down there where you know men are for sale; you go down to persuade those men to vote. Do you mean to tell this body of persons who are assembled here that you did not use those means of persuasion?—Not money means, certainly.

4797. Not money means?—Nor promise means.

4798. Did you not give them a promise of money?—No, I could not have done so.

4799. Did they follow you up into the committee room, then?—Not that I am aware of. I don't remember.

4800. Did you see them afterwards in the committee room?—I don't think I did.

4801. Did you come and speak to them privately?—No, I don't remember seeing the two men only in the garden and in the "Trumpet." That is the only time I remember seeing the men.

4802. Will you undertake to say that they did not come up to you in the committee room, and that you did not speak to them privately?—I will undertake to say that I don't remember such a thing.

4803. You remember voters coming to the committee room and speaking to you?—I don't remember that.

4804. You said so.—I beg your pardon. I think I did not say so. I don't think I said so.

4805. You said you recollected voters coming to the committee room. Do not you recollect those two men coming up to you in the committee room?—No, I don't.

4806. You saw them at the "Trumpet"?—Yes.

4807. How long did you remain at the "Trumpet"?—Not more than five minutes I should say.

4808. Where did you go when you got into the "Trumpet"?—A small back room adjoining the bar. I really cannot say.

4809. A very convenient room. How came you to go straight into a small back room at the "Trumpet" without seeing anybody but these two men?—I was asked to go into a small back room.

4810. Who asked you?—I think the two men called me in themselves.

4811. Where were you then?—As far as I remember they were in the front bar, which is next the street.

4812. And then they asked you to go into a back room?—Yes.

4813. What did they say when they got you into a back room?—They wanted money to vote. They told me so in the garden; and I said I had nothing to give.

4814. When you knew these people wanted money, why did you go down to that place? A man like you does not go into a place like that without an object?—You want to extract from me what I don't know. I had no money to give, and I bribed no one and offered no one a bribe.

4815. How came you to go down to persuade them without money?—I tried to persuade them to vote for Stracey.

4816. I want to know how it comes that you, a person knowing that men wanted money to vote, went there?—I have told you.

4817. Somebody called you into the public house?—Yes.

4818. And you went to the bar?—Yes.

4819. And then you saw these two men there. What did the person say to you who came to you then and called you in?—I was called in in this way, "Hi, hi," and I turned round and looked. To the best of my knowledge it occurred in that way. I didn't go pointedly to the public house.

4820. Do you go into every house where a person calls "Hi, hi"?—Certainly on an election day. I should go to hear what they had to say.

4821. It was not one of the two men who called "Hi, hi"?—I really don't know. I could not say whether it was or not.

FIFTH DAY.

J. C. Fisher.

24 Aug. 1869.

4822. You saw the two men at the bar?—I think I saw them in the bar.

4823. They asked you to go into a back room?—Yes.

4824. How came you, having nothing whatever to conceal, to go with two men whom you had never seen before in your life, into a back room?—I had seen them that morning.

4825. But you had never known them before?—No.

4826. How came it that you, in your position of life, went with them into a back room?—I should have gone into anywhere. I should have gone into a pigsty with them if they would have voted for Sir Henry Stracey, that is, if I could persuade them.

4827. Your zeal was so great for the cause that if they had asked you to go into a pigsty you would have gone?—Certainly I would.

4828. Yet although your zeal was so great, you would not be induced to part with 10*s.*?—I didn't want to be brought before the magistrates for bribing people.

4829. It was no moral reason then, but only the fear of the law that prevented you?—There is no mistake about that.

4830. That is your morality?—That is my morality.

4831. We are to estimate your veracity by your morality?—It was contrary to law, therefore I would not offer a bribe nor intimidate at all.

JAMES HARDY sworn and examined.

J. Hardy.

4832. (Mr. Mansfield.) You are a grocer, I believe?—Yes.

4833. I think you were a committee man on the Conservative side at the late election?—I was not; I declined to be.

4834. You were a friend of the party, were you not?—I am a friend of the party.

4835. And you took some share in canvassing?—Not at all.

4836. Did you not canvass at all?—Only on the day of the election I assisted, but not before.

4837. Tell me where you were on the day of the election?—I began in the early part of the morning to take up voters where I knew them personally, and I assisted personally in the election the whole of the day. I never left it a moment.

4838. What voters did you take up, a good many?—Oh no, I might walk up with about three or four respectable persons, and they might ask and call upon others to go up.

4839. Did you take up any in cabs?—No, but I hired a cab to go home, and in going home I saw Mr. Slipper, a surgeon, and other gentlemen, and Mr. Slipper rode back with me in the cab.

4840. Did you find yourself in the "Trumpet" at any time?—I never went into the "Trumpet," although I was continually passing it.

4841. Were you at any time during that election with Mr. Fisher?—Yes.

4842. How long were you with him?—Mr. Fisher is overseer of the parish, but not knowing exactly where fresh voters lived I asked him to accompany me into Crook's Place to call upon voters that had not voted. I went to take a list of the men who had not voted, and made myself personally active in taking Mr. Fisher with me and calling upon those who had not voted.

4843. Were you with Mr. Fisher in Regent Street?—I was in every street with him.

4844. How long were you in company with Mr. Fisher that day?—It was under the pressure of the election, but it might be half an hour I should say.

4845. Not more?—No; I merely took him as a person who could give me information.

4846. When you were with Mr. Fisher did you canvass any electors?—Oh, yes, those who had not voted. I went for the purpose.

4847. Did you go into a garden with Mr. Fisher?—Yes, we took the streets seriatim until we came to the finish, and then I believe there was a garden where we saw one or two men.

4848. Did you say anything to those voters?—Of course I did.

4849. What did you say?—I asked them immediately to go up and vote.

4850. How did you say that?—I said, "My good "fellow, will you go and vote for us; we are winning, "and we expect that you will go and vote." I obtained several in that way.

4851. What did you hear Mr. Fisher say?—Mr. Fisher was simply accompanying me, because he knew the people, being an overseer, better than I did, and he chatted with me as you would in a case of that sort.

4852. Do you remember the words Mr. Fisher used?—I do not recollect that, because I was so continually about the whole time, but Mr. Fisher was merely accompanying me. I trusted to him to tell me where to go. I did not know the people. I did not know that these people had not spoken to him as others did. Of course, in elections, these people call you in if they think you are about canvassing, and when you go to find voters who have not voted, no doubt they are waiting for some purpose, and we call upon them to ascertain that they have not polled.

4853. Did you not hear Mr. Fisher say something to these men about coming to vote?—No, I never heard that. Of course I had not seen Mr. Fisher. I came here the moment you sent for me, and I have not seen a soul.

4854. Did you not hear that two men desired to go to the "Trumpet"?—No, I should say no message was sent. I had been round about the "Trumpet" repeatedly, and had been asked to go into the "Trumpet." I knew very well the nature of what it must be, and I purposely avoided it in Sir Henry Stracey's cause, and I daresay I worked as hard as anybody in our ward, if not harder, in calling upon the voters, knowing them in previous elections, but I never went into the "Trumpet."

4855. Did you never hear anyone told to go into the "Trumpet"?—No, I do not think Mr. Fisher would say such a thing; it was no general rendezvous.

4856. Did you go to the "Trumpet"?—No; I was in the neighbourhood three or four times that day, and was invited in, but declined it.

4857. Did you not know that Mr. Fisher did?—No, I did not know. I did not come in contact with Mr. Fisher till later in the day, when I was asked to go into Crook's Place, which was late in the day, and I asked him to go with me as he knew the voters.

4858. Did you know two voters named Bygrave and Walker?—I should know them probably if I was to see them, but I cannot recall them to mind.

4859. Can you recollect what was said when you and Fisher and these two men met?—I should say that no more was said to these men.

4860. You should say; what did you hear?—Nothing but advising them to go and vote, and Mr. Fisher might say a word to them, but, of course, I had no time to lose; there was no conversation, no parley with the men, we were on the route for other men, and we could not stop a moment.

4861. You knew very well that these two persons met Fisher at the "Trumpet," and do you mean to say that no conversation took place which led to their subsequently meeting people at the "Trumpet"?—Certainly not. I never heard the "Trumpet" named, or of any person being sent to the "Trumpet," and I was about as much as most persons that day.

4862. Have you been engaged in many elections for the city?—Yes.

4863. And always voted for the Conservatives?—Yes, and perhaps in 1854, Sir Samuel Bignold's election, I had more to do with than any one, and it was a perfectly pure election. In 1857 an offer was made to withdraw the petition under the belief that Schneider and Bury had both bribed, but Bignold had not.

4864. We will not go into that at present; we know all about Schneider and Bury.—Yes.

4865. (Mr. Dowdeswell.) The elections of 1860 and 1865, I suppose, were as pure as that one?—No, I do not say that. I am only speaking of my knowledge of elections, and where purity existed and where it did not.

4866. (Mr. Mansfield.) Who were the other gentlemen that you canvassed with?—In election times I go invariably alone to canvass; I prefer it. My own personal interview is better for persuasion than two or three talking to a voter at once.

4867. Did you keep a record of your canvassing that day?—I could give you the names that I went to specially. I went into the Crescent to the gentlemen there. I went to the high as well as to the low, and many of the gentlemen declined to vote in the morning, but finding a little change they voted in the afternoon.

4868. Did you know of any cases of gentlemen who went through that change in the course of four or five hours?—Yes.

4869. How was it done?—By simply telling them the poll was altering.

4870. Not by persuasion?—No; you will excuse me putting it, but with these gentlemen it is not persuasion. Many people vote according as the poll is going. Sometimes if the poll is against them they do not trouble about it, but if the poll is rising they go and vote.

4871. How is that, because at this election up to a certain hour the poll was going all one way, and then it suddenly changed; is it the habit of the people of Norwich to vote in that way?—Yes; it was a very great mistake to suppose the election was over when so few had voted.

4872. But you told me just now that the people voted with the winning side. Sir Henry Stracey was far behind for a long time, and then suddenly a number of plumpers came in and put him a head of Mr. Tillett; was that done entirely by persuasion?—Vast numbers have voted after the middle of the day purely voluntarily. If I had been prepared I could have probably named several.

4873. That is the same with regard to the Liberal side?—Of course it is.

4874. But there are some of them who by persuasion go in between 3 and 4 o'clock in the afternoon and give plumpers. What do you know of those men? Were they brought up by you or by your arguments?—No, they did not want arguments.

4875. By money?—No, I beg your pardon it is not so. Many men will withhold voting for a certain time, and if they find it is not a venal voting they will frequently vote then. I know people in Crook's Place who went up and voted, finding as you say they could not get a bribe they voted the same, and some were shut out from voting who were eager to record their names.

4876. They were eager to record their names when they could get nothing for it?—They were eager to get something for it, and they would have done it if they could.

4877. Can you tell me the names of any gentlemen who were actively engaged in canvassing on your side?—I know gentlemen in every ward of course. Mr. Norgate and others.

4878. Were you with Mr. Norgate on the day of the election?—No.

4879. But was there not any other person with you and Mr. Fisher?—Oh no, I went into the committee room.

4880. At the time when you and Mr. Fisher spoke to these two men was there any one else with you?—No, I was going by myself.

4881. No one was with you, either old or young?—No, I should have gone by myself if I had known the places.

4882. There was nobody but Mr. Fisher?—Mr. Fisher was an official, and therefore the best man I could take.

4883. Was anybody else with you?—Oh no.

4884–5. (Mr. Dowdeswell.) When did you begin to canvass?—On the day of the election I might personally make a few calls where I knew the voters and interested myself generally, but I purposely avoided being on the committee, and purposely avoided canvassing, and requested my name to be withdrawn.

4886. You were a zealous person?—Decidedly so.

4887. Then why did you, being a zealous person, abstain from being on any committee?—I could not afford the time, for one thing, to attend to it, and if I could have given my mind to it, the probability is that I should have been put into a position in the committee which would have taken up all my time. I had been chairman of this ward committee on previous elections, and therefore I declined to have any position in it.

4888. At previous elections you had been chairman of your ward committee?—Oh yes.

4889. You said that the last two elections had not been pure ones?—With regard to the last two elections I do not know that they were pure. I will answer you positively. I can speak to the fact that the two last elections could not have been pure, for they were petitioned against.

4890. Do you know that the elections of 1860 and 1865 of which you were chairman of the committee were not pure elections?—You say do I know they were impure from their being found to be impure afterwards; of course a man who is chairman of a committee does not necessarily criminate himself by not knowing these matters, he is outside.

4891. That is to say, the chairman keeps himself in the dark?—You say in the dark, sir; I am not in the dark, and I will tell you all I know.

4892. Being chairman of the committee did you think it was your duty to keep in the dark?—I was not in the dark previously.

4893. Then if it was impure, and you were not in the dark, you knew what was going on?—I might know from information.

4894. Of course you might, but we may take it that you did?—You may know it or anybody may know it outside.

4895. Did you not know it?—I did not know it personally.

4896. Had you nothing to do with money upon these elections?—Well, I may have had to do as all other people have had to do with; when all is impure there is no impurity, don't you see.

4897. There was a good deal of money running loose upon those occasions, was there not?—Well, I should think there was.

4898. And in your ward as well as in other wards?—Very little in our ward.

4899. Was yours a pure ward then?—Nearly pure.

4900. Then I suppose the other wards were very bad ones?—I mean to say that ward in which I have acted is not considered by report to be impure. Of course I know nothing about the other wards.

4901. Although it is not considered by report impure, is it actually very impure?—No, it is not.

4902. Then report makes it out as well as it is or better?—It is, and of course it must be better, it is only a matter of opinion.

4903. Perhaps it is kept dark?—No, it is not. I did not come here to be dark in anything; if you want to know anything I can tell you, I will tell you.

4904. In the elections of 1860 and 1865 was not little money spent in your ward?—Probably in 1865 there was.

4905. I may take it I should think there was?—Very well, if you like to take it so you can.

4906. Now at these elections, you, being chairman of the ward, can tell me who were the gentlemen that were the financial agents in the matter?—Oh yes, but the finances did not come in in connection with the committee of the ward.

4907. But there was money going?—It does not matter; as chairman of the committee I should not allow such a thing to come before me.

4908. As chairman of the committee and not keeping yourself entirely in the dark, knowing that money was going about, you would know, I should think, who was the financial agent who arranged the funds?—I do not know that.

4909. Did you keep yourself in the dark about that. Was it the man in the moon?—Well there is a man in the moon always, of course.

4910. At Norwich is there always a man in the moon?—Oh yes.

4911. By report who was the man in the moon?—I certainly could not tell you at all.

4912. Not by report?—Not by report, I could not tell you; you might for the same reason use that as an argument with regard to the "Trumpet;" it was said that Sir Henry Stracey walked in and gave the money himself, which was a most absurd thing.

4913. Who was by report the financial agent?—There was none that I know of; if any money was spent it might be as I might spend money.

4914. As you might spend money?—Yes, I dare-say I spent a few shillings as I went about by giving the children a shilling and sixpence and other people I might see.

4915. You spent a few shillings by going about giving it to the children?—Yes.

4916. Did the children happen to be grown up children?—No sir.

4917. Of course.—Then if you asked me in the abstract did I spend a shilling in the day it is ridiculous. I could not go about without spending a sovereign or two.

4918. I quite understand if a man has been engaged in elections in Norwich for many years, it is ridiculous to say that he did not spend a few shillings.—You go into a house and ask a man for his vote, and perhaps he is not at home, and you see the wife, and then you may spend a shilling or sixpence in that way.

4919. It is nonsense, is it not?—It is nonsence to call it spending money of course.

4920. It is nonsence to say that a man who takes an active part must spend a sovereign?—A man cannot go about canvassing and asking voters to vote without now and then spending a sixpence.

4921. I suppose as it is impossible not to do it and you did it, that it did cost you a sovereign at any rate?—I could not tell you that.

4922. Not to a shilling of course?—I did not give it to voters. I probably avoided giving it to voters.

4923. Nor to voters' children?—Of course I do not mean to say that.

4924. Or to a voter's wife?—Or to a voter's wife, and a very good gift as far as it went.

4925. You have said you would not be particular to a shilling, then you would be particular to a pound?—Well, I should not carry more than shillings in my pocket.

4926. It is impossible when a man is actively engaged to remember whether it is a pound or two, I should think?—I am quite willing to answer exactly as you wish, but I cannot narrow myself in that way; I cannot tell, I might spend a sovereign, or if I had spent two I should not have thought much of it.

4927. Or perhaps it might have got up to three or four?—No; not more than two or three.

4928. You limit yourself to three?—No; I know my position as regards what I was doing.

4929. You limit yourself to three sovereigns?—Certainly, I did not take that with me.

4930. You were going about getting up the voters?—Certainly.

4931. Did you all in your power to get them up?—Yes.

4932. You did find that they required persuasion, did you not?—Well, they did not require a great deal of persuasion.

4933. Of course not a great deal.—You wish to ask me what I did and I will tell you. I would give, for instance, to the wheelwright in the parish, a very respectable man; he says to me "I have not voted at "all before, but as you have called upon me I will "vote on your side." I take him away and walk him up to the poll. If I get a man of that sort I walk him up to the poll.

4934. You confer upon him that honor?—I escort him up to the poll; he is an independent voter, of course.

4935. And in escorting him up to the poll you do not mean, I suppose, to say that you would take him up dry?—The man was an independent voter, and I busied myself with independent voters as far as I could.

4936. But were there no others?—I did not give a shilling to a voter of any kind.

4937. But to whom did you give the 3l.?—I might have spent a pound or so. I do not know that it might be more than a sovereign.

4938. But to whom did you give it?—When I called upon them I found sometimes that they had voted, but still I might give a shilling or sixpence to the children; it was not a gift to the men.

4939. Of course not.—The men had voted.

4940. Did you never give it before the men had voted?—No, certainly not.

4941. You always took care that they voted before you gave it?—No; I might call at the house, you understand. We know in going round to the voters some of these men might be out, might be at the "Trumpet;" and some of the women might say, "Will you treat a little," and I might give the wife a shilling or the child a sixpence, but the man had voted, and I did not know where they were.

4942. If the man was in a little difficulty about going up to the poll what would you give him?—I would decline to give him anything. I declined sending up a score of men. I declined to give them a shilling, or in any way to commit myself.

4943. Did you say, "If you will go up to the "poll I shall see your children or your wife "afterwards"?—No; I have never been about the place since the election.

4944. But you did sometimes go to a house, and find the man had polled?—Yes, but I did not know. You understand that in going to call up the arrears of voters you go to certain houses, and the men may not be there, although you are told they have not voted.

4945. At the time you gave the shilling or the sixpence or the half-crown you did not know whether the men had voted or not. You went there on the presumption that they had not voted?—No, or, of course, I should not have lost my time about it.

4946. But you gave the money to the women?—If I had seen the men I should not have talked to the women or the children. I should have made the most of the voters, and tried to get up.

4947. But not finding the voter at home, and not knowing whether he had polled, you did sometimes give the children sixpence and a shilling, and the wife half-a-crown?—When you got into a street like Crook's Place, seeing a person like me, and knowing my object standing outside, and on the day of the election I might pass some of these people, and I might give a trifle to them, but without knowing them at all, only from seeing them as neighbours.

4948. They knew you as having been engaged on former elections?—Yes.

4949. And then the wife would say, "My husband

" is out, won't you stand something?"—Oh, no, I was born in the parish, and with a fifty years' residence in the place people know you pretty well.

4950. And knowing you pretty well, they knew you to be a liberal man?—Well, I will not praise my own liberality, but I may say that I stand very well in the parish.

4951. They know you not to be illiberal?—Yes.

4952. And they said, "My husband is out, he has "not voted; will you stand half-a-crown?"—I should avoid doing anything in that way. Although you may think I did wrong I did nothing with a venal intent; it may be laughed at in this court, but I beg to assure you that if I gave a shilling or a sixpence I might give it to a person who voted on the other side, because if you are a canvassing man you must be an agreeable man; you must be pleasant, whether winning or losing.

4953. Perhaps you thought it would be as well to be liberal on both sides?—Certainly, that is very good policy.

4954. Liberality to some might cover illiberality to others. You had been engaged in many elections?—Yes.

4955. And you are a steady old hand and a discreet man?—I will not say that, but I should think I should know how to work.

4956. You would know how to do it?—Yes.

4957. And knowing how to do it you did it?—No.

4958. Why not? You an old hand, do you mean to say you did not do it?—No; I am a better hand than that.

4959. I do not think you are doing yourself justice?—Well, I do not wish to have the credit of it.

4960. You are a discreet steady old hand, liberal, and knowing how to do it; do you mean to say you could abstain from doing it?—Oh yes.

4961. Only to the amount of three sovereigns?—Well, I do not think it was three.

4962. It would not exceed three?—A sovereign or two I should put in my pocket on election morning. I do not deny it, but I should not commit myself in the disposal of those sovereigns.

4963. Were they half-sovereigns?—No.

4964. Are you sure they were not half-sovereigns?—They were not half-sovereigns; in short, it is not so. I do not want to conceal it. I go once in the course of the day, and I might take out ten shillings in my pocket in the morning, and I might go home and perhaps put ten shillings more then, but in no case did I put money in my pocket beyond that sort of way of having a few shillings in my pocket.

4965. How many times in the day did you go home and put ten shillings in your pocket?—I might go home twice or three times; not more.

4966. How much did you start with in the morning, two or three sovereigns?—Oh no.

4967. Surely a man of your substance does not walk about without money in his pocket?—Certainly not.

4968. You must have something to start with?—In the morning up to a certain time this sort of voters that you are wanting to criminate me with.

4969. Do not suppose that?—Your desire seems to be to do that, but this class of voters such a man as myself would feel it his duty to call upon to ask them to be at the poll. I am not a paid agent and never was; although I have acted in this way it has been in my own parish.

4970. You have said there was no class of voters for whom you would provide anything; but you know you would not go out in the morning without some provision in your pocket against all sorts of contingencies; I am not speaking of the day of the election, but I do not suppose you would ever walk about without 3*l.* or 4*l.* in your pocket?—Oh no, a little silver is quite enough for me at any time.

4971. What, are you afraid to trust yourself with more?—I do not want any more in my ordinary expenditure.

4972. You have said there was a certain class to whom it would be unnecessary to say anything of that sort, but there was another class, you see?—Yes.

4973. To whom a little persuasion would be necessary?—Yes.

4974. And persuasion, I suppose, of a monetary character?—Oh yes, there was a man in the "Trumpet," and I called at his house three or four times, saw his relatives, and they would say "We will send for "him, or will you go to him and see him." I declined it, but I had a little influence with the man, and I thought by calling I might get him; but when I called the next time his wife said "My husband would rather speak "to you, will you go and see him;" I said "If he is "here I will speak to him," but I would not go on.

4975. Who was that man?—A man named Craske.

4976. He is dead is he not?—Yes.

4977. You knew the "Trumpet" well?—Yes, it is a very respectable house.

4978. I do not suppose that you ever were in the "Trumpet"?—I have never been in the "Trumpet" for refreshment, but I mean to say the "Trumpet" is a very respectable house of its kind.

4979. You said you avoided going to the "Trumpet"?—Because I was invited to go and see some voters there.

4980. Did you avoid going to the "Trumpet" because you knew there were a number of voters there waiting to be bought?—They might say they wanted something for voting.

4981. When I say "bought" they wanted what they would call an honorarium?—Well, they wanted something; I was asked if I would see the men, but I declined.

4982. You knew that they did want a little persuasion?—Yes.

4983. And you avoided going to the "Trumpet" at all?—I could do no good to the men, therefore I sought other voters.

4984. You had spent all your money then?—Oh no, I had not, I had plenty more. We are not short on those days.

4985. You avoided the "Trumpet" you say, and I suppose you avoided it because its character was well known in the place?—No, the house is a respectable house in its way.

4986. It may be the most respectable house in the world, and yet it may be a house of call for particular purposes?—Well, the men, of course, on days of election, congregate in small numbers, but very few at all the houses in our street; we have 20 or 30, I believe, and I might go into half a score casually, but I saw no voters in them that I remember. I should not have hesitated to have called as I went along at every house.

4987. (Mr. Biron.) You would not find them at home on the morning of the polling?—But I mean at the public houses.

4988. (Mr. Dowdeswell.) There were some public houses to which you did go?—Yes, I daresay I did.

4989. But you avoided the "Trumpet," because you knew there were a number of venal voters there?—I heard there were some voters there who required some compensation for their votes, but I declined to interfere.

4990. Who told you that there was a class of venal voters at the "Trumpet"?—I called upon some of the voters, amongst others this Craske I have told you of, and their wives referred me to to the "Trumpet." They would say "My husband is at the 'Trumpet,' "sir."

4991. How did you know they were venal voters by calling at their houses and being told they were at the "Trumpet"?—I do not know that they are venal voters until they are proved so.

4992. I thought you told me that you avoided the "Trumpet" because you knew that?—You see I was more useful for the general purposes about. It would not have answered my purpose, wishing to win the election, to have stayed myself with these men to try and turn them, or to do anything for them I was better employed. I did not mean to give them anything, and therefore it was no good my going there.

4993. Oh yes it was, only consider, you were in search of voters?—Yes.

4994. You wanted to get them up as fast as you could?—Yes.

4995. If you could get them en masse it was better than getting them in detail, was it not?—Well, dealing with them en masse would not do, because there would always be that altercation with a lot of men that you would not get anything at all, therefore it is better to take them seriatim.

4996. What was the altercation that you apprehended amongst the men at the "Trumpet"?—If they did not want a direct bribe they would want some favour; they would ask me to render them some service afterwards which I did not choose to promise.

4997. You did not go to the "Trumpet" because you knew as well as possible that if you did go there you would be wanted to bribe?—Well, I thought I should be asked to do something which I was not inclined to do.

4998. That would be to bribe?—It is not always so.

4999. Either to bribe or to treat?—I do not want to prevaricate; I want to answer your questions direct.

5000. Was it because you knew you would be asked to bribe or treat?—I am wishing to answer that question not ambiguously. I heard that certain voters were there, and that they wanted something for voting, although it might be trifling, but really I was so pressed to take other places, that I did not think it worth while to go there. You must not think me egotistical, but I am personally known to almost all the voters in the place, and I was requested to go here and there wherever I could get a vote, and I did so. I did not avoid the men, because if I could have worked the 10 or 12 men who were there by talking to them or persuading them I should have gone, but it was too late, it was between 2 and 4, and my time was better occupied. I could not have given them a bribe if I had gone there.

5001. You had heard this on the morning?—No, I did not know anything of the "Trumpet" people until towards the afternoon. I was about in different parts.

5002. What was the time that you first heard about the "Trumpet"?—When the election was turning after the dinner hour, I said to myself that the number voted was so small in proportion to the whole number that it could not be considered a majority sufficient to say the election was won. I saw a procession come out from Mr. Daynes', declaring the election was won entirely, but I said, "It is perfectly "monstrous, the men have not voted, there is no "money about, and the men will not vote until "after dinner, we shall wait and see what turns up." Then they became very zealous, and I believe voluntarily and freely for the first half-hour after dinner there was a succession of voters ready to go up to the poll, and without temptation.

5003. Except very small sums?—Which could not be considered a temptation.

5004. It could hardly be called a consideration?—No, I am not talking of that. I believe that men may take a shilling of a man who canvasses on an election, as I might give a shilling to a man, and yet with no intention of bribing, and the man does not take it as a bribe.

5005. (Mr. Biron.) Of course not, it is a mere compliment?—I mean that an election cannot be so pure as that, it cannot, indeed. It may be pure; I do not say that the law may not make it pure.

5006. (Mr. Dowdeswell.) To take, for instance, a day's wages?—Well, you know, a man very rarely checks his men who vote on that day; you do give a day's wages.

5007. They ask for it, and it is not thought any harm to give it?—The men who labour for you who have votes naturally go up and vote. If they vote your way you are not nice about it if the man lose the day.

5008. I suppose that was the general feeling among your fellow citizens?—Well, it is my feeling as regards my own men. I do not care very much whether they work that day or not.

5009. Can you tell me whether many persons were in that position?—Do you mean a number of people who are open to direct bribery?

5010. To whom a day's wages, or something of that sort, was given?—I am not aware of any; we did not discharge the men.

5011. You say it was understood?—I say it is understood by employers. These men do not go until the afternoon; they were men willing to go in the morning, but they did not go until the afternoon. I never said a word to them about going, and never asked a man to vote, and I have seven or eight.

5012. How many men were there who had that sort of allowance of part of their day's wages, or anything of that sort?—You are asking me a general question which I cannot define exactly; are you asking me of my own knowledge? If you will put the question in a specific form, I will endeavour to answer it.

5013. Take your own men, for instance?—I do do not employ many, but still four or five perhaps might go up in the afternoon.

5014. Four or five of your own men?—Yes.

5015. What do you allow them?—Nothing at all.

5016. Did they work that day?—Of course they did, they worked part of the day, they came back again; they did not leave the premises for the day they went away to vote; it is a loose day.

5017. Had they something to drink?—Oh no.

5018. Had they nothing allowed them?—Oh no, they are men very well to do.

5019. They do not want it?—No.

5020. They were above it?—Yes.

5021. But there were a good many men who were not above it, were there not?—I do not think that drink is much temptation, not actual drink.

5022. I do not say it would be temptation, but there were a good many persons, were there not, to whom these little sums were allowed?—They are treated imperceptibly by one and the other; the men do not lay out for so much drink.

5023. But it is an actual temptation growing to the right point towards 4 o'clock in the afternoon.—Well, I was asked to go into this very "Trumpet," because the men were not sitting in a closed room; these men sat on a common settle where anyone might go, the men were drinking; some were on one side and some on the other. It does not follow that because a body of men club together that the room is a club room. They sat on the common settle of this house, and as one man goes in and speaks to these men something is thrown down probably; but I do not indulge myself in that way at all.

5024. If that was the case who did go to the "Trumpet"?—I could not say who, but any individual might go in.

5025. That being so, you went into some houses besides the "Trumpet"?—I did not spend 1*s.* in a public house that day, though I called.

5026. To whom was it that you gave those shillings and sixpences, amounting in the whole to about 3*l.*?—You are quite willing to put the limit as high as you can. I should think if I spent 2*l.* in the day it was the outside. If you wish to know what I spent my cash book would show even that. I do not take money out of my business without putting it down.

5027. Will your cash book show what you spent on that day?—I should think it would.

5028. Who were the persons to whom you gave that money?—I speak now honestly. You are asking a very vague question. I put myself down as a gentleman or a person walking about on the day of the election interesting myself very much about it, and it is possible that a person might meet me in the street, and I might voluntarily give a child sixpence or a wife a shilling, or they might ask for it.

5029. They might ask for it or might not ask for it?—If they were a happy lot I should perhaps give it.

5030. Can you not tell me any of the persons to whom you gave that?—No; I assure you I walked in that way when I went with Mr. Fisher in my indiscriminate haste. It is not easy work. It is very hard work, I assure you, for any man to go round in that way and bring up slack voters who have not polled; it is a great deal of ground to cover. I called at places where the voters were out or they had voted. I know these people by seeing them constantly, and therefore I might in a friendly way give them a shilling, but nothing else.

5031. Can you tell me any of the persons to whom in a friendly way you gave a shilling or half-a-crown?—No, I could not tell you without I went into the streets perhaps; but really it is so promiscuous a thing that it is hardly worth calling for detail upon it.

5032. I am afraid it is not for you to judge. It is our duty to get it in detail, and it is your duty to give it in detail.—You put the question what did I spend. I told you 2*l.*

5033. (Mr. Biron.) Can you not give us the name of any person with whom you spent it?—Well, I could if I went into the street and asked them, but I should not notice the gift of a shilling.

5034. (Mr. Dowdeswell.) I must ask you to give us the names of the persons to whom you distributed these shillings and half-crowns?—Well, it was not done on a system.

5035. I must trouble you to give us that?—I will try and find out; all I know about it is that I spent that money in the course of the day. I merely set off, and after that I spent a sovereign or two; but that is the way I spent it, not in public houses or in treating voters.

5036. You distribute your money unsystematically?—Yes, I did not do it with any intention of bribery. I do not want you to assume a hypothetical answer or a mere random answer. I merely gave it you as you requested, off hand, and I told you I might spend a sovereign in the course of the day, and I said I spent it promiscuously, but I could not give it to you in detail.

5037–8. What sums were spent systematically, can you tell me?—The inquiry leads me to say what was spent from public report; but I know nothing of those sums except what I read in the papers. Of my own knowledge I don't know anything.

5039. Don't you know that there were sums spent systematically, even in your own ward?—Systematically? Well, if you want to know whether I am aware of so much money being given to certain voters I do not.

5040. I want to know whether you are not aware that money was systematically given to certain voters?—I understood there was venality at the "Trumpet," but I know of nothing else.

5041. Do you know of nothing else in your ward?—No; as I said before, as far as I can judge of that ward, and I ought to know it, I do not know of any case in it. I look upon the "Trumpet" affair as a loose, careless, and trivial matter, done perhaps in an indiscreet way.

5042. You do not know to whom the money was given, but you know who systematically did it?—No, I do not indeed.

5043. Have you not heard?—I know it was reported that a man named Hunt gave the money.

5044. Anybody else?—I do not think anybody else.

5045–6. Do you know Stockings?—Stockings did not give a penny; he hardly left the room at all.

5047. Stockings, the chemist, is perhaps too cautious a man. I am speaking of Stockings, the grocer.—He is a much more cautious man than the druggist.

5048. He knows how to do it better?—No; he would not do anything of the kind in my opinion. I think he is not a man to put himself out in the election at all, or to interest himself.

5049. Did he not take an active part?—He did nothing comparatively.

5050. But he did take an active part, did he not?—I daresay where Stockings called upon one voter I called upon 20. It did not matter to me who I called upon. I should go to the poorest man possible, even if I knew the man would not vote. I should not avoid him on that account.

5051. Stockings perhaps went systematically to work while you went unsystematically?—Oh, no. Are you speaking of the chairman or the grocer?

5052. The grocer.—I did not see the grocer out the whole of the day, I think, though I was out the whole of the day myself. He might be asked by his brother perhaps whether he would go and call upon some one, but he is not a man of that kind.

5053. When were you served with your summons to come here?—At 1 o'clock, and I came at once. I have never seen a person, nor yet been to any meeting, and I belong to no club.

5054. Have you seen Mr. Fisher since that?—No, I have not spoken a word to him nor yet seen him.

5055. With whom have you talked over this matter since you were served?—Not a soul.

5056. You have spoken to nobody?—The message came at 1; I went and did some business at the bank, and came on here at a quarter to 2.

5057. To whom have you been talking; because it is quite clear that you know what has passed here before you came?—I have been standing outside the door a little while.

5058. To whom have you been talking during or since the examination of Mr. Fisher?—I have not seen anyone.

5059. (Mr. Biron.) Have other people told you that Fisher had been examined?—When I came here, when I was summoned.

5060. (Mr. Dowdeswell.) Did anybody tell you what Fisher had said?—No. I had not heard anything about Fisher. I heard some one say "Fisher has been up, "and he has been talking about this affair of Crook's "Place, and so on." I said, "How silly; Mr. Fisher "knows very well there was nothing done as far as I "know except walking round Crook's Place under "pressure, making a rapid run round the place. We "were so hurried that though Sir Henry Stracey "came round in a barouche at the time I did not "speak to him."

5061. Who have you been speaking to outside?—There is a Mr. Edwards outside, I believe; I asked him his name. I walked down the hill with him, but he is a perfect stranger to me.

5062. He is a perfect stranger to you?—Yes, he is indeed. It seems to me that you have got the notion that I am wishing to cover this with a sort of darkness, but I have nothing at all to cover about it; I will tell you all; there has been no collusion with me of any sort or kind.

5063. Perfectly accidentally you have talked over this matter with Mr. Edwards?—No.

5064. Edwards talked it over with you?—No, I don't believe I should know him if I saw him again.

5065. Whoever it was, you talked over what had taken place in this court?—Well, to tell you the truth, I met Mr. Thompson, the surgeon, and Mr.

FIFTH DAY.
J. Hardy.
24 Aug. 1869.

Thompson, of Bury, who is the Mayor of Bury, at this very time. I said, "I am summoned here," and Mr. Thompson told me that Fisher had been examined, and that he had been in court during the time.

5066. Did he tell you what Fisher had said ?—No.

5067. Do you mean to say nobody told you what Fisher had said in this court ?—Nothing has been told me of what Fisher said, not in detail.

5068. Not in detail, but I put it in general.—Well, in general, nothing at all ; they thought he prevaricated.

5069. What did he tell you that Fisher had been talking about ?—Well, you sift and you sift, but you cannot get a plainer answer.

5070. Yes I can, and will.—I walked into the court. I did not get here until 10 minutes to 2.

5071. That will not put me off my question.—No, I know it will not, you will stick to it. The point you wish to know is, who has heen in communication with me for me to know of Mr. Fisher's examination.

5072. I want to know what you have been told that Fisher said in this court ?—Nothing, but that Fisher had prevaricated a little in his evidence, and that he had mentioned my name in connexion with calling upon two people in the garden.

5073. And about sending men down to the "Trumpet" ?—Yes ; I was told that, and I said I did not think he did it.

5074. And that you think now ?—Certainly.

5075. Do you recollect seeing the men in the garden ?—I beg you to understand that I do not think Mr. Fisher would do it ; he had no reason to do it.

5076. You know a man who is interested in an election has got no object except winning the election ?—Fisher was accompanying me more particularly. He kindly said, "I will accompany you, and show you "where the people live." These men, if I remember right, hailed us. I did not know them. We were passing the garden gate, and these men, I think, hailed us to go in.

5077. To go into the garden ?—Yes, it was an open garden.

5078. Did Fisher go in first ?—We went in together, of course.

5079. Do you know Smith, the fowl dealer ?—Very well.

5080. Have you ever had any conversation with him since the election day ?—Oh yes. I saw Smith outside. I know Mr. Smith very well.

5081–2. And did you happen to talk to him outside ?—Yes ; but I did not talk to him about Fisher at all.

5083. If you did not talk about Fisher, what did you talk about ?—We talked about how it was going on.

5084. If you talked about how it was going on, and Fisher was the man who had just gone out of the witness box, did you not talk about Fisher ?—No, we did not name Fisher. Mr. Smith was in company with other people.

5085. I want to know whether you talked about what had been going on in this court, and whether, Fisher having just left the witness box, you and Smith did not talk about what Fisher had said ?—Certainly not, and for this reason——

5086. I do not want the reason, I want the fact.—You may think it is very strange that I did not, but I tell you I did not. Mr. Smith is a very respectable man, and a man of property, and I talked with Mr. Smith, because I knew him to be a respectable man. I chatted with him as I would with any other person. I did not seek Mr. Smith, nor Mr. Smith me.

5087. Because Mr. Smith is a respectable man, a man who you could talk to with perfect ease, is that the reason you said nothing about what had just taken place here about Fisher ?—I do not think Fisher's name was mentioned in Smith's presence.

5088–9. You say you went into the garden ?—Yes.

5090. Did they beckon to you or did they beckon to Fisher ?—They beckoned to me, I daresay, finding I was the party canvassing.

5091. What did they say to you ?—We go into the garden, there is nothing secret ; the men tell us that they have votes, and they have not yet voted ; and one man might say to me, which many did at that place,——

5092. They might say anything, but did they say to you that they wanted money for their votes ?—I would not charge a man without knowing the fact. I did not negotiate with the men or ask them to vote.

5093. I do not suppose that, but we know the two men beckoned you into the garden. You recollect that circumstance ?—Yes.

5094. And you went into the garden not knowing them ?—Yes.

5095. They told you, you say, that they had not voted ; did they not tell you that they wanted money for their votes ?—No, the way these men would say it would be like others.

5096. Answer the question simply. Did they not speak to you respecting money for their votes ?—I could not say.

5097. May you have forgotten it ?—Of course, I have forgotten it, or else I could say it.

5098. Have you any doubt that they did speak to you about money for their votes ?—I should say, if Mr. Fisher has alluded to these men——

5099. Never mind Mr. Fisher. Did not the men speak to you about money for their votes? Do not prevaricate.—There is no prevarication in it at all, sir. You put your questions, and you want me to answer them as they fall, and I am willing to do it. You put a strong question to me, "Did you do a "specific thing on a specific occasion ?"

5100. Yes.—Now I was about the whole of the day, and you ask me, who called upon, perhaps, 200 men in the course of the day, what was the interchange between me and these two men.

5101. Do you mean to say you cannot recollect what they said at all ?—I cannot recollect the particular conversation.

5102. Then do I understand that your memory on the subject is a mere blank ?—No, I tell you I saw the men.

5103. If it is not a blank upon it, what is it ?—I recollect that I saw the men and I could not get the men to vote. I asked them to vote and then passed on to others ; whether Fisher stopped behind a little while, or whether he followed me immediately, I cannot say at the moment.

5104. Where did you go to from the garden ?—To the next voter.

5105. Do you know Walker ?—No.

5106. Did you go into the house to which the garden belonged ?—No.

5107. What was the house to which you went from the garden ?—I think I called upon a baker very near there. I said, "Have you voted ;" he said "Yes, I "have ; if you had come before——

5108. I do not want to know the conversation.—You want to know what I did to follow.

5109. I want to know where you went immediately after you had seen the men ?—I went to the next voter, and the next voter is a baker, and the baker said if you had been before I should have voted.

5110. What I want to know is this, where did you leave Fisher when you went to the baker ?—Fisher was with me at the baker's.

5111. He came to you at the baker's, but did you not leave the men with Fisher and go to the baker ? You have told me you did not know what Fisher may have said to the men?—Fisher would follow me instantaneously.

5112. Whether he remained behind with the men or not you do not recollect?—No, certainly not, he did not remain behind.

5113. Do you recollect his following you immediately afterwards, when you say that you cannot recollect what occurred with the two men?—I could not proceed without Mr. Fisher's company, he was my guide. I might pass on and Mr. Fisher might talk to the men for a moment or two, but of course Mr. Fisher would follow me directly to tell me where next to go.

5114. But you had gone to the garden without Fisher and the two men?—Yes, I suppose we did.

5115. Now, having gone into the garden from the beckoning as you say of the two men and talked to them, and they having said something to you which you do not at all recollect, do you mean to say you recollect precisely what occurred when you left them?—All I know is this, if the men declined voting I should pass on to the next man, and Fisher would follow me immediately.

5116. Have you any doubt that these men wanted money for their votes?—Well, I should not charge the men with it. If they did say to me they wanted money I should pass on and say I cannot give it to you.

5117. But did they say they wanted money, and did you then pass on?—If they said they wanted money I did pass on, for I thought they did not want money; but if a little talking would get them to vote, I should have waited, and therefore the inference is that they did want money.

5118. In consequence of your turning away sharp you think they wanted money?—I could not negotiate in that way.

5119. When they spoke to you about money you would turn away sharp?—No, I should wish the men to think better of it. I should not turn sharp away from them.

5120. Did you say anything to the men to induce them to think better of it?—I should advise the men not to think of such a thing.

5121. Did Mr. Fisher say anything to them to induce them to change their mind?—I should endeavour to persuade them to vote without any consideration.

5122. I do not ask you what you would do, but what Fisher did?—Fisher would not——

5123. As to what Fisher would do, you cannot tell.—I know Mr. Fisher very well.

5124. (Mr. Biron.) He has answered for himself?—If he has answered he did not commit himself in my presence, that is all I know about it, and he is not the kind of man to do so.

5125. (Mr. Dowdeswell.) What he did behind your back you do not know?—I can speak to this, that Mr. Fisher is not a man to do it; he might talk of doing it, but he would not do it.

5126. Then do I understand that you have got no memory at all of what passed between these two men and yourself?—Yes; if Mr. Fisher had wanted something for these men he would have asked me, and I should have told him to do nothing of the kind, we did not do it.

5127. Did he happen to consult you?—I daresay he did. Mr. Fisher might say to me these men will take this or take that, I should say "Fisher, we have "nothing to do with that."

5128. Then Fisher may have consulted with you?—Yes, he did consult me as we went along.

5129. Did Fisher consult you as to men wanting money that day?—Fisher would tell me where he knew voters that did.

5130. You say he would tell you, but did he?—Fisher is a man who knows the parish, and he may say to me there is a man who will vote if he has money, but I would not have anything to do with it.

5131. And he did nothing?—He did nothing, he did not even do as I did, spend 10*s.* or 20*s.* about the streets. Mr. Fisher did not do that.

5132. (Mr. Biron.) He is a more careful man than that?—Oh yes.

5133. (Mr. Dowdeswell.) He would not spend even 10*s.*—Oh no, he is a very careful man.

5134. (Mr. Biron.) But you would see him through the 10*s.* if he did?—No, I should not. He is very well off.

5135. But perhaps he does not like parting?—Fisher is a careful man.

5136. But supposing he did spend it?—If he did spend it he would not ask for it again.

5137. But suppose he did?—I should say if he did he would not get paid.

5138. But a man of your liberality surely would not refuse such a thing as that?—He is well off himself, and he would not do it.

5139. But I am supposing that Fisher, who does not like parting with half-sovereigns, were to do so?—Your question tended to this—

5140. Will you oblige me by answering it; supposing Mr. Fisher came to you and told you he had spent half-a-sovereign what would you do?—Then I should think Fisher would lose it.

5141. Supposing he asked you for it?—I should not give it to him.

5142. You think he ought to stand it himself?—Certainly, he is very able to do it.

5143. (Mr. Mansfield.) You say you have been active at other elections?—Yes.

5144. Did you ever hear of an election being carried at so low a price as 7*s.* 6*d.* per vote?—It is a very small sum.

5145. You know that sum has been given?—The court says so, and of course I cannot deny it.

5146. Did you happen to see Mr. Stracey on the day of the poll?—No, I saw Sir Henry, but not Mr. Stracey I think.

5147. Do you know Mr. Stracey?—Oh yes, very well indeed.

5148. When did you see him last?—Well, I have not seen him for some little time now.

5149. Have you seen him since the election?—Oh yes.

5150. And talked to him about the election?—No.

5151. Not at all?—No.

5152. You never mentioned the subject?—Not to him; although I know Mr. Edward Stracey I am more likely to talk with Mr. Henry than Mr. Edward.

5153. Are you aware whether he took any part in the election?—I do not know. Not in my part.

5154. Have you heard of him as being at the "Trumpet"?—No, I have not.

5155. Did not your friend Mr. Samuel Smith tell you something about that?—No, certainly not.

5156. You did not hear of his taking any part in the election on the day of the poll?—Smith never named that to me.

5157. Did anybody name it to you?—I know it as far as this, that Mr. Edward Stracey might be about the town, but he went with me nowhere.

5158. Did you know of his going anywhere with anybody?—No, I did not. You quite mistake it, sir.

5159. Did you not hear of it?—I do not know that I heard of it. I knew they were every night at a meeting, and Mr. Edward Stracey of course was about, but personally I have no knowledge of Mr. Edward Stracey calling upon a person. If I saw Sir Henry Stracey in the street and I said to him will you be kind enough to call upon such and such a voter, I have gone with Sir Henry Stracey to see the voter on a county election.

5160. (Mr. Biron.) You told me, I think, that you did not canvass until the day of the polling?—Very little.

5161. Did you make speeches?—No.

5162. Then they did not know how to utilize you.—Oh, yes, they did; I have made speeches before to-day, sir.

FIFTH DAY.

G. Gowing.

24 Aug. 1869.

GEORGE GOWING sworn and examined.

5163. (Mr. Biron.) Are you a farmer?—I am.

5164. In the neighbourhood of this city?—Yes.

5165. Are you a tenant of Sir Henry Stracey's?—Not now.

5166. You were?—I was.

5167. Were you at the date of the last election?—No.

5168. How long before had you been?—Five, six, or seven years; I do not know exactly how long.

5169. You have held under him for a considerable time?—A very long while indeed.

5170. And he was a very good landlord?—He was very good.

5171. When he was standing for this city at the last election did you interest yourself on his behalf?—I did on the day of the election.

5172. Did you come into the city?—Oh, yes, I was all about the city.

5173. Did you help to bring voters up to the poll?—I did.

5174. Did you come across men who wanted money for their votes?—Only one.

5175. Who was he?—I do not know, some Methodist-parson-looking old fellow.

5176. What was the price of a Methodist parson?—He wanted me to send him back to Wymondham; to pay his carriage to Wymondham and back again.

5177. Did you get him?—No, I would not have him.

5178. You would not have him at that price?—No; I would not have him at all at any price.

5179. Did he vote?—I do not know. He came into London Street, and asked me to pay his carriage backwards and forwards to Wymondham.

5180. Is that the only man?—That is the only man.

5181. Did you go into St. Stephen's at all?—I did.

5182. And Ber Street?—Yes.

5183. Did you see any voters there?—Lots of them.

5184. Did you suggest that they should vote for Stracey?—Yes; I asked everyone I saw.

5185. What did they say?—A good many voted for him.

5186. And the others?—They went their own way.

5187. They went the wrong way?—Well, that was the wrong way.

5188. Did not any of these men that you spoke to suggest that they wanted money?—No; but some of them wanted to be treated with beer.

5189. How many wanted to be treated?—I do not know, I never took no stock of them, they were such a lot of roughs.

5190. Voters?—Yes.

5191. But I suppose you treated them?—No, I did not.

5192. Why not?—Because I had something else to do.

5193. You were there to get the men up to the poll?—Yes, of my own will I was.

5194. Do you mean to say that you stood for a gallon or two of beer?—Yes, so I would for a gallon of water.

5195. You are for purity of election?—I am not particular to that.

5196. Why is it that you have such an objection to beer?—Because I thought we could win without.

5197. At 12 o'clock did you think that?—It was not at 12 o'clock.

5198. When was it?—Between 1 and 2 when I came in.

5199. You knew then that you would win?—I did.

5200. How did you know it?—Because the polling was all for Sir Henry, or the greater portion of it.

5201. But he was behind at 2 o'clock?—I do not think that was right; that was put out, but we found that out.

5202. And said so, I suppose?—It was circulated about the city, but it was a false statement on Mr. Tillett's part.

5203. But you have seen the returns since, have you not?—No; I never interested myself any further.

5204. Have you not since discovered that the returns were perfectly correct, and that Sir Henry was behind at 2 o'clock?—I never looked at them. All I know is that we won at last.

5205. We know that much, but at 2 o'clock you had not won?—No.

5206. Were you at the "Trumpet" during that day?—I was.

5207. Did you go into the market room?—Whether you call it the market room or not I do not know; it was a big room on the ground floor.

5208. Were many men there?—Yes, lots standing all round.

5209. Was Hunt there?—Yes.

5210. Was Smith, the fowl dealer, there?—Yes.

5211. In the "Trumpet" did you not hear anything about money for votes?—Not a syllable, for I was not there three minutes.

5212. Why did you go there?—Some one told me in Ber Street that there were some voters there; then I went and said that I would drive them up to the poll, and when I went there they said they were all for Stracey, and I went away.

5213. Did Smith say "It is all right"?—Oh, no, he did not speak at all; he was intoxicated.

5214. How late was it when Smith was intoxicated?—It might be 3 or 4 o'clock; but I cannot tell the time.

5215. If they were ready to vote for Stracey why did you not drive them up to the poll?—Because I had some others to drive up, and they said they would walk up.

5216. But where did you go?—Into Ber Street.

5217. Who did you bring up?—I cannot tell you.

5218. But you were sent there?—No, I went of my own free will.

5219. But you had orders from some one?—Not from a human being.

5220. But how came you to go to Ber Street of your own free will?—Because I knew a lot of voters there.

5221. If you knew a lot of voters in Ber Street you knew who you carried up?—No; there were a lot of people there, and I drove up to the "Richmond Hill" tavern; there was a lot of people standing there, and they asked me to drive them to the polling place, and I drove them.

5222. Did they not say anything about money?—Not a word.

5223. What hour was this?—It might be between 2 and 3, but I cannot tell you the hour.

5224. You were at the "Trumpet" between 2 and 3?—No, I think not until later than that.

5225. How many did you drive up?—A lot of them.

5226. What sort of a trap had you?—I had a phaeton.

5227. How many journies did you make backwards and forwards?—I cannot say how many.

5228. Who loaded you each time?—I sat in the trap, and they jumped in.

5229. Just tell me the name of the house where you stood, will you?—At Young's, the "Richmond Hill" tavern.

5230. Young is a brewer, is he not?—Yes; Peter Young.

5231. Do you know George Bunn?—No, I do not know George Bunn.

5232. Do you know any "Bunn"?—There are several Bunns about.

5233. Do you know any of them?—Well, I know several Bunns.

5234. I mean up by St. Peter's Hall?—I never saw a Bunn up there.

5235. At the "Richmond Hill" tavern?—I never saw a Bunn up there.

5236. At Peter Young's?—No, I did not see him at Peter Young's.

5237. Did you see a Bunn that day?—Which one do you mean?

5238. Before you started in Ber Street did you see a "Bunn"?—I cannot recollect whether I did or not.

5239. Who told you to go to Ber Street?—I came up that way from home.

5240. Did you go to any of the committee rooms that day?—No, I did not know where they were.

5241. You worked entirely upon your own hands?—Entirely upon my own hands.

5242. Did you go to the "White Hart" at all?—Where is that, sir? There are two or three "White "Harts."

5243. In Ber Street.—I put my horse up there.

5244. Did you see Bunn there?—Do you mean the Bunn that lives there?

5245. I am speaking of the Ber Street one?—Of course, I saw him there, because he lives there.

5246. Did he say anything to you about voters?—Not a word.

5247. Did he not suggest to you to go up to the "Richmond Hill"?—Not a word. I do not know that I saw him, I tell you. I came up to the "Richmond Hill."

5248. But you told me that you saw him, because that was the place that you put up your horse?—Will you please to listen as well as talk, sir. As I put up my horse I came up the Richmond Hill.

5249. I ask you about "Bunn." You have told me already that you saw him at the place where he lives?—Yes, I did see him.

5250. That being so, did Bunn say anything to you about bringing up voters?—Not a word.

5251. (Mr. Dowdeswell.) Do you know of any men being paid for their votes that day?—I do not.

5252. Suppose a man had said to you, "I am going "to vote for Stracey, won't you stand half-a-crown "or a shilling," you would not have hesitated about it, would you?—I do not know, I was not tried.

5253. Did no man suggest that to you?—No, I was not tried.

5254. Not for half-a-crown?—No, not for half-a-crown, nor yet for 2*d.*

5255. The electors of Norwich are so pure that they would not suggest such a thing to you?—I do not know that they are more pure or more impure than other people; there are a great many pure and a great many impure.

5256. Did not any of the impure ones say, "Will "you stand a shilling or half-a-crown?"—No, none of them asked me that.

5257. Although they did not ask you for it did you do it?—I did not do it.

5258. Will you swear that?—I have sworn here to speak the truth, and I am doing it.

5259. Do you know Randall Holmes?—Where does he live?

5260. Do you know the name of Randall Holmes?—No, I do not know the name of Randall Holmes.

5261. Do you know the name of Randall?—I have got a man working on my farm of that name that I know.

5262. Do you know a man of the name of Holmes?—I know a man of the name of Holmes, but I do not know whether it is "Randall" Holmes. There is a Holmes in the market, who keeps a public house, and there is a Holmes at Sir Samuel's office.

5263. Did you see Holmes that day?—Which one? the one that is at Sir Samuel's or the other?

5264. Did you see the man at Sir Samuel Bignold's office that day?—Really I cannot say.

5265. Will you undertake to say you did not?—I cannot say. Very likely I might see him.

5266. Did you not see him at the "Richmond "Hill"?—Very likely he was there, but I was driving backwards and forwards, and did not take any notice. I did not see whether he was or not.

5267. You cannot recollect whether he was there or not?—I am telling you the truth. I do not know whether he was there or not; very likely he was, and most likely I might speak to him, but I do not recollect.

5268. Do you know Alfred Brighty?—No.

5269. Although you may not know him by name, do you know Mr. Reed's servant?—I have seen him; he worked for me.

5270. Did he bring some of the men away from the "Richmond Hill"?—I do not know. I saw him driving about in a pony cart.

5271. With people in it besides himself?—Oh yes, people in it, but whether they were voters or not I do not know.

5272. He drove them up to the poll, I suppose?—Yes, I suppose so.

5273. Did you not see him at the "Richmond Hill"?—Most likely I did, but there was such a crowd there I did not think about any of them.

5274. Did you see Mr. Stracey at the "Richmond Hill" about 3 o'clock?—No.

5275. You did not see Mr. Stracey there at all?—I saw Sir Henry Stracey on Norwich Walk.

5276. I am speaking about Mr. Stracey?—Which one, there are several of them?

5277. Either of the young Mr. Straceys?—I should think most likely I saw them.

5278. Did you see them up at the "Richmond Hill"?—No.

5279. Why are you sure of that?—Because I think I should have recollected if I had seen them there.

5280. If you can only say you cannot recollect whether you saw them or not, why do you say you did not see them at the "Richmond Hill"?—I think I should have spoken to them if I had.

5281. Did you speak to them that day?—I cannot tell whether I did not. If I saw them on Richmond Hill, I know I pulled my horse up once or twice, and I should have spoken to them.

5282. Were you standing by your horse?—No, I was sitting behind him.

5283. Your servant was driving, was he?—No, I was driving.

5284. You were driving your conveyance, and you were sitting on the box?—Of course I was.

5285. Did you get off?—Sometimes; I got off at the "Richmond Hill."

5286. Did you go into the house?—I think I went in once.

5287. How many times did you go to the "Richmond Hill"?—I do not know, but it was a good many.

5288. Now just tell me some of the people who were at the "Richmond Hill"?—Well, there was some people out of the pea field there. I cannot recollect the names, but I know where the fellows lived.

5289. Do you know a man of the name of Charles Trumbetta?—No.

5290. Where did you take the people to from the "Richmond Hill"?—I think I took the whole of them into Ber Street, on the left-hand side.

5291. Did you leave anything at the "Richmond Hill"?—Not that I am aware of. I never left it with my own free will if I did.

5292. You never left a parcel that you are aware of there of your own free will?—No.

5293. May you by accident have left a parcel not

FIFTH DAY.

G. Gowing.

24 Aug. 1869.

of your own free will?—I do not think I had a parcel to leave.

5294. Are you sure you did not leave a parcel there?—I am sure I did not, for I had no parcel in the phaeton.

5295. I thought you said you only think you did not?—I have now said, "I am sure," because I can recollect that I had no parcel.

5296. Did you not take anything to the "Richmond Hill" tavern?—Not that I am aware of; nothing.

5297. Then you may have taken something and not have been aware of it?—No, I did not take anything there.

5298. Then why did you say, "Not that I am "aware of"?—Because I wanted to recollect myself. You ask questions so quick, that I want to recollect.

5299. Then your recollection is so weak that you want to refresh it upon such a point as that?—It is a long while ago.

5300. You did not take any parcel there that you are aware of, that is the answer you give?—I can swear I did not take a parcel there.

5301. Or anything of any sort or kind?—Nothing of any sort or kind.

5302. Did you happen to leave some money there?—No; I had no reason to leave any there.

5303. Well, but did you?—I did not.

5304. Are you quite certain about that?—I have sworn, and I am speaking the truth. I did not.

5305. Supposing other people have said you did?—Then they have told lies, that is all about it.

5306. (Mr. Mansfield.) Have you ever taken part in any other elections at Norwich?—No.

5307. What made you take part in this?—Because I liked Sir Henry Stracey.

5308. Did anybody ask you?—No.

5309. Then, without anybody asking you, did you start with your phaeton?—I started about noon-time, and did all I could for him, because he is a good man.

5310. You cannot recollect the names of those persons that you took up to the poll?—I cannot recollect the names of them.

5311. You have never seen them before?—Oh, yes, I should know them if I saw them, but I do not know their names.

5312. Were none of them voters you knew that you went to look after?—I never looked after them. They jumped up into the phaeton, and they had hardly time to speak before they were at their destination.

5313. You do not know any of the men that you carried?—I forget them now.

5314. (Mr. Dowdeswell.) Do you know Morgan, the brewer?—I will be dashed if I recollect whether I do or not. There was a crowd there, and he might be there.

5315. Who was managing the crowd?—I do not think anyone in particular.

5316. Was there anybody in general then managing it?—No, I think not. There were a large number of people assembled there apparently of their own free will. They kept going to the first place, and I carried them to the second.

5317. Was there anybody there that you knew?—Where?

5318. At the "Richmond Hill."—No, I only saw Tillett drive up. I did not see anyone else.

5319. Did you not see anybody there that you knew?—Of course, there were a great many people there.

5320. Remember you are upon your oath?—I do not want you to tell me that. I know I am on my oath.

5321. Do you mean to say that you did not know anybody that you saw there?—There might be a lot of people, I never took no notice. I can recollect one person that I saw there, Mr. Kitton.

5322. Besides Mr. Kitton who did you see?—I saw the landlord. If I were to stand here for half an hour, I do not think I could recollect them now.

5323. Morgan, the brewer?—I do not know whether I saw him.

5324. Did you not see Morgan, the brewer, go through into the back yard?—No, I do not think I did; in fact I am sure I did not. Not to go through, because I should have been sure to have observed him as I sat in the phaeton.

5325. Did you see him come out of the house?—He might come out and I never see him.

5326. Oh yes, he might of course, but did you not see him go through that house into the back yard, and shortly afterwards return?—I did not.

5327. What money did you spend that day?—Oh, I do not know. I did not spend any money about elcctioneering.

5328. What money did you spend?—I spent it about myself, what I did spend.

5329. How much was it?—I cannot tell.

5330. Was it so much that you cannot tell?—Well, it was not much, because I cannot afford to spend much.

5331. How much?—I do not think any man could answer such a question as that.

5332. A sovereign or two sovereigns?—I do not know, I never took stock.

5333. Might it have been five sovereigns?—No, it was not so much as that I know, I cannot afford it.

5334. Will you swear that you did not spend two or three sovereigns?—I am on my oath, and I say I did not.

5335. How much did you spend?—A few shillings. I stood my share of some champagne.

5336. Do you swear that you did not spend more than a few shillings?—I do swear it.

5337. Did you spend any money at the "Richmond Hill" tavern?—Yes, I think I had some soda and brandy when I got off the phaeton.

5338. Did you pay for that?—Yes.

5339. Did you pay for anything else?—No.

5340. Did you give the landlord anything?—No, I did not even give the landlord anything.

5341. Nor anybody else?—No, nor anybody else.

A. Clayton.

ALEXANDER CLAYTON sworn and examined.

5342. (Mr. Biron.) Were you at the "Trumpet" on the morning of the polling day?—I was there about dinner time.

5343. Do you remember Hunt offering 5l. for the lot?—No.

5344. Do you remember him offering 5l.?—No.

5345. Do you remember Hunt offering anything?—Hunt offered me three half-crowns, but I did not accept them.

5346. You would not accept that?—No.

5347. What did you say?—I told him I wanted a sovereign.

5348. Did any of the others say the same?—I am sure I cannot say what they said.

5349. You were there, and do you not recollect what any of the other men said?—I do not know what any of the others said whatever.

5350. You said you wanted a sovereign?—Yes.

5351. What did he say to that?—He said he should not give it.

5352. What did you do?—I immediately went and voted for Mr. Stracey without money at all.

5353. What hour did you vote for Stracey?—As near as I can guess it would be 3 o'clock, or a little after.

5354. You wanted money to vote that day?—Yes; and I should have taken it if it had been sufficient. If it had been a pound I should have taken it.

5355. But as they would not give you a sovereign you voted for nothing?—They offered me three half-crowns, and I would not accept it.

5356. But 7*s.* 6*d.* was better than nothing?—Well, I had been hawking fish, and I would not take it at all.

5357. It was a matter of honour with you not to take less than a sovereign?—I would not take 7*s.* 6*d.*

5358. Have you had anything since?—No.

5359. How long were you at the "Trumpet" that day?—About an hour and a half.

5360. Did you drink any beer?—Yes.

5361. Did you pay for it?—Yes.

5362. How much did you drink there?—Two or three pints.

5363. How much did that come to in money?—It was 2*d.* a pint, and I suppose I spent 6*d.* or 8*d.* I had been in the morning hawking fish.

5364. Who went with you to vote?—Mr. Shields, the tallow chandler, went up to the polling place with me.

5365. You voted along with him?—He had voted, I suppose, but I walked up to the polling place with Mr. Shields.

5366. Did he give you anything?—No, he never offered me anything.

5367. Are you a new voter?—Yes.

5068. You never voted before this last election?—Never in my life.

5369. Did you see any of the men paid?—I did not see anybody take any money whatever.

5370. Did you see any other men who were paid for voting at this election?—I do not know nobody that had any money at all. I know I was offered it, but I did not receive it. What other people got I do not know anything about.

William Andrews sworn and examined.

W. Andrews.

5371. (Mr. Dowdeswell.) What are you by business?—A horse trainer.

5372. Where do you live?—Westlegate Street, close by All Saints Green.

5373. Were you a voter at the last election?—Yes.

5374. Had you been a voter before?—No.

5375. For whom did you vote?—I voted for Russell and Stracey.

5376. What time did you vote?—I think it was about the dinner hour; about 1 or 2 o'clock. I cannot say exactly the time.

5377. Did anybody offer you money to vote?—No.

5378. Do you know of anybody receiving money to vote?—I don't remember anybody; I have heard things talked about in the city that there was money going about, but I never experienced it myself.

5379. You yourself never received any money for voting?—I never in my life received a shilling or a sixpence, and I have never voted for 36 years, although I have had a vote before this time.

5380. Were you canvassed?—Yes, by both parties at different times; so I have been at every other election.

5381. Did you promise your vote?—I did not; I promised the gentlemen I should not vote. I never did vote. I did not like to vote on account of the election interfering in different matters in my trade. What would please one person would displease another.

5382. You would not promise at all?—I would not promise at all.

5383. But on the day you went and voted?—On the day I went and voted. Sir Henry Stracey called on me with Mr. Patteson and asked me to vote for him; I said I would rather not vote as I had employers on both sides.

5384. Then how came you to vote?—I said I liked one as well as the other, and I would vote for Russell as well as Sir Henry, and if I did vote at all I should vote so.

John Greengrass sworn and examined.

J. Greengrass.

5385. (Mr. Mansfield.) What are you by trade?—A coach wheeler.

5386. You are a voter, are you not?—Yes.

5387. Who did you vote for at the last election?—Sir Henry Stracey.

5388. What time of the day?—At half-past 2, as near as I can tell, after I went back from dinner.

5389. Had you been canvassed?—No.

5390. Were you on the day of the election at the "Trumpet"?—I called in after I had had my dinner to get a glass of ale, amd the landlady waited upon me, and I gave her three-halfpence for it.

5391. What time was that?—About 2.

5392. Was Smith, the fowl dealer, there?—Smith was in the house.

5393. Was Hunt there?—He might be, but I did not see him.

5394. Did you talk to Smith?—I do not remember speaking to Smith at all.

5395. In what part of the house were you?—I was in the bar.

5396. Were you in the bar the whole time?—No.

5397. Where else did you go?—I walked into another room to look for a match to light my pipe with.

5398. Who did you find in the other room?—I did not stop two minutes.

5399. Did you see Cracknell?—I do not remember seeing him.

5400. Were there not a great number of people on the settle round the market room?—There were a great many people in the house.

5401. What were they talking about?—I do not remember hearing anything of what they were talking about.

5402. You heard something said about voting, I suppose?—I do not remember hearing anything about voting.

5403. You heard something said about 5*s.* per vote, did you not?—I never heard it.

5404. Or about 7*s.* 6*d.*?—I never heard anything about money at all.

5405. Who did you go to the poll with?—I went by myself.

5406. You left the "Trumpet" by yourself?—Yes.

5407. Did you come back to the "Trumpet" after voting?—No; I never returned to the house no more that day. I went to work.

5408. What made you vote so late?—That was on my way home.

5409. Had you been at work during the day?—Yes, I worked up to dinner time, 1 o'clock.

5410. Had you been to any other public house besides the "Trumpet"?—I went into the house opposite my shop to get a glass of ale, as I mostly do.

5411. How long were you in the "Trumpet"?—As near as I can tell a quarter of an hour.

5412. Did you see Callow there?—I don't remember seeing him; he is a man I do not know.

5413. Gilbert?—I did not see Gilbert.

5414. Or Bygrave?—I do not know him.

5415. Do you know Robert Fuller?—I know Robert Fuller, but I do not remember seeing him there.

5416. Who began to talk to you about money stirring?—I never heard anything about money.

5417. We have proof that all sorts of things were said about money at that particular time?—I never heard a word about money nor yet about beer.

FIFTH DAY.

J. Greengrass.

24 Aug. 1869.

5418. Did you go upstairs?—No.

5419. Did you have any conservation with Smith, the fowl dealer, before you went to the poll?—No, I never saw him previous, and I never spoke to him.

5420. Who did you speak to while you were at this place?—I was not in the house a quarter of an hour.

5421. You did not remain silent that quarter of an hour; who did you talk to?—I cannot remember. I might have talked to different people, but I cannot remember who was in the house.

5422. Who were those people that you were talking with?—All I had to talk with was the landlady.

5423. What were you talking about?—Nothing about the election.

5424. Do you say you heard nobody talking about the election?—They might be talking about the election, but I was not interested in it at all.

5425. What were they saying about the election?—I cannot say.

5426. Did you hear anything about the poll?—I don't remember hearing anything about it.

5427. Did your hear that Stracey was polling up a bit?—I never heard Stracey's name mentioned.

5428. You knew at that time that Stracey was behind?—I did not know that he was behind. I never made any inquiries about it.

5429. Who had you promised your vote to?—I do not remember promising anyone.

5430. Who had asked you to vote?—I was asked whether I had voted.

5431. But before the day of the poll, had you not been asked to vote?—I do not remember anyone asking me to vote.

5432. What made you go and vote for Stracey if you say you were not asked to vote and did not know how the polling was going on?—I thought in my own mind as we had not had a Conservative for Norwich for many years we would just try one, so I thought I would vote for Stracey.

5433. Had you ever voted at an election before?—No.

J. Daynes.

JOSEPH DAYNES sworn and examined.

5434. (Mr. Biron.) What are you?—A cooper.

5435. Did you vote at the last election?—Yes.

5436. For whom?—Stracey.

5437. Had you been canvassed before the day of polling?—Well, that I do not know exactly, I did not understand much about electioneering.

5438. Had anybody asked you for your vote?—Not any one.

5439. Did anybody ask you to go and vote that morning?—One gentleman did.

5440. Who was it?—He is a chemist in our street.

5441. Mr. Stockings?—No, it is close by the watchmaker's below the bottom of St. Stephen's.

5442. Mr. Thompson?—That is the man.

5443. What time did he come to you?—It might be 9 o'clock as near as I can guess, but I have nothing to do with him. I voted according to my own principle.

5444. What did he say to you?—He said "Are "you going to vote?" I said "Yes;" he said "Who "do you think about voting for?" I said "I think "proper to vote for Sir Henry Stracey;" and nothing was given and nothing sought.

5445. You went and voted?—I went and voted.

5446. After you had voted did you go round the city at all?—I went to work at my employer's.

5447. Do you know any men who have had money for voting?—No.

5448. None of your mates?—No; not so much as a glass of beer did I receive that day.

5449. I am not talking about yourself, but did you hear that any other man had had anything for voting?—No, not any.

5450. Did you hear afterwards that any had had anything for voting?—No, not any.

H. Hubbard.

HENRY HUBBARD sworn and examined.

5451. (Mr. Dowdeswell.) Are you a voter?—Yes.

5452. Have you had a vote before the last election?—No.

5453. Did you vote?—I did not.

5454. How came you not to vote?—I was at work.

5455. The polling place was close to you?—Yes, close by.

5456. Were you at work all day?—Yes.

5457. How was it that you did not go up and vote?—I did not know anything about voting.

5458. Was it because you did not get a day's pay?—I don't know sir, I did not vote; that is all I know.

5459. Was it because you did not get paid?—No, that was not the reason.

5460. You took no interest in the matter at all?—No, not at all.

5461. Did anybody come and ask you to poll?—Yes.

5462. Who?—There were several gentlemen. I do not know who they were.

5463. Don't you know any one of them?—Mr. Thompson, the chemist, was one.

5464. Who else?—I think Stevens, the ironmonger.

5465. Who else?—I do not know.

5466. When those people came and asked you to vote what reason did you give for not voting?—I told them I worked for both parties and I might by obliging some disoblige others.

5467. Was that the reason why you abstained from voting?—Yes, that is the reason.

5468. Did you hear of anybody taking money for voting?—No.

5469. Have you heard anybody say they had taken money?—No, I have not heard anything about it.

5470. Or that anybody paid money?—No, I have not heard anything about the election.

W. Hudson.

WILLIAM HUDSON sworn and examined.

5471. (Mr. Mansfield.) Who did you vote for?—Tillett and Russell.

5472. Who asked you for your vote?—No one.

5473. Was any money offered to you?—None at all.

5474. Did you hear of money being offered to anybody else?—None at all.

5475. Were you at any of the public houses during that day?—No, none at all.

J. Manning.

JOSEPH MANNING sworn and examined.

5476. (Mr. Biron.) Did you vote at the last election?—Yes.

5477. For whom?—Stracey.

5478. Had you voted at other elections?—Never.

5479. Had you been canvassed for your vote?—I believe there was one or two gentlemen called, but I was not at home.

5480. You did not see them?—No; one evening when I went home Mr. Thompson, the chemist, was there, and I said, "It is all right, Mr. Thompson; I "am sure to vote for Mr. Stracey, because my father's "principle, and my grandfather's before him, was "the same as mine, and I shall vote for Mr. "Stracey."

5481. Nobody gave you any money for voting?—Not a farthing.

JOHN MASON sworn and examined.

5482. (Mr. Dowdeswell.) Were you a voter at the last election?—Yes.

5483. For whom did you vote?—Sir William Russell.

5484. At what time of the day did you vote?—About 3 in the afternoon.

5485. How came you to vote so late?—I thought that was quite time enough for me to leave my seat to lose time, and I thought I had better work up as long as I could to 3, and then go and vote, and then I took a walk round the city to look about; that was my only reason.

5486. Were you canvassed?—Yes.

5487. Who canvassed you?—A man by the name of Calver, a saddle maker, and Mr. Thompson, the chemist.

5488. Did you promise your vote?—I told him I should promise no one. I had made up my mind to vote for Russell.

5489. Then you did tell them for whom you would vote?—I did not tell them who I would vote for.

5490. Then why, having made up your mind that you would vote for Sir William Russell, and being asked for your vote, did you hesitate to say you were going to vote for Sir William Russell?—I was asked to vote for the Tories, and I made up my mind to vote for Sir William Russell.

5491. Then why did not you say so?—I did not intend to let them know which way I should vote.

5492. Why did you not do so?—Because I did not think proper to do so.

5493. Why did you not think proper?—I have no reason for it farther than that I would not let people know my business.

5494. Did you want something for your day's wages?—No, I intended to vote independently.

5495. Did anybody come to you for your vote that morning?—No, not that morning at all.

5496. Did anybody come to you that day?—No.

5497. But did anybody come to you about voting that day?—No, not anyone.

5498. Nobody came and pressed you to go to the poll?—No one did, and I had no one at my house that day, only my own family.

5499. You voted of your own accord; are you sure of that?—I did so.

5500. Nobody offered you any money?—Nobody.

5501. And you asked no one for any money?—I did not.

HENRY WARD sworn and examined.

5502. (Mr. Mansfield.) Who did you vote for at this election?—Russell and Tillett.

5403. Have you ever heard of there being any corrupt practices at this election?—Only through the papers.

5504. Was any offer made to you by any person?—None.

Adjourned to to-morrow at half-past 10.

SIXTH DAY.

Wednesday, 25th August 1869.

BENJAMIN SAMUEL sworn and examined.

5505. (Mr. Dowdeswell.) Are you a voter?—Yes.

5506. What are you by business?—A wholesale boot and shoe manufacturer.

5507. Did you vote at the last election?—Yes.

5508. For whom did you vote?—For Russell and Tillett.

5509. Had you been canvassed?—I hardly think I had.

5510. Had you not been asked for your vote before?—No; I should hardly call it a regular canvass.

5511. Did you volunteer, then?—Yes; in fact I was not asked for my vote. I hardly required to be asked.

5512. I suppose you received no money, or promise of money, for your vote?—No. I am inclined to think they would hardly do that with me. I am inclined to think they would not offer me any cash.

5513. And you did not receive any, I suppose?—No.

5514. Do you know of anybody having received, paid, or promised to pay money?—Well, I think that there was a good deal of money afloat, but particularly I do not know of any bribes having been given.

5515. You heard that as a general report?—Yes.

5516. Can you mention anybody specifically?—No, I had rather not do so; at least I could not do it. I had a general idea that there was a good deal of cash afloat, but I did not see anything of the kind.

5517. Did you hear where it was afloat?—From the general observance I took of the matter during the time of the election I should imagine that there was cash floating about, but with regard to where it went I am sure I could not say.

5518. But at what particular places?—That I could not say, nor could I mention any particular men.

5519. You can give me no names?—I can give you no names.

JAMES HARDY recalled and further examined.

5520. (Mr. Dowdeswell.) Give me your cash book of that day?—(Producing a book, and handing it to the Commissioners.) I do not keep the cash; my clerk enters it.

5521. But is the cash you have in your pocket entered in your book?—Yes.

5522. When cash is put into your pocket how is it entered?—The cash must balance. "J. H." is put down 2*l.*, or whatever the sum is, that I might draw in the week; that is the whole week; the cash must balance. I do not keep the cash myself; it is kept by my clerk, and I could not take money without its being entered. He could not balance his book if I did.

SIXTH DAY.
J. Hardy.

5523. This book shows the balance of the week, does it?—The balance that is shown at the bottom must be accounted for; it is accounted for in small figures at the side. The clerk debits me, you will see, with 2*l.*; that is the money drawn during the week. I had no other money. I spent money for cabs. I wish to be quite clear upon it. You observe that there is a cash balance of 56*l.*; that must be shown on the other side, and you will see how it is accounted for. You will see it in small writing at the bottom.

5524. I see here "J. H., 37*l.* 19*s.*"?—Yes, that is what I hold in my cash book; it is the true way of keeping a cash book. I can only explain it in that way; that is how he accounts for the 56*l.*; that I have in hand at the close of the week 36*l.* odd. The money received in the trade of course goes through the trade ledger, and, therefore, if any money came into my hands privately I should have to account for it. I must account for the 37*l.*, and the other clerks must account for theirs. I might draw a pound or two during the week; it was during the week that I spent it.

5525. Have you no private memorandum, showing how you disposed of the 37*l.*?—No; that is the cash in hand on the Saturday night. The thing is quite plain to an accountant.

5526. How is the money entered that goes into your pocket?—It is entered "J. H., 2*l.*," you will find, and you will find the same kind of entry in previous weeks. If I take a sovereign I put it down; the account could not be kept by a third party without doing it in that way.

5527. The 19th was the following day, was it not?—Yes. I should give a clerk a ticket perhaps for 10*s.* in silver. I might say to the clerk give me 5*s.* or 10*s.*, and then, of course, he would take a ticket from me, and put me down at the end of the week 2*l.*, or whatever the amount was.

5528. You might have the money in your pocket, might you not, of which your clerk might make no entry?—I could not have money that I did not draw.

5529. But the money might go into your pocket, and you might give a ticket for it before it was entered in this book?—No, I should not do that.

5530. Would you give a ticket for it before you got the money?—No.

5531. What would you do with regard to a ticket?—I should give the clerk the ticket to put into his box.

5532. That would be when you took the money?—Yes, but the clerk would not put it down till the end of the week.

5533. (Mr. Biron.) You seem determined not to understand what you are asked; you give him a ticket when he gives you the money?—Yes.

5534. And he makes the books up afterwards?—On the Saturday night; the tickets are kept in the cash book till the Saturday night, when he charges me with what money I have had; he did that at the end of the week.

5535. (Mr. Dowdeswell.) I see here "P.B.C.;" what does that mean?—That means the Provincial Banking Corporation.

5536. They are the bankers, are they?—Yes, they are the bankers.

5537. But if you drew the cheque on your bankers it would not appear here?—Yes; it appears there to whom it was paid on the other side.

5538. I see, for instance, here is "Ready money, "21*l.* 9*s.*"?—Yes, that is kept by the young man distinct from me.

5539. Have you got your banker's book here?—No, I have not got it here now.

5540. Did you not draw any cheques during this week?—All those are cheques that are marked "B. C." You can have the banking book if you wish it.

5541. Here is "B. C." 100*l.*, what is that?—That is the National Bank of England, I think.

5542. You drew a cheque for that 100*l.*?—No, I discounted it.

5543. What did you do with it?—You see it is received into the bulk of the cash.

5544. That went into this cash book?—Yes.

5545. And it is accounted for, leaving a balance of 56*l.* 11*s.* 3*d.*?—Yes.

5546. But all the money that went into your pocket would not appear in this cash book?—It must indeed. I could only draw pocket money from the cashier.

5547. Would there not be any other source from which you would get money besides the cashier?—Certainly not; I never drew any.

5548. Then do you mean to say that 2*l.* is the whole sum you received during that week?—Yes, during that week.

5549. Do you know the Blanchflowers?—No.

5550. Do you know the Browes'?—No, I do not.

5551. Did you see the Browes' on that day?—I do not know them.

5552. Did you speak to them and ask them whether they had voted?—I do not know them; I really do not know the men, and I had not heard the name before.

5553. The father and son living near the "Trumpet"?—No, I do not know them.

5554. You have been active in former elections, have you not?—Yes.

5555. Did you know a person of the name of Wilde?—Yes.

5556. He is dead now?—Yes; the elder gentleman is dead.

5557. Wilde was the person entrusted with money to spend, was he not?—It was reported so.

5558. And you believe he was, do you not?—I believe so. I do not know. I could not speak to the fact.

5559. But you believe he was entrusted with money to spend?—Well, it is so currently reported, that I believe Mr. Wilde has been the agent for elections, not on my side of the question.

5560. I am quite aware of that, he was trusted with money on the other side?—Well, I could not speak to it. I believe it is so reported.

5561. He was an extremely active man in the conduct of elections?—He conducted them professionally, as far as business went; he made it a professional business entirely to conduct elections.

5562. Did you take any measures to get him passive on the election day?—At Sir Samuel Bignold's election I did.

5563. I am speaking of the former election, did you take measures to keep him quiet on the election day?—I did, at least Mr. Wilde did this. Mr. Wilde was not retained for the other side, and Mr. Wilde said that he thought, unless a compromise was made, the probability would be that there would be venality, and that he thought it would be better if one and one could be elected. So I called on Mr. Wilde to ask him if he could act with Sir Samuel Bignold, and he said he could not, but that he should not act on the other side.

5564. Did you not (to use a common expression) square Mr. Wilde?—Well.

5565. I must give you credit for it, it was very well done; you thought he wanted a gag?—No, it was not that. The same thing was to have been done at the last election fought by the Duke of Wellington, who was at that time Marquis of Douro. Mr. Wilde was very fair about it, he thought the Marquis ought to remain as a member. I suggested to Mr. Wilde at that very time that it would be good policy that he should act so that there should be a compromise at that election. Mr. Wilde said he thought he could manage it, and the thing was virtually managed, but unforeseen circumstances occurred which prevented it from being carried out. At the following election Sir Samuel Bignold became a candidate, and I then made overtures to Mr. Wilde, and said "Now is the "time Mr. Wilde for you to do what was wished "should be done before, to return one and one, and "to neutralise the venality in the place," and Mr. Wilde did not act for Mr. Hammond, and his not acting for him prevented venality, and I say now, knowing the fact, that not one shilling was spent at that election by Sir Samuel Bignold.

5566. Then Mr. Wilde was kept quiet?—Mr. Wilde was kept quiet.

5567. Did you pay Mr. Wilde anything for that?—Mr. Wilde had nothing at the time; he had his retainer, and that is all that Mr. Wilde had. He had his usual retainer, like other gentlemen engaged professionally, of 100 guineas; that was paid, but Mr. Wilde took nothing more.

5568. One hundred guineas for doing nothing?—For doing nothing? Of course, you say I squared him.

5569. Did you happen to pay in addition to that 100*l.*, 300*l.* to Mr. Wilde?—I did not 5570. Do you know that it was paid?—Only myself would pay it. I paid him, and I could have verified that yesterday, but I have not got the paper in my pocket just now.

5571. Did you not pay him any further sum besides the 100*l.*?—No, not to Mr. Wilde; he was not satisfied, of course.

5572. Did you pay him that 100*l.* for Sir Samuel Bignold?—Yes; Sir Samuel Bignold gave me a cheque.

5573. Are you sure it was not more than 100*l.*?—No; I have a duplicate cheque at home by which I could verify it.

5574. I may have to ask you something about the Blanchflowers when they are here. Perhaps you know a man who keeps the oyster shop at the top of the hill?—No, I do not. I had not interfered or done anything in electioneering for some time past, and therefore I did not know these men. I did formerly know all the men in the place, I daresay. I know the oyster stall.

5575. It was not there, perhaps; you may have seen him near the "Trumpet"?—No; my beat was not at the "Trumpet," nor near it, all the day; I was further afield. I spent money in cabs and calling on voters. I knew the people pretty well, and I was thought a useful person for the day; prior to that I had not interfered.

JOHN CHURCHYARD sworn and examined. J. Churchyard.

5576. (Mr. Mansfield.) What are you by trade?—A baker.

5577. For whom did you vote at the last election?—Sir Henry Stracey.

5578. What time in the day?—Between 8 and 9 in the morning.

5579. And what became of you after that?—After I had voted I waited about to see the first state of the poll.

5580. And what did you do after that?—After that I walked up St. Stephen's, and going home I was called into the "Trumpet."

5581. What was going on in the "Trumpet"?—They were clubbing for drink when I went in.

5582. Did you drink with them?—Yes.

5583–4. What did you find going on there?—I heard some of them say they should not vote unless they got money.

5585. Who was there?—Smith, Warren, and Taylor, and several others.

5586. Which Smith was that?—George Smith and William Smith; they were all there.

5587. Was the fowl dealer there?—I did not see him.

5588. Was Hunt there?—I saw him.

5589. The two Fullers?—I saw one Fuller.

5590. Which of them?—Robert.

5591. Were either of the Browes there?—I did not see them.

5592. Was anything said about money?—No, not a word.

5593. Who did you talk to at the "Trumpet"?—I talked with Hunt, and so I did with Fuller, the landlord, and others who were there. When I went in they were drinking together. He said, "Come, "we are customers of yours," and they asked me to be half a gallon, as they were clubbing round a penny apiece. I consented to it.

5594. What did you say after that?—I do not remember saying anything after that till I went down the city again, and got another state of the poll, and then I came back to the "Trumpet," and there were all the same parties there, but I saw Mr. Stracey and Mr. Patteson in the committee room.

5595. Which Mr. Stracey?—The old gentleman.

5596. Anybody else?—There were several in the room; Mr. Stevens was there.

5597. Did you see young Mr. Stracey?—No.

5598. Do you know him?—Yes.

5599. Are you sure he was not there?—He was not there during my stay.

5600. After Sir Henry Stracey had left what happened?—Some more beer came in.

5601. Nobody paid for that?—I did not see any paid for after that.

5602. Did you see anybody go upstairs after that?—No; I was at home at 2 o'clock.

5603. That was the time when you heard something about money going, was it not?—No, I was not there.

5604. How long did you stop there?—I was at home and in bed by 2 o'clock, as I had been up pretty nearly all the night before.

5605. Did you go to bed in the middle of the day then?—Yes; I generally do when I have to get up early. I generally lie down, perhaps, for two or three hours in the afternoon. Cracknell went up the street with me when I went home to lie down. He went out of the "Trumpet" with me home.

5606. Did Cracknell tell you anything about th election?—No.

5607. You know what he had been doing?—I do now.

5608. And you knew then, did you not?—No, I did not.

5609. Do you really mean to say that you did not know what was going on in that house?—I knew there was beer drinking, but I did not know that any money was given till the next day morning, and then I was told of it.

5610. That you swear, do you?—Yes.

5611. Did you hear of any money going at this election?—No, not anywhere.

5612. Did anybody offer you any money?—No. I was a member of the Conservative Society. There was to be a meeting at half-past 7, I believe, and I was asked to go, and I went, but I heard nothing about any money.

5613. Was any money promised?—No.

5614. (Mr. Dowdeswell.) Who asked you to go there?—The Society.

5615–6. Do you recollect Sir Henry Stracey leaving the "Trumpet"?—I do, the first of his coming up.

5617. Do you recollect Smith, the fowl dealer, coming in and saying something about 5*l.*?—No; I was not there.

5618. Do you mean to say that Smith, the fowl dealer, did not say in your presence something about 5*l.*?—Not a word.

5619. Was it not said in your presence that Smith

SIXTH DAY.

J. Churchyard.

had made an offer of 5*l.*, or an offer of some money?—No, I did not see Smith in the house.

5620. Had Hunt?—I saw Hunt.

5621. And did Hunt, in your presence, make an offer of 5*l.*?—No.

5622. Did Hunt say nothing about money in your presence?—No.

5623. Or in your hearing?—I was in the market room. I was in no other room.

5624. Did not the people object to take the money that was offered to them?—I did not hear it.

5625. Did you say, "If you will wait I can get "you more"?—No, I did not.

5626. Are you sure you did not say anything of the sort?—I was not asked about money.

5627. I do not say you were, but did you not say, "If you will wait I think I can get you more"?—No.

5628. Do you know the "Two Necked Swan"?—Yes, in St. Stephen's.

5629. Did you go there that afternoon?—No.

5630. Not at all?—Not at all. I went there the first thing in the morning and saw Mr. Stockings there, and he said, "Have you voted." I said, "Yes."

5631. Are you speaking now of Mr. Stockings, the chemist, or Mr. Stockings, the grocer?—The chemist. He asked me first the state of the poll; that was before I went into the "Trumpet."

5632. After you had been in the "Trumpet" did you go and see Mr. Stockings?—No, I went down to the fourth ward committee room.

5633. Did you go back to the "Trumpet" after that?—Yes, as I came home, and told them the state of the poll.

5634. Who did you see in the fourth ward committee room?—Mr. Stracey, Mr. Patteson, and several other gentlemen, and Mr. Stevens was there; they were all there.

5635. And then you went back to the "Trumpet"?—Yes.

5636. How long did you stay in the fourth ward committee room?—Not five minutes.

5637. During those five minutes what passed between you and any of those gentlemen?—I spoke to Mr. Patteson.

5638. What did you say to him?—I said there were several voters at the "Trumpet," and I thought that if he would go and speak to them, as they were willing men, all Conservatives, I was sure they would go.

5639. Did you not tell him they wanted money?—No.

5640. Are you sure you did not tell him that they wanted money?—I am certain of it.

5641. You knew that they did want money?—I knew that was what they were lingering about for.

5642. Did you only speak to Mr. Patteson?—Yes. I did speak to Mr. Stevens. I asked him the state of the poll.

5643. Did you ask him nothing more?—Nothing more than that.

5644. Then you went back to the "Trumpet"?—Yes; and before I got there Mr. Patteson was there and Mr. Stracey.

5645. When you got back did you say that you had made it all right?—No.

5646. Do be careful?—I am. I said Mr. Patteson and Mr. Stracey was now coming in when I went into the room.

5647. You say you had told Mr. Patteson that they were wanting money?—I told him I believed they were wanting money.

5648. When you went into the "Trumpet" who did you see?—They were all there drinking.

5649. What did you say to them?—I said, "Why "do not you go and vote as I have done?"

5650. But did you tell them you had made it all right?—No; I never said no such a word as that.

5651. Did you tell them to keep quiet?—I told them not to kick up too much row.

5652. Did you say they were coming?—I said Mr. Stracey and Mr. Patteson were just at the door.

5653. What time in the day was this?—It was near dinner time.

5654. Did you see Mr. Patteson and Sir Henry Stracey at the door?—I saw them come up; the carriage stopped at St. George's, and they got out and walked from there to the "Trumpet."

5655. Were you there when Sir Henry Stracey came?—Yes, he came into the room, and they asked him for some beer, and he said he dare not give any, but he hoped they would all go and vote like men, and then he left the room.

5656. How long did you remain after he left?—A very short time indeed.

5657. How came you to say that they were coming; did they tell you they were coming down?—They rode before me; they said they would come up to the "Trumpet."

5658. Who said that?—Mr. Patteson and Mr. Stracey both.

5659. You did not speak to Sir Henry Stracey, I suppose?—No, I did not.

5660. Mr. Patteson communicated with Sir Henry Stracey after you had spoken to him?—Yes, and then after I got into the street the carriage drove past me.

G. Barnes.

GEORGE BARNES sworn and examined.

5661. (Mr. Biron.) Were you at the "Trumpet" on the morning of the polling day?—Yes.

5662. About what time?—I was there all day; I lodge there.

5663. About what time did you get down to the market room?—About 10 or 11.

5664. There were then a good many men there, were there not?—Yes, several.

5665. Voters?—Yes.

5666. And did you stay there drinking?—Yes.

5667. Until the afternoon?—Yes.

5668. Were you in the room when Sir Henry Stracey came in?—Well, I believe I saw him come in; I do not know that I was in the room, I might be on the steps.

5669. You were about the place at all events?—Yes.

5670. After he had left, did you go back into the market room?—Yes.

5671. Do you remember Hunt saying anything?—No.

5672. Do you not remember his saying anything about money?—No.

5673. Do you remember his offering 5*l.*?—No; I was not in the room at the time; I think he did say so.

5674. Did you go back afterwards?—Yes.

5675. Did you hear Smith say he would make it up 7*s.* 6*d.* apiece?—No, I did not.

5676. Did you hear either of them say so?—No.

5677. Did anybody say there was 7*s.* 6*d.* apiece?—I did not hear anybody say anything about it at all.

5678. Did not you object to 7*s.* 6*d.*?—I did object to it at the time, but of course I did not hear them say anything about making it up.

5679. To whom did you object?—Hunt.

5680. You did object to Hunt to 7*s.* 6*d.*?—Yes; but still I took it after all.

5681. Where did you take it?—In the market room.

5682. What time in the day was it?—That was late in the afternoon.

5683. Towards 2 or 3?—No; I had voted beforehand; I had voted before I took it.

5684. At what time in the day did you vote?—Between 3 and 4.

5685. Had you heard before you voted that there was 7*s.* 6*d.* going?—I heard some of them talk of it, but I did not hear Hunt say much about it; the men were talking about it.

5686. Then I understand you went and voted, and came back?—Yes.

5687. And got your 7*s.* 6*d.*?—Yes.

5688. Who paid you?—Hunt.

5689. Did anybody else go and vote with you?—I saw Smith; he did not go out with me, but I saw him in the street, and he went with me to the poll,—Henry Smith.

5690. Did he go back to the "Trumpet" afterwards?—I cannot say. I was rather full in drink, and cannot say.

5691. Did anybody go back with you?—Yes; I believe Cracknell went back with me.

5692. Did you see anybody else paid?—No.

5693. Not in the market room?—No.

5694. Who was in the market room?—I believe Cracknell was there, and I think Wright was there. I do not know whether Callow was there. I could not swear who was there.

5695. Had they voted, do you know?—Cracknell had voted; I do not know whether the others had or not.

5696. When you got back and were paid did you ask Hunt for the 7*s.* 6*d.*?—No; he throwed it down on the table and I took it up.

5697. How came he to give it to you?—I do not know; he served me the same as the others, I suppose. He threw it on the table and I took it up and was very thankful for it.

5698. Did he say "Have you voted?"—No.

5699. Did you say you had voted?—I might say so but he did not ask me.

5700. You said you had voted for Stracey?—Yes.

5701. And then he threw you down three half-crowns?—Yes; I believe anybody might have had money; he seemed full of drink and was throwing his money about.

WILLIAM FLAT sworn and examined. W. Flat.

5702. (Mr. Mansfield.) Where do you live?—At the corner of Coburgh Street, St. Stephen's.

5703. Close to the "Trumpet"?—Yes.

5704. You are not a voter?—No.

5705. Were you about there during the day of the poll?—Yes, I live close by.

5706. Did you go into the "Trumpet"?—No.

5707. Not once during the day?—No.

5708. But you were about there all day, were you not?—I was close by because I live there.

5709. Were you much in the streets?—No.

5710. But you were sometimes?—Yes.

5711. Did you see Sir Henry Stracey there?—Yes.

5712. At what time was that?—I should think near 2 o'clock.

5713. That is as near as you can recollect, is it?—I think it is.

5714. Did you see Hunt, the fowl dealer, speak to Sir Henry Stracey?—Yes.

5715. Did you hear all that passed?—Yes, I know exactly what passed.

5716. What was it?—I stood by my shop door and heard a lot of hallooing; that was what took me to the "Trumpet" corner, and in a few minutes Sir Henry Stracey came out of the "Trumpet" and got into his carriage, and he began to address the people and said "Westminster has won and so has Norwich." Hunt went to his carriage and said "We have 40 "to vote for you," and he said "Bravo my fine fel- "low do you head them to the poll."

5717. Did you see anything more of Hunt?—No; as soon as Mr. Stracey drove away I left.

5718. Did you see anything of Smith, the fowl dealer?—No; I saw Hunt of course speak to Mr. Stracey, but I did not see him afterwards.

5719. Did you see young Mr. Strcey that day?—I do not know him.

5720. Or Mr. Patteson?—I do not know; I saw a gentleman with Sir Henry Stracey, but who that gentleman was I cannot say.

5721. Did you hear anything about money being offered that day?—No.

5722. Not a word?—No.

5723. Not at the "Trumpet"?—I heard nothing about it, only street talk after the election was over, and I took no notice of it particular.

5724. You did not know that anything was up at that moment?—No, I did not hear that anything was going on inside the "Trumpet."

5725. I suppose you knew that the men who were there were likely sort of men for a thing of the sort?—I do not know that. I am saying too much now for my benefit, I assure you. Of course everybody who is subpœnaed up here are my neighbours, and they are the people who were at the "Trumpet" that day, and so of course they have not dealt with me since.

5726. (Mr. Dowdeswell.) Did you not hear it talked about in your neighbourhood that money was going on at the "Trumpet"?—After the election was over.

5727. How soon after the election was over?—I think the same evening.

5728. Who were talking about it?—Lots of people, neighbours.

5729. Can you recollect anyone in particular?—No.

5730. Did you hear the names mentioned of any people who had been doing it?—No.

5731. Did they not say who had been there spending money?—I never heard that.

5732. Did you not hear who had got the money?—No more than by report.

5733. But that evening did you hear who had got the money?—No.

5734. Was there a pretty considerable crowd round the "Trumpet" when you were there?—Yes, a great many.

HENRY SMITH sworn and examined. H. Smith.

5735. (Mr. Biron.) What are you?—Well, I took my freedom up as a bricklayer, but I do not follow that now.

5736. Did you vote at the last election?—I did.

5737. For whom did you vote?—For Mr. Stracey.

5738. At what hour?—Between 3 and 4 o'clock.

5739. Were you at the "Trumpet" in the early part of the polling day?—I went to the "Trumpet" between 11 and 12.

5740. How long did you stay there?—Well, I stayed there till dinner time, and then went home, and got a piece of victuals, and went back again.

5741. When you got back again did you see Sir Henry Stracey there?—I saw him come in.

5742. After he had left do you remember Hunt offering anything to the men who were there?—I do not.

5743. Did you hear Hunt offer the 5*l.*?—No.

5744. Did you hear Smith say he would be a pound out of his own pocket and make it 7*s.* 6*d.*?—Nothing of the kind.

5745. How long did you stay there?—Till between 3 and 4, and then I went and voted, and went home.

5746. Had anybody said anything to you about money for voting?—Nobody.

5747. Was nothing said by Hunt or by Smith in your hearing about money?—No, not to anybody.

5748. Did Callow say anything about money for voting?—No.

5749. You saw him there?—I saw him there.

SIXTH DAY.

H. Smith.

25 Aug. 1869.

5750. After dinner what room in the "Trumpet" were you in?—In the room joining the Trumpet Lane.

5751. Is that the market room?—I suppose they call it so.

5752. And did you stay in that room from the time Sir Henry Stracey left it until you went out to vote?—Yes.

5753. Do you mean to say that you heard nothing during that time about the money being given for votes?—I did not.

5754. Did you hear anybody count the number of men?—I heard them making a count of how many there were, but I do not know how many there were.

5755. You heard them count 16, did you not?—I cannot say the number.

5756. Who counted them?—I do not know who it was.

5757. Hearing them count, did you not hear something follow upon that?—No.

5758. Did you not hear Smith say "Well, I will "be one pound out of my own pocket, and that will "be 7*s.* 6*d.* apiece for you"?—No, I did not.

5759. Was Clayton there?—I do not know him.

5760. Do you remember a man being there, and saying that that was not enough, and that he would not vote for 7*s.* 6*d.*?—I never heard it.

5761. Did you hear the sum of 7*s.* 6*d.* mentioned?—No.

5762. Did you hear any sum of money mentioned?—No.

5763. What were you doing?—Drinking.

5764. Were you drunk?—Rather.

5765. After you had voted, did you go back to the "Trumpet"?—I did not.

5766. Did you see Hunt again that day?—No.

5767. Did you see Smith, the fowl dealer?—No.

5768. Do you really mean to tell me that you heard nothing in the "Trumpet" about money for voting?—No.

5769. You heard the men counted?—Yes, I heard the counting how many there were there.

5770. What did they do that for?—That I do not know.

5771. You really do not carry in your mind anything that happened that afternoon?—No, I do not.

5772. Do you know whether you voted?—Yes, I did.

5773. Who went to the poll with you?—I started off and voted, and I believe that a man named Barnes and John Cracknell overtook me.

5774. Did you all go and vote together?—They followed me to vote, and I suppose they voted. I voted, and then returned home.

5775. Did not they come back with you?—Not all the way.

5776. Did you go back with them?—No.

5777. How far did they accompany you back?—Through the Market.

5778. Where did you leave them?—Somewhere against Rampant Horse Street; some of them live near there.

5779. Did Barnes say that he was going back to get his money?—I do not know. I left him, bid him good evening, and went home.

5780. Did you not hear anything about money going at the "Trumpet"?—No, I did not. I never saw the colour of money.

5781. You were rather sorry?—Yes, that I was, that is a fact.

5782. You let the three half-crowns slip?—I never heard of them.

J. Browes.

JOHN BROWES recalled and further examined.

5783. (Mr. Dowdeswell.) You are sworn, you know, and the oath which you have already taken is obligatory upon you now. Do you mean to persist in saying that you did not say anything to your father respecting having half a sovereign?—I never did. I declare before God and man that I never did. Why should I say so, because my father had no vote.

5784. Yes, your father had a vote?—Had he? then it is unbeknown to me.

5785. You adhere to that statement, do you?—Yes.

5786. You saw Mr. Fisher and Mr. Hardy that day?—Yes.

5787. Where?—Right opposite the "Rose," in St. Stephen's.

5788. What did either of them say to you?—Mr. Hardy says to me, "Have you voted?" I says, "No." Then he says, "Are you going to vote?" "Yes," says I, "when I think I will." Then I says, "Are you going to stand a glass of ale?" And he said, "I dare not." That is the words the man had with me.

5789. Is that all the conversation?—Yes, that is all the conversation that I and Mr. Hardy had.

5790. Did you go and vote?—I voted about half an hour after that; that was about 3 o'clock.

5791. After that you went to the "Trumpet," did you not?—No, that was before; it was about 20 minutes after 2 when I went into the "Trumpet."

5792. Did Mr. Fisher speak to you?—Well, they were both together.

5793. But did Mr. Fisher speak to you?—No, not otherwise than saying, "Are you going to vote?" I said, "No, I am not for a minute or two." Mr. Fisher said no more to me than Mr. Hardy did.

5794. Did he say the same thing as was said by Mr. Hardy?—Yes.

5795. Precisely the same?—He asked me if I was going to vote, and I said I should go and vote when I thought right.

5796. Did you propose to Mr. Fisher that he should give you some beer?—No, they were both together. I asked Mr. Hardy if he would stand a glass of beer, and he said, "No, I dare not."

5797. You say you went out of the "Trumpet" with your son into the street?—That was at 20 minutes past 2.

5798. And then you saw your father?—No, I saw my father when I went home to dinner.

5799. You have said that you saw your father near to the pastrycook's?—No, my father did; I said no.

5800. Do you mean to say that you did not see your father near the pastrycook's?—No, I did not.

5801. Did your son go home with you?—No, my son never went home along with me. My son and I went to the "Bee Hive" before I went and voted.

5802. Now listen to this: "You say you saw your "father after you left the 'Trumpet'"?—No, I told you that I saw my father at home at dinner.

5803. I am going to read your answer. "Oh, yes, "he lives next door to me." "Did you say anything "to him about voting?"—"I never did. I did not "know that he had a vote, and do not now. I went "and voted according to my own opinion." Now listen, if you please, to what I am reading to you. "Have you got a brother?"—"I have a son." "Was "your son with you and your father?"—"My son "and I were together." "Did your son say to your "father you can have half a sovereign for voting?"—"No, I should say not." "You should say not, but "did he?"—"I cannot say whether he did or not." "You and your father and your son were drinking "together?"—"We were not together, not in the "street. When I went home, I found my father at "home. My father I knew had no vote, so how "could he have half a sovereign?" "Never mind "that, did your son say to him that he could have "half a sovereign?"—"That I do not know." When did you see your father that afternoon?—I saw my father a little before 2 o'clock, when I went home to dinner.

5804. After your dinner, did you go to the "Trumpet"?—About 20 minutes after 2, and had a pint of ale along with my son.

5805. Where did you go after you left the "Trumpet"?—I came across and went into Salter's for a glass of ale, because I like that beer best; it is better.

5806. Then you went direct across with your son?—Yes.

5807. Did you pass the pastrycook's in going to Salter's?—No.

5808. Not at all?—No.

5809. Then did you ask your son to go to Salter's?—When we came out of the "Trumpet"?

5810. Immediately?—Yes.

5811. Who paid for the beer in the "Trumpet"?—I did, because my son had no money.

5812. How came you to go into the "Trumpet" when you say you liked Salter's beer the best?—I thought I might hear some news there, but I heard none.

5813. How came you to go in there?—I go in there very often in the course of a week.

5814. How came you, liking Salter's beer the best, to go into the other house?—I had been in different houses that day.

5815. You thought you would hear some news there?—Yes.

5816. News about what?—About the election, but I never heard none, for I was not in above ten minutes.

5817. Did you hear some news about the election?—No, I never saw neither Smith nor yet Fuller. Mrs. Fuller drawed me a pint of ale.

5818. You went in there for the purpose of getting news; you did not go anywhere to hear it, but you sat there to drink a pint of beer?—That is all I did. I sat in front of the bar.

5819. Going in there for news, you never heard a single word of news, and never made any inquiry?—No, I did not.

5820. Where did you go when you left Salter's?—I went down the street.

5821. Where to?—I stopped right opposite the "Rose," and Mr. Hardy came up to me and said, "Have you voted?" I said, "No, I will vote when "I think I will."

5822. How long did you remain in Salter's?—I might remain there half an hour.

5823. Were you not as likely to hear news at Salter's as you would be in the "Trumpet"?—No, I do not think I was, according to what people have talked of since.

5824. You thought that the "Trumpet" was a better place for getting information than Salter's?—Yes, I should think so.

2825. And yet when you went into the "Trumpet" you spoke to nobody, and heard no news at all?—No, that I did not; I never heard a word.

5826. Going in there for news, you got no news, and then went away. You knew, I suppose, that there was a market room, did you not?—I never went into it. I know there is a bagatelle room, but I never went into that.

5827. But you could see all the people who were there?—No, I could not, not when I was there.

5828. Did you not see people passing in and out?—No, there were none passing in and out when I was there.

5829. Was nobody there when you were there?—No; I cannot say that there might not be one in front of the bar.

5830. Do you mean that there was not a considerable number of people there when you were there?—No; I never went no further than the bar.

5831. You sitting where you did at the bar would see the people coming in, would you not?—There was no people passing at the time I was there, I can assure you.

5832. When did you see your father again?—I do not know that I saw him that night any more after I had seen him at dinner time.

5833. Did not you and your son see him together?—No, my son never saw him that day.

5834. Is it true that you or your son again saw the old man that day?—I say I do not believe that my son saw him that day at all.

5835. What became of your son?—My son went into Crook's Place, I believe, after the election was over.

5836. Is that the place where you live?—No. I do not know where he went to after he had left me; he went up that way to go to Crook's Place.

5837. Do you not recollect seeing your father again after you left the "Trumpet" that afternoon?—No.

5838. Will you undertake to say that you did not?—I did not.

5839. Will you swear that you never saw him?—I will swear that I never saw that man in St. Stephen's all that day after I saw him at home at dinner.

5840. (Mr. Biron.) When you saw Mr. Hardy, what time in the afternoon was it?—About 3.

5841. When he asked you to vote you asked him if he would stand a glass?—Yes; and he said he dare not.

5842. If he had stood it you would have gone and voted at once, would you not?—I should have drunk it.

5843. You said you went to the "Trumpet" thinking you might hear some news there?—Yes.

5844. That is, news as to the way in which the election was going?—Yes; there was the state of the poll there more than there was at Salter's.

5845. Did you not mean that there was likely to be more news there as to whether money was going or not?—No.

5846. Supposing you had been offered 7*s.* 6*d.*, would you have taken it?—No, I should not; my mind was made up the first thing in the morning as to which way I should vote.

5847. Then why did you wander about the city all day before you voted?—To please my own fancy.

5848. (Mr. Dowdeswell.) This is a matter which stands upon oath between your father and yourself?—My father must be childish.

5849. I can only express my opinion, that confirmed as that old man is by the evidence of Mr. Marston, I have no doubt that his statement is true?—I have no doubt Mr. Marston has been leading him to this.

5850. I have no doubt you have not told the truth?—I have told the truth, and nothing but the truth.

5851. (Mr. Biron.) We do not think so?—I know I have.

MATHEW BANE STOCKINGS sworn and examined.

M. B. Stockings.

5852. (Mr. Dowdeswell.) Are you a grocer?—Yes.

5853. Are you a voter in this city?—Yes.

5854. Is this the first election at which you had a vote?—This is the first.

5855. You took a very active part in this election we hear?—On the election day.

5856. And before?—No.

5857. No part?—I think I met with Mr. Fisher at one or two places on the afternoon before. I am not sure whether it was that afternoon or the election morning.

5858. Had you done nothing in the way of canvassing?—No; I merely went up into the committee room that afternoon, and Mr. Fisher was going out; they said, "Here is Mr. Stockings, he will go with "you perhaps," and I went with Mr. Fisher I believe that afternoon, and then went home to my shop directly after I came back.

5859. Had you taken no part in the election on the afternoon of the day before the election?—No, none at all.

SIXTH DAY.
M. B. Stockings.
25 Aug. 1869.

5860. Who were the people you saw at the committee room?—Well, there were some people there that I did not know.

5861. Tell us the names of those you do know?—There was a clerk of Mr. Stockings, the ward manager, and Mr. Fisher I believe was there; I believe they were the only men in the room. That was the reason I went with Mr. Fisher I think, because I was the only man in the room that could go.

5862. How often did you go out that afternoon?—I was simply up in the committee room, and Mr. Stockings asked me if I would go with Mr. Fisher up the back street I think, and I went to the back street, and returned to the committee room when I came back. I might have gone up to the committee room once or twice in the day.

5863. You say you might, but did you?—I have no doubt I went up several times, but I took no part in it.

5864. Had you not been up to the committee room several times before you went on the afternoon of that day?—I did not go to the committee room and take any part whatever; I merely went up into the room, and the clerk and Mr. Stockings were writing there.

5865. If you were taking no part whatever in the election, why did you go up in the committee room at all?—I really do not know.

5866. You say you may have gone into the committee room on the morning of that day?—Yes.

5867. How many times in the course of that day may you have gone into the committee room?—I might have gone once or twice or I might go more.

5868. Did you not go once or twice or more in the course of that day?—I might.

5869. But that is no answer to the question?—I took no active part in it.

5870. I do not care about that. Did you go into the committee room that day?—I went in that day.

5871. Before the evening?—I am not sure that I did.

5872. But are you sure that you did not?—No.

5873. Do you mean to say you know so little about your own movements on that day that you cannot tell whether you were in the committee room or not?—I cannot swear whether I might go up, but I can swear I did not go up and take any part in the election.

5874. Do you mean to say that you do not believe that you went up into that committee room earlier in the day than you went upon the occasion you referred to?—Yes, I think I might go up once or twice.

5875. Did you not do so?—I cannot say that I did. I was attending to my business, but I might possibly go up. I cannot say whether I did or not, but I did not go up to take any part in the election whatever.

5876. Do you not recollect going up there and seeing some persons in the committee room on the morning of that day or in the course of that day besides Mr. Fisher and Mr. Stockings?—I do not remember it.

5877. Is your memory a blank upon that question?—I took no particular notice of it.

5878. But did you not take any particular notice on going in of anybody that you knew?—Only the time I now state, when Mr. Stockings asked me to go with Mr. Fisher.

5879. If you may have gone into the committee room on that day, can you have gone into the committee room almost every day for a week before?—No.

5880. Will you undertake to say you did not go into the committee room several days before?—I believe I went in, but not every day.

5881. When did the committee first begin?—I do not know at all.

5882. When did you go first to the committee room?—I cannot say.

5883. Do you not recollect that you went to the committee room several days and upon several occasions before the election?—I have no doubt I went up several times; I have no doubt of it at all.

5884. Now who did you see in the committee room upon those days?—Well, Mr. Stockings and the clerk were there.

5885. Anybody else?—I may have seen some other men out of the parish there, but I cannot say whom.

5886. Now having been in the committee room upon the evening of the election day, and having been asked by Mr. Fisher to go with him, where did you go to?—We were in the back street, I believe—St. Stephen's back street.

5887. And did you canvass people there?—We went to only about three persons I think.

5888. Did you find that your name had been put upon the committee as a member of the committee?—Oh no, it was not on at all.

5889. Now having canvassed these people on the day before, did you on the morning of the election proceed to get up voters?—I went up to get voters, but did not go to these persons.

5890. What time in the morning did you begin?—Well, I was in the polling place in St. Stephen's at first in the polling booth in the early part of the morning.

5891. What were you doing there?—Merely standing in the polling booth. Mr. Stockings asked me, I believe, to go and see whether the check clerk, or whatever you might call him, could get on, and to come back and tell him.

5892. Then you had been to the committee room before you went to the polling booth?—Yes, I believe I went up.

5893. Who did you see in the committee room before you went to the polling booth?—I think Mr. Dunnett and Mr. Stockings were there, and the clerk might be there—I mean Mr. Stockings' clerk.

5894. Did you seen anybody else there?—Not that I remember.

5895. Then you went up to get voters?—I did not go directly.

5896. What time did you begin to get up voters?—It might be 9 or 10 o'clock.

5897. Of course it might be, but was it about that time?—Yes, I daresay it would be between 9 and 10.

5898. With whom did you go?—Well, there was Mr. Hardy there; Mr. Norgate, junior, was the man I went about with principally that day.

5899. Where did you go to?—We went up into Crook's Place.

5900. How many voters did you get up?—I did not bring any voters up in the morning; not from Crook's Place the first time we went.

5901. That implies that you did in the afternoon?—Yes, we got several voters in the afternoon.

5902. Is Crook's Place a low locality?—No, I should not call it a low locality.

5903. When I say low—is it inhabited by a poor class of people?—Well, I should say they are a respectable labouring class that live in Crook's Place.

5904. They are labourers, are they?—Mostly.

5905. How was it that you could not get these people to vote in the early part of the day?—I do not know that we went to a house at all. When we first went into Crook's Place there were others there taking a more active part. I did not know any of the names. I had not had a canvass book in my hand, and I went with the rest to see what I could do.

5906. Young Mr. Norgate had taken a very active part in the canvassing of your ward, had he not?—Not that I know of, he might do.

5907. However, he was then taking a very active part?—On that day, yes.

5908. Did you get up any voters there?—Not then, I believe. I think coming back we went to an old gentleman of the name of Gibson, and I believe

I went into his stable. I knew the man and tried to persuade him to vote, but he would not.

5909. I will not trouble you further about that old man; where did you go after that?—We went to the committee room.

5910. I am not speaking of the committee room, but where did you go to get up voters?—Well, I have no doubt we went up into Crook's Place again, or the back of St. Stephen's.

5911. Did you try to get up voters?—Yes; the time I was there I did.

5912. Had you not a difficulty in getting them up?—Yes; in the morning they were rather reluctant.

5913. Did they want to be persuaded to come up and vote?—Well, we did persuade them to come on, or we tried to persuade them at any rate.

5914. Did many of them tell you that they wanted their day's wages, or that they wanted some money, or something of that kind?—No.

5915. What none?—There were not any that I remembered. I should say not one, and I think I could swear that not one asked.

5916. Why were they reluctant to come up then and vote?—That I cannot say. I could not force the men to come. I asked them and tried to persuade them, but they refused to come.

5917. They must have assigned some reason for it?—Not that I know of; they did not.

5918. Did you not press them for a reason why they did not go up and vote?—No.

5919. But you did find that they were likely to vote?—Yes.

5920. Did you find that reluctance continued until a little after 2 o'clock?—No; I do not know that I went up in particular after that. I think I remained in the committee room, and went about to several places where Mr. Stockings asked me to go, but not after voters in particular.

5921. You went after voters in general?—This took up some part of my time in the morning; one cabman had lost his card belonging to another ward.

5922. You know well enough that is not what I am inquiring of you, and it is a mere waste of words?—I was showing you where my time was mostly spent.

5923. I am speaking to you about persuading voters to vote. You did find that they were reluctant to come up, did you not?—Yes; in the morning.

5924. If you put the morning upon me, I suppose you did not find them so reluctant in the afternoon?—Well, some men that I went to in the afternoon came up. I went to this man Gibson again, and he said he should not vote, but I found afterwards he had voted, and an hour or two back, although he said he should not vote, I heard afterwards.

5925. Did not that man assign as a reason for not voting, that he wanted to be paid something for his vote?—No, he did not; I am sure of that.

5926. Do people tell such falsehoods in Norwich if they have got no object in it?—I cannot say, I did not ask the man his object.

5927. But when you asked him to come and vote, did he not assign some reason for not coming up?—No.

5928. And you did not press him for any reason?—I did try to persuade him to come by fair and honourable means.

5929. Did you report in the committee room that you found people reluctant to come up and vote?—No, I do not know that I did.

5930. Will you undertake to say that you did not?—I think I might swear that I did not say they were reluctant to come up.

5931. When you found people reluctant to vote and you went to the committee room, did you make any report upon it?—No; I did not go myself but very little, and I was not the chief man among them.

5932. Whether you were the chief man or not, every man would tell you upon the election day who takes an interest in the election what he is doing?—Yes.

5933. And inform his colleagues who are acting with him what he thinks about the matter in which he is concerned?—Yes.

5934. You were trying to get up voters, now do you mean to say that you did not tell your colleagues in the room that you found them reluctant to vote?—No, I believe I did not.

5935. Is your mind a blank upon it?—I could not swear that I did not say those words; it is just possible I might, but as far as my memory serves me I believe I did not say so.

5936. I do not put the words to you; I am putting to you the substance?—I do not think I named anything about their being reluctant to come up at all.

5937. Did you not say you could not get them up?—No, I do not know that I said so.

5938. But do you know that you did not?—No; if I knew that I did not I should say so.

5939. What do you think you did?—I do not think I took any particular notice of it at all, not when I went to the committee room; other men went out with me, they were leading men.

5940. That is part of the morning; now towards the afternoon you say you found you could persuade people to come up, when did you find that, about what o'clock?—Well, I did not take any particular notice; I did not take many voters to the poll, not above three, four, or five, I cannot say exactly.

5941. But you did persuade some people to come up in the afternoon?—Yes, I did. I took one man to the poll.

5942. Did you persuade a single man to come up before 1 o'clock?—No, but some of the men I had been to I found had voted; they had voted afterwards.

5943. Did you go into the committee room about 1 o'clock?—No, I believe I was home to dinner then.

5944-5. Were you there shortly before 1?—I have no doubt that I was there.

5946. Was it said in the room that your party were in difficulties with the election?—No. I believe the chief talk before I went to dinner was about the false statement the other side had put out.

5947. Yes, but in addition to the false statement which the other side had put out, it being the fact that you were really in a minority, was it not the talk how the minority could be met?—No.

5948. Was there no talk about you being in difficulties?—Well, I knew that we were behind.

5949. Did you consult with your colleagues as to what should be done in that emergency?—Not at all.

5950. Did you talk to nobody about it?—No.

5951. You went home to your dinner at 2 o'clock?—1 o'clock, I believe, was about the time, but I cannot say to half an hour.

5952. What time did you return?—I should think it would be getting on for 3 o'clock. My young man had to go to dinner as well as myself.

5953. When was it that you went down to the "Trumpet"?—I did not go at all. I believe I went into the "Trumpet" the afternoon before, but I am not sure, with Mr. Fisher, to ask where a party lived; but I merely stepped into the bar, I did not go a yard into the bar, and that I believe is the only time in my life that I was in the "Trumpet."

5954. Very probably I should think, but it did so happen that you stepped into the "Trumpet" on this occasion?—To ask where some one lived.

5955. Who did you see in the "Trumpet"?—I believe it was Mrs. Fuller. I do not know Mrs. Fuller, but there was some lady serving in the bar.

5956. What time of the day was it that you found yourself in the "Trumpet"?—I believe that was when I went out with Mr. Fisher in the afternoon when I went up to the committee room when we were going round to the back street.

SIXTH DAY.
M. B. Stockings.
25 Aug. 1869.

5957. Would that be about half-past 2 or 3?—This was the day before the election that we went to the "Trumpet."

5958. I am speaking now of the day of the election?—I did not go to the "Trumpet" at all that day.

5959. How many men did you take up to the poll altogether in the afternoon of that day?—Well, I do not know that I took up above one or two to the poll. I went up with one man to the poll that came up to the committee room believing that was the place to vote; and Mr. Stockings, the ward manager, asked me to go and show these men where the poll was.

5960. After you returned from your dinner how many men did you persuade to go and vote?—Well, I do not think I took up above one man besides that.

5961. You may not have taken them up, and yet you may have persuaded them?—Well, I don't think I took up above four or five altogether.

5962. You only took up one man besides the one who went from the committee room?—I believe I only took one more to the poll.

5963. Did you happen to take that man from the "Trumpet," or from a place close to the "Trumpet?"—I did not go into the "Trumpet;" I do not know where it was that I took him from, whether he was near the committee room, or where, I do not know. I believe the other man I took was near the committee room outside in the street; there were several people standing about outside the committee room.

5964. Loitering about?—Yes, several people; I should think there were four, five, or six of them.

5965. Then, finding people loitering about, how came you to take them up to the poll?—I took one man up to the poll, I believe, or persuaded him to go from St. Stephen's Street.

5966. Had you ever known the man before?—No, and I should not know him again.

5967. You picked him up casually in the street?—There were several outside talking in the street, and, I believe, I went up to them and spoke to them, and one man I took to vote.

5968. Did he ask you for anything to drink?—No.

5969. Now what passed between you and that man before you took him up to the poll?—I was merely trying to persuade him to vote for Stracey.

5970. How did you know he was a voter, never having seen him before?—He had his card.

5971. But how did you know that he had not voted?—That I could not say, I don't know; I took the man's word for it.

5972. You saw a man with a card and you immediately go up and ask him to go to the poll. I suppose you said something to him, or he said something to you?—I persuaded him to go and vote.

5973. How did the conversation about the persuasion begin?—That I cannot say; I cannot remember the words I used.

5974. Cannot you recollect what occurred in the way of persuasion?—No, but I have no doubt it was no more than I said to other voters.

5975. There were a good many persons loitering about withholding their votes altogether?—I do not know of any great quantity.

5976. There were several?—I have heard since there were, but I did not know it on that day.

5977. You saw men with cards about?—I saw that man with a card.

5978. You said there were several others?—Several others.

5979. Did they not say that they wanted something to drink, or some money?—They did not, and if they did I should not have taken notice of it, but I do not think they could; I could almost swear they did not.

5980. That they wanted something to drink, or that they wanted some wages, or something of the kind?—No.

5981. What did they say?—I do not know; I did not stop very long.

5982. You talked to this man, and persuaded him to vote; you do not persuade a man who is loitering in the street, whose name you do not know, simply by looking at him?—No.

5983. You say they might have said they wanted something to drink, or some money, and that being your idea that they might have said that, what did occur between you and this man?—I cannot say exactly what occurred.

5984. Have you entirely forgotten what occurred?—No, I have not forgotten, so far as I know, but there was nothing dishonourable occurred in any way.

5985. I do not impute it to you that you did that which you believed to be dishonourable, but what did pass between you and that man?—I believe myself the man was then going up to vote, and I had very little talk with him. I believe I walked up to the polling place with him, and left him.

5986. If the man was then going up to the poll there would be no necessity for you to go with him whatever?—I went up with him to see that he did vote.

5987. I want to know what passed between you and that man, which induced you to go up with him to the poll?—I asked him whether he was going to vote, and I know that I did not stop scarcely a second with the man; he walked away, and I went with him to the poll.

5988. You say that he might have asked you for something to drink?—It is just possible, but I should not take the slightest notice of it, therefore it would not be impressed on my memory. I should not have taken the slightest notice of it, for I should not have given a farthing to any one voter to vote for one side or the other. If a man would have gone and voted for Stracey for a glass of ale I should not have given it to him, and he might go and vote for the other side.

5989. Do you mean to say that you did not give, or promise to give, anything to any man to vote that day?—No, sir, I swear it.

5990. Did you provide any money, or hand over any money for that purpose to anybody else?—No, I should be very sorry to.

5991. Are you aware of money having been provided?—I have heard since, and that is all I know about it, but I did not know that day.

5992. From whom have you heard it since?—Well, it has been common talk, and I have heard it, may be, from 20 or it may be 50 people.

5993. But I mean at that very time did you not hear it from anyone in particular?—I did not know it on that day. I believed that Sir Henry Stracey had got in, and that it was a pure election so far as his side was concerned. That was my belief. I was not in all the wards, and it was the case, I believe, in our ward. If there was anything else I did not hear of it.

5994. (Mr. Mansfield.) You are a Norwich man, are you not?—No; Blofield is my native place.

5995. You have been living here all your life?—No, I have been out of the city four years. I was apprenticed in the city, in St. Stephen's Street, and I went out of the city about four years, and I have been in it now six years, I suppose.

5996. You know pretty well how elections have been carried here before, I suppose?—No, I know nothing about them.

5997. You never heard anything about it?—I never took any interest in it at all.

5998. (Mr. Biron.) You told my friend that some of the men you went to early in the morning asked you for money?—Not in the early or latter part.

5999. Not at all?—Not at all.

6000. But a man may give you a very good idea of what he wants without asking?—No one gave me any idea.

6001. Did you not see that there were men there that only wanted a little money to go and vote at once?—No.

6002. Now really, Mr. Stockings, do you mean to say that?—I believe as I was passing through Crook's Place once in the afternoon some man stood at a public house,—I don't know the sign of the house, but a man of the name of Gibson keeps it,—and I heard someone say that they wanted 5*s.* a vote there, but I passed them and took no notice of them.

6003. Do not misapprehend me. I am not imputing that you went to bribe anyone, or that you would condescend to do it, but you might meet men during the course of the day, and might ask them for their votes?—Yes.

6004. You heard that you say?—Yes; I believe I heard someone talking about it as I was passing, but I took no notice of it.

6005. I am quite taking it that you would not bribe them, and that you had no idea of bribing?—I certainly should not.

6006. I am taking it so, but in the instance you have referred to, and other instances, was it not perfectly clear to you, as a man of the world, that if these men had half-a-sovereign apiece they would have gone and voted?—I should not have tried them.

6007. I do not say you would. You went there to get the election won by honourable means?—By honourable means.

6008. But as a man of the world going about the city did you not have the impression that you could have brought a lot of them to the poll that morning?—No; only that I heard this outside a public house that we passed, and I believe young Mr. Norgate was with me, a man offered to vote for 2*s.*, and we told him he was no use to us.

6009. Was that the only instance throughout your walks that morning where people were ready to take money for that purpose?—No, except the one I have mentioned. The man would go and vote for 2*s.*, he stood in a gateway, I think, and he beckoned to us; we asked what he wanted, and he held up his two fingers, Mr. Norgate said, "What did he mean?" and I said, I suppose it means that he wants 2*s.* I asked him whether it was true, and he nodded his head, and Mr. Norgate, or one of us, said, "You are of no use to "us."

6010. You have given me two instances, can you not give me any others?—No, I cannot, I would if I could remember.

6011. I ask you again about these men earlier in the morning. You asked them to vote?—Yes.

6012. What did they say then?—I cannot remember what they said. I had scarcely two moments with them. I believe this man standing outside the committee room was going to vote.

6013. But you can give me some notion of their manner; did they say "I am not going to vote yet," or "I am a half-past 3 o'clock man." You know what that means?—No, I do not recellect that; I do not think they said anything about money.

6014. They never do, you know; but did they say anything about rates? Did they say "We have rates "to pay"?—No.

6015. They did nothing to convey to your mind that they were ready to vote for money?—Not in the slightest, that I am aware of.

THOMAS BONE sworn and examined. T. Bone.

6016. (Mr. Mansfield.) What are you?—A greengrocer.

6017. Where were you during the day of the election?—In the market-place.

6018. What did you see going on there with regard to the election?—Well, I saw a lot of people about the market, and such like, but I never interfered with regard to the voting business.

6019. Were you canvassed for your vote?—No. Mr. Allen asked me one day in the street, and I told him that I had not a vote.

6020. Do you know either of the Hunts?—Yes.

6021. Do you recollect having some talk with one of the Hunts about this election?—Yes; one Saturday night.

6022. Which Hunt was that?—William Hunt.

6023. Is he a brother of Hunt, the fowl dealer?—I believe he is.

6024. Did he tell you anything about this matter?—He brought up about the "Trumpet" case.

6025. Was anyone else present?—Yes, Ellis.

6026. Let me hear what Hunt said.—I will as well as I can; he mostly came against my stall on Saturday night, and I says, "This is a rum case about the "'Trumpet;'" and he said, "Yes; my brother is "either a damned fool, or a damned villain, I don't "know which of the two;" and he told me something about 10*l.* and 6*l.* being given away.

6027. What did he say about the 10*l.*?—Well, he said his brother had 10*l.*; I am almost sure it was 10*l.* given him, and he paid about 6*l.* of it away.

6028. Did he say that his brother got anything for himself?—Well, he said as much as if he kept the other for himself.

6029. Did you hear where the money came from?—No, I did not.

6030. Was anything said about that?—Nothing was said. I blamed Hunt, because I made a bet on the election day, and William Hunt saw me there, and he said, "Pop it on," and I bet on the Liberals. I said, "You are a nice fellow to persuade me to lay "a bet, and then vote the other way;" he said, "No, "I voted for the Liberals."

6031. Did you hear anything more about this matter?—No, I did not.

6032. You had no more conversation with Hunt?—No.

6033. You did not hear from anybody else where he got it from?—No, I did not.

6034. What is this brother of Hunt's by trade?—Well, he is a bit of a dealer; he buys old houses.

6035–6. Is he a partner with his brother?—Sometimes he is, because I have bought goods of both of them.

6037. This brother of Hunt's had not got anything out of it himself, had he?—Not that I know of.

6038. He did not tell you that he had?—He never told me that he had.

6039. (Mr. Biron.) Did they not mention any name as giving him the 10*l.*?—No; I never heard him mention a name.

6040. Did he say anything about Smith, the fowl dealer?—Yes, he mentioned Smith's name.

6041. What did he say about Smith?—As much as if Smith had got the money first, and gave Arthur Hunt a portion of it.

6042. Did he say that Smith stuck to anything?—Well, I don't know that he did; I cannot exactly say that.

6043. He said that Hunt had paid him 6*l.*?—And kept 2*l.* himself.

6044. Did he not say that Hunt and Smith between them had kept the 4*l.*?—That I cannot say; it was on Saturday night about 11 o'clock, when I am very busy in the market.

6045. Did he say anything about Mr. Patteson?—No, I never heard the name; it was a very short argument, because I was so busy serving fruit.

6046. Or Mr. Arthur Bignold?—No, I do not think he did.

6047. Or Mr. John Bignold?—No; I do not think he did. I went on serving the customers; it is a very busy time on Saturday night.

6048. Did he not say anything about Mr. Stracey giving him 10*l.*?—No; I am not sure of that, Stracey's name or Patteson's name might be mentioned, one of the names might be mentioned.

6049. Which was it that was mentioned?—I cannot say; in fact I thought nothing at all about it until last Saturday, when it was mentioned to me.

SIXTH DAY. T. Bone. 25 Aug. 1869.

6050. Can you not recollect which of the names it was—Stracey or Patteson?—No, I cannot recollect.

6051. Were they both mentioned?—He told me the tale about it, but I am sure I cannot say now which it was.

6052. You quite understand what I am putting to you?—Yes, quite.

6053. I can well imagine that you cannot perfectly recollect it unless it was brought to your mind, but now I have mentioned these names to you, did he not tell you anything about them?—There might be one of the names mentioned, but which one I am sure I cannot say.

6054. There was one or the other?—There might be one of the names of the three that you name.

6055. (Mr. Mansfield.) Stracey, Patteson, or Bignold?—Yes, there might be one of the names of the three.

6056. (Mr. Biron.) According to his story it was given to Smith first?—It was given to Smith first; it was either 10*l.* or 20*l.* given to Smith first.

6057. Now just try and recollect again which of the names I have called to your mind was mentioned?—I cannot say.

6058. He did mention one of the three?—Yes, that I am satisfied of.

6059. And you think it was either Stracey or Patteson that he mentioned?—That I cannot say whether it was Bignold, Stracey, or Patteson.

W. Hunt.

WILLIAM HUNT sworn and examined.

6060. (Mr. Biron.) What are you?—Well sir, I get my living by dealing sometimes, but I sometimes work.

6061. Are you a voter for Norwich?—No, I have not a vote.

6062. Where do you live?—Coburg Street.

6063. Were you about Norwich on the day of the election?—Yes, I was at work that day.

6064. You have got a brother named Arthur, have you not?—Yes.

6065. A fowl dealer?—Yes.

6066. Did you see him at all on the day of the election?—I saw him on the morning.

6067. What time in the morning?—Well, I suppose about 8 o'clock.

6068. Did you see him at all later on that day?—I saw him in the evening.

6069. In what state was he in the evening?—Well, he was tipsy in the evening.

6070. Did he tell you what he had been doing?—No, he did not.

6071. Did he tell you after the election what he had been doing?—No, he did not, not for some time, not for several months.

6072. At some time or other he told you what he had been doing?—Yes.

6073. Just tell us in your own way what it was he told you?—Of course I had heard a great deal of talk about election affairs that had taken place that day at the "Trumpet" and rows in the streets, and that like about it, some of them being dissatisfied with the money that he had given; that is how I came to know. On the election evening I went into the "Trumpet," and I saw a great many tipsy; I goes home, and goes to bed, and did not go into the "Trumpet" for three or four months, because my mind is on the Liberal side though I had not a vote, so I did not approve of their conduct; but I heard a great many fallings out about the election affairs in the street.

6074. Talking about the "Trumpet" affair?—Yes.

6075. Did that make you speak to your brother about it?—Yes. I spoke to him about it, and I cheeked him several times about his buying votes, and asked him where he got the money from. Different times I had heard people say he got this, that, and the other, and I thought I would try and get out of him where he did get it, and he told me he had not a farthing from anyone to buy the votes, that all he gave away was his own money. No longer ago than last Wednesday (my brother and I had not been very good friends, but the last week or two I have had a few dealings with him) he said "I had not a farthing of any-"body's money but my own, and if I had not been "tipsy I should not have given away my own money." That is all I have to say about it.

6076. Do you know Bone who has been just called?—Yes.

6077. Did you ever say anything to him about your brother?—Well, yes, I frequently go to his stall of a Saturday night; I make it a practice to go to his stall of a Saturday night and have a little chat, because I and Bone have been friendly for years.

6078. Do you know a man named Ellis?—Yes.

6079. Was he with Bone?—I cannot tell whether he was or not.

6080. Just tell me, as you have what your brother said, what you said to Bone about your brother?—Well, I daresay I spoke rather lavish on that affair, because I knew Bone laid some money about the election, and I think I spoke rather lavish to set him off, because I know he had laid a wager about the election, not thinking I should be brought here, or anything of the sort.

6081. Of course not, I just want your own account of it; Bone was rather grumbling at you for having put him on to the Liberals?—Yes, he felt sore.

6082. He thought you had put him on to the Liberals, and you were a Tory?—Yes, I believe he did think so.

6083. He was an old friend, and you did not want him to think that?—No, I did not.

6084. What was it you told him?—I believe I said to him about the "Trumpet" affair, "My brother "bought several votes there, but I do not think he "got anything out of it." I said that before I got intimate with my brother again. I had heard several noises in the street about it, and I heard my brother had been mobbed about his keeping 12*s.* 6*d.* out of every pound he had to pay the voters, and that he got about 10*s.* for every voter. I believe I did speak about that.

6085. You say that you repeated to Bone what you had heard said about your brother; do I understand that?—Yes, I believe I did.

6086. You might have said to Bone, I suppose that your brother paid away 6*l.* out of the 10*l.* and kept 4*l.*?—I will not contradict it; I might say so, but I forget about it. I paid so little attention to it; I might say so.

6087. Did you tell him where your brother had got this money from?—No, I did not.

6088. Did you tell him who you had heard he had got the money from?—No, I do not think I did.

6089. Do you know where he got the money from?—No, I do not.

6090. Might you have said to Bone that he got it from Patteson?—No.

6091. Might you have said that he got it from Smith?—No, I did not say so.

6092. Might you have said that 10*l.* was given to Smith, in the first instance, and that Smith handed it on to your brother?—I might say so, because I have heard that mentioned different times.

6093. Might you have said that 10*l.* was given to Smith by Patteson to buy voters?—No, I do not think I said so.

6094. Or by Stracey?—No; but I understood that Mr. Stracey was in the "Trumpet" that day.

6095. Might you have said that it was Stracey who gave 10*l.* to Smith?—No, I should not think so; I am sure I did not say so.

6096. You say you might have said that the 10*l.* was given to Smith?—Yes, I might say so.

6097. Now might you not have said who the man was that gave 10*l.* to Smith?—I will tell you the straightforward thing that I heard about that, that was talked of. I heard that some gentleman goes upstairs and leaves this money on the bagatelle table, and Smith and my brother goes up and takes it, and that Taylor should see him take it; that is all I said.

6098. Who saw him take it?—A man of the name of Taylor; that is all talk I heard, mine is only hearsay, because I was not there to prove it.

6099. Who was it talked about that?—I heard Taylor and several others mention it in the street.

6100. Which Taylor is it, do you know?—I know him if I was to see him.

6101. Was Henry Taylor the man you mean?—Henry Taylor, of Coburg Street.

6102. Did he tell you this?—No, he did not tell me, but I have heard him tell other people.

6103. You have heard him say it?—Oh yes, in the streets.

6104. That he saw Hunt take the money up from the bagatelle table?—That is the report I have heard.

6105. Hunt and Smith?—Yes.

6106. Did you never hear the name of the gentleman that they said left the money on the bagatelle table?—No, I did not.

6107. Did you not hear from anybody who it was?—No.

6108. Did you not hear Taylor say who it was?—No, I never did.

6109. Did Taylor say it was some gentleman who had been into the "Trumpet" that had left it there?—Well, I did not hear him say anything to that effect.

6110. (Mr. Dowdeswell.) How came you to tell that man that your brother had got 10*l.*?—Only as I heard a lot of talk in the street; I could not tell you so for the truth, because I was not there at the time.

6111. I suppose you believed it to be true?—Well yes, I had a notion to that effect.

6112. How came you to have a notion to that effect?—Well, I cannot say; I do not understand much about electioneering.

6113. Had not your brother told you that?—No.

6114. Who had told you it, that you had an opinion to that effect?—Well, I do not know that anyone told me, only I have heard rows in the street about it.

6115. Had you formed your opinion simply from what you had heard in the street?—Yes.

6116. Why did you think it was true that your brother had got 10*l.* for the election, and had paid 6*l.* of it away?—I thought it was hardly reasonable of him to pay his own money away; that is the opinion I had.

6117. You concluded that he had got money elsewhere?—I thought so in my own mind.

6118. Had you not heard the name of Smith, the fowl dealer?—Yes.

6119. Did you say that he got it from Smith?—No, I never said he got any from Smith.

6120. Do you mean to tell me that you did not say that he got 10*l.* from Smith?—He might do so, but I cannot say that he did, because I did not see it.

6121. But did you believe at that time that he got 10*l.* from Smith?—I believe at that time he got some money from somewhere, that is what I said.

6122. Did you not say to Bone that you believed that he got it from Smith?—Well, I have not any reason to think so.

6123. You might have said so?—I might have said so.

6124. Upon what ground was it that you could have said that he got the money from Smith?—I had the opinion that my brother would not pay his own money away.

6125. But that would not fix Smith. How came you to think or believe that he got the money from Smith?—I heard that Smith was with him all that day, and I know Smith is a monied man.

6126. Were not any names mentioned from whom Smith had got it?—No.

6127. Did you not talk about that?—No.

6128. Not a word about it?—I do not think I did.

6129. Well, I do not suppose you thought that Smith had done it himself, did you?—No.

6130. You believed that if Smith had given it, he had got it from somewhere?—Yes, I should think so.

6131. You believed he got it from somewhere?—Yes.

6132. Where did you believe he got it from?—Well, I cannot say.

6133. But you could form an opinion, could you not?—Yes.

6134. What was the opinion you formed?—I cannot say who he might get it from.

6135. Had you not formed an opinion and a belief at that time?—I might form forty opinions, and then be mistaken.

6136. Did you not express an opinion to Bone?—No, I did not.

6137. Will you undertake to say that, having formed an opinion as to where he got it from, you did not express your opinion to Bone?—No, I could not say so.

6138. But did you not, having formed an opinion as to where he got it from, express that opinion in dealing frankly with Bone?—No, I do not think I did.

6139. You had formed an opinion of where he got it from; what was the opinion that you had formed as to where he got it?—I should have thought when a candidate goes into a house, and a lot of voters go and vote, that he must leave the money for those voters; that is the opinion I should have.

6140. You did think then, under these circumstances, that it came from someone connected with the candidates?—Well, I should have thought so, but I could not prove that.

6141. Take these three names, Patteson, Stracey, and Bignold; had any of those names occurred to your mind at that time?—No, I do not know that they had.

6142. None of them at all?—Well, I cannot say; it is a long time ago, and I cannot recollect, but they might.

6143. But you say you formed an opinion that when people go into a house, and there are voters there to be sold, they go there for a purpose, which is an opinion one does naturally form, but had it not crossed your mind that one of those three was the man?—Well, I do not know, sir, I am sure I had not that opinion, because I was not there to see them.

6144. But had not your brother said anything to you about one of those three?—Never, he never did.

6145. Have you ever talked the matter over with Smith?—No, I never spoke to Smith since the day.

6106. You were on perfectly good terms with your brother, were you not?—Well, I have not been so this last 12 months.

6147. How long have you been friends?—Not above a fortnight or three weeks.

6148. How long ago was it that you had this conversation with Bone?—I should think that must be four months or more ago.

6149. But had you talked the matter over with your brother during the time you were unfriendly with him?—I have tried to learn it out of him where this money did come from, and he always told me he did not receive a farthing from anybody, it was out of his own pocket.

6150. Is that what he has told you within the last fortnight?—Yes.

6151. Had he told that to you before you saw Bone?—No.

6152. Had you not talked to him before you saw Bone?—Not since the election evening.

SIXTH DAY.
W. Hunt.
25 Aug. 1869.

6153. Had you not seen your brother and talked to him between the election day and when you talked to Bone?—No.

6154. Had you no conversation with him at all?—No.

6155. (Mr. Mansfield.) Is your brother in a large way of business?—He is dealing, and is getting a comfortable living, I daresay.

6156. Does he do much business?—Oh yes, he does a good deal of business.

R. Fuller.

ROBERT FULLER sworn and examined.

6157. (Mr. Dowdeswell.) What are you?—I am a traveller, a licensed hawker.

6158. Where do you live?—No. 3, Coburg Street, St. Stephen's.

6159. Are you the brother of George Fuller who keeps the "Trumpet"?—Yes.

6160. Were you at the "Trumpet" upon the day of the election?—Yes.

6161. What time did you go to the "Trumpet"?—About 11 o'clock.

6162. Are you a voter in this city?—Yes.

6163. Were you a voter at the last election?—Yes, I was.

6164. And at any previous election?—Only one.

6165. Which election was that?—I cannot exactly say, I think it was Sir Samuel Bignold's.

6166. Were you in the market room?—Yes.

6167. Do you recollect Sir Henry Stracey coming in?—I do, well.

6168. And after he had left some time, do you recollect Hunt, the fowl dealer, coming into the room again?—Yes, I do.

6169. Now we hear that Hunt made a proposition to the people there about 5*s.*?—That I cannot say, for I was very ill that day, I broke a blood vessel, and I sat against the door and slept a good deal.

6170. Do you recollect when they adjourned to go upstairs?—Yes, I do.

6171. A number of people followed you upstairs, did they not?—I did not go up for a long while, I sat on the chair.

6172. Did you not go upstairs into the room with Smith and Hunt?—No, I went on the top of the landing.

6173. Do you recollect Hunt and Smith going into the bagatelle room?—Well, I cannot say, sir, I went on the landing.

6174. But did you not go into the room where Hunt and Smith were?—Yes, on the landing.

6175. Did you change some money for Hunt?—Not one farthing, neither had I any money only 1*l.* 12*s.* 6*d.*

6176. Were you sober?—I was quite sober, but I was very ill.

6177. How many people went upstairs with you?—There might be four or five when I got up.

6178. Did you not go into the room where they went?—I went in the passage, that is, what they call a room.

6179. Well then, were Hunt and Smith in this room or passage?—Hunt was there, but not Smith.

6180. Did you see Hunt paying some money to the men?—Not a farthing.

6181. Did you hear anything said about money?—They were asking one another if they would take 5*s.* each, but I never saw any money paid. I turned round and came back again; at a quarter before 3 I went and voted for Sir Henry Stracey, and I did not go back any more until about half-past 3.

6182. What did you get for voting?—7*s.* 6*d.*, but I had voted previously to getting the 7*s.* 6*d.*

6183. Who paid you?—Hunt; he was very tipsy.

6184. When did he pay you?—He paid me when I came back from voting.

6185. How many people had left the house and voted before you?—There might be three or four, but who they were I do not know.

6186. You know the people who frequent your brother's house, I suppose?—I know several of them to see, but I do not know them all.

6187. Did you see the two Browes there?—No, I did not see one of them.

6188. Do you know Blanchflower or Browes?—I never knew them until the other day.

6189. You went up and voted at the time you say; who went with you?—No one, I went by myself; I never told anyone that I was going to vote.

6190. Where did Hunt pay you this 7*s.* 6*d.*?—On the low step on the landing.

6191. Where did he get the 7*s.* 6*d.* from?—I cannot say; I believe from what he said it was his own money, but I must leave that.

6192. Did he pay anyone else in your presence?—I did not see a farthing paid to anyone when I came back from voting; I saw no one there but a man of the name of Taylor, and I did not see Hunt pay him.

6193. But there were other people there besides Taylor when you came back?—Not when I came back; they were gone to vote, I believe.

6194. Do you mean to say you did not see other people in the house besides those two?—Not after I had voted, not after I came back.

6195. Was the house shut up?—No; but I mean in the room where we had been sitting.

6196. You had been sitting in the market room?—That is the market room.

6197. Do you mean to say there was not a number of people in there?—In the forenoon there was, before I voted.

6198. Were there no people in your brother's house in the afternoon of that day?—Not in the afternoon, there was only Taylor.

6199. Where did they go to?—They went and voted, I think.

6200. When the people came to your brother's house to drink, if they did not go into the market room where did they go?—They were in the front bar.

6201. How many will the front bar hold?—Thirty.

6202. Did you go into the front bar during that afternoon?—No, I do not think I did; I went up Trumpet Lane, into the side bar.

6203. How long did you remain there?—I daresay I was there an hour and a half. I saw no one there but Taylor.

6204. Where did you go to after that?—I went home and went to bed; I was very ill, I had broke a blood vessel.

6205. Had you no change?—I had not any, only 1*l.* 12*s.* 6*d.*, and that was money that I had sold some old clothes for; I had no money of anyone's.

6206. Was that in a purse?—That was in a purse.

6207. What sort of a purse?—A little leather purse.

6208. Was it not in a bag?—No, I had not such a thing.

6209. Did you get any money from the bar?—No, I did not, not a farthing.

6210. I suppose that having broken a blood vessel you did not drink?—Well, I dared not drink that day, but I have drunk a great deal in my time.

6211. Now do you mean to swear that you did not change any money for Hunt that day?—Not one farthing for Hunt, nor yet for anyone else.

6212. Who told you that you should get 7*s.* 6*d.* for your vote?—No one.

6213. How came you, then, to get it?—Hunt was drunk and fell down against the corn bin; I picked him up and he gave me 7*s.* 6*d.*

6214. For picking him up?—Yes.

6215. Do you really mean to tell me that he gave you 7*s.* 6*d.* for picking him up?—He did.

6216. Did you return it to him when he was sober?—I did not.

6217. Did you think that was what you ought to have for picking up a man when he was drunk?—I did; if I had not kept it someone else would have got it.

6218. Therefore you virtuously kept it, to prevent it getting into bad hands?—I kept it myself; he said, "You may have it."

JOHN BROWES, junior, recalled. J. Browes, jun.

6219. (Mr. Dowdeswell.) We have carefully considered the matters relating to yourself and your father, and it is impossible to believe the statement which you have made that you voted purely at that election. Your conduct is utterly inconsistent with one's own experience of human action, and with ideas which one derives from the fact that you were at the "Trumpet," that money was going there, that you had abstained from voting until half-past 3, and then went up and voted, having just left the "Trumpet."

BENJAMIN QUINTON sworn and examined. B. Quinton.

6220. (Mr. Mansfield.) What are you by trade?—A tailor.

6221. Who did you vote for at this last election?—Sir Henry Stracey.

6222. At what hour of the day?—Within 10 minutes past 8.

6223. What were you doing the rest of the day?—At my business.

6224. Were you not about the town at all?—I was not.

6225. Or at any public house?—No.

6226. Who canvassed you for your vote?—No one.

6227. Had you been asked?—No.

6228. Have you heard of anybody having asked for money on this occasion for voting?—I have not.

6229. Have you been long in the town?—No, sir, I am a small master for myself.

6230. Have you voted at the previous elections here?—Yes, for about 36 years.

6231. And always for the Tory candidates?—Always.

6232. Did you hear of any improper practices at this election?—I have not.

6233. Not during the election?—I was not in the election, and I never saw anything of the kind at all. I never interfered with the election after I voted.

WILLIAM TURNER sworn and examined. W. Turner.

6234. (Mr. Biron.) What are you?—A tailor and shopkeeper.

6235. Did you vote at the last election?—Yes.

6236. For whom?—Stracey.

6237. Were you canvassed for your vote?—Yes.

6238. By whom?—I cannot tell who it was now, I am sure I forget.

6239. Were you offered anything for your vote?—No.

6240. And I suppose you took nothing for it?—No.

6241. Were you at any public houses during the day?—No; that is a thing I do not accustom myself to.

6242. You worked in the morning?—Yes.

6243. You voted, then went home and had your dinner?—Yes.

6244. (Mr. Dowdeswell.) Do you know of any person receiving or being paid money at this election?—None.

6245. (Mr. Mansfield.) Or being offered money?—No, none.

6246. (Mr. Biron.) You did not take much interest in it, I presume?—No.

JOHN FREEMAN sworn and examined. J. Freeman.

6247. (Mr. Dowdeswell.) Where do you live?—Curtis' Buildings, Thorn Lane.

6248. What are you?—A cabinet maker.

6249. Were you a voter at the last election?—Yes.

6250. For whom did you vote?—For Sir Henry Stracey.

6251. What time of the day?—Between 3 and 4.

6252. Where had you been all the day?—Well, sir, I had a job of work which I was forced to do, and could not get away.

6253. Where?—At my own home.

6254. Had you not been asked to vote?—Yes.

6255. By whom?—Mr. Green and one of the Mr. Morgans.

6256. Had you promised your vote?—No.

6257. Why did you not promise?—Well, I found I should be engaged that day, so I did not think I should be able to get away.

6258. Why did you think that?—Because I knew my job would last longer.

6259. But the job was at your own house?—Yes, but I could not get away while the job was pending.

6260. How far is your house from the polling booth?—I suppose about 200 or 300 yards.

6261. Do you mean to say that you could not afford time to go 200 yards to the polling place, and you thought that days before? Do let us have the truth from one man at least in the city.—That is the truth.

6262. Why did you think that you could not vote three or four days before?—I was not asked until the day before the election.

6263. Who had been to your house in the course of the day?—No one.

6264. Had you seen anybody that day?—No, not that day at all. Not on the election day.

6265. Nobody came and fetched you to the poll?—No.

6266. Did you receive no money for your vote?—No.

6267. Or no promise of money?—No.

6268. From nobody?—No.

6269. Did nobody offer you any money?—No.

JOHN GALLARD sworn and examined. J. Gallard.

6270. (Mr. Mansfield.) What are you by trade?—A cooper.

6271. Did you vote?—I did not vote at all, sir.

6272. Were you asked to vote?—Yes.

6273. By whom?—Mr. Betts and Mr. Maitland for the Whig party, and Mr. Stevens and Mr. Parker for the Tory party.

6274. Why did it not suit you to vote?—A few days before they got up a petition for Mr. Harvey to come forward; I signed my name to that, and as

SIXTH DAY.
25 Aug. 1869.

J. Gallard.

Mr. Harvey did not come forward I did not feel inclined to vote.

6275. Is Mr. Harvey a friend of yours?—No; but he is a citizen.

6276. (Mr. Biron.) He is a banker, is he not?—Yes.

6277. (Mr. Mansfield.) He was the man you wanted to support?—That is the man I should have supported if he had come forward.

6278. Have you heard anything about improper practices at this election?—I have heard people talk, but I saw nothing of them. I did not go from home the whole day. I was asked by these people and I told them distinctly I should not vote for anyone, and as to a farthing of money being given or taken I never heard anything of it, only in the common way, that there was money given.

6279. Were you a voter at previous elections?—Yes; I voted for Mr. Waters at the previous election, and the reason I voted for him was because I thought the party who had brought him forward treated him very unhandsomely. He was speechifying about the street late at night, and I voted for him on the following day, and previously to that I voted with the Whig party.

6280. You were going backwards and forwards?—I never voted but once on the Tory side, but previous to that I voted Whig, but I made up my mind to vote for nobody no more, because I thought there was six of one and half a dozen of the other.

6281. Who did you vote for at the election of 1865?—Was that the Bury and Schneider election, pray sir? I did not always vote at every general election. I am not in any way an electioneering man at all. I do not study anything about politics myself.

6282. (Mr. Dowdeswell.) Do you recollect Sir Samuel Bignold standing?—Yes, and Bury and Schneider were in opposition. I voted for Bury and Schneider, I think.

6283. Do you recollect the election when Lewis and Forlonge, and Warner and Russell were the candidates?—Well, I voted on the Whig side then. I thought that was Bury and Schneider, but I did not keep any account.

6284. That was the previous election?—Then I did not vote at that election.

6285. Do you know of any corrupt practices at either of these elections?—No.

G. A. Quinton.

George Alfred Quinton sworn and examined.

6286. (Mr. Biron.) What are you?—A little master tailor.

6287. Did you vote at the last election?—Yes.

6288. For whom?—Sir Henry Stracey.

6289. Had you been canvassed before?—No.

6290. Had you voted at former elections?—At all elections since I have had a vote.

6291. Did you always vote Conservative?—Always.

6292. Did you take any active part in this last election?—No.

6293. Did you canvass other people?—No.

6294. Were you offered anything for your vote?—No.

6295. Did you get anything?—No.

6296. (Mr. Dowdeswell.) Do you know of your own knowledge of any corrupt practices at the last election?—No.

6297. Did you vote at the elections of 1860 and 1865?—Yes.

6298. Do you know of anything wrong then?—No.

6299. You never did anything wrong yourself, I suppose?—No; in fact when I voted I went home directly I had voted. I was not away three-quarters of an hour, and when I go I generally go back to work directly.

6300. You did not trouble yourself about other people?—No; I have too much to do at home.

W. Read.

William Read sworn and examined.

6301. (Mr Mansfield.) Who did you vote for at this election?—Sir Henry Stracey.

6302. Were you canvassed by anyone?—No; there was a party came round to my house, but I was not at home myself at all.

6303. Were you about during the day of the election?—No; I only came home in the morning, and I just went up to the market and back. I came from Peterborough that same morning.

6304. Were you employed on the railway?—Yes.

6305. You had to go back to your business?—Yes.

6306. During the day of the election did you hear of any money being offered?—No.

6307. Was any offered to you?—No.

6308. Did you offer money to anybody else?—No.

6309. Did you hear of anything of the sort being done at the last two elections?—I never heard anything.

W. Taney.

William Taney sworn and examined.

6310. (Mr. Biron.) What are you?—I am a fishmonger.

6311. Did you vote at the last election?—Yes.

6312. For whom?—Sir William Russell.

6313. What time in the day did you vote?—I think I voted between 2 and 3 o'clock.

6314. Why did you not vote earlier?—I was after my business, that is the reason I did not vote.

6315. You were about your business in the morning?—Yes.

6316. Were you canvassed?—No, I was not. I always voted a Whig.

6317. How many elections have you voted at before?—I suppose I have been a freemen for 35 years.

6318. And always voted for the Liberals?—Yes.

6319. Did you get any money?—No, I did not.

6320. Or were you offered any?—I never had any offered me at all.

6321. At the two last elections?—Yes, at the two last elections. I voted for Warner and Russell at the elections previous to the last election.

6322. But in the election before that, who did you vote for?—Just the same. I think it was Warner and Russell, but I cannot recollect now.

6323. Did you get anything on those occasions?—No. I never got anything in my life. I never asked for anything, and I never had anything offered me.

F. Widdows.

Francis Widdows sworn and examined.

6324. (Mr. Dowdeswell.) What are you?—I am my own master. I am a professional singer, and likewise a dog-breaker.

6325. Being your own master what do you employ yourself about?—As a professional gentleman, to go to dinners, and sing at the "Royal."

6326. What do you sing?—I am a sentimental singer at different dinners.

6327. You are a comic singer?—No, quite sentimental.

6328. Are you a freeman?—I was born a freeman.

6329. And you vote as a freeman?—I always voted as a freeman.

6330. For whom did you vote at the last election?—My friend Stracey. I gave him a plumper.

6331. Had you promised your vote beforehand?—No. A gentleman came canvassing to me, and I found he was on the Tory principle. Of course when he came I asked him to have a piece of dinner with me, but had the other party come I should have said "No, I don't want you."

6332. Who were the persons who canvassed you for the Conservative party?—One was what they call a grocer. He lives close to the "White Hart."

6333. Did you promise your vote?—Yes, when they came I said "A plumper for Stracey."

6334. And you carried out your promise?—I did so. After I had voted I saw the gentleman, and I said "Now I have been and done what I told you I "would, I have given Mr. Stracey a plumper. If you "don't believe it come to the polling place and see," and he came and saw "So and so, Stracey."

6335. Did you get any money for your vote?—No, I had to treat him with a glass of ale. After I had voted I treated my man that came and canvassed me with a glass of ale.

6336. (Mr. Biron.) You reversed the order of nature?—I asked him directly I voted.

6337. You being a voter bribed the canvasser, did you?—Yes, it was after I had voted that I did this.

6338. You were a voter at the previous elections in 1860 and 1865?—Yes.

6339. Do you know of anybody receiving or giving money for votes at these elections?—I don't know anything further than Stormont and Scarlett's election. I should like to have had a vote then. There was money going on then. I should have liked to have had a vote.

6340. In 1860 Warner and Russell, and Lewis and Forlonge were the candidates, and in 1865 Warner and Russell, and Goldsmid and Waters were the candidates. Do you remember how you voted then?—I voted for Waters.

6341. When Lewis and Forlonge where the Conservative candidates, for whom did you vote?—Not at all.

6342. Did anybody give you anything not to vote at that election?—No.

6343. Did anybody give you anything to vote in 1865 when you voted for Waters?—No; I was employed then as leader of the band, as bandmaster. I led the band round the city.

6344. (Mr. Dowdeswell.) Being bandmaster of course you were paid?—Of course I got paid among the band for my business.

6345. You were not bandmaster in 1860 then?—No, only when Waters was there.

6346. Were you bandmaster upon the last occasion?—No.

6347. Were there bands at the last election?—Oh yes, certainly there were.

6348. Who had bands?—The Whigs. They came out a little two early. They played their tune too early.

6349. The Whigs had a band?—Yes, they came came out too early; then the Tories followed them.

6350–1. I suppose you were not bandmaster upon the Radical side?—Not likely.

6352. How came you not to be bandmaster?—I was in a public house enjoying a glass of grog, so they engaged another party.

6353. They engaged a bandmaster beforehand?—I was too clever; you understand what I mean by being too clever, I got a glass too much. I could not go round with them because I should perhaps have made a fool of myself; that is the truth of it.

6354. Were you asked to be bandmaster?—No, not on this occasion. At Waters' election I was.

6355. You said you would have been the bandmaster if you had not made a fool of yourself?—Yes; I got a little drink extra.

6356. Had they spoken to you about being bandmaster, or going with the band?—No, nothing of the kind.

6357. You had not been queer for so long a time that they could not speak to you beforehand about it?—They did not speak to me at this election about it at all. At Waters' they did.

6358. Did you speak to them about it?—No, nothing of the kind.

6359. You did not get queer until the day of the election, did you?—I could not help it, you know. I was so pleased to think my Conservative party was getting in comfortable; it caused me to have a glass extra.

6360. They were all behind till 1 o'clock, you know?—According to some people they were, but they finished well. It came out all right. I thought it would.

6361. You had confidence that it would?—I didn't wait till 4 o'clock till I voted. I voted at the proper hour.

6362. You were sober enough then?—Yes, and told them my address. I spoke to them as sober as to you now.

6363. (Mr. Mansfield.) Did anybody pay for the drink you had?—No; I paid for my own drink, and asked others to drink as well. I can't keep an account of how many glasses I took.

FREDERICK ADAMSON sworn and examined. F. Adamson.

6364. (Mr. Mansfield.) What are you by trade?—A carrier.

6365. For whom did you vote at the last election?—Sir Henry Stracey.

6366. Had you been canvassed by anybody?—Parker, the grocer, in Ber Street; he came at 3 o'clock in the afternoon, after I had voted; so I never saw him.

6367. Did he offer you anything?—No.

6368. Did anybody offer you anything with regard to this election?—No.

6369. Or at either of the last two elections?—No; I had not a vote till this election.

6370. Have you heard of any money being taken or offered at this election by any party?—Not a halfpenny; not one.

6371. Had you promised Sir Henry Stracey?—Yes.

6372. When did you promise him?—A fortnight before the time.

6373. To whom did you give that promise?—To the grocer.

GEORGE ALDEN sworn and examined. G. Alden.

6374. (Mr. Biron.) What are you?—A plane maker.

6375. Did you vote at the last election?—Yes.

6376. Had you promised your vote before?—No.

6377–8. Had you been canvassed before?—Not personally.

SIXTH DAY.
G. Alden.
25 Aug. 1869.

6379. Have you voted on former occasions ?—No.

6380. Did you receive any money for your vote ?—No.

6381. Were you offered any money for your vote ?—No.

6382. Do you know anything about bribery at this last election ?—No, I don't.

6383. After you had polled, what did you do ?—Took a walk up Ber Street.

6384. At what time did you get home ?—Half an hour after about, and got my breakfast.

6385. Did you then stay at your work ?—No ; I walked about the chief of the day.

6386. Did you see anything of corrupt practices ?—No.

6387. You did not see any men hanging about ?—No ; there were people walking about like myself.

6388. (Mr. Dowdeswell.) Had you any promise of any kind made to you ?—No.

C. Bland.

COLLISON BLAND sworn and examined.

6389. (Mr. Dowdeswell.) What are you ?—Ostler at the "Bell" hotel.

6390. Are you a voter ?—Yes.

6391. Were you a voter before the last election ?—No.

6392. For whom did you vote ? — Sir Henry Stracey.

6393. At what time in the day ?—Half-past 3, I believe.

6394. How far was the polling place from the "Bell" ?—I cannot tell you at all. From the "Bell," Scole's Green, not more than 400 or 500 yards.

6395. Did not anybody come and press you to go up and vote ?—No.

6396. Did anybody come and ask you to go up when you did go up ?—My master asked me if I had voted.

6397. When ?—He came to me in the stable yard.

6398. What time in the day was that ?—That would be about that time.

6399. What did he say then ?—He said, "Are you "going to vote ?" I said, "Yes ; I think there is "time enough yet."

6400. Did you not tell him you did not think it was worth while voting unless you had something for it ?—No.

6401. Nothing of that sort ?—Nothing of that sort.

6402. Are you sure nothing of that sort ?—I am sure nothing of that sort.

6403. Did you think if you kept out that you were to have something ?—No, I did not wish for anything.

6404. There was plenty of time for you to have gone up to vote before half-past 3 o'clock ?—No, there was not. Then I had to seek a man to stop in my place while I went.

6405. Are you sure that you did not receive anything or the promise of anything for your vote ?—No, I did not.

6406. Not a promise of beer or drink, or anything of that sort ?—No, not even "Thank you."

W. Brewster.

WILLIAM BREWSTER sworn and examined.

6407. (Mr. Mansfield.) What are you by trade ?—A plumber and painter.

6408. For whom did you vote at the last election ?—Russell and Tillett.

6409. Have you ever voted before in this city ?—Never before.

6410. Had you a vote before ?—No.

6411. What time in the day did you vote ?—Between 1 and 2.

6412. Why did not you vote earlier in the day ?—I went up between 8 and 9, and the polling place was too full. I could not lose time to vote at that time, and I went in the dinner hour between 1 and 2.

6413. Were you at work that day ?—Yes.

6414. Did anybody ask you to vote that day ?—No.

6415. Or the day before ?—No.

6416. Had you been canvassed at all ?—Yes.

6417. By whom ?—By Mr. Parker.

6418. Had you promised to vote ?—No, I promised no one.

6419. Why did you not promise ?—I never do promise.

6420. Why ?—Because promises are like pie-crusts, made to be broken.

6421. Did anybody offer you anything for your vote ?—No.

6422. Are you certain of that ?—Quite certain.

6423. Did you hear of any money going at this election ?—I am not aware of any.

6424. What became of you after you had voted ?—I went to my work again.

6425. Did anybody accompany you to the poll ?—No.

J. Brighty.

JOHN BRIGHTY sworn and examined.

6426. (Mr. Biron.) What are you ? — A blacksmith.

6427. Did you vote as a freeman or an occupier ?—I am only an occupier.

6428. At all events you have a vote ?—Yes, I gave a vote.

6429. For whom ?—For Russell and Tillett.

6430. Did you get anything for your vote ?—No, I did not want anything. I gave it with a free good will.

6431. Had you been canvassed before ?—Yes.

6432. By whom ?—By Mr. Parker, in Ber Street. He came and canvassed my vote for Mr. Stracey.

6433. What did you tell him ?—I never give him an answer. I said I should not vote for him.

6434–5. Were you canvassed by the Liberals at all ?—Yes, Mr. Betts and some other gentleman whom I had never knowed. Two gentlemen came twice, and I promised faithfully I would give it.

E. Dawson.

EDWARD DAWSON sworn and examined.

6436. (Mr. Dowdeswell.) Are you a voter in this city ?—I am.

6437. Did you vote at the last election ?—I did.

6438. For whom ?—Sir Henry Stracey.

6439. At what time in the day did you vote ?—About 2 or half-past 2.

6440. How came you to vote so late ?—Because I told the canvassing men that I should not promise my vote to anybody, because I had connexions with both parties, therefore I should not vote at all.

6441. Having given that answer to them, what induced you at half-past 2 to go up and vote ?—Mr. Tillett's party came up about 11 or 12 to know if I had voted. I said, "No, I told you "in the first instance I should not vote at all." He said, "It's time you had." I said, "That's as I "like." "It's not," he said ; "you can't do as you "like." I said, "I shall do as I please. Now I "shall vote."

6442. (Mr. Biron.) They put your back up?—They did.

6443. (Mr. Dowdeswell.) Then you voted for Stracey?—I said, "I have not been out, and very "likely I shall not." I had not stirred out till that time, and I did not like what they told me.

6444. Did you receive any money or any promise of money?—No.

6445. (Mr. Biron.) You did not want to offend either side?—Neither. I took no interest in either party, not at all.

HENRY DRAKE sworn and examined. H. Drake.

6446. (Mr. Mansfield.) Are you a voter?—Yes.

6447. For whom did you vote at this last election?—Mr. Tillett.

6448. At what hour of the day did you vote?—Between 1 and 2.

6449. Who canvassed you?—Mr. Maitland, of the cook-shop, was one.

6450. Where do you work?—At Mr. Colman's.

6451–2. Why did you not vote earlier in the day?—Because I was walking about at my own pleasure.

6453. Was anything offered to you for your vote?—No, not anything.

6454. Nothing promised?—No, not anything.

6455. Had you heard of any money going at this election?—No, not anything of the sort.

6456. You were not a voter at the last elections?—No, only at this one.

6457. (Mr. Dowdeswell.) Had you been canvassed by Mr. Womersley?—No.

6458. Do you know Mr. Womersley?—Yes.

6459. Had you made up your mind to vote for Mr. Tillett?—Yes; I had thoroughly made up my mind to vote for Mr. Tillett.

6460. You knew that Tillett and Russell were standing in the same interest?—Yes, I was well aware of that.

6461. Then how came you to vote for Tillett alone?—Because it was my principle. I didn't wish to split my vote at all.

6462. Yes, but you would not split your vote when there are two members, and you are voting for two on the same side?—Yes, but I told you before I had thoroughly intended to vote for Mr. Tillett, and him alone. I cannot say any more.

6463. How came you to vote so late in the day?—I was about with a workshop friend or two of mine, and I did not intend to vote not till 1 or 2.

RUFUS FOLKARD sworn and examined. R. Folkard.

6464. (Mr. Biron.) What are you?—A smith.

6465. A journeyman?—Yes.

6466. Did you vote at the last election?—Yes.

6467. For whom?—Mr. Tillett.

6468. At what time did you vote?—Twenty minutes to 4.

6469. Why did you put it off till 20 minutes to 4?—I don't know. I was out with a few friends, like, enjoying myself during the day. So I polled off rather late.

6470. What is your notion of enjoying yourself? Did you go to any beershops?—I was looking round to seeing people about, and that like.

6471. Drinking and smoking, I suppose?—Sometimes having a glass and smoking.

6472. Where did you have your glass?—At the "Lord Nelson," at Timberhill. That is close to where my voting place was.

6473. Where else?—Sometimes in the market, at the "Waterloo," to have a glass.

6474. How many public houses did you go into in the course of the day?—Three or four.

6475. Give me the names of the public houses?—The "Lord Nelson" and the "Waterloo." I had a glass there. I saw nobody, except in the ordinary way, people standing in the bars taking glasses and smoking.

6476. Did you hear anything about taking money for voting?—I never heard anything of that. I thought I should like to be paid for my day's work. That's all.

6477. And you went about to look if you could get money for your day's work?—Yes, that's it.

6478. You did not come across anybody ready to give it?—No.

6479. Did you ask anybody?—No.

6480. Would you have voted for the other side if you were paid for your day's work?—No.

6481. You would have stuck to Tillett?—Yes.

6482. But you would sooner have had your day's work paid for than you would have voted without money?—Of course.

6483. Did you see Womersley during the day?—No.

6484. Do you know him?—I don't know the gentleman.

6485. Did you see anybody, any Liberal supporter?—No.

6486. What made you go to the "Lord Nelson"?—I only went in there casually, as I happened to be about.

6487. Did you look about you?—I didn't think about it there. I didn't look about there.

6488. Where did you think was the place that was likely to turn up trumps?—The place where I should go to poll.

6489. Had you gone to any polling place before, earlier in the day?—No.

6490. Did you not tell anybody what you wanted?—No. I thought that was best kept to myself.

6491. Had you voted before?—No.

6492. How did you expect to get the day's work. There is nothing in your face to tell people that you want to get a day's work?—I thought if there was anything to get I should like a little.

6493. Did not you ask any other men, "Is there "money going?"—I might say such a thing. I don't know.

6494. I should think you would. That was what was on your mind up to a quarter to 4. You might ask, "Who is going to pay me?"—I did'nt say that.

6495. Did not you hint it to anybody?—I don't know that I did.

6496. Did you say, "I shan't vote till later on"?—I made that up in my mind like that. When it got to 20 minutes to 4 I thought I would go and vote.

6497. That would be only giving them a very mild hint. Did anybody ask you whether you had voted?—No.

6498. Did not anybody say, "Come, have you not "voted?"—No, it seemed as if I hadn't a vote.

6499. You had not your Sunday clothes on?—No.

6500. (Mr. Mansfield.) You got beer at these houses?—No, not but what I paid for.

6501. A little besides?—No, not any.

RICHARD HARDIMENT sworn and examined. R. Hardiment

6502. (Mr. Dowdeswell.) Are you a voter?—Yes.

6503. Have you ever been a voter before?—No.

6504. Are you in the employ of the railway company?—Yes.

6505. For whom did you vote at the last election?—Mr. Stracey.

SIXTH DAY.

R. Hardiment.

25 Aug. 1869.

6506. Had you been canvassed for your vote ?—They came round, but I never promised my vote to anyone.

6507. Were you asked for your vote on the day ?—On that day ? No.

6508. Did you see anybody about your vote that day before you went up to vote ?—I never see anybody that came up and asked me for a vote that day at all.

6509. Had anybody done or said anything to induce you to vote that way ?—No.

6510. You voted that way entirely of your own accord and your own opinion ?—Yes.

6511. Did you receive any money or the promise of any money for your vote on that occasion ?—Not the least.

6512. (Mr. Mansfield.) Did you say that you were not canvassed ? — Not on that day. They came round to my house, but it was before the day of the election.

6513. Did they only come round once ?— Each party came round to my house.

6514. And you were away ?—I was away.

W. Jeffries.

William Jeffries sworn and examined.

6515. (Mr. Mansfield.) What are you by trade ?—A wheelwright.

6516. For whom did you vote at this last election ?—Sir Henry Stracey.

6517. Were you about at any of the public houses that day ?—No.

6518. Did anybody offer you any money for your vote ?—No.

6519. Had you been canvassed for your vote ?—Yes.

6520. By whom ?—Mr. Parker.

6521. Did you promise your vote ?—No.

6522. Why did you not ?—I said I didn't promise anybody, and I did not know that I should vote at all.

6523. Why did you say that ?—I said I might be at work somewhere, and if so, I should not come home to vote.

6524. Did you vote for Stracey, or Stracey and Russell, do you recollect ?—Stracey alone.

6525. Did you hear of any money going at this election ?—No.

6526. None was offered to you ?—No.

J. Mallett.

Jacob Mallett sworn and examined.

6527. (Mr. Biron.) What are you ?—A rivetter.

6528. Did you vote at the last election ? — Yes.

6529. For whom ?—Russell and Tillett.

6530. Had you been canvassed ?—Yes ; about three weeks before the election.

6531. By whom ?—Mr. Maitland.

6532-3. Did you promise your vote ?—Yes.

6534. Did you get any money for your vote ? — No.

6535. Or a promise of money ? — Nor yet any promise.

W. Neal.

William Neal sworn and examined.

6536. (Mr. Dowdeswell.) What are you ?—A cork cutter.

6537. Were you a voter at the last election ?—Yes.

6538. Had you ever had a vote before ? — No.

6539. For whom did you vote ? — Sir Henry Stracey.

6540. Had you been canvassed ?—Yes.

6541. When ?—About a fortnight previous to the election.

6542. Had you promised your vote ?—No.

6543. Why did you not promise your vote ?—I did not know exactly which way I should vote at that time.

6544. You did not know which way you would vote ?—No, I had not decided which way I should vote.

6545. You hardly knew which way the wind blew ?—I was not thinking about that.

6546. Why did you not know which way you wished to vote ; you have an idea of which is the right state of things ?—No, I never interested myself about it.

6547. You have no political opinions at all ?—No.

6548. Having no political principles, what decided you to vote for Sir Henry Stracey ?—That being the dinner hour I went and voted at that time.

6549. What made you vote that way ?—I had no particular interest in voting that way, but I had an idea that Stracey was the best man of the three.

6550. Did you receive any money ?—No.

6551. Or the promise of any money for your vote on that occasion ?—None.

6552. No promise of employment or anything of the sort ?—None.

C. Osborn.

Charles Osborn sworn and examined.

6553. (Mr. Mansfield.) What are you by trade ?—Corn merchant and publican.

6554. For whom did you vote at the last election ?—Sir Henry Stracey.

6555. By whom had you been canvassed ?—I had not been canvassed. I went voluntarily.

6556. Have you voted at several elections ?—Yes ; many years.

6557. Always on that side ?—Not always on that side.

6558-9. Which way did you vote the time before ?—It was for Warner, I think ; Warner and Russell, I think.

6560. Did you give a promise to any one ?—No.

6561. In 1860 did you promise your vote to anybody ?—No.

6562. Then you gave it to Russell ?—Yes, I went voluntarily, the same as I did this time.

6563. How came you to change your politics this time ?—I did not approve of Tillett.

6564. But that does not account for your deserting Sir William Russell ?—No ; I preferred Sir Henry Stracey to either of them.

6565. Sir William Russell appears to be an old friend ?—Probably he may ; you can change your mind if you like.

6566. You might have voted for your old friend ?—I thought proper to change it this time, and I gave it to Sir Henry Stracey.

6567. Had you any reason for changing it ?—It was my opinion.

6568. Was there any offer or promise made to you for your vote this time ?—No.

6569. Are you quite sure of that ?—Yes.

6570. Have you heard of any promise being made this time to anybody ?—No.

ROBERT POWLEY sworn and examined.

6571. (Mr. Biron.) What are you?—A publican.

6572. Did you vote at the last election?—Yes.

6573. For whom?—Mr. Stracey.

6574. At what time did you vote?—I think something about 2 o'clock.

6575. What public house do you keep?—The "Jolly Farmers," on the Castle Hill.

6576. Were there any men at your house that day drinking?—No.

6577. Nobody at your house?—No.

6578. Not on the election day?—No, I never had. I never was an electioneering man, but I voted this time.

6579. I asked you whether there were not men in your house drinking?—No, not to the best of my knowledge. I never see nobody.

6580. You never drew a pint of beer on the election day?—Oh, I do not know; there might be some one come in and have some beer, but not for electioneering purposes.

6581. I asked you if there were any men drinking in your house?—I do not know; I forget about that. I think there was. I do not know exactly about that. There might be somebody come in. I were not at home only perhaps an hour in the day sometimes.

6582. Do you mean to say you were not at home, or that you were at home?—I was at home perhaps at a chance time. My business does not lay in the house, but about the hay and corn trade.

6583. I ask you a plain question, were there any men at your house drinking?—There might be, but I do not know who was or who was not.

6584. Were you at home or not?—I do not know. There might be somebody drinking there. I do not know.

6585. You need not tell me there "might" be. I ask you whether there were or were not any men drinking there?—I cannot say. Perhaps I wern't at home very little time. I wern't at home very little on the election day. Sometimes I was within doors, sometimes I was not.

6586. Were you in and out of the house?—Yes.

6587. And your business is to draw beer?—I do not interfere with that; my missus does. There were some people that came in during the course of the day.

6588. Just tell me who was in the house during that day?—It is impossible for me to do that.

6589. Were you drunk yourself?—I might be. I drink more out of the house than in, I know.

6590. Do you mean to say you were drunk at your own house?—I beg your pardon, I did not say no such thing.

6591. Were you drunk that day?—No, I wern't.

6592. Then you know perfectly well what happened at your own house.—I cannot tell. It is some time now. I cannot tell you what was drunk in the house that day.

6593. Had you been canvassed before?—No.

6594. What made you vote for Sir Henry Stracey?—I do not know, I am sure. That I cannot tell you.

6595. Were any men having beer at your house that day?—There might be some, I do not know who was there no more than the dead.

6596. Were any people there?—I think it is very likely there was some in. I cannot say.

6597. (Mr. Dowdeswell.) You manage your own business, do you not?—I do; at least, I and my missus do it together. She manages the indoor business.

6598. Upon that day did you take any money for beer in your house?—I never take any money in the house.

6599. Did your wife take any?—I think very likely she did.

6600. Was it an unusually good day with you, or was it an ordinary day?—I do not suppose I took a shilling extra on account of the election. I hardly ever do.

6601. Were they only your regular customers that were in your house?—That is my opinion.

6602. In the ordinary course of your business?—Yes, that is all.

JOHN PRATT sworn and examined.

6603. (Mr. Dowdeswell.) Are you a voter in this city?—Yes.

6604. Did you vote at the last election?—Yes.

6605. For whom did you vote?—Tillett and Russell.

6606. Had you been canvassed for your vote?—Yes.

6607. Had you promised your vote?—Well, sir, I said I was ready. I did not want no canvassing. I knew who I should vote for.

6608. Did you receive any promise or any money whatever for your vote?—No.

ROBERT REVELL sworn and examined.

6609. (Mr. Mansfield.) What are you by trade?—I am a shopkeeper.

6610. Did you vote at this election?—No.

6611. Have you voted before?—No.

6612. Have you a vote?—Yes.

6613. Had you been canvassed by anybody?—I think I was by Mr. Tillett, I think.

6614. You refused to vote for anybody?—I did not vote at all.

6615. Why did you refuse to vote for anybody?—The reason I did not vote is, I was employed by the Liberal party three days before the election at the central committee room, and I was paid for that; therefore I thought it best not to vote.

6616. Have you heard of any improper practices at this last election?—Not at all.

6617. Or at the elections of 1865 or 1860?—I have never heard of any.

6618. You know nothing really of any improper practices?—No.

JOHN SMITH sworn and examined.

6619. (Mr. Biron.) What are you?—A shopkeeper.

6620. Did you vote at the last election?—Yes.

6621. For whom?—Russell and Tillett.

6622. Had you been canvassed?—I think I had a week or a fortnight before; a week I think.

6623. Had you promised your vote to anybody?—No, I always vote on one side.

6624. You have always voted Liberal?—Yes.

6625. Did you do so in 1865 and 1860?—Yes.

6626. Did you get anything for your vote this time?—No, I never care for it.

6627. Nor any promise?—No.

6628. Or on either of the former elections?—Nor on either of the former elections.

SIXTH DAY.

H. Stratman.

25 Aug. 1869.

HENRY STRATMAN sworn and examined.

6629. (Mr. Dowdeswell.) Are you a voter?—Yes.

6630. Did you vote at the last election?—Yes.

6631. For whom did you vote?—Tillett and Russell.

6632. What are you by business?—A cordwainer.

6633. What time did you vote?—About 12 o'clock.

6634. Had you been canvassed?—No.

6635. You promised your vote?—Yes.

6636. For Tillett and Russell?—Yes.

6637. And you carried out your promise?—Yes.

6638. Had you any money for your vote?—No.

6639. Or any promise of money for your vote?—No.

6640. Did you vote at the previous elections?—No, I never voted before.

C. Stubbs.

CHARLES STUBBS sworn and examined.

6641. (Mr. Mansfield.) What are you by trade?—A poulterer.

6642. What time of the day did you vote?—Between 2 and 3, nearer 2 than 3.

6643. For whom did you vote?—Sir Henry Stracey.

6644. Who canvassed you?—Not ne'er a one.

6645. Did you receive anything for your vote?—No, I am a strong Tory, so I do not think anybody would come and ask me for the Liberals.

6646. What is your reason for voting so late in the day?—Business.

6647. Strong politicians generally go early to give their men a start?—It was business that kept me away.

6648. How did you vote in 1865?—A Tory.

6649. In 1860?—I do not know whether I had a vote or not just then. If you run back I do not know.

6650. Have you always voted Tory in this city?—No.

6651. You have voted the other side sometimes?—Once I did.

6652. How do you account for your changing your views?—Little money matters.

6653. Have you transactions with Smith, the fowl dealer, for instance?—No.

6654. Nor Hunt, the fowl dealer?—No.

6655. Have you heard of any money going this election?—No, nor a glass of ale.

6656. (Mr. Dowdeswell.) You said it was a money matter before?—Yes.

6657. Was that at the election of 1860 or 1865?—I do not know.

6658. I will give you the names of the candidates in 1860, Warner and Russell, and Lewis and Forlonge, were the candidates; and in 1865, Warner and Russell, and Goldsmid and Waters. Now you have said there was a little money matter that influenced you. Was it at either of those elections that the money matter affected you?—No, not either of them, it was before that, I think, and I think it was the time there was Bignold up.

6659. (Mr. Mansfield.) Sir Samuel Bignold?—Yes.

6660. Was it Bignold and Bury?—Bignold and Lushington, I think it was.

6661. Now I must ask you was there any little money matter upon the last occasion?—No.

6662. Nothing of the sort in any way?—Nothing of the sort in any way.

6663. No promise?—No.

6664. No pressure?—No, not in any shape whatever.

6665. It was your own free will entirely that led you to vote?—My own free will.

6666. (Mr. Biron.) What did you get on that last occasion when you speak of the little money matter?—It was something about 5*l.*, I think.

W. Storey.

WILLIAM STOREY sworn and examined.

6667. (Mr. Biron.) What are you?—A plumber.

6668. Did you vote at the last election?—Yes.

6669. For whom?—For Stracey and Russell.

6670. At what hour in the day did you vote?—I think between 12 and 1. I cannot remember exactly. Something like that, I think.

6671. Had you been canvassed for your vote?—Both parties canvassed me, of course.

6672. And did you promise both parties?—No, not either.

6673. How came you to vote for Russell, who was a Liberal, and Sir Henry Stracey, who was a Tory?—I don't know for why; I did so.

6674. But you must have had a reason?—No reason at all; no intimidation at all.

6675. I am not talking about intimidation or bribery. You wanted to please both sides?—I pleased myself.

6676. Pleasing other people pleased you?—I pleased myself.

6677. Did you get any money?—No, not a farthing.

6678. Or any promise of it?—Nothing in the shape of it.

A. Sparks.

ALBION SPARKS sworn and examined.

6679. (Mr. Dowdeswell.) What are you by trade?—A tailor.

6680. Were you a voter at the last election?—Yes.

6681. For whom did you vote?—Sir Henry Stracey.

6682. Had you been canvassed?—Yes.

6683. Had you promised?—Well, not particular.

6684. Had you promised at all?—I promised my vote for Mr. Stracey.

6685. When you were canvassed?—When I was canvassed—yes.

6686. Did you receive any money?—Not any.

6687. Or did you receive any promise of money for voting at that election?—Not any.

6688. Were you a voter previously to the last election?—Not till this last election, I was not.

J. Stolworthy.

JOSEPH STOLWORTHY sworn and examined.

6689. (Mr. Mansfield.) What are you by trade?—A shoemaker.

6690. Did you vote at the last election?—I never voted at all.

6691. Have you ever voted—No.

6692. By whom were you canvassed?—I cannot tell you the names. There were two came.

6693. Did anybody offer you money?—No.

6694. (Mr. Dowdeswell.) Were you asked to give your vote?—Yes; I told them I had not time.

6695. Were you standing out for money for your time?—No.

6696. Where do you live?—Orford Hill.

6697. The polling place was close to you?—Yes.

6698. Very well; now if you told them you had not time, that was a falsehood?—No, it was not. I was busy at my work.

6699. Surely you had time to go up to the polling place, 100 yards from you?—No, I had not. I had a certain quantity of work. I was forced to do it.

6700. You had plenty of time to go up to vote, surely?—No.

6701. Do you mean to say you had not time to go up 100 yards to give your vote?—If I did I should be too late for the shop.

6702. But you went home to dinner?—No; I work at home and live at home.

6703. Then are you your own master?—Yes, of course I am.

6704. Have you a wife?—Yes; and a family.

6705. You go out sometimes?—Very seldom, without it be of a Saturday night.

6706. When you go out who takes care of your place?—My wife.

6707. Why could not your wife take care of your place while you went out 100 yards to give your vote?—I told them I could not lose time for the vote.

6708. Was it not that you were standing out to get some money for the vote?—I did not want anybody to give me any. I told them I didn't want the vote.

6709. Was not your motive that you might get something for your vote?—No; I said I would not vote from the first.

6710. (Mr. Biron.) If anybody had given you your day's work, you would have voted?—I don't know that; I might have.

6711. When you said "I have not time to go," if a man said "I will give you 5*s.*," or something like that, whatever you earn a day, would you then have voted?—I might.

6712. You would have done it, of course?—I never had nothing offered me.

6713. (Mr. Dowdeswell.) You would not vote unless you had?—No.

6714. (Mr. Biron.) But if you had had your day's work you would have gone and voted?—I said from the first that I would not vote.

6715. The plain English is—if you had got your day's work paid for you would have gone and voted?—I might have done it.

6716. Why cannot you say that? That is what you meant, and that is what everybody knows you mean; but it would be much more honest to say it; that is the English of it, is it not?—Yes.

JOHN SPENCER sworn and examined.

J. Spencer.

6717. (Mr. Biron.) What are you?—A gardener.

6718. Did you vote at the last election?—Yes.

6719. For whom?—Tillett and Russell.

6720. Had you been canvassed?—No one ever asked me for my vote.

6721. Had you voted before on other elections?—Never.

6722. You are a Radical, I suppose?—I call myself a Radical. That's all I can say about it.

6723. Did you receive any money?—No.

6724. Nor yet any promise?—Nothing of the sort.

GEORGE TANEY sworn and examined.

G. Taney.

6725. (Mr. Dowdeswell.) What are you?—Photographer.

6726. Were you a voter at the last election?—Yes.

6727. For whom did you vote?—Russell.

6728. At what time did you vote?—Between 2 and 3.

6729. Had you been canvassed?—Yes, on several occasions.

6730. When were you canvassed?—Two or three days previous to the election.

6731. Who canvassed you?—There were many of them. I do not remember who.

6732. Did you promise your vote?—Yes.

6733. When you were first asked?—Yes.

6734. To whom did you promise your vote?—Russell.

6735. How came you to vote so late?—I was busy the fore part of the time.

6736. But you know that is very late in the day to poll for a man who promises his vote?—I had something better to do, perhaps.

6737. Had you promised Stracey as well?—No.

6738. Are you sure of that?—Positive.

6739. Do you mean to say that you had not promised Sir Henry Stracey a vote?—Exactly.

6740. Whom did you see on the part of Sir Henry Stracey?—I am sure I could not recollect that. There were several of them came in.

6741. Do not you know who came to you on the part of Sir Henry Stracey?—I cannot remember.

6742. Are you quite certain?—Yes, I am certain of it.

6743. Did you get anything to plump for Russell?—No.

6744. Did you get a promise of anything if you would plump?—No.

6745. Did you get anything at all to vote?—No.

6746. Nor the promise of anything?—No.

ISAAC MOWER THWAITES sworn and examined.

I. M. Thwaites.

6747. (Mr. Mansfield.) What are you by trade?—Decorative artist.

6748. Did you vote?—I didn't vote.

6749. Had you been asked to vote?—No; I was out of town.

6750. Had you voted at previous elections?—Yes.

6751. Had anything been offered to you to come and vote?—Not that I remember.

6752. But did anybody come and ask you to vote for either of these candidates at this last election?—No, I was out of town.

6753. How long before were you out of town?—About two months.

6754. When did you return?—About three months ago; I beg your pardon, I returned about Christmas time.

6755. You did not come home till after Christmas?—No.

6756. You were away the whole of the time?—Yes.

SIXTH DAY.

I. M. Thwaites.

25 Aug. 1869.

6757. (Mr. Dowdeswell.) Were you a voter before the last election ?—Yes.

6758. Were you a voter in 1860 ?—Yes.

6759. Were you a voter in 1865 ?—Yes.

6760. Did you upon either of those occasions receive any money for voting ?—No.

6761. Or the promise of any money ?—No.

JAMES UNDERWOOD sworn and examined.

J. Underwood.

6762. (Mr. Biron.) Are you a voter ?—Yes.

6763. Did you vote at the last election ?—Yes.

6764. When did you vote ?—Betwixt 1 and 2.

6765. For whom ?—Sir Henry Stracey.

6766. Had you been canvassed ?—No; I was not at home, if they canvassed me. I didn't see anybody.

6767. Where were you on the morning of the polling ?—At work.

6768. Were not you at any public house ?—No.

6769. Did you get any money for voting ?—No.

6770. Or the promise of money ?—None.

6771. Was anything said to you about voting ?—No.

6772. Not a word ?—No. I was at work all the day till I come home for dinner. That is the time I voted. I was not asked who I was going to vote for, nor anything.

6773. Who brought you up to the poll ?—Myself, when I got home to dinner.

4774. Was that your reason for waiting till then, your dinner hour ?—I had not an opportunity of voting before.

6775. Had you voted on former occasions ?—No.

A. J. Wilde.

AMIS JAMES WILDE sworn and examined.

6776. (Mr. Dowdeswell.) What are you by business ?—A cordwainer.

6777. For whom did you vote at the last election ?—Russell and Tillett.

6778. Had you been canvassed ?—Yes, at least I had the cards sent me.

6779. Did they ask you for your vote before the day ?—No, not personally.

6780. Did you go up of your own accord to the poll, or did somebody come and fetch you ?—I went of my own accord.

6781. Did you receive any money or the promise of any money for your vote ?—Not the slightest.

6782. Or did you receive any money after you had voted ?—No, not anything.

6783. Were you a voter before ?—That is the first vote I ever gave.

Adjourned to to-morrow at 10.30.

SEVENTH DAY.

Thursday, 26th August 1869.

SEVENTH DAY.

T. Ellis.

26 Aug. 1869.

THOMAS ELLIS sworn and examined.

6784. (Mr. Dowdeswell.) Are you a voter ?—Yes.

6785. What are you by business ?—A fruit and potato salesman.

6786. Did you vote at the last election ?—I did.

6787. For whom did you vote ?—For Tillett and Russell.

6788. Had you promised your vote to anybody ?—No.

6789. Had you been canvassed ?—No, by nobody.

6790. You received no money or any inducement to vote ?—No ; nobody ever spoke to me about it.

6791. You went up voluntarily ?—Yes.

6792. Do you know Bone ?—I know Thomas Bone.

6793. Is he a greengrocer ?—Yes.

6794. Do you also know William Hunt ?—Yes.

6795. Do you recollect hearing a conversation between Hunt and Bone respecting the part which Hunt's brother had taken in the election ?—Yes.

6796. Can you tell me what it was that Hunt said respecting his brother ?—Yes, I will tell you to the best of my memory. Thomas Bone beckoned me from my stall to his one Saturday night when it was raining.

6797. Was it after the election ?—Yes.

6798. How long after the election ?—About a fortnight or three weeks, or it might be a month. I could not say to a day or a week. I recollect it rained that Saturday evening.

6799. You recollect the conversation ?—Yes. Thomas Bone had been speaking to him, and he called me to hear what he had to say. Bone was called away, and left, and then William Hunt told me about his brother, Arthur Hunt, being at the "Trumpet." He also told me about Sir Henry Stracey, Mr. Bignold, and Mr. Patteson going into the room where the men were. Smith, he spoke to them, also Hunt. He said they left there, and went into a room where he said there was two steps to go up.

6800. Did he say whether his brother had had any money or not ?—Yes, I will tell you the tale as he told it to me as well as I recollect.

6801. What did William Hunt say ?—He said that Mr. Stracey, and Mr. Bignold, and Mr. Patteson went into the room where the men were, and then the men said they would not vote without being paid for their day's work, and they left there and went into another room where there was two steps to go up, and then Smith he walked in and Arthur Hunt, and off the table Smith took 10*l.*, and gave it to Arthur Hunt, about 6*l.* of it, and with that he bought 16 voters at 7*s.* 6*d.* each; that is what his brother told me.

6802. Did he say where he had heard that ?—William Hunt told me more than once he had seen it all himself, and he was there, and saw Mr. Stracey, Mr. Bignold, and Mr. Patteson go into this room.

6803. Was it Sir Henry Stracey or Mr. Stracey ?—Sir Henry Stracey, the gentleman that put up for member for Norwich.

6804. You did not hear then what passed between

Hunt and Bone, but you came in consequence of Bone speaking to you, and saying that Hunt had been telling him something?—On the Saturday night before he had told it to Thomas Bone, and that night Bone beckoned me from my stall to his.

6805. Then was Hunt speaking to you and not to Bone?—He was talking to me then.

6806. Was Hunt at Bone's stall at that time?—Yes, he stood on my left.

6807. Where was Bone standing at that time?—He left then, and went away to a customer.

6808. So you did not hear what passed between Bone and Hunt, nor did Bone hear what passed between you and Hunt?—Not to the best of my knowledge; he might, but I do not like to say he did.

6809. Did William Hunt say anything more?—He said then that his brother, Arthur Hunt, had got 1*l.* for what he had done.

6810. Did he say anything about Smith, the fowl dealer?—That Samuel Smith, the fowl dealer, got 1*l.*

6811. Did he say at all where the money was got from?—No; just as he was coming to where the money was got from I had to leave. He said he could tell me that they laid the money down on the table.

6812. He did not mention then any names in connexion with the money?—He mentioned three or four names; he mentioned Fuller, the landlord of the public house; he said that he got 1*l.*

6813. Did he say how he knew it?—He said he saw it; and he said that Fuller's son-in-law or brother-in-law got 1*l.*

6814. (Mr. Biron.) Or brother?—It was either his son-in-law or his brother-in-law; I do not know which.

6815. You are sure the words were "in-law"?—Yes.

6816. (Mr. Dowdeswell.) Did you know Fuller's brother-in-law?—I do not.

6817. Or his son-in-law?—No; I did not know Fuller till he was pointed out to me.

6818. Was that all the conversation that you had with him?—Yes, to the best of my knowledge. I do not recollect anything more.

6819. Were you about the city on the day of the election?—No, I never left St. Peter's, in the market.

6820. Did you see a number of men congregated together during the day?—I never saw so many people in my life before.

6821. Loitering about the streets and about the market place?—Yes, I had to take my stall out of the market that day. I never had to do it at any election before.

6822. Did any men offer you votes?—No.

6823. They might speak to you as being in the market, and they might ask you whether you were ready to stand any money or anything of that sort?—No, they never did.

6824. Were you a voter before?—No, that was my maiden vote.

James Lacon sworn and examined.

J. Lacon.

6825. (Mr. Mansfield.) What time in the day did you vote?—At five minutes past 1.

6826. For whom did you vote?—For Russell and Tillett.

6827. Who canvassed you?—I think Maitland was one, and I do not know who the other was.

6828. What are you by trade?—Superintendent of Mr. Allen's cloth machines.

6829. Did you promise your vote to anybody?—No; I did not promise my vote to anyone.

6830. Did anybody offer you any consideration for your vote?—No.

6831. Do you know of any money going at the election?—No.

6832. You voted at dinner time?—Yes, I voted, and then went to dinner, and then I went to work again at 2 o'clock.

6833. This was your first time of voting?—Yes.

George Frederick Garnham sworn and examined.

G.F.Garnham.

6834. (Mr. Biron.) What are you?—A draper.

6835. Did you vote at the last election?—Yes.

6836. For whom did you vote?—For Sir Henry Stracey.

6837. Did you get anything for your vote?—No, certainly not.

6838. Or were you promised anything?—No.

6839. I believe you were rather an active supporter of Sir Henry Stracey's?—I did what I could for Sir Henry.

6840. You were a Conservative and took up his cause?—Yes.

6841. Was yours the fifth ward?—Yes.

6842. And did you confine yourself for the most part to your own ward?—Principally I did.

6843. I do not mean entirely; probably whenever you saw a man who you thought you could influence fairly you would endeavour to secure his vote, but in your own ward did you canvass?—I canvassed in my own ward, a portion of it.

6844. How many days were you engaged in canvassing?—Not days at all.

6845. On how many days did you canvass?—I went out in the evening twice.

6846. Only on two days?—That is all.

6847. Had you any canvassing books?—No, none at all.

6848. Did you make any memoranda on paper of the result of your canvass?—On paper I did.

6849. To whom did you give up those memoranda?—To Mr. Stockings, the managing man at our committee room.

6850. At the committee room?—Yes; after I had finished my canvass I passed them over to him.

6851. And left them with him, I suppose?—And left them with him.

6852. During your canvass did any of the men ask you for money?—Yes, they did, but I refused.

6853. Did they ask you for money when you asked them for their votes?—Several did.

6854. Can you give me the names of any of the men who did that?—No, I cannot.

6855. I mean the men in your ward?—There might have been two or three, not more certainly.

6856. You told me there were several?—Several is three.

6857. How did you conduct your canvass, did you go to men of whom you had had a previous knowledge?—I went from house to house among those I knew.

6858. What district did you canvass?—The hamlet of Eaton.

6859. That is a very small district, is it not?—It is a small parish about a mile and a half from Norwich.

6860. How many people do you suppose you canvassed there?—It might be 30 or it might be more, I cannot say.

6861. Did you see the voters themselves?—Yes, I did.

6862. You went in the evening, I suppose, in order that you might see them when they returned from their work?—I went after business was over; I did not canvass during the hours of business at all.

6863. Can you not give the names of any of the men who asked you for money?—No, I cannot, I should not know them. I should know the men, but should not know their names.

SEVENTH DAY.

G. F. Garnham.

26 Aug. 1869.

6864. Should you know the houses where they live?—Yes, I think I should.

6865. Do you think you could get us their names?—I can give you two, two Adcocks.

6866. What did they want?—They said they should not come up and vote unless we gave them their day's pay, and I said we would not do that.

6867. I suppose that was the temper of most of them, they wanted a day's pay?—Those names that I have now mentioned did.

6868. And any of the others?—No.

6869. Did the others promise you at once, or did they hang back?—I do not think we had more than two who said they would vote against us.

6870. And what did the others say, did they say they had not made up their minds?—No, they said that possibly they might vote for Sir Henry Stracey.

6871. You told me that the two Adcocks said they would not vote unless they they had a day's pay?—No, they said it was not worth their while troubling themselves to come to Norwich to vote.

6872. I suppose you returned their names to the committee?—Yes, I returned their names with any information we got about them.

6873. How did you return the Adcocks?—They were returned doubtful.

6874. Did you not put "Want a day's pay"?—No.

6875. Did you mark the paper yourself?—I did.

6876. You did not yourself mark the register that was kept at the committee room?—No, I had nothing to do with that at all. I had nothing to do with the register; it was only my own piece of paper that I had.

6877. (Mr. Mansfield.) The paper you handed over to Stockings?—The paper I handed over to Stockings.

6878. (Mr. Biron.) You tell me that it was on two evenings you canvassed?—I canvassed on the election morning. I canvassed in our own ward.

6879. Did you start out from your own house, or from the committee room?—I was up and down in the committee room several times during the day.

6880. And then you went about your own ward?—Yes.

6881. At what hour did you commence?—I should think about 12 o'clock. I am not certain about the time.

6882. At that time you knew that Sir Henry Stracey was behind, did you not?—I knew that he wes behind then.

6883. Who did you canvass after 12 o'clock?—A party of the name of Prentice, at the "Mitre," and Bland, at the "Bell" hotel.

6884. Did Prentice promise his vote or not?—He came up with me and voted.

6885. Did he ask for anything—No.

6886. Did he say why he had not voted before?—No.

6887. What did you say to him?—I asked him to come up and vote, and he immediately put on his coat and walked with me.

6888. What is he?—An innkeeper.

6889. Now, the other man, Bland, what is he?—An ostler.

6890. What did you say to him?—He went and voted directly.

6891. Did you canvass anybody else?—I might have seen several during the morning, but on the election morning I did not go from house to house to canvass.

6892. But you took your chance of meeting voters in the city that you knew?—Yes.

6893. Can you give me the names of any of those you met and asked to vote?—No, I cannot give you the names.

6894. When you asked them to vote what was the answer you got; they were not very ready to vote, were they?—Those who voted for Stracey went up at once.

6895. But others were not very ready to go up?—I met with none of them at all.

6896. Did you not meet with any who were hanging back?—No.

6897. Did you not meet with any who said "I "shall not vote yet"?—No.

6898. Or, "I shall not vote till the afternoon"?—No.

6899. Did you meet with no men who were perfectly ready to be bribed?—No.

6900. Did you see men who gave you that impression?—There were two men I saw in the street.

6901. Where were they?—Up St. Stephen's.

6902. Whereabouts?—Near the committee room.

6903. What time was that?—About 2 or half-past 2, or something like that.

6904. What did you say to them?—I said I could not give them anything.

6905. What did you say to them first?—I asked them for their vote for Sir Henry Stracey, and they said they should not give it yet.

6906. You knew what that meant?—Well.

6907. You said they would get nothing out of you?—Yes; I said I would not give them anything, and I promised them nothing.

6908. Did they say anything after that?—No.

6909. Did you not see anybody else of the same temper that afternoon as those two men?—No, I do not remember it.

6910. Did you see men standing about with their voting cards in their hands?—No.

6911. Not anywhere?—I might see them, but I did not particularly notice them.

6912. That is a tolerable advertisement at 2 o'clock that a man has not voted, is it not?—They might have been standing with cards.

6913. But were they not?—I do not know.

6914. You told me that you thought you had seen them?—I saw those two men.

6915. But other men?—I saw lots of men standing about the streets all the afternoon.

6916. I asked you whether you did not see them standing about with cards in their hands?—I saw lots of men standing about.

6917. With cards in their hands?—I do not say I remember seeing cards in their hands.

6918. Or in their hats?—No.

6919. Did you not see men showing their cards?—No.

6920. Or holding them or carrying them so that persons could see perfectly well that they had not voted?—Not to the best of my knowledge; I do not remember it.

6921. You could hardly forget it, you know?—I do not remember it. When I saw any men belonging to our ward I asked for their votes. Lots of men I asked, whose names I do not know. I am very seldom out.

6922. Did those two men you mention, who asked you for money and said they would not vote without, belong to your ward?—They were in the fifth ward, very nearly opposite the committee room.

6923. Did you know them?—No.

6924. How was it that you came to ask them for their votes?—Some one said to me "Those are "voters," and I then asked them if they had voted, and they said they had not.

6925. On the day of the polling how many men did you pick up, do you think?—Do you mean to take to the poll?

6926. Yes.—Not one.

6927. How many did you induce or persuade to go to the poll?—On the day of the election I did not take any up.

6928. How many did you get to promise to vote?—I do not remember any promise on the election day, except Prentice, who went with me, and Bland.

6929. Were those the only two men you got to vote the whole day long ?—Those are the only two.

6930. How many did you try to get ?—Those that I saw standing about the streets.

6931. But how many, I ask you ?—None besides those two.

6932. You seem determined not to understand my question.—I quite understand your question.

6933. We have disposed of two men who you got to go up to the poll, Bland and Prentice; then, as you have already told me, anybody belonging to your ward that you knew you asked ?—Yes, so I did.

6934. How many were there ?—There might be 10 or 15.

6935. Did you canvass in that ward 15 men ?—I might have done so.

6936. Did you ?—I do not know how many, I might have asked 20.

6937. You might have asked 500 or 5000; my question is how many did you ask ?—I might have asked a dozen. I cannot tell how many.

6938. When you say you might, do you mean that you did ask a dozen ?—I do not know.

6939. Do you mean to tell me that you cannot tell within five or six how many you canvassed ?—I cannot say.

6940. Or within 20 ?—No.

6941. 30 ?—No.

6942. 40 ?—No, I cannot.

6943. Or 50 ?—No.

6944. Or 100 ?—No, I cannot.

6945. It is an astounding thing to me to hear a man of your position answer in that way; it is a most melancholy exhibition.—I asked those I saw.

6946. (Mr. Dowdeswell.) Consider that you are now giving your evidence on your solemn oath.—I know I am.

6947. You are giving it to persons who possess common intelligence, and in the presence of a number of your own fellow citizens whose respect and esteem I should think you value, and when you give such an answer as that which you have just given it is almost an insult to the common sense of the gentlemen to whom it is addressed, and it is not at all calculated to impress, I should think, anyone of your fellow citizens with confidence in your statements.

6948. (Mr. Biron.) About how many people did you ask for their votes on that day ?—I say I might have asked 15 or 20, I do not know how many.

6949. About how many ?—I cannot tell you the number; I say I might have asked 15.

6950. Were you not very active on the polling day ?—I took an active part, no doubt.

6951. Were you not about the whole day long ?—From 12 o'clock.

6952. Were you not asking every voter you came against who you thought had not voted in your ward ?—Those that were pointed out to me I asked for their votes.

6953. Who was with you ?—Another party who canvassed with me.

6954. Who was he ?—Mr. Parker.

6955. You knew of people in your ward yourself, did you not ?—I have been six years a lodger. I know very little about the city. I do not know all the people in our ward.

6956. Was it Thomas or Frederick Parker who was with you ?—It was Frederick, in Ber Street.

6957. Being about there the whole of that day, do you mean to tell me you did not canvass more than 15 people ?—I do not think I did.

6958. You only brought two to the poll ?—No, Prentice and Bland. I do not know who the other men were.

6959. What did they say to you ?—They said they had not voted, but they did not ask me for money.

6960. I did not ask whether they asked you for money or not. I asked you what they said to you ?—They said they had not voted some of them. I do not remember at all what many of them said.

6961. Did they say whether they would vote or not ?—No, some of them did not.

6962. What did you understand by that ?—That they were doubtful. I did not know which way they were going.

6963. Do you mean to represent that you do not know what a man wants whose vote is doubtful at 2 o'clock upon the day of the polling ?—I thought that it possibly might mean something.

6964. What did you think it meant ?—I thought they wanted money.

Why did you not tell me that half-an-hour ago instead of wasting my time and everybody else's ? It is perfectly scandalous that a man in your position should act in such a way. You knew perfectly well what I meant half-an-hour ago, and have been trifling with me all this time.

6965. (Mr. Dowdeswell.) When you got those answers from the men you canvassed which you have stated, and you believed that large numbers of men were standing out for bribes, did you not go to your committee room and inform the persons there what was taking place ?—I made a remark that there were a lot of people standing about.

6966. Is that the manner in which you expressed or intended to convey that they wanted bribes ?—Yes.

6967. To whom did you make that remark; I am speaking of the committee room ?—Those who were standing about in the committee room.

6968. Who were they ? — There was Stockings there, and Mr. Parker was there.

6969. Mr. Parker had been with you ?—Mr. Parker had canvassed with me.

6970. Did he canvass with you on the preceding day ?—He canvassed with me down at Eaton.

6971. Had he canvassed with you at all on the day of the election ?—Yes, he went round with me for about half an hour, but we did not go from house to house on the morning of the election.

6972. You went to those houses where you knew there were voters who had not polled, I suppose ?—No, I did not go into any house at all. I went to Prentice, the man who voted, and up to the "Bell." Those are the only two places.

6973. Besides those two houses, did you go into no other houses that day with a view to get voters ?—No, I did not.

6974. You busied yourself with the people who were standing in the street ?—Yes.

6975. How did you know unless they had cards with them that they were voters at all ?—I only knew it from parties who told me; they said, "Here is a "party who has not voted."

6976. Who were the parties to whom you appealed for information as to whether they had voted or not ?—Mr. Parker, who was with me, and several people. I knew that they knew the men.

6977. But if you saw a person standing about, did you say to somebody, "Is that a voter ?"—Yes; I asked Mr. Matthew Stockings two or three times.

6978. Did he go with you then ?—No; I met him two or three times in the morning in the street.

6979. Was he running about getting voters ?—He was canvassing, I believe.

6980. How was it that Mr. Stockings, when you appealed to him, did not speak to these men instead of you ?—That I cannot tell you.

6981. He was more likely to be personally acquainted with the men than you were ?—He knew them, and I did not.

6982. How was it then that Mr. Stockings, who knew them, did not canvass them instead of you ?—He did sometimes; sometimes he asked them, and sometimes he said, "That party's name is so-and-so, "see if you can get him," and I went up and spoke to him, and asked him for his vote.

SEVENTH DAY.

G.F.Garnham.

26 Aug. 1869.

6983. You were about with Mr. Parker and with Mr. Stockings?—Yes.

6984. Who else did you appeal to to ascertain whether the men were voters?—Mr. Fisher; I saw him in the street.

6985. Did you canvass the voters whom he pointed out as voters?—Sometimes Mr. Fisher spoke to them, and I spoke to them as well with him.

6986. How did it happen that you, instead of Mr. Stockings or Mr. Fisher, tried to persuade them?—I used all the influence I could with them.

6987. But what influence had you with men who were standing about, and who you had never seen before in the course of your natural life, perhaps?—Yes, I might have seen them.

6988. No doubt you might have seen a very large number of men, but your merely seeing them does not give you an influence over them, does it?—No.

6989. Mr. Stockings and Mr. Fisher did know them, and might have an influence over them; but what influence could you have with them?—I merely took part with them by trying to see if I could induce them to vote.

6990. Did not you offer any of those men money?—No.

6991. Did you tell them where money could be got?—No.

6992. Did you not suggest to them where it was possible that they might be provided with that which they required?—No.

6993–4. Did you know where they could get the money?—I had heard of the "Trumpet."

6995. Having heard of the "Trumpet," did you mention the "Trumpet" to anybody?—No.

6996. Not to a soul?—I went into the "Trumpet" during the day.

6997. What time did you happen to go to that hotel of purity, the "Trumpet"?—It might have been 12 o'clock.

6998. Or it might have been 2?—Yes.

6999. Did you go there in consequence of seeing Smith, the fowl dealer?—No.

7000. How came you to go in there?—I went in with Sir Henry Stracey.

7001. Who was with you besides?—Mr. Patteson.

7002. Anybody else?—No.

7003. Where did you go?—Into the room at the "Trumpet."

7004. How came you to go with Sir Henry Stracey and Mr. Patteson into the "Trumpet"?—I went from the fourth ward committee room with Sir Henry Stracey and Mr. Patteson.

7005. That was out of your ward?—Yes; I was in the fourth ward committee room.

7006. I want to know how you, being in the fourth ward, came to go down to that hotel of purity in the fifth ward; was it convenient that you should go there?—I went with them.

7007. Did you remain behind?—We were not in the "Trumpet" three minutes.

7008. Who asked you to go?—No one. I was standing there at the time.

7009. Do I understand you to say that seeing Sir Henry Stracey you got into his carriage?—I will tell you how it was. I went to see how they were getting on at the fourth ward committee room. Sir Henry Stracey and Mr. Patteson were going up to the fifth ward committee room.

7010. You being in the fourth ward, how came you to get into the carriage with them to go up to fifth ward committee room?—That was our committee room.

7011. Having gone up to the committee room, how came you to go up to the "Trumpet"?—I went with Sir Henry Stracey, and heard what he said.

7012. Did you walk down?—We got out of the carriage at our fifth ward committee room, and then went on to the "Trumpet," which is about 20 or 30 yards from it.

7013. How came you to go to the "Trumpet." We understand why Sir Henry Stracey might?—For curiosity's sake, nothing beyond that.

7014. Did you see Hunt there?—No.

7015. Did you see Smith there?—No; I saw Smith several times during the morning standing by the "Trumpet" door.

7016. Had Smith said anything to you about the "Trumpet"?—No.

7017. Then what was your curiosity about the "Trumpet"?—I had a mind to hear what Sir Henry Stracey said to the voters.

7018. Did you hear what Sir Henry Stracey said to the voters?—Yes, I did.

7019. Where did he go?—He went into what I think they call the market room, just at the back of the bar.

7020. Did you not see Hunt there?—No, I do not remember seeing Hunt there.

7021. Did you see Hunt come out?—No; I saw Hunt several times during the course of the day.

7022. Where did you see him?—Outside the "Trumpet."

7023. Did you see him again in the "Trumpet" that day at all?—I do not recollect.

7024. You went several times into the "Trumpet," did you not?—No, I went twice into the "Trumpet."

7025. How came you to go into the "Trumpet" the second time?—I went in in the morning long before Sir Henry Stracey did. Sir Henry Stracey went in, I should think, about 2 o'clock.

7026. What time in the morning were you there?—It might be about 11.

7027. But was it?—I cannot say the time.

7028. Did you speak to Hunt in the morning?—No.

7029. Was Smith, the fowl dealer, there then?—I saw him several times during the day.

7030. Near the committee room?—Yes.

7031. You went down and saw Hunt there early in the morning?—About 11 o'clock, outside.

7032. Did you go into the "Trumpet" in the morning?—I did.

7033. Did you not see Hunt then?—I do not remember it.

7034. What took you inside the "Trumpet" at that time in the morning?—I went in to have a glass of ale.

7035. It was not curiosity then that took you there?—No.

7036. Did you see Hunt up in the committee room?—No.

7037. Hunt is the tenant of Smith, is he not?—I do not know at all.

7038. Did not Smith tell you that Hunt was his tenant?—No.

7039. Was Smith an acquaintance of yours?—No.

7040. Had you never had any acquaintance with Smith before?—No.

7041. Having gone into the "Trumpet" from curiosity with Sir Henry Stracey, did you go to the "Trumpet" again from curiosity?—No, I do not remember going in again.

7042. But you may have done so, may you not?—No.

7043. Will you undertake to say you did not?—No. Directly after Sir Henry Stracey left I went down into the market place to hear how they were getting on.

7044. But you may have gone back and found yourself inside the "Trumpet," did you?—No.

7045. Did you see Hunt after Sir Henry Stracey had been at the "Trumpet"?—No.

7046. You saw Smith afterwards?—No, I do not remember seeing Smith afterwards.

7047. How many times had you seen Smith that day ?—I might have seen him three or four times.

7048. Was he up in the committee room constantly ?—No ; I never saw Hunt up in the committee room at all.

7049. Smith ? — Smith, I saw in the committee room.

7050. How many times in the course of the day did you see Smith in the committee room ?—I do not remember seeing Smith more than once.

7051. What time did you see Smith there ?—I do not remember the time.

7052. Had you any conversation with Smith in the committee room ?—No ; I saw Smith looking over the list as they marked them off.

7053. Was it about 2 o'clock in the day ?—I am not certain as to the time.

7054. But what do you believe ?—It might be 1 o'clock. I think most likely it was about 1.

7055. Was it before Sir Henry Stracey went down to the "Trumpet" ?—Yes, long before.

7056. It could not have been long before.—I think when Sir Henry Stracey went it was about 2 o'clock.

7057. It may have been 2 o'clock when you saw Smith ticking them off ?—Yes.

7058. To whom was Smith talking in the committee room ?—I cannot tell you. I should think there might have been a dozen or 14 people in.

7059. If so you can tell me perhaps the names of the persons or some of them who were in the committee room ?—Mr. Parker was there.

7060. Mr. Frederick Parker ?—Yes, Mr. Smith, the silversmith, Mr. Fisher.

7061. Mr. Gowing ?—Mr. George Gowing, yes, I saw him there.

7062. Did you see Mr. Gowing at the "Trumpet" ?—No.

7063. Did you see Mr. Frederick Parker at the "Trumpet" ?—No, I do not remember it.

7064. Will you undertake to say you did not ?—I do not think I did.

7065. Will you undertake to say you did not ?—I do not remember seeing him.

7066. Is that all you will say ?—Yes.

7067. You understood that people at the "Trumpet" wanted money ?—Report said so.

7068. But you were in the room when Sir Henry Stracey was there ?—Sir Henry Stracey said nothing about giving them money.

7069–70. But did they not say anything to Sir Henry Stracey about money ?—No, they did not.

7071. Did you not hear the men say they had rates to pay ?—I will swear that I did not hear them ask Sir Henry Stracey for money.

7072. Did you not hear them say, or did you not hear one of them say, to Sir Henry Stracey that they had rates to pay ?—No, I do not remember it.

7073. You went there from curiosity to hear what was going on ; do you mean to say that you did not hear any persons there say, or did you not hear one of them say, they had rates to pay ?—No, I did not.

7074. What did you hear ?—I can tell you what I heard. I heard what Sir Henry Stracey said, because I was close behind him.

7075. Did you hear Sir Henry Stracey say anything about money ?—No, not a word.

7076. What did Sir Henry Stracey say ?—He said, "Now, my friends, are you going to vote ?" "Yes.' "Now is your time if you wish to support good "Conservatives," or something to that effect.

7077. Do you mean to say that all the men there said they were ready to vote for him ?—I did not hear what they said.

7078. You said just this minute that they said yes ?—I did not say anything of the sort.

(The three last questions and answers are read to the witness.)

(The Witness.) I did not hear the men say anything. I could not swear to what the men said. I do not remember the words that the men said, neither did I hear them distinctly to understand what they said.

7079. Were you close to Sir Henry Stracey ?—I was just behind him, and I heard what he said, because he has a powerful voice, and I could hear every word.

7080. Sir Henry Stracey had his back to you, then ?—Yes.

7081. And the men who spoke had their faces to you ?—Some of them were by the side.

7082. You heard what Sir Henry Stracey said ; do you mean to say that you did not hear what the men who had their faces towards you said ?—No, I did not.

7083. Did you hear no talk that day about money ?—I heard the report.

7084. Where did you hear the report ?—In the streets.

7085. Who told you in the streets ?—That I cannot say ; it was common report.

7086. Did you not hear it in the committee room ?—No, I did not.

7087. Did you not hear it said in the committee room that the men at the "Trumpet" wanted money ?—No.

7088. Did nobody in the committee room say that there were men down in the "Trumpet" who wanted money ?—No ; Mr. Fisher was in the committeee room at the time.

7089. Did you hear Mr. Fisher say that men wanted money at the "Trumpet" ?—No.

7090. Did you hear Mr. Fisher say he had been down at the "Trumpet" ?—Mr. Fisher was in the "Trumpet" when I was in.

7091. At the time when Sir Henry Stracey was there ?—No.

7092. Was he in the "Trumpet" when you went in ?—No ; I saw him when I was passing by.

7093. Did you see him coming in or going out ?—No ; I saw him standing there.

7094. How long did you see him standing there ?—I was merely passing by.

7095. You went into the "Trumpet" ; at what time was it, with reference to your going in, that you saw Mr. Fisher ?—I did not go in when Mr. Fisher was there.

7096. When was it that you saw Mr. Fisher ?—Some time during the morning.

7097. That is very indefinite ?—I could not tell you the time.

7098. What was he doing ?—I do not know what he was doing.

7099. Where was he standing ?—Just inside the door.

7100. Were there any people there ?—Several.

7101. Was he talking to them ?—That I cannot tell you. I saw him there. I cannot tell you whether he might be talking to them or not.

7102. Was not there a talk on the part of Smith about money ?—I do not know.

7103. You saw Smith, you know ?—I saw Smith several times outside.

7104. There was a talk about your difficulties between 12 and 1 o'clock ? — Yes, of course there was.

7105. And as to how the difficulties were to be surmounted ?—No, I did not hear anything of that kind. It was commonly reported that they wanted money for their votes ; that I heard several times, but who told me I cannot say.

7106. And it was commonly reported in the committee room ?—No.

7107. Was it kept secret then in the committee room ?—I do not know.

7108. What time did you cease your exertions ?—About half-past 3, I suppose. Prentice and Bland were the last I took up. Prentice went up first and Bland second ; and that I think was about a quarter past 3.

SEVENTH DAY.

G. F. Garnham.

26 Aug. 1869.

7109. Did you give or promise any man a day's pay or money on that day ?—No, I do not remember it.

7110. You do not remember it ?—Certainly not ; I never spent a halfpenny.

7111. But did you promise anything ?—No, I did not promise.

7112. Did you give any beer ?—No.

7113. Did you promise any ?—No.

7114. Did you pay for any ? — That I cannot say.

7115. Where did you pay for beer ?—Not in the "Trumpet," I did not.

7116. Where then ?—I did not give beer away to any voter.

7117. But did you pay for beer ? — No, I did not.

7118. Then how came you to give the answer you gave me just now ?—I did not pay for any, nor did I order any.

7119. How came you to say just now that you had paid for beer, or how came you to hesitate about it ? —I beg your pardon, I did not say that I had paid for any beer.

7120. Then what was the public house at which you left money for beer ?—I never left a farthing.

7121. What was the public house at which you paid any money on that day ?—Not one.

7122. What is the public house at which you have paid money since ?—Not one.

7123. Did you give money on that day to anybody to spend at a public house ?—No.

7124. Or to pay at a public house ?—No.

7125. Have you done so since ?—No.

7126. How came you to give me the indefinite answer you gave me just uow ?—You asked me if I had paid any money for beer, and I distinctly say that I did not.

7127. Did you have some beer yourself at the "Trumpet" ?—I had, for which I paid.

7128. You have told us that you paid nothing for beer at the "Trumpet" ?—I understood you to mean for voters.

7129. Do you mean to say that you paid for no beer for voters on that day ?—No, I did not.

7130. (Mr. Mansfield.) You say there was a general report between 12 and 1 o'clock that there were men at the "Trumpet" ready to be bought ?—No ; I say there was a general report in the city that people wanted money.

7131. At the "Trumpet" ?—I beg your pardon, I did not say at the "Trumpet." I say it was a general report in the city that people were waiting to be bribed.

7132. And that report was known to the gentlemen in the committee room ?—No, I do not remember its being mentioned in the committee room at all.

7133. It was known, was it not ?—That I cannot tell. I did not know it.

7134. But you had heard it reported between 12 and 1 ?—Yes.

7135. And it was about 1 o'clock when Smith, the fowl dealer, reached the committee room ?—That I would not swear.

7136. You said just now that that was about 1 o'clock ?—I beg your pardon, I did not say anything of the sort. I said that Sir Henry Stracey visited the fifth ward committee room, and then we went on to the "Trumpet." I knew that Smith was in the committee room, but I would not swear what time that was ; it might be 1 o'clock I said.

7137. What was the time when this report was current ?—It was reported about that time.

7138. Did you see Smith talking to Mr. Hardy ?—Mr. Hardy was in the committee room several times that day.

7139. Had you been about with Mr. Hardy during the day ?—No, not at all.

7140. (Mr. Biron.) Did not Smith tell you anything about there being men at the "Trumpet" ?—No.

7141. Did he not say that to anybody ?—Not in my presence, and I heard nothing in the committee room about the "Trumpet."

7142. To whom did Smith speak in the "Trumpet" ?—I could not tell. I should think when Smith came up into the committee room there might have been a dozen or 15 people there, and we were all having a chat with each other.

7143. Who were the dozen or 15 people ? — I do not remember. I can give you I daresay the greater portion of their names.

7144. Tell us those you can recollect ?—Mr. Hardy was one, myself was two, Mr. Smith was three, Mr. Frederick Parker, Mr. Stockings, and Smith, the fowl dealer.

7145. Those are six. Mr. Fisher ?—Mr. Fisher was another.

7146. Was Hunt there ?—No ; I never saw Hunt in the committee room at all.

7147. Was Mr. Pitt there ?—Yes, I saw Pitt. If you will suggest any names to me, I will soon tell you whether they were there or not.

7148. Do you know a man of the name of Cubitt ? —Yes, very well indeed, and a very nice gentlemanly man he is ; he is an ironmonger.

7149. Is he a fifth ward man ?—Yes.

7150. And a Conservative ?—Yes, certainly.

7151. Was he there ?—No.

7152. Did he take an active part in the canvass in the fifth ward ?—No, I do not remember his even canvassing.

F. Parker.

FREDERICK PARKER sworn and examined.

7153. (Mr. Mansfield.) What are you ? — A grocer.

7154. You took, did you not, a very active part in this election ?—Yes, I canvassed one of the parishes in the fifth ward.

7155. Did you canvass before the election ? — Yes, a little before the election ; the parish of Timberhill.

7156. Are you a voter ?—Yes.

7157. For whom did you vote ?—I voted for Sir Henry Stracey.

7158. Had you been canvassing the previous days ? —For a few days previous to the election.

7159. In your own ward ?—In my own ward ; my own parish.

7160. How many houses did you canvass ?—I could not possibly tell you that.

7161. Can you give us the names of the men you canvassed ?—Some ; but I cannot possibly give you the names of all of them. I can give you some ; Dawson and Gibbs.

7162. Did you make any note with regard to the people you canvassed ?—No, not particularly.

7163. Did you not make a return ?—I made a mark in my book against them.

7164. And how did you mark your book, did you put down the promises ?—Yes.

7165. And what else ?—If I found that they had promised for Stracey or for Russell and Tillett I made a mark.

7166. How did you mark the doubtful voters ?—Well I put the letter "D" against them.

7167. And what did you do with that document ? —It was taken to Mr. Stockings, the agent for the fifth ward.

7168. Now tell me what you were doing on the day of the election ?—I was canvassing and bringing up the voters.

7169. At what time did you go to your committee room after you had voted ?—I think I went up to the committee room about 12 o'clock.

7170. Did you do nothing before 12 o'clock ?—I was bringing up the voters.

7171. How many voters did you bring up ?—I really cannot say, perhaps I might bring up six or eight. I cannot tell you exactly how many.

7172. Do you know who they were ?—Yes, I know some of them.

7173. Give us their names, if you please ?—There was a man of the name of "Outlaw." He was the first man I took up; that was about half-past 8 o'clock in the morning.

7174. He is one of your customers, is he not ?—No, he is not.

7175. Did you not know him before ?—I had known him from his living near me, but he is not a customer.

7176. Who else did you take up ?—Well, there was one out of Grout's Court.

7177. Did you take up a man of the name of Bullen ?—I do not remember the name at all.

7178. Did you take up a man of the name of Bullen, of Scole's Green ?—I went with some one from Scole's Green, but I quite forget the name.

7179. Did you take up a man of the name of Stubbs, in Woolpack Yard ?—No.

7180. Nor Taney, in Prospect Place ?—Three or four went up at one time, but I cannot remember their names.

7181. Do you remember taking up a man named William Neal ?—He might be one of them.

7182. A man named Underwood ?—No, I do not remember that I did.

7183. Do you recollect the name of William Turner, of Westlegate Street ?—No.

7184. Do you recollect the name of Albion Sparks, did you take him up ?—No.

7185. Then you only remember the name of one man that you took up, a voter named Outlaw ?—I can remember one that I took up early in the morning out of Grout's Court.

7186. Later on in the day what were you doing ?—I was taking up voters still.

7187. In what part of your ward were you doing it ?—In the parish of Timberhill.

7188. And who did you take up then ?—I took up a man of the name of Bland, from the "Bell" hotel.

7189. And what other voters ?—I really cannot tell the names now, I cannot indeed.

7190. Can you tell me how many you took up in the course of the day ?—I could not tell you that.

7191. Fifty ?—No.

7192. Did you take up 40 ?—No.

7193. Thirty ?—No.

7194. How many will you say you did take up ?—I cannot say.

7195. When did you go to the committee room in the course of this day ?—I think I went up between 12 and 1 o'clock.

7196. There were a good many people there, I suppose ?—No, very few.

7197. Who were there ?—I cannot say who; I saw Mr. Stockings, but I am sure I cannot say who was there now.

7198. How long did you remain there ?—I might remain there ten minutes perhaps. I was waiting for the dinner hour for the voters to come home to dinner.

7199. Mr. Fisher was there, was he not ?—I am sure I forget. I cannot exactly say who was there.

7200. Was Mr. Hardy there ?—No, I did not see him there. I do not remember seeing him there at all.

7201. Was Frederick Garnham there ?—I do not remember seeing him there.

7202. At present you recollect no names of persons who were there during the day, but perhaps your memory will improve. What were they talking about in the committee room. You knew that you were behindhand on the poll, did you not ?—I did hear that we were a little behindhand, but I thought very little about it. I did not stop there more than 5 or 10 minutes.

7203. Do you mean to represent that you and other gentleman meeting to conduct the election did not know what was going on ?—I did not take sufficient interest about it.

7204. Do you say that you, an active canvasser, took no interest in the election ?—I did not take notice of what was going on, that is, not particular notice.

7205. Had you heard of there being any voters who were ready to be bought in the town ?—No.

7206. In no part of the town ?—I had heard of it of course, but I do not know how at all.

7207. Had you heard of there being voters at any place in the town who might be bought ?—I heard they were at the "Trumpet."

7208. At what time of the day did you hear that ?—I should say between 1 and 2, I think.

7209. Did you pass by the "Trumpet" in the course of the day ?—I did not go up as high as that all day. I did not go near it at all.

7210. Did you see Smith, the fowl dealer, in the course of the day ?—I do not think I saw him the whole day. I know him very well.

7211. He is the owner of house property, is he not ?—He has house property I know.

7212. Whereabouts is his property ?—He has some on Scole's Green.

7213. Is any of it about the "Trumpet" ?—That I do not know. I do not know enough of St. Stephen's to be able to tell.

7214. Did you go to your committee room later in the day, after 12 o'clock ?—I went up, I think, between 1 and 2 o'clock, or it might be a little after.

7215. There were a good many people there then, were there not ?—There were several men there. I could not say I am sure who were there.

7216. Did you not see Sir Henry Stracey there ?—I did not see Sir Henry Stracey the whole day.

7217. Did you see Garnham there ?—I do not know.

7218. Did you see Smith, the fowl dealer, come in ?—No.

7219. Who did you see ?—I think I saw Mr. Stevens, the ironmonger, come in.

7220. Did you see Pitt there ?—I saw him come in.

7221. Did you see Dr. Allen there ?—No, I do not remember it.

7222. Did you see Mr. Woodrow there ?—I do not know him at all.

7223. How long did you remain in this committee room ?—I should say not more than five minutes.

7224. Things began then to look rather awkward for Sir Henry Stracey ?—I do not remember that.

7225. Had you not got the state of the poll before then, and did you not know that your candidate was far behind ?—I knew that he was a little behind; I heard so at the committee room.

7226. And the committee men were becoming more active to bring up voters ?—I found they were getting more active.

7227. And many of them went out to get voters to go to the poll ?—Yes.

7228. Did you go out ?—Yes.

7229. Where to ?—I think that the last man I took up to vote was Bland, from the "Bell."

7230. Who went with you ?—Mr. Garnham. He came down St. Stephen's Street, and went to the "Bell" with me for this man. I had been after him several times before.

7231. You and Mr. Garnham were together ?—Yes.

7232. How long did you remain together ?—Perhaps a quarter of an hour, not more than that I should say.

7233. How many voters did you talk to ?—I do not remember that we spoke to more than this man Bland from the "Bell" hotel. I know I had some considerable trouble to get him up.

7234. Did you not talk to anybody else ?—We took him from the "Bell," and stopped against Mr. Durrant's door on Timberhill.

7235. Did you go the "Bakers' Arms" yard ?—I do not remember going into the "Bakers' Arms" yard

SEVENTH DAY.

F. Parker.

26 Aug. 1869.

that day at all. I do not remember that I did. I know I canvassed the yard.

7236. Do you remember a man named George Cannell?—He is a shoemaker, or something of that kind.

7237. Did you see him?—I solicited him for his vote.

7238. On the election day did you see him?—I am sure I forget. I think I spoke to him the fore part of the morning.

7239. And he promised to vote for you?—He did not exactly promise, but I thought from his appearance that he would vote for us.

7240. Did he say he would vote for you?—He did not exactly promise that he would vote for us, but I thought he would.

7241. He led you to know what he wanted, did he not?—No, he did not.

7242. You knew what he wanted well enough, I suppose?—No, that I did not. I do not believe that the man would have done anything of the sort; not the man I allude to.

7243. Why did he not vote at once, or give you a direct answer?—I cannot tell at all, I am sure.

7244. You know that between 2 and 3 o'clock the polling on Sir Henry Stracey's side improved a good deal?—I do not think I knew that at the time, in fact I know I did not. I knew he was behind at 12 o'clock time, and I knew that the other party had put wrong numbers out.

7245. Did you not know that more men were going up and voting for Sir Henry Stracey than had been in the earlier part of the day?—No, I did not.

7246. Did you go into one public house yourself during the day?—Yes.

7247. Which was that?—At the bottom of All Saints Green.

7248. Did you drink there?—I had a glass of ale.

7249. With whom?—With a man called Francis Widdows; he felt disposed to treat me with a glass.

7250. Did you go into any other house?—Yes, I went into the "White Hart."

7251. Did you see anybody there?—I saw Amis and a man named Jeffries.

7252. Did you take up any voters?—They went with me the fore part of the morning, and voted between 8 and 9 o'clock.

7253. Were you looking for voters?—Yes.

7254. You say that on the polling day you did not take up more than 8 or 10 voters?—I should say that that is the outside that I went up with, 8 or 10.

7255. You said you knew Smith, the fowl dealer?—I know Smith, a retired fowl dealer, as they call him.

7256. Did you see him during this day at all?—I do not think I saw him during the whole day. I do not remember seeing him.

7257. Had you seen him the day before?—I do not remember that I did. I saw him one evening, it perhaps might, have been three or four days previous to the election, when I went round with him on Scole's Green canvassing.

7258. To what houses did you go?—To some on Scole's Green.

7259. Those were his own tenants, I suppose, that he was canvassing?—Some of them I believe were.

7260. Do you recollect any of the names?—I cannot call to mind the names.

7261. Did you go anywhere else with him?—No.

7262. Do you recollect what he said to these men upon that occasion?—He scarcely spoke to them himself; it was me that spoke to them.

7263. It was you that canvassed them?—Yes.

7264. Did they promise their votes?—Some of them.

7265. Some of them would give no promise?—Some of them would not give a promise at all.

7266. Who were those?—I have not an account of the names, and I really cannot call to mind the names now; it is impossible for me now to do it. I have not been in the parish long enough to know them all.

7267. How long have you been in the parish?—Not three years yet.

7268. You undertook to canvass this ward, but you cannot remember any of the names?—I cannot in the parish.

7269. (Mr. Dowdeswell.) You have spoken of a man of the name of Outlaw?—Yes, I spoke to him the day before the election.

7270. Has he dealt at your shop?—He may perhaps have laid out a few shillings, but very little indeed. He is a customer of Mr. Abel's, nearly opposite me.

7271. Had you any account against him at the time of the election?—No.

7272. Had you no claim of any sort or kind against him at that time?—No, what the man bought of me he always paid for. He never owed me a halfpenny in his life.

7273. Has he ever bought anything of you since?—He has bought things of me since, but has always paid for them at the time.

7274. He did not pay for any of them by his vote did he?—No, sir, I assure you.

7275. How came you to tell Mr. Mansfield that he was not a customer of yours?—Well, he was not a regular customer; perhaps he did not spend 5*s.* a week.

7276. You know we have got information about these things.—Not 5*s.* a week he did not spend with me. The only thing he bought of me was butter.

7277. For how many weeks had he been spending 5*s.* a week in your shop?—Well, perhaps for the last 12 months he has been now and then in, but I do not say he spent 5*s.* exactly. Sometimes it would be that and sometimes a little more.

7278. Do you not call that a regular customer?—No, not at all. He is not a regular customer, because he keeps a shop.

7279. When you tell me a man has been spending 5*s.* a week for the last 12 months in your shop do you not call that a regular customer?—He is a little shopkeeper, and therefore I do not call him a regular customer of mine.

7280. That would make him a more regular customer, I should think. Now, this man having spent 5*s.* in your shop every week during the past year, do you mean to say that that man was not a regular customer?—I mean to say he has not done that.

7281. But you have just told me so.—Sometimes he will come and spend 5*s.*, but he never buys anything of me but a little piece of butter from time to time.

7282. From time to time during the last 12 months?—I should say during the last 12 months.

7283. If a man keeps a shop he buys, I suppose, goods to supply the shop?—Yes, no doubt.

7284. That would make him a better buyer than an ordinary person who did not keep a shop; do you mean to say that he was not a regular customer of yours?—He was a customer so far.

7285. Then why did you tell Mr. Mansfield that that man was not a customer?—Of course, he is a customer so far.

7286. I must put it again to you; did you not promise before the election if that man would go up and vote for you that you would either not press him for an account, or that you would accommodate him with credit?—I never said a word of the kind to the man. Nothing ever passed between us of that kind.

7287. Do you know George Cannell?—Yes, I know him.

7288. How many times in the course of the day did you see George Cannell?—I should say not more than once. I saw him, I think, in the fore part of the morning.

7289. When did you next go to Cannell?—I am sure I forget whether I called upon him again at all in the course of the day. I might see him again and speak to him and ask him for his vote.

7290. That is the answer which every witness who wishes to evade a question gives, that he might do so?—It was in the course of the morning.

7291. Do you mean to say that you do not recollect full well seeing Cannell more than twice that day?—I might see him once or twice, but I cannot say.

7292. Of course you might, but I want to know whether you did or did not?—I might speak to him perhaps twice in the day.

7293. Did you go to his house two or three times on that day?—I believe not. I might go two or three times in the course of the day to ask him for his vote.

7294. Do you mean to say you did not see him three or four times that day?—I mean to say I did not go in more than two or three times.

7295. We are getting on by degrees. You say you did not go in to him more than three times?—Yes.

7296. Now, upon the first occasion what answer did that man give you?—He would not promise his vote.

7297. Did you not understand perfectly well what that man meant by that answer?—Well, I could not say exactly.

7298. What did you believe it meant?—I could not tell what he meant by it.

7299. Did you not guess what he meant by it?—No.

7300. You had no idea?—I am sure I had not.

7301. Not the remotest notion?—No.

7302. It never crossed your mind what he meant by his answer?—I do not know what he meant, I am sure. He said he would not promise his vote, and that was all I could get from him.

7303. Did he say he would not promise his vote until later in the day?—I do not remember hearing him say that.

7304. Then when the man said he would not promise his vote you went again, did you?—Of course I did.

7305. What time in the day did you go the second time?—It was some time, I believe, in the course of the morning, but I cannot exactly say what time.

7306. Having got that answer, that he would not promise you his vote early in the morning, and going again the second time in the middle of the day, what answer did you get then?—I do not remember that he promised me then to vote, and I might go a third time.

7307. You do not remember that he promised you his vote. If he had promised you his vote you would have taken him up at once, I should imagine. Do you know that he did not promise his vote?—I do not believe he would promise his vote.

7308. Did he give you an evasive answer?—No.

7309. What answer did he give you then?—He said he should not promise, and that is all I could get from him.

7310. I want to know whether you, having gone to him, and having asked him early in the morning if he would give his vote, and he having said he would not promise it, and then going again, and the man saying he would not promise his vote later in the day when the poll was getting on, do you mean to say that you are the only person in the city of Norwich who did not understand what the man meant by that answer?—I did not understand by his answer what he meant, I am sure.

7311. Did you not guess what he meant?—No.

7312. Had you not the remotest notion of what he meant?—No.

7313. You had not the slightest idea?—If you are alluding to bribery, I am sure that not one penny was spent by me the whole day.

7314. We will come to that presently. You go to a man, and he will not promise you his vote. Then you go again, and he will not promise you. Did you not guess then or suspect what the man wanted?—No, I could not tell that he wanted money.

7315. You did not suspect anything?—No, I did not.

7316. Did you know?—No, I did not.

7317. After you had been to George Cannell's the second time, do you recollect going on to the "Bakers' "Arms" yard?—I am sure I forget; I might go, and I believe I did go, but I forget.

7318. Who was with you when you went up to the "Bakers' Arms" yard?—I was alone to the best of my knowledge. I do not think anyone was with me at all.

7319. Do you know a man of the name of Cubitt?—I do not remember the name now at all.

7320. Do you know Dr. Pitt?—Yes.

7321. Was Dr. Pitt with you?—He was with me some part of the day.

7322. Was he in the "Bakers' Arms" yard with you?—I really forget, he was with me some part of the day, but I cannot remember when.

7323. Hunting up voters?—Yes, he went with me on to Scole's Green.

7324. There were only two voters up "Bakers' "Arms" yard were there?—I really cannot say whether there are two or three. I know there are not more than two or three.

7325. Are not the only voters there Thomas Larter and Joseph Casurett?—There were those two, but Joseph Larter is since dead.

7326. Did you find that Casurett had voted for Tillett and Russell?—He was not at home when I went at all. I did not see that man on that day at all.

7327–8. Did you see Thomas Larter?—I do not remember seeing him.

7329. Do you recollect who you saw in "Bakers' "Arms" yard?—I saw his wife. I do not recollect seeing Larter himself at all.

7330. You say you saw his wife; did you ask her?—I asked which way her husband was going to vote.

7331. What did she say?—She said she did not know at all.

7332. Did she not tell you that Larter wanted a day's wages?—No, she said nothing of the kind to me.

7333. Did anybody on that day say anything to you about a day's wages?—Oh yes, there were some.

7334. We will speak about that presently. You recollect canvassing Larter?—I recollect canvassing, but I do not recollect that I saw him once.

7335. Will you undertake to say that you did not see Larter yourself?—I do not recollect seeing him once when I canvassed, but I saw his wife two or three times.

7336. Then you were up "Bakers' Arms" yard two or three times, were you?—I was previous to the election.

7337. I am speaking of the day of the election?—I was not up there more than once.

7338. Now having gone to Cannell's twice before, did you go to Cannell's about 3 o'clock?—I cannot remember that I did; I might.

7339. Did you ultimately get Cannell to vote?—I did not; he did not go with me to vote at all.

7340. Was Parker with you when you went the last time to Cannell's?—I do not know Parker at all.

7341. Did you not see Cannell when he promised to give you his vote?—He did not promise me at all.

7342. He went up and voted for Stracey, did he not?—I believe he voted for Stracey, but he did not go with me.

SEVENTH DAY.

F. Parker.

26 Aug. 1869.

7343. He did not go with you, because you went somewhere else, but did he not tell you when you last canvassed him that he would go up and vote for Stracey?—He did not.

7344. You saw him three times?—He never promised me once out of the three times that he would vote for Stracey. He did not promise me at all. That I will swear to.

7345. Do you not know that after you saw him the last time he went and voted for Stracey?—I saw afterwards that he had voted for Stracey, but I did not know at all what time he voted.

7346. The last time you saw him was about 3 o'clock, was it not?—I cannot say the time now.

7347. Will you undertake to swear it was not about 3 o'clock?—I cannot say. I believe Dr. Pitt went to him the last time. I cannot say exactly, but I think so.

7348. You were with Dr. Pitt, were you not, when he went to Cannell?—Not when he went to Cannell's; I was on the other side of the street then.

7349. You were there, but on the other side of the street?—I was on the other side of the street. I do not remember going to Cannell's with Dr. Pitt, but I might show him where Cannell lived.

7350. Were you with Dr. Pitt when he went across the street to Cannell's?—I believe I was standing opposite Cannell's, the other side of the street.

7351. You were there with Dr. Pitt, and he went from you to Cannell's?—Dr. Pitt went from me to Cannell's, I believe. I think it was Dr. Pitt.

7352. Then you cannot tell what passed between Dr. Pitt and Cannell on that occasion?—I cannot.

7353. You kept out of the way, did you?—I was on the other side of the street, and I did not hear what passed at all. I believe I told Dr. Pitt that I could not get his promise, and asked him to go and speak to the man himself.

7354. You thought Dr. Pitt was more likely to persuade him?—I thought very likely he might.

7355. Did you go the "King's Arms" yard near to 4 o'clock?—"King's Arms" yard?

7356. Yes; in a cab?—No, not to "King's Arms" yard, certainly.

7357. Did you go anywhere in a cab between 3 and 4 o'clock?—It might be between 3 and 4 o'clock when I went to the "Bell" and took from there this man Bland, a voter. We got into a cab at the "Bell," and rode on to Timberhill, and there we both got out.

7358. On the day of the election were you at the "Star and Crown" yard?—I believe I went into the "Star and Crown" yard in the course of the day.

7359. Who was with you then?—I believe at that time, if I remember right, I was quite alone.

7360. Who did you canvass there?—I am sure I cannot remember the name. If I had my canvassing book I might, but as I said before I have not been in the parish long enough to remember the names.

7361. Where is your canvassing book?—I have not got it here. I took it to the agent at the committee room.

7362. And have not seen it since?—I have not seen it since.

7363. You said you gave it to the agent?—Yes, to Stockings.

7364. You say you put "D" against those who would not promise you a vote or who said they would vote against you?—I believe I did to some of them.

7365. Did you go up to Scole's Green with Dr. Pitt?—Yes.

7366. Between 2 and 4 o'clock?—Yes.

7367. And did you bring men from there, Bullen, Debbage, and Custance?—I believe Custance was there, but I cannot remember the others.

7368. Did you bring three men down?—I brought three to vote myself, and Dr. Pitt did.

7369. Did you go into the houses?—No.

7370. Did Parker go as well as Dr. Pitt?—I do not know Parker.

7371. Do you know a man of the name of Thomas Parker?—No, unless it is Thomas Parker, the fishmonger.

7372. Who went with you?—Dr. Pitt.

7373. Did anybody go with you and Dr. Pitt?—I do not remember anybody else. I think we went alone.

7374. Was there not a person of your own name who went to Scole's Green?—At the first of the morning a nephew of mine was going to Scole's Green, and I rode with him.

7375. Did Dr. Pitt go with you then?—No; that was between 9 and 10 in the morning.

7376. Then Parker, your nephew, was merely with you in the morning?—Yes, I got into his cart, and drove there with him.

7377. Was Dr. Pitt the only person who went with you in the afternoon?—I do not believe that there was anybody else.

7378. Did you go into the houses on that occasion, or did Dr. Pitt?—Dr. Pitt went into the houses, at least to the doors.

7379. Then Dr. Pitt went into the houses, where did you go yourself?—I showed Dr. Pitt the parties, and then he spoke to them.

7380. Did you then bring away Bullen, Debbage, and Custance?—There were three of them, I believe, but I cannot remember the other names besides Custance.

7381. Do you know a man of the name of Shield?—Yes.

7382. Did you take him up to the poll?—No.

7383. Did you canvass or press him to vote that day?—No; Shield did not live in my parish at all.

7384. Will you undertake to say you had not a conversation with him that day?—Do you mean William Shield or Daniel Shield, because there are two brothers?

7385. Either.—I spoke to William Shield.

7386. Where did you speak to him?—I believe I spoke to him on Timberhill, in St. Stephen's, but I saw him once or twice in the course of the day.

7387. What time was that?—I should think it might be about 3 o'clock, but I cannot say exactly.

7388. Did you not talk to him about the difficulties in which you were with regard to voting?—No, not particularly so. He might make the remark that we were behind, or something to that effect.

7389. Did you talk about what means should be taken to retrieve your position?—Yes.

7390. Did not Shield say to you you must be careful what you are about with the bribing?—No, no such thing.

7391. Did you say anything to the effect that he must be careful?—No.

7392. What did Shield say to you?—"Let us be "as quick as we can," (that was about 3 o'clock,) "and get up all the voters we can, if you happen to "know any."

7393. Did he not tell you that you were not to do anything that was wrong?—He never said anything of the kind; nothing of the kind was mentioned.

7394. You said you were about with Parker canvassing?—Not canvassing.

7395. Hunting up voters, getting up voters?—This nephew of mine was going towards Scole's Green, and I jumped into his cart and went with him.

7396. You were about with Garnham trying to get up voters?—In the afternoon about 3 o'clock.

7397. Did not numbers of men ask you for money to vote?—Not numbers. I do not remember that I had more than one in the course of the whole day.

7398. Do you mean to say that not more than one man asked you for a day's wages or money of any kind that day?—I mean to say that there was only one, and that was Rufus Folkard.

7399. Or Garnham, in your presence?—No, there was not.

7400. You heard only from one man anything about that mentioned?—I do not remember anything being asked me about it that day.

7401. About money ?—No.

7402. The whole day through ?—No.

7403. Did you not see numbers of men loitering about the streets ?—Yes, I saw several of them.

7404. Were there not numbers ?—I might say that there were numbers about.

7405. Now seeing numbers of men loitering about, had not a considerable number of them cards with them ?—Yes, some of them had.

7406. Did not Garnham ask you the names of some of them ?—I do not remember that he did.

7407. Did you not go up with Garnham ?—Mr. Garnham went with me to the poll.

7408. Now did you not see a number of men standing about, and did you not know them to be voters, because you knew the men in your ward did not go up to the poll ?—I pressed some of them to go to the poll and vote for Stracey.

7409. What answer did you get ?—I could not get an answer from them at all.

7410. Do you mean to say that, not being able to get an answer from them, you did not understand what they wanted ?—I told one of them that I would not do anything of the sort.

7411. I do not care what you told them ; you understood what they meant when you could get no answer from them ?—It was not more than one that asked me for money the whole day.

7412. But you do not say there was not more than one who would not give an answer to the question why he did not go up to vote ?—No.

7413. Then did they say they would go up and vote ?—Well, I could not tell which way they were.

7414. You have told us that there were numbers of men about ?—I saw numbers about the streets, of course.

7415. And you tried to get them to vote ?—No, I did not, not those standing about.

7416. Did not Garnham go with you and speak to them ?—Garnham was not with me more than five minutes in the whole day.

7417. You saw the men standing about, and knew them to be voters ?—I cannot say whether they were voters.

7418. But you knew the men in your ward ?—Some of them.

7419. You saw the men with cards ?—Some of them.

7420. You say you went up and asked numbers of men for their votes ?—To the houses, but I did not those in the street.

7421. You told me that you saw numbers of men standing about in the street, and you went up and asked them for their votes. Now be careful ?—I am careful, and the truth I stick to.

7422. Did you not get a most unsatisfactory answer from these people ?—From this one that spoke to me.

7423. Now do you mean that you got an unsatisfactory answer from only one person that day ?—Of course there were several that I spoke to at the houses, but as regards those I saw in the street, I do not remember speaking to more than half-a-dozen voters, I might say.

7424. When you saw men standing about, whom you knew to be voters, who had cards in their hands, would you not, as a matter of course, go up and try to persuade them to vote ?—My business was to go to the houses.

7425. Your business was to get up voters, was it not ?—Yes, of course it was.

7426. Then when you saw men loitering about with Sir Henry Stracey's or any cards in their hands, did you not immediately go to them and ask them to vote ?—I did not go to, I might say, half-a-dozen of those that stood in the streets during the whole day.

7427. Well, we have got half-a-dozen ; what answer did you get from the half-dozen ?—I am sure I cannot exactly say now.

7428. Do you mean to say that it made no impression upon you what these people were saying to you in the street ?—I daresay they wanted something for their votes.

7429. Very well, now we have come to it ?—All I can say is that they got nothing out of me.

7430. You say these men you spoke to in the street did want something for their votes ?—I can swear that only one asked me for his day's wages during the whole day.

7431. I did not ask you whether they asked you, but over and over again I asked you whether you did not understand that they wanted a day's wages, or that they wanted money. I suppose you did not go out without money ?—I did not go without money. I might perhaps have 4*s.* or 5*s.* in my pocket, but not more than that the whole day, and I did not spend 6*d.* the whole day.

7432. But you had money in your pocket ?—I had 4*s.* or 5*s.*, not more.

7433. You had money in your pocket when you went out in the morning ?—Yes.

7434. Did you get any more money in your pocket in the course of the day ?—No.

7435. Are you sure that nobody handed to you any money ?—I will swear that nobody did.

7436. Did you receive any money that day ?—No.

7437. You got no more money into your possession that day ?—No.

7438. What money had you when you went home ?—I might have 3*s.* or 4*s.*

7439. But you started with 4*s.*, you said ?—I started with 4*s.* or 5*s.*

7440. Do you mean to say you only spent 2*s.* that day ?—I mean to say I did not spend 2*s.* the whole day.

7441. Did you promise any money ?—No, not a halfpenny.

7442. Did you have any conversation with Dr. Pitt about money ?—No, not a word.

7443. Did Dr. Pitt say anything to you about money ?—No, not a word.

7444. Was anything said about money to any of these people ?—Not a word from me.

7445. Or by anybody in your presence ?—Nor yet by anybody in my presence, only from this man that I spoke of just now ; he met me in the street and wanted money.

T. Gooch.

THOMAS GOOCH sworn and examined.

7446. (Mr. Biron.) What are you ? — A brush maker.

7447. Have you a vote for the city ?—Yes.

7448. Did you vote on the last occasion ?—Yes, I did.

7449. For whom did you vote ? — I voted for Stracey.

7450. Had you been canvassed for your vote before ?—No.

7451. Had anybody asked you whether you would vote for Stracey ?— I had nothing but a paper ; that is all.

7452. You got his address, I suppose ?—I got nothing but a voting paper.

7453. You got a card ?—I got a card before, but I never saw any of the parties.

7454. Did you get anything for your vote ?—No.

7455. Nor a promise of anything ? — Nor a promise.

7456. Had you voted before at other elections ?—No.

SEVENTH DAY.

26 Aug. 1869.

R. Martin.

RICHARD MARTIN sworn and examined.

7457. (Mr. Dowdeswell.) What are you?—A shoe manufacturer.

7458. Are you a voter?—Yes.

7459. Did you vote at the last election?—Yes.

7460. For whom did you vote? — Sir Henry Stracey.

7461. Did you receive anything for your vote or any promise of money?—No.

7462. Did you yourself offer, or did you give any money to [any person] to vote on that day?—No, I never saw anything of the sort.

J. Calver.

JOHN CALVER sworn and examined.

7463. (Mr. Mansfield.) Who did you vote for at this election?—Sir Henry Stracey.

7464. What are you by trade?—A saddle and harness manufacturer.

7465. Did anybody canvass you for your vote?—No.

7466. Had you voted at previous elections?—I had always voted Conservative.

7467. Did anybody offer you any money for your vote?—No.

7468. Did you promise or offer any money to anybody else to vote?—No.

T. Parker.

THOMAS PARKER sworn and examined.

7469. (Mr. Biron.) What are you? — A manure manufacturer and farmer.

7470. Are you a voter?—Yes.

7471. Where do you live?—In St. Stephen's.

7472. Did you vote at this last election? — I did.

7473. For whom?—Sir Henry Stracey.

7474. Were you an active supporter of Sir Henry Stracey's?—Well, I was in some instances. Yes, you may say I was.

7475. Were you on the committee?—No.

7476. But you canvassed for him?—I did.

7477. Did you canvass before the day of the poll?—I did not.

7478. After you had voted, did you go about the city?—I was at half-past 11 at Mr. Stockings'.

7479. Just tell me what you did? — At about half-past 11 to 12 o'clock Mr. Stockings from the committee room sent to me to say that he wanted to speak to me. I went to him, and he asked me if I would take my chaise, and go and fetch two people that were lying ill so that they could not get to vote. He asked me if I would go and fetch them, as he had no means for anything of the sort. I said I would do so. I asked him who they were, and he said, one was a person of the name of Trumbetta, who lives in a yard in Rampant Horse Street; the other lives close by, a door or two from there. He said "I do not "know the people, but I will send this gentleman "along with you if you will be kind enough to go." I ordered my man to put the horse in the chaise, and went and fetched them.

7480. Who was it that went with you?—I am not able to say the gentleman's name; I should know him if I was to see him.

7481. Perhaps you will get me the name of the gentleman who went with you?—I shall be most happy to do that. Will you allow me to go on?

7482. Certainly, I should much prefer your telling your tale in your own way. You took these voters up to the poll?—We went and fetched them from indoors down into the yard into the chaise, and the people from the voting place had to come out and take their names.

7483. What time of the day was that?—I should think that was about 1 o'clock, within 5 or 10 minutes either way.

7484. Will you tell me what you did after that?—I went back to Mr. Stockings, at the committee room, and told him that I had done so; he said, "Would you "be kind enough to go into Crook's Place." I said, "I don't like running about for this game;" he said, "If you would I should be extremely obliged to you. "There is a person there" (mentioning the name), but I did not take particular notice of the name as he told this person to go along with me. When I got there there was a fly standing at the gate waiting, and this gentleman, with my assistance, got into the fly, and I got into the fly and took him to the poll; this other gentleman drove my chaise down to the voting place; then I went back again and the fly went away. I do not know who engaged the fly, I know nothing about that.

7485. Do you know who the voter was that was in the fly with you?—There was not a single soul, the fly was standing against this gate; how it came there I know not. I then went back again and they asked me if I would go down to Trowse; I said I had no objection, I would go down to Trowse. There was another gentleman went with me down to Trowse, but who he was I don't know. I went down to Trowse, where I asked three or four different people to vote, and they said they were going to vote for Tillett and Russell, and the consequence was, I said, "Jump in, "come along, I am not going to stop here all day." I went back, had my horse took out, and went into the committee room, when they told me the election was won on the part of Sir Henry Stracey.

7486. When you were driving about, did you see men hanging about the polling booths?—I got out at the "Coachmakers' Arms;" I forgot to tell you this, but it now comes to my mind perfectly; I got out at the "Coachmakers' Arms" and got a glass of stout, and a man came up to me of the name of Clayton, who said he wanted to vote for Sir Henry Stracey.

7487. What did he say to you?—He said he wanted to vote for Sir Henry Stracey. I said, "You cannot "do better, come along with me and vote at once, you "are very close to the voting place;" he fell back and kept walking the other way, St. Stephen's way. The voting place was just past the "Coachmakers' Arms," and I said "Come along;" he said, "I will "come along with you," but he went back again. I said "Are you going? What are you taking this "trouble for?" He said "I want to be paid;" I said "Oh, you are no use to me;" he said "Oh, I know you, "Mr. Parker, you will give me something." I said "Oh no, certainly not;" he said "But you will treat "me." I said "No, not to day, thank you."

7488. The name was Alexander Clayton, was it not?—I do not know his Christian name.

7489. (Mr. Mansfield.) A fishmonger in the market?—Yes, I think he was a man they call Alec Clayton.

7490. (Mr. Biron.) Did you come across any others in the same way that day?—No, only one that belongs to Mr. Colman. I was going home and I met a man, he knew me and stopped me; he said "Here, I "want you;" I said "What is it?" He said "I have "not voted;" I said "You cannot do better;" he said "Well, I will vote, but I want to be paid." "Oh," I said, "don't you work at Mr. Colman's?" He said "Yes, I do not wish to vote for Mr. Tillett, I should "like to vote for the other side, and I should like to "be paid for it, it is a chance whether I shall not "lose my situation;" I said "All right, you cannot do "better."

7491. Those two instances came across your own observation?—Yes, but nothing more.

7492. Did you see any hanging about with cards in their hands?—No; as I was passing the "Trumpet" I saw several standing there, but I never went in, or went near the place no further than passing it in the road.

7493. When you came out I understand that you drove your trap about?—I did exactly what I have told you.

7494. (Mr. Dowdeswell.) Did you pay or promise any money to any voter during that day?—No, sir, I beg to say I did not.

7495. Do you know Dr. Pitt?—Yes, perfectly well; he is my surgeon.

7496. Do you know Frederick Parker?—No, I do not.

7497. Did you see Dr. Pitt anywhere that day?—I did. I passed him on one or two occasions. I shook hands with him in St. Stephen's.

7498. Did you see him standing in St. Stephen's?—No; he was walking up St. Stephen's, and I was coming down.

7499. You did not see him at any of the houses where you were?—I never went into any house except the "Coachmakers' Arms."

7500. (Mr. Mansfield.) What was the time you saw Dr. Pitt and shook hands with him?—I should think from 1 to 2 was probably the time I might see Dr. Pitt. I cannot say exactly the time, because I never took particular notice of it, but that was about the time as near as I can recollect.

THOMAS BRIGHTWELL, junior, sworn and examined.

T. Brightwell, junior.

7501. (Mr. Dowdeswell.) What is your profession?—A solicitor.

7502. Did you vote at the last election?—I did.

7503. For whom did you vote?—I plumped for Sir William Russell.

7504. What time in the day did you vote?—I cannot exactly speak to that, but I know it was very late in the day.

7505. I want to know whether you either gave or received any money whatever for voting at this election?—No, I did not.

7506. Did you promise any money to anybody, or was any money promised you?—No.

7507. Were you a voter at the previous election?—I believe I was, but I am not perfectly certain.

7508. Will the same answers that you have given with respect to this election be applicable to the previous ones?—Yes.

7509. I mean with regard to the money?—Yes.

CHARLES COOPER sworn and examined.

C. Cooper.

7510. (Mr. Mansfield.) What are you?—A traveller.

7511. You were employed at this last election on one committee or the other, I believe?—On the first ward committee.

7512. For which candidate?—For the Liberal party.

7513. For both the candidates?—Yes.

7514. Were you very busy the whole of that day?—Yes, in the committee room. I never went out.

7515. You had been engaged, I suppose, some days previously in canvassing and looking after people?—I think six or seven days before; it might be eight.

7516. You gained, I suppose, a good deal of information as to the state of the constituency, did you not?—About the first ward. I knew nothing about the other wards.

7517. Can you tell us of anything you heard going on?—No, I never came out of the committee room all day.

7518. But I suppose during the day of the election, for instance, reports came to your committee room, did they not, of what was going on?—No, only in our own ward. I never heard of any reports from any other ward.

7519. Did you not hear what the Conservatives were at during that day?—No.

7520. You heard, I suppose, that at one time in the day they were considerably behind?—Oh, yes, I heard that.

7521. And that an hour or two later they suddenly began to gain?—Yes; but I never heard what was the cause of it.

7522. But you must have heard some report to explain that?—I have only heard what I have seen in the papers, what I have heard people talk about, and what I have heard upon this inquiry.

7523. Did you not hear on that day what was going on?—No.

7524. During that day did you believe that the election was being conducted in the proper way?—I thought it very strange that they should pull up so suddenly in the afternoon; but I did not know the cause of it, and I did not hear the cause.

7525. Did anyone bring any news about it?—No.

7526. But your friends must have been rather alarmed when they found this sudden change?—Yes, but they did not tell me what they were frightened at.

7527. Was nothing at all said about it in your committee room?—No.

7528. Did you hear at a later time in the day of any money having been going?—Well, I did in my ward, and I know nothing of any other ward.

7529. What did you hear in your own ward?—That there was some people offered money, for instance, a man by the name of Barnes, they said he was bribed, and a man of the name of Read.

7530. Who gave you this information?—I believe I have got the letter at home now that was sent to me about it.

7531–2. We should like to have that letter. You learnt by that letter that two men had been offered money?—Yes, and several more parties who lived by told me the same thing.

7533. Who were those other men?—A man by the name of Charles Hart.

7534. (Mr. Dowdeswell.) Where does he live?—Orchard Street.

7535. (Mr. Mansfield.) What were the names of the men who were mentioned as offering money?—Well, I cannot tell you. Hart can tell you more about it than I can. I was busy the whole day, and I did not see them, but I believe he did see them.

7536. Were no names mentioned of persons who were offering money to get up voters?—Well, I did not hear the names.

7537. Are you quite certain you did not?—No, I am quite certain. I heard several names mentioned that went to the "Trumpet," but I do not know which of them offered money, I did not hear.

7538. (Mr. Dowdeswell.) They were mentioned to you, and we ask you upon your oath what was told you?—There was a Mr. Bacon, a shoemaker, of the first ward, and there was Mr. Green, the tobacconist, in London Street, and several more, but I have forgotten the names of them. Mr. Hart can tell you more than I can.

7539. (Mr. Mansfield.) Where was the place at which these operations were said to have been going on, was it at a public house?—No, at their own houses.

7540. (Mr. Dowdeswell.) At the houses of the voters?—At the houses of the voters.

7541. (Mr. Mansfield.) Were those all the names you heard mentioned?—I think so.

7542. What time in the day was it that these stories came to your knowledge?—In the afternoon.

7543. After the polling was over?—No, just about the close of the poll.

7544. You heard that it had been going on a short time before?—Yes.

SEVENTH DAY.

C. Cooper.

26 Aug. 1869.

7545. Did you hear of anything else of the same kind in other places?—No, I did not.

7546. That was the only thing you heard of in your own ward?—Yes.

7547. You know nothing whatever of what was taking place in the other wards?—No.

7548. And that is all you can speak to?—That is all I can speak to.

7549. That there were these persons said to be doing something in the houses of the voters?—Yes, but two or three people round there can tell you more about it then I can.

7550. (Mr. Dowdeswell.) Who are they?—Why Mr. Fox, the greengrocer, who lived opposite.

7551. (Mr. Mansfield.) Anyone else?—Charles Hart; I think that is all. Mr. Hart canvassed them during the election, and said a great deal more about it. I believe they promised to vote for Sir William Russell and Mr. Tillett, according to his canvassing book; it was marked so.

7552. (Mr. Dowdeswell.) Which way did they vote?—They voted for Stracey.

7553. (Mr. Mansfield.) Do you know of your own knowledge of any money passing on this election?—No.

7554. Only what you have heard by report?—By report.

7555. Did you yourself promise any money to anybody?—I never had any money to promise.

7556. Neither of your own or anybody else's?—No, they never gave me any money.

7557. Did you ever vote at previous elections?—No.

7558. And you did not vote this time?—No.

7559. What are the Christian names of Green and Bacon?—I think Bacon's name is Charles; I do not know the other one's.

7560. (Mr. Dowdeswell.) You were in the committee room all day?—Well, upstairs and down, because they were marking off the register upstairs, and sometimes I was down and sometimes up.

7561. Did you see men in the street, standing about?—No, our committee room was not near the polling place.

7562. Did you seem them standing about the street with cards in their hands?—No. I wrote several cards out during the day for people that had lost them.

7563. Did anybody when you were passing along the street ask you to stand something for voting, or anything of the kind?—No, sir, and that I should not have done, because I had to stand Sam for myself.

7564. You were only out a little?—No, only just across the street to get a glass of porter.

N. Custance.

NOAH CUSTANCE sworn and examined.

7565. (Mr. Biron.) What are?—A moulder, an ironfounder.

7566. You work at an iron foundry?—Yes.

7567. Are you a voter?—Yes.

7568. For whom did you vote?—Mr. Stracey.

7569. At what hour in the day?—Between 2 and 3.

7570. Had you been canvassed before?—No; a gentleman came to the door just before 2 at dinner time, and I told him I was going to vote.

7571. Do you remember who it was?—No, I do not know the gentleman.

7572. Did he give you anything for voting?—No, I told him I was going to vote for Mr. Stracey.

7573. Had you promised to vote for Mr. Stracey?—Yes.

7574. To whom had you promised your vote?—A couple of gentlemen came during the canvass.

7575. A day or two before the polling day?—Two or three days.

7576. You say you did not vote until half-past 2?—I was in another part of the city, and of course I did not feel inclined to come.

7577. Were you at work?—No, it was a day's holiday.

7578. Who did you work for?—Messrs. Barnard and Bishop.

7579. Did they give all their men a day's holiday?—Yes, all of them; we had to leave off, they shut the shop up.

7580–1. I suppose they are Stracey men?—Yes.

7582. They paid you, of course, for the day's work?—No.

7583. Not on the Saturday night? Did they knock off a day?—Yes.

7584. What did they knock off?—Knocked a day off, they never paid us for the day at all.

7585. That is a left-handed way of giving you a holiday, is it not?—Well, on account of election day they shut up the shop.

7586. And never gave you anything for this day's pay?—No.

7587. Did you want a day's pay from some one else?—No.

7588. Did you not ask anybody for your day's pay?—No.

7589. Not the gentleman who came at 2 o'clock?—No.

7590. Did anybody promise you a day's pay?—No.

7591. Really not?—I am sure not.

7592. Who is the paymaster at Barnard and Bishop's; who pays the weekly wages?—I forget the man's name now.

7593. Come, you know who pays you? That is the most important thing of the week, getting the money.—Yes, it is.

7594. You know who pays that?—I forget the man's name.

7595. Just try and think of the name; you must know the name of your own paymaster; was it Parker?—No, that is not the name.

7596. Surely you know who pays you every week?—I have got it on my tongue's end, but I cannot think of the man's name now.

7597. Was it Clitheroe?—No, that is not the man who pays; he is the foreman.

7598. Where does the paymaster live?—Magdalen Street.

7599. He is called the cashier?—Yes.

7600. Is his name Hastings?—Yes, Hastings is the name.

7601. On the election day do you remember Parker coming to you?—He might come with the gentleman that came.

7602. Do you know Parker?—I do not know him.

7603. Did Dr. Pitt come to you?—I do not know; there were three men came to me.

7604. What did you say to them?—They asked me if I had voted, and I told them no. They asked me if I was going to vote, and I told them yes, as soon as I had got my dinner over, and when I went out again I should go and vote.

7605. Did you not tell them that you should vote if you got your day's pay?—No.

7606. Did you not say you had been tinkering about all day, and getting nothing for it?—No.

7607. What had you been doing all day?—Walking about the city.

7608. How often did you pass the polling place?—Not at all until I went out at 1.

7609. Why did you not go and vote at once?—Because I did not feel inclined.

7610. Come, do not let us waste a quarter of an hour about it. You wanted your day's pay?—Wanted my day's pay! I do not know that I wanted it.

7611. You thought you ought to have it; you did not think you ought to waste a day over voting?—I think so.

7612. And you waited?—No, I did not wait for the sake of that.

7613. These two gentlemen were asking for your vote, and you thought you ought not to sacrifice a day's pay for the sake of voting for Sir Henry Stracey or anybody else?—Of course not.

7614. Did you not think it was a hard thing for you to lose a day's work?—I thought it was a hard job to lose the day.

7615. And surely you would say so to some one?—I did not say anything to anybody.

7616. What! went brooding over this misfortune all the day long until 2 o'clock?—Yes.

7617. Did you not say to Dr. Pitt or these two gentlemen, "I ought to have my day's pay if I "make up my mind to vote"?—I do not think I said so.

7618. I think you did?—Well, I am certain I did not.

7619. You think you did not, but that is what you were thinking of all day, that you ought to have a day's pay?—That was only a talk amongst ourselves.

7620. Who did you talk to about it?—The men in the shop where I worked.

7621. All the men in the shop thought so?—Of course they did.

7622. Now thinking so, was there not anyone of you man enough to say it?—That I do not know.

7623. Were you not man enough to say it?—No.

7624. You thought so, and surely you do not stare at people when they ask you questions. Were you not man enough to say, "Well, I ought to have my "day's pay if I am to vote to please you." You did not care for Sir Henry Stracey getting in?—Yes, that was my inclination for that man to get in.

7625. Because your master voted for him?—No.

7626. Was Bullen a workman with you?—No.

7627. Was a man of the name of Debbage?—Yes; he lives in my row.

7628. That was his view, was it not, that you ought to have a day's pay if you voted?—I heard him say so.

7629. And I suppose pretty well all who worked at your place said so?—That I cannot say.

7630. You have told me what Debbage, for instance, said.—He did not work along with me, but lives in the same row.

7631. You told me what the men in the shop said?—A few of us.

7632. (Mr. Dowdeswell.) There were people, were there not, whom you met that day who said they ought to have a day's pay, it was very hard that they should lose it?—I was not in among many of them in the course of that day.

7633. But were there not numbers of men whom you met loitering about the city that day?—Of course, I met lots of people about in the course of the day.

7634. And when you were rambling about the city you spoke to all the men that you knew?—I might have nodded as I passed them.

7635. Was it not the common talk amongst them that it was very hard that you should lose a day's pay?—It was the common talk amongst some of us.

7636. Who has told you not to tell this?—I never had no talk with anybody about it.

7637. Who has been to you to tell you not to say what you know about this?—Nobody.

7638. Has nobody called on you since the election?—No.

7639. You told the gentlemen who called upon you, I suppose, that it was a very hard thing upon you, as a working man, not to have your day's pay, and to be kept out of employment?—I did not tell them so.

7640. Did they say to you that it was a hard thing upon you?—No.

7641. What did they say?—Well, they asked me if I had been and voted; I said no. They asked me if I would go and vote as soon as possible. I told them that as soon as I went out I was going to vote for Sir Henry Stracey.

7642. Do you mean to say that, not having done it before, and having been loitering about the whole morning when you might have gone hundreds of times to the poll, that when these two gentlemen came, whom you did not know, you immediately went and voted?—It was my intention the whole day to vote after dinner.

7643. Why did you not vote before; did you think that possibly towards the afternoon there might be a little money going?—I did not.

7644. Was not that the talk, that there might be some money going?—It might be the talk about the city, but I did not hear it.

7645. Was it not the talk about the city that there would probably be a little money going in the afternoon?—I have heard that was the talk.

7646. And you thought there might be a little money going?—If there was I did not get it.

7647. I suppose if anybody had offered you a day's pay you would not have refused it?—If anybody had offered it, I should have took it.

7648. Did anybody offer it to you?—No.

7649. Have you never had any allowance for your day's work?—Nothing.

7650. Not in any way?—Not in any way at all.

7651. Not from anybody?—Not from anybody.

7652. Were you told anything about beer?—No.

7653. Did you get a drop of beer?—I did not get any, but some of them got some.

7654. Who got the beer?—Some that worked on the farm.

7655. Can you give me their names?—No, I cannot.

7656. How many of them?—That I cannot say.

7657. A dozen?—There might be a dozen, but I cannot say how many there was.

7658. Where did they get their beer?—St. Martin's.

7659. Who gave them the beer?—There was an order that they that voted, after they had done voting, should go and get a pot or two of ale in the evening time.

7660. Who was it that gave it to them?—I don't know.

7661. Who told them that they might go and get a pot or two of ale?—The man that keeps the house.

7662. How many did he tell?—I don't know that he told anyone in particular, he spoke it amongst us.

7663. And did they go and get a pot or two of ale, do you know?—I don't know.

7664. When and where did he tell them?—That was on the farm.

7665. Did he come to them then on the farm?—No.

7666. Did you see them go away from their work, or how was it?—We left off the night before; we did not go to work that day at all.

7667. Was it when they were going home the night before, or when they went into the beerhouse that day?—The next day, in the evening time.

7668. They went and got a pot or two of beer?—As far as I know; I did not go myself.

SEVENTH DAY.

R. Bullen.

26 Aug. 1869.

ROBERT BULLEN sworn and examined.

7669. (Mr. Dowdeswell.) What are you?—A white-smith.

7670. Are you a voter?—Yes.

7671. Did you vote at the last election?—Yes.

7672. For whom did you vote?—Mr. Stracey.

7673. What time in the day?—Between 2 and 3.

7674. Where were you all the day before you went to vote?—I was at work up until 1 o'clock, and then I left off till that time. Our works were shut up, and we did not go in the afternoon, so I did not go to work no more that day, and I did not go to vote until I had had my dinner.

7675. Did anybody come and ask you for your vote before the day of the election?—Yes.

7676. Who was that?—I cannot say his name; I do not know his name; he keeps a shop in Ber Street.

7677. Did you promise to vote?—Yes, I promised to vote for Mr. Stracey.

7678. Before the election?—Yes.

7679. When he called upon you, did you do that?—Yes, I did.

7680. Then you had your dinner and went and voted, did you?—Yes, I got my dinner first, and then I went and voted, between 2 and half-past.

7681. Did anybody came up to you to get you go and vote?—The same man that I told you just now came before, but I cannot say his name, for I do not know his name. He is a man who keeps a grocer's shop at the bottom of Ber Street.

7682. Is it Mr. Parker?—Yes, I believe that is the name, but I could not recollect it.

7683. You had heard a good number of men say that they wanted a day's pay?—No, nothing of the sort.

7684. Did you not hear men about the city say that they wanted a day's pay for voting?—No, I never heard anything of the sort.

7685. Had you been talking with the men about the city in the morning?—No, I was at work. I went to work at 6 in the morning, and left at half-past 8, went and got my breakfast, went back again at 9, and worked up until 1. I was not about in the morning.

7686. Did you receive any money for voting?—No.

7687. Or the promise of any money?—No, nothing of the sort.

7688. Or any beer?—No.

7689. Or the promise of any beer?—No.

7690. I suppose this was the first time you had voted?—Yes.

J. J. Commins.

JOHN JAMES COMMINS sworn and examined.

7691. (Mr. Biron.) What are you?—I am the manager at the Mercury printing office.

7692. You have a vote, I believe?—Yes.

7693. Did you vote at the last election?—I did.

7694. For whom?—Sir William Russell.

7695. At what hour?—Between 3 and 4.

7696. How came you to vote so late in the afternoon?—It was our publishing day, and I could not leave.

7697. You were occupied the whole day?—I was. I left at the first opportunity.

7698. Did you get anything for voting?—Certainly not.

7699. Were you promised anything?—Certainly not.

7700. Or did you offer anything to anybody?—No.

7701. Or promise anything to anybody?—No; everyone in our establishment was perfectly at liberty to vote as he pleased.

7702. Have you ever voted at former elections?—No.

G. Farman.

GEORGE FARMAN sworn and examined.

7703. (Mr. Biron.) What are you?—A hay dealer.

7704. Are you a voter?—Yes.

7705. Did you vote at the last election?—Yes.

7706. For whom did you vote?—Stracey.

7707. At what hour of the day?—I should think about 3.

7708. Had you been canvassed for your vote?—Yes.

7709. By whom?—Smith and Parker.

7710. What Smith?—Samuel Smith, the fowl dealer.

7711. Are you a tenant of his?—No.

7712. When did he canvass you?—About a week before the election.

7713. Did you promise your vote?—Yes.

7714. For Stracey?—Yes.

7715. How was it that you did not vote until 3?—I should have voted at 10 in the morning. I went to the poll, but there was a great many people there, and I had to go after my business, and did not get there until a little after 2.

7716. You found the booths crowded?—There was a great many people round. I went and did my business, and came later in the day and voted.

7717. Did Smith offer you anything for your vote?—No.

7718. Did Parker and Smith come together?—Yes.

7719. They did not offer you anything for your vote?—Not anything.

7720. Or promise you anything for voting?—Not the slightest.

7721. Have you voted at former elections?—Never before.

W. H. Gaze.

WILLIAM HAMMOND GAZE sworn and examined.

7722. (Mr. Dowdeswell.) What are you?—A registrar.

7723. Are you a voter?—Yes.

7724. Did you vote at the last election?—Yes.

7725. For whom did you vote?—Sir Henry Stracey.

7726. Did you receive anything for your vote?—No, not one penny.

7727. Or a promise of anything?—Not a promise.

7728. Did you pay anything to anybody?—No.

7729. Or promise to pay anything to anybody for voting?—No, not a farthing.

7730. Or hold out to them any inducement to vote?—No, not anything.

7731. If I understand, you did not take a very active part in the election?—No, I did not.

7732. You were merely a voter?—I was not asked to vote only by one gentleman.

7733. Were you a voter at the former election?—At every election for about 30 years.

7734. Are the same answers with reference to those questions I have put to you applicable to the former elections?—Quite so; I never took a penny in my life.

SEVENTH DAY.

J. Segger.

26 Aug. 1869.

JOSEPH SEGGER sworn and examined.

7735. (Mr. Mansfield.) What are you by trade?—An engineer.

7736. Are you a voter?—Yes.

7737. For whom did you vote at this last election?—Sir William Russell and Mr. Tillett.

7738. At what time in the day did you vote?—Just before 3 o'clock.

7739. What made you vote so late?—I had no opportunity to vote before; I could not leave my work.

7740. Had you been asked for your vote?—Yes.

7741. By whom?—Sir William Russell and Mr. Tillett.

7742. Had you promised?—Yes.

7743. Did you receive any money or promise of money for voting?—No.

7744. Did you give anybody else either money or a promise of money?—No.

7745-6. Were you a voter at former elections?—No, not any.

J. Wicks.

JAMES WICKS sworn and examined.

7747. (Mr. Biron.) What are you?—I am a cutter and clicker.

7748. Have you a vote?—Yes.

7749. Did you vote at the last election?—Yes.

7750. For whom?—Sir Henry Stracey.

7751. At what hour in the day?—About 3.

7752. How came you to put it off until 3?—I did not leave off work until 2.

7753. Were you at work all the morning?—Yes.

7754. Up to 2?—Yes.

7755. Did you then go to dinner?—Yes.

7756. And voted directly after?—Yes.

7757. Had you been canvassed for your vote?—They came to my house when I was not at home.

7758. And left the canvassing cards?—Yes.

7759. Did you see anybody who asked for your vote?—No.

7760. Did you promise in any way?—My wife did for me.

7761. She knew which way you were going to vote?—Yes.

7762. And had you all along made up your mind to vote for Stracey?—Yes.

7763. Did you get anything for your vote?—No.

7764. Or a promise of anything?—No.

7765. Had you voted at former elections?—No.

I. Williams.

ISAIAH WILLIAMS sworn and examined.

7766. (Mr. Dowdeswell.) What are you?—An earthenware dealer.

7767. Were you a voter at the last election?—Yes.

7768. For whom did you vote?—Tillett and Russell.

7769. What time did you vote?—A little after 3.

7770. Had you promised your vote beforehand?—No.

7771. Were you canvassed?—No.

7772. Did nobody come and ask you beforehand for your vote?—No.

7773. How came you to vote so late in the day?—I did not think about voting at all on account of being in business. I had customers on both sides.

7774. Not thinking of voting at all, what induced you to change your mind?—I had two or three friends come in who asked me.

7775. Who were those friends?—Mr. Mackley was one.

7776. Is he a person who keeps a public house?—No.

7777. Did he press you to vote?—Yes.

7778. Did he press you hard?—No; he asked me to go, and I said, "It is no use going now." He said, "Oh, yes, it will only swell the numbers;" that is all.

7779. Was this so late as 3 o'clock in the day?—I think it was about that time. I know it was after dinner.

7780. Were you promised anything for your vote?—No.

7781. Were you paid anything for your vote?—No.

7782. Are you sure of that?—Yes, quite sure.

7783. Had you been out in the city that morning?—No.

7784. Had you been at your work all day?—I had been attending to my shop.

7785. You had been about your own business?—Yes.

7786. Were you a voter at the previous elections?—Yes.

7787. Which of them, 1860 or 1865, or both?—Both of them, I believe, from what I remember.

7788. We hear that money flowed at those elections?—Yes.

7789. Did you have any money at either of those elections?—No.

7790. Were you offered any money?—No.

7791. For whom did you vote?—I always voted for the Whigs.

7792. Did you vote as late in the day on those occasions as you did upon this?—I cannot call it to mind, but I think most likely I should have done so, since I have been in the business where I am.

7793. Was there not a little persuasion used on either of those occasions to get you up to the poll?—No; only the time before one of my neighbours said, "Have you been to vote?" I said, "No, I was not "thinking about going at all;" and he said, "Oh, go "by all means;" but he never asked me on which side I was going to vote no more. I was asked this last time.

7794. You are a known Whig?—Yes, sir.

7795. On the former occasions was any liberality shown to you?—No.

7796. Are you sure of that?—In what way do you mean, sir?

7797. Why you know there were 10*l.* and 5*l.* notes flying about all over the city?—No, nothing of the sort.

7798. None of them came flying in at your window?—Not a bit of it, sir.

E. Welton.

EDMUND WELTON sworn and examined.

7799. (Mr. Mansfield.) What are you by trade?—A coachmaker.

7800. Are you a voter?—Yes.

7801. For whom did you vote at the last election?—Stracey.

7802. At what hour of the day?—Between 2 and 3, I think.

7803. What made you vote so late?—I had not time, not well, to get away before.

7804. Were you at work all the day?—I was at work all the day till then.

7805. Had you promised your vote?—They didn't want a promise, because I always gave it.

7806. Were you asked for it?—I never was asked,

SEVENTH DAY.

E. Welton.

26 Aug. 1869.

because I always voted purple ever since I had a vote.

7807. You always voted in Norwich for that side?—Always did, ever since I had a vote.

7808. Did anybody go up to the poll with you at this election?—No.

7809. Was anything offered to you?—Not at all. I was not amongst them all day.

7810. Has anything been paid you since?—No.

7811. Has nothing been paid or promised to you at previous elections?—No.

7812. Did you get any refreshments given to you at this election?—No.

7813. Where did you go after you had polled?—I did not stop in the city at all. I went up to my garden. I have some garden land. I went there directly after I had voted.

7814. Did you drink any refreshments in the evening?—No; or if I did I took them at my own house.

J. F. Breeze.

JOHN FROSDYKE BREEZE sworn and examined.

7815. (Mr. Biron.) What are you?—A licensed victualler and bird dealer.

7816. Have you a vote?—Yes.

7817. Did you vote at the last election?—Yes.

7818. For whom?—For Russell and Stracey.

7819. At what time did you vote?—Between half-past 1 and 2.

7820. How was it you did not vote until then?—Because it did not suit me. That was the slack time, and I went and voted. I had not far to go.

7821. What were you doing in the early part of the morning?—Looking after my birds and waiting for my customers. That being slow time, I went and voted directly I got my dinner.

7822. Had you been canvassed before?—Yes.

7823. For both sides, I suppose?—No.

7824. Which side?—Mr. Fisher and Mr. Stockings, the Conservative side.

7825. What did you say to them?—They asked me whether I would pledge for my vote. I said I thought it was most likely I should not vote for Mr. Tillett.

7826. You objected to Tillett?—I objected to Mr. Tillett.

7827. You voted for the other two to keep him out?—Yes.

7828. When they canvassed you did they offer you anything for your vote?—No.

7829. Did they buy a bird?—No.

7830. Have you voted before on former occasions?—Yes.

7831. How did you vote then?—I voted for Warner and Russell.

7832. You are a Liberal by politics?—Yes, but I don't like Mr. Tillett.

7833. And a hater of Tillett by profession?—Yes.

7834. (Mr. Dowdeswell.) Did you get anything at former elections?—No.

7835. Are you sure of that?—Yes.

7836. You heard there was money going on those occasions?—I never heard anything about it. I never went out the whole day, only to vote.

7837. I am not speaking about the last election, but of the elections of 1860 and 1865. You know there was a deal of money afloat then?—I never see any.

7838. Didn't you get any?—No.

7839. Was none offered you?—No.

J. Taylor.

JONATHAN TAYLOR sworn and examined.

7840. (Mr. Dowdeswell.) What are you?—A carter and shopkeeper.

7841. Are you a voter?—Yes.

7842. Did you vote at the last election?—Yes.

7843. For whom did you vote?—Stracey and Russell.

7844. At what time in the day?—Well, I think it was just after 3.

7845. That is rather late in the day.—I was busy. I was down with a lot of luggage.

7846. Where were you busy?—I was down with some luggage I had to take out.

7847. That didn't take you from 8 in the morning till 3 in the afternoon, did it?—No; I was busy at different parts of the day.

7848. But you passed the polling place?—No, I don't think I passed it once.

7849. Had you been canvassed?—Yes.

7850. Who canvassed you?—Mr. Fisher and young Mr. Norgate came and asked me to vote, and I said I didn't know that I should vote at all, and I went away, and they spoke no more about it.

7851. How came it that you gave such an answer as that? Did you think on the day that there might be something floating about, part of which might get into your pocket?—No, I didn't think any such a thing as that. I was too busy.

7852. Then why did not you tell the canvasser what your intentions were?—I didn't hardly speak to him. I was washing at the time they came to my door.

7853. But you gave them an answer. How came you to give that sort of unsatisfactory answer?—I am carter to different places, and a shopkeeper as well. I voted for one as well as the other.

7854. Yes, but you might have said to them "I "won't offend any party, but I will vote one and "one." How came you not to say that to them?—That was what I had in my mind to do.

7855. Having it in your mind to do, why did you not say it?—They went away quick. I had no conversation with them.

7856. Having made up your mind, you said you had not. How came you to give that sort of unsatisfactory and evasive answer. Did you not think that there might be something afloat that day?—No; I have been a voter a good many years and never had a penny for my vote.

7857. You did not vote till 3 o'clock in the day; you give an evasive answer to gentlemen who come and ask you how you are going to vote; therefore, do not be surprised that I ask you this, are you sure that nobody promised you anything for your vote?—Quite sure.

7858. Or gave you anything for your vote?—No one ever gave me anything for my vote, and never promised me anything.

7859. Did anybody come to get you up to the poll that day?—No.

7860. Are you sure of that?—Quite sure. I went up of my own self. No one went up with me.

7861. You had been a voter at previous elections?—Yes.

7862. How many elections, two or three?—I think I voted twice before.

7863. Upon either of those occasions did you get any money, or the promise of any money or anything else for your vote?—No.

7864. (Mr. Biron.) For whom did you vote on those former occasions?—I voted Liberal; I voted for Warner and Russell.

7865. Why did you not vote this time Russell and Tillett?—My business lay so that I did not wish to offend either party.

7866. Do you think your Conservative customers would have left you if you voted according to your conscience?—I don't know.

SEVENTH DAY.

W. Moore.

26 Aug. 1869.

WILLIAM MOORE sworn and examined.

7867. (Mr. Mansfield.) What are you by trade?—A hairdresser.

7868. For whom did you vote at the last election?—Mr. Tillett.

7869. Anyone else?—No; I plumped for Mr. Tillett.

7870. At what time in the day did you vote?—Somewhere about 3 o'clock, I think.

7871. Who had canvassed you?—There was not anyone come to me; neither parties.

7872. Did anybody go up to the poll with you?—Another man went with me of the name of Larter.

7873. Where did you come from when you went to the poll?—My own house.

7874. Was the other man at your house then?—Yes.

7875. Did he vote for Tillett?—He voted the same as I did myself, plumped for Tillett.

7876. What was his name?—Thomas Larter.

7877. Do you know Mr. Womersley?—No.

7878. Have you never seen him in your life?—Never, to the best of my knowledge.

7879. Have you been engaged in elections before?—Oh yes, in respect of having a vote. I voted before, several times.

7880. Have you worked at all in canvassing?—I never done anything of the kind.

7881. Do you know Mr. Wilde?—Yes.

7882. Were you ever employed by him?—Never.

7883. Were you never his clerk?—Never in my life.

7884. Did he never give you any money?—Never.

7885. Did not you work under Wilde at previous elections?.—Work under him?

7886. Yes.—In what shape or measure do you mean in respect of working for him?

7887. (Mr. Dowdeswell.) Any way.—I was subpœnaed to go up to London by the Tory party, and I went up to London.

7888. (Mr. Mansfield.) Did you not work with Wilde at elections down here?—I subpœnaed three men myself; that is what I did.

7889. Did you ever take part in elections under the superintendence of Mr. Wilde?—Never in my life.

7890. Did you ever receive any money from Mr. Wilde?—Not a farthing; only my pay in going up to London, and my day's expenses while I was there.

7891. Do you know of any money going here on former elections?—No.

7892. Nor at the last election?—No.

7893. Did you ever receive any money yourself?—No.

7894. Nor any promise of money?—No promise, I assure you.

7895. What made you vote so late at this last election?—I did not intend to vote at all until a friend of mine persuaded me at the last hour to go and vote.

7896. How came it that you were not going to vote at all?—I am so situated that sometimes if I oblige one party I disoblige another.

7897. Who was the friend who persuaded you to vote?—The best friend I have in the world, my wife.

7898. Who canvassed her?—No one; she canvassed me.

7899. Do you mean to tell me that you know nothing of what had been done on former elections?—Not at all.

7900. Did you take no part in them yourself?—I never took a farthing in my life.

7901. Did you ever receive any pay for what you did on former elections?—No, no further than what I have told you, that I received my day's pay when I was up in London.

J. Smith.

JOHN SMITH sworn and examined.

7902. (Mr. Biron.) What are you?—I am a shopman, a man to my son-in-law.

7903. You manage for your son-in-law?—Yes.

7904. Did you vote at the last election?—Yes.

7905. For whom?—Tillett and Russell.

7906. At what hour in the day did you vote?—I should think just after dinner, about 2 o'clock or half-past.

7907. Had you been canvassed before?—No, I don't think I had.

7908. Did anybody ask you for your vote?—Yes, some one came in the morning time, I know; Mr. Parker, then Mr. Dix, Mr. Colman's man, and I went and voted.

7909. You never received any money, I presume?—Not a farthing.

7910. Or the promise of any?—No.

7911. Did you ever vote before?—No, not in Norwich.

J. Peek.

JAMES PEEK sworn and examined.

7912. (Mr. Dowdeswell.) What are you?—A painter.

7913. Are you a voter?—Yes.

7914. Did you vote at the last election?—Yes.

7915. For whom did you vote?—Mr. Tillett.

7916. At what time in the day?—About 3 o'clock, as near as I can tell. I don't know exactly the time.

7917. How came you to go up to the poll as late as 3 o'clock?—I was busy at work all day.

7918. There is the breakfast and the dinner hour; how came you to be so late as 3 o'clock?—In fact I did not think of voting at all.

7919. Not having made up your mind how you would vote, what turned you at the last?—Well, my master says, "Oh, go and vote;" then I said, "Very "well," I work for Mr. Wright, and I went off.

7920. Did Mr. Wright come to you?—Yes.

7921. Did he press you to vote?—No; he said, "Do but go," and I said, "Very well;" and I went directly.

7922. Simply because he asked you to vote you changed your mind?—I hadn't made up my mind. I did not say I would not vote nor that I would.

7923. Until Mr. Wright came?—He came up the yard; I was busy at work. He said, "Go and vote," and I said, "Well," and I went directly.

7924. You did not think it worth while to vote at all?—I didn't think about it. I didn't trouble anything about it.

7925. Did he offer you any money to vote?—No.

7926. Were you promised any money to vote?—No, not promised any neither.

7927. Did you receive any money to vote?—Not a farthing.

7928. Were you a voter at former elections?—No.

SEVENTH DAY.

T. Parker.

26 Aug. 1869.

THOMAS PARKER recalled and further examined.

7929. (Mr. Biron.) I hear that you have been kind enough to get the names which you promised ?—I beg to say that I made an error in one thing. I think I told you Trowse instead of Eaton. I had to send a man down to Trowse. I wish to rectify that error. It was Eaton instead of Trowse.

7930. We will take care that it is corrected in the notes. You have got the names ?—I have got only one name ; that is Dunnett.

7931. Was that the man who was sent to point out the voters?—This was the man sent to go into Rampant Horse Street to fetch the two people that were lame. The other one's name I cannot ascertain. I have been to Mr. Stockings and three other gentlemen, but I cannot ascertain his name, although I know him by sight.

R. Curry.

ROBERT CURRY sworn and examined.

7932. (Mr. Dowdeswell.) What are you ? — A harness maker.

7933. Are you a voter ?—Yes.

7934. Did you vote at the last election ? — Yes.

7935. For whom did you vote ?— Sir Henry Stracey.

7936. At what time of the day ?—I went about 3 o'clock.

7937. Had you been canvassed ?—Yes.

7938. Who had canvassed you ?—I am sure I don't know.

7939. Had you promised your vote ?—No.

7940. How came you to vote for Sir Henry Stracey when you had not promised your vote ? — I don't know, I am sure.

7941. Do you change your mind without knowing or having any reason for it ?—I did not change my mind at all, because I never made up my mind.

7942. What was it that made up your mind at last ? —Well, I don't know ; no influence at all. I got nothing by it in any shape or way.

7943. What made you make up your mind. They were not your principles, otherwise you would have promised your vote ?—I was not in when the gentlemen called.

7944. What caused you to make up your mind ; did anybody come ?—No.

7945. Not having made up your mind to vote, at about 3 o'clock in the day without anybody speaking to you, and without any cause whatever, you found yourself up at the poll. Do I understand you to say that ?—Yes, I had to work up till 2 o'clock.

7946. Will you undertake to say you had not spoken about voting, and that nobody spoke to you ? —No, not anybody.

7947. Had anybody been near you ?—Not about voting for anybody.

7948. Having waited till 3 o'clock in the day what made you suddenly make up your mind to go and vote ? Do give me some reason for that if you possibly can, because perhaps I may infer a different reason, a good one in one sense, and a bad one in another ?—It was through a friend of mine that asked me to go and vote for Stracey.

7949. Then a friend came to you ?—No, I met him in the street.

7950. Why did you not tell us that before ? Who was the friend ?—His name was Rouse.

7951. What is he ?—He keeps a general shop.

7952. What did he say to you ?—He said, "Come, "aren't you going to vote ?" I said I had not thought about it. He said, "Oh, vote ; you might "as well." So I did.

7953. Is that all that passed ?—That was all.

7954. Was anything said about getting anything ?— Not one word in no shape or way.

7955. Merely that conversation ?—That is all.

7956. Are you intimate with him ?— I see him once or twice a week.

7957. You have a friendly glass together occasionally ?—We have had a glass sometimes ; not very often.

7958. Are you acquaintances ? — Not particular acquaintances.

7959. (Mr. Biron.) Really you are making a mystery about nothing ?—I see him once or twice a week merely to speak to him. He is not an acquaintance particularly.

7960. (Mr. Dowdeswell.) What did induce you at 3 o'clock in the day to change your mind, and go up and vote for Sir Henry Stracey ?—Nothing induced me whatever ; nothing at all.

7961. I will not say "induced" you, but what impelled you to do it ? — Nothing impelled me to do it.

7962. How came you to do it ?—I merely thought I would do it.

7963. You were utterly indifferent about Sir Henry Stracey ?—If I did vote at all, I intended to vote for him.

7964. Now then, having come to the conclusion that if you voted at all you would vote for him, what induced you to make up your mind to vote for him ?—I should not have voted at all if it had not been for the young man I know.

7965. Your friendship in regard to him overcame your reluctance to vote ?—That was it.

7966. Are you sure that there was nothing else ? —Quite sure ; positive.

A. Catchpole.

ALFRED CATCHPOLE called and examined.

7967. (Mr. Mansfield). What are you by trade ?— A tailor.

7968. For whom did you vote at the last election ? —Mr. Stracey.

7969. At what hour in the day did you vote ?— About a quarter past 3, as near as I can tell.

7970. Had you been canvassed for this election ?— Yes.

7971. By whom ?—Mr. Fisher.

7972. Had you promised your vote ?—I promised it to him the first time he came.

7973. Having promised your vote, why did you poll so late in the day ?—Because I had a job to do that I was obliged to get done.

7974. Did you see anyone before you went out to poll ?—I see Mr. Fisher ; he came once to my house.

7975. What passed between you and Mr. Fisher ? —Nothing ; only he wanted me to go and vote.

7976. At what time in the day was that ?— I believe he was there about 11 o'clock in the morning first, and he came again about 2.

7977. After that did he come again ?—He might come a third time. I believe he did.

7978. When he came the third time it would be getting on towards 3 o'clock ?—It was.

7979. You saw him when he called at your place ? —Yes.

7980. Each time ?—Yes.

7981. What passed the third time ?—Nothing, only what I have told you. He wanted me to go and vote.

7982. Why had you not voted earlier in the day ? —Because it was not convenient for me.

SEVENTH DAY.

A. Catchpole.

26 Aug. 1869.

7983. How far was the polling place from your house?—About 200 yards.

7984. Being only 200 yards from the polling place, you did not vote until a quarter past 3?—Just so.

7985. It required three interviews with Mr. Fisher to induce you to vote, although you had previously promised; is that so?—Yes.

7986. Tell me what conversation took place between you and Mr. Fisher?—I have told you all the conversation that took place between me and Mr. Fisher or anyone else.

7987. What did Mr. Fisher say?—He asked me to go and poll.

7988. Is that all?—That is all.

7989. What did you say?—I told him I would go as soon as I had finished my job.

7990. Was that the answer you gave him the other times?—Yes, the same.

7991. Was anything else said?—No.

7992. Was no promise made to you?—No.

7993. No offer of any kind?—No.

7994. Have you received anything since the election for your vote?—No.

7995. Do you deal with Mr. Fisher?—No.

7996. Have you voted at previous elections?—No.

7997. This is your first time?—Yes.

7998. You have not received any money yourself?—No.

7999. Nor any promise?—No.

8000. Nor given any promise?—No.

8001. Were you applied to by anyone else?—No.

8002. (Mr. Dowdeswell.) You say the polling place was 200 yards from your place?—Yes.

8003. And that you could not go earlier, because you were engaged on your job?—Yes.

8004. But there was the breakfast hour between 8 and 9 during which you might have polled. Did you work at your job between 8 and 9?—Yes.

8005. What was your job?—I was making a black waistcoat for a funeral, and that was tied to time.

8006. When did you begin to make the black waistcoat?—In the morning.

8007. How long does it take you to make a black waistcoat?—About 6 hours. I should think 7 or 8 hours.

8008. When did the man want his waistcoat home?—That I cannot say. That is my time.

8009. If you did not know when it was wanted there was no great hurry so far as you were concerned for that job?—My time for the waistcoat was at half-past 2.

8010. To whom had you promised it at half-past 2?—That is the shop orders to get it done by half-past 2.

8011. And you pledged yourself to get it done by half-past 2?—I got it done as soon as I possibly could.

8012. Were you ordered to get it done by half-past 2?—Yes; I rather think before that.

8013. Did you get it done by half-past 2?—No.

8014. At what time did you finish it?—About 10 minutes past 3.

8015. Did you leave off for an hour for dinner?—I do not suppose I left off for half an hour.

8016. At what time in the morning did you say you began it?—I believe about 8 o'clock.

8017. Did not you set to work before 8?—No; that is quite time enough for me to get it done.

8018. What answer did you give to Mr. Fisher when he came and asked you the first time?—I told him as soon as ever I got my job done I would go and vote, not before.

8019. Did you give him the same answer the second time?—Yes.

8020. And the third time he brought you up to the mark, did he?—No.

8021. Did you go up with him?—No, I went by myself.

GEORGE BENNETT sworn and examined.

G. Bennett.

8023. (Mr. Biron.) What are you?—A shoemaker.

8024. Did you vote at the last election?—Yes.

8025. For whom?—Sir Henry Stracey.

8026. At what hour in the day?—I think it was between 2 and 3—very little after 2.

8027. Why did not you vote before?—I did not leave off work before. I have a family to supply.

8028. Had you been canvassed?—Yes.

8029. Before the day of the election?—It might be two or three days before.

8030. Did you promise to vote?—Yes; they asked me if I would vote for Mr. Stracey, and I said "Yes."

8031. What were you doing the early part of the morning?—I was at work shoemaking.

8032. At your own place?—Yes.

8033. Are you a master or a journeyman?—A journeyman.

8034. You take your work home?—I have my work from the shop.

8035. Did you get anything for voting?—Nothing at all.

8036. Were you promised anything?—No. I never asked for anything; nor was promised anything.

8037. Have you voted before on former elections?—I never voted before in this town, nor yet in any other.

WILLIAM BRADFORD sworn and examined.

W. Bradford.

8038. (Mr. Dowdeswell.) What is your business?—A cordwainer.

8039. Were you a voter at the last election?—Yes.

8040. For whom did you vote?—Mr. Stracey.

8041. At what time did you vote?—Between 3 and 4.

8042. Had you been canvassed?—Yes.

8043. By whom?—I don't know the two gentlemen that came and canvassed me of an evening.

8044. How long before the election was it?—That I cannot say.

8045. When you were canvassed what answer did you give?—I told them I had not made up my mind.

8046. When did you make up your mind?—Not till after dinner on the election day.

8047. Where were you that day?—After my business.

8048. Where did your business lie?—At home.

8049. How far is that from the polling place?—I live in Queen Street, and that was on Saint Stephen's Road, between the "Trowel and Hammer" and the "Coach and Horses."

8050. How far is that from your house?—I cannot say. I did not measure it.

8051. 100, 200, or 300 yards?—I cannot say, so I won't try.

8052. You can tell me about how far?—I should think it is about a quarter of a mile.

8053. You had not any job that day?—Yes, I had some boots to make.

8054-5. For whom?—Mr. Norton, who I work for.

8056. When had you received the boots and when were they to be sent home?—I cannot say. Sometimes I have a great quantity by me.

8057. On this particular day what was there to pre-

SEVENTH DAY.

W. Bradford.

26 Aug. 1869.

vent you going a quarter of a mile to vote?—I was after my business, making boots.

8058. What was there to prevent you going a quarter of a mile to vote?—I had a mind to finish my work before I went out.

8059. You had not made up your mind to vote when you were canvassed?—No, I had not.

8060. What at about half-past 3 o'clock on that day induced you to make up your mind?—My inclination. My inclinations led that way.

8061. What worked on your inclination?—That was my principle that caused me to vote that way.

8062. A man who has definite principles does not tell gentlemen who come and ask him for a vote that he has not made up his mind to vote. Why did you not say when you were canvassed that you would vote on that side? Was it not that you wanted something for your vote?—No.

8063. What was it?—Nothing at all, only my principle.

8064. Your principle is the only thing that induced you to vote, according to you?—Of course.

8065. Why did you not tell the gentlemen that you intended to vote that way at half-past 3 o'clock in the day?—I don't know.

8066. How came it at half-past 3 o'clock in the day that you suddenly made up your mind to vote? Did anybody call upon you?—Not a soul.

8067. Did you see anybody?—No.

8068. Did you receive any note?—No.

8069. Did anybody see your wife?—No.

8070. Did anybody come to your shop that afternoon?—My shop is in my house at home.

8071. Do you mean to say that nobody came to your shop that afternoon?—No.

8072. Had you been canvassed by the other side?—Yes.

8073. What answer had you given them?—I told them I had not made up my mind which way I should go.

8074. If your principles were Conservative how came you to give them such an answer as that? You could tell them you would not vote for them?—I could if I had thought so.

8075. Had you heard at the former elections of 10*l.* notes flying about?—No.

8076. Had you never heard anything about money at the former elections?—No.

8077. You are entirely ignorant of anything like money being given at the former elections?—At the former elections, yes.

8078. Did you think anything might be given this time?—I did not think anything of the sort.

8079. I have to draw an inference as to what may have been your motive. Can you give me anything like a plain straightforward answer to that simple question?—What question did you ask me?

8080. I asked you this; being of Conservative principles and being asked by persons who were opposed to you in politics to vote for them, why did you not give the straightforward answer of "Gentlemen, I shall not vote for you"?—Why, because I had not made up my mind whether I should vote at all.

8081. But you said that your political principles were Conservative?—Yes, but I did not say that I had made up my mind whether I would vote or no.

8082. Why did not you say, "I shall not give you my vote"?—I had not made up my mind to vote at all.

8083. Why did not you say like a straightforward man, "I shall not vote for you"?—That is the very reason, because I did not like to say I would vote or would not vote.

8084. (Mr. Biron.) But you had made up your mind not to vote for the Liberals?—Yes.

8085. Why did not you say when the Liberals asked you, "I may vote for the Conservatives, but I shall not vote for you"?—I don't know the reason.

8086. (Mr. Dowdeswell.) Have you had nothing since the election?—No.

T. Bartram.

THOMAS BARTRAM sworn and examined.

8087. (Mr. Mansfield.) What are you by trade?—A shoemaker.

8088. For whom did you vote at the last election?—Sir Henry Stracey.

8089. At what hour in the day did you poll?—Somewhere about a quarter to 4.

8090. What made you poll so late?—I could not get my work done before. I was busy with my work.

8091. Had you been asked to vote?—No.

8092. By nobody?—No.

8093. Not that day?—Not that day, by a soul.

8094. Nor the day before?—No.

8095. Not at all in regard to this election?—No.

8096. With whom did you go up to the poll?—Nobody; I knew the way myself. I went by myself.

8097. Where were you the whole of the day?—At home at work.

8098. Did you receive no message during the day?—Not in the least.

8099. Have you ever voted at an election before?—No.

8100. Was anything offered to you at this election?—No, not a farthing.

8101. You know there was a good deal of money going about late in the day; was any promise of money made to you?—No.

8102. Have you received any since?—No, not a fraction.

8103. Do you know Mr. Fisher?—Where does he live?

8104. He is a grocer. Do you know Parker, the grocer?—No, I don't know them.

8105. Do you know Dr. Pitt?—I have seen the name of Dr. Pitt, but I don't know the man.

8106. Do you know Dr. Allen?—Yes; I know Dr. Allen by seeing him riding about.

8107. Have you ever spoken to him?—Never in my life.

8108. Do you know Mr. Woodrow?—No; I might have seen the gentleman; I don't know him.

W. Applegate.

WILLIAM APPLEGATE sworn and examined.

8109. (Mr. Biron.) What are you?—A labourer.

8110. Did you vote at the last election?—Yes.

8111. For whom?—Sir Henry Stracey.

8112. When?—At half-past 3, between that and 4.

8113. Had you been canvassed for your vote?—There was some gentlemen came round to the house, but I did not see them; I was at work.

8114. When was that?—A few days before the election.

8115. What were you doing on the morning of the polling day?—I was at work.

8116. Where?—At the coal yard.

8117. Whose coal yard?—J. and H. Girling's.

8118. Are they Conservatives?—I don't know. They live in London.

8119. Is the manager there a Conservative?—I don't know.

8120. Did he canvass you?—No; he never canvassed me.

8121. How came you not to vote before that time?—We did not leave off until half-past 2, and I thought it would suit me best after I had got my dinner.

8122. You had your breakfast hour; why did you not vote then?—We were busy. We go to breakfast at any time. I knew we were going to leave off in time enough for voting.

8123. How did you know that?—The clerk told us we should close in time to give our votes.

8124. Did the clerk say to you anything about who you were to vote for?—No.

8125. Not a word?—Not a word.

8126. Did he say he was going to vote for Sir Henry Stracey?—He asked which way we were going to vote. Some voted one way and some the other.

8127. Did he ask you?—Yes, and I said, "Sir "Henry Stracey."

8128. Did you get anything for your vote?—Nothing.

8129. No beer?—No, only what I got before I went away; that I paid for myself.

8130. You paid for your own drink?—Yes.

8131. Did nobody stand treat?—No; no one was kind enough for that.

8132. Not after you voted?—There was only the landlady in the house where I got the beer, so there was no one to treat me.

8133. You were not treated either before or after?—No; I never went into a public house after I voted.

8134. Have you received anything since?—Nothing.

HENRY JOHN REYNOLDS sworn and examined.

H. J. Reynolds

8135. (Mr. Dowdeswell.) Are you a voter?—Yes.

8136. Did you vote at the last election?—Yes.

8137. For whom did you vote?—Sir Henry Stracey.

8138. What time of the day?—About 3 o'clock.

8139. What are you by business?—An iron moulder.

8140. In whose employment?—Barnard and Bishop.

8141. How came you to vote so late?—Because I was walking about the city till that time.

8142. From the early morning?—From about 11 o'clock.

8143. There was plenty of time for you to have voted while you were walking about the city?—I daresay there was.

8144. Why did you not do it?—I had promised that I would vote for Mr. Stracey, so I didn't think it mattered what time I did vote.

8145. If you had promised to vote for Sir Henry Stracey, why did you not vote earlier instead of walking about the city?—I told you before that I didn't think it mattered what time you voted if you but voted.

8146. Did you hear men saying they ought to have a day's wages?—No.

8147. Did you hear nobody say that on that day?—No.

8148. How many are there in your works?—I don't know. There was between 200 and 300 then.

8149. Did you not hear men in your works say that they ought to have a day's wages which they lost by the election?—No, I was not with any of them.

8150. You were walking about the city and saw your fellow workmen?—I never see any of them that day.

8151. Do you mean to say that walking about the city you did not see any of your 300 fellow workmen?—No, not any, I believe.

8152. There was no work done at your works that day?—No; it was closed, I believe.

8153. Did you not think that it was vary hard to lose your day's wages?—Well, sir, we could not help losing the day's wages.

8154. Did not you think it hard?—I did not think anything at all about it.

8155–56. You are a man depending upon your day's wages; and do you mean to give me that answer, that you did not think about it?—It was no use thinking about that, because they won't pay you if you are not there.

8157. Did not you think it hard that you should lose that day's wages?—No, I did not think nothing about that at all.

8158. Did not it pass through your mind?—It was no use thinking about that, because if the place is shut up they won't pay you.

8159. You might think it, and yet say nothing to your master about it?—I might say so to my wife when I was at home.

8160. And to some one else besides your wife?—No, not to anyone.

8161. There were lots of workmen walking about the streets. Did they not say it was a hard thing to lose their day's wages?—I never heard them say that.

8162. Did you talk with them?—Very few. I was with my wife.

8163. Do you mean to say you talked to nobody?—Very few people. I had my wife with me that day.

8164. Did she say anything?—About what?

8165. About your losing your day's wages?—She said the firm didn't ought to have shut up.

8166. Did she say it was hard upon you that you should lose your day's wages, and did she say so to the gentlemen she met?—She never met any gentlemen, not to speak to.

8167. Did she say so to the people whom she met and talked to?—We never met only a sister of hers and her mother.

8168. You were wandering over the city; you must have met a great number of people, and stood at the corners and talked with them?—No, I didn't; not to anyone.

8169. What did you do? Did you go into public houses?—I think I went into one or two when I was dry, and had a glass.

8170. Which were the one or two that you went into?—One against her mother's in King Street. It is an old-fashioned house.

8171. What other?—The tavern next my old house where I live.

8172. There were a good many people in the public houses, I suppose?—There were very few there. It is a quiet place where I live, in Crook's Place. Not many use the house.

8173. There were some people?—There were some in the bar.

8174. This grievance being on your wife's mind, did not she tell them about it?—She spoke to them what were in there. She said she thought I had been better at work.

8175. Do you know Dr. Pitt?—No.

8176. Do you know him by sight?—I cannot say that I know him.

8177. Do you know Mr. Fisher?—Yes, I know him to see.

8178. Did you see him in Crook's Place that day?—No.

8179. Did anyone come to you and ask you to vote that day?—No.

8180. Not a soul?—No; I went out at 11, and I voted at 3.

8181. Did anybody come and ask you to go up to the poll?—Not when I was at home, and the house was shut up when we went out.

8182–4. You were wandering about the city. You had a card, I presume?—There was a card left at my house, but I did not take that with me, because I knew my number that was on the register.

SEVENTH DAY.

H. J. Reynolds.

26 Aug. 1869.

8185. Do you mean to say you did not get any money for voting ?—No.

8186. Nor beer ?—No.

8187. Nor the promise of any money ?—No.

8188. Did you see Hardiment that day ?—No ; I do not know Mr. Hardiment.

8189. (Mr. Mansfield.) You were about the city walking the whole day ?—From 11 to 3.

8190. During that time did anybody talk to you about voting ?—No.

8191. Did anybody talk to you about voting at all ? —Only what I told you before, my wife's sister and her mother.

8192. You were walking about keeping holiday, and you had no conversation with anyone but these two ?—No.

J. Cook.

JAMES COOK, junior, sworn and examined.

8193. (Mr. Mansfield.) What are you by trade ?—A plumber and glazier.

8194. For whom did you vote at this election ?—Mr. Tillett.

8195. At what hour of the day ?—About 2 o'clock.

8196. How did you come to vote so late ?—I was rather busy in the forenoon. I had not time.

8197. Were you busy all the morning ?—Yes.

8198. At work ?—Yes.

8199. Had you been canvassed for your vote ?—Yes.

8200. Had you promised it ?—No.

8201. Why had not you promised it ?—I never did promise a vote.

8202. By whom were you canvassed ?—Mr. Copeman and Mr. Jarrold on the Liberal side.

8203. By Mr. Womersley ?—No.

8204. Have you voted at former elections ?—Yes.

8205. Have you always voted Liberal ?—Yes.

8206. Have you received at this or former elections any money or promise of money ?—No.

8207. Have you promised to give any ?—No.

8208. Have you received any money since the election from anybody ?—No.

8209. Did you hear of any money going about in the latter part of the day ?—I heard reports of the sort, but I did not know whether it was right. I did not know anything about it no further.

J. E. J. Barker.

JAMES EDMUND JOSEPH BARKER sworn and examined.

8210. (Mr. Biron.) What are you ?—A shopkeeper.

8211. Did you vote at the last election ?—Yes.

8212. For whom ?—Stracey.

8213. At what time ?—Half-past 2.

8214. Where were you in the early part of the day ?—In the shop.

8215. Had you been canvassed for your vote ?—Two days before I was canvassed.

8216. Had you promised your vote ?—I never did promise anyone.

8217. Why ?—I never made it a practice.

8218. Why did you not ?—Because I was always an independent voter.

8219. That is the very reason why you should say right out what you do ?—I never did.

8220. Had you made up your mind ?—I never wish to make a promise to anybody.

8221. Why ?—I had my own reason.

8222. What is your reason ?—Because I did not want to do it.

8223. That is your practice ?—That is my practice.

8224. Did you get any money for voting ?—No.

8225. Or the promise of any money ?—No.

8226. Did anybody say you could get money ?—No.

8227. Have you always voted Conservative ?—I voted for Russell and Warner the last time.

8228. Do you vote alternately ?—Yes.

8229. Liberal one time and Conservative another ? —Yes.

8230. Then you will turn round Liberal next time ; you need not make them a promise because they will know how you are going to vote ?—I am at liberty to vote which way I please.

W. Cutler.

WILLIAM CUTLER sworn and examined.

8231. (Mr. Dowdeswell.) What are you ?—A brewer's labourer.

8232. Were you a voter at the last election ?—Yes.

8233. For whom did you vote ?—Sir Henry Stracey.

8234. At what time in the day did you vote ?—At about half-past 2, as near as I can tell.

8235. In whose employment are you ?—Messrs. Morgan's, brewers, King Street.

8236. How came you not to vote until half-past 2 ? —I could not get away before, I could not leave my employment before.

8237. Was that the first time you could get away from your work ?—Yes.

8238. Did anybody come to you and ask you to go and vote —Yes.

8239. Who ?—I do not know.

8240. Did they offer you anything to vote ?—No.

8241. Did they promise you anything to vote ?—No.

8242. Had you been canvassed before ?—Yes.

8243. I suppose Mr. Morgan's men had been canvassed ?—That I do not know. I had at my own house, not at the brewery.

8244. Had you made any promise ?—No.

8245. Were you canvassed before the election day ? —Yes.

8246. How was it if you were canvassed before the election day that you did not promise ?—That was Mr. Tillett's party.

8247. You would not promise them ?—No.

8248. Did you say you would not vote for them ?—Yes.

8249. Did you receive anything in any way for your vote ?—No.

8250. Or the promise of anything ?—No.

8251. Either beer or money or anything else ?—No.

8252. Have you ever been a voter before ?—No.

Adjourned to to-morrow at half-past 10.

EIGHTH DAY.

Friday, 27th August 1869.

GEORGE AUSTIN sworn and examined.

8253. (Mr. Dowdeswell.) Are you a voter?—Yes.

8254. Did you vote at the last election?—Yes.

8255. For whom did you vote?—For Sir Henry Stracey.

8256. At what time in the day did you vote?—I think it was after 4 o'clock, between 4 and 5.

8257. That was very late in the day?—Yes.

8258. Are you sure it was not between 3 and 4?—Yes.

8259. Are you sure it was after 4?—I think it was after 4.

8260. Where had you been all day?—At home at work.

8261. Had you been canvassed before for your vote?—Yes, I had been canvassed.

8262. Who had canvassed you?—Well, I do not know who they were.

8263. Had you promised your vote?—No.

8264. What did you say to them when they canvassed you?—I did not see anyone but Mr. Tillett's party, and I told them I should not vote for Mr Tillett; I did not promise anyone.

8265. You are sure of that?—I am quite sure of it.

8266. How came you to vote so late?—Because I had business at home, so that I could not leave my house to go out. I had work that was obliged to be done.

8267. What was the special business you had?—I am a tailor by trade, and I had some clothes to get ready that evening for which I was forced to keep at home.

8268. At what time did you finish them?—I think they were finished near 4 o'clock.

8269. For whom did you make the clothes?—They were for Mr. Pigg, in the market place.

8270. Is he your regular employer?—Not particularly him. I am in business for myself.

8271. Did anybody call upon you upon the day of the election?—No, I did not see anyone at all.

8272. You went up and voted?—I went up and voted after I had done my work.

8273. How came you, having refused to promise your vote, to vote that afternoon for Sir Henry Stracey?—I do not know that I have any particular reason at all for it.

8274. Are you sure that nobody gave you any money?—Not a farthing. I did not see anybody during the day at all, not till I left home at four o'clock.

8275. Had you voted at any previous election?—No.

GEORGE FOSTER sworn and examined.

8276. (Mr. Mansfield.) What are you by trade?—A shopkeeper; a shoe shop.

8277. Are you a voter?—Yes.

8278. For whom did you vote at the last election?—For Russell and Tillett.

8279. At what time in the day did you vote?—Just after dinner.

8280. Had you been canvassed?—No, not at all.

8281. Had you promised your vote to anybody?—No; I never was canvassed by anyone; they left the complimentary card, and that is all I saw.

8282. Where is your shop?—St John's.

8283. What is the rent of it?—10*l.* a year.

8284. Had you voted at previous elections?—Not here I had not; not in the Parliamentary elections.

8285. Were you in Norwich at the time?—Yes, but I have been away at different times.

8286. Had you a vote before?—Not a Parliamentary vote.

8287. Had you been offered anything for voting this time?—No.

8288. Nothing at all?—No.

8289. Had you been promised anything?—No.

8290. How came you to vote so late?—Because I had business to attend to, and did not go out till after dinner.

8291. You were minding your shop?—Yes.

GEORGE DAWSON sworn and examined.

8292. (Mr. Biron.) What are you?—A carver and sculptor.

8293. For whom did you vote at the last election?—For Sir Henry Stracey.

8294. At what hour in the day did you vote?—About half-past 2.

8295. How was it that you did not vote before that?—Because the business would have been neglected if I had done so.

8296. What were you doing all the morning?—I was out in the country a little way.

8297. Driving?—Yes.

8298. Where to?—To Stoke.

8299. Is that a suburb of this place?—Yes, I believe so.

8300. How far is it off?—About four miles.

8301. What did you do at Stoke?—I did a little business along with the person who keeps the "Lion" at Stoke.

8302. What business?—Business connected with my trade, carving.

8303. Were you doing a job for him?—He was foreman for Mr. Price, the builder, of Museum Court.

8304. But what brought you there?—Just merely a piece of business, that is all, to settle the account up, that is all.

8305. You went to get your bill paid?—No; just to have it agreed upon.

8306. At what time in the morning did you start?—About 11 o'clock.

8307. Why did you not vote before 11?—That I cannot say. I did not promise that I should vote at all.

8308. Had you been canvassed?—Yes.

8309. Who canvassed you?—Mr. Maitland and Mr. Bates, the shopkeeper.

8310. What did you say to them?—I said that I should not vote for Mr. Tillett for any consideration.

8311. Did you say who you would vote for?—I said that I had not settled to vote at all, but that if I voted for anybody it would be for Sir Henry Stracey.

8312. The persons to whom you spoke were Mr. Tillett's canvassers?—Yes.

8313. Did Sir Henry Stracey's people canvass you at all?—Yes; and I said "I will not promise you, but

EIGHTH DAY.

G. Dawson.

27 Aug. 1869.

"if I vote at all for anyone it will be for Sir Henry "Stracey."

8314. Why did you not promise them?—Because I was connected with parties who are connected with the Liberals and likewise with the Conservative party.

8315. At the "Lion" inn was anything said to you about voting?—Not the slightest in the world.

8316. And when you came back you voted for Sir Henry Stracey?—Yes.

8317. Your inclination was Conservative?—Yes.

8318. Did you get any money for voting?—Not the slightest.

8319. And you got no promise from anyone?—I got no promise of any kind.

J. Creak.

JOHN CREAK sworn and examined.

8320. (Mr. Dowdeswell.) Are you a voter?—Yes.

8321. What are you?—A master watchmaker.

8322. For whom did you vote at the last election?—For Russell and Tillett.

8323. At what time in the day did you vote?—About half-past 3.

8324. How came you to be so late?—It was after my work.

8325. Could you not get away before?—No.

8326. The place of voting was close by where you worked, was it not?—Yes.

8327. Were you standing out for money?—No.

8328. Are you sure of that?—Quite sure.

8329. Was any money offered to you?—No.

8330. Was any money promised you?—No.

8331. Did you get any money?—No.

8332. Were you a voter this time for the first time?—The first time.

8333. Had you been canvassed?—Yes.

8334. Had you promised your vote?—No.

8335. Why did you not promise your vote?—Because I am an independent voter.

8336. Surely you would be just as independent whether you had promised your vote or not; do you mean to say you were not expecting some money for your vote?—Not any.

8337. How do you think that promising your vote would make you less independent. I do not understand your reason. You are sure you got no money or promise of any money?—Not any.

W. Bolton.

WILLIAM BOLTON sworn and examined.

8338. (Mr. Mansfield.) What are you by trade?—A shoemaker.

8339. Are you a voter?—Yes.

8340. Was this the first time that you were a voter?—Yes.

8341. For whom did you vote?—For Sir Henry Stracey.

8342. About what time in the day?—About half-past 2 or 20 minutes to 3, I cannot say which.

8343. How came you to be so late?—Because I had two young men working with me, and if I had left off they would have had to leave off too; and therefore I waited till dinner time, and then I washed myself and went and voted.

8344. Did you not go out at all before dinner?—No.

8345. Who canvassed you?—No one.

8346. Did you promise your vote to anyone?—No.

8347. Did anyone come to take you to the poll?—No.

T. Lemon.

THOMAS LEMON sworn and examined.

8348. (Mr. Biron.) What are you?—A master baker.

8349. For whom did you vote at the last election?—For Sir Henry Stracey.

8350. What hour in the day did you vote?—After I had done my business.

8351. When was that?—After dinner.

8352. At what hour?—It might be about 3 o'clock.

8353. Why did you not vote earlier?—My business prevented me; my trade is different to many others. I cannot leave it.

8354. You cannot leave your ovens?—No.

8355. Had you been canvassed for your vote?—Only by a circular.

8356. Had you promised your vote?—I always voted for the Conservative party, not on the other side at all.

8357-8. How often had you voted before?—I have had a vote for 14 years. I do not know how often I have voted.

8359. Did you get anything for voting at this election?—No.

8360. Nor at any time?—No.

8361. And you received no promise of anything?—No.

G.F. Garnham.

GEORGE FREDERICK GARNHAM recalled and further examined.

8362. (Mr. Dowdeswell.) When you gave your evidence yesterday you said this: "I think I com- "menced canvassing about 12 o'clock. At that time "I knew Stracey was behind. I canvassed a man "named Prentice at the 'Mitre' tavern, and Bland "at the 'Bell' hotel. I asked them to go and vote, "and they did so at once without any inducement. "I did not canvass from house to house on the day "of election, but asked those men who were standing "about the streets." You said "I canvassed a man "named Prentice at the 'Mitre' tavern;" that is in connexion with 12 o'clock?—No.

8363. If there is any mistake with regard to that let us have the facts correctly; it would so read. At what time did you canvass Prentice?—I think, so far as I remember, it was about 3 o'clock.

8364. Did Prentice at once go with you?—He went with me and Mr. Arthur Bignold.

8365. Did he go the first time you asked him?—Yes; I only went to him once.

8366. Did Mr. Arthur Bignold go up with you to Prentice?—Yes.

8367. Did you go from the committee room to Prentice?—No, I do not think I did.

8368. How came Mr. Arthur Bignold to go with you to Prentice?—Because we found that Prentice had not voted.

8369. Had you been to the committee room then, or had you left the committee room together, and on looking over the list found that that was the fact?—No; I did not see Mr. Arthur Bignold in the committee room at all.

8370. Where did you meet?—Somewhere in the street.

8371. How came he to go with you to Prentice?—Because some one told us that Prentice had not voted.

8372. It was not what you learnt at the committee room?—No.

8373. Were you talking to Mr. Arthur Bignold when that occurred?—I do not know, there might have been seven or eight people with me at the time; we found that he had not voted.

8374. How came you to have left the committee room, and to be where you then were?—I cannot tell you at all. I was walking up and down the street.

8375. Do you know who it was that told you that Prentice had not voted?—I cannot remember at all, all I was told was that Prentice had not voted.

8376. And you and Mr. Arthur Bignold went to him?—Mr. Arthur Bignold and I went to him, and he went up and voted immediately.

8377. Did you or Mr. Bignold speak to him?—I spoke to him.

8378. Where did you find him?—In the bar at the "Mitre."

8379. Did you go in a cab?—Yes, we did.

8380. And did you bring Prentice away in a cab?—No.

8381. Did you walk with him?—I walked a little way with him, and got into the cab myself again.

8382. Did anybody go with him to the poll?—I am not certain; I think Mr. Arthur Bignold did.

8383. There seemed to be a contradiction about that upon the face of your evidence, and we thought it right to give you an opportunity of correcting it.—I will tell you exactly how I went up. I met Mr. Arthur Bignold coming down St. Stephen's, and we were chatting with a few people, and they said Prentice had not voted yet, would we go down and see him, so we went down and saw him. He was in his shirt sleeves, and he put on his coat and went down immediately and voted. That is all I know of Prentice.

HENRY HINDES, junior, sworn and examined. H. Hindes, jun.

8384. (Mr Mansfield.) What are you by trade?—A rope maker.

8385. For whom did you vote?—For Sir Henry Stracey.

8386. Had you promised your vote?—Yes; I always do promise the Conservative interest.

8387. Had you voted before?—Yes, many times.

8388. Had you always voted for the Conservatives?—Yes.

8389. Without exception?—Always.

8390. Had you anything to do with making promises to other people?—No.

8391. Or with paying money?—No.

8392. Are you a lodger?—No. I occupy a house in Red Lion Street where I live.

8393. Did you take any active part in this election?—Not any.

8394. Did you canvass anybody?—No.

8395. Did anybody come to you on the day of the poll?—Not anyone.

8396. (Mr. Dowdeswell.) Do you bank at Harvey's bank?—Yes.

8397. Does your father bank there too?—Yes.

8398. Have you got your banker's book with you?—No.

8399. Did you draw, upon the day of the election, a large sum of money there?—No.

8400. Are you sure of that?—Quite sure.

8401. Did you draw out any money on that day?—Not any whatever.

8402. Did you draw any cheque that day?—No; I did not go to the bank that day for any purpose.

8403. Did you draw a cheque?—No, I did not.

8404. You did not go yourself to the bank?—I did not, nor did I send anyone to the bank.

8405. (Mr. Biron.) Did anybody borrow any money of you that day?—No.

ARTHUR GEORGE BACON sworn and examined. A. G. Bacon.

8406. (Mr. Biron.) What are you?—A warehouseman.

8407. For whom did you vote at the last election?—For Sir Henry Stracey.

8408. What time in the day did you vote?—Between 3 and half-past 3.

8409. What was the reason for your voting so late?—I went out to poll at a quarter past 8, but I could not get to the polling place, and so I went away, and I could not get out again till then.

8410. You did make an attempt to poll at a quarter past 8?—Yes.

8411. And not being able to get to the polling place you then went later on in the day and polled?—Yes.

8412. Had you been canvassed?—Two gentlemen on the Conservative side came and asked my principles. I was not at home at the time, but my wife said I was a Conservative, and that was sufficient.

8413. You got nothing for your vote?—No.

8414. (Mr. Dowdeswell.) And gave nothing to anybody for voting?—No.

WILLIAM HENRY FULLER sworn and examined. W. H. Fuller.

8415. (Mr. Mansfield.) What are you by trade?—A shopkeeper, tobacconist, and news agent.

8416. Are you a voter?—Yes.

8417. For whom did you vote at the last election?—For Stracey and Russell.

8418. At what hour in the day did you vote?—About 2, or a little after.

8419. Was that the first time that you ever voted?—No.

8420. How had you voted on former occasions?—Sometimes I had not voted at all.

8421. But when you did vote how had you voted?—Once I voted for Peto and Warner, I think.

8422. That was for the Liberals?—Yes.

8423. Had you ever voted for a Conservative before?—No.

8424. Who canvassed you this time?—I think Mr. Norgate was one; there were two or three gentlemen. I think young Mr. Norgate was one.

8425. Did you promise your vote?—Yes.

8426. When?—When they called.

8427. When was that?—A few days before the election.

8428. What made you poll so late in the day?—Because my business caused me to be about the town, and I did not have an opportunity of going to vote before.

8429. The polling place was close by, was it not?—Yes, but I had to do my business and to carry out my papers.

8430. You must have passed the polling place, and might have voted before surely?—When gentlemen want their papers I must do the best I can to let them have them as early as I can.

8431. Did anybody come to you that day?—No.

8432. Did anybody offer you money?—No.

8433. Or give you any?—No, and I never asked for any.

EIGHTH DAY.

W. H. Fuller.

27 Aug. 1869.

8434. Was any money promised or given to you at any former election?—Never.

8435. Are you quite sure of that?—Yes.

8436. This was the first time you had voted for a Conservative?—Yes, and if it had not been for Mr Tillett putting up I should not have voted Conservative now.

G. Hallows.

GEORGE HALLOWS sworn and examined.

8437. (Mr. Biron.) What are you?—A harness maker.

8438. For whom did you vote at the last election?—Russell and Tillett.

8439. Were you canvassed?—Yes.

8440. Did you promise your vote?—No.

8441. Were you about the city during the day of the polling?—Very little.

8442. Did you see anybody being taken up to the poll during the day?—There were various people that I saw during the day.

8443. By whom were they taken to the poll?—Well, I do not know. I can hardly call the person to my mind at the present time. I saw various persons.

8444. Did you see them later in the day?—Yes.

8445. In the afternoon?—Yes.

8446. Did you see for whom they polled?—I did not go to the poll.

8447. But you saw them going to the poll?—Yes; I supposed they were going to the poll.

8448. Was anybody guarding them or going up with them?—No.

8449. Did you see Mr. Arthur Bignold taking men up to the poll in the afternoon?—I saw him in the street with men.

8450. Walking with them?—Yes. Whether he went to the poll or not I cannot say; I did not follow them.

8451. Was this in the fifth ward?—Yes.

8452. You did not get anything for your vote?—No; I should not like to take anything for my vote.

8453. (Mr. Dowdeswell.) Do you know the name of the man you saw going up with Mr. Arthur Bignold?—Yes; his name was Prentice.

8454. What time in the day was that?—About 20 minutes to 4.

H. Kendle.

HENRY KENDLE sworn and examined.

8455. (Mr. Mansfield.) Are you a voter?—Yes.

8456. For whom did you vote at the last election?—For Tillett and Russell.

8457. At what time did you vote?—About a quarter or 20 minutes to 4.

8458. What made you vote so late?—Business detained me.

8459. What had you been doing all day?—I was engaged in my trade.

8460. What is your trade?—A boot manufacturer.

8461. How far off is your business from the poll?—About 200 yards.

8462. Could you not find time to go and poll earlier in the day?—No.

8463. Did you not go out all day?—No, I never stirred outside.

8464. Did anybody ask you for your vote?—I was asked for my vote, I believe, by certain people.

8465. Do you know by whom?—I know one man, that is all I know.

8466. Did you promise your vote?—Yes.

8467. For whom?—For Russell and Tillett.

8468. Had you a vote before?—No.

8469. Did you receive any money or any offer of money at this election?—No.

8470. Did you make any offer to anybody else?—No.

S. Linay.

SAMUEL LINAY sworn and examined.

8471. (Mr. Biron.) What are you?—An attorney's clerk.

8472. For whom did you vote at the last election?—For Sir Henry Stracey.

8473. At what hour in the day?—Between 3 and 4.

8474. How came you not to vote till then?—Because I was otherwise occupied.

8475. In your business?—Yes.

8476. To whom are you clerk?—To Mr. William Sadd.

8477. Were you actively engaged in the election?—No, not in any way.

8478. Was Mr. Sadd?—I believe he was, but I am his managing clerk and had to attend to his business.

8479. Did you get anything for your vote?—No.

8480. Or the promise of anything?—No; nor was I canvassed.

8481. (Mr. Dowdeswell.) Had you voted before?—No, not at a Parliamentary election.

8482. Did you not promise your vote to the other side?—No. I was never asked.

8483. Are there two men of your name?—Not in Norwich.

8484. Had you said anything to your master about voting?—Certainly not; since then I have been articled to him, and I was his managing clerk then.

H. Lock.

HENRY LOCK sworn and examined.

8485. (Mr. Mansfield.) What are you by trade?—A boot maker.

8486. For whom did you vote at the last election?—For Tillett and Russell.

8487. At what hour in the day?—At half-past 3.

8488. What made you so late in giving your vote?—Because I was busy in my trade and could not get out before; that is all.

8489. Had you ever voted before?—Yes.

8490. Are you a master boot maker?—I am.

8491. How many men do you employ?—Five or six.

8492. Did you take any part in this election yourself?—I did not.

8493. Did anybody make any offer of money to you?—No.

8494. Did you give any money or promise any to anyone?—I did not.

8495. Had you voted before?—Yes.

8496. On which side had you voted on previous occasions?—I forget.

8497. Liberal or Tory?—I cannot say. I forget. I have a very bad memory.

8498. (Mr. Dowdeswell.) Is your memory so bad that you do not recollect which way you voted?—I do not.

8499. Have your principles undergone any change?—It is not worth troubling about at all, elections are not.

EIGHTH DAY.

27 Aug. 1869

Anthony Easterby Lock sworn and examined. A. E. Lock.

8500. (Mr. Biron.) What are you?—A pawnbroker in St. Stephen's.

8501. Did you vote at the last election?—Yes.

8502. For whom?—For Russell and Stracey.

8503. What time in the day did you vote?—Perhaps at about a quarter to 4.

8504. How came you to vote so late?—I conduct my business myself with the assistance of a lad, and I did not close my business till about 3 o'clock; there was nothing doing and I shut up my shop, retired, and went away and polled in the market place, next door but one to my own shop. I was canvassed by several neighbours in the street, but I gave them no promise. I had made up my mind not to vote, but I went down to the market and seeing that Stracey and Russell wanted a little help, I went back and polled.

8505. Did you get anything for voting?—Certainly not.

8506. Or the promise of anything?—No.

Timothy Bennett Hall sworn and examined. T. B. Hall.

8507. (Mr. Mansfield.) What are you by trade?—A boot maker.

8508. For whom did you vote at the last election?—For Tillett and Russell.

8509. Where do you live?—In Rampant Horse Street.

8510. At what o'clock in the day did you vote?—Between 2 and half-past 2.

8511. How came you to vote so late?—I was detained at home by business.

8512. Had you promised your vote to anybody?—I had not promised my vote to anyone; I was not even canvassed by anyone,—not on the Liberal side.

8513. Was that the first time you had had a vote?—I had had a vote some time, but that was the first time I had voted.

8514. Were you canvassed by Sir Henry Stracey's party?—I was.

8515. What answer did you make to them?—I told them that I should vote on the Liberal side, that that was my principles.

8516. Was any offer or any promise made to you?—Not any.

8517. Did you make any promise to anyone else?—No.

Richard Kerrison sworn and examined. R. Kerrison.

8518. (Mr. Biron.) What are you?—A shoemaker.

8519. For whom did you vote at the last election?—For Sir Henry Stracey.

8520. At what hour in the day?—About a quarter before 3.

8521. Why did you not vote earlier?—I had my business to attend to. I could not leave the shop before 2 o'clock.

8522. Had you been canvassed for your vote?—Yes.

8523. By whom?—Mr. Fisher.

8524. Did you promise it?—Yes; I told him I had already made up my mind to vote for Sir Henry Stracey.

8525. When did he canvass you?—Three or four days before the election.

8526. Did you get anything for voting?—No; and I never asked for anything.

8527. You got no promise of anything?—No.

Alfred Perfect sworn and examined. A. Perfect.

8528. (Mr. Mansfield.) What are you by trade?—A chair maker.

8529. For whom did you vote at the last election?—For Sir Henry Stracey.

8530. At what time in the day did you vote?—As near as I can remember about a quarter to 3.

8531. Where had you been all the daytime?—I had been to work in my own house.

8532. How far was that from the polling place?—Three or four minutes walk.

8533. Were you not out at all during the daytime?—Yes, I was out during the day.

8534. How then did it happen that you did not vote earlier?—I was busy at my work.

8535-6. You passed the polling place often enough, did you not?—I was not far from it.

8537. Had you been canvassed by anybody?—Yes.

8538. When?—Some time before the election.

8539. Did you promise your vote?—No; I did not promise my vote to either party.

8540. Did anybody come to you on the day of the election?—No. I wish to speak the truth and tell you all I know.

8541. What answer did you make to those who canvassed you?—I told John Grimshaw that I would not vote for Mr. Tillett. There was a man came to my front door and asked me if I would give him my vote, and I said no I should want it myself, and that was all that passed between us.

8542-3. Was this the first time you had ever voted?—It was the first time I had ever voted in Norwich.

8544. Was any offer made to you?—Yes.

8545. What?—As I was going to poll, Mr. Gibson, that keeps the "White Horse" public house, in Crook's Place, called me, and he said, "Are you "going to vote," and I said, "Yes;" he said, "Stop "a minute, I think I can do you a little good." "I did not know what he meant at the time, for I had no thought of bribery; but I went with him to his house. He said, "If you will wait a minute "Owen Murrell will come, and I think I can get "you a crown." I did not know what he meant. Then Owen Murrell came, and he spoke to me and said, "Now you can go and vote, it shall be all right," and I did go and vote.

8546. But did you get the crown?—I got the money three or four weeks afterwards. Mr. Gibson threw it on the counter for me. I never asked for it, and did not hang back for it, nor did I know that there was going to be any bribery at all. I have spoken the truth I assure you; and I can prove that I have spoken the truth.

8547. Did you know Mr. Gibson before?—Yes; I had known Mr. Gibson a number of years.

8548. Did Mr. Gibson say anything more?—I do not remember that he did. I came away directly.

8549. He gave you the money himself?—Yes; three or four weeks afterwards.

8550. Did you hear of his paying anybody else money?—Yes.

8551. Can you give us the names of the persons to whom he paid money?—I will tell you all I know.

EIGHTH DAY.

A. Perfect.

27 Aug. 1869.

Mr. Stockings came to my house a few weeks after the election, and he wanted to know whether I received 10*s.* for my vote, and I told him I did not. He said, "It is of no consequence, you can speak the truth to "me, all I want to know is whether you received 10*s.*, "because I am not going to have the money paid away "unless I know you have received it." I told Mr. Stockings of this in St. Stephen's, coming along. He asked me if I was subpœnaed, and I said yes, and that I should speak the truth, and the whole truth, and that I did not care who it implicated. Mr. Stockings asked me where these people lived.

8552. Can you remember the names of any of them? He asked me where a man named Snowley, the tailor, lived, and Mr. Gibson, I believe the father of the Gibson that keeps the "White Horse."

8553. Did he mention any names?—He did mention different names, but I cannot remember them.

8554. Do you think you could recall any of them?—No; I do not think I could. I am not withholding any names from you purposely, but I really do not remember them.

8555. Were the names of the persons read out to you from any list?—He had a small book in his hand.

8556. Mr. Stockings had?—Yes; and he looked at the book and asked me the names of the different people, and where they lived, and I could not tell him.

8557. How many were there on that list?—I do not know. I should say he asked me at least 10 or 12.

8558. Do you not recollect some of the names?—I do not think I can recollect them. I remember he asked me about a man named Nursey.

8559. Where does he live?—I do not know whether it is Queen Street or King Street; there is a King Street next to Chapel Street, and Queen Street is the next street. I think it was Queen Street that he lived in.

8560. Were these voters that Mr. Stockings asked about persons living in your neighbourhood?—Yes; it seemed to me as if Owen Murrell had put down in the list the names of persons he had given or promised money to.

8561–2. Who is Murrell?—Whether he is a horse dealer or lets out horses and carriages, or what, I do not know.

8563. Those were the names that Mr. Stockings read out to you?—Yes, he read those names out to me; he said that Murrell had given him a list of these names, and that he wanted payment for them. I supposed that Murrell had parted with his own money, and wanted Stockings to refund the money to him; that is how I understood it; but mind, I think it is very likely that Mr. Stockings will come here and say I have sworn falsely, but I have not done so. I told him when I came here I should speak the truth. I said, "When you came to my house you "asked me whether I had received 10*s.*, and I told "you no, and I spoke the truth, and then you asked "me the names of other people;" I said, "You "wanted to know how much money was spent, be-"cause you did not believe that so much money had "been spent."

8564. Has Mr. Stockings been talking to the witnesses outside?—I do not know; he spoke to me coming along.

8565. Where did you see him?—At his own shop-door in St. Stephen's. I was walking on the other side of the way, and he called me to him; I was past his house considerably.

8566. Did he say anything to you about your being summoned here?—He asked me if I was subpœnaed, and I said I was.

8567. Did he make any suggestion to you as to what you should say?—No; I told him I should speak the truth, and he said, "I wish you to do so;" he said, "I know nothing about the money;" I said, "I do not care about that, you told me that "this money was subscribed by independent gentle-"men."

8568. Did he mention the names of any who had subscribed?—No; I told him I should swear to this, and he told me he should come here and swear that what I said was a lie. I cannot help that. I have spoken the truth.

8569. Is this which you have mentioned the only case in which you have heard of money going at the election?—Except from report. I cannot give evidence of other cases.

8570. Is Henry Nursey the person you have spoken of?—I do not know whether it is Robert or Henry. I know it is Nursey, because he worked for me.

8571. Was this the first time you had ever voted?—It was the first time I had ever voted in Norwich.

8572. And this that you have mentioned is the only case you can speak to from your own personal knowledge?—Yes, it is the only one that I can remember. If I remember anything else I shall be quite willing to come back and tell you.

8573. Do you know of any of these other people whose names were mentioned by Stockings getting any money?—No, I do not.

8574. Do you think you could find out the names of any of those persons who were living in your part of the city?—I think I could. I think that Owen Murrell is quite willing to give you a list of names. I speak only from what I think; I told Mr. Stockings coming along that I should speak everything I knew about it. I do not consider I sold my vote. I do not consider that I was bribed at all. I did not know what was meant.

J. Gilman.

JOHN GILMAN sworn and examined.

8575. (Mr. Dowdeswell.) Where do you live?—London Street is my business place.

8576. Are you a voter of this city?—A freeman; I have been a voter many years.

8577. Did you vote at the last election?—Certainly.

8578. For whom did you vote?—For Sir Henry Stracey.

8579. Did you take an active part in the last election?—I cannot say I did; not so active a part as I should have wished to have taken.

8580. You were a warm supporter of the Conservative party, though not able to take an active part in the election?—I was very indisposed at the time of the election, and living a few miles in the country I could not take that active part in the election that I should have wished to take had I been able.

8581. You got the names, did you not, of some doubtful voters?—I made a memorandum on the day of the election of several names of parties that I suspected of having been tampered with. Being an old electioneerer I considered myself capable of judging, but on further investigation I found that it was the result of an over sanguine and hasty canvass; so I must disabuse my mind of the opinion I at first entertained.

8582. You made a list of persons who, from your previous experience of them, having been engaged actively in former elections, you thought were likely persons to be tampered with?—No, not exactly so, because most of them were new voters.

8583. You considered that they were doubtful people?—I fancied so.

8584. How many names did you put down?—I entered, I think, over 30, but I handed the papers to Mr. Page, who conducted the election for the first ward; at the time of the investigation before Baron

Martin those papers seem to have been mislaid. I have seen only a portion of them since.

8585. You handed them to Mr. Page?—Yes, and I gave the memoranda back to him; the memoranda he gave to me were partly in his own writing, and what I gave him were in my own writing.

8586. What were the memoranda that you gave to him?—The names of parties who, having promised, had voted the contrary way.

8587. Then you had got this list which you gave to Mr. Page?—I had the canvassing book before me, and in the central committee room, the inner room, I looked carefully over every voter to see how he had promised, and how he had voted. I went through it to protect Sir Henry Stracey's interest.

8588. How long is it since you gave the memoranda to Page?—A fortnight or three weeks perhaps.

8589. If I understand you you got a list from Page?—No, I got the list from Mr. Page afterwards.

8590. The same list?—A portion of it, as I have before stated.

8591. Have you got that list now?—No, I returned it to Mr. Page with the canvassing book.

8592. When?—About three weeks since, about the time when Mr. Secker (the secretary to the Commission) called; that probably will bring the period to his recollection. I did not feel justified in giving to Mr. Secker the names of those parties that I felt afterwards might not have been guilty.

8594. With whom had you gone over the matter?—With Mr Watson, the chemist, and one or two other parties who knew the voters.

8595. Who were the other parties?—Mr. Skipper, the solicitor, and Mr. Green, and one or two others. It seems they had gone over this list carefully at the time of the investigation before Baron Martin.

8596. The list you say contained the names of what you considered doubtful voters?—They were new voters.

8597. And doubtful?—They did not accord with the canvass. I think the fault rested more with the canvass than anything else.

8598. Mr. Secker came and asked you for that list?—He did.

8599. Because it would afford him assistance?—It would have afforded him assistance in the investigation.

8600. What prevented you from giving the list to Mr. Secker?—Because I did not feel that I should be justified in giving him a list of parties who I had suspected, feeling satisfied afterwards in my own mind that I was wrong in my first impression.

8601. Had anybody advised you to refuse to let Mr. Secker have the list?—I took counsel of my friends upon the subject.

8602. And was it in consequence of that that you did not give Mr. Secker the list?—Decidedly.

8603. What possible harm could there have been in giving the list to a gentleman in the position of Mr. Secker?—With all due deference to your authority I did not like to be the means of calling into the witness box parties who had been suspected, and who I found afterwards were innocent.

8604. This was a list of men who were supposed to have promised, and afterwards voted the other way?—Yes, but on investigating the matter, I felt satisfied that they had not been correctly put down. I believe it was the result of a hasty and over sanguine canvass. It is natural for a man to say "Tom "Jones, you will vote for Stracey," and then if the man says nothing down goes Tom Jones' name as having promised; that is the way it is done.

8605. It was in consequence of advice given you by others, and at their suggestion, that you abstained from giving the list to Mr. Secker?—Yes.

8606. Now tell us, if you please, who were the parties from whom you received that advice?—I mentioned the matter to Sir Samuel Bignold, in the first instance.

8607. Did he suggest to you that you should withhold it?—He thought I should be doing an injustice to the parties if I gave up their names.

8608. Had any of these parties been seen, do you know?—I did not personally see them.

8609. Did you learn whether they had been seen or not?—No, I did not. I cannot say.

8610. Have you not heard that they had been seen?—I really have made no inquiry upon that point.

8611. But have you not been told so?—No, I have not been told either one way or the other. I have heard nothing whatever about it.

8612. Have you not heard from some person that they had been seen?—Certainly not.

8613. Unless they had been seen how did you arrive at the conclusion that you had done an injustice to them?—Parties who knew them in their own immediate neighbourhood, Mr. Watson, for instance, pointed out that it would be ridiculous to put those men's names down, as they had always been against us, and no promise had been given by them.

8614. They were all new voters, were they not?—Most of them were.

8615. They were persons who, from your knowledge of the locality, you considered doubtful voters?—I suspected through this reason; about 11 o'clock in the morning I had great reason for suspicion, and I will tell you why. I had been accustomed to electioneering tactics. I found that one card came up to the first booth with three names upon it, then a card came to the second booth with three names upon it, and then another card came to the third booth with two names upon it, making eight altogether, and I said to myself, "These men are bribed." I should naturally draw that conclusion, and my impression now is that there was bribery in the first ward early in the morning, though I have not detected it, I wish I could. I would gladly assist you in finding it out if I could.

8616. You had a canvass book, had you not?—I had a canvass book before me.

8617. Which showed you how these men had promised?—How they had promised.

8618. Or I should say, more properly speaking, they showed the supposed promises?—I do not think you would have any difficulty in getting the canvassing book from Mr. Page, or the memoranda.

8619. Did you hand the canvassing book to Mr. Page?—I merely borrowed it of him a second time, to satisfy Mr. Secker, and returned it to him.

8620. Did you withhold the canvassing book under that advice?—I returned both.

8621. (Mr. Biron.) As I understand, you returned both the canvassing list and this memoranda to Mr. Page?—Yes.

8622. (Mr. Dowdeswell.) What has become of that list?—I believe Mr. Page has got it, but I do not know.

8623. You have since returned it to him, have you?—I returned it to him at the time. I borrowed it of him on the Monday, and I think it was returned on the Thursday; we had some difficulty in finding them.

8624. When Mr. Secker asked for it did you not say it was destroyed?—A portion of them were destroyed. I mentioned that, and I stated on the examination before Mr. Baron Martin here that the papers were looked over, but a portion of them had been lost or mislaid, for it had not been found.

8625. I am speaking about this list?—This was part of the list.

8626. Then there was part of the list which still survives and remains, is there?—Yes, in my handwriting.

8627. And you believe that is in Mr. Page's possession still?—I gave them up on the evening of the election; I have not seen them since.

EIGHTH DAY.

J. Gilman.

27 Aug. 1869.

8628. Let us take it in the order of time, and then we shall get at it clearly. You handed the three papers to Mr. Page ?—Yes, and there might be more, I do not know ; it was on a fly-sheet of note paper.

8629. Did Mr. Page ever return them to you ?—I got a portion of them back when I applied for them.

8630. Did you get more than one or two papers back ?—Two papers, but a portion of them was in his own handwriting not in mine ; those papers contained the names of 27 or 28 persons, I think.

8631. Then what did you do with them ?—I gave them to him again with the canvass book.

8632. When ?—About a fortnight or three weeks since.

8633. Since what ?—Since I have seen Mr. Secker.

8634. Mr. Secker waited upon you, did he not ?—Yes.

8635. He asked for a list of doubtful voters which was in your possession ?—Yes ; parties that I suspected.

8636. You had them then in your possession ?—Well, I do not know, I am not certain about that ; I rather think I went to Mr. Page for them, and then returned them to him afterwards.

8637. Mr. Secker having applied to you for them, did you go and consult these gentlemen as to whether you should produce them ?—Whether I should be justified in giving up the names after finding my suspicions were incorrect.

8638. But you had not found that your suspicions were incorrect then, had you ?—By inquiries ; I will tell you the parties that made the inquiries.

8639. Did you make the inquiries ?—No, I did not, because none of the parties were known to me.

8640. Then it was from what other people said they had done ?—Yes, just so.

8641. You had not found your suspicions to be incorrect ?—No, I did not know one of the voters.

8642. You had not satisfied yourself that you were incorrect in your suspicions ?—Well, I satisfied myself so far, these parties were neighbours, and could well ascertain the views of the parties.

8643. You depended upon the report of the other persons whom you consulted ?—Yes, just so.

8644. Entirely ?—Entirely.

8645. You did not go and ask yourself ?—No.

8646. Who was the first person that you consulted ?—Well, I really cannot say.

8647. Were they altogether at the time you consulted them ?—Oh no, I asked two or three friends ; I said to them, "What would you do ? I have had "my suspicions about these parties, and I find my "suspicions incorrect, therefore I do not think I "should be justified in giving these people trouble, "what would you do in the matter ?" And the advice was, "I think I should refuse to give them." That was the prevailing advice, not out of disregard to you or this inquiry at all, on the contrary, if I had the check cards before me I could give the names with the aid of the canvassing book, and I would point out the names of the parties I suspected at 11 o'clock.

8648. What did Sir Samuel Bignold say respecting it ?—He did not think I should be justified in giving it up and putting parties to inconvenience.

8649. I suppose he understood that the object was to ascertain whether there was any real foundation for those reports ?—Sir Samuel Bignold would not know anything about it.

8650. He would not know anything about it ?—Not about the parties.

8651. You told him that your impression was that that they were doubtful ?—He asked me some three months back if I would go over that list carefully again, and make all the inquiries that I could to see whether I could detect a bribe about the time I specified—11 o'clock. The list was gone over again by parties in the parish much more competent than I am, and they returned to me that they did not think there was any doubt about it ; that is prior to any hearing of the question at all.

8652. That is a long time ago ?—Yes.

8653. That was not your inquiry ?—Not at all.

8654. It was entirely the inquiry of other people ?—Yes, just so.

8655. Who were those people that made the inquiry ?—I really do not know.

8656. Surely you must know ?—Mr. Skipper, the solicitor, was one.

8657. I should like to know who were the people who made that inquiry three months ago ?—If I can recollect I will with pleasure give you the information.

8658–9. Did anybody go into the list the other day when you got it again ?—Yes, Mr. Skipper, with Mr. Watson, the chemist, here close by.

8660. Then after they had gone over them it was returned to Mr. Page, and you do not know where it is now ?—No, that took place in my own premises ; Mr. Watson called upon me. I had called upon him first and left my card in the morning.

8661. Has Mr. Page, so far as you know, got it still ?—I believe so.

8662. Are you a member of the Eldon Club ?—I have been a member many years, and I am not ashamed to own it.

8663. Oh no, you need not be ?—I have been a member many years, but I have not attended any meeting at the club. I think I generally put in an appearance at the annual business meetings.

8664. You were not at the meeting at the Eldon Club at the time of the election, were you ?—I attended one meeting there.

8665. But not the last ?—I do not know whether that was the last or not ; I fancy it was the last.

8666. Do you know what day it was on which the meeting you attended was held ?—No, I do not.

8667. Was it the day or two or three days before the election ?—I cannot charge my memory with that. It was the same evening that they met at the "Hop Pole," and then they came from the "Hop Pole" to the "Bell," and the meeting was held at the "Bell."

8668. That was a meeting at which Sir Henry Stracey addressed the electors ?—Oh yes, it was not confined to the Eldon Club, because the room was filled with people.

8669. That was an open meeting, at which everybody was present ?—Yes.

8670. But were you present at a private meeting of the Conservatives held at the Eldon Club, a meeting of your party only, if I may so term it ?—I do not think I attended a private meeting this time at all.

8671. You say you attended a meeting at the Eldon Club ?—No, I do not think I did. I only attended this one meeting.

8672. That is the meeting ?—I will give a reason for it. I believe I suggested Sir Henry Stracey as a candidate, and kept my friends, the members of the Eldon Club, up to their work. They were the first to wait upon him with a deputation. I believe it was principally at my suggestion.

8673. I am not speaking of the time when you met in order to propose Sir Henry Stracey or to send a requisition to him. I am speaking shortly before the election ?—I do not think I came up to the city but one evening, and that was to a meeting at the "Bell," and that was more a general meeting.

8674. Can you tell how long that was before the election ?—No.

8675. Was it the day before the polling ?—No. I think the polling day was on the Tuesday, and I should say this would be the Thursday or Friday previous. I think it was on the Friday.

8676. Was anything said about money at that meeting?—Oh, dear me, no.

8677. You are sure of that?—Well, sir, I should not have countenanced such a thing myself.

8678. You might not have countenanced it, but I want to know whether anything was said about money?—No, certainly not.

8679. Was anything said about the Carlton Club?—Oh dear, no; that I am fully confident of, nor at any time during the election; and as far as my own judgment is concerned, it was the purest election that has ever taken place in Norwich.

8680. That may, very possibly, be true, and yet it may not have been quite a pure one?—No one can help a few warm-hearted friends doing indiscreet acts.

8681. We may have to inquire into the acts of warm-hearted friends, and it is very likely that which has brought us down here.—No; what brought you down here was the hasty conclusion of the Judge, I think. If you will furnish me with the check cards and the canvassing book I will point out the names of those eight persons that I suspected as having been tampered with at 11 o'clock.

8682. I suppose you have talked about the election over and over again with different people?—Of course we rejoiced at the triumph.

8683. You rejoiced at the triumph, and then you condoled over the defeat?—The result did not prove very satisfactory in the long run.

8684. Did you, when you condoled over the defeat, say that the defeat was owing to the indiscretion of one man?—Well, perhaps I might.

8685. Who was the man to whose indiscretion you attributed it?—If I must answer, it would be Mr. Wiseman, I should say.

8686. I will call your attention to a little expression. Did you say that anybody had broken or kicked over the traces?—I forget; but I think it is very likely I did.

8687. Now, who was that restive horse?—I think it was Mr. Wiseman.

8688. Are you sure that it was Mr. Wiseman? Now reflect.—I do not recollect the circumstance of the conversation at all.

8689. There is another name besides that?—No, I do not think there is. There is nothing else suggests itself to my mind.

8690. You know young men, like colts, are sometimes restive. Did you point to a young man?—No.

8691. Did you not point to any young man?—No, not that I recollect.

8692. Did you not say something about a young man?—No.

8693. Did you not?—I cannot tax my memory with anything of the kind.

8694. I will call your attention to the conversation. Do you know young Mr. Stracey?—I know all the family.

8695. Did you not say that it was in consequence of the indiscretion of one of those gentlemen?—No.

8696. Although you did not mention his name, did you allude to him as being the person?—No, certainly not.

8697. Who was the person then to whose indiscretion you think it was attributable?—I know of no one else besides Mr. Wiseman.

8698. Only Wiseman?—I do not know of anybody else.

8699. Wiseman, junior?—No, Wiseman, senior. I do not know Wiseman, junior.

8700. What made you think it was attributable to the indiscretion of Wiseman?—Well, before questions were put to him he seemed to have replies; that is what I read at the time of the trial, and that is the only conclusion I could draw; he volunteered his testimony.

8701. Is that the only ground upon which you said he kicked over the traces?—Yes, and quite enough to upset everything.

8702. Wiseman is no longer a young man, is he?—Well, I do not know what his age is. I have no idea.

8703. He is a very old man, is he not?—No.

8704. He has been very active at all the elections, has he not?—Well, I do not know much about that.

8705. At some of the elections?—I have no personal knowledge of him.

8706. But he has been very active, has he not?—I believe he has for the last four or five years. I did not hear much of him before.

8707. You could hardly allude to a gentleman like that?—He is not an old man.

8708. He has a grown up son, has he not?—Very likely, but some men are old at 50, and some are young.

8709. Were you alluding to the old man?—I was not alluding to the Straceys, that is very certain. I should have no reason for it. I know the family well, and I believe they are very honourable young men indeed.

8710. They may be honourable, and yet very indiscreet?—I know of no act of indiscretion whatever on their parts.

8711. Do you know Mr. Arthur Bignold?—Yes.

8712. May you have made use of that expression with reference to Mr. Arthur Bignold?—No. I did not know that Mr. Arthur Bignold was engaged on the day of the election. I did not know that he was in Norwich, because he resides in London.

8713. You knew afterwards that he was?—I heard afterwards that he was.

8714. This expression was used after?—I never heard of Mr. Arthur Bignold committing himself in any shape, or even of his being suspected.

8715. Not of his being suspected?—No, certainly not.

8716. Can you tell me who were present at that meeting to which you allude—the Conservative meeting at which you were present?—Well, there was a quantity of people there.

8717. I am not speaking of the public meeting, but of the private meeting of the Eldon Club?—I did not attend the private meeting of the Eldon Club. I hoped you distinctly understood me to say that I think I came up to the city only once.

8718. You said you attended one meeting?—That was a large meeting at the club, open to all the citizens as well, and it was not a private meeting.

8719. Then you did not attend any private meeting at the club?—No, I do not think there was a private meeting. This was a very hasty affair; we did not get the candidate until late.

8720. (Mr. Mansfield.) You mentioned a great number of warm-hearted friends. Can you give me their names?—Do you mean the names of my warm-hearted friends.

8721. You said a good deal was done in this election by warm-hearted friends?—I said indiscreet acts might be committed by warm-hearted friends.

8722. Would Dr. Allen be a warm-hearted friend?—Decidedly so; and he took a very active part in the election.

8723. And Dr. Pitt?—He is not in my ward, and I did not go out of my ward.

8724. Mr. Stanley?—I did see him.

8725. Mr. Buttifant?—He is not in my ward.

8726. Do you know anything about the men in other wards?—Yes.

8727. Would they be warm-hearted friends?—Yes, I daresay they would, some of them.

8728. Those would be the warm-hearted men who got you into trouble?—That would involve systematic bribery, but I do not think there was any. I have no idea there was any organisation whatever.

8729. I suppose after the trial before Mr. Baron

EIGHTH DAY.

J. Gilman.

27 Aug. 1869.

Martin you heard of young Mr. Stracey being about with Hardiment?—Yes.

8730. Did you not think that indiscreet?—I considered Mr. Hardiment's conduct indiscreet if he had money shaking about in people's eyes.

8731. What do you consider Mr. Stracey's conduct then?—That was prior to it.

8732. But they were going about together?—No; young Mr. Stracey was going about canvassing before the election, but I do not think you will find that Mr. Stracey was present on the election day with Hardiment.

8733. It would have been an indiscreet act if he had been about with Hardiment on that day, I should think?—I think it was a very indiscreet act of Sir Henry Stracey's friends taking him to the "Trumpet" on that day.

8734. (Mr. Biron.) I do not think you told us who were the active men in your ward?—I saw but little of it and I do not know who canvassed, but I believe Mr. Morgan, the brewer, was the principal, and Mr. Hotblack. I did not canvass.

8735. I understood you were unwell and did not do so?—I was asked to take the first ward, which I had done on previous elections, and I refused; then Mr. Allen came and said, "I do not know how we "shall get on in the committee room without you to "keep order, because you are accustomed to it." I said "Very well, I will think of it," and then Mr. Page came, who was a perfect stranger to me, and asked me to come, and I said, "I will come and render "you what assistance I can;" it is true it was but very little, but I did what I could.

W. Hunt.

WILLIAM HUNT recalled and further examined.

8736. (Mr. Dowdeswell.) I understand that you have told the Secretary that you wish to make some statement?—Yes.

8737. If you wish to correct any statement, we wish you to have every opportunity of doing so. Now what is it?—I read in the paper last evening that Mr. Ellis, the fruiterer, should come here and state that I should tell him that I was present in the room at the "Trumpet" and saw the money left on the table, and saw Smith and my brother go and take it up; that I should state that I was present at the time, and that I should tell him so. Now I come to contradict that. I did not say any such thing to him. I can bring one witness or ten witnesses to prove that I was at work from morning till night that very day, and I did not go into the "Trumpet" until the evening after the election was over, so I could not tell the man so.

8738. Perhaps if I put a question to you it will be to a certain extent explained. Was the conversation which took place between you and that man on a Saturday evening?—On one Saturday evening.

8739. (Mr. Mansfield.) Was the conversation in the market?—Yes.

8740. That was a market night?—It was market night.

8741. (Mr. Dowdeswell.) Had you had a little to drink that day?—No, sir.

8742. Are you sure?—Oh yes, I am.

8743. You are certain you had not?—I am certain I never got too much to drink, and I know what I talk about; that is all I have to say.

8744. You might, you know, in an unguarded moment, have said a thing of that sort, having forgotten yourself to a certain extent, being under the influence of drink?—No, I did not.

8745. I tell you candidly what our impression of your evidence was, we thought that you had heard a number of rumours; not that you had heard this from your brother, but that you had heard a number of rumours respecting your brother, and that you were merely repeating what you had heard, not from any statement made by him but entirely from hearsay. We did not suppose after what you had stated that you were wilfully telling any falsehood, or anything of the kind?—Very good sir.

O. Murrell.

OWEN MURRELL sworn and examined.

8746. (Mr. Biron.) What are you?—I keep a livery stable, and am a postmaster.

8747. You are a voter?—Yes.

8748. Where?—All Saints, I think.

8749. In what ward is that?—The fifth ward.

8750. You are a supporter of Sir Henry Stracey?—Yes.

8751. Have you seen Stockings, the chemist, this morning?—Well, if I was to say I had not seen him I should tell a story.

8752. Exactly, then please to tell the truth?—I am come to speak the truth.

8753. When did you see him?—I saw him this morning but never spoke to him. It was before breakfast time. I generally go down the street.

8754. Have you not seen him within the last hour?—No.

8755. Have you not spoken to him within the last hour?—No.

8756. Has he written to you within the last hour?—No.

8757. Have you had no communication of any sort or kind with him to-day?—No.

8758. Or he with you?—No.

8759. Did you send anybody to him?—Not at all. I am come here to speak the truth. I did a very foolish thing sir, I gave five men 5*s.* each to vote.

8760. Just tell me in your own way what you have to say?—I gave five men 5*s.* apiece to vote, and one had voted two hours before, that is a man of the name of Gibson. I gave Perfect 5*s.*, Wiseman 5*s.*, and a man named Nursey, a man named Snowley, or some such name as that; but I did it of my own accord, and never received a farthing for it. I was not authorised to do it.

8761. I know that, but had you done that sort of thing before?—Well, yes sir, I have been mixed up in elections.

8762. Have you got it back again?—I do not know that I ever spent any money at all before.

8763. Not your own money?—No.

8764. Then were you furnished with money?—No, nor yet anything else.

8765. Have you not bribed any voters before?—No; I have always voted a Tory.

8766. Had you not given them money to vote before?—No.

8767. When you said you had been mixed up in matters, what did you mean by that?—I had always been a Tory all my life, and belonged to a Conservative club.

8768. The Eldon club?—No; at the Rampant Horse, the ward club.

8769. That is a Conservative club in this city, is it?—Yes.

8770. Do working men belong to it?—Oh no, it is a tradesman's club, I should think.

8771. Was there any subscription among the members of that club?—Not a farthing. I never heard it mentioned.

8772. Did you not hear of anybody else subscribing money but yourself?—Never.

8773. Or anybody but yourself giving money on this election?—I never heard that anybody else did.

8774. What put it into your head to bribe these men?—I was a little excited and foolish, and I thought, perhaps, I should get it back again, but I did not.

8775. You told me you were going to tell the whole story, you know?—I am telling the whole story. I asked Stockings one day if I could get paid, and he said, "No, certainly not; we shall have nothing to do "with it." That is all I know.

8776. You thought you would get it out of Stockings?—Well, he was on the committee.

8777. Or through him out of the candidates?—Yes. I spent 25*s.*, and I swear I never received one farthing; but I was not authorised to do it, though I did it.

8778. Were you not in Mr. Stockings' shop half an hour ago?—No; I went past there. I never went into the shop.

8779. Did you not go in?—No; I will swear that.

8780. Did you ask if Mr. Stockings was in as you passed?—No, I did not.

8781. Are you sure?—I am sure of it. I have told you the truth, sir. I have nothing to conceal. I have told you all I know, and what I have done.

8782. (Mr. Dowdeswell.) You are a voter?—Yes. I voted, I think, before 9 in the morning.

8783. For Sir Henry Stracey?—Yes.

8784. You thought you would be repaid this money by Stockings?—Well, I thought I should be repaid by someone; I chanced that. I was a little excited, and I have had several words with my wife about it since, because I took the money from her, and she did not like it much.

8785. Have you heard of other people chancing it too?—No, not that I know of.

8786. I suppose you do not stand alone in your liberality in Norwich. You have heard of a good number of other people, members of the Rampant Horse Club, and so on, who are liberal?—No; I never heard of anything there.

8787. Not besides what you have done yourself?—No. I never heard a single soul, in fact, I have not been to the meeting since, for I was rather annoyed about it.

8788. (Mr. Mansfield.) You said you were rather excited about this election and that you spent 25*s.* of your own money?—Yes.

8789. Did you communicate that to any of your friends?—Not until the election was over.

8790. To whom did you tell it?—I told Stockings once or twice.

8791. What did he say to that?—He said he had nothing to do with it. I should be the loser of it; he could not pay me.

8792. Did you tell anybody that you were going to do it?—No, only my wife; she knew what I was going to do.

8793. Perfect, you say, was one of the men you paid?—Yes.

8794. Did you pay Perfect yourself or did you give it to Gibson for him?—I left it at Gibson's.

8795. You left the 5*s.* with Gibson?—I left 15*s.* there, and they got it the next day. I had not the money with me that day, but I took it the next morning and paid it.

8796. (Mr. Dowdeswell.) Are you sure that you did not come up from Stockings' shop here to day?—I came past there and I looked in and I saw his child against the door, and I asked if her father was at home, she said "No," and then I came down here.

8797. (Mr. Biron.) You know I asked you that?—Then I must have misunderstood you, sir, I never saw Mr. Stockings.

8798. I asked you when you passed by Stocking's shop did you ask whether Stockings was at home?—I thought you said did I speak to Mr. Stockings.

8799. I may be mistaken, but if I am the shorthand writer will correct me, the shorthand writer will read what you said. (The shorthand writer reads a passage from the notes.)

(The Witness.) It was a misunderstanding, sir. I spoke to the little child and asked whether her father was in, and she said he was not; then I came back down the street and came here, but I never spoke to a soul to my knowledge.

8800. Supposing he had been at home, what did you want to see him for?—I often go in there.

8801. But you had been summoned here at the time you went up?—I had a subpœna, of course.

8802. Did you not go in to tell him it?—I might have told him, very likely I should if he had been at home.

8803. (Mr. Dowdeswell.) Have you spoken to him at all?—No.

8804. Has anyone spoken to you?—No.

8805. (Mr. Biron.) Has anybody told you what Perfect said?—No, only what I have heard talked about the streets.

8806. Did you ever have any consultation with Stockings about what was to be said about money?—I asked him if I should be paid, and he said, no, certainly not, he had nothing to do with it.

8807. But when you knew that the Commission was coming down here, did you have any conversation with Stockings about it?—No, not particular.

8808. About what you were to say or do?—No, not particular, only that if I were to be called I should speak the truth, I always said so.

8809. (Mr. Dowdeswell.) Did you not hear that Stockings had a fund for the payment of sums which had been laid out?—No.

8810. Then how came you to speak to Stockings about it?—Because he and I are friendly, he lives close by me.

8811. But I suppose you have got numberless friends in the city?—I knew he had to do with the ward election, that is all that made me ask him.

8812. Did you not learn that there was a fund?—No, certainly not, not to the best of my knowledge.

8813. Did you not know that some independent gentlemen had made a fund for payment of the money?—No.

8814. Have you not heard of any sums being subscribed to pay men who had been zealous on this occasion?—No, not a word that I will swear.

8815. You paid it in the faith, of course, that you would get it back?—Yes, that is why I done it; I thought I should get it back again.

8816. That you would get it back from the party?—I thought I should.

8817. You had heard that that had been so on former elections?—I daresay it had.

8818. There is no doubt about it, is there?—I do not know that it had.

8819. And I suppose in that confidence you paid this money?—Well, I did it foolishly, but I thought I might get it back one day or the other.

8820. (Mr. Mansfield.) When you mentioned to Perfect about the payment of this 5*s.* was Stockings' name mentioned?—Not that I know of.

8821. Did you not mention Stockings' name in the presence of Perfect?—I do not know that I did.

8822. That Stockings told you to hand over 5*s.* to him?—No.

8823. Will you swear that?—I told Stockings that I never had got my money back.

8824. Did you mention Stockings' name in Perfect's presence?—I might have done so, I might have said I never got the money.

8825. Or that you expected to get it?—No.

8826. It was not very long after the election, was it?—I cannot say how long.

8827. Not more than two or three weeks?—No.

8828. Then you had not given up all hope of getting the money then?—Oh, yes, I had forgotten all about it, and had given it up as gone.

8829. Have you had no communication with Stockings since this inquiry began?—No, not at all.

8830. What made you go to Stockings for this

EIGHTH DAY.

O. Murrell.

27 Aug. 1869.

25*s.*?—Well, from his having to do with the ward club.

8831. But there were many other men who had to do with the ward club who were much richer than Stockings, and therefore you must have thought that he was empowered to pay the money?—I asked him and he refused, and I did not trouble myself anything more about it.

8832. But there were other men who were quite as active as Stockings, and who had more money, why did you not go to them if you thought they could pay, did you not think that Stockings was empowered to pay?—No, I did not think anything about it, I merely asked him and left it to him.

8833. You knew that Stockings had been very active throughout the day of the election?—He had the management of the ward.

8834. And you had heard that he had been paying other men, had you not?—No.

8835. Are you quite sure of that?—Yes, that I will swear.

8836–8. (Mr. Dowdeswell.) Have you ever received or been promised any money for having voted at that election?—No, that I will swear.

8839. Have you yourself with the exceptions which you mentioned paid or promised to pay any money to men for voting at that election?—No.

8840. Do you know of any money having been paid, or having been promised to be paid by anybody whatever?—No, that I will swear. I only know what I done myself, that is all.

8841. Do you know of any money having been provided to pay persons?—No, certainly not.

8842. Do you know of any persons who had either promised to pay or paid money at that election to other people?—No, that I will swear, I know nothing but what I have done myself.

8843–4. You were a member of the Rampant Horse Club, and the members were strong Conservatives?—Yes.

8845. Do you not know of any of them having clubbed together?—I never heard a word of it; I never heard one single word about money matters.

8846. (Mr. Biron.) Is there any list of the members of it?—I do not know.

8847. I suppose the landlord would be able to tell us?—I suppose he would.

8848. (Mr. Dowdeswell.) I think it due to you to say that I think you have frankly told us the truth?—I have, sir, and that I will swear.

8849. Although what you have done might have subjected you to very severe penalties, in consequence of the way you have given your evidence to day, you shall certainly, as we have the power, be entirely absolved from those penalties?—Thank you sir.

8850. (Mr. Biron.) You could be prosecuted, you perfectly understand that, but we have the power of giving you a certificate of indemnity; we will do that to you and to anybody else who will come forward and tell us the truth.—I will take good care it does not occur again sir.

G. Gibson.

GEORGE GIBSON sworn and examined.

8851. (Mr. Dowdeswell.) Do you know Murrell?—Yes.

8852. Did you pay over any money to Perfect?—Yes.

8853. How much?—5*s.*

8854. When did you do that?—About four days after the election.

8855. What did Murrell say to you when he directed you to pay it to him?—He said, you can give this 5*s.* to Mr. Perfect when he comes in.

8856. Did he say what for?—No.

8857. Was that all that passed?—That is all that passed between me and Mr. Murrell.

8858. You paid it to Perfect?—I paid it to Perfect; he called for a cup of stout, and I gave him 4*s.* 10½*d.* and the cup of stout; that made up the 5*s.*

8859. Do you live in Crook's Place?—Yes.

8860. Were there a number of men at your house upon the day of the election?—I think there were about eight or nine altogether.

8861. Were they voters?—I believe so, but I cannot speak for the whole of them.

8862. How long did they remain in your house on that day?—Up until about 7 or 8 o'clock at night.

8863. From what time in the morning?—They were there before dinner.

8864. From 9 or 10 o'clock in the morning?—Until up to 7 or 8 o'clock at night.

8865. And they were drinking there the whole time?—Not the whole of the time.

8866. They were drinking there during the day?—Yes.

8867. For whom did they vote, do you know?—I cannot say who they all voted for.

8868. Is yours a Conservative house?—Well, sir, I do not vote at all myself.

8869. You do not vote at all, but is yours a house which is called Conservative, that is, as far as the people who come to it are concerned?—Well, it is mixed up with both parties.

8870. But of these people who were there upon that day how many were Conservative?—I cannot say.

8871. Did you see anybody coming there and canvassing them for their votes?—Mr. Murrell came up that way.

8872. Is Mr. Murrell the only person?—He is the only person who came up during the election day.

8873. Did you hear him speak to the men?—Yes.

8874. What did he say to them?—He said "You go "and vote, and I will give you 5*s.*"

1875. How many men did he say that to?—I can speak to three.

8876. Did he say for whom they were to vote?—He said "Go and vote for Mr. Stracey."

8877. Can you give me the names of those three to whom he said that?—Nursey is one, Perfect is another, and I think the other was my father.

8878. Did you hear him say that to anybody besides?—No.

8879. He did not offer it to anybody that was there?—No; he said, says he, "If you go and vote "for Stracey I will give you 5*s.*, that shall be all "right."

8880. Did he say that to the three men, or to the men who were there generally?—No, to the three men.

8881. But there were a lot of them there?—Yes, eight or nine.

8882. Did he address it to them, and did they accept it, or did he address it to those three only?—Those three by themselves.

8883. Are Henry Gibson and George Gibson relations of yours?—Yes, Henry Gibson is a brother of mine.

8884. What relation is George Gibson to you?—My father.

8885. Did you pay the other men?—I paid three men, sir, Perfect, Nursey, and my father.

8886–7. When did Mr. Murrell pay you again,—About four days after the election, he came in in the evening, and he said "You might give 5*s.* to "Perfect, 5*s.* to Nursey, and 5*s.* to the old man;" that is what he said, he did not say "father," but "the old man."

8888. He gave you then four days after the election 15*s.*?—Yes.

8889. To pay in that way?—Yes.

8890. Did Murrell say where it came from?—No.

8891. Did you hear anything about an independent body of gentlemen?—No.

8892. Consider, was not something said about an independent body of gentlemen and subscriptions?—No, I cannot remember that; he asked me whether I knew where there was any voters, and these are the three men that I went and picked up for him.

8893. But when he paid you, did he not say anything about the independent gentlemen?—No; he told me he had paid the money out of his pocket, whether he was going to have it no more he did not know.

8894. He did not say where the money had come from which he brought to you?—No; he said he had been and got the money, and his wife had kicked up a jolly row with him for taking it out of the cash box.

8895. (Mr. Mansfield). Did your brother Henry get anything?—I do not know. I do not know whether he voted.

8896. Was anything said about Mr. Stockings?—No.

8897. Did you not look to Mr. Stockings as the man who was to furnish the money at last?—No sir. I never took any interest in the election at all.

8898. (Mr. Biron.) You told us there were three you heard agree to take 5*s.*, whose names you have given us; were the other men in your house within hearing when this bargain was made?—They never heard that bargain, because I was with Mr. Murrell; we were by ourselves when he offered the money.

8899. Were the others voters?—I believe they were.

8900. Do you know whether they voted that day?—That I cannot say, they are people that use my house, but I could not tell what they were there after.

8901. You did not hear them say anything about waiting until they got something for their votes?—No.

8902. Can you give me their names?—Mr. Perfect was one.

8903. We have got him, we have got the names of those to whom you ultimately paid the 5*s.*, but what are the names of the other six men?—I am sure I could not tell if you would give me all the world.

8904. They use your house you know?—Yes.

8905. I should have thought you would have had other names in your mind?—I am sure I cannot think who they are.

JOHN NURSEY sworn and examined. J. Nursey.

8906. (Mr. Mansfield.) Who did you vote for at the last election?—Mr. Stracey.

8907. What did you get for it?—5*s.*

8908. Who gave it to you?—Mr. Gibson gave it to me. It was a loss of time to me, and I hope when there is another election, I shall never have an opportunity of running into it.

8909. Who promised the money to you?—I had no promise, only from Mr. Gibson, to the best of my knowledge.

8910. Was it promised by Mr. Gibson?—Mr. Murrell named it to me, and Mr. Gibson gave me the money.

8911. Do you know where the money came from?—I don't know where it came from, because I was busy at work at the time, and I would rather be where I was than be losing my time.

8912. Did you ever vote before?—This is the first time I ever had one, and I never wish to have another.

HENRY GIBSON sworn and examined. H. Gibson.

8913. (Mr. Biron.) What are you?—A cutler.

8914. For whom did you vote at the last election?—Stracey.

8915. What did you get for it?—Nothing.

8916. (Mr. Mansfield.) Are you a brother of Gibson the publican?—Yes.

8917. (Mr. Biron.) What time in the day did you vote?—About 3 o'clock, I think, somewhere about that time.

8918. Why did you not vote sooner than that?—I did not leave off until half-past 2.

8919. Leave off what?—Leave off work.

8290. Where were you working?—On the Walk, at Mr. Gore's, the cutlers.

8921. Had you not an opportunity of voting earlier than that?—No.

8922. Did you see your father at all that day?—No.

8923. Or your brother?—No.

8924. Did you hear that any money was going for votes that day?—No, I never heard anything about any money; in fact I did not go up into my parish; I voted as I went up to St. Stephen's.

8925. Did you receive anything?—No.

8926. Or any promise?—No promise.

8927. Were you canvassed for your vote?—I met Mr. Stevens going up St. Stephen's, and he asked me if I had voted, and I said no. He said, "Go and "vote," and I went up and voted.

8928. Have you been paid anything since?—No.

8929. By nobody?—No, I have not received a farthing from anybody.

8930. Do you know Owen Murrell?—Yes.

8931. Did he not give you anything?—No.

WILLIAM SUTTON PAGE sworn and examined. W. S. Page.

8932. (Mr. Dowdeswell.) Are you a voter in this city?—Yes.

8933. Did you vote at the last election?—I did not.

8934–5. Have you been a voter at previous elections?—No, not previous to the last one.

8936. You were one of the managers?—The first ward manager.

8937. Therefore very properly you did not consider yourself at liberty to vote?—No.

8938. You know Mr. Gilman?—I do.

8939. Do you recollect his coming to you with a list of doubtful voters?—No, that is not so. Mr. Gilman was in the committee room on the day of the election, and when names came in of parties who had promised Sir Henry Stracey and had voted on the other side, Mr. Gilman put down the names, and in his absence I did so likewise. I have that list at my office. I have only just been subpœnaed, but if I have time I will send that list here.

8940. Have you the original list?—Mr. Gilman has returned it to me within the last 10 days, since inquiry has been made here, and I told him I would produce it if called upon.

8941. When did you tell him you would produce it if called upon?—I should think about 10 days ago. He told me that Mr. Secker had called upon him to make inquiries, and he thought it better to bring the list to me.

8942. Did he consult you as to whether he ought to give it to Mr. Secker or not?—No, not at all.

1943. But he gave it to you?—He gave it to me.

EIGHTH DAY.

W. S. Page.

27 Aug. 1869.

8944. Did you return to him a portion of the list, or some portion of it, in your own handwriting?—Yes.

8945. How came you to do that?—He came and asked me for it. He said it was required at a meeting at Sir Samuel Bignold's, or some place in the city, and would I let him have it. I did so. This was perhaps three weeks or a month ago, and since the inquiry was made he said, "I have brought this "list back. I think you had better hold it; you "were manager of the ward, and I think you had "better hold it. I do not see why I should hold it."

8946. He told you that he wanted it to produce at the meeting?—Some meeting. I think he said at Sir Samuel Bignold's, but I am not quite sure.

8947. And then he afterwards brought it back to you?—Yes.

8948. Did he tell you that Mr. Secker wanted it?—No, he did not; he said Mr. Secker had been making inquiries, but I do not think he said about the list, but that he had been making inquiries of him; and I said, "Well, if I am asked any question I shall "certainly say it was left with me, and I shall pro-"duce it."

8949. I suppose if you had been asked for that list you would have had no hesitation in producing it?—Not the slightest in the world, because, in point of fact, it is as to the doubtful voters on the Liberal side.

8950. But they did vote?—They did vote. I should say that when Baron Martin came down here inquiry was made with regard to these different parties before he came down, and it was found that the canvass was so loose that it could not be relied upon. Parties were put down as having promised one person and voted for another, when it was found that they had not promised, they had only given a partial promise, and there was nothing upon which we could rely at all.

8951. Have you got that list?—I have that list.

8952. Will you send us that list?—Certainly.

8953. It is very unfortunate, you know, that Mr. Secker was not told this, because it gives a singular aspect to the matter?—I explained the whole of this matter to Mr. Secker, I think, before, and told him exactly how the matter stood.

(Mr. Biron.) You gave every information you could, Mr. Page; there is no possible imputation upon you.

8954. (Mr. Dowdeswell.) Do you know of any persons having been paid for their votes at the last election?—I certainly do not.

8955. Or of any agreement having been made to pay them?—I know of nothing of the sort.

8956. Although you may not know it of your own knowledge, have you heard of anything of the sort?—I have not.

8957. Do you know of any fund which was provided for the payment of expenses or other things connected with the last election?—Not at all. I know of no fund whatever.

8958. Any subscriptions, or anything of the kind?—None whatever.

8959. Are you a member of the Eldon Club?—I am not.

8960. Was there any meeting of the Conservative party at No. 1 committee room on the day of the election?—I do not remember any, and I do not think there was any meeting. The committee men were in and out the whole of the day, but I do not think there was any meeting.

8961. When you got into difficulties about the middle of the day, was there not a discussion respecting it?—Nothing of the sort, that I heard of.

8962. Your ward has not got many doubtful voters?—Very few indeed. I think they are mostly pure in our ward.

8963. Yours is not a difficult ward to deal with?—No, it is not.

J. Eglington.

JOHN EGLINGTON sworn and examined.

8964. (Mr. Mansfield.) Are you a voter?—Yes.

8965. Who did you vote for?—Tillett and Russell.

8966. At what time of the day?—Well, I think it was about 3 o'clock.

8967. What made you so late?—I was unable to leave my shop before that time.

8968. What are you by trade?—Well, I am a shoemaker and general shopkeeper, and my business prevented me from going out earlier.

8969. Had you been canvassed for your vote?—No.

8970. By nobody?—No; no one had been to my shop.

8971. Had you promised your vote to anybody?—No, but I was inclined to vote for those gentlemen.

8972. Had you voted before?—Yes.

8973. Which side have you voted for before?—I have voted the same side before.

8974. At more elections that one?—Two or three elections.

8975. Did you ever receive any money for voting?—No.

8976. Has any money ever been offered or promised to you?—Not a farthing.

8977. Not at this election?—Not a farthing.

8978. Nor at any other election?—No.

8979. Did you ever make any offer to anyone else to induce him to vote?—No, not one.

8980. Did you hear of anything wrong going on at this election?—I never heard of anything until after the election. I saw it in the papers, that is all.

E. Folk.

EDWARD FOLK sworn and examined.

8981. (Mr. Biron.) What are you?—A baker.

8982. For whom did you vote at the last election?—Stracey.

8983. What time in the day?—I think it was about half-past 3.

8984. How was it you did not vote before?—I could not get out before. I voted when I took my bread down into the city.

8985. Had you been canvassed for your vote?—Yes, there was two gentlemen asked me for my vote.

8986. Did you promise it?—Yes, I told them I should vote for Stracey.

8987. Was that a day or two before?—No, that was on the day.

8988. Had you not been asked for your vote before then?—Yes.

8989. What did you say on the other occasion?—I said I should vote for Mr. Stracey.

8990. Did you get anything for your vote?—No.

8991. Or the promise of anything?—No.

8992. Or have you received anything since?—No.

8993. Did you yourself give anything to anybody to vote for Stracey?—No.

H. Goffin.

HENRY GOFFIN sworn and examined.

8994. (Mr. Dowdeswell.) Are you a voter for this city?—Yes.

8995. For whom did you vote at the last election?—Mr. Stracey.

8996. What time in the day did you vote?—In the afternoon.

8997. What time in the afternoon?—About 3, or a little after I reckon it was.

8998. Where were you that morning ?—At work in the city.

8999. Where were you at work ?—About the city.

9000. What is your business then ?—A scavenger.

9001. Do you know Richard Goffin ?—No.

9002. Did you ever live in Duck Lane ?—No.

9003. Is there not a Goffin who lives in Duck Lane, a scavenger ?—That is my brother.

9004. Then you do know him; why did you say you did not ?—His name is "Robert;" you said "Richard," sir.

9005. That is your brother ?—Yes.

9006. You say you voted so late in consequence of being about the city; you must have passed the polling place very often in the course of that day ?—No, I did not. Not in my ward.

9007. Were you engaged in other wards in the city ?—Yes, in the other part of the city. I was at work that day in Pockthorpe, and about there.

9008. I suppose you begin work early in the morning ?—About 6 o'clock.

9009. What time do you get home ?—About 7 at night; only we left off sooner on that day.

9010. Did anybody offer you anything for your vote that day ?—No, I never saw anybody at all.

9011. Had you been canvassed beforehand ?—Yes, but I had never seen anybody.

9012. Who asked you for your vote before ?—Not anyone.

9013. Did anybody ask you for your vote that day ?—No.

9014. Did you go up then of your own accord entirely ?—I went up of my own accord when I was going home in the afternoon.

9015. Did anybody give you anything for your vote ?—No.

9016. Or promise you anything ?—No.

9017. Are you sure of that ?—I am.

9018. Have you been ever paid anything for your vote ?—No.

9019. Has your wife been paid anything ?—No.

9020. Had you been a voter before ?—No, not until this last time.

DANIEL GREENGRASS sworn and examined. D. Greengrass.

9021. (Mr. Mansfield.) What are you by trade ?—I am an ostler.

9022. Are you a voter ?—Yes.

9023. For whom did you vote at the last election ? Stracey.

9024. At what hour of the day ?—1 or 2 o'clock.

9025. Did your master vote for Sir Henry Stracey also ?—Yes.

9026. Did he ask you to vote ?—No.

9027. Who asked you to vote ?—I cannot say.

9028-9. Somebody asked you ?—Yes.

9030. You must recollect ?—No. I don't know them.

9031. Did you promise your vote ?—No.

9032. Did you refuse to promise your vote ?—I made no promise.

9033. Did you promise to vote for anybody ?—No.

9034. Why did you not ?—They come and asked me, and I said "No, I don't know that I should vote "at all."

9035. Why did you give that answer ?—Because I hadn't made up my mind.

9036. Why could you not make up your mind when they put a plain question to you ?—I did not.

9037. Did they try and persuade you ?—They went away and left me.

9038. Did they offer you anything ?—Not anything.

9039. They would not give you a chance ?—I didn't want it.

9040. If you had had an offer of 5s. you would not have objected ?—I don't know about that.

9041. Have you ever voted before ?—No.

9042. This was your first time ?—The first time.

9043. You say no offer was made to you ?—No offer at all.

9044. No promise ?—No promise.

9045. Did anybody treat you to any beer ?—Not anybody. What beer I had I bought myself, and paid for it.

9046. (Mr. Dowdeswell.) Where were you all the day ?—At different places; the "Trowel—and "Hammer," in Saint Stephen's.

9047. What were you doing there ?—That was my situation, my employment there. I was ostler there.

9048. How came you not to have made up your mind until so late in the day ?—What! before 1 o'clock, is that late ?

9049. It is rather late. Why did you not vote before ?—I didn't think about voting at all, that's truth.

9050. What made you change your mind ?—I don't know what made me.

9051. You cannot tell any reason for it ?—Not at all.

9052. It came suddenly into your mind that you would go up and vote ?—George Spinks, the flyman, came up and asked me.

9053. Then the flyman persuaded you ?—No, I voted of my own accord.

9054. Did he drive you up to the poll ?—No. It was only about as far as across the room.

9055. You went up with him to vote ?—Yes.

9056. You are sure nobody had spoken to you about your vote ?—There was some gentlemen come and spoke to me in the morning.

9057. Who were the gentlemen ?—I did not know any of them.

9058. For whom did they ask you to vote ?—They asked me if I would oblige them with my vote.

9059. For whom did they ask you ?—They were Mr. Stracey's side, I expect.

9060. What did you tell them ?—I told them I should not promise them.

9061. Why did you not promise in the morning ?—I had not made up my mind. I did not think of voting at all.

9062. What made you alter your mind between the time these gentlemen came to you and the time you voted ?—I had nothing to alter my mind. People may alter their minds in a lifetime, I suppose.

9063. Did not the flyman say that you might get something ?—No.

9064. Did you have anything ?—No; nor a glass of beer. I didn't expect none. If I did I should have been disappointed.

9065. Were there a number of voters at your house that day ?—A great many, backwards and forwards.

9066. Did none of them stand treat ?—I never see any stand treat to me.

9067. Nobody stood treat to you that day ?—No.

9068. It was a dry day for you ?—Yes. I had some beer.

9069. Who paid for the beer ?—I paid for some, and other people paid for some.

9070. When they paid for it they said, "You will "vote for Stracey, won't you ?"—No. That was not named to me at all.

9071. When the flyman came, what did he say ?—The flyman come and said, "Come along, let's go "and vote."

9072. What did he say besides ?—Nothing else.

9073. Did not he say you would get some money for it ?—Not a bit.

EIGHTH DAY.

D. Greengrass.

27 Aug. 1869.

9074. Or some beer ?—None.

9075. Did not he stand some beer ?—Not he. He had no more interest than I.

9076. Had you made up your mind when you started across the road for whom you would vote ?—I had.

9077. Did he make up your mind for you ?—Oh no; he had nothing to do with my mind.

T. Hansell.

THOMAS HANSELL sworn and examined.

9078. (Mr. Biron.) What are you ?—A labourer.

9079. For whom did you vote at the last election ?—Nobody.

9080. You did not vote at all ?—No.

9081. How was that ?—I was not in the city.

9082. Are you not a voter ?—Yes.

9083. You were away from the city that day ?—Yes.

9084. Where were you ?—At Narborough Hall, Squire Fountain's.

9085. Somebody voted for you then ?—No ; not in my estimation.

9086. (Mr. Dowdeswell.) Somebody voted in your name ?—I don't know anything about it.

9087. (Mr. Mansfield.) You swear you were away ?—Yes.

9088. How many miles off ?—I was at Narborough Hall, four miles the other side of Swaffham.

9089. (Mr. Biron.) Some of your mates knew you were working at this place ?—I think it is very likely.

9090. (Mr. Dowdeswell.) You do not know anybody who got 5*s.* for voting for you ?—No.

9091. I suppose you never were a voter before ?—No.

J. T. Hewitt.

9111. For whom did you vote ?—Sir Henry Stracey.

9112. What made you so late in giving your vote ?—I don't know that I had any particular reason. The poll was open from 8 to 4. I could vote when I pleased.

9113. Who canvassed you at this election ?—I don't know that I can recollect exactly.

9114. You were canvassed ?—I was canvassed by both parties ; but who they were I cannot say.

9115. You gave no answer to either party ?—I did not promise to either party.

9116. You are an independent voter ?—Yes.

9117. Did anybody, on the day of the polling, come to you ?—They did not.

9118. Nobody at all ?—I never see anybody of either party—at least none of the parties came to me that day.

9119. At a quarter past 3 you went up of your own accord to vote ?—I did.

9120. You had no talk with anybody about your vote that day ?—Not anybody. I never spoke to anybody about it.

9121. Did anybody offer you anything for your vote ?—No.

9122. Nor promise anything ?—Nor promised anything.

9123. Are you sure ?—Yes, nor yet heard anything of the sort was going on. I was about the city from the morning polling to that time.

9124. You have never been paid anything since ?—Neither before nor yet since.

9125. You were about the city the whole day ?—I was. I had no work, and I went about to hear how people were going on.

9126. Were there many people about ?—Yes.

9127. Which is your favorite public house ?—Not any.

9128. Do you not go to any public house ?—I did not.

9129. Did you take any refreshment ?—Well, what refreshment I got, I got at home. I do not habit myself to public houses.

9130. Did you get any beer ?—Not that I recollect on that day.

9131. No one gave you any ?—No one gave me any, only what I had at home at my own house.

9132. This is the first time that you have voted ?—It is.

R. Mallett.

ROBERT MALLETT sworn and examined.

9208. Has anything been given to you since ?—Nothing.

9209. You knew of money going about between 3 and 4 ?—I never heard of any.

9210. You have not heard of any since, I suppose ?—No.

EIGHTH DAY.

J. Sadler.

27 Aug. 1869.

JOHN SADLER sworn and examined.

9211. (Mr. Biron.) What are you ?—A rivetter.

9213. At what time?—About a quarter before 4, I believe.

9214. That was rather late ?—Well, sir, I had some work that I was forced to finish, so I didn't think it mattered about being late if I got there before the poll was closed.

9215. Where do you work ?—Mr. Alderstein's, in Queen Street.

9216. Was not the place shut up on the election day ?—No.

9217. Were you at work all the day ?—Yes.

9218. Why did you not vote at the breakfast or dinner hour ?—Well, sir, I don't know no particular reason that I did not vote.

9219. Had you been canvassed ?—No.

9220. Had not anybody asked you for your vote ?—No, not anyone.

9221. Had you told anybody how you would vote ?—No, not anyone. I neither took money nor yet any drink.

9222. I asked you had you promised your vote to anybody ?—Not to anyone.

9223. Or had anybody asked you to vote for Sir Henry Stracey ?—Not anyone.

9224. Why did you wait till a quarter to 4 before you polled ?—I didn't think the first thing in the morning about voting for anyone.

9225. What made you change your mind ?—My shopmates said to me "You may as well vote. Go "and vote." Then I said "I will go and vote for "Mr. Stracey."

9226. Did any of them say anything about getting money for it ?—Not anyone.

9227. They did not say money was going on Stracey's side ?—No.

9228. (Mr. Dowdeswell.) I suppose you never were a voter before ?—No, never.

S. Trumbetta.

SAMUEL TRUMBETTA sworn and examined.

9229. (Mr. Dowdeswell.) Are you a voter in this city ?—Yes.

9230. Did you vote at the last election ?—No, I did not vote.

9231–2. How came you not to vote ?—I had some work to do, and I could not leave the work.

9233–4. Where were you at work that day ?—At home.

9235. Is there another man of your name in your ward ?—No, not in my ward.

9236–7. Do you know another man of your name in the city ?—Yes, three.

9238. Was it simply because you had so much to do that you did not vote ?—Yes.

9239. Did anybody ask you to vote ?—No.

9240. Nobody came to you at all about it ?—No.

9241. Were you at work the whole day ?—From half-past 7 till about five minutes to 4; and I come up Saint Stephen's, and when I got to the poll the books were closed. That is the reason I did not vote.

9242. Do you know a person of the name of Parker ?—Yes.

9243. Did he come to you about your vote ?—No.

9244. Did you not see him that day ?—No.

9245. Had you seen him before ?—Several times.

9246. I mean about your vote ?—No.

9247. How far was the polling place from where you were at work ?—200 or 300 yards.

9248. If it was so close why did you not at your dinner hour go and vote ?—I had not a dinner hour. I had to get my dinner when I had finished the job I was doing.

9249. You had a breakfast hour ?—At half-past 7 I got my breakfast.

9250. Did not it extend to half-past 8 ?—No.

9521. Then you worked from half-past 7 to 4 ?—Yes.

9252. Are you sure you did not stand out to get some money ?—No, I did not stand out at all. I had the work to do. It would be more interest for me to do my work than to run about to see after money.

9253. You might expect the money to come to you ?—I did not expect nothing at all about it.

9254. You never received any money for not giving your vote ?—No.

9255. Nor the promise of money if you did vote ?—Not a promise at all.

W. Scott.

WALTER SCOTT sworn and examined.

9256. (Mr. Mansfield.) What are you by trade ?—A shoemaker.

9257. Is this the first time you ever voted ?—Yes.

9258. For whom did you vote ?—Russell.

9259. At what time in the day ?—Half-past 3; something like that.

9260. Had you been canvassed for your vote ?—No.

9261. Had you promised it to anyone ?—No.

9262. What made you vote so late ?—Because I could not get from the shop, not till that time.

9263. Were you in the shop the whole of the day ?—Yes, till I voted.

9264. Were not you out at all ?—At breakfast time, not after.

9265. Dinner time ?—No.

9266. Where did you dine ?—At the shop.

9267. Had anything been offered to you for your vote ?—No.

9268. Nothing promised you ?—No.

9269–70. Has nothing been paid to you since ?—No.

Adjourned to to-morrow at 10 o'clock.

NINTH DAY.

Saturday, 28th August 1869.

ISRAEL BLOCH sworn and examined.

9271. (Mr. Dowdeswell.) Are you a voter in this city?—Yes.

9272. What is your business?—A wholesale jeweller.

9273. Did you vote at the last election?—Yes.

9274. For whom did you vote?—For Tillett and Russell.

9275. I need hardly ask whether you received any money or the promise of any money for your vote?—No.

9276. Do you know of anybody having given or promised to give any persons money to induce them to vote?—No.

9277. Do you know of anything of that sort having been done at previous elections?—I do not.

WILLIAM SUTTON PAGE recalled and further examined.

9278. (Mr. Dowdeswell.) Have you got those papers that were referred to yesterday?—Yes (producing some books and papers, which are handed to the Commissioners). The large book is a canvass book, but in reality it is a mere register marked off from the canvass.

9279. This is a copy of the register?—Yes, with marks as you will see showing how parties voted, Stracey, Russell, Tillett, and so on; and you have there a list of those who were supposed to be doubtful voters at that time.

9280. In whose handwriting?—In the handwriting of three parties, Mr. Gilman's, my own, and I find there are two entries in the handwriting of Mr. Swann, Mr. Chittock's clerk, who happened to be poll clerk.

9281. Are these the papers which were given to you by Mr. Gilman?—They are.

9282. I see there are three?—Those are all the papers I ever remember to have received from him. There was some mention made as to a portion of them having been lost, but I do not remember ever having seen any others.

9283. You took an active part in this election?—Yes, as first ward manager; and I wish it to be understood that those parties who are marked as doubtful are no longer considered doubtful, nor have they been for a long time.

9284. I quite understand that; but it is our duty to investigate everything. Were you present at any meeting of the Conservative party?—Do you mean a public meeting?

9285. No; a meeting of a number of gentlemen belonging to the Conservative party in this city.—Only at our committee rooms; not otherwise.

9286. Was there a meeting of gentlemen of the Conservative party at your committee room?—Yes.

9287. On what day was that?—I should think there was a meeting almost every day or every other day. There were four or five meetings perhaps.

9288. Did a number of gentlemen assemble at your committee room about mid-day on the election day?—They were coming in all day long. I do not know that they assembled more particularly in the middle of the day than they did at any other time.

9289. Did they assemble and consult together about the middle of that day?—I am not at all aware that they did.

9290. Did you hear that there was a consultation?—No, I did not, nor do I think that there was, or I must have known something of it.

9291. Have you not heard that there was?—No, I have not at all.

9292. Have you heard of any meetings of the Conservative party at which there was something discussed which people are unwilling to disclose?—Not at all; I have not heard of any such meeting.

9293. You were the manager of that ward, and the paid manager?—Yes, I was the paid manager of that ward.

9294. Then of course it would not be discreet to mention anything secret to you?—No; I certainly should not have listened to anything of the sort.

9295. You have not heard that there was a meeting?—I have not heard of it at all.

9296. Not since?—No; I have not heard it from anyone.

9297. Have you had a general conversation with anybody since the election as to anything being done for the purpose of paying people who might have expected money on account of the election?—No; I do not think I have had any conversation with any person whatever about anything of the sort. I do not remember anything of the sort, I am sure, indeed I have not. Do you mean as to repaying people for money they had expended?

9298. No, as to the means of paying anybody anything that had been expended at the election, or for anything done at the election.—Not except Mr. Chittock; accounts were sent in.

9299. I am not speaking of formal accounts at all?—No, certainly not.

9300. You know that there are other things in every election?—I have not heard of anything of the sort.

JOHN OUTLAW sworn and examined.

9301. (Mr. Mansfield.) For whom did you vote at the last election?—For Sir Henry Stracey.

9302. Who did you go with to the poll?—I walked along with Mr. Parker.

9303. Had he canvassed you to vote before?—Yes, I think he spoke to me before, but I never heard any more about it till that morning.

9304. Did you promise?—No, I did not.

9305. He came to your place, did he?—Yes, he came to my place, and I walked down to the polling place at about half-past 8 in the morning.

9306. Do you live in Ber Street?—Yes.

9307. What are you by trade?—I keep a small shop.

9308. Had you known Mr. Parker before?—Yes, I had known him several years.

9309. Did you deal with Mr. Parker?—It is in a very small way, not anything more than buying salt butter of him.

9310. Do you keep a small grocer's or provision shop?—Yes, I keep a small provision shop.

9311. How long have you dealt with him?—I may have taken butter off him for 12 months; I cannot say to a little.

9312. Do you always pay for it?—Yes, I always pay ready money for it.

9313. Do you buy anything of him besides butter?—Not anything.

9314. On this occasion when he came to your place to take you up to vote, what did he say?—He said he would walk down with me. I should say I was not gone more than 20 minutes from my house; he never said anything to me about anything.

9315. Who told you to tell us he never said anything about anything?—Not in respect of anything else; he and I went along, and I voted.

9316. What do you mean by telling of anything else?—I do not understand you.

9317. What were you talking to Parker about?—I cannot say; there was nothing mentioned in no manner of way, and never thought of about money.

9318. Was anything said about business?— Not anything about business. I told him I would walk down with him and vote, and we walked on, and were gone a very few minutes.

9319. Have you dealt with Parker since?—I always take butter off him.

9320. When did you see him last?—Some time last week. I do not think I have seen him since.

9321. On what day?—That I cannot say.

9322. What day do you generally buy butter from him?—That depends on when I have finished what I have got.

9323. When did you last deal with him?—That was last week.

9324. What day?—That I cannot say.

9325. When you last saw him, had you any talk with him?—No, I had not. I do not think I saw him then, nothing more than a shopwoman.

9326. You did not see him yesterday?—No, I did not; I have not seen him since last week.

9327. Do you know a gentleman of the name of Dawson?—I do not know him.

9328. Did Mr. Parker promise you anything?—No, he did not, and I never thought of taking anything.

9329. I suppose if he had promised you something you would have taken it?—No, I do not think I should, because there was a caution given out, and I did not see why I should get myself into trouble.

9330. But you might have taken something if you had the chance?—No, I did not, and I never gave it a thought.

9331. What have you been paid since?—Not anything.

9332. What allowance has been made on your butter account?—Whatever he charged for it I paid for it, the same as anyone else had to pay. Mr. Parker showed me no favour by no means.

9333. What price have you paid him for butter since?—That I can give an account of, thirteen pence a pound, that is the same as it is anywhere else, and anywhere else the same as it is there.

9334. Was Mr. Parker the only gentleman who spoke to you about your vote or canvassed you?—I do not know; there might be several call.

9335. Who else came besides Mr. Parker?—That I cannot say. I told Mr. Parker that I would vote for Sir Henry Stracey, and I had done with it. I never took no notice of anyone else about it.

9336. What was the date that you promised Mr. Parker that you would vote for Stracey?—That I do not know.

9337. What made you promise?—Well, I did not trouble which way I went, it did not make any difference to me; if it had been anyone asked me I would have went that way.

9338. You would have voted for anybody you were asked to vote for?—Yes; I do not think it makes any difference.

9339. You voted because Mr. Parker persuaded you?—No, he never persuaded me nothing about it; he asked me whether I would vote for Mr. Stracey.

9340. Did he never promise you anything?—No, he did not, and I never thought of taking anything. I never gave it a thought.

9341. Was this the first time you voted?—Yes.

9342. Have you ever voted at the city elections?—I have never voted before.

9343. Have you ever voted for town councillors?—No; look here, I can give you a full account of the reason why I did not vote before. I have had a vote a good many years, but at the time I could work I would never lose time after voting, because I did not consider that it would make any difference to me.

9344. (Mr. Biron.) If you had been paid for your day's work, would you then have voted?—I thought I was best at my work, and now since I cannot work and cannot get about, I am obliged to keep at home at my little shop, and as long as that man asked me to vote I thought it proper to vote.

9345. (Mr. Dowdeswell.) Parker came to you that morning to take you up to the poll?—Yes, he did; and I can give you an account how he came to come.

9346. How much butter do you sell on an average a week?—I cannot say exactly, perhaps sometimes 3*s.* or 4*s.*, and sometimes 5*s.*

9347. Do you not sell at your shop more than 3 lbs. or 4 lbs. of butter a week?—Three or four shillings.

9348. But you say it is thirteen pence a pound?—We take that cut into small quantities.

9349. With whom else do you deal for butter?—I cannot say, it comes out of the country.

9350. That would be fresh butter?—Certainly.

9351. I am speaking about firkin butter?—That is what I take of Mr. Parker.

9352. You only take 4*s.* or 5*s.* a week for firkin butter in your place?—Sometimes it may be as much, and sometimes it may be more.

9353. Sometimes as much as 10*s.* a week?—No, nothing like it; that is only for poor people to cut into small quantities.

9354. But they are poor people who deal at your shop?—Yes.

9355. Therefore they would, of course, take the cheaper class of butter?—I have not call enough for it.

9356. Did he call upon you the day before the polling day?—No, I do not think he did; it might be two or three days, and it might be a day or two before, I cannot say.

9357. But did he call upon you some time before?—He called on me before the day I did vote, but how near it was to the time, or how far it was back, I cannot say.

9358. Did you not see him the day before?—No, I do not know that I did; I do not know the day.

9359. You had dealt with him regularly for firkin butter for twelve months?—I do not deal with him for anything else.

9360. But you had dealt with him regularly for that for twelve months?—I daresay I had, and it might be a little over, I cannot say.

9361. You are a customer of his?—He might call me a customer, but I am a very small one.

9362. But a regular one; you have butter of him every week?—Almost every week.

9363. Do you deal at Mr. Abel's?—Yes, and at different places; when I have my goods I go with ready money, and go where I please.

9364. What do you buy at Abel's?—Different things, candles and different things.

9365. Different things from what you buy at Parker's?—Yes; perhaps where I lay out 5*s.* at Parker's I lay out 3*l.* or 4*l.* at the other place.

9366. When he asked you for your vote before the election, did you promise it?—I told him yes, I should vote. I do not know that he stopped two minutes with me then.

9367-8. At the time you promised your vote, was not something said about the price you should afterwards pay for your butter?—No, there was nothing of the sort, I am sure; I never heard one word about it.

NINTH DAY.

J. Outlaw.

28 Aug. 1869.

9369. Was not some arrangement made about the price you should afterwards pay for your butter ?—No, never ; I paid the same as everyone else.

9370. But I ask whether it was not then said that you should pay a certain price for your butter ?—No, nothing at all was said about it.

9371. Has anything been thrown off your butter at any time since ?—No, there has not been anything thrown off, by no means.

9372. Have you paid the same price for your butter before as after ?—Yes, I pay the same price now as I did then, and always did. I have had no remedy by no means, and never expected it.

9373. You said to my friend at once that nothing was said about anything being allowed to you ?—No.

9374. Who has been talking to you about what Mr. Parker said when he was examined here ?—No one has not said anything about it.

9375. Have you not had any conversation with anybody about what Mr. Parker said here ?—Not with anyone.

9376. Has not anybody been to you about it ?—No, not anyone.

9377. Have you seen Parker ?—No, I have not seen Parker.

9378. Nor Parker's shopman ?— No, I have not heard a word of him, and have not seen a sight of him.

9379. Nobody has been to your shop about it ?—No, no one has said anything to me about it, I can assure you. Look here ? I will not forfeit my word for Mr. Parker and no man. I am here to speak the truth, I can assure you. I have nothing to do with Mr. Parker, what I tell you is the truth.

9380. Mr. Parker said, you know, that you were not a customer of his ; why he said so I cannot imagine ?—I am a customer of his, but it is in a wonderful small way ; what I have told you is the truth, I can assure you.

WILLIAM DEBBAGE sworn and examined.

W. Debbage.

9381. (Mr. Mansfield.) What are you ?—A wheelwright and blacksmith.

9382. For whom did you vote at the last election ?—For Sir Henry Stracey.

9383. What time in the day ?—About 3 o'clock, as near as I can tell.

9384. Had you been canvassed for your vote ?—People had been to my house, but I was not at home ; I was at work.

9385. Where were you at work ? — At Mr. Morrison's, in Market Lane.

9386. Did you not go home to breakfast and dinner ?—Yes.

9387. Why did you not vote in your dinner hour ?—I generally take my dinner hour, and did not go at that time.

9388. Who asked you for your vote ?—No one. I never saw any one come. My missus told me people had been there several times and left cards, but I never saw anybody.

9389. What induced you to vote for Sir Henry Stracey ?—I thought I would vote the first card I had sent me, and I thought I would vote for him.

9390. Did you see Frederick Parker the day of the polling ?—No.

9391. Did you see him at all during the canvass before the election ?—No.

9392. Who took you up to the poll ?—Well, sir, I walked up to the poll along with a baker in King Street.

9393. Who is he ?—I am sure I cannot say. He lived opposite Mr. Burrell's, the carpenter's ; he is a master baker there, Mr. Welch.

9394. Did he ask you to vote for Stracey ?—No ; he was walking up the lane, and I told him I was going to vote.

9395. What did he say to that ?—That he had voted.

9396. For Stracey ?—I believe he said he had voted for Stracey.

9397. Did he say he was going to give you anything for doing it ?—No, and I never asked him for anything.

9398. Did anyone offer you anything ?—No.

9399. Or promise you anything ?—No.

9400. It was your own wish to vote for Stracey, and you made up your mind all along to do it ?—Yes.

9401. You said you were out, but gentlemen came to your wife during the day ?—Yes.

9402. Did any of them offer her anything ?—No ; she never said anything about anything of the sort.

9403. Did she tell you she had received anything ?—No.

9404. Did she tell you to go and vote ?—No, she did not.

9405. She did not say you had better be off and vote for Stracey ?—No.

9406. It was entirely of your own head ?—Yes, entirely of my own head.

JOHN CARSAY CHITTOCK recalled and further examined.

J. C. Chittock.

9407. (Mr. Dowdeswell.) The books which you have produced as the canvass books are the books in which entries are made of the returns of your canvassers ?—I presume you are speaking of copies of the register ; they are marked in the register from the lists which are on the file ; you have a file of the lists.

9408. After the election were they taken direct to your office from the committee room ?—They would be taken direct to my office from the committee room. They would not be taken on the day of the election, and I cannot say they were taken the following day ; most probably they were taken the following day.

9409. Are you aware of their having been out of your office since ? — My impression, but I am not positive as to that, is that they were sent to Mr. Skipper at the time he was conducting the inquiry, but Mr. Skipper, or those who were in his office, would be better able to say whether they had those lists or not.

9410. Did you send all the papers connected with the matter to Mr. Skipper ?—No, not all ; he would send a messenger from his office, and take what papers he required.

9411. Would you not have a receipt for what papers you gave him ?—There was a receipt.

9412. Do you think you could find that receipt ?—I should think I could.

9413. When were they returned to you if they were sent to Mr. Skipper ?—I should say a few days after the inquiry here.

9414. What was done with them then ? — They would then be taken into my office again.

9415. Has anybody had them since that time ?—Certainly not.

9416. Are you sure of that ?—Yes, I am quite sure of it. I have not the slightest doubt about it.

9417. Has anybody had access to them ?—Nobody would have access to them but my clerks, and they would have no occasion to make use of them. I am quite sure they would not even look at them.

9418. Do you know a person named Dawson ?—Yes.

9419. Has he had any of the papers connected with this matter in his possession ?—He was employed by

NINTH DAY.

J. C. Chittock.

28 Aug. 1869.

Mr. Skipper, and he would have had access to them supposing Mr. Skipper had them, and that I could ascertain for you.

9420. Are you cognisant of any alteration having been made in those books?—I am not, and I firmly believe that no alteration has been made in them. I may be wrong, but that is my belief.

9421. These books would have afforded us most valuable information if they had been reliable, and we wanted them particularly for that purpose. We find when we come to examine witnesses that there are a number of men entered there as having promised who have sworn to us that they did not promise. We find also that persons are entered there as having been returned by your own canvassers according to their statement on oath in that box as doubtful; and others are returned as persons who would not vote at all. Under those circumstances can you give us any explanation how such an extraordinary error as that could have occurred?—I could suggest a way of testing whether the lists are made up correctly or not, and that would be to compare the returns on the file with the register.

9422. But if one document is altered what security have we that another has not been altered also. If a man is going to alter one document he will also alter the check?—But you would see whether the check had been altered also.

9423. No; because when a number of figures only are put down it is impossible to detect whether there has been an alteration or not?—I do not know whether you follow me. You say some are altered, or that some votes do not correspond with the oaths of the witnesses. If you refer to the list on the file you will immediately see how it is.

9424. The evil is this, some were taken from books.—No, excuse me, you will find that that is a misunderstanding; they are all on the file.

9425. Was the register marked from the files all at the same time?—As they were brought up to the committee room.

9426. Are you sure that all the returns were on the file?—I believe them to be all there. I have not examined the file with the register to see whether every promise is on the file, but I have no reason to doubt the fact.

9427. This only shows that that which we had hoped would prove a reliable source of information is only calculated to mislead?—It is simply made from those lists on the file.

9428. We have had a very large number of voters for Sir Henry Stracey voting after 2 o'clock; with few exceptions, those persons have sworn that they never promised, and that they avoided giving any promise at all. How can you account for those persons invariably being found upon the register, as having promised Sir Henry Stracey?—Before I give an opinion upon that subject I should like to compare the register with the lists on the file. My only source of information would be those lists, and whether the parties had promised or not I could only judge by those lists. I have no other source of information.

9429. You can give us no further assistance?—No, I cannot; I have no other source of information but those lists.

9430. It was our duty to test whether that book would afford us correct information or not, and if it had been anything like correct it would have been a most valuable guide to us, instead of which it is thoroughly misleading. I do not know how it has happened.—Whether or not it arose from a canvasser taking too sanguine a view of the answers given to him by voters I do not know. I looked at the list here the other day, and found that some of the voters were marked doubtful.

9431. It is impossible to conceal from one's self that a person who was skilled in these matters in the committee room would not enter a doubtful man as promising when he was returned as doubtful by the canvassers.—But until you see whether those marked doubtful in the list are entered as promised on the register I could not endorse that view of yours. At the time when I lent those documents to Mr. Skipper I had not the least idea of this inquiry.

9432. It is very possible that there was no idea of this inquiry, but there may have been an object to mislead those conducting another inquiry?—Upon that subject I can only say that those who had them in their office I hope will give you all the information you require on the subject, but I have no knowledge of what passed in that office.

9433. One has had quite sufficient experience in election business before judges and elsewhere to know that the first thing you want on the one side is the canvass book, and if the canvass book can be cooked, there is no doubt whatever that one of the great means of arriving at the secrets of the other party is taken away.—Undoubtedly that is so.

9434. That is the reason why I want to know whether these things were ever out of your custody?—I should like to give you a positive answer as to whether they were ever out of my office or not, and for that purpose I will look for the receipt.

9435. One does not like suspecting things, but we are here in a situation in which if we did not suspect we should not be doing our duty. In order to investigate we must doubt, and I am sorry to say we must suspect.—I can only say that so far as I know I have no knowledge of there having been any alteration in these documents, and I have no reason to suspect it. I have here something which I will produce to you. I have searched to see if I could find any further canvass books, and these are the only two I have been able to find (handing two books to the Commissioners). They relate to the same ward as the other books which I have already produced to you. I am certain that there is now no other book in the office, for I have searched myself, and I have also inquired of the ward agents, and I do not believe that any other canvass books can be found than those which I have now produced.

G. Gedge.

GEORGE GEDGE sworn and examined.

9436. (Mr. Dowdeswell.) You are a voter in this city, are you not?—I am.

9437. And you have been so for many years?—Yes, for many years.

9438. You took a strong interest in the last election, did you not?—I took an interest for Sir Henry Stracey in the last election.

9439. And voted for him?—And voted for him.

9440. You exerted yourself to procure his return?—I exerted myself to procure his return in my parish. I never went out of my parish.

9441. Which is your parish?—St. Michael-at-Coslany, where my trade is carried on, and where it has been carried on for the last century.

9442. In which ward?—The eighth ward.

9443. Part of your parish is inhabited by persons in very humble circumstances, is it not?—They are a middle class of men, not very humble; not so humble as in some parishes.

9444. With whom do you bank?—I never had but one bank, and that is Harvey and Hudson's. My father banked there before me.

9445. Did you draw a considerable sum of money out of Harvey's bank on the day of the election, or the day before or immediately afterwards?—No; I drew our usual amount that was required for the office. A month back I drew or gave notice that I should want 4,000*l.* That was a month prior to the election. I then gave notice that I should require 4,000*l.* in a few days.

9446. And when did you draw out that money?—Which money?

9447. The 4,000*l.*—That was a matter of private business of my own.

9448. When did you draw it out is my question?—I think that was in September. I did not draw it out. I gave notice that I should require it. I think it was on the 17th September.

9449. And when did you draw it out?—I never drew it out at all. I very often go and give notice that I shall require money. I deal rather largely in shares and funds, and so forth, and when I require 4,000*l.* or 5,000*l.* I go to the clerk at the bank, and say in three or four days I may be up in London, and shall require 3,000*l.* or 4,000*l.* On the 16th of September I gave notice that I should require 4,000*l.*, that is, that I should require it if I went to London.

9450. Have you got your bank book here?—I have (producing a book).

9451. What induced you on the 16th of September to give notice that you would require so large a sum as 4,000*l.*?—Is a man to be summoned here and made to expose all his financial business?

9452. I am sorry to say that we must require you to give us the information.—I am the architect of my own fortune, and am I to be called upon to give an account of what I did and wanted to do with a certain amount of money that I drew out or wanted to draw out.

9453. You can give me an answer to my question, which is a very simple one?—I think it is a very impertinent one; however, I will answer. There is the book, and you can look at it and judge for yourselves (handing the book to the Commissioners).

9454. Do not be angry.—I am not angry. There is the book, and you can read it for yourself.

9455. We are bound to do our duty.—Now you have got your wish, but I do not want my business affairs exposed.

9456. (Mr. Biron.) You need not be angry.—I am not angry at all; it is only the warmth of my temper.

9457. (Mr. Dowdeswell.) Do let us be good-tempered about this.—I hope and trust we shall part so. It is a fine idea, certainly, that a gentleman shall be required to fork up his banking book and show how he lays his money out.

9458. This is a deposit account; this is not a banking account at all.—I call it a banking account; do you wish to see my trade book, because if you do I will soon send for it. You asked me how I came to draw out so large an amount of money; I was compelled to bring that book and show it to you, because if I had not brought it, and had told you, you would not perhaps have believed me.

9459. (Mr. Biron.) Do not give yourself a bad character.—Do not alarm yourself about me. I am all right enough.

9460. This, as I understand it, is a deposit account.—Never mind what it is, I can draw upon a deposit account. If I want 100*l.* I can take that book to the bank and get it.

9461. Will you kindly answer me a question or two?—I will answer you any question that you like to put.

9462. Besides that have you an ordinary pass-book?—I have not.

9463. You do not keep what we call a drawing account?—I have only the trade book, which will prove every Saturday the amount of money required for the trade, and during the election you will find that for a month or six weeks or two months before and after the electlon there is a regular amount drawn weekly.

9464. (Mr. Dowdeswell.) We do not want to investigate further than is necessary.—But you have investigated. It is of no consequence to me.

9465. I do not want to investigate anything relating to what may be called your private affairs. I see exactly by this book how the money is disposed of, and, of course, as far as this book is concerned my inquiry is at an end. The money is satisfactorily accounted for.—If there is anything else I can give you any information about I shall be very happy to do so.

9466. I want to know whether on the day of the election or immediately before or after you did not draw a cheque on your drawing account for a considerable sum of money?—Certainly not. I find not more than 20*l.* for three weeks before the election, and not more than 20*l.* weekly for the men in the office afterwards. I think it runs on pretty nearly 20*l.* a week for 10 weeks for the men employed.

9467. For your own private expenditure have you any other account kept?—No, none whatever.

9468. That includes your expenses?—It includes my expenses for the office weekly, and you will find them entered weekly regularly in the book. I assure you that I was determined after the last alteration which the Legislature made relative to the act of bribery that I would be as near as I possibly could in this election. I was determined that I would not take 6*d.* out with me. I never paid one 6*d.* to anybody prior to the election, and I never paid one 6*d.* to anybody after the election, and no man did I bribe or attempt to bribe. I state that on my oath.

9469. You had been inadvertently or indiscreetly engaged in transactions of that kind before, had you not?—Yes, many years back.

9470. You will not wonder then that on this occasion it may have been supposed that you would pursue the same course.—No, I do not wonder at it. The fact is, that I have been kept in town for a whole fortnight. I am sorry to say that I have been unwell, having had a fall from my horse, and that I have lost a great deal of blood, and when I wished to go away to my mortification I received a subpœna to attend before you. I will read over to you the names if you like of those who voted in my parish. I will do so if it is any satisfaction to you.

9471. I will not trouble you to do that. You have stated that you did not pay away any money at all?—I could not, for I had none with me three days prior to the election and three days after. I was determined not to have it.

9472. Did you promise anyone?—Not one atom; that would be as bad as giving the money.

9473. Have you paid anything since?—No, not one farthing.

9474. Not out of good nature?—Not one farthing. I am a very good natured fellow sometimes; rather too much so.

9475. Have you contributed anything towards the expenses?—Have I subscribed anything? No, I have not. I have not put my name down for 1*s.*, though many of my friends have done so I daresay. Sir Henry was a national rate man, and I have spent hundreds upon those who are in favour of a national rate. I voted for Peto; he is a Liberal. I have a note in my pocket from a gentleman at the Reform Club you very well know, which will show you what an anxious desire I have for a national rate, and I request you will read it. It is from Mr. Gilbert, of the Reform Club. I begged him to come down, and I said I would pay his expenses. He is not a Conservative, but he has taken an active part in my national rate in London with Alderman Sidney and others.

9476. You thought him a good man, and you determined to support him?—Yes, and I canvassed for Peto.

9477. You have said that a number of gentlemen subscribed; who are the other gentlemen who subscribed?—I cannot tell you now who they are. They were made public at the time.

9478. Can you give me the name of anybody who subscribed, whether made public or not?—It was a public meeting which I did not attend at the "Norfolk" hotel. This was after the election.

9479. How long after the election was it?—I suppose it might be a month or six weeks. I suppose they thought that Sir Henry Stracey had been rascally used, and to relieve his expenses that they would come forward to subscribe.

9480. Can you give me the names of those persons?—No, I really cannot; there may be some gentlemen in the room now, for anything I know; it is no secret; it was made public what the subscription was for. I think it was entered into in case Sir Henry was unseated, for his son. I think that was the object of the meeting—to subscribe money for his son to come forward to pay the expenses of his election; but I did not attend the meeting, and I did not attend any of the committees of gentlemen who were in the habit of meeting.

9481. You did not attend a meeting of the Conservative party on the day of the election?—On the day of the election I never went out of St. Michael-at-Coslany parish. I never stirred out. I had the pleasure of seeing Mr. Tillett and Sir William Russell with Mr. Youngs and Mr. Colman in a carriage, with a placard representing that there was 600 majority, and Mr. Youngs winked his eye, and I put my hand so (over the left shoulder), meaning it is no good. I knew they would lose the election by the way they were muddling of it.

9482. Were you hanging back then?—It was impossible to get the state of the poll. After such an infamous falsehood put out we made the best fight we could; with a losing game you are sure to win; always fight for a losing game. Probably you do not understand me. I am sorry that I have not the means or the manner to convey that knowledge to you.

9483. You think that a waiting race is the best, do you?—It is of no use for any party to put out a false statement, because it is impossible to keep it up; they must either keep back the true state of the poll or go on—"lying"—I was going to say, all day.

9484. I am afraid that truth is very difficult to get in Norwich.—Well, you will not find any difficulty in getting it out of me.

9485. But you do find that there is a difficulty in getting it?—I always felt that all my life.

9486. (Mr. Biron.) You know Norwich very well indeed?—Yes, nobody better; I have been bred and born here, and I ought to know it.

9487. (Mr. Dowdeswell.) Where was the public metting that you speak of?—At the "Norfolk" hotel, in St. Giles'; it is a long time after the election.

9488. Did you hear of any subscription before that?—No, not a word, not a syllable. I have known the time when but for this stringent law I should not have been particular about subscribing, because Sir Henry Stracey is a national rate man; but I was determined not to be pulled up, and I determined not to spend a single penny.

9489. And had you made that known?—Yes, I made it known; everyone knew it with whom I was connected in the parish.

9490. You thought it an extremely indiscreet thing for anybody to do?—Yes; I think after that law that every man ought to abide by the law of his country, or he ought not to exist at all.

9491. Had you announced that as your resolution?—Yes, I was determined about it when I commenced.

9492. You canvassed, did you not?—No; I simply went about and asked a few. I asked eight men, and out of them there were seven Conservatives. One fellow, named Hudson, about half-past 3 o'clock said "I am going to vote for Sir Heny Stracey." I said, "That is false." He said, "So help me, God, if you "will go up and poll me I will vote;" and rather than lose his vote I went with him and polled him. He is a Liberal, not a Conservative, and he told me that if I went up to the poll with him he would vote for Sir Henry Stracey.

9493. Did he say anything about money?—Not a snap; the fact is that report said he had already got it, and that was why he wanted to make a virtue of necessity to me, because I knew him to be a red-hot Radical.

9494. (Mr. Biron.) Did you hear where he got the money?—No, I never believe hearsays, for Norwich is the finest place in the world for tales.

9495. (Mr. Dowdeswell.) What is that man's name?—Hudson; he lives at St. Mary's, the adjoining parish to mine.

9496. You knew him to be a Liberal?—Yes; a red-hot Radical rascal. He told me that the party had behaved so bad to him that he would show them some fun, and would I go up and poll him; and I did, and I would do it again.

9497. Did any man come up and ask you for money that day?—Not a single man, not one.

9498. Were you much about the town on that day?—No; I never stirred out of the parish where my business is carried on. I never went out of the parish, and when the election was over I went over to Catton and rejoiced in my own mind, and eat a hearty good dinner.

9499. You did not see Wiseman that day?—Yes, I did, because he was in the parish.

9500. Where did you see him?—In the room where they were to conduct the election. Wiseman had the care of the eighth ward.

9501. Did he say to you anything about managing men?—No, he never said a word, and I do not think the man went out of the room all day, for whenever I went in there he sat.

9502. You had announced your firm resolution to have nothing to do with bribery?—I did so days prior to that.

9503. You did so with the same positiveness of manner in which you have given your evidence?—Yes, I hope I have given it straight.

9504. Did you take an active part in the election of 1865?—That was Waters' election?

9505. Yes.—I did.

9506. Did you also take an active part in the election in 1860?—Not much.

9507. Warner and Russell were then returned?—Yes; and the reason why I never liked them was because they would never stir in my national rate.

9508. You took, you say, an active part in the election of 1865; both in 1865 and 1860 there was a great deal of money spent, was there not?—Yes, I believe there was on both sides. I never spent any though, not as bribery. I always put my hand in my pocket to do what I thought proper.

9509. And did you not put your hand in your pocket in 1865?—I did to get a furore up for Mr. Waters, who I thought was ill-used, for he was a national rate man.

9510. In 1860, did you?—No, I did not.

9511. You are a known and experienced person with regard to elections, and it is possible that we may have to inquire into the two previous elections, and that with reference to them we may have to put some questions to you.—Very well; perhaps you will be kind enough to let me know whether it will be three or four months from this time, because if you will do that I will arrange my business accordingly.

W. Spurling.

WILLIAM SPURLING sworn and examined.

9512. (Mr. Mansfield.) What are you by trade?—A publican and innkeeper.

9513. For whom did you vote?—Stracey.

9514. What time in the day?—I think it must have been half-past 3 o'clock.

9515. Had you been canvassed?—No; I have always voted early in the morning.

9516. Have you always voted Tory?—Yes.

9517. Is yours a Tory house?—I am not visited by any parties of that description at all.

9518. Were there more people than usual on the day of the election at your house?—No, not at all. I was not at home till after dinner, and that accounted for my voting late.

9519. Were you out in the country?—Yes, I was. I did not get home till after 1 o'clock.

9520. Was anything offered to you for your vote?—No.

9521. Or the promise of any money?—No.

9522. Did you offer or promise any money to anyone else?—No.

9523. Were you canvassed?—No, not at all.

9524. Had you taken any part in any former elections?—No, never.

9525. You never voted before?—Yes, I have voted twice before.

9526. For the Tories always?—Yes.

9527. Had you taken any part yourself in canvassing?—No, not at all.

9528. What is your house rated at?—I think it is 20*l.*

9529. (Mr. Dowdeswell.) Have you heard of any man having received money for his vote at this election?—No, nothing.

9530. They have been talking it over in your house, have they not?—No, I have seen nothing of it, except what I have seen in print.

9531. Have not people in your house been talking about the election?—That is generally talked of.

9532. Have you not heard them say so-and-so received money for his vote?—No, I never heard anyone say they had received any.

9533. Did you hear anybody say that anybody else had received it?—No.

9534. Had you not heard of people having paid money?—No; only what I have read. Mine is a very quiet public house. I never heard of anything of the kind.

ALFRED STOCKINGS recalled and further examined.

A. Stockings.

9535–6. (Mr. Dowdeswell.) Were you at home yesterday?—I was.

9537. Do you know a man of the name of Alfred Perfect?—Well.

9538. Did you see him yesterday?—I did.

9539. Had you any conversation with him?—Yes.

9540. I will not trouble you with the conversation at present. You afterwards saw a person of the name of Murrell, did you not?—No.

9541. After you saw Perfect, what became of you?—I was in my shop for about half an hour.

9542. Where did you go then?—I went to my brother's and to my cousin's.

9543. Who are they?—My brother is a butcher living in St. Stephen's Street, and my cousin is a grocer living in St. Stephen's Street.

9544. How long did you stay there?—It might be 20 minutes or half an hour that I was there.

9545. Who did you see there?—There were several customers in the shop, but nobody that I know.

9546. What did you go there for?—I usually go down very near every morning.

9547. Did you see either your cousin or your brother?—Both.

9548. What time of the day was it that you went down to your brother's, did you go there first?—I had to pass my brother's to go to my cousin's.

9549. Did you call at your brother's first?—I think I called at my brother's as I came from my cousin's.

9550. You went to your cousin's first?—Yes, I did.

9551. What time in the day did you go to your cousin's?—Just before noon.

9552. What time had you seen Perfect?—In the morning, about half an hour before, as near as I can tell.

9553. When did you return to your home?—I was out about half an hour; I spoke to Mr. Daynes in the street.

9554. Where did you speak to Mr. Daynes?—Close by my cousin's.

9555. Were you coming from or going to your cousin's when you spoke to Mr. Daynes?—When I came out of my cousin's I saw Mr. Daynes and Mr. Crow speaking together, and I went and spoke to them.

9556. Did you come away straight from them home?—I spoke to my brother as I returned.

9557. How long were you at your brother's?—Not above three or four minutes, I should think.

9558. And then you went straight home?—I did.

9559. Now I wish you to be precisely accurate as to that. You say that you went to your brother's, that you were there three or four minutes, and then went straight home?—I was at my cousin's first.

9560. I mean coming away from your cousin's you saw Mr. Daynes and the other gentleman you spoke of, you then called at your brother's, were there three or four minutes, and then went straight home?—That is the truth.

9561. Did anybody serve in your shop during the time you were away?—No; unfortunately I was obliged to leave my wife to attend to the shop when I went out.

9562. Then there was nobody to attend to your shop during the time of your absence?—My wife was there, and she knew where I was.

9563. Now did you not see Murrell come into your shop?—Certainly not.

9564. I must caution you?—Certainly not.

9565. Did you see Murrell?—I saw him in the morning.

9566. What time in the morning?—I saw him in the morning, I think it was before breakfast.

9567. Did you never see him after breakfast?—I might, but I really cannot say.

9568. Do consider?—I do not know that I did, I might have seen him after breakfast.

9569. Did you not see him come into your shop?—No, I did not.

9570. He did not come into your shop?—Not to my knowledge.

9571. Did you see him at the shop door?—Yes, I was at the shop door when I saw him yesterday morning.

9572. After the time when you saw him in the morning, did you not see him at your shop door?—I might see him go down the street, but I do not believe I did.

9573. Are you sure that you did not see him at your shop door after you saw him in the morning?—I will swear I did not, to have any talk with him; I certainly did not.

9574. Did you go out again at all after you returned from your cousin's?—No, I was out before for about five minutes.

9575. You were out before?—Yes, I remember I went out yesterday morning.

9576. Then you did not go out after you returned from your cousin's and your brother's?—No, I did not; that would be about 20 minutes to 2, I should think between 20 minutes to 2 and 2. A lady was waiting to see me when I got home.

9577. Your wife, you say, was serving in the shop?—She was in the shop.

9578. She would remain in the shop during your absence?—No, I do not know that she would remain in the shop; my errand boy generally remains in the shop.

9579. Do you mean to say that Murrell did not come into your shop?—I did not speak to him in my shop to the best of my belief yesterday, nor have any chat with him; I believe I spoke to him in the morning.

9580. I will not ask you whether you spoke to him; do you mean to say that you did not see him in your shop in the course of yesterday?—Yes, I did.

9581. What time in the day?—I really cannot say for the time, but I did see him in the shop yesterday.

9582. You cannot say the time?—I would not swear to the time, for there was a great many persons coming in and out.

9583. Had you any conversation with him in your shop?—No.

9584. Did he come into your shop and go out without saying anything to you?—He might have said something, but there was no particular conversation.

9585. "He might have said something." That seems to be the stereotyped answer which we get in Norwich?—Of course he would say something.

9586–7. What did he say?—There were several persons in the shop, and I daresay there was the usual chat about the Commission.

9588. Can you not tell me what time of the day that was?—I will not swear; several persons were in my shop yesterday.

9589. But Murrell you know?—I could not swear to the time he came into my shop.

9590. Will you undertake to swear that he did not come into your shop after you had seen Perfect?—He came in last evening at 5 o'clock.

9591. Did he not come into your shop in the course of the ordinary business hours, after you had seen Perfect and before 4 o'clock?—No, I do not believe he did.

9592. Will you swear he did not?—It is so difficult to swear; it is an impossibility for me to swear such a thing as to people coming in and going out of my shop.

9593. You told me before you had only seen him once in the morning, when he was passing up the street?—I had seen him; he came past last night.

9594. I am not speaking about last night, you know that as well as possible. Do you mean to say that between the time that you saw Perfect and had a conversation with Perfect, and the closing of this court, you did not see Murrell in your shop?—No, I do not believe I did.

9595. I will not take the word "believe"?—I cannot help it, I will not swear to a lie.

9596. I am very glad to hear it. Is it not, therefore, true that you did?—I do not believe it, I don't believe that I did.

9597. It is impossible to believe that a person in your situation can say that, because your attention last evening was drawn to what occurred here beyond all question, and you had seen Perfect and had a conversation with him?—I had.

9598. Do you mean to say that you did not see Murrell in your shop between the time that you saw Perfect and had a conversation with him, and 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon?—I do not believe I did.

9599. You do not believe. Is that all that you will undertake to say?—That is all I will undertake to say.

9600. (Mr. Biron.) It was only yesterday, you know?—Yes.

9601. (Mr. Dowdeswell.) How many people were in your shop in the course of yesterday?—I should think 200 or 300.

9602. Now I will take you to the conversation with Perfect. You saw Perfect going by your house yesterday?—I did.

9603. He had passed your house, had he not?—I think not.

9604. Did you beckon him in?—Yes.

9605. Why?—I asked him whether he had received a summons.

9606. Why did you ask Perfect whether he had received a summons?—I walked to the shop door; curiosity led me to do it, I really had nothing else in it.

9607. Do you mean to say that because you see a man, without knowing anything about him, that you beckon him in and ask him if he had received a summons?—He is a very good customer of mine.

9608. What made you think it was a likely thing that he had received a summons?—Because they are summoning everybody in the place.

9609. Not yet, Mr. Stockings?—Everybody in the fifth ward.

9610. What made you inquire of Perfect whether he had received a summons?—I asked him as a matter of course, as I asked several others.

9611. Did you think he was a likely man to have received a summons?—I should think very probably.

9612. Why was he a likely man to receive a summons?—He voted after 3 in the afternoon.

9613. Was that your only reason for thinking that he was a likely man to receive a summons?—Murrell told me he had received a bribe some long time ago, and I did not believe it.

9614. How did you know he had voted after 3?—According to the returns that were made.

9615. Do you mean to say that you recollect everybody who voted after 3?—The persons who voted after 3 o'clock were given in the evidence that was got up for the petition.

9616. Do you mean to say that now you recollect the names of every person who voted after 3?—I remember he was one.

9617. And that was your sole reason?—I had several others too.

9618. Was that your reason?—I will explain it. A gentleman stopped me on the hill last Monday morning and asked me the names of the persons, and he showed me the list after 2 o'clock. He wanted to know who they were. I told him as many as I could tell, and Perfect's name was amongst them.

9619. Who was that gentleman?—I do not know who he was. It might be a gentleman from Mr. Coaks' office. I should know him in a minute, and could swear to him if I were to see him.

9620. You called him in, did you?—No, I met him on the hill last Monday. He said I was just the gentleman he wanted to see.

9621. Do you mean to say you did not beckon Perfect into your shop?—I called him across the street.

9622. He came into your shop?—Well, he stood outside the shop. He did not come into the shop door at all.

9623. Do you recollect a few days after the election seeing Perfect?—I do.

9624. Did you go to his house?—I did.

9625. Did you say to him that you wanted to know whether he had received 10*s.* for his vote?—Quite right.

9626. Did he not tell you that he had not?—He did.

9627. Did you then say to him, "It is of no consequence, you can speak the truth to me; all I want to know is whether you received 10*s.*, because I am not going to have the money paid away unless I know you have received it?"—I said to him, "Murrell has been to my shop and asked me for 50*s.* that he has paid away for votes, and I don't believe that he has paid so much money away, I don't believe that he has paid any money at all away." I told Murrell that, and, more than that, I said, "Perfect is a customer of mine, and I will ask him."

9628. You believed that he paid something, but not so much?—Believed who paid something?

9629. That Murrell had paid away some money, but not so much as 50*s.*?—I beg you pardon; if I said so I made a mistake. I never mentioned any money at all. I said it in this way, that Murrell had come to me and asked me for 50*s.* that he had paid away during the election, and I told him I would not pay him a copper, that I was not authorised to do it, nor would I do it. I was not going to be stupid enough to pay it out of my own pocket, and I did not believe that he paid it.

9630. The shorthand writer will read what you said before (the shorthand writer read his notes of the previous questions and answers)?—It is all a mistake of mine from the questions being asked in such a hurry. I will swear to the truth, that Murrell came to mine and asked me for 50*s*., and I said I would not pay a single farthing. This was three weeks or a month after the election.

9631. Murrell is an acquaintance of yours, is he not?—He is a member of the bowling green to which I belong, and he lives in St. Stephen's Street, and I have known him ever since I have lived there.

9632. He is, I suppose, a man with whom you are on comparatively intimate terms?—I don't know about intimate terms.

9633. You know him as an acquaintance?—I know him. I have met him on the green.

9634. And you know him as an ordinary acquaintance?—I should speak to him in the street, nothing more.

9635. What induced you to doubt that Murrell had paid away 50*s*.?—I did not believe that any money had been spent at all.

9636. Then if you did not believe that why did you go down to Perfect?—Perfect was a customer of mine, and I did not believe he would receive a bribe; I believed he was an honest, hard working man, a man who was above receiving a bribe.

9637. Do I understand that you went for the purpose of convicting Murrell of having told a lie?—Because I had been asked for money. I had no money to give him, and I told him I would not give him money.

9638. If you had no money to give, why did you go down to Perfect to ask him if he had received it?—I had the management of the fifth ward during the election, and if anything was mentioned to me, I said, "We are going to carry the election pure and straight, "and nothing has ever been named to me about "money, nor will I have it named to me."

9639. Did you not say to him these words, I will put them to you again, "It is of no consequence, you "can speak the truth to me, all I want to know is, "whether you received 10*s*., because I am not going "to have the money paid away unless I know you "have received it"?—Certainly not.

9640. Will you swear that you did not use those words?—Will you oblige me by reading them again?

9641–2. These are the words, "It is of no conse-"quence, you can speak the truth to me, all I want "to know is, whether you received 10*s*., because I "am not going to have the money paid away unless "I know you have received it"?—The latter part of the sentence I did not say, I will swear.

9643. Then you may have said the first?—I may have said the first; but the two contradicted each other, one said he had given 10*s*., the other said he had only received 5*s*., and I did not believe it at all.

9644. You believed that he had only received 5*s*.?—He said so.

9645. But then, you know, you had not seen Perfect at this time?—When I went to Perfect.

9646. Then you believed the man had received 5*s*. before, did you?—I did not believe the man had received anything.

9647. Then, what made you give me that answer now?—Because Murrell said to me that he had given him 10*s*.

9648. But how came you just now to drop that he had only received 5*s*.?—He told me so.

9649. I am speaking now, you know, of the commencement of this conversation. Now listen to it, and be careful, "It is of no consequence, you can "speak the truth to me, all I want to know is, "whether you received 10*s*., because I am not going "to have the money paid away unless I know that "you have received it." Will you undertake to swear that you did not say those words?—I did not say the latter part of the sentence.

9650. Which latter part of the sentence?—That I was not going to pay money away.

9651. Did you say, then, "I am not going to have "the money paid away"?—I did not.

9652. Or, did you say, "I am not going to have "the money paid away unless I know you have re-"ceived it"?—Certainly not.

9653. Nothing of that sort?—I certainly did not say that, nor anything implying the same.

9654. Nothing of that sort?—Nothing implying the same meaning.

9655. Or anything of the sort.—I really cannot say; this happened some time ago.

9656. Then you really may have said something of the sort?—I would not swear to it; it happened so long ago that I really do not know what I did say, but I will swear I did not say that.

9657. Not those very words?—I had no reason for saying so.

9658. I care not for your reason, but did you say so?—I will swear I did not say that.

9659. Did you not say just now that you believed he had only received 5*s*.?—That was the answer Perfect made to me.

9660. Murrell had told you then that he had paid him 10*s*., had he?—Yes.

9661. And you did not believe that he had paid 10*s*.?—No.

9662. Did you believe that he had paid 5*s*.?—I did not believe there had been anything spent at all.

9663. Then you thought that Murrell was coming to you, and telling you an atrocious falsehood?—I did not believe what he said, that he had spent money.

9664. You believed that your acquaintance Murrell was telling you an atrocious falsehood, is that so?—I did not believe what he said.

9665. Did you tell Murrell that you were going down to Perfect to ascertain that?—No, I did not; I told him I should have nothing to do with it.

9666. Then having nothing to do with it, and saying to him you would have nothing to do with it, why did you go down to Perfect?—I did not believe Perfect received anything. I knew the man as an honest, hardworking man, and as a customer of mine.

9667. But why should you go down to the man, having nothing to do with it?—I did not believe what Murrell had said.

9668. What induced you to go down to Perfect?—I had nothing else to induce me to go.

9669. Had you a book with you?—I believe not; but I might have.

9670. Had you not a little book with you in which there were names?—I wrote the names down on paper that he gave me, five names.

9671. Why, not believing Murrell's statement, did you write five names down upon the paper?—He gave me the names.

9672–3. But why did you write them down if you did not believe the story?—I did not believe it, and I intended to ask them whether it was true.

9674. Was that your only reason for taking the names down?—One of them, Gibson, was returned in the canvassing as promising for Stracey.

9675. Did you tell Murrell that you took these names down for the purpose of going to the men and ascertaining whether he was not telling a falsehood?—Certainly not.

9676. Did you put the names down for the purpose of ascertaining whether that was true, and conceal from Mr. Murrell that you were going to make inquiries ?—Certainly ; I did not believe that any such thing had been done.

9677. Did you tell Murrell that you put these names down upon paper for the purpose of ascertaining whether it was true ?—I did not.

9678. Why did you not, if you intended to do that ?—He might have got there before me, and told them what he had said to me in my shop for aught I know. I did not believe what he had said.

9679. You did not believe what he had said, and you thought they might tell you lies ?—I did not.

9680. If you thought they would tell you the truth, what harm could there be in mentioning it ?—They did tell me. Perfect told me he had only got 5*s*., and the other said he had given 10*s*.

9681. You believed Murrell had not paid anything ?—My own belief was that there was not a penny spent.

9682. Was your belief that they had not received as much as 10*s*., or that they had not received anything at all ?—I did not believe that they had received anything.

9683. Not believing that they had received anything, in putting them down upon paper, why did you not tell Murrell that you were putting them down upon paper for the purpose of going to the men and ascertaining whether it was true that they had received anything ?—He might have gone and told them I was going to do so.

9684. Did you think the men would tell you a falsehood at the instigation of Murrell ?—I do not know, I would not say anything of the kind.

9685. Why did you distrust Murrell's word ?—Because I believed it was an impossibility that any money was spent.

9686. An impossibility in Norwich that any money should be spent ?—In the fifth ward.

9687. Is there anything particular in the fifth ward to prevent money being spent in it as in other wards in the city ?—The fifth ward always was a Conservative ward, and I had no reason to suppose that a farthing had been spent in it. Gibson's name was returned to me as promising to vote for Stracey, and his name being returned to me by Mr. Murrell as having had half-a-sovereign I did not believe it.

9688. Then it was Gibson's name which influenced your judgment ?—Because I remembered his promising to vote for Stracey.

9689. Did you go to Gibson ?—No ; after Perfect saying he had received 5*s*. I did not think of going to anyone else. I would not swear I did not, but I do not believe that I said another word to anybody after that.

9690. Will you undertake to swear that you had not the names in a little book ?—I had them on paper, and I believe it was put into my pocket book, not entered in the pocket book, but put down on a piece of paper. I put them down on the counter as soon as he was gone.

9691. How many names did you put down on that piece of paper ?—Four or five. I really think it was five, but I will not swear that. It was four or five.

9692. Were there not as many as 10 or 12 ?—Certainly not.

9693. Are you sure of that ?—I will swear to it.

9694. Where is the piece of paper ?—I haven't it, I tore it up.

9695. Was it not in your pocket book ?—Certainly not. It was in my pocket book, but I took it out, and went up into Crook's Place, and asked them.

9696. Did you ask the names of those people who were in your pocket book, and where they lived ?—I might have done. I believe I did.

9697. Did he say that he could not tell you ?—I cannot say.

9698. Being satisfied with his answer about the 10*s*., that he had only received 5*s*., and not intending to inquire further, why did you ask the names of the different people and where they lived ?—I am sure I cannot say. I do not remember that I even asked the five people.

9699. You told me just now that you did.—I said I might have asked them, or he might have asked them.

9700. What reason could you have had for that if you were satisfied with his answer ?—I was not satisfied, because one man said he had given 10*s*. and the other said he had only received 5*s*.

9701. If you will not contradict the man, we must take his statement, "He asked me the names of the "different people, and where they lived, and I could "not tell him." Now, taking that to be true, you will not say it is false, and, of course, we believe it to be true, what reason could you have had for such a statement ?—Probably if I had seen them I should have asked them.

9702. If you did not know them yourself, merely seeing them would not enable you to know them ?—But I did know Gibson.

9703. You asked where they lived ?—I believe I did.

9704. Then did you know these people ?—I knew Gibson well.

9705. Did you not know where Gibson lived ?—I did not. I knew where his son lived, but I did not know where the old man lived.

9706. Gibson is a voter, is he not ?—Yes. I knew that he lived in Crook's Place, but that is a large place.

9707. You knew where his son lived, did you ?—Yes, he keeps the "White Horse" or the "White Hart," in Crook's Place.

9708. That would be the natural place to go for the old man, would it not ?—I did not go there for the old man.

9709. But that would be the natural place in which you would inquire for him ?—No, and for this reason, Russell and Tillett had a meeting, I believe, at the house, and I did not go near it.

9710. Then when you heard that he had been paid 5*s*., I suppose you concluded that the other people had been paid likewise ?—I did.

9711. You have been examined before upon this inquiry ?—Last Saturday, sir.

9712. Did you then believe that these five men had been paid for their votes ?—Which five men ?

9713. The four or five men whose names were down in your book ?—I supposed they had after what the other man had told me.

9714. And you believed it ?—So far as believing it ; I did not know whether it was not to get money off me.

9715. You knew that Perfect had been paid it ?—He told me so.

9716. And you believed it ?—As far as this was concerned, I believed this was trying to get something from me as manager of the fifth ward.

9717. Do you mean to say you did not believe what Perfect had told you ?—I really think I ought to be represented by three or four counsel. I do not know what you mean. All I say is this, that one person came to me and asked me for 50*s*. for five voters. I go to one of them, and he tells me he only received 5*s*., and I won't trust either of them.

9718. I am not trying to fix you with having paid this, do not suppose that ; but you believed Perfect's statement, did you not ?—How could I believe either of them ?

9719. Was Perfect a person whose statement you would not believe ?—If one man tells you one thing and one another, which are you to believe ? One is as likely to be true as the other.

9720. You said you doubted whether Murrell had paid him 10*s*. ?—I did not believe that any money had been spent at all.

9721. But then you went down to the man and found that he had been paid 5*s*. ?—He said he had.

9722. And on your oath just now you told me that you then believed that statement?—I do not remember that I said so; I may have said so.

9723. If you did say so, I suppose it is the truth?—We will take it for the truth.

9724. I then asked you whether you believed the other men had been paid?—All I say is this, one man telling me 5*s.* and the other 10*s.*, how could I believe which it was.

9725. If you did not believe Perfect's statement, why did you not go to the other people to investigate the matter?—If one man tells you one thing and another another which are you to believe.

9726. You told me just now that you did believe Perfect's statement?—I do not remember it.

9727. Did you believe Perfect's statement or not?—How could I believe either of them.

9728. (Mr. Biron.) You must know well enough whether you believed it or not?—I could not believe either of them.

9729. (Mr. Dowdeswell.) Did you believe Perfect's statement or not?—How could I believe either of them.

9730. Did you disbelieve them both then?—One tells you 10*s.* and the other 5*s.*, what are you to do?

9731. Did you believe that Perfect had received 5*s.*?—How could I tell.

9732. You were investigating this matter with a view to satisfy your own mind?—I was.

9733. Now having gone there for the purpose of satisfying your own mind, did you believe that statement, as you swore you did, or not?—I could not believe either of them. One tells you 10*s.* and the other 5*s.*

9734. Then is what you stated before, that you believed that statement of Perfect's, untrue?—I do not remember that that question was ever asked.

9735. Did you believe it or not?—I do not remember that question being asked.

9736. Then let the shorthand writer read what you said. (The shorthand writer read his notes of the witness' evidence upon this point.) You concluded that the other people had been paid?—I could not swear that they had.

9737. You said that you concluded that the other people had been paid, and you heard it was 5*s.* each?—Undoubtedly, that something had been paid.

9738. Then you believed that they had been paid something?—Undoubtedly.

9739. It is the fact that when you heard what Perfect said you believed that Perfect and the other people had been paid something?—Something I believed had been paid, but one told me he had paid 10*s.* and the other that he had received 5*s.*, therefore I could not say.

9740. That was only a contradiction between 10*s.* and 5*s.*?—It is no contradiction of mine.

9741. But when Murrell told you 10*s.* and the other man told you 5*s.*, there was no contradiction except as to the amount. Did you not believe under these circumstances that they had been paid something?—They might have been paid something.

9742. But did you not believe it?—I will not swear that I believed such a thing as that.

9743. If you did not believe it, and you wanted to inquire whether it was the fact, why did you not go to the other people?—I did not bother about it.

9744. If you did not believe what Perfect told you, why did you not go to these other people?—It had nothing to do with me.

9745. You had taken the trouble to go to Perfect?—I knew Perfect well, because he was a customer of mine.

9746. If you distrusted in any way that statement of Perfect's, why did you not go to the other people?—Well, as far as I was concerned, I had a curiosity to know, but I had nothing to pay, and did not intend to pay anything.

9747. I want to know if you interested yourself about this question and wanted to know the truth; why did you not go to these other people?—I could not tell what I should get. One said 5*s.* and the other 10*s.*

9748. That is no answer to my question. Upon your oath, do you not now believe that Perfect and these other persons had received money?—I could not tell, sir, it is an impossibility for me to tell; undoubtedly they might have received money.

9749. But do you believe it?—You ask me to swear to it.

9750. I want you to swear to what you believe was the fact, and what passed in your mind respecting it. Did you not believe that statement of Perfect's?—I really cannot say. How was I to tell such a thing as that.

9751. Surely you can tell me whether you believe a fact or not?—How can anyone believe it, if one man tells you 10*s.* and the other 5*s.*

9752. Did you distrust the statement altogether, and believe that neither party was telling you the truth, or did you believe that Perfect was telling you the truth, and that he had received something?—It was impossible for me to believe that he had accepted 5*s.*, when the other man told me he gave him 10*s.*

9753. But did you believe that he got something?—I do not remember what I supposed at the time; it is an impossibility to tell what I supposed.

9754. I ask you whether you did not conclude, that these persons had received the 5*s.*?—You now want me to swear to things which one supposes, and I will not.

9755. I want you to speak to the state of your mind at that time?—I will not swear to what I supposed; it is an impossibility.

9756. Now listen to what you were examined about the other day. "Then you had no suspicion of anybody "who either received a bribe or was offered a bribe?—"I had none until after the election petition was "tried"?—I believe that is true; that was after the election petition was tried.

9757. Wait a moment. "You had no suspicion. "Have you heard of anybody since having received "a bribe?—I have not. Have you heard of anybody "since who gave a bribe?—I have not, only by the "papers according to the petition"?—Quite right, sir.

9758. Having heard that these people had received these bribes, and having those questions put to you, why did you not mention that in your reply to those questions?—In the first place, it was in the middle of a Saturday afternoon I was sent for in a hurry. I went away from my shop, and came up here. I had no one to leave; I had several customers in the shop; and really until I read that in the newspapers I had no idea that I had said it.

9759. When you were examined you really did not know what you had stated?—I beg your pardon; after I had read it I still firmly did not believe in the money that was given to these men. One man told me that he had given 10*s.*, and the other that he had only received 5*s.*; how could I believe it.

9760. The question was not whether you believed it, but whether you had heard it?—I did not remember it in the box on Saturday.

9761. The question was, "Have you heard of any-"body?" and you said, "I have not."—I did not believe that such a question had been asked me until after I read it in the papers.

9762. The question was not whether you believed it, but whether you had heard it. If you had heard it we might come to a conclusion as to whether you believed it?—If anybody had been placed in the situation I was placed in at that time, leaving my business at that hour in the afternoon, no one could remember everything that was put to him.

9763. Then why did you not come here, and when

NINTH DAY.

A. Stockings.

28 Aug. 1869.

you found you had made an error at once proceed to correct it?—I did not find it out until Saturday night, and then I noticed it, and I mentioned it.

9764. Now, just let me put to you the further conversation with this man, and see whether you will contradict that, "He read those names to me, he said "that Murrell had given him a list of those names, "and he wanted payment for them." I supposed that Murrell had parted with his own money, and wanted the witness to refund that sum to him; that is how I understood it. Did you not read those names to him, and say that Murrell had given you a list of the names, and that he wanted payment for them; did you not say that to Perfect?—I might have said so.

9765. I know you might have said so, but did you not say so?—I might have said he had given me the names; I believe I did.

9766. Yes; and did you not say that he wanted payment for them?—Probably I might have said so, but I really cannot say.

9767. Did you not?—I really cannot say.

9768. Will you undertake to swear that you did not?—I mean to say that it happened seven or eight months ago, and it is impossible to recollect.

9769. I want to know whether you can positively undertake to say that you did not say that to the man?—I would not swear to it, but I do not believe it.

9770. Now yesterday morning you beckoned him into your shop, you know, and did he not say to you this, "When you came to my house you asked me "whether I had received 10*s*., and I told you, and I "spoke the truth; and then you asked me the "names of the other people; you said you wanted "to know how much money was spent, because you "did not believe that so much money had been "spent"?—I believe he said something similar to it.

9771. And was not the inquiry which you made of him whether he had been paid so much?—No, I believe not.

9772. Will you undertake to say that was not the inquiry which you made of him when you went to him?—I will not swear to it, but I do not believe it was.

9773. Now did you not say when you saw him, not yesterday, but upon this occasion originally, that the money had been subscribed by independent gentlemen?—Certainly not.

9774. Now, be careful?—Certainly not, sir; I had no reason or cause for saying so.

9775. You swear positively that you did not say that the money had been subscribed by independent gentlemen?—To the best of my belief I did not say so.

9776. Do you mean to say that you cannot tell me whether you did not say that this money had been subscribed by independent gentlemen?—I had no cause for saying so, and I do not believe I did.

9777. Then that is all you will swear?—I will swear to that.

9778. But not further?—I might have said such a thing, but I will not swear to it. I will just explain that: I might have said so to have known what he received, to see whether I could get the truth. I might have said so; he gave me the answer that he had received 5*s*.

9779. Would you tell a falsehood to extract the truth?—I tried to get the truth out of them.

9780. And you would tell a falsehood to do so?—I do not say I did say so. I might have said so, but I do not know whether I did.

9781. You would tell a falsehond to extract the truth?—I say this, I do not believe I said it, but I might have said such a thing.

9782. You might have told a falsehood to extract the truth?—I do not believe I did.

9783. But that is the conclusion you have come to, is it, that you might have told a falsehood to extract the truth?—I do not believe I said such a thing. I will not swear I did not, but I do not believe that I did.

9784. If you said so, was it true?—Certainly not.

9785. Then if you said it you told a falsehood?—If I said it I certainly did, but I do not believe I said it, and I would almost swear that I did not say such a thing; I had no cause for saying so.

9786. I think we can dispense with your further attendance?—Thank you.

HENRY HINDES sworn and examined.

H. Hindes.

9787. (Mr. Biron.) What are you?—A rope, cord, and sack manufacturer, mixed up with my son, who was here yesterday; but I have very little to do with the business.

9788. You are a sleeping partner?—Yes.

9789. For whom did you vote at the last election?—Sir Henry Stracey.

9790. You are a strong friend of his, I believe?—Yes, I have always been a supporter of the party.

9791. Were you on the committee?—No, I was not on the committee at all.

9792. Where do you keep your banking account?—At Harvey's.

9793. Did you draw a cheque upon the day of the poll?—Certainly not; not a penny.

9794. Or the day before?—No, nor yet a week before, nor yet a month before, nor yet a twelvemonth before.

9795. Well, your balance must be getting a splendid one?—Of course, we have money to pay out on occasions.

9796. Who draws the cheques?—My son draws the cheques.

9797. Did your son draw a cheque on the day of the election, do you know?—Certainly not. When our bills become due we have money to pay out; but as regards drawing money out, I have not drawn money out of the bank for certain purposes for years.

9798. Did anybody borrow money of you on the day of the election?—Not a farthing; not anyone.

9799. Is it your son who draws cheques for your business?—Yes.

9800. Do you yourself?—No, seldom, because, as I said before, the business rests with my son. I have not taken any profits out of the business for years. I have money in the business, but I have not taken a 5*l*. out of the business for years. The profits are with my son and for the good of the family. I have some means of my own without taking any money out of the business.

9801. Although you are entitled to a share of the profits of the business you do not draw it?—Certainly not.

9802. I understand you to say you have independent sources quite apart from the business?—I have.

9803. And they furnish you with sufficient for your wants?—Certainly.

9804. Did you receive the proceeds of any cheque that was drawn for the business or any other account?—Not one shilling.

9805. (Mr. Dowdeswell.) You took an active part in promoting the election of Sir Henry Stracey?—Well, I certainly for two days went with two of the younger Straceys, but on the morning of the election I did not take up a single voter to the poll. I simply went to accompany those gentlemen.

9806. You were canvassing with young Mr. Stracey?—Yes, I was.

9807. For two days previously to the election?—Yes; I think it was a day or two before the election, but I cannot say exactly the day.

9808. On the day of the election did you go to "St. Paul's" tavern?—Yes, I did.

9809. Is that kept by a person of the name of Samuel Severn?—Yes, that is right.

9810. Do you know a man of the name of Rizen Mollett?—I knew him very well, but now he is dead.

9811. Were you in there in a separate room?—I was in a room where I am in the habit of going once a week. We meet at that house of a Wednesday night, and I was in the room. It is a room which I frequent nearly every Wednesday night, with other gentlemen who live in the ward.

9812. This was in the middle of the day, was it?—About the middle of the day.

9813. Did Mollett bring several persons into the room?—No; not during the time I was there.

9814. Did Mollett stand at the bar while the persons were brought or came in?—Not that I am aware of; I never saw it.

9815. Did persons come to you into that room?—There were two or three persons came in and asked me if I would give them a day's pay for their day's work, and I said "Not a shilling or a pint of beer will "I give you."

9816. How many men came to you and asked you to give them money?—Two, I think.

9817. Do you know who those men were?—Yes; there is one man lives up at Philadelphia. I forget his name, but he wanted a day's pay, as he called it, and I said "I cannot give you a penny," nor did I give him a penny, or a pint of beer, or a promise of anything.

9818. Can you give me the names of the men?—No, I really cannot. There is one, but I do not know his name; he is a tenant of Mr. Jarvis, I think. He lives in Elephant Yard, but I do not know the man's name; he stepped up and very much wanted a day's pay, as he called it. I said to him, "My dear fellow, "I shall not give you a shilling nor yet a pint of beer," and I was firm to that. Not a pint of beer did I give to any single individual.

9819. Who was the other man?—He lives in Philadelphia; he is a very deaf man; he called out "I "want a day's pay;" and I hallooed out as loud as I could, "I shall not give you a farthing or a pint of "beer." His name is Cooper.

9820. John Cooper, of the "Red Lion," Magdalen Street?—No; this man is a labouring man; he had done jobs for me occasionally on a little land that I had.

9821. Were there only two men that came in?—That is all I am aware of. These two men came in to ask for what I have just named—a day's pay.

9822. Do you know a person of the name of Ribbons?—No, I do not.

9823. Did you go to the "Little Buck"?—No.

9824. Did you send any people to the "Little Buck"?—Certainly not. I do not know which "Little Buck" you mean, sir.

9825. Do you know a place called the "Little Buck"?—No, I really do not. I cannot call to mind such a sign. I do not frequent those places. There may be several "Little Bucks" in Norwich, but I really do not know.

9826. You may not frequent those places, but still you may have places pointed out to you?—I have no knowledge of any such thing. I am certain I did not send anyone there. I have this to tell you, if you will please to hear me: I have seven men in my employ, voters, and I never asked one of those men on the day of the election, or previous to the election, which way they were going to vote. It is true that I acknowledge to be a strong party man, but I thought I was come to that age that I might leave the younger ones to take a more active part than myself.

9827. You have always been a very active man at elections?—Yes, I acknowledge it, sir.

9828. Do not say you acknowledge it; it is no discredit to you.—I am proud of being a party man.

9829. Thinking that you had done your part in the world, as far as that is concerned, who did you get to take your place?—Not anyone.

9830. You got nobody to take your place?—No, not anyone, and I left it to those men who have the same feeling that I had to do justice to their party.

9831. Who were they that took an active part?—I do not know who they were.

9832. Did you go to the committee room?—No; I only went once to the committee room when the committee was about being formed, long before the election, when Sir Henry Stracey was required to come forward, but I was never at the general committee room after that time. I was at the committee room when Tillett and Russell came round with the carriage boasting about 600 majority in the forenoon. I was there then in the seventh ward committee room.

9833. I must ask you a general question, which becomes of the greatest importance, particularly after what we have heard from the last witness, to put to everybody indifferently, and that in the most definite form. Do you know of anybody having been paid for his vote at the previous election?—No.

9834. Have you paid anybody yourself?—Not a shilling, nor do I know of anyone who did give a shilling.

9835. Have you any belief as to money having been paid?—I was told there was money spent, and when I heard that I replied that I was sorry for it, because I thought Sir Henry Stracey did not require it. My impression was that he would have been better without the little trumpery money that was spent than with it.

9836. Then you believe that money had been spent?—Mine is mere hearsay. I have no right to believe it or disbelieve it.

9837. You hear people say things, but do not require them to be stated upon oath, I suppose, in order to believe them?—I give you my oath that I never paid money, or saw money paid, or anything of the sort, and I am an old man now.

9838. You heard, did you not, that money had been spent?—I had heard so, but it is merely hearsay. I never saw it.

9839. Not having seen it, but having heard it, from whom did you hear it?—I cannot tell, because people are walking about the streets, and that sort of thing, and they talk about it.

9840. When was it that you heard it?—I heard it on the day of the election.

9841. Can you not tell me of anybody who told you that money had been spent?—No, I am on my oath, and I cannot.

9842. I do not put it to you offensively?—The last time I was examined before a judge, he very much complimented me.

(Mr. Biron.) He thought you a good witness, and we think so too.

9843. (Mr. Dowdeswell.) You used the words, "Upon my oath;" I did not put them to you, I only asked you whether you could recollect any money being spent on the day of the election?—I say again, I cannot, and I am on my oath, and I know it, but I cannot. It is merely talked about that money was afloat, and I said at the time I was very sorry for it; but I am on my oath, and I give you straightforward answers. I do not know the person who told it to me.

9844. Do you know where it was you heard it?—In different parts.

9845. In general conversation?—I cannot say where it was; it was quite at random that I heard it,

NINTH DAY.

H. Hindes.

28 Aug. 1869.

9846. Did you hear at that time the name of any person who had been finding or spending the money?—No, I did not.

9847. Have your heard since how it was found?—No, I have not, certainly not. I do not know where a shilling of it came from.

9848. I am quite sure we can depend on your answers?—I give them straight, I assure you.

J. Snowley.

JOHN SNOWLEY sworn and examined.

9849. (Mr. Mansfield.) What are you?—A cord-wainer.

9851. At what time of the day did you vote?—About 3.

9852. Do you recollect some time after that, that you went to Gibson's public house?—I went there the same day I voted; in fact, I was going home, and I met with him, and I went into there the same day. I had made up my mind not to vote at all, and I was going home because I lived close by there, and I was stopped.

9853. After that you went to Mr. Gibson's for some money?—No.

9854. What do you mean?—After I see Mr. Gibson I happened with Mr. Murrell, and he said he would give me so-and-so, you know. I had the money, but still I do not know who I had it of.

9855. You do not remember who gave it to you?—No, it was given to me. I went from there to the "Rose."

9856. But you do not recollect who gave it to you?—No, I do not. The money was put upon the table.

9857. You know both Murrell and Gibson by sight?—Yes.

9858. Are you certain that it was neither Murrell nor Gibson who gave you the 5s.?—Yes, I can safely say that.

9859. But you cannot tell who it was?—No, I cannot.

9860. It was some one in the "Rose"?—Yes, I had the money. It neither came from Mr. Gibson nor Mr. Murrell.

9861. Where was the money given to you?—I told you at the "Rose" I received it. It was put on the table.

9862. After you had voted?—About an hour after I voted. I was then going home, and I had made up my mind not to vote at all.

9863. Then you saw reason to change your mind?—I was out the whole of the morning, and I kept my own company till I happened with these two.

9864. Where were you when you were first spoken to about the 5s.?—I cannot say.

9865. Who spoke to you first about it?—There was no agreement made. I voted, and the money was put down upon the table.

9866. Who took you to the poll?—Of course Mr. Murrell see me go there.

9867. Was he with you?—He was not exactly, still he was near me.

9868. Was anybody else with you?—You will have another here, and I daresay he will state the same case.

9869. Who is that other one?—His name is Wiseman. Wiseman had the money. There was only two of us, and we was neighbours, and we were both of us going home, only unfortunately we happened that misfortune.

9870. As soon as you had voted you went to the "Rose," and there the 5s. was put upon the table?—Yes, that is it.

9871. Was anybody else paid at the same time?—A few minutes after there was.

9872. Many?—Only one; there was only us two.

9873. (Mr. Biron.) That is, Wiseman and yourself?—Yes.

9874. (Mr. Mansfield.) Were there not a good many more with you?—I tell you candid and honourable, there was only us two.

9875. But you know of other people?—No, I told you that I kept my own company. I was alone a couple of hours, and I made up my mind I would not vote for either parties, and I was near home when this occurred.

9876. (Mr. Biron.) Who was in the "Rose" when the money was put down?—I cannot tell you; I know the money was received. That is all I can tell you.

9877. You can remember a little more about it?—To tell you the truth, I cannot.

9878. How long were you in the "Rose"?—I didn't stop only a few minutes.

9879. Why did you go there?—That was near the polling place.

9880. Was Murrell in the "Rose" when it was received?—No.

9881. Did you see Murrell give money to anyone else?—No, I only happened with him promiscuously. I had made up my mind not to vote at all. I met him near home.

9882. How did you know that the 5s. were for you?—That was the agreement, of course.

9883. You had agreed with Murrell that you should have 5s.?—I had the money.

9884. With whom did you agree?—I see both parties, Gibson and Murrell too. I cannot tell you from which I received the money.

9885. Did they both give you money?—No, not Gibson.

9886. Well, now we have got rid of Gibson. Was it Murrell who said you were to have 5s.?—I cannot say. There was an agreement. I had the money.

9887. With whom was the agreement made? You know it wants two people at least to an agreement?—There weren't nobody, only me and Murrell.

9888. You cannot give me the name of anybody who was in the "Rose," but Wiseman?—He and I was the only two individuals that was there; he had to do with it all.

9889. Whereabouts in the "Rose" was it that the 5s. were put down on the table?—It was in one of the low rooms.

9890. You took it up?—Yes, and I never see it put on.

9891. Did you shut your eyes?—I don't know.

9892. You looked another way?—It was put on.

9893. Did you see Wiseman take up his?—No.

9894. You looked another way, then?—No, I was out then.

9895. You took yours and went out?—Yes.

9896. You saw nobody else?—Nobody at all, only them two.

9897. Had you voted at the previous elections?—No, this was my first one, and I hope it will be the last.

W. Shields.

WILLIAM SHIELDS sworn and examined.

9898. (Mr. Biron.) What are you?—A tallow chandler.

9899. Did you vote at the last election?—Yes.

9900. For whom?—Stracey.

9901. Were you upon any of the ward committees?—I was appointed upon the committee of the fifth ward quite against my wish. I had not an opportunity to attend one meeting, and I did not.

9902. Did you canvass at all?—I canvassed twice.

9903. Did the voters you canvassed promise you?—There were some, but very few. In fact, I was out only about an hour and a half.

NINTH DAY.

W. Shields.

28 Aug. 1869.

9904. Do I understand that you found them hanging back, unwilling to say how they would go?—Some of them. We could get some promises, and the others were hanging back.

9905. For money?—I don't know that.

9906. You can form a pretty good guess?—One would suppose it meant that.

9907. Were you about the city on the day of the election?—Yes.

9908. Did you see any voters hanging back?—Yes, I saw one man in St. Stephen's as I was coming out in the afternoon. He was rather forward in drink. I got hold of him. I asked him if he had voted; he said, "No." I said, "Come and vote;" and I got him within 10 or 20 yards of the polling place. I thought I should persuade him to vote, but he said, "I want "a sovereign;" and then I cast him aside, and saw him no more.

9909. What is his name?—Clayton.

9910. Alexander Clayton?—I don't know.

9911. (Mr. Mansfield.) The fishmonger?—Yes.

9912. (Mr. Biron.) At what time in the day did you vote?—Between 2 and 3 o'clock; that is the nearest I can remember.

9913. Have you heard of any money being paid to voters for voting since the election?—No.

9914. You have heard of nothing except what took place before the election?—I have not heard anything further than what you may say common talk.

9915. You have not heard the name of any one individual who has received money for his vote?—No.

9916. Or the name of any individual who has given money for votes?—No.

9917. Do you know nothing whatever about the bribery which took place at the last election?—Nothing whatever.

9918. Did you see Parker on the day of the election?—Yes, at half-past 3 in the afternnon I happened with him.

9919. Did you say to him "What is going on?"—No.

9920. Did you say "You had better be careful "what you are about. You had better not pay these "men"?—No, that's not me.

9921. Did you give no information to Parker?—No.

9922. Did you have any conversation with him about the way in which the election was going?—None.

9923. You saw him actively engaged?—I saw him at about half-past 3 on the day of the election. He said there was a voter at the "Bell."

9924. Was he taking up voters?—I went with him down to the "Bell," and as we got to the "Bell" the voter was coming out. I did not speak to him. That is all I saw of Mr. Parker.

9925. He had been two or three times after that voter?—Yes.

9926. That was the ostler who was at the "Bell"?—Yes. I did not speak to him.

9927. (Mr. Dowdeswell.) Have you ever voted at previous elections?—Yes.

9928. We have heard that there was a good deal of corruption going on at the elections in 1860 and 1865; that was so, was it not?—I am sure I don't know. I cannot go so far back.

9929. In 1865, the election before the one of last year, you can surely remember that?—I don't know at all.

9930. Did not you take an active part in the election then?—No, this is my first active part in electioneering.

9931. You do not know of anything irregular at those prior elections?—No.

9932. Do you know of any fund having been provided to pay expenses at the election?—No.

9933. You have not been asked to subscribe to any?—No.

William Lawrence sworn and examined.

W. Lawrence.

9934. (Mr. Dowdeswell.) Are you a voter?—Yes.

9935. Have you ever been a voter before?—Yes.

9936. At the previous elections of 1860 and 1865?—1865.

9937. For whom did you vote?—Warner and Russell.

9938. For whom did you vote at the last election?—Sir Henry Stracey.

9939. At what time in the day did you vote?—I expect about 3 o'clock. I don't know whether it was 3 or not; but I think it was somewhere about that time.

9940. How did it happen that you were so late at the poll?—Because I was busy at my business.

9941. What is your business?—A shopkeeper.

9942. What sort of a shop do you keep?—Everything almost; grocery, drapery, and everything.

9943. You keep what is called a general shop?—Yes.

9944. I suppose there were a good many people in and out of the shop that day?—A good many.

9945. Did you take any active part in the matter?—No.

9946. Did you ask people for a vote?—I might do after I had voted myself. I believe I did.

9947. When you asked people to vote, did you find that some of them were very reluctant to vote?—No, I don't know about that. I don't know whether they voted none the more for my asking them.

9948. Did they talk about a day's pay or anything of that sort?—No.

9949. Did you see any men loitering about the streets?—I was not about the streets till 3.

9950. You were at home engaged in your business?—Yes.

9951. Did you hear of any money being paid to the voters that day?—Not till after the election.

9952. How soon after the election?—Not above an hour or two, I should think.

9953. About an hour?—Yes.

9954. Did you hear about money being paid?—I heard Sir Henry Stracey was got in by bribery, but I did not believe it.

9955. Did they mention anybody who had done it, or say where it was done?—No; it was in the market that I heard of it. It was regular common talk.

9956. Was anybody spoken of as having done that?—No; I only know it was said he would not have got in if there had not been bribery.

9957. Have you heard of any money being given afterwards?—No, not a halfpenny.

9958. You received no money for voting?—No.

9959. Nor were you promised any?—No.

Benjamin Riches sworn and examined.

B. Riches.

9960. (Mr. Mansfield.) What are you by trade?—Gardener.

9961. At what time did you vote at the last election?—About 10 minutes to 4, I think, was the time.

9962. For whom did you vote?—Sir Henry Stracey.

9963. What made you vote so late?—I was at work at my own garden. It was the only day I had to myself, so I took the liberty of doing my garden, and when I had done it I went and I voted.

9964. How far were you from the polling place?—100 yards—not more.

9965. Did anyone solicit you for your vote?—A gentleman came, and I said I would when I had done my garden.

NINTH DAY.

B. Riches.

28 Aug. 1869.

9966. Who was that gentleman?—A man who used to gather the rates. I don't know his name.

9967. Did anybody offer you anything for your vote?—No.

9968. Has anything been paid to you since?—No; it was not my principle. I should not take anything if they did.

9969. Have you ever voted before?—No.

9970. You are a new voter this time?—Yes.

9971. Have you heard of any money being given at this election?—I never heard of any.

9972. Have you heard of any being promised?—I never heard of any money being mentioned—not where I have been.

9973. Do you take much interest in elections?—I never had a vote before, so I didn't take much interest.

9974. Did you promise your vote?—I did promise the gentleman for it.

9975. Had you promised before the day of the poll?—No.

9976. Had you been asked?—They had been round soliciting me, but I had never been at home.

H. Archer.

HENRY ARCHER sworn and examined.

9977. (Mr. Biron.) What are you?—I am a broker and general dealer. I look after a shop for a nephew of mine. I attend to it.

9978. You are manager of a shop?—Yes.

9979. For whom did you vote at the last election?—Tillett and Russell.

9980. At what hour of the day?—The dinner hour.

9981. Did you get anything for your vote?—No, I never thought of such a thing.

9982. Were you promised anything?—No, certainly not.

9983. Had you voted at former elections?—Yes.

9984. Did you ever get anything for your vote on former occasions?—Certainly not. I did not look for anything of the kind.

9985. You always voted for the Liberals?—Certainly.

J. Stimpson.

JAMES STIMPSON sworn and examined.

9986. (Mr. Dowdeswell.) Are you a voter?—Yes.

9987. Were you a voter at former elections?—Yes.

9988. Did you vote in 1860 and 1865?—I can't tell you.

9989. Have you voted upon more than two occasions previously?—I think I have.

9990. For whom did you vote at the last election?—Sir Henry Stracey.

9991. What are you by business?—A broker.

9992. Do you know of anybody having received money for voting at this election?—No; I take very little interest in political matters.

9993. But you might have heard, you know?—I have never heard of any.

9994. Or that money had been paid or received?—Never heard anything of the kind.

9995. Neither at this nor at prior elections?—No; I don't take much interest in such things.

9996. Did you receive either money or the promise of money for voting at the last election?—No; I only had one gentleman call upon me and solicited my vote, and I decidedly told him no.

J. Hannant.

JOHN HANNANT sworn and examined.

9997. (Mr. Mansfield.) What are you by trade?—Carter.

9998. For whom do you work?—James Long, Dereham Road.

9999. Are you a voter?—Yes.

10,000. Is this your first time of voting?—Yes.

10,001. For whom did you vote?—Mr. Tillett.

10,002. What time in the day?—A quarter to 4.

10,003. What made you so late?—I was carting bricks at Thorpe Asylum till 3 o'clock.

10,004. At what time did you get back to the city?—At a quarter before 3.

10,005. What did you do when you got back?—I went and voted.

10,006. You took an hour to do that?—I was discharging bricks at Thorpe Asylum till 3 o'clock, and I left there and came and voted.

10,007. Had you been asked for your vote by anyone?—Yes, but I was not at home when they came to my house.

10,008. Had you promised your vote?—No.

10,009. Had anything been given to you to vote?—No.

10,010. Or anything promised?—No.

10,011. Have you heard of anybody else being promised?—No.

R. Fuller.

ROBERT FULLER sworn and examined.

10,012. (Mr. Biron.) What are you?—A labourer.

10,013. Where do you live?—Crook's Place.

10,014. Did you vote at the last election?—Yes.

10,015. For whom?—Stracey.

10,016. When?—After dinner; I cannot say exactly what time.

10,017. How long after dinner?—It might be 3 o'clock. I was at work up to dinner time.

10,018. Why did not you vote before?—I did not leave off not till 1.

10,019. What were you doing from 1 to 3?—I was looking after my dinner. After dinner I went and give my vote, against the "Trowel and Hammer."

10,020. Who spoke to you about your vote?—Not anyone.

10,021. Had you promised your vote?—No.

10,022. Did anybody ask you for your vote?—No.

10,023. You saw nobody on the day of the election about it?—Not anyone.

10,024. Who went up with you to vote?—I went myself.

10,025. Did you get anything for voting?—No.

10,026. Have you received anything since?—No, not anything.

10,027. Do you know of anybody who has got money for voting?—No.

10,028. Have you heard of anybody receiving money?—No.

WILLIAM WHALL sworn and examined. W. Whall. 29 Aug. 1869.

10,029. (Mr. Mansfield.) What are you by trade?—A smith.

10,030. For whom do you work?—On my own account, my own shop.

10,031. For whom did you vote at the last election?—Mr. Stracey.

10,032. At what time of the day?—Well, I can't exactly say; I should think between 2 and 3 o'clock in the afternoon.

10,033. What were you about all that day?—My work.

10,034. Did you never go out till 3 o'clock?—I went down in the yard twice in the course of the day. The voting place is opposite my yard.

10,035. Who asked you for your vote?—Mr. John Hardy and Mr. Hibbett, the stonemason, come after me. They asked me to vote, and I voted for them directly.

10,036. Did Mr. Hardy ask you to go up to the poll?—Yes, Mr. Hardy asked me to go.

10,037. Did he go up with you?—Yes, in Mr. Hibbett's pony and cart.

10,038. Did not you have a glass of beer?—No, nothing.

10,039. No money?—No.

10,040. Mr. Hardy is a very liberal man. Did not they promise you anything?—No, nothing.

10,041. Have they given you nothing since?—Nothing was mentioned, neither in the shape of money or beer, or anything else.

10,042. Had you promised your vote before?—No, I did not mean to vote for neither parties. I work for both of them, and I did not mean to vote for either party.

10,043. When Mr. Hardy came at 3 o'clock, you went up with him to the poll?—Yes, and Hibbett, the stonemason.

10,044. Did you know Hardy or Hibbett before?—I have known them for years.

10,045. Have you ever voted at elections before?—Yes, I have voted, but they never came after me before.

10,046. Which have you voted for, Whig or Tory?—Tory.

10,047. Always?—Yes.

10,048. Have you always voted at 3 o'clock in the day?—About 3 o'clock, as near as I can recollect.

10,049. You never promised your vote?—No, I never promised my vote, particularly. Before Mr. Fisher came after me I didn't know that I should vote at all. I work for both parties, and I did not think I should vote at all.

10,050. Have you ever had anything paid to you on former elections?—No, nothing.

10,051. Have you never asked for anything?—I never asked for it; never thought of such a thing.

REUBEN WOODROW sworn and examined. R. Woodrow.

10,052. (Mr. Biron.) What are you?—A bootmaker.

10,053. Did you vote at the last election?—Yes.

10,054. For whom?—Stracey.

10,055. When?—3 o'clock.

10,056. Why did you not vote earlier?—I could not leave before; I was engaged in my business.

10,057. Is it your own business?—No; I had some work I was obliged to finish.

10,058. Were you about the city at all in the morning?—No, I was not out till after 2.

10,059. Did you get anything for your vote?—No.

10,060. Or any promise?—Not any.

10,061. Do you know of anybody who has had money for voting?—No.

JOHN WILLIAM TAYLOR sworn and examined. J. W. Taylor.

10,062. (Mr. Dowdeswell.) What are you by business?—Carpenter and cooper.

10,063. Are you a voter?—Yes.

10,064. Did you vote at the last election?—I did.

10,065. For whom did you vote?—For Mr. Stracey.

10,066. At what time in the day did you vote?—About 4 o'clock, a quarter before 4.

10,067. Had you been canvassed for your vote before?—I had not.

10,068. Had you never promised it?—Never promised it.

10,069. Where were you on the morning of the election?—At work.

10,070. Where?—At my shop. I was very busy, for I was contractor for the coffins for the city of Norwich, and I had three to get in that day. Therefore I was obliged to stand to my work till I had done them, and then I went out and voted.

10,071. Under those circumstances you could not vote till late?—That was the reason.

10,072. And the only reason?—And the only reason.

10,073. Did anybody speak to you about money that day for your vote?—No.

10,074. You received none?—I received none.

10,075. Do you know of anybody receiving money?—I do not, because I did not mix up with the election at all, only as going out to vote and returning home.

10,076. At the previous elections do you know of any money being paid or received?—I do not; I always voted in the same manner as I did this time.

HENRY WILBY sworn and examined. H. Wilby.

10,077. (Mr. Mansfield.) What are you by trade?—A shoemaker.

10,078. For whom did you vote at the last election?—Stracey and Russell.

10,079. Is this the first time you have voted?—Yes.

10,080. At what time in the day did you vote?—About a quarter to 3, as near as I can tell.

10,081. Who had canvassed you for your vote?—Both parties, but I did not promise any.

10,082. What made you vote so late?—I am a shoemaker by trade, and I thought I would work half a day; then I left off and took a walk round, and voted as I went past.

10,083. Did you hear at that time what was going on about the election?—I did not hear a word about anything of the kind.

10,084. Did anybody offer you anything for your vote?—Nothing.

10,085. You did not get a glass of beer anywhere?—No, I did not have a glass of anything till after the election was over.

10,086. Did any gentleman come to you on the day of the poll?—No.

10,087. Did anybody go up to the poll with you?—My father-in-law, but he had no vote.

10,088. Nothing has been promised or paid to you?—No.

10,089. Neither then nor since?—Never; nothing of the kind. I never asked anybody for any.

NINTH DAY.

J. Robinson.

28 Aug. 1869.

JAMES ROBINSON sworn and examined.

10,090. (Mr. Biron.) What are you?—A horse dealer.

10,091. For whom did you vote at the last election?—Stracey.

10,092. At what time in the day?—About 3 o'clock.

10,093. How was it you did not vote before that?—Because I was busy after my business.

10,094. Looking after your business all day?—Yes.

10,095. Were you canvassed for your vote?—Not to the best of my knowledge. I was not at home at the time.

10,096. Did you promise your vote to anyone?—No.

10,097. Did you get anything for voting?—I should not have voted but for one person.

10,098. Who was that?—My wife.

10,099. The women seem to be good politicians here, and many of you men appear to be very fond of your wives?—I have loved her up to the present day.

10,100. You did not get anything for your vote?—No.

10,101. Except a kiss, I suppose?—I might get that. I should think that is very likely.

Adjourned to Monday next at 11 o'clock.

TENTH DAY.

Monday, 30th August 1869.

TENTH DAY.

C. J. Greene.

30 Aug. 1869.

CHARLES JEREMIAH GREENE sworn and examined.

10,102. (Mr. Mansfield.) I understand that you have a statement to make with regard to something that has been said about you?—Yes. I hold in my hand a paper. It is called a special edition of the Norwich Mercury, published on Thursday evening last.

10,103. (Mr. Dowdeswell.) We take no notice of papers; but if you can allude to anything that appears on the shorthand notes, we will refer to it and read to you the notes, and you can say whether they are correct or not. If the notes are correct you may make any statement you like. To what part of the evidence do you allude?—It is a witness named Charles Cooper.

10,104. (Mr. Mansfield.) You will hear the shorthand notes read by-and-bye. Had you anything to do with this election yourself personally?—I had.

10,105. In what capacity?—I was canvassing.

10,106. For which side?—For Sir Henry Stracey.

10,107. Were you about the whole of the day?—From the time Sir Henry declared himself a candidate I canvassed every day.

10,108. Were you very active on the day of the poll?—I was.

10,109. Did you bring up any voters yourself?—One only.

10,110. What was his name?—I think his name was Lingwood, he did not vote in the ward I was working, but he voted in the sixth ward.

10,111. Did you go and fetch him yourself?—No, he was introduced to me in the street.

10,112. Had you ever seen him before?—Never.

10,113. Are you aware of any money being offered during the election?—No.

10,114. Have you heard since of any money having been given?—Only what I have read in the paper.

10,115. You have no personal cognisance of any sums having passed?—Not one farthing.

10,116. Have you been engaged in previous elections?—Several.

10,117. Always on the same side?—Always on the same side.

10,118. At the previous election did you hear of any money being given for votes?—No.

10,119. At the last two elections?—I heard there was a good deal spent on both sides.

10,120. Nothing passed through your hands?—Only something out of my own pocket.

10,121. Do you recollect how much?—5*l.* or 6*l.*

10,122. In small sums to voters?—Yes.

10,123. At the election before?—Not a farthing, never before nor since, and nothing no more.

10,124. (Mr. Biron.) What did Waters give for votes? What was the average?—It ranged from 5*s.*

10,125. I thought it was a larger sum?—I don't know of any. It might be 2*l.*

10,126. How many votes did you get for your 5*l.* or 6*l.*?—I am not able to say.

10,127. About a dozen or so?—No. I daresay not more than 5 or 6.

10,128. (Mr. Mansfield.) This is the shorthand writer's note of Cooper's evidence to which you referred: "Were no names mentioned of persons "who were offering money, who tried to get up "voters by those means?—Well, I did not hear the "names. Are you quite certain you did not?—No, "I am quite certain I heard several names mentioned "that went to the 'Trumpet,' but I do not know "which of them offered money; I did not hear. They "were mentioned to you, and we ask you upon your "oath what was told you?—There was a Mr. Bacon, "a shoemaker, of the first ward, and there was Mr. "Greene, the tobacconist, in London Street, and "several more, but I have forgotten the names of "them; Mr. Hart can tell you more than I can." Is that what you object to?—It is quite different there from what it is in this report in the Mercury.

10,129. That which I have read is taken by the official shorthand writer?—That does not attack me at all; but here (referring to the Mercury) my character is attacked.

10,130. (Mr. Biron.) We can correct our own notes, but it is impossible to correct newspaper reports?—Seeing this in a public print I thought it my duty to come here to clear my character.

10,131. (Mr. Dowdeswell.) How do you read it there?—Would you allow me to read it?

10,132. Yes, just for the purpose of seeing whether we have the right passage?—"I heard that a man "named Barnes and another named Greene were "bribing. I had a letter to that effect, which I will "fetch if you wish it." Then he says further on "Mr. "Greene lives in London Street."

(Mr. Dowdeswell.) This is the official shorthand note, and it shows the necessity for adhering to that, instead of trusting to anything else.

10,133. (Mr. Mansfield.) Is it true that you went to the "Trumpet"?—No.

10,134. Not during the day of the election?—Not at all. I don't know that I was ever in that house in my life. I stuck to my own ward.

TENTH DAY

C. J. Greene.

30 Aug. 1869.

10,135. Were you getting up voters in that ward?—I never took only one up. I solicited them.

10,136. Were you trying to get them?—I was in the first ward.

10,137. And you went to the houses that you knew?—Yes. I went with some people that I did not know. I saw that they had not voted.

10,138. Did you go to persons that had not promised?—Many of them had not.

10,139. Had they been canvassed and refused to give promises?—Some we did not see when we canvassed.

10,140. Did anyone canvass with you?—Oh, several.

10,141. Who else?—Mr. J. B. Morgan some part of the day, Mr. Baker, Mr. Watson, the chemist, Mr. Cooper, Prince of Wales Road, and many of them.

10,142. Were any of these gentlemen offering money to any voters?—Certainly not, that I know of.

10,143. Not at any part of the day?—No.

10,144. How can you account for such an alteration in the polling between 3 and 4?—I do not think there was any.

10,145. There was a great alteration. Some say it was the workmen's most convenient time, some that one candidate was more popular with a particular class, and some that particular means were adopted. Can you offer any explanation?—Not any, only that Sir Henry Stracey was the popular candidate.

10,146. (Mr. Dowdeswell.) Then how came he not to be ahead?—He was ahead at 9 o'clock in the morning. I have never seen that contradicted yet.

10,147. (Mr. Mansfield.) Where was he at 1 o'clock?—I can hardly say, but I believe he was ahead then.

10,148. (Mr. Biron.) We happen to know that he was some 350 behind?—Their strength was all polled by 11 o'clock, whereas our people, the working classes, would not come to vote till the dinner hour. Many of them said "We shall make half a day and "come up to vote when we have done work."

10,149. (Mr. Dowdeswell.) The great change was between 3 and 4?—It generally is.

10,150. But that is after the dinner hour?—Well, it is, a little.

10,151. (Mr. Mansfield.) You do not know of any money having been spent for voting at this election?—Certainly not, not one penny.

10,152. Have you heard of any meeting?—I went to a public meeting at the "Norfolk" hotel just prior to the petition.

10,153. A public meeting?—Yes.

10,154. Were names put down for sums of money?—Yes, to defray the expenses of the petition. I think it was on the day previous to the petition.

10,155. Was there not something said about providing funds to bring forward Sir Henry Stracey's son in the event of Sir Henry Stracey being unseated?—I believe there was.

10,156. Are you certain that none of the money that was subscribed or mentioned then had any reference to the past election?—Certainly not. I put my name down myself for what I thought I could afford towards Mr. Edward Stracey's expenses in the event of his coming forward.

10,157. Do you know of any claims having been made by persons for services rendered voluntarily during the election?—Not one.

10,158. Have you heard of no claim such as those which were made upon Mr. Stockings, for instance?—None whatever.

10,159. You are aware that a claim of 50*s.* was made by Murrell for services rendered?—I have read that.

10,160. Do you recollect any transactions of that kind?—Not but what I have read in the paper.

10,161. You have heard the common talk of the town?—I never heard a single sentence of it or an instance of the kind.

10,162. (Mr. Dowdeswell.) Did you never contribute anything towards any fund for the purpose?—Certainly not.

10,163. You never heard of a subscription by independent gentlemen?—I did not.

10,164. Were you a member of the committee in the first ward?—I was on the committee, yes.

10,165. Do you know who were the other members of that committee?—Many of those gentlemen that I have just named.

10,166. Who else?—Mr. Allen was one of the gentlemen, and Mr. Steward, of Tombland.

10,167. (Mr. Mansfield.) Are you a member of the Eldon Club?—No.

10,168. Or the Rampant Horse Club?—I belong to three conservative clubs, but to neither of those.

10,169. To what clubs do you belong?—We have several ward clubs. We have seven ward clubs. I belong to the first ward club, the second ward club, which is just established, and the seventh ward club.

10,170. Will you tell me who are the secretaries of those clubs?—Mr. Watson is of the first ward club, Mr. Downes, of London Street, is secretary to the second ward club, and I think, if I am right, the name of the secretary to the seventh ward club is Mr. Nunn.

10,171. Which of those clubs has been formed since the election?—The second ward club.

10,172. The two others existed previously to the election?—Yes; the first ward has been established for 10 years.

FREDERICK BROWN sworn and examined.

F. Brown.

10,173. (Mr. Biron.) What are you?—A bricklayer.

10,174. For whom did you vote at the last election?—Sir Henry Stracey.

10,175. At what hour of the day?—Between 2 and 3.

10,176. Why did you not vote sooner?—I happened to meet a gentleman in the market, and he persuaded me to vote.

10,177. Who was the gentleman?—Mr. Stanley.

10,178. How did he persuade you?—That is all I know of it.

10,179. (Mr. Dowdeswell.) How did he persuade you?—He asked me whether I had voted, and I said "No." Then he said "Come along with me and "vote for Mr. Stracey."

10,180. And what did he give you?—Nothing.

10,181. Did he promise you anything?—No.

10,182. Are you sure of that?—Yes.

10,183. You are quite certain?—Yes; he never thanked me.

10,184. Did he not come to your house?—No; he met with me in the market.

10,185. What were you doing in the market?—I was walking about.

10,186. Had you been walking about the whole of the day?—The chief part of the day.

10,187. Doing nothing?—Yes.

10,188. And I suppose you were quite ready to receive money for your vote like a number of others?—No. I did not receive anything.

10,189. Had you ever promised your vote?—No.

10,190. You had been asked for it?—Yes.

10,191. And had you refused to give it?—I refused.

10,192. Why did you refuse? Did you want money?—No.

10,193. What did you want, then?—I did not want any money.

10,194. (Mr. Biron.) You wanted something or other. It is of no use evading the question.—No.

10,195. Did you not want a place for one of your sons?—No.

10,196. What did you want?—I did not want anything.

10,197. (Mr. Dowdeswell.) Is it not the fact that you wanted a day's wages?—A day's expenses.

10,198. A day's expenses?—Yes.

10,199. (Mr. Biron.) Did you get them?—No.

10,200. Have you not received them since the election?—No.

10,201. (Mr. Dowdeswell.) Did Mr. Stanley say that he would see about it?—No.

10,202. Do not suppose that if you were standing out for your day's expenses and were picked up by a man in the market, we shall believe that you voted without receiving anything?—I have spoken the truth.

10,203. Did you not say you would have your day's expenses?—No, I don't think that I did.

10,204. What was the promise made to you?—Not any at all.

10,205. Do not tell us that. It is quite clear that you were promised something.—I was not promised anything.

10,206. We are here for the purpose of getting the truth if we can?—I have spoken the truth.

10,207. You have spoken portions of the truth, but you have not stated the whole truth. It is clear to us and to everybody in this court that you got something. Now let us know what it was or how it was?—I didn't get anything.

10,208. You were to get something, and you have not got it yet?—No; and I had not the promise of anything.

10,209. You were to have something, were you not?—No, nothing. I am not aware of it.

10,210. You were to have something?—No. I was not promised anything.

10,211. Were not you told, "Come on such a day, "and we will see whether we can make it all right," or something to that effect?—(No answer.)

10,212. (Mr. Biron.) What was said to you?—Something was said.

10,213. Was it something that persuaded you to vote?—He asked me to go and vote for Mr. Stracey.

10,214. What did you say to that?—I went along with him.

10,215. You said something about your day's expenses?—I did not. I never said anything about it. I have known Mr. Stanley all my lifetime, and he always behaved very well to me.

10,216. (Mr. Dowdeswell.) And he told you that he would behave well to you?—I thought if I wanted a job, perhaps he would let me have one; perhaps he might give it me.

10,217. If you wanted a job he told you to come to him?—He did not say so.

10,218. Did not you understand that if you wanted some work you could get it?—I thought, perhaps, he would give me a job if I wanted one.

10,219. Was it not more than "perhaps"? Were not you sure of it?—I have spoken the truth.

10,220. Did you not understand from Mr. Stanley that if you wanted a job he would find you one?—No, he did not say anything about that. I thought perhaps he would.

10,221. Standing out as you had been for your day's expenses, Mr. Stanley asked you for your vote; and you said, "I want my day's expenses"?—I wanted it, but I did not ask for it.

10,222. Did you not tell Mr. Stanley that you wanted your day's expenses?—I did not.

10,223. Did not Mr. Stanley say he would be a friend to you, or something of the sort, or that you could have a day's work when you wanted it, or when you asked for a day's work?—No.

10,224. What did occur? He may not have spoken, you may have have spoken; but it is quite clear that something did occur?—I have spoke the truth, what I know.

10,225. But not the whole truth?—Yes, I have.

10,226. There is something more?—I beg your pardon, there is nothing.

10,227. Something more must have passed?—That is all I know of.

10,228. Did not something pass between you and Mr. Stanley? You spoke to Mr. Stanley, or Mr. Stanley spoke to you about work?—No.

10,229. What passed between you? Come tell us.—I thought that perhaps he would give me a job if I wanted one. That is what I said.

10,230. That was said?—Yes.

10,231. Well, that was said?—No. That was not said. I thought in my own mind that he would give me a job if I wanted one.

10,232. Surely you conveyed that to Mr. Stanley, if you obliged him?—No.

10,233. Did not you say something of this sort: "Well, sir, you know if I vote for you, you must "give me a job when I want one"?—No.

10,234. If that was passing in your mind why did you not say it?—(No answer.)

10,235. You were standing out for your expenses. A gentleman comes up to you and asks you for your vote. Do you mean to say you went right to the polling place and polled when he asked you?—Yes, I did. I went up there.

10,236. Did you not say to him, "Perhaps, sir, if "I vote for you, when I want a job of work you will "give me one, or find me one"?—No.

10,237. Did he say it?—No.

10,238. What did he say, and what did you say? You know there is something that you are keeping back. From your manner it is as apparent as the sun in the sky?—Not anything.

10,239. Not a word?—No.

10,240. Do you really, upon your oath, mean to say that not a word passed between you and Mr. Stanley?—Not about anything about money.

10,241. You may feel that a sense of honour will prevent you from saying what Mr. Stanley said, but you are upon your oath, and that supersedes all those notions of honour and every other consideration. An oath is the highest consideration that you can have, and you ought to speak the truth simply, without fear of Mr. Stanley or anybody else.—I have spoke the truth.

10,242. What passed between you and Mr. Stanley? I have asked you two or three times.—I have told you.

10,243. Tell me what did pass between you and Mr. Stanley. If this matter were to be discussed before a jury they would decide it in a moment?—I say he met me in the market and asked me to go.

10,244. Did he come up to you and say, "Come and "vote," and did you go and vote without another word?—He asked me whether I had voted. I said "No." Then I walked up Saint Stephen's with him, and went and voted.

10,245. Did he not ask you for whom you were going to vote? Now consider.—Yes. He said, I think, "Come along with me and vote for Sir Henry "Stracey."

10,246. Did you say you wanted your expenses?—No.

10,247. Why did you not say you wanted your expenses, if you had been wanting them and thinking about them all day?—I never asked him for it. He never offered me anything.

10,248. Did you not say that you wanted your expenses?—No.

10,249. Did you say you wanted a day's wages ?—No.

10,250. Nothing of the sort?—I cannot say any more than what I have said.

10,251. I am quite sure it is far better for you to go and well consider, before you finally commit yourself to that statement. Now go and think it over. It is a great pity that you cannot answer in a straightforward manner ?—Sir, I have told the truth.

James Wiseman sworn and examined. J. Wiseman.

10,252. (Mr. Mansfield.) What are you by trade ?—A porter.

10,253. For whom did you vote at the last election ?—Mr. Stracey.

10,254. At what hour in the day ?—Between 3 and 4 o'clock.

10,255. What had you been doing all the morning ?—I was at work.

10,256. Where were you working ?—Angel Street, Crook's Place.

10,257. When did you get away from work ?—Not till 3 o'clock.

10,258. Did not you go out to dinner ?—No.

10,259. Nor to breakfast either ?—Yes ; but not to dinner.

10,260. When you were out at breakfast you could have gone to the polling place ?—I got my breakfast between 9 and 10.

10,261. Why did you not vote then ?—Because I had not time. I had to go back and move the furniture.

10,262. Had you been canvassed for your vote ?—Yes.

10,263. Had you promised it ?—No.

10,264. Who canvassed you ?—I don't know. There were too many come.

10,265. For whom were you canvassed — Tillett, Stracey, or Russell ?—I was canvassed for Tillett.

10,266. Were you canvassed for Stracey ?—No.

10,267. Nor for Russell ?—No.

10,268. What answer did you make when you were canvassed for Tillett ?—I was not at home.

10,269. On the day of the election did anybody come to you ?—Yes, Mr. Fisher came for me.

10,270. Did you go in a cab with him ?—No.

10,271. Did he walk down with you ?—No.

10,272. Did he offer you anything ?—No.

10,273. Did anybody else go up with you ?—Yes, an old gentleman living there in Crook's Place, six or seven doors from me.

10,274. (Mr. Biron.) Snowley ?—I think his name is Snowley.

10,275. Come, you were paid 5*s.* at the "Rose" you know, after polling ?—I went in and got a glass of ale.

10,276. You need not go into the glass of ale. You were paid 5*s.* for voting. That is the long and short of your story. Was it not so ?—It was so. Nobody gave me no money. It was laid on the table.

William Smy sworn and examined. W. Smy.

10,277. (Mr. Biron.) What are you ? — A horse shower and colt-breaker.

10,278. For whom did you vote at the last election ?—Mr. Stracey.

10,279. At what time in the day ?—I suppose it might be a little after 3. It might be before 3, I cannot say for five minutes.

10,280. Why did you not vote earlier ?—Because I was not at home.

10,281. What were you doing ? — I was in the country after my business.

10,282. At what time did you leave in the morning ?—6 o'clock.

10,283. What part of the country were you in ?—Mulbarton.

10,284. That is about five miles off ?—Yes.

10,285. Who came to fetch you ? — Nobody. I fetched myself. My horse fetched me.

10,286. Had any messenger come to say that you were wanted ?—No.

10,287. Had you been canvassed before ?—No. I was never canvassed by no one.

10,288. What brought you up to Mulbarton ?—My business.

10,289. What sort of business ?—I had to take a horse over there.

10,290. What kept you there ?—I had to stop till the man met me that had to come and meet the horse.

10,291. Who was that ? — I cannot tell you his name.

10,292. Whose horse was it ?—A horse my governor had sold.

10,293. Who is your governor ? — Mr. Robinson. He is one of them. I have lots of different gentlemen I work for.

10,294. Who was the one that sent you out with the horse that morning ?—I went from Mr. Robinson with it.

10,295. To whom were you to deliver it ?—I was to give it to the man that met me. Who that was I don't know.

10,296. What time did you give up the horse to him ?—I cannot say. It might be 12 before he met me.

10,297–8. What did you do then ?—Came back again.

10,299. Where did you go then ?—I went home to dinner.

10,300. Did anybody call on you at dinner time ?—No, not a soul.

10,301. Did not anybody ask you to vote that day ?—No.

10,302. Had you promised to vote for Sir Henry Stracey ?—No.

10,303. When did you make up your mind to vote for Sir Henry Stracey ?—Not till 3 o'clock time.

10,304. What occurred at 3 o'clock to induce you to make up your mind ?—Well, I did make up my mind then.

10,305. No doubt ; but how came you to make up your mind ?—I did not think of voting for neither party. I had got cards from all the parties, and I did not think of voting at all. That is the truth.

10,306. How came you to vote for Sir Henry Stracey ?—I made up my mind all in a moment, and I went and voted for Stracey.

10,307. What occurred to induce you to make up your mind ?—My mind made me.

10,308. What did you get for voting ?—Nothing at all.

10,309. What did you get after you voted ? — Nothing at all.

10,310. Did you not get anything from anybody ?—No, not a single soul.

10,311. Did not somebody promise you something ?—No, I wish they had.

10,312. You would have taken it fast enough if they had ?—I didn't get not a farthing ; not even a glass of beer, not before or after.

10,313. (Mr. Dowdeswell.) You never were a voter before ?—No, never.

TENTH DAY.

WILLIAM CHILDS sworn and examined.

W. Childs.

30 Aug. 1869.

10,314. (Mr. Dowdeswell.) Are you a voter?—Yes.

10,315. What is your trade or business?—A horse clipper and breaker.

10,316. For whom did you vote at the last election;—Sir Henry Stracey.

10,317. At what time in the day did you vote?—Some time after 3. I can't tell.

10,318. Why did you not vote before?—I was clipping a horse that day.

10,319. Where?—The "White Horse," in Crook's Place.

10,320. At what time in the morning did you begin?—About 8 o'clock. He was wanted at half-past 2. I promised Mr. Fraser he should have it at half-past 2.

10,321. Had you been canvassed before?—Yes.

10,322. By whom?—I cannot tell you.

10,323. On which side?—Only by the Tories.

10,324. Had you promised your vote?—No. I had not been at home. I had never seen anybody, not till the election day.

10,325. Had you never seen anybody about your vote?—No, they had called at my house, but I did not know. I had not seen them.

10,326. Have you ever had a vote before?—No.

10,327. Did you get anything for voting?—No.

10,328. Were you promised anything?—No.

10,329. Or have you been paid anything since?—No.

W. Varvel.

WILLIAM VARVEL sworn and examined.

10,330. (Mr. Mansfield.) What are you by trade?—A butcher.

10,331. For whom did you vote at the last election?—Stracey and Russell.

10,332. At what hour?—I think it was half-past 3.

10,333. What made you vote so late?—My business called me away that day.

10,334. Where were you?—In the country. I was obliged to go to a place called Newton that day.

10,335. How far off is that?—About seven miles.

10,336. Did you vote directly you came back?—No. I got my dinner. I did not intend to vote at all.

10,337. What made you vote at last?—I was asked by several persons, but I said I would not vote. I determined to do so; and I voted for Russell and Stracey.

10,338. Why? Had you customers on both sides?—I have very good customers.

10,339. Had you voted before?—No. That was the first time I had voted.

10,340. (Mr. Dowdeswell.) You received nothing for voting?—No.

10,341. Are you sure of that?—Yes.

10,342. Were you promised anything?—No.

10,343. By either side?—No.

S. Allen.

SOPHIRA ALLEN sworn and examined.

10,344. (Mr. Dowdeswell.) Will you tell us what you know about money which was provided for the last election of members of parliament for this city?—I cannot tell anything about it, because I know nothing about it.

10,345. You know nothing about money having been provided?—Certainly not. I do not think it is the province of a lady to know about money on these occasions.

10,346. Did you receive any money on the day of the election?—I received no money that I know of. I may have received a parcel, but no money that I know of.

10,347. You received a parcel?—I received a parcel.

10,348. Did you receive two bags?—Yes. The parcel consisted of two bags.

10,349. What did they contain?—I don't know. I did not ask. I was not told.

10,350. Were they heavy bags?—They were as heavy as shot bags.

10,351. They were heavy shot bags?—I should think they might be shot bags.

10,352. Have you any doubt that those bags contained money? I am speaking now as to your own opinion.—I did not think that I had occasion to make any inquiries about it. I was asked to take charge of a parcel, and I did not ask what it was for or what was in it, as I always do. I made no inquiries about it; and I had no occasion to do, because it was not my affair in the least.

10,353. Although you made no inquiry, they were heavy, like shot bags. You were asked to take charge of them; and it was not likely you would be asked to take charge of shot?—Yes, if my husband was not at home I might be asked to take charge of anything.

10,354. When you looked at the bags did you not know, or had you not an idea, of what was contained in them?—No, not the least. I did not open them. I could not tell what was in them without opening the bags.

10,355. Did you feel them?—No, I do not remember about feeling them particularly. Of course I held them by the cover, and of course I must have felt the cover.

10,356. It was very heavy?—Not extraordinarily heavy. It might have been samples of corn or anything. I cannot tell what it was. There were two bags.

10,357. Was it in brown paper?—No, I don't think so.

10,358. Was it in canvass bags?—I think they were like shot bags, such as sporting men make use of.

10,359. Were there two bags in brown paper?—No, there were two bags.

10,360. Were they tied together?—No, they were not tied together. They were two small bags.

10,361. Tied at the neck?—They may have been. I did not look into them. I knew they were fastened. I do not know what it was.

10,362. Where did you take them to?—I put one in my pocket, I think. I suppose I took them upstairs.

10,363. Where did you put them when you had got them upstairs?—I had one in my pocket. Of course I did not keep them. I gave them up.

10,364. To whom did you give them up?—You know, don't you?

10,365. Where did you put them upstairs?—I took them upstairs. I had one in my pocket.

10,366. One in your pocket and one in your hand?—Yes.

10,367. What did you do with them when you got them upstairs?—I gave them up.

10,368. Were you told to do anything with them?—I think I was asked to give them to a gentleman.

10,369. I suppose you can tell me the name of the gentleman?—Yes, I can.

10,370. What is his name?—Mr. Howse Allen.

10,371. After you had taken them upstairs did you give them to Mr. Howse Allen?—I gave them to him.

10,372. When did you give them to Mr. Howse Allen?—It was between our usual lunch and dinner hour. It was just after lunch.

10,373. How long had you received them before you gave them to him ?—I gave them to him at once, directly.

10,374. You went upstairs directly and gave them to him ?—I went upstairs and gave them to him.

10,375. Who gave them to you ?—You know who gave them to me, do you not.

10,376. No, I do not ?—Mr. Webster gave them to me.

10,377. Who is he ?—He is a patient of my husband's.

10,378. Is he the landlord of the "Maid's Head" ?—Yes, he is.

10,379. Had you any communication with your husband about them before ?—No, not any.

10,380. You had no idea that they were about to be given to you ?—Not the least. My husband never consults me about anything of that kind. Supposing he had known anything about it he would not have told me. I cannot tell whether he knew anything about it at all or not.

10,381. When Mr. Webster gave them to you what did he say ?—He asked me to give them to Mr. Howse Allen.

10,382. Did he say anything besides ?—I do not remember the conversation, it is long ago. There was very little said. He gave me the parcels, and asked me to give them to Mr. Howse Allen.

10,383. Did he say you were to take care of them, because they were very valuable?—No, he did not. He was gone directly.

10,384. Was Mr. Howse Allen in the house at the time ?—He was lunching with us.

10,385. Did Mr. Webster ask whether Mr. Howse Allen was there ?—I forget entirely what passed. He was only there a moment. He gave me the parcels, and asked me to give them to Mr. Howse Allen. It is so long ago I could not remember. It was in November.

10,386. Have you any doubt that they contained money ?—I never make any useless guesses. I didn't intend to mix myself up with that affair. I did not want to guess. I do not know the least in the world. They might have been peas. I cannot tell what they were.

10,387. They did not feel like peas ?—They were about as heavy as good heavy peas would be. I cannot tell what they were. They might have been iron pills ; I cannot tell. It is imposible for me to say what they were. I should not wish to make any guess about it. I have nothing to do with elections, and I did not mix up with it.

10,388. Did not you form an opinion in your own mind ?—I might have thought about half a hundred things, but I do not wish to take up the attention and time of the court about it.

10,389. You did think, did you not, that they contained money ?—I have already said what I intend to do about it.

10,390. You did think that they contained money ?—I have already said what I intend to do. I did not inquire at all.

10,391. Did not you think they contained money ?—If I had wished to know I should have asked Mr. Webster ; but I did not wish to know anything about it. It was no affair of mine.

10,392. (Mr. Biron.) You did not wish to know ?—That has nothing to do with it ; it was not my affair and I did not ask. At any time if any parcel was brought and I was asked to take care of it I should not ask what was in it.

JOSEPH ALLEN sworn and examined.

J. Allen.

10,393. (Mr. Mansfield.) Did you take an active part in the last election ?—I did.

10,394. Will you be good enough to tell me what you know about the proceedings on the day of the polling ?—I canvassed voters, and successfully so.

10,395. Were you going about the whole day ?—Yes.

10,396. Going to different voters' houses ?—Yes.

10,397. I think you accompanied some voters to the poll ?—I met a lot of persons that day.

10,398. And you took a good many voters to the poll yourself ?—I did.

10,399. Did you go with them on foot ?—One or two I went with on foot, and others I took in a private carriage.

10,400. Can you tell us how many you took up in the course of the day ?—I do not know how many ; a great many, as many as I could.

10,401. Were those men that you had canvassed before ?—Yes, many of them were.

10,402. Men who had promised ?—Of those I took up the larger number were men who had promised.

10,403. But there were a good many men who were doubtful too ?—There always are at every election.

10,404. Do you know a gentleman named Howse Allen ?—Yes.

10,405. Is he a relation of yours ?—No, none at all.

10,406. Was he at your house on the day of the election ?—He was.

10,407. Do you recollect what part he took in the election ?—I saw him there, and he was taking an active part.

10,408. Did you give him any instructions what to do ?—I told him he was to work and to do all he could.

10,409. In what way was he to work ?—By bringing up voters.

10,410. Do you know that Mr. Howse Allen received some money ?—I do not know.

10,411. Did he receive a parcel ?—I do not know.

10,412. He was lunching in your house, was he not ?—He was.

10,413. Are you not aware that he received a parcel ?—No.

10,414. Two parcels or two bags ?—That I do not know. I never saw him receive any.

10,415. Are you not aware that two bags were handed over to him ?—I have only heard it by report, I cannot speak to the fact myself.

10,416. You were in court just now, were you not ?—Yes.

10,417. And you heard the evidence that was given by Mrs. Allen ?—Yes.

10,418. I suppose that that evidence is correct ?—I should be a brute if I did not believe my wife.

10,419. You were aware before, were you not, that these bags were handed over to Mr. Howse Allen ?—How should I be.

10,420. You had heard it before, had you not ?—I had heard reports.

10,421. Had you heard that in conversation at home ?—No ; we do not talk of electioneering matters at home.

10,422. (Mr. Dowdeswell.) Do let us have a little candour. What instructions did you give to Mr. Howse Allen about the money which he received ; that is a straightforward question, and we expect a gentleman in your position to answer it with perfect frankness and fairness ?—I can only speak as to facts, I cannot speak as to surmises ; as to instructions which I gave to Mr. Howse Allen, they were simply that if he had some money he was to distribute it. I will not speak to anything except facts.

10,423. You told Mr. Howse Allen that if he had some money he was to distribute it ?—Certainly.

10,424. Had you any idea that he was going to receive money ?—I had an idea of it.

10,425. How did you arrive at that idea ?—From arrangements which I had made myself.

10,426. What arrangements were those ?—The arrangements were that Mr. Howse Allen was to receive 200*l.*

TENTH DAY.

J. Allen.

30 Aug. 1869.

10,427. With whom did you make that arrangement?—With Mr. Edward Stracey.

10,428. And did you make arrangements accordingly that he should have the 200*l.*?—Certainly.

10,429. What arrangements did you make?—I understood that Mr. Webster was to bring 200*l.* to my house.

10,430. Do you recollect the money being brought?—No.

10,431. You say that you gave Mr. Howse Allen instructions to distribute the money; how was he to distribute it?—He was to give 100*l.* to Mr. Robert Wiseman, 40*l.* to Mr. Hulme, and 60*l.* to a man of the name of Bunn.

10,432. I suppose that that was for the purpose of bribery?—For stirring up the voters.

10,433. When did the first communication about the money take place?—It was between 12 and 1 o'clock, I fancy; that was with Mr. Edward Stracey.

10,434. I suppose you were not at home when the money was brought?—No, I was not.

10,435. Was anybody there besides Mr. Edward Stracey when he spoke to you upon the subject?—There were several gentlemen standing about. I spoke to him in the street.

10,436. Where was it that the conversation took place; was it in the committee room?—No. I spoke to Mr. Edward Stracey first in the street about it, and then we stood by the "Maid's Head" and spoke about it; but the money was not procured then. There was no money procured at that time.

10,437. In what room was it in the "Maid's Head"?—I think it was in the yard that I spoke to him, or it might be outside in the street; but Mr. Edward Stracey did not feel anxious to do anything of the kind at that time.

10,438. He was reluctant, and felt a hesitation about it?—Yes.

10,439. Did you speak to him again then?—Yes; we inquired how the polling was going on. We did not know whether it would be necessary to spend money. We thought we might do without it, but we wished to be perfectly sure.

10,440. Where did the second discussion to which you now allude take place?—I saw him again near the "Maid's Head" a second time.

10,441. You had been in the committee room in the meantime, had you not?—No.

10,442. Then it was when you saw him the second time in the street that the arrangement was made?—Yes.

10,443. You had spoken to other people, I suppose, in the meantime?—I had seen Mr. Howse Allen; I met him in the street.

10,444. And did Mr. Howse Allen say it was necessary to spend money?—We thought it was advisable.

10,445. When did you get the state of the poll which induced you to speak a second time to Mr. Edward Stracey?—We heard of it in the market place.

10,446. Was Mr. Edward Stracey with you then?—Yes; he went with me into the market place, and then I saw it again.

10,447. Was anybody else present?—There were lots of people in the market place.

10,448. But was anybody taking part in the conversation?—The conversation was principally between myself and Mr. Edward Stracey.

10,449. That implies a little more than a conversation merely between Mr. Edward Stracey and yourself?—Mr. Howse Allen was there part of the time.

10,450. And did he join in the conversation?—I think he saw Mr. Edward Stracey, but whether he spoke to him or not I do not know. The conversation, as I have told you, was chiefly between Mr. Edward Stracey and me.

10,451. And who else was there?—We inquired of several people, but did not tell them anything about money.

10,452. Did you not consult any other persons as to whether it was necessary or expedient to spend money, or did you act upon your own responsibility?—I acted upon my own responsibility. I urged it upon Mr. Edward Stracey. I thought we should cap the election.

10,453. Do I understand you to say that you did not speak to anybody else and consult them?—I saw other parties about.

10,454. Who were the other parties to whom you spoke, and with whom you consulted as to whether it would be necessary to spend money or not?—The only other person that knew anything about it, but who did not do anything, was Mr. Arthur Bignold.

10,455. He did not take any active part in it?—No.

10,456. But he knew about it?—Yes.

10,457. Did you speak to him about it?—Yes, I spoke to him about it.

10,458. And what did he say?—He thought it was not a bad idea, but thought it was a dangerous one.

10,459. You were very active afterwards in the course of the day?—Yes, all electioneerers are.

10,460. You were, in fact, a very warm supporter of Sir Henry Stracey's?—Yes.

10,461. You went about afterwards getting up voters as fast as you could?—Yes.

10,462. It was, in fact, the pinch of the matter?—It was necessary to go to work directly; we found that they were getting ahead. We began to work at 11 o'clock, or at 10 o'clock perhaps.

10,463. You found a number of men, did you not, who wanted a day's pay?—Some of them did, and some only wanted a glass. I do not think that anybody wanted half a sovereign; I never heard them say so. Some wanted just a glass of beer, or at least a glass of beer would make them vote if they had it. They did not all ask for it.

10,464. Almost a feather, in fact, would turn the scale with them?—No, they were all for Sir Henry Stracey, but they look upon an election day as a jollification day, and that they are out for a spree.

10,465. And they wanted something in the shape of money?—They wanted something to wet their whistles.

10,466. Some of them wanted their day's wages, did they not?—Several did; they did not want any more. They wanted to be paid for their loss of time.

10,467. And 5*s.* was amply sufficient for them?—Yes, amply sufficient.

10,468. That you found by the manner of the men?—Yes, by their manner more than by anything they said.

10,469. There was a reluctance to promise?—They were quite willing to vote for Sir Henry Stracey, but we were afraid that they would vote too late; the object was rather to urge them to go up to the poll in time. We had no doubt at all about their voting for Sir Henry Stracey, but we were afraid that they would go up too late.

10,470. What they were to have was to be used, in fact, as a sort of spur?—Certainly.

10,471. I believe that in the course of the day you used your own spurs?—Yes.

10,472. How many men did you spur?—I did not give any man any bribe.

10,473. But you said they should have it?—No.

10,474. Not a bribe, but a spur?—No; I did not promise any man anything. I told them I could not.

10,475. Did you tell them where they could get it?—No, certainly not.

10,476. You say that you spurred men; how did you spur them?—I told them to go up and vote.

10,477. That is not spurring them?—The people that I took up were not people who wanted any coin, they simply wanted to be looked after. There are a great many people who will go and vote if you will only drive down for them.

10,478. The men that you took up wanted a little douceur ?—Not any of those, I think, that I took up myself.

10,479. You persuaded a good many to go up and vote, did you not ?—I saw a lot of voters standing about, and I told them to go up and vote. I talked to them, and some of them began to stir, and they would soon find out, if there was any money, where it was.

10,480. Did you indicate to them in any way where it was ?—No, it was left for the other parties to do that.

10,481. Were you at the "Bull and Butcher" on the election day ?—Where is that ? Is that where the Conservative committee room was ?

10,482. Yes.—I just looked in there.

10,483. Were you not there several times ?—No, I only just looked in there.

10,484. Did you see Mr. Stanley there ?— No, I do not think I saw him the whole day.

10,485. Had you no conversation with him on that day ?—Not that I recollect.

10,486. Do you know Inspector Clarke ?—Yes.

10,487. The inspector of nuisances ?—Yes.

10,488. He was very active with you, was he not ?—He was not with me that day ; he was a very active man.

10,489. Do you know John Allen, of the "Evening Gun" ?—Yes.

10,490. Did you call upon him in the morning ?—I did.

10,491. Did he tell you that he wanted a little money ?—He did not tell me so, but I could see from his manner that he did, because he half promised to come and then slipped out.

10,492. And got away ?—Yes.

10,493. You perfectly understood what he wanted ?—Yes ; his wife wanted him to come and vote.

10,494. Do you know a person named Huggins, a decorator ?—Yes.

10,495. And a man named Taylor ?—Yes.

10,496. Did you not speak to him about Allen ?—No.

10,497. Did you not mention to anybody that he wanted some inducement to vote ?—No, because I saw him, I should think, between 9 and 10 o'clock in the morning, and I had not then contemplated doing anything.

10,498. But later in the day, did you not speak to somebody about Allen ?—I have not the slightest recollection of doing so. I never saw Huggins that day, I think, and Taylor I only saw as he was going up to poll.

10,499. Did you see Allen afterwards that day ?—Not that I can recollect.

10,500. Did not you hear that he got half a sovereign ?—I heard about the time of the election petition that he had been circulating tales, and had been telling a lot of lies.

10,501. Did you not hear at that time that he had got half a sovereign for voting ?—No ; and I never knew of anyone getting half a sovereign. I never heard that he had a single farthing. I do not know whether he voted or not.

10,502. Although you may not have mentioned it to Taylor, did not you mention Allen's name to anybody ?—I do not think I did ; if I did I have forgotten it.

10,503. You may have mentioned it and forgotten that you did so ?—Yes, but I do not think I did.

10,504. Do you know Mackley, of the "Marquis of Granby" ?—Yes, I know him by sight only.

10,505. You went there that afternoon, did you not ?—I went there just before 4 o'clock.

10,506. There were between 40 and 50 voters there, were there not ?—No, it was nearly empty ; there was one man, or there might perhaps be two men in there. One man, I think, had not voted, and he would not vote, and I left him, finding it was no good talking to him.

10,507. Did you pay for any beer at the "Marquis of Granby" that afternoon ?—No.

10,508. Did you not pay for some beer that had been had or that was to be had ?—No.

10,509. Did you promise to pay for any ?—No.

10,510. (Mr. Biron.) Did you leave any money there ?—No. I had no money in my pocket, and I did not know the people well enough to order beer ; in fact it was a Radical house, and I dare not order them to put up anything. They would go and split directly.

10,511. (Mr. Dowdeswell.) You thought it would not do to do that personally ?—Certainly.

10,512. You were too prudent for that ?—I hope so.

10,513. Did you pay or promise to pay for any beer on that day, or have you since paid for any ?—I have since paid for some beer.

10,514. At what places have you paid for beer ?—I paid for some beer in St. Martin's at Palace, at the "Cupid and Bow," in Palace Plain, and I paid for some beer at Warnes', at the "Horse Shoes."

10,515. Any other place ?—I do not think I did. I went into the "Ribs of Beef," and paid for something for myself. I think those I have mentioned were the only two places.

10,516. The "Three Pigeons" ? — I know the "Three Pigeons."

10,517. Did you pay for any beer there ?—No.

10,518. What did you pay at the first of those places ?—I think it was about a sovereign.

10,519. And how much at the other ?—I forget ; it might be 3*l.* or 4*l.*

10,520. That was for beer supplied to voters on the day of the election ?—Yes. I did not know of it at the time, but they came afterwards, and I paid it. They knew that a small amount like that I should reimburse them for ; they did it of their own accord ; they knew me well enough for that.

10,521. And there are a great number of other gentlemen in Norwich, I suppose, they would know in the same way ?—I do not know ; I should hope so.

10,522. You have also had a number of claims made upon you besides those, have you not ?—No, I do not think so.

10,523. Since the election have not people come and asked you, as one of the party, for sums of money to pay for beer supplied to electors, or for money paid to electors, and so forth ?—The only one that I think I paid was Mr. Taylor, on Palace Plain.

10,524. What is he ?—He is a carpenter.

10,525. What did you pay him ?—Between 4*l.* and 5*l.*

10,526. What for ? — I do not know ; for work done.

10,527. (Mr. Biron.) For work done on the election day ?—He simply asked for the money, and he had it.

10,528. For making things smooth ?—Yes, I hope so ; planing them up.

10,529. Was that the only claim ?—Yes, as far as I recollect.

10,530. (Mr. Dowdeswell.) You know Warnes' house, the "Ship," in Cowgate Street, do you not ?—No.

10,531. You know the house kept by Warnes, do you not ?—No, I do not recollect it.

10,532. Do you not recollect being at a house in Cowgate Street about 3 o'clock on the election day, a public house kept by a person you perhaps do not know, when Inspector Clarke was there ?—No, I never saw Inspector Clarke that day that I know of.

10,533. I call your attention particularly to this house.—I do not think I was in any public house in Cowgate Street at all ; I was in that street about 4 o'clock. The only public house that I went into was the "King's Arms," and there was nobody there.

10,534. But going into the "King's Arms" and finding nobody there, did you not go into another house, a house kept by Warnes?—No; I occupied myself in watching young Mr. Tillyard, who, I thought, was trying to influence a voter, and I said to the voter, "You may jnmp into this fly and go and "vote, and I will not go up with you, but you shall "go and vote free." My impression is that he would have gone, but young Mr. Tillyard was looking at him very hard, and I thought I would stay there to see that he should not go and vote unless he voted free.

10,535. You went into Warnes' house about 3 o'clock on the day of the election?—What is the sign?

10,536. The "Ship," in Cowgate Street.—I never went in.

10,537. Do you know a person of the name of Stamp?—There was a young man of that name. I think that he went to Manchester, but I do not recollect anything about him on the election day; he used to be at Mr. Gedge's office. He is the only man that I know of that name.

10,538. Did not you bet five to one with some men that they would not vote for Stracey?—No.

10,539. You heard some people doing it, did you not?—No, I do not think I did; not the whole day.

10,540. Not at all?—Not at all.

10,541. Did you hear a bet made about the election?—I do not think I did; if so it was between two gentlemen as to whether Sir Henry Stracey would win.

10,542. Did you not hear of odds being offered that men would not vote for Stracey?—No.

10,543. Do you know a person named Jonathan Flowers?—Yes.

10,544. Did you say anything to him about beer on that day?—No. He was with me when I went into the "Ribs of Beef," but I said nothing to him about beer.

10,545. Possibly you may not have said anything to him about beer, but did you not say at the "Ribs of Beef," that the men were to have some beer?—No, I do not recollect that I did. I do not think that I said so at all.

10,546. Did you not, in his hearing, say something about it?—No, I have no recollection of it.

10,547. Flowers was with you?—He was in the street, and just called me in to speak to these men. I found they wanted beer, and then I left. I thought they were coming, but they did not come.

10,548. How many men were there?—Two or three.

10,549. Not more?—No, I think not; it is a very small room.

10,550. Flowers called you in?—He said he saw there were some people there, and he said, "Let the "Doctor come in."

10,551. You went in and saw the men, and found they wanted beer?—Yes, and Flowers came out with me.

10,552. Did you not say to Flowers, when you had got some little way, that they might have some beer, and did not Flowers go back?—No.

10,553. Just consider?—I am certain I did not; it wants no consideration.

10,554. Did you see the man Allen at the "Ribs of Beef"?—They were altogether in the room, sitting on the sill drinking some beer.

10,555. Do you know a man named Bond?—I do not recollect him. I may know a man of that name.

10,556. Do you recollect being in a cab with young Mr. Stracey when you met Captain Crow?—No. Young Mr. Stracey was not with me when I met Captain Crow.

10,557. Do you recollect being in a cab with young Mr. Stracey?—Yes; young Mr. Stracey and I went up into the market place in a cab, but we did not meet Captain Crow. I met Captain Crow on the hill.

10,558. Do you recollect two voters getting into the cab with young Mr. Stracey, you remaining behind and speaking to a man named Lingwood?—No. The market hill was where I met Captain Crow, and when I went with young Mr. Stracey no voters got into the cab with him.

10,559. Did you see him put any voters into a cab?—No, I did not.

10,560. Do you recollect seeing a man named Lingwood?—No; I do not know that I know the man.

10,561. Did you not give him something?—No; I never gave a man anything that day.

10,562. Are you certain of that?—Certain; not in the shape of a bribe.

10,563. You went to the "Pigeons," you say?—At Charing Cross. Yes, I went there.

10,564. Did you see Mr. Hulme there?—Yes.

10,565. Had he not a bag of money with him?—No.

10,566. Did you take one?—No; I went for him to come to my house for the money that he was to have.

10,567. He was at the "Three Pigeons," was he?—Yes; that was their committee room.

10,568. And you went to tell him to come and get the money?—Yes.

10,569. Did you tell Mr. Wiseman too?—Yes.

10,570. And the other person?—Yes; I ordered Mr. Bunn to come up to my house.

10,571. I want to know whether you know, besides what you have told us, of any man being paid a bribe for voting at that election?—I have only heard reports.

10,572. But besides reports has anybody given you information as to any person who has been paid for voting on that occasion?—I have only heard the ordinary reports, casual reports.

10,573. Beyond mere report have you not heard anything with respect to this very sum of 200*l.*; did you not hear how the money had been distributed?—No; I never ask those kind of questions.

10,574. It is hardly prudent to do so?—It would be most imprudent to ask a question like that.

10,575. It is the best way to keep those things quite quiet?—Yes, perfectly quiet.

10,576. Did you hear of any voter receiving money from anybody?—I have heard reports about the Liberal side.

10,577. What reports?—I have heard that the beer score at the "Marquis of Granby" has been paid for since the petition, and that it was paid by Mr. Womersley. I heard that there was a large beer score, and that that was rectified in some way or other

10,578. Did you hear the amount mentioned?—I heard that there were two barrels.

10,579. Have you heard anything else?—I heard that young Mr. Tillett was very busy on the Quay side.

10,580. Did you hear the names of any person mentioned in connexion with his having been busy?—I think there was a person named Clarke; I am not certain.

10,581. Was he a person operated upon or operating?—Operated upon.

18,582. Anybody else?—I have heard that Mr. Tillett himself promised some one the Old Man's Hospital.

10,583. From whom did you hear that?—I do not recollect now, but I have heard it confidently reported and confidently believed.

10,584. Can you tell me the name of any person who has been promised?—I do not recollect any name now.

10,585. What is the entire amount of claims which have been made against you, or sums which you have been requested to pay on account of the election?—I think I have told you all. There might have been a few shillings elsewhere, but they were not spent for voters, just a little beer some women had.

10,586. Have you told us all that you paid that you recollect at present ?—Yes, all the claims; those are the only claims I have had made since.

10,587. Did any man come and ask you to pay anything for having voted ?—No.

10,588. (Mr. Biron) None of those men you took up to the poll ?—No.

10,589. (Mr. Dowdeswell.) Have they not come and asked you to pay them something for what they did for you on the election day ?—No, and if they did, they have not had anything. I do not recollect it; they may have said they had done the party good, and hoped they would be remembered some day if there was a job for them.

10,590. You do not recollect, all you can say is that they may have said it ?—Yes.

10,591. Nothing has been paid them ?—No.

10,592. Had you any consultation, or anything of that sort before the polling day, as to the mode in which the election was to be conducted ?—It was understood that it was to be carried on upon pure principles. Sir Henry Stracey distinctly stated so.

10,593. Was any provision made, or was there any suggestion about what should be done in case of an emergency ?—No, there was no provision at all, this 200*l.* was an impromptu thing ; I believe none of the heads of the parties knew of it until long after, and that simply by rumour.

10,594. (Mr. Mansfield.) Not until after the poll was closed ?—And not even then. They did not know of it until perhaps they hear it now ; they may have heard rumours, but they certainly were not cognisant of anything.

10,595. (Mr. Dowdeswell.) Was it not talked over between you and anybody else as to what should be done in the event of there being a pressure ?—We did not think we should want it.

10,596. But there might have been, you could not be certain. Was there not some conversation as to whether some provision should be made for it, or that the party should be ready to meet it ?—No, I mentioned it to Mr. Arthur Bignold ; it was just mentioned, but no provision was made.

10,597. You had before the election day mentioned that matter to Mr Arthur Bignold ?—Just privately.

10,598. Of course that was a matter which would be kept private. If there was a pressure, you said you ought to meet it ?—No, I said " We ought really to " have something," and he said it was too dangerous a game to play.

10,599. Was anybody present besides Mr. Arthur Bignold when that was spoken about ?—No.

10,600. I am speaking of before the election ?—Yes.

10,601. Was it a Saturday when that matter was discussed ?—I am sure I do not know what day it was.

10,602. Did the conversation occur in your house ?—Yes, in my house. I saw Mr. Arthur Bignold.

10,603. It was understood, I suppose, that it was necessary ?—No, it was not at all.

10,604. It was talked of between you and Mr. Arthur Bignold ?—Yes.

10,605. You do not know what day ?—No.

10,606. Do you know that Mr. Arthur Bignold after that went up to London before the election ?—I believe he went up to London. I understood he was there.

10,607. And he came for the election ?—I do not know.

10,608. He was down at the election ?—Yes.

10,609. Do you know what he went up to London for ?—No, he has business in London; he is always backwards and forwards.

10,610. Was not the Carlton Club mentioned between you ?—No, never.

10,611. Was it not suggested that means could be got in London to meet that ?—No, I do not know that it was.

10,612. Just reflect; you know that Mr. Arthur Bignold did go up to London ?—Yes, I know he went up to London.

10,613. And made provision for it ?—No, he had not any money with him, and there was no provision.

10,614. Do you not know that there was a sum provided ?—No.

10,615. Have you not heard it ?—It has been talked of since idly, a sort of idle talk ; since you have been here and asked about the Carlton it has created some conversation about it, but I never heard about the Carlton before you have asked about the Carlton, and it appearing in the papers, people have imagined it was provided.

10,616. Have you not heard that Mr. Arthur Bignold had some means provided ?—No.

10,617. Did you hear the contrary ?—No, I have heard nothing.

10,618. You both agreed in the expediency of having some provision against such a contingency ?—We thought it was advisable, but we thought it was dangerous.

10,619. How it was to be made he did not mention to you ?—No.

10,620. You say you settled some claims ; were you asked by anybody to settle them, or was it arranged that you should ?—No, it was arranged with no one, it was my own money.

10,621. Was it not arranged between yourselves that those claims should be paid ?—Only between myself and these men.

10,622. Nobody else ?—No.

10,623. Did not other people say they would bear their quota of what you paid ?—No, not a single soul.

10,624. It came out of your pocket without any understanding with anybody else ?—Yes, any good electioneerer should not mind paying a small claim of that kind.

10,625. He might not, and other people who were warm supporters provided something in the same way, I suppose ?—I know nothing of other people's business.

10,626. You furnished it out of your own pocket ?—Yes, entirely.

10,627. Do you know of any monies being paid beyond those mentioned for the purpose of the election ?—No.

10,628. Do you know of any other money being found for the purpose ?—Yes.

10,629. What other money do you know of ?—I myself have found some more money.

10,630. Did you make a contribution to the fund provided by some independent gentlemen ?—No.

10,631. Then what money did you find besides ?—I gave a cheque that day for 10*l.*

10,632. To whom ?—To Mr. Furse, of Queen Street.

10,633. For what ?—I let him dispose of it.

10,634, Was Mr. Furse making application to different individuals for a like sum ?—No.

10,635. How came you to give it to Mr. Furse ?—I thought him a useful man.

10,636. Was it for the election ?—It was on the day of the election.

10,637. What time in the day ?—A little after 3, or about 3.

10,638. Do you know of any other sum ?—I had a sovereign in my pocket, and I gave that also to Mr. Furse, making 11*l.*

10,639. Do you know of any other sum being provided by anybody else, or by yourself?—There was 10*s.* more, that I gave to some one ; he had no money, and I gave him 10*s.*; it was some man that was working.

10,640. Who was that ?—A man of the name of Bolton, he lives close by me.

10,641. Was he a voter ?—He was a voter, but he

TENTH DAY.

J. Allen.

30 Aug. 1869.

did not want money for his vote, he had been working, and he said, "I have no money in my purse, lend me "a shilling or two," and I gave him 10*s*.

10,642. (Mr. Biron.) For disbursements out of pocket, cabs and so on?—Yes.

10,643. (Mr. Dowdeswell.) Do you know of any other money being provided by anybody else?—No, I do not think there was. I think I have told you all. I do not think that any money was provided elsewhere. I think the 200*l.* and what money I have told you I expended myself was all that was spent; I do not think you will find that there was much more money spent in the city.

10,644. That 200*l.* was done impromptu?—Yes, entirely impromptu, because we knew that Mr. Patteson, and Sir Samuel Bignold, and all those would set their faces against it.

10,645. Are you a member of the Eldon Club?—Yes, certainly.

10,646. Can you give me a list of the members?—The Chairman can give you that.

10,647. Was there any discussion between any members of the Eldon Club as to money being provided?—No.

10,648. Or as to the mode of conducting the election?—Mr. Hulme is a member of the Eldon Club, and he is the only member who would know about it. We do not make those things public.

10,649. Of course not, but you might have had a discussion amongst the members of the club. There are secrets, and secrets which are of course not made public at the time, but which must be made public when the witnesses are called here?—Every man would keep his own secret, I should think.

10,650. When you talked the matter over about providing the fund with Mr. Arthur Bignold, and he said he thought it desirable, did he say whether he would consult with anybody else?—No.

10,651. He did not mention anybody?—No.

10,652. Do you know of his having consulted anybody?—No, I do not. I do not believe that he had provided anything, because there was no money when we wanted it.

19,653. Your conversation with Mr. Edward Stracey was about 1 o'clock?—It was a little after 1; I should say about 1 o'clock; there could be no money got till 3 o'clock. Hulme and this man did not get their money till 3 o'clock.

10,654. That is what I wanted to know; after your conversation with Mr. Stracey did you go off at once for Hulme?—I should think it was nearly half-past 2 before I got to Hulme's.

10,655. After your conversation with Mr. Stracey, and when you had made the arrangement, did you go to see Hulme yourself at once; and send him up?—Yes; the arrangement was not completed till half past 2 or nearly 3 o'clock, because we were afraid, or at least I was afraid, that we were too late to do anything, and I do not think there was much done. I think it was nearly too late for money to get afloat.

10,656. Have you had any account of how the 200*l.* was spent?—No.

10,657. You went and saw Hulme and Wiseman, and the other man?—Yes.

10,658. And told them to come up to Howse Allen?—I told them to come up to my house.

10,659. And ask for Howse Allen?—Yes.

10,660. Did you see either of the three at your house?—I do not think I did; I might have, but if I did I took no notice. I was off elsewhere.

10,661. That arrangement was made close to the "Maid's Head"?—Yes, or at the "Maid's Head," just close by.

10,662. (Mr. Mansfield.) Have you ever been repaid the sum you advanced on the day of the election?—No, and I never expected it.

10,663. You do not know to whom to look for it?—No, I should not have looked to anybody for it.

JOHN HOWSE ALLEN sworn and examined.

J. H. Allen.

10,664. (Mr. Biron.) What are you by profession?—A manufacturer.

10,665. Were you a voter at the last election?—I was.

10,666. And voted, I believe, for Sir Henry Stracey?—Yes, I did.

10,667. Did you take an active part in furthering his candidature?—I did, but purely from a personal interest. I am not a violent partisan, nor do I take any particular interest in politics.

40,668. You were active on his behalf?—I was acting purely with the wish to see Sir Henry Stracey returned.

10,669. Were you about the city on the day of the polling?—Yes.

10,670. And actively engaged in getting up voters?—Yes, I might say I was.

10,671. Did you see Mr. Allen, the doctor, about 1 o'clock, or thereabouts, in the day?—I should think it was about 1 o'clock that I saw him.

10,672. Before lunch time?—Yes, before lunch time.

10,673. I believe you went to his house for lunch?—I did.

10,674. Before that, were you present when he had an interview with Mr. Edward Stracey?—I do not think I was.

10,675. Did you see him talking to Mr. Edward Stracey?—I might have done; I cannot call to mind. I only saw Mr. Edward Stracey, that I remember, once that day.

10,676. When was that?—That, I should think, was about 1 or somewhere about that time.

10,677. Where was that?—Against the "Maid's Head" gate.

10,678. Did you yourself have any conversation with Mr. Edward Stracey?—Yes, I did.

10,679. What was it?—I said to him I thought there were men hanging off for money; he said "Indeed! well, I dare not do anything of the kind, "for if I did my father would never forgive me."

10,680. What did you say to that?—I said nothing more.

10,681. What did you do then?—I did nothing specially then that I can tell you of.

10,682. Did you see Webster at all?—No, I was in the house that day, but had no conversation with him.

10,683. Was it after that you went to Dr. Allen's to lunch?—Yes.

10,684. When there did Dr. Allen tell you that some money would be found?—Yes, he did.

10,685. And he told you if it were brought to you what you were to do with it?—Yes, he did.

10,686. Did he tell you how much money would be found?—He did not name the sum; he said two bags would be given to me.

10,687. Did he tell you how to divide it?—Yes.

10,688. What did he say you were to do with it?—One bag I was to give to Mr. Wiseman, the other bag I was to divide between Mr. Hulme, the chemist, and Mr. Bunn.

10,689. Was it in his own house that he told you this, when you had gone there for lunch?—Yes, it was.

10,690. After lunch were you upstairs?—Yes.

10,691. Were two bags brought to you?—Yes.

10,692. Brought in by Mrs. Allen?—Yes.

10,693. Did she put them down or hand them to you?—I really cannot tell you; I think she gave them to me in my hands; at any rate they came from her.

10,694. They passed from her to you, and I presume she did not say anything?—No, merely that she was instructed to give me those two bags.

10,695 What time of the day was that?—I cannot tell you to a minute, of course, but I should imagine it was a very little while before 3 o'clock; about five minutes to 3 o'clock, or something of that kind.

10,696. Having got the bags what did you do?—I gave one of them as I was directed to Mr. Wiseman.

10,697. In Dr. Allen's house?—Yes, in Dr. Allen's house.

10,698. How soon after the time when you received it?—Not more than five minutes, I should imagine.

10,699. Was he waiting there?—Yes.

10,700–1. In the same room in which you were, or downstairs?—In the same room as I was.

10,702. What did you do with the other bag?—The other bag I divided.

10,703. Between whom?—Between Mr. Hulme, to whom I gave 40*l.*, and Mr. Bunn, to whom I gave 50*l.*

10,704. Was the money in the bag in half sovereigns?—I only opened one bag.

10,705. I mean the one you opened?—I think it was, but I am not certain.

10,706. The two bags were alike. You did not open the one you gave to Wiseman. You gave that to him intact?—Yes.

10,707. And the other you opened was full of half sovereigns?—Yes.

10,708. What did you do with the other 10*l.*?—Will you allow me to refer to a memorandum?

10,709. Yes, certainly. Was that a memorandum you made that day?—No.

10,710. When it was fresh in your memory?—No, it is a memorandum I made just before I came into court.

10,711. Never mind if it was done to refresh your memory?—It was. I have given you the one bag and 50*l.* to Bunn and 40*l.* to Hulme; after that I gave 2*l.* to a Mr. Townsend.

10,712. Who is he?—A whitesmith, living on Elm Hill.

10,713. Did you tell him what it was for?—I told him it was for the purpose of procuring voters by whatever means he could.

10,714. He was to do what he could?—Yes, surely. I gave 20*s.* to a man of the name of Traxton for the same purpose.

10,715. Where does he live?—I believe he lives in the Close.

10,716. You told him to use it in the same way?—Yes, quite so. I then went down to the Quay side, where I knew there were several men who had not voted, and I saw Richard Buttle, and asked him if he had voted, and he said, "No." I said why had he not, and he said, he did not know. I asked him if there were any voters about his neighbourhood, any persons that had not voted, and he said, "Yes," there were, and he thought he could get some; and I said, "Well, if you could get them for 5*s.* "each, do so," and he said he could not do it. I think he went away first, and came to me afterwards, and then said, he could not do it, they would not vote for less than 10*s.* I said, "Give them 10*s.*, "and come to me at my office in the morning, and "whatever you have disbursed I will repay you," and he came in the morning, and I said, "What do "you want?" He said, "I have five votes, and "I want 50*s.*," and I gave it to him. Then I gave a man of the name of Freeman 20*s.* for his vote; before that I have a memorandum here of 2*s.* 6*d.* I lent to a man; he wished to have it lent to him, and I did not see any objection to that.

10,717. He was a man of a delicate organisation?—Yes, he was. I lent it to him; it was paid through another person.

10,718. It has never been paid back again, I presume?—I believe it has.

10,719. Who was the man. I should like to know him?—I do not know his name; he was a gardener, and he was in rather a foggy state that day. I did not inquire his name.

10,720. Do you remember who it was that you lent it to him through?—Yes, a Mr. Furse; that makes 6*l.* 12*s.* 6*d.*. Then there is 20*s.* I gave to a Mr. Howard. I think he is a carpenter.

10,721. Do you know where he lives?—He did live in Princes Street, I think, at that time, that is in the first ward; that is all I can tell you. I disbursed no more. I should have done more, I promise you, if I had had time.

10,722. It got to be near 4 o'clock?—Yes.

10,723. So much for that money. Out of your own funds did you provide any money that day?—None at all.

10,724. Not earlier in the day?—No.

10,725. Do you know of any other money being spent except what you have told me?—No, none at all. I have told you all I know.

10,726. Do you know the name of anybody except what you have given me that was bribed that day?—No.

10,727. Do you know of any money that was given or promised that day, except what you have told me?—No.

10,728. Did you pay for any beer that day?—Not that I can call to mind; not a pint of beer.

10,729. Were any accounts sent in to you afterwards?—No, certainly not.

10,730. I may take it in the broadest form; have you told all you know about irregular practices at the last election?—I have done so.

10,731. (Mr. Dowdeswell.) Do you know of any other money having been provided to pay expenses, or any other monies that were laid out at the last election?—No, none.

10,732. I am not speaking of that which arose out of the general meeting, I am striking that out of consideration; but have you been asked to subscribe to any fund provided by independent men?—No, certainly not.

10,733. Do you know of any secret which people are unwilling to divulge about the election?—No, I do not at all.

10,734. Were you present at any meeting of the committee or some of the supporters of Sir Henry Stracey at which any suggestion was made as to finding money?—No, certainly not.

10,735. I need hardly tell you that, after the manner in which you have given your evidence, we shall be happy to give you a certificate which will absolve you from any consequences for the part you took upon that occasion?—I am much obliged to you.

WILLIAM WEBSTER sworn and examined.

W. Webster.

10,736. (Mr. Mansfield.) You keep an hotel in this town?—Yes.

10,737. Do you recollect, in consequence of a conversation you had with Mr. Edward Stracey, drawing a considerable sum of money?—Yes.

10,738. What sum of money?—Mr. Edward Stracey asked me if I would lend him 200*l.* and leave it at Mr. Allen's house.

10,739. You drew that money at Harvey's bank and took it yourself to Allen's house?—Yes.

10,740. And handed it over to Mrs. Allen?—Yes.

10,741. In two canvas bags?—In two bags.

10,742. Did you tell Mrs. Allen anything about it?—No, nothing at all.

10,743. You said nothing at all?—No; I merely placed it in her hands and came away.

10,744. You did not even say whom it was for?—I said merely, "I was requested to leave this with "you," and then I came away.

TENTH DAY.

W. Webster.

30 Aug. 1869.

10,745. Did Mrs. Allen say anything?—Not a word.

10,746. She went upstairs with the money and bags, I presume?—I cannot say; I was just in the house, and that is all.

10,747. Did you say what was in it?—No.

10,748. Did you not say anything about Mr. Howse Allen to her?—No.

10,749. Do you know of any other sums of money used in this election for improper purposes?—No.

10,750. Are you quite certain?—Yes.

10,751. Have you yourself, either directly or indirectly, taken any part in bribery at this election?—No.

10,752. Have you made any promises?—No.

10,753. Have you paid no money since?—No.

10,754. Did you lend any further sum to Mr. Edward Stracey?—No.

10,755. Has he ever paid you this sum?—No.

10,756. You look to him for it?—Yes, of course I do.

10,757. (Mr. Dowdeswell.) Did you yourself pay any money to any person to vote at this election?—Not a shilling.

10,758. Or promise anybody anything?—No; I am no electioneering man. I never took any interest in it.

10,759. You took no part in the election as an active supporter of Sir Henry Stracey's?—No.

10,760. (Mr. Biron.) You have known Mr. Edward Stracey some time, I presume?—Yes, quite well.

10,761. And of course were ready to lend him money if he asked you for it?—Yes.

10,762. (Mr. Mansfield.) What hour was that conversation with Mr. Stracey when he asked you to lend him the money?—I think it was just between 1 and 2.

10,763. And where did that conversation take place?—In my house.

10,764. Was anybody else present?—No.

10,765. (Mr. Dowdeswell.) You went to Harvey's bank, got the money, and brought it to Doctor Allen's?—Yes.

10,766. They could fix the exact time at which you received it?—Yes, I suppose so.

10,767. Did Mr. Stracey tell you in what coin he wanted it?—No, not at all.

10,768. (Mr. Mansfield.) He asked for it as coin and not notes?—He merely asked me if I would lend him 200*l.*

10,769. If you go to a bank for 200*l.* they would generally give it to you in notes; they would say, "How will you take it"?—I was asked that, and I said "Gold."

10,770. Mr. Stracey said nothing to you about it?—No, he said nothing; he merely asked whether I would lend 200*l.*

10,771. You asked the cashier at the bank for gold?—Yes, but I did not ask for half-sovereigns.

J. H. Hulme.

JOHN HUGHES HULME sworn and examined.

10,772. (Mr. Biron.) You are a chemist, I believe?—Yes.

10,773. Are you secretary to the Eldon Club?—I am chairman of the Eldon Club.

10,774. Did you vote for Sir Henry Stracey at the last election?—No.

10,775. Were you an active supporter of his?—Yes.

10,776. Did you canvass for him for the election?—No.

10,777. On the day of the election did you employ yourself in bringing up voters?—No.

10,778. Did you not do anything in the early part of the day?—No, not in bringing up the voters.

10,779. What did you do?—I was manager for the second ward. I managed the room where the marking-off sheet was, and where the people passed in and out to look at the register.

10,780. You were responsible for a correct record of what was going on in the second ward?—Yes, certainly.

10,781. You were at the committee room the greater part of the day?—I was at a room called the committee room, but we had no committee.

10,782. You were there at the beginning, middle, and the end?—Yes.

10,783. Did Dr. Allen send for you towards the middle of the day?—No, he came to me.

10,784. Was that at the "Three Pigeons"?—Yes.

10,785. What did he say to you?—He came about 2 o'clock, and he said, "How are you getting on;" I said, "We are doing pretty well; keeping up." I said, "A few of them, I think, are hanging back and "do not come up;" he said, "If you want anything, "if you go down to my house and ask for Mr. Howse "Allen you can have 50*l.*;" he said 50*l.* first, and afterwards he said 40*l.* That was about two hours, I should think, after 2 o'clock in the afternoon.

10,786. I suppose they were hanging back?—Parties came and said so, but of my own knowledge I cannot say.

10,787. There were reports to that effect brought in?—Yes.

10,788. They wanted a day's pay?—Yes, that is what, I believe, they wanted.

10,789. After you had this conversation with Dr. Allen, did you go down to his house?—I went down to his house.

10,790. What time did you get there?—I should think it would be nearly 3 o'clock when I got there.

10,791. Had you to wait there at all?—When I got down I could not find Mr. Howse Allen, and I went from there up to the first ward committee room, at the corner of Queen Street.

10,792. Did you ask for him at Dr. Allen's?—I think I did ask one of the servants if they had seen Mr. Howse Allen, and they said, "No," and I went from there to the first ward committee room, and when I got there I could not see anything of Mr. Howse Allen. I walked down again to Mr. Allen's, and then I saw Mr. Howse Allen.

10,793. What time was that?—That would be a little after 3, or about 3 in the afternoon, getting towards that time.

10,794. Did Mr. Howse Allen give you anything?—He gave me 80 half-sovereigns.

10,795. Was anybody present when he gave them to you?—No.

10,796. What did you do then?—I then went back to my ward and distributed these half-sovereigns amongst men who were active, and I supposed knew how to apply them.

10,797. Can you give me the names of the men?—Mr. Thomas Mackley.

10,798. How much did you give to him?—He was rather more active than the rest, and I gave him 15*l.*

10,799. What Mackley is that?—He is the man at the bottom of St. Gregory's Church Alley.

10,800. What is he?—A publican.

10,801. Is he the "Marquis of Granby" man?—No, I think it is the "Alexandra" tavern he keeps.

10,802. To whom else did you give any money. I gave to John Houghton and William Houghton 5*l.* each.

10,803. Who are they?—They are both dyers; William Houghton works for Mr. Gedge.

10,804. They are active partisans?—Yes, they are active men.

10,805. They knew where the money could be used?—Yes, just so.

10,806. They were both second ward men?—Yes.

10,807. To whom else did you give any money?—I gave to John Hart Bowgen another 5*l.*

10,808. Where does he live ?—At the "Hop Pole," down St. Faith's Lane ; he is now in the first ward.

10,809. He was a voter for the second ward ?—Yes ; he was a voter for St. Lawrence parish, in the second ward.

10,810. He was a man whom you could trust to be useful in the second ward on that day ?—Yes.

10,811. Now there is 10*l.* more to get rid of ?—I stayed a bit, expecting to hear what they had done, but they made no report; it was a very little time from the close of the election, and the other 10*l.* remained with me.

10,812. Had you any more men in the second ward that you could have trusted ?—These were the only men that I did trust.

10,813. Do I understand that you had no other men that you could have trusted ?—I would not say that.

10,814. Were those the only men you came across that you could at the moment trust ?—Those were the only men I did anything with.

10,815. The other 10*l.* was not used ?—Except in this way : in the evening we had a band, after the election, some three or four hours. I paid the expenses of the band, and a number of men who had to go to protect the band.

10,816. Did you give any men any money except those you have told me ?—No.

10,817. Do you know Robert Boast who lives in Lord Howe Yard ?—No.

10,818. (Mr. Dowdeswell.) Did you pay any men at the "Pigeons" money besides those you have mentioned ?—No.

10,819. Just remember ?—I paid no men any money at the "Pigeons" beyond what I have told you.

10,820. I have the names of three men here, Robert Boast, of Lord Howe Yard, William Simpson, of the same place, and John Crotch, of Westwick ?—I only knew John Crotch, for this reason, he came in the room after the election was over, when the band was going out, and he wanted to go round with the band, and I said "No, I will not have anything to do with "your going round with the band. I have got as "many men as I can afford to pay for." I believe he did go round, and afterwards he wanted me to give him half a crown for going round, and I refused, because I said I did not give him the order, and I said I would not pay anybody I did not give an order to.

10,821. You did not give any of those men any money ?—No.

10,822. What did you pay for the band ?—I think we paid three guineas for the band.

10,823. Since the election have you paid anybody for having voted ?—No, not anyone since the election.

10,824. Or for beer ?—No, nor for beer.

10,825. You have not paid any publicans ?—No, we had very little beer, because I kept all the beer out of the room.

10,826. I do not mean at the "Pigeons" but elsewhere ?—No.

10,827. Have any claims been brought to you by publicans for beer supplied in the second ward ?—No.

10,828. Or elsewhere ?—No, nor yet elsewhere.

10,829. No claims have been made upon you ?—No.

10,830. Without calling them "claims," have any publicans asked you to get money for them for beer supplied ?—No, I do not remember anybody asking me. I particularly told them that all beer they brought without my orders, or anything else, I would not pay for, and therefore it was not likely I should have any bills brought up to me. I rather fancy there is about half a gallon of beer owing for at the committee room that we sent for, but I have not had any bill of it.

10,831. I do not mean that. Knowing that you were engaged in the second ward, it might very well be that publicans supplying beer would ask you to get the money for them ?—No, they have not.

10,832. Have any individual voters come to you since the election and asked for money for having voted ?—There was one old man, by name of Crome, came to me ; he had formerly been employed at the election of candidates as card collector, and said he would like to have his guinea or whatever it was. He said he was very much distressed, but I told him I had no means of doing anything of that sort ; we were not allowed now to pay voters. I could not pay him anything, and he has not had anything. Since then, I believe, he is dead.

10,833. Did anybody else come in a similar way ?—No, I think not.

10,834. That is the only man ?—That is the only man.

10,835. About the Eldon Club, can you give me a list of the members ?—Yes, I can furnish you with a list.

10,836. I do not mean from memory ?—I could do it from memory, I dare say, but it would occupy too much time.

10,837. Let us have the list to-morrow morning ?—I will do so.

10,838. Did you take any part in the former elections ?—Yes, I took part in the last election—Waters' election.

10,839. Were you one of Waters' supporters ?—Yes.

10,840. There was money going then ?—Yes, there was a little money then.

10,841. Did you have any of the management of it ?—Yes, I managed the second ward then.

10,842. I will not ask the details about it, it may be that we shall not have to go into it. How much about was it you had ?—I think I had 70*l.* then.

10,843. That was used for the election ?—That was used before noon time.

10,844. Used in your ward ?—Yes, used in my ward.

10,845. Had you any later that day ?—No, I went for more money, but it was no use, the election was lost, and there was no more money.

10,846. Except what you have told me do you know of any money having been found for the purposes of the last election ?—No.

10,847. Do you know of anyone being given money for voting at the last election except what you have told me ?—No.

10,848. Do you know of anybody who gave money to persons for voting ?—No, except what I have told you.

10,849. Have you told me everything you are aware of as regards irregular practices at the last election ?—Yes, everything I am myself aware of at the last election.

10,850. Are you aware of any fund having been subscribed for to promote the election ?—No.

10,851. Do you know of any subscription having been entered into since ?—No, nor yet since ; there was a fund subscribed for towards the expenses of the inquiry, but not any towards the election.

10,852. Was there not a fund subscribed for paying the expenses of the election during the time of the election or immediately after it ?—No.

10,853. Were you never asked to subscribe anything towards the payment of the election before the public meeting ?—No.

10,854. Did you not hear of any subscription being on foot for such a purpose ?—No.

10,855. Were you present at any meeting on the day or about the day of the election at which the providing of money was at all discussed or talked about ?—No, on the day of the election I went about 6 o'clock in the morning to the room at the "Pigeons." I had the marking off sheet, the check cards, and other things brought to me over night, and took them at 6 in the morning to the room, and I never left the room till I went down to Mr. Allen's in the afternoon ; there was no meeting or anything of the kind.

TENTH DAY.

J. H. Hulme.

30 Aug. 1869.

10,856. You never heard of any meeting? — I never heard of any meeting for paying Sir Henry Stracey's election expenses.

10,857. Have you heard of persons connected with your party having a secret which they were determined not to reveal?—I have not heard of it. I have always advised my men to speak the truth.

10,858. Have you not heard persons say that there is a secret which they are determined not to reveal? —I have heard persons say that they would not split or tell. I cannot say whether there is a secret or not. It has only been in general conversation that they have said it; but I have always told them it would come out; that I knew you were in possession of information which would bring it out; and, therefore, I advised them to make a clean breast of it.

10,859. You have heard people talking in that way? —Yes, I have heard people talk in that way.

10,860. Can you call to mind anybody who said that?—No; it has been in general conversation. I did not pay much attention to anybody who said it at the time. Some people said, "They will never get "the truth," and I said, "Oh yes, they will, they will "have it all out, and there is no use in keeping it in." I cannot give you any particular names.

R. Bunn.

ROBERT BUNN sworn and examined.

10,861. (Mr. Dowdeswell.) I believe you are a voter in this city?—No.

10,862. Were you at the last election?—Yes; I was in Norwich on the day.

10,863. What were you employed about in the early part of the day?—Well, I was using my time walking about, and seeing what was going on in the former part of the day.

10,864. Were you trying to get up voters?—No.

10,865. Were you a person paid for your work?—No.

10,866. Did you find a considerable number of men who wanted a day's wages, or some consideration to induce them to vote?—No.

10,867. You did not find anybody?—Well, I did not employ my time in that way.

10,868. Were you watching the other side, then? —No, I was not watching either side.

10,869. Well then, how did you employ your time? —Well, in walking about, and seeing what was going on.

10,870. You, I believe, had been active in former elections?—Well, I was a little active.

10,871. Was that in 1865?—Yes, I believe it was.

10,872. You had spent some money then?—A small sum.

10,873. Do you recollect Dr. Allen coming to you on the election day?—No.

10,874. Did you see Dr. Allen?—Yes.

10,875. At what time in the day was that?—Well, I should think, as nigh as I can guess, about half-past 2; I cannot say to half-an-hour. I did not make a note of it.

10,876. Did he tell you to go up to his house?—No.

10,877. Did he tell you to go and see Mr. Howse Allen?—No.

10,878. What did he tell you?—He did not tell me anything, not until I saw him at his house.

10,879. You went to his house?—Yes.

10,880. Then when you saw him at his own house what did he say to you; who gave you 50*l.*?—Well, I cannot say the gentleman. The gentleman I saw gave me 50*l.*

10,881. You do not know who it was?—I do not.

10,882. Do you know Mr. Howse Allen?—I do not; the gentleman I saw I do not know that I ever saw before.

10,883. Then did you see him at Dr. Allen's house?—I saw him at Dr. Allen's house.

10,884. How came you to go to Dr. Allen's house? —Well, I was walking through the "Rampant "Horse" yard, and Mrs. Figg, I think it was, it might be one of the waitresses, but I believe it was Mrs. Figg, told me that there was a gentleman who wanted to see me at Dr. Allen's.

10,885. At what place was that?—The "Rampant "Horse."

10,886. Then did you go up to Dr. Allen's?—Yes.

10,887. What did you ask for there?—I did not ask for anything.

10,888. Did you simply go and present yourself? —Yes; I went to open the door, and Dr. Allen stood at the door, and as soon as he saw me he ordered the servant to introduce me to some gentleman in another room.

10,889. Dr. Allen was then at home, was he?—Dr. Allen was then at home.

10,890. Did you see this other gentleman?—Yes.

10,891. And did he give you 50*l.*?—Yes.

10,892. Was that in half-sovereigns?—I believe it was.

10,893. What were you to with that?—Well, he did not say what I was to do with it.

10,894. But you understood what you were to do with it?—Well, I believe that I knowed what I was to do with it.

10,895. And you proceeded to do what you believed you ought to do?—Well, I do not know exactly. I do not think I made myself so officious as I ought to have done on the subject considering.

10,896. How many men did you pay?—Well, I do not think I paid anybody not to vote, not one, I don't think.

10,897. What did you think that money was given to you for?—I thought it was to lay out on the election.

10,898. That was to induce people to vote?—Well, I suppose it was.

10,899. Then having received it for that purpose, you proceeded, I suppose, to use it?—Well, I did not make myself very officious.

10,900. But you did proceed to do something with it?—I did.

10,901. You had done it on previous occasions?— Some of it I did.

10,902. Now, just let me know how you laid out that 50*l.*, or a part of that 50*l.*?—Yes; you want me to give an account of it?

10,903. Yes.—Very well, sir, I will endeavour to tell you. I received the money, I think, rather late in the day, and to a man that lived opposite me, a Mr. Durrant, who has had to do with elections and different affairs, I gave 16*l.*

10,904. I suppose that was to enable him to go and operate?—I suppose so. The gentleman who gave me the money did not say what I was to do with it.

10,905. But you quite understood what you were to do with it?—Yes.

10,906. You are not so blind as that you cannot have understood?—Well, sir, I think not.

10,907. And I suppose Mr. Durrant is as understanding a man as yourself; he understood what it was for?—I believe he did, sir.

10,908. Well you have given us the 16*l.* to Durrant; was there anything else?—Well, I gave a man of the name of Read two sovereigns.

10,909. What is he?—He is a harness maker, living in the market; he is not a voter, but he said he knew a voter or two requiring something.

10,910. Who else?—I think I went on to Crowfield, and I saw a man there, and he said he wanted something to pay some expenses, and I gave him 30*s.*

10,911. Can you tell me his name?—I think his name is Bacon.

10,912. Where does he live?—I believe he lives on the Dereham Road.

10,913. Was that for himself, or for himself and companions?—It was not for himself, I believe it was for other parties.

10,914. To whom else did you give money?—I do not think anybody else; I think I hold the balance now of that.

10,915. Was that all that you disposed of?—I think so, it is all I can recollect.

10,916. That is 19*l.* 10*s.*—Yes. I beg pardon, sir, I think after the election was over I gave another man 7*s.* 6*d.*

10,917. Who was he?—I think his name is Harman; he is a blacksmith.

10,918. That was for voting?—Well, he asked me for it, and I gave it to him about a fortnight after.

10,919. Where does he live?—I am sure I don't know; he is a blacksmith, and that is all I know.

10,920. (Mr. Biron.) Is it Harman or Harmer?—Harman, I think, but I do not know exactly his name.

10,921. (Mr. Dowdeswell.) Did you not lay out any more money that day?—That is all I laid out, to the best of my knowledge.

10,922. That is only 19*l.* 17*s.* 6*d.*?—Yes.

10,923. Did you not lay out more money with anybody?—I do not recollect anyone; that is every shilling, to the best of my knowledge.

10,924. There were numbers of people standing about who wanted a few shillings for their votes; did you not get any of them?—Well, I should not deal with any of them.

10,925. You have been mixed up in it before?—Well, very slightly.

10,926. What was the slight extent to which you were mixed up with it before?—Well, in the 1865 election I had some two or three sovereigns, or something of that sort.

10,927. Not more than two or three?—Two or three, or five to the extent.

10,928. Did you lay that out all amongst the men?—Well, I think I laid some of it out.

10,929. Has anyone come to you since the election for part of this money?—Not that I am aware of.

10,930. Do you not recollect any persons who have come and asked you for money, because you had some money provided?—Not that I am aware of, sir; I do not recollect such a thing.

10,931. You have not parted with any more, then?—That is all I have parted with, sir, up to the present, in fact I did not know the man that I took it of. I did not know who the rightful owner was, and therefore I have it in my possession at the present time.

10,932. 19*l.* 17*s.* 6*d.* out of 50*l.*! Surely you must have spent more money than that?—I am not aware, if I did.

10,933. "Not aware." Just refresh your memory; have you not spent more than 19*l.* 17*s.* 6*d.*?—I do not recollect it sir; I think not.

10,934. Are you sure you did not give it over to some other body?—I think not, sir, I do not recollect it. I don't think I parted with any more; I might, perhaps, spend half-a-sovereign or a crown, or something on the day, but I do not recollect giving anyone anything in the shape of money.

10,935. Are you sure you did not give money?—I have told you the truth, and nothing but the truth, to the best of my ability, the best of my knowledge, and the best of my recollection.

10,936. You need not apprehend any consequences from telling us that you did so, because you will be entitled to be relieved from all responsibility in respect of it if you have told us the truth?—I am quite aware of that, sir, but I have told you the truth and nothing but the truth, to the best of my recollection.

10,937. Have you not said that you took as many as 17 persons out of one house to the poll?—No.

10,938. Did you not take any persons to poll after 2 o'clock?—I never took anybody at all during the day.

10,939. (Mr. Mansfield.) Have you never made any inquiries who you were to return that balance to, the 30*l.* 2*s.* 6*d.*?—No.

10,940. (Mr. Biron.) You got it, you say, at Dr. Allen's house?—Yes.

10,941. Did it not suggest itself to your mind that having got the money at Dr. Allen's house, you might carry back the balance that you had not used, and leave it there?—No, I did not think of any such a thing, because I did not know the man that I took it of.

10,942. But you knew where you got it?—I knew where I got it.

10,943. And you knew that Dr. Allen came and told you where to get it—No, I did not know that, because Dr. Allen never did so.

10,944. At all events it is quite enough for me that you knew you got it at Dr. Allen's?—I knew I got it there.

10,945. And it never came across your mind that inasmuch as you had only used 19*l.* 17*s.* 6*d.*, you might just as well give back the other 30*l.* 2*s.* 6*d.*?—I never took it back.

10,946. It never suggested itself to you at all?—No.

10,947. Were you at the committee room on the day of the election?—I never went in there at all.

10,948. Did you not see Mr. Hulme, the chemist, at the committee room on the day of the election?—I do not think I did.

10,949. Did you not see Mr. Holmes there?—No, I did not, to the best of my knowledge.

10,950. Where were you when the message came to you to go to Dr. Allen's?—Well, I believe some one told me outside the committee room door that I was wanted at the "Rampant Horse."

10,951. Outside of which committee room?—Well, I believe it was at the "Swan."

10,952. (Mr. Dowdeswell.) Dr. Allen is about the city, is he not, in his profession?—I believe so.

10,953. You constantly saw him, did you not?—Yes, I generally saw him.

10,954. He introduced you to the gentleman who paid you the money, did he not?—Well, he did not introduce me. I went to the door, and I saw him.

10,955. He opened the door, and he showed you the gentleman?—I think the servant opened the door.

10,956. Yes, but you saw Dr. Allen there, did you not?—Yes.

10,957. And he showed you the gentleman who gave you the money?—No, the servant showed me.

10,958. You told me before that it was Dr. Allen; but you saw Dr. Allen there?—I saw Dr. Allen at the door.

10,959. And he was there when you went in?—I believe he was in the hall, but I believe the servant opened the door, and when I went into the house Dr. Allen walked away, and the servant showed me where the gentleman was that I spoke of.

10,960. Did it never occur to you to ask Dr. Allen who the gentleman was that handed you the 50*l.*?—No.

10,961. It never occurred to your mind?—Never.

10,962. (Mr. Mansfield.) On other occasions when you have been trusted with money have you repaid the balance?—I never had anything except about 5*l.*

10,963. (Mr. Biron.) But you got a little the last time?—It was a very slight trifle; if it was half-a-sovereign that was the outside.

10,964. You said you got 5*l.* and spent 3*l.*?—You see, sir, I did not make a note of these things; you are liable if you take a 5*l.* note, there is a little expense attached to it.

10,965. Pardon me, you are not indeed liable to anything of the sort.—Well, I do not know that you are, but money is a temptation.

TENTH DAY.

Benjamin King sworn and examined.

B. King.

30 Aug. 1869.

10,966. (Mr. Mansfield.) What are you?—A miller.

10,967. Who did you vote for at this election?—Russell and Tillett.

10,968. At what hour in the day?—About 3 o'clock, I think.

10,969. Who canvassed you? who asked you for your vote?—I came up with Mr. Chandler.

10,970. Had you promised your vote?—No, I had not.

10,971. What made you vote so late?—I could not get up before, not without walking it, and that I did not wish to do.

10,972. Did anybody offer you money for your vote?—Not at all.

10,973. Have you heard of any money going at this election?—I have not.

10,974. You have neither offered any yourself or been offered any?—Certainly not.

10,975. You have heard nothing of the sort?—Nothing of the sort.

10,976. Have you voted at former elections?—No, never.

D. Morse.

David Morse sworn and examined.

10,977. (Mr. Biron.) What are you?—I am employed at Eaton.

10,978. Who did you vote for at the last election?—Russell and Stracey.

10,979. At what hour in the day?—Between 2 and 3.

10,980. How came you to vote for Russell and Stracey?—Well, I did not feel interested in particular in any of them. I might have voted for one or another; it did not make any difference to me.

10,981. People were pulling you both ways?—No; not any person in the course of the day asked me to vote for anybody.

10,982. That was really your reason?—Yes.

10,983. Did you get anything for voting?—No.

10,984. Or any promise of anything?—No.

10,985. Did you get anything after you had voted?—No, not a penny of anyone.

10,986. Were you canvassed before the election?—No.

10,987. Nobody asked you?—No.

10,988. What were you doing all the day of the election?—I did not come up until just before dinner; my wife was very bad, and I was obliged to be at home until well up to dinner time.

10,989. And you voted after dinner?—Just between 2 and 3.

10,990. You are not much of a politician, I suppose?—No.

10,991. (Mr. Dowdeswell.) I suppose this was the first election at which you had been a voter?—Yes.

R. W. Mitchell.

Richard Ward Mitchell sworn and examined.

10,992. (Mr. Dowdeswell.) What are you?—A wheelwright.

10,993. Are you a voter?—Yes.

10,994. Did you vote at the last election?—Yes.

10,995. For whom?—For Stracey.

10,996. At what time in the day?—About half-past 3, or between 3 and 4.

10,997. Where had you been all the day?—After my employment.

10,998. In your employment?—Yes, my business called me another way the fore part of the day.

10,999. Where did your business call you to?—Called me to Earlham.

11,000. How far is that from Norwich?—Two miles, I suppose.

11,001. What time did you go there in the morning?—Five o'clock.

11,002. What time did you get back?—About half-past 1.

11,003. Were you there during the whole of that time?—Yes.

11,004. Were you offered any money for voting?—No.

11,005. Were you paid any money for voting?—No.

11,006. Nothing?—Nothing at all.

11,007. Have you received anything?—Not anything at all.

11,008. Do you know of anybody having received money for voting?—No.

11,009. Has not anybody said that he got money or something for voting?—I have never heard of it.

11,010. I suppose you were a voter for the first time at this election?—Yes, for the first time.

W. Robertson.

William Robertson sworn and examined.

11,011. (Mr. Mansfield.) What are you by trade?—A miller.

11,012. What time in the day did you vote?—I think it was a little after 3, or about 3.

11,013. For whom did you vote?—For Tillett and Russell.

11,014. What made you so late in voting?—I could not get away before. I could not leave my work.

11,015. Where do you work?—At Mr. Colman's, of Cringleford.

11,016. How far off is that?—Two miles.

11,017. Then you did the best part of your day's work before you came away to vote?—Yes.

11,018. Had you promised your vote?—No, I had not promised my vote.

11,019. Did anybody ask you for it?—Yes, there was a gentleman came down canvassing, but I did not promise him. I told him that I did not know that I could get over.

11,020. Had you money for your vote?—No.

11,021. Or beer?—No; I was out of pocket by that.

11,022. Have you been promised anything?—No.

11,023. Have you ever voted before?—No.

11,024. Do you know of any money going this election?—No; I was not away above 10 minutes or a quarter of an hour, and then I went away home.

G. F. Parker.

Granville Frederick Parker sworn and examined.

11,025. (Mr. Biron.) What are you?—A merchant's clerk.

11,026. Did you vote at the last election?—No, I had no vote.

11,027. Did you do anything about the election?—Well, I carried up several voters.

11,028. Who did you carry up?—Most of the men in the employ of the firm.

11,029. Who instructed you to do that?—Well, I took my own responsibility as regards carrying them up.

11,030. They were not very ready to come, were they?—Yes.

11,031. All of them?—Yes.

11,032. For whom did they vote? — Sir Henry Stracey.

11,033. What time in the day did you bring them up?—Most of them between 9 and 12.

11,034. Did you give them any breakfast, or anything of the sort?—No, nothing.

11,035. Did you give them any dinner when you got home?—No, I did not.

11,036. Did you not stand any beer?—No, not any.

11,037. Did you not give them anything?—No, not anything.

11,038. Did not any of them ask you for anything?—No, not any of them.

11,039. Did you give them their day's pay?—I took them up, and carried them back again to business directly. They did not lose any time.

11,040. Whereabouts is your place?—Trowse.

11,041. How far off is that?—About a mile from the market.

11,042. How long were you in taking them from Trowse to the poll? — Perhaps about half an hour.

11,043. When did you start? — I began in the morning, about half-past 8.

11,044. And took how many at a time?—Two or three.

11,045. Had you canvassed them before?—They had been canvassed. I did not canvass them.

11,046. By whom?—Some gentleman who came down to the city.

11,047. How did you know who to take?—I asked them in the morning whether they were going up to vote.

11,048. Did you ask for whom they were going to vote?—No.

11,049. Did you take any of Tillett and Russell's men?—No.

11,050. Did any vote for Tillett and Russell?—No.

11,051. They knew better than that?—They all voted, barring three, I think, for Sir Henry Stracey.

11,052. How many men in your employ voted for Sir Henry Stracey?—They all did, I think, barring three.

11,053. Who is the head of the firm? — Mr. Reed.

11,054. Is he a supporter of Sir Henry Stracey's?—He voted for Sir Henry Stracey.

11,055. Did he canvass the men?—No, he did not; he never asked any of them.

11,056. Were you present when they were canvassed?—No, I was not.

11,057. Do you know Trumbetta?—No.

11,058. Who asked you to take these men to the poll?—Not anyone.

11,059. Whose trap was it you took? — Mr. Reed's.

11,060. Did he lend it to you for the purpose?—Well, he did not know I had taken it, because I did not see him at the office in the morning.

11,061. (Mr. Dowdeswell.) Were not your men promised something if they would vote?—No, not a farthing.

11,062. Not money?—No, nothing at all.

11,063. (Mr. Biron.) Not a single thing, either to eat or to drink?—Nothing at all.

11,064. (Mr. Dowdeswell.) Did you shut up your works that day?—No.

11,065. (Mr. Mansfield.) Did you bring these voters back after they had voted?—The majority of them, and they went on with their work.

11,066. Then they did not lose any day's wages?—No.

11,067. (Mr. Dowdeswell.) Do you know Parker, the grocer?—Yes; he is an uncle of mine.

11,068. Did you canvass with him?—No, I did not.

11,069. Did you do anything on the election day by his directions?—I drove him from All Saints' Green to Scole's Green.

11,070. Is that all that you did by his directions that day?—That is all that I did by his directions. I drove him there, and I drove him back again to the polling place on All Saints' Green.

11,071. Who did he call upon on all Saints' Green?—He called at two houses.

11,072. I suppose you stayed with the horse then?—I stayed in the gig the time he went inside.

11,073. So that you did not hear what occurred when he was inside?—No, I did not.

11,074. Did you see either of the men whom he called upon go up to vote?—No.

11,075. You drove him back?—I drove him back again on to All Saints' Green.

11,076. Had you any conversation with him about how the men were to be got to vote?—Not any.

11,077. Did he not tell you that he had great difficulty in getting the men up to vote, that they wanted money for their day's work?—No, he did not breathe a word about it. The man that he called upon, he said, would not come up, and that is all the conversation he and I had together.

11,078. Did he not say that they wanted money?—No, he did not. He did not breathe it.

11,079. Do you know three men of the name of Bullen, Debbage, and Custance, or any one of them?—No, I do not know any one of them.

11,080. Do you know that Parker, the grocer, brought up those three men?—No, I do not; I only saw him about half-an-hour from the time I went from All Saints' Green on to Scole's Green and back. That is all I saw of him during the day.

11,081. Did you not have any conversation with him as to how you were getting on; you were taking an active interest in it?—Yes, we might have a little conversation about how the Liberals were getting on.

11,082. Did he not tell you that he had considerable difficulty in getting persons to come up to the poll, for they wanted to be paid for their day's labour or wanted something to come up?—No; I do not remember his breathing a word about that.

11,083. What time in the day was it that you went to All Saints' Green?—Well, I should think it would be about 11 in the morning, as near as I can remember.

11,084. Did you do anything after 2 o'clock in the day?—Yes, between 2 and 3.

11,085. What did you do then? — I brought up either one or two more voters, I think.

11,086. Who were they?—Men in the employ of Mr. Reed.

11,087. Can you give me their names? — Neave was one, and the other was Forman, I think, but he was not in the employ of Mr. Reed.

11,088. Whereabouts did they live?—One lived in Trowse and the other in King Street.

11,089. Did you go and fetch them?—I went into the mills and the places where they were at work.

11,090. Did they tell you that they wanted something for their day's wages?—No, they did not say a word of the sort.

11,091. Did you hear from them that they had got something or had been promised anything?—No.

11,092. How did you get them to vote; it was very late in the day then?—I got them, because I thought we wanted them.

11,093. Of course you would not get them unless you wanted them, but how did you persuade them to vote? These men had been hanging back, and you understood why they had not voted before, I suppose?—Well, Neave did not vote, because he was busy and would not lose his time.

11,094. Did he want to be paid for his time?—

TENTH DAY.

G. F. Parker.

30 Aug. 1869.

No, he was busy stone-dressing, and could not spare the time to come up and vote.

11,095. Half-a-sovereign, I daresay, would have overcome that scruple?—Well, he had no half-sovereign or anything else.

11,096. These two men were difficult to get up to the poll between 3 and 4 o'clock in the day. Did you understand from that that they had hung back for money?—No.

11,097. Had you seen your uncle in the interval between 1 o'clock and your going after these men?—I never saw him from the time I left him on All Saints' Green.

11,098. Who was it sent you for these men?—Do you mean between 3 and 4 o'clock?

11,099. Yes.—Not anyone.

11,100. Who suggested that you should go?—Not anyone; I knew they had not voted, and I went for them on my own responsibility.

11,101. You heard that there was money going, did you not?—No, I did not.

11,102. Had you not?—I had not heard it the whole of the day, and I did not hear until the next day that there were any cases, and then I heard some of them say that such was the case.

11,103. Then you gave no money?—No, I did not, because I could not afford it.

11,104. Did you give a little beer?—No.

11,105. Did you say that they should have some beer?—No, I never gave them anything.

11,106. Did you not say that they should have it?—No.

11,107. Did you promise them?—I did not promise them anything.

11,108. Are you sure of that?—Quite sure.

R. Wiseman.

ROBERT WISEMAN sworn and examined.

11,109. (Mr. Dowdeswell.) Where does your father live?—St. Martin's.

11,110. He is very ill, I believe?—He is.

11,111. On the day of the election did you hear from him that he had received a sum of money to get up voters?—I believe I heard something about it.

11,112. What time of the day was it that you heard that?—At 20 minutes past 3 or a quarter past.

11,113. That was very late in the day for such work as that, was it not?—That was the time.

11,114. I suppose your father was in a hurry to make use of it?—No doubt about that.

11,115. There was no time to be lost?—No.

11,116. And you thought he could not do better than put part of it into your hands?—He did so.

11,117. How much did he put?—25*l.*

11,118. What did you do with the 25*l.*?—I gave 5*l.* to a man of the name of White.

11,119. Where does he live?—He lived in St. Martin's.

11,120. What is he?—He is a pedestrian.

11,121. A professional pedestrian?—Yes.

11,122. What did you do with the rest of it?—Kept it, sir.

11,123. Do you mean to say that you kept the rest yourself?—Yes, there was no time to spend it. This White knew St. Martin's better than I did, and therefore he took this 5*l.* to do as he thought proper with; he went to certain places, and did what he thought proper with the 5*l.*

11,124. Do you know what places he went to?—I believe he went to the "Royal Oak," and I think he went into Mr. Clarke's.

11,125. Where is Clarke's?—A beerhouse in St. Martin's, but what he did there I am not able to say, I did not go in with him.

11,126. Did you not try to get up some men?—I stood outside.

11,127. Did you go and stand outside while he went in?—Yes.

11,128. At these two publics?—Yes.

11,129. Did you see that he got some men up?—Yes.

11,130. Do you know the names of any of the men he got up?—I do not; that is the very reason why I let him have the money, because I did not know who were voters.

11,131. You went down to see that he was active about it?—I saw him go into the house, and I saw the men go out again.

11,132. How many men did he take from that one house?—Four from the first house.

11,133. How many from the other?—I think it was three.

11,134. No more?—I believe not, there was one picked up at the corner of St. Mary's Plain, and the last four that went up to vote were too late, because there was such a crowd round the poll that they could not get up to it.

11,135. You had been active before that in the course of the day, had you not?—Yes.

11,136. Do you know a man of the name of Barber, of Baldwin's Yard, St. Martin's?—No.

11,137. Do you recollect giving 10*s.* to a man to vote?—No.

11,138. Did you not give any money to a man to vote?—Certainly not; the money I parted with was to this man White.

11,139. Do you know Nobbs, of Tooley Street?—Yes.

11,140. Did you not give him half-a-sovereign?—Certainly not.

11,141. Be sure now about that?—I am sure, sir.

11,142. Were you there when anybody gave Nobbs some money?—No.

11,143. Did you not give Nobbs any money, or see any money given to him?—Certainly not.

11,144. Nor was any money given to a man of the name of Barber?—No, I do not know the man.

11,145. Do you not recollect giving some money to Nobbs, taking out your watch, and telling him it was a quarter past 3, and he must lose no time?—Certainly not. I am quite aware of the evidence you have in front of you, it was before Baron Martin; but my words are all truth, I never spoke to the man on the day of the election, nor was I near him. Nobbs, the bricklayer, is the man you are now talking of.

11,146. It is an uncommon name you know, George Nobbs, of Tooley Street?—Yes, that is right.

11,147. Do you know Hardiment?—Yes.

11,148. Did you go into Clarke's beerhouse with him?—I don't know whether I went in with him or no, I might possibly see him there.

11,149. Did you go into Clarke's beerhouse?—Oh, yes.

11,150. How many time during the day?—Oh, perhaps two or three times.

11,151. Did not Hardiment go in with you once?—He never went in with me.

11,152. Did you see him in there?—Possibly I might, I would not swear that I did. I saw him several times in the course of the day.

11,153. Did you not see Hardiment call some voters into a back room?—No.

11,154. Did you not see Hardiment pay some money there?—No.

11,155. Did you hear him talk about money then?—No.

11,156–8. Did you not go on the box with four men in a cab from Clarke's beerhouse?—I believe I went as far as St. Mary's Plain; there was three men in, and one they took up at the corner of St. Mary's Plain.

11,159. Had not Hardiment taken these men into a back room with him?—Not that I am aware of; I did not see him.

11,160. These were the men that you say White paid?—They were the men that White paid.

11,161. You went, did you, in a cab from Clarke's beerhouse?—Yes.

11,162. Did you know that there were men down at Clarke's beerhouse who were waiting for money?—Oh, yes, everybody knew it, I should think.

11,163. How many men were there down at Clarke's beerhouse?—I should think at one time, perhaps, there might be a dozen.

11,164. And was that the case with a number of other public houses?—Well, yes, I should think it was.

11,165. Did you pay for or order some beer at Clarke's beerhouse?—Well, I believe there was such a thing as a quart or two ordered, but nothing more than that.

11,166. Surely there was a little more than a quart or two?—No, sir, not at my expense.

11,167. Do you know Morse, Mills, and Cutlock, or any one of them?—No.

11,168. Do you know a man of the name of Platfoot?—No, I do not know the names of anybody living in St. Martin's.

11,169. James Michael Platfoot?—No.

11,170. Do you know a man of the name of Colman?—No.

11,171. Do you recollect having a conversation with Platfoot on your road to the "Royal Oak"?—I do not know the name, possibly I might recognise the man.

11,172. Did you go into or to the "Royal Oak" with another man?—I do not think I went into the "Royal Oak" at all. White was in the "Royal Oak," but I do not think I went in. I think that is the house; the house next to Clarke's.

11,173. Did not a man of the name of Platfoot go with you?—No.

11,174. Was there no man who went with you to the "Royal Oak"?—Only White that I am aware of.

11,175. Did not Platfoot say to you something about a money bag?—No, I do not recollect anything of the sort.

11,176. Did no man speak to you about a money bag?—No, I do not recollect anything of the sort.

11,177. You do not know the names of the men who were too late?—No, I do not.

11,178. Would you know them if I told you them?—I should not know the names.

11,179. Do you know the "Buck"?—Well, I believe I know the "Buck," but I do not know much of it.

11,180. Were you in it that afternoon?—No; that was the morning when we were there.

11,181. Were you not there in the afternoon?—I believe not.

11,182. Did you not say to the man who was driving the cab, "There is a nest of 10 men there, "I must have the whole of them"?—Well, I do not remember making such a remark. I might possibly do so.

11,183. Did you know there were men in the "Buck"?—I do not remember anything about it at all. There were four men taken away in the morning; I do not know whether it was from the "Buck" or no.

11,184. But in the afternoon did you not go into the "Buck," and get some of the men there to vote?—In the afternoon all the money that was spent was spent by White in those two houses.

11,185. Will you undertake to swear that upon that day you gave nobody else any money?—Certainly.

11,186. Nor got anybody else to pay any money?—Not a penny.

11,187. You say there were four taken from the "Buck" in the morning?—Yes.

11,188. What did they have to vote?—Nothing at all.

11,189. Who took them away?—White.

11,190. The very same man that you gave the money to afterwards?—White was with me all day.

11,191. Did White get money elsewhere?—Not that I am aware of; I believe not.

11,192. How came White to do this unless he was paid for it?—I do not know, sir; he knew the people perfectly well by living in the ward; he knew them individually.

11,193–4. White is one of those persons who are not likely to do anything without money?—I do not know what he had for it.

11,195. Did he tell you that he was going to have some money for it?—No.

11,196. Did he tell you that he had given the men any money?—Oh, yes, of course he did.

11,197. I am speaking now of those four in the morning.—No, certainly not; there was no money to be had then.

11,198. You inquired whether there was any money to be had?—No, I did not inquire, but I had an idea that there was none then.

11,199. (Mr. Mansfield.) You say you paid for one or two quarts of beer?—Yes.

11,200. That was for the voters, I suppose?—I do not know whether they were voters or no; they all drank out of it.

11,201. You did not drink it yourself?—Certainly not.

11,202. Did you order any beer at the other places?—I daresay I did; perhaps they had the same quantity at each of the places; there is no doubt about it.

11,203. Was there a good deal of drinking going on at the "Buck"?—I do not know. I did not stay longer at the "Buck" than anywhere else. I cannot speak to that particularly.

11,204. Do you know of anybody else receiving money at the "Buck" during the day?—I cannot speak to that, but all the people who were interested had to spend some money. I should doubt your getting out of a public house without doing it.

11,205. You had not done it?—No; I spent no money.

11,206. Do you know of any claims made by beer-sellers for beer sold in that way?—No, I do not.

11,207. Did you pledge your credit?—Certainly not.

11,208. (Mr. Biron.) What has become of the other 20*l.*?—I took it home along with me.

11,209. That was only for the day; what has become of it since?—I believe some of it is there now.

11,210. And the rest?—I daresay the rest I spent myself.

11,211. You did not ask your father who it belonged to?—No.

11,212–3. You gave 5*l.* to White, and held your tongue?—Oh no, he knows as much about it as I do. I told him all about it.

11,214. Did you tell him you had spent the 20*l.*?—Certainly.

11,215–6. (Mr. Mansfield.) Did you tell Dr. Allen you had spent it?—No.

11,217. (Mr. Biron.) Do you know whether your father gave money to anybody else besides you?—I do not know. I daresay he did.

11,218. Have you another brother?—No.

11,219. (Mr. Dowdeswell.) Were you a voter?—Yes.

11,220. For whom did you vote?—Stracey.

11,221. (Mr. Biron.) Who else did your father give money to?—Well, I am not able to say.

11,222. Do you not know?—No.

TENTH DAY.
R. Wiseman.
30 Aug. 1869.

11,223. You have talked it over with him; you know all about it?—Possibly I might.

11,224. Well, tell it.—I believe that Mr. Green had some money.

11,225. Who is Mr. Green?—Mr. Green, the plasterer; and I think Mr. Mackley had some money, but I do not know individually who had it.

11,226. But have not you heard from your father?—I have heard him speak about this.

11,227. Anybody else?—Well, I believe there were two or three men, but I cannot remember them now. I think a Mr. Lake had some.

11,228. Did a Mr. Dowson have some?—I believe he had.

11,229. Do you know what Lake had?—No, I do not.

11,230. Do you know what Dowson had?—I do not know what any of them had.

11,231. Do not any other names suggest themselves to you?—No, they do not; if I knew any more, and they came readily to my memory, I would tell you in a moment.

11,232. Who is Lake?—Lake is a baker.

11,233. Where does he live?—Opposite St. George's Church.

11,234. Do you know what became of the 75*l.* that your father had?—No, no further than I have told you.

11,235. (Mr. Dowdeswell.) Do you know how much the people you have named had?—No, I do not.

11,236. Or, at least, have you heard?—Well, I believe one had 10*l.* and the other 5*l.* I cannot speak to what each had, but those are the amounts.

11,237. Consider whether you can recollect any other person?—Well, no, sir, just now I do not recollect any other; I believe there were some more though.

11,238. (Mr. Biron.) Did Keddington, the bootmaker, get any?—I do not know, he was active on the day of the election, but whether he had any or not I cannot say.

11,239. Did you see him with your father on the day of the election?—Well, I saw him in the committee room.

11,240. Who else was in the committee room when you got the 25*l.*?—Only me and father.

11,241. But just before?—I cannot say, there were several people there.

11,242. Cannot you give me any of their names?—No, I cannot. No doubt there were several of the names I have now mentioned to you there, but I cannot say that.

11,243. And you cannot call to mind anything your father has told you since except what you have told us?—That is all.

11,244. (Mr. Biron.) Did a man of the name of Freestone get any?—I believe not.

11,245. Do you know Freestone?—Yes.

11,246. Did you give him anything?—Certainly not.

11,247. Did you see him that day?—Yes.

11,248. Where?—Several times in St. Martin's.

11,249. What is Freestone?—A baker.

11,250. Do you know whether he gave anything to voters?—Well, I have heard so, but I do not know it.

11,251. Did he tell you so?—No.

11,252. Who told you so?—I have heard it from several different quarters.

11,253. Can you not recollect one?—It was casual talk; I cannot say who told me, but it was general talk.

11,254. Did Benfather tell you?—No.

11,255. Have you heard that he gave money to voters?—No.

11,256. Have you not heard casual talk about that?—No.

11,257. No talk at all?—I have not heard a word mentioned about Benfather; I don't know the man, though I have heard the name before.

11,258. Do you know Worledge?—Yes.

11,259. Did you see him about on the day of the election?—Yes.

11,260. Do you know of his giving money to voters?—Only what I have heard talk about it.

11,261. He did not tell you about it?—No.

11,262. Or speak to you about it?—No.

11,263. You know of nothing that he has done?—Certainly not, not the slightest.

11,264. Do you say that you know nothing about the matter except what you have told us here to day?—Certainly.

11,265. You have made a clean breast of it?—Certainly, every word I have spoken to you is the truth, I know nothing else.

11,266. (Mr. Mansfield.) Did you receive instructions from anybody except your father?—No.

Adjourned to to-morrow at half-past 10 o'clock.

ELEVENTH DAY.

Tuesday, 31st August 1869.

ELEVENTH DAY.
J. Houghton.
31 Aug. 1869.

JOHN HOUGHTON sworn and examined.

11,267. (Mr. Dowdeswell.) Are you a voter?—Yes.

11,268. Did you vote at the last election?—Yes.

11,269. For whom did you vote?—For Mr. Stracey.

11,270. You were an active supporter of Sir Henry Stracey's, were you not?—Not much.

11,271. Do you know Mr. Hulme, the chemist?—Yes, I know him quite well.

11,272. Did you see him on the afternoon of the polling day?—Yes; I saw him two or three times.

11,273. Is your brother's name William?—Yes.

11,274. Was your brother William with you when you saw Mr. Hulme?—No; I saw my brother very early that day.

11,275. When you saw Mr. Hulme on the afternoon of that day did he not give you 5*l.*?—He made a mistake if he said he did; he gave me 5*s.*, that is 4*l.* 15*s.* short of 5*l.*; that is what he gave me.

11,276. He gave you 5*s.*, you say?—Yes.

11,277. For what purpose did he give you 5*s.*?—I made a demand upon him for that 5*s.*

11,278. For what?—This was about half-past 4 or 5 o'clock.

11,279. How came you to make a demand upon him for 5*s.*?—I saw a man in the street and he said to me, "John, I should like to get enough to pay for "a day's work." I said, "What do you want?" and he said, "A crown." I said, "Very well;" and we went and had a pint of beer, which I paid for, and gave him the change.

11,280. You gave a man 5*s.* to vote, and Mr. Hulme gave you that 5*s.* back?—That is it, but I did not pay the man till half-past 5.

11,281. Do you mean on your oath to swear that

Mr. Hulme did not give you 5*l.*?—I have told you that before. I did not receive it. I never saw it.

11,282. But did you feel it?—I did not see it, nor yet feel it.

11,283. This is a very serious matter and not a fit subject for laughter, did you feel it, sir?—No.

11,284. Do you mean to swear that you had nothing but 5*s.* given you by Mr. Hulme that afternoon?—I have told you so before.

11,285. Will you take your solemn oath that you did not get 5*l.* or any sum beyond 5*s.*, from Mr. Hulme that evening?—I did not get a farthing more.

11,286. Did you see Mr. Hulme a week ago?—Yes.

11,287. What conversation had you with him then?—We had a lot of conversation, and he said just as you say about my having 5*l.*

11,288. Could you have received 5*l.* and put it in your pocket and then have forgotten it?—No, I never had it.

11,289. You had a conversation with Mr. Hulme a week ago, and he told you you had had 5*l.*?—Yes.

11,290. And what did you say to him?—I asked him when I had it.

11,291. How came you to ask Mr. Hulme when you had it?—He said that I had it and I asked him when.

11,292. How came you to ask when it was that he gave it to you?—Well, he said he had given it to me and I asked him when.

11,293. Why did you ask him that question?—I do not know; the man never gave it to me. I say that I never had 5*l.* in my pocket.

11,294. Perhaps you did not put it in your pocket; you gave it to some one else?—I never took it in my hands, nor gave it to anyone else.

11,295. Where did Mr. Hulme have this conversation with you?—I do not know. I often see him and speak to him.

11,296. Did you go to Mr. Hulme a week ago?—I do not recollect it.

11,297. But you recollect having a conversation with him, in the course of which you asked him when he gave the money to you?—Yes, I asked him.

11,298. Did you not go to him for the purpose of having that conversation?—I did not go to him for that conversation at all.

11,299. You swore just now that you asked him when he gave you the 5*l.*?—He said he gave it to me and I asked him when.

11,300. How came you to speak to Mr. Hulme about 5*l.*?—I never spoke to him about 5*l.* not till yesterday, when I saw my name stuck in print for 5*l.*

11,301. But you said that Mr. Hulme said you had had 5*l.*, and upon his saying that, you asked him when he gave it to you?—I did ask him that when he said I had had it. I said, "When had I it, I never had it "in my life."

11,302. The question was not then whether you had got it, but when you had got it?—I never had it.

11,303. How came you to swear just now that you never knew anything about his giving you 5*l.* until you read it in the papers?—I say so now; that man never gave me 5*l.*

11,304. You swore just now that you knew nothing about 5*l.* until you read it in the paper yesterday; how then came you to go to Mr. Hulme a week ago and ask him when he gave it to you?—I say I never had it.

11,305. (Mr. Biron.) You may say that as long as you like, but you must answer the question that is put to you?—Do you wish me to stand here and swear that I had 5*l.* when I had only 5*s.*? I never had 5*l.*

11,306. (Mr. Dowdeswell.) You swore just now that you never knew anything about this 5*l.* until you read it in the paper yesterday, and I ask how came you to go a week ago to Mr. Hulme and ask him when he gave you the 5*l.*?—I never went to him to ask him that question; it was Mr. Hulme asked me about this 5*l.* and I asked him when he gave it me.

11,307. Then you had heard about the 5*l.*?—Never till then, about a week ago.

11,308. Did you not go to his house and ask him when it was that he gave you the 5*l.*?—No; he asked me about the 5*l.*

11,309. Just tell me what you say he asked you?—He asked me whether I could give any account of the money. I said, "What money?" He said, "You "know what you had," and I said "All I had was 5*s.*" "Oh," says he, "you must say different to that; you "must say 5*l.*;" that is what he said.

11,310. And that you heard a week ago?—Yes.

11,311. Did you pay any money on that day to anybody?—Only one man.

11,312. Then did you stick to the rest of the money?—No. I never had none. I had not a farthing.

11,313. (Mr. Biron.) You know Mr. Hulme has sworn that you had?—He may swear what he likes. I never had it.

11,314. (Mr. Dowdeswell.) Did you canvass for Sir Henry Stracey?—A little, and a very little.

11,315. Who did you canvass?—Only people just in our lane.

11,316. How many men did you canvass?—I do not suppose I canvassed above ten or a dozen.

11,317. Did you promise any of them money?—No.

11,318. Do you know Bishop?—No; I had nothing to do with no Bishop.

11,319. Did you canvass Bishop?—No.

11,320. Did you canvass Brooks?—No.

11,321. Did you canvass Parker?—No.

11,322. You know the men I mean?—Yes, I know them quite well.

11,323. What is Bishop's name?—I do not know; there are several Bishops living in our parish.

11,324. I am speaking of the Bishop you know?—I know two Bishops.

11,325. Did you canvass either of the Bishops?—No, neither of them.

11,326. Where do they live?—One lives in St. Swithin's Terrace, and the other lives down in what they call Eagle Yard.

11,327. Do you know Brooks?—Yes, well.

11,328. Where does he live?—By the "Hampshire Hog" yard.

11,329. And Parker?—Yes.

11,330. Where does he live?—Just by.

11,331. Did you not tell Bishop, Brooks, and Parker, or one of them, that there would be some money on the election day for them, for their votes?—No.

11,332. Will you swear that you said nothing of the sort to them?—Nothing of the sort; I did not.

11,333. Not to one of them?—Not to one of them, and I never canvassed one of them.

11,334. Did you not say it to any other man you canvassed?—No, I did not say to any other man I canvassed that there would be money. I never said no such words.

11,335. Or that they could get some money?—No.

11,336. Or anything like that?—No, nor nothing like that, for I had none, or very little indeed.

11,337. Where were you at the time of the inquiry before Mr. Baron Martin?—At Stalham.

11,338. How far is that from here?—About 14 miles.

11,339. Did you go there for the benefit of your health?—Sometimes I do. I shall go out now for a week as soon as you have done with me.

11,340. Do you mean to say that you went there for your health?—I went because I was asked to go.

11,341. By whom were you asked to go?—By my brother.

11,342. Does your brother live there?—No.

11,343. You both went together, did you?—Yes.

11,344. What did you do when you got there?—Nothing; walked about.

ELEVENTH DAY.

J. Houghton.

31 Aug. 1869.

11,345. How do you get your living?—I am a dyer by business.

11,346. You were at this place for a fortnight?—I think it was rather more.

11,347. You were there during the whole of the inquiry?—Yes, I think so.

11,348. And you returned immediately after it was over?—A day or two afterwards I think I did, but I could not say to a day.

11,349. How came it that you went away during that time?—I could not tell you.

11,350. Do you mean to swear that you do not know why you went away?—Because my brother wished me to go.

11,351. Why did he wish you to go?—I do not know.

11,352. Do you mean to say that you went away a distance of 14 miles because your brother wished you to do so, without any reason being stated for it?—He had a reason.

11,353. What was his reason?—To get me out of the way of the inquiry.

11,354. And why did you wish to get out of the way of the inquiry?—I had no particular wish myself. I was wished to go, that is all.

11,355. But why did you wish to get out of the way of the inquiry?—My brother wished me to go.

11,356. Why did he wish you to go?—I do not know.

11,357. Do you mean to tell me that you have not the slightest notion why he wished you to go?—I had no object in going; it was a very slow time with me.

11,358. You told me just now that you went away because your brother wished you to go?—Quite right.

11,359. But you say you do not know why your brother wished you to go?—He wished me to go because I should be out of the way of the inquiry.

11,360. Why did he wish you to be out of the way of the inquiry?—I do not know.

11,361. If you had received 5*l.* to bribe voters with there was good reason why your brother should wish you to be out of the way; was not that the reason?—No, I never had the money.

11,362. Had you the promise of 5*l.*?—No.

11,363. You received no more than 5*s.*?—No more than 5*s.*

11,364. And you cannot give us any reason why your brother should want you to get out of the way?—No, I cannot tell you, no otherwise than that he said, "John," says he, "you had better get out of this inquiry," and I thought it might answer my purpose; and I put my bills and circulars about, which I often do when I go from country to country.

11,365. You have been on your oath all this time?—I know it.

11,366. Do you mean now, upon your oath, after these questions have been put to you in this court, to tell the people here that you did not receive anything more than 5*s.* from Mr. Hulme?—I have said so many times.

11,367. I caution you?—I am much obliged to you for your caution. All I have to say is that I never had any more.

11,368. Who paid your expenses when you went away?—My brother paid most of them.

11,369. How came your brother to pay most of the expenses?—Because the money, I believe, was given to him for that purpose.

11,370. Who gave the money to him?—Mr. Dawson.

11,371. When did he give him money for the purpose of getting you out of the way?—That I do not know. Yes, I do, stop, he gave it to me on the Saturday morning.

11,372. When did you go away?—On the Saturday.

11,373. Then they came and got you out of the way on the Saturday afternoon?—Yes; it was the forenoon, I think, when I went away.

11,374. Had you ever been away before for the same length of time walking about?—I often go out for a week and more, especially if it is wet.

11,375. Had you been away before for the same length of time?—No, I am not aware that I have.

11,376. Perhaps you never had the same cause for going away before?—No, not such a cause as that.

11,377. Did you read the evidence that was given in the paper last night?—Yes.

11,378. Who called your attention to it?—A man in the street.

11,379. Who was that man?—That I could not say. I do not know his name. I should know the man if I saw him. I saw him here a little while ago.

11,380. Did you see him in the court here?—Yes.

11,381. Who came to you before that?—No one.

11,382. Did nobody speak to you about it before that?—No; that was the first man that spoke to me about it, and he told me that he had heard my name called over in court.

11,383. Did you see Mr. Hulme last night?—Yes; I went and asked him what authority he had to do what he had done.

11,384. Mr. Hulme said that you had had the 5*l.*, did he not?—Mr. Hulme did not tell me so.

11,385. Do you mean to tell us that he did not say you had had the 5*l.*?—No, certainly not. I said he had no business to do such a thing.

11,386. When Mr. Hulme gave you the 5*s.* was anybody present?—No, I do not think there was.

11,387. Where was it that he gave you the 5*s.*?—At the "Three Pigeons."

11,388. At what time in the day?—I should think it was about a quarter or 20 minutes after 4, or it might be half past.

11,389. Was it not 20 minutes after 3?—No, it was after 4.

11,390. Did you take up any men to poll?—Only one.

11,391. Where did you take him from?—He was just by in the street; he had been carrying a board.

11,392. Where did you take him from?—Just by the door of the "Pigeons."

11,393. Did you take nobody from the "Pigeons" that afternoon?—No.

11,394. Was that the only person you went up with to the poll that afternoon?—That is the only one.

11,395. Will you undertake to swear that you did not go up with several men to the poll in the afternoon?—I will swear that I did not; he was the only man I walked with to the poll.

11,396. How came you to apply to Mr. Hulme for 5*s.*?—Because I saw he was chairman; I saw him sitting with a book, and I reckoned him to be chairman.

11,397. Did you go into the room then and ask him for 5*s.*, because he was secretary to the committee?—I told him that I had given a man 5*s.* or had promised him 5*s.* and I wanted it, and he gave me the 5*s.*, and we went and had a glass of ale together, and I gave the man the change.

11,398. You went into the committee room and got 5*s.* from Mr. Hulme saying that you had paid it for the purpose of bribing a voter?—Quite right.

11,399. How did it happen that being an active man at the election, you did not give a few other men 5*s.*?—I do not know; I had no money so I could not give it to them.

11,400. If you had no money how could you give that man the 5*s.* which you say was not paid to you till afterwards?—I suppose I had left sometimes half a crown or a crown of my own in my pocket.

11,401. But where did you get the 5*s.* that you gave to this particular man?—I had that 5*s.* in my pocket and more. I had 7*s.* or 8*s.* in my pocket.

11,402. Who was the man to whom you gave the 5*s.*?—His name is John Crotch.

11,403. Where does he live?—He lives somewhere in St. Swithin's or St. Margaret's, I do not know which.

11,404. What time in the day did you give it to him?—I gave it to him about five minutes before four.

11,405. You did not hand over any more coin to any other man about that time, did you?—No.

11,406. Only to the man you took to the poll?—Yes.

11,407. Meeting Crotch outside the "Pigeons" at about 10 minutes to four, you gave him 5*s.* for his vote?—He said he wanted a day's work and I gave it to him.

11,408. How came you unless you were provided with funds to enable you to do it, to be giving him 5*s.*?—Because I had two or three little bets about it.

11,409. How did it happen you did this 10 minutes to 4 o'clock, and that you never did it before?—I had never done anything of that sort before.

11,410. (Mr. Biron.) Had you a bet with Mr. Hulme about it, or with whom did you bet?—I took one of Mr. Daynes.

11,411. (Mr. Dowdeswell.) What was the bet?—He laid me 10*s.* to 2*s.* they would return Russell and Tillett.

11,412. What time in the day did you make that bet?—It was made a week before, and the money was drawn on the Saturday after.

11,413. What other bets had you besides that?—I am sure I cannot tell you. I had 1*s.* and I had 2*s.* on.

11,414. You won your bet you know?—Yes, I did.

11,415. And were you paid?—Yes.

11,416. You knew the men to go to, to get paid?—Yes.

11,417. Can you not tell me who it was?—Yes; Mr. Rix was stakeholder for Daynes' money.

11,418. Who was the man with whom you made the other bet?—I do not know; he was in the "Pigeons" on the day in question, and I laid a shilling along with a young man named Hall who lives somewhere in Union Place.

11,419. What was the bet?—He laid an even shilling that they elected Russell and Tillett, and I took that bet.

11,420. What time in the day was it that you took that bet?—I suppose that bet was made a week before.

William Houghton sworn and examined.

W. Houghton.

11,421. (Mr. Mansfield.) Have you been in court this morning?—I was in about a minute and Mr. Gorcham ordered me out.

11,422. Have you heard your brother examined?—Yes; a few words.

11,423. Are you a voter?—Yes.

11,424. For whom did you vote at the last election?—Sir Henry Stracey.

11,425. Where do you live?—At Lower Westwick, St. Swithin's.

11,426. Do you recollect taking up voters?—Yes.

11,427. How many of them?—Four or five.

11,428. What did you promise them?—What did I give them? I give two of them 5*s.* each; two of them half a sovereign each; at least I did not give it to the men. I gave it to the women.

11,429. Can you give us the names of any persons to whom you gave it?—John Kennington, Abel, ——the other name has loosed my memory.

11,430. What were the names of the women?—Mrs. Beckett and Mrs. Bygrave.

11,431. Where do they live?—St. Margaret's. The three men live in St. Swithin's, Church Alley.

11,432. What time in the day was it that you got these men up?—Just before four. I never saw the two men what I asked; the women all got them up.

11,433. You know they voted?—Yes, I know they voted.

11,434. You did not pay the money till you knew that?—Yes, I did.

11,435. You trusted what the ladies said to you?—That they would ask their husbands to vote—yes.

11,436. Did you know those people before?—Yes, years back.

11,437. At elections?—Yes.

11,438. Did you know that they were waiting to get a day's wages?—One was only just up, and one had not been home all the day, because one of them, Bygrave, is a watchman.

11,439. Had you ever canvassed them before?—No, I don't know that ever I did.

11,440. What is Bygrave's christian name?—William Bygrave.

11,441. What other people did you take up during this day?—Oh, I and Mr. Hart, we went to the workhouse with a cab, and got one up; and we went and got two more people up out of St. Margaret's that could not walk, we had to take a cab for them.

11,442. Who were they?—Mr. Leman was one, and I think Mr. Turner was the other, up in the Lord Howe yard. I think that is his name.

11,443. At what time was this?—Eleven o'clock in the forenoon.

11,444. Did you see Mr. Hart give anything to those voters?—Not a halfpenny I did not, and I did not see Mr. Hart.

11,445. Did you make any promise?—No. The women asked us for something to drink. I said I had got nothing to give away; so did Mr. Hart.

11,446. How soon in the day was it that you had something to give away?—A quarter past 3.

11,447. Who gave it to you?—Mr. Hulme.

11,448. How much did he give you?—Thirty shillings; three half-sovereigns first of all.

11,449. After that, how much?—Half a sovereign when I went back.

11,450. How much after that?—Nothing.

11,451. Has he given you anything since that day?—Two halfcrowns separately.

11,452. When was that?—A week or two after the election.

11,453. What is the whole amount that you received from Hulme?—The whole amount I received from Hulme was 2*l.* that day, and two halfcrowns since. I have had a glass of ale with him at different times.

11,454. Is that all the cash that you received from Mr. Hulme?—That is all.

11,455. Does he owe you anything now?—No, I don't reckon he owes me anything.

11,456. How much did you spend out of the money that was handed over to you by Hulme?—1*l.* 15*s.*, and I spent the other in drink.

11,457. For yourself and the voters?—The voters had some, and I had, and other people had it as well as me. I did not put it in my pocket.

11,458. What was your brother doing on that day?—I don't think I scarcely spoke to my brother the whole day; I know I did not.

11,459. You do not know much of your brother, do you?—No, I never scarcely spoke to my brother the whole day of the election.

11,460. At other times do you see much of him?—I cannot help seeing him; his dye offices is in the yard where I live. Of course I must see him. He comes to my house, and he is very good to my children, as far as that goes, always nursing them and so on.

11,461. Do you recollect him stopping at Stalham at the time of the election inquiry?—Yes, quite well. We did not stop there all the time.

11,462. Where did you go to?—To East Rosson, and stopped at his brother-in-law's.

11,463. Where else?—We took a walk to Aylesbury and thereabouts.

11,464. You did not come to Norwich during the inquiry?—No, we did not want.

11,465. You knew very well that your brother did not want?—No, he did not want. We done very well; we drunk very well, and ate very well, and slept very well.

11,466. Who paid so well for it?—I paid part of it myself. His brother-in-law paid the chief of it.

11,467. Where did it come from?—We had not much money.

11,468. Where did the money come from?—I mean to tell you the truth. You want to hear the truth?

11,469. Yes?—Mr. Dawson gave us 5l. to start with, then he sent us 2l. more; Mr. Samuel Dawson. Then after we came home, after being away 19 days, he treated us with another sovereign. There, sir, that is the money we had.

11,470. Is that all?—Yes.

11,471. Why were you keeping out of the way?—Because they said we should get this and that done to us if we were not out of the way. Mr. Hulme was the man who sent for me on New Year's night. I was going out to a party that night, and he sent to me to know if me and John would be so good as leave Norwich. I was just next door; I was at the party.

11,472. I suppose you thought that because you had been engaged in this bribery that you have mentioned, it was time for you to be off?—He asked me if I would leave Norwich.

11,473. You knew what his reason was?—Of course I did.

11,474. What was your brother's reason?—I cannot tell you my brother's reason; I must leave that to him. I cannot answer for him; all I can do is to answer for myself.

11,475. You knew what his reason was?—I suppose it was the same.

11,476. You knew that your brother had been putting money about?—I don't think he had much.

11,477. You knew he had some from Mr. Hulme?—Not but very little. He once told me he did not get a sovereign.

11,478. Cannot you tell me how much he got?—I never saw him on the day of the election.

11,479. But afterwards you saw him?—He was a man that never told me anything what he did.

11,480. He is a very discreet man?—That I assure you.

11,481. He never talked to you about the election after you got to Stalham?—We never talked about the election; we had something else to pass away our time.

11,482. Do you mean to tell me you never knew what your brother did on the day of the election?—Upon my oath I never knew what he did.

11,483. Do you know whether he got any money from anybody to put about that day?—I heard that he got a little money from Mr. Hulme.

11,484. How much did he say it was?—He never told me.

11,485. Are you sure he did not get 5l.?—No; if he did he is a story teller. He always told me that he never got a pound; he said he had got but a very few shillings.

11,486. How many?—I will be on my oath, he never told me. He said he never got a pound.

11,487. Did you ever tell him what money you got?—No; and he never heard what I got till this minute.

11,488. You never told anybody?—Not a soul, though Mr. Hulme wanted me to come and swear that I got 5l.

11,489. When did Mr. Hulme see you?—Yesterday.

11,490. What passed between you?—He and I went to have a glass of ale together.

11,491. Where?—Nearly opposite what they call the old workhouse.

11,492. Did he call you in, or did you speak to him?—I was going past, and he stopped me.

11,493. Was anybody else there?—Yes, there come a man in with an order to attend here directly.

11,494. Did he stop in the room?—No, he give me a paper and out he went.

11,495. What did Mr. Hulme say?—He said, "Have a glass of ale with me?" I said, "I don't "care if I do." He says; "you know what I told "you to say, you and your brother John, you say you "had 5l. of me and likewise your brother John; and "do you see John and tell him;" but I never see John to tell him any such thing, because I would not breathe it to him; that I can assure you. I was not coming to tell you I had got 5l. when I only got 2l.; and I laid it out.

11,496. Did you tell Hulme you would not tell your brother?—No.

11,497. You knew that your brother afterwards went to Hulme?—Yes, because my brother told me so.

11,498. When?—This morning.

11,499. You have been talking to your brother this morning about this matter?—Of course we had the little affair over.

11,500. You agreed upon what sums you were to tell us that you had received?—No, I never agreed upon anything. I told him I would tell the whole truth and nothing but the truth.

11,501. You have never told anybody what you had received?—Not to a soul. I was going to tell Mr. Hulme how I laid out the 2l. that he gave me, but he said he did not want to hear anything about it.

11,502. When was that conversation?—Just after the election.

11,503–4. How came you at this election in the first instance to see Mr. Hulme?—We have always seen one another for many years past at elections.

11,505. You have acted for him?—I generally do run about for him.

11,506. You put a little money about?—No.

11,507. You know you have?—No.

11,508. Will you swear you have not put any money about at the elections at Norwich before?—I won't swear such a thing as that.

11,509. Will you swear that Mr. Hulme has not given you money at former elections?—I won't swear that.

11,510. How much has he ever given you?—I cannot recollect. I am no scholar. I cannot put anything down.

11,511. You have acted for him more than once before?—Yes.

11,512. He has had the greatest possible confidence in you?—I don't know why he should not.

11,513. Did he ever doubt your word before?—No, I should say not.

11,514. Or ever quarrel with you about your account?—No.

11,515. You have generally told him how you spent the money?—If I had any money to spend.

11,516. You always satisfied him that you spent it correctly and it was all on the square?—Whatsoever I might have if I had any of his money.

11,517. This time there is a difference between you as to the amount?—I received three half-sovereigns first and then half a sovereign. He told me to say I had got 5l.

11,518. Will you swear that you had not 5l.?—Yes. Upon my oath I had not.

11,519. Did you get nothing for yourself out of the transaction?—I never had a halfpenny in my life, not for voting.

11,520. When this money was first given you, did you go to him for it, or did he send for you?—I was there in the room. He called me on one side and gave it to me.

11,521. Who was present in the room?—There was a lot of people present, but they did not see nothing of that because we went just outside the door.

11,522. Who were the people present?—I cannot tell you; there was a lot.

11,523. You had been acting for that party?—I had been out and in the room the whole day.

11,524. You cannot remember who was there?—I cannot tell you.

11,525. Try and remember?—There is so many goes and comes it is impossible for me to remember. It is no use my telling you a story. I cannot recollect.

11,526. You cannot call them to mind?—No; the room was partly crowded. I am sure I cannot tell you; a lot of strangers, one and another.

11,527. Did you get money from anybody else except Mr. Hulme?—No.

11,528. Not on this or any other occasion?—No.

11,529. When was the first time that you heard Mr. Hulme had said that he had given you 5l.?—I never heard nothing said about it till Mr. Hulme told me to say so himself.

11,530. When was that?—About a fortnight back; somewhere about a fortnight since.

11,531. What led you to go to Mr. Hulme a fortnight ago?—I see him when I go past. If he is standing in the door and that like, he asks me to go and take a glass of ale with him, and I go and take a glass with him.

11,532. It is a fortnight ago since he first spoke to you about the 5l.?—Yes.

11,533. Did you mention that to anybody?—No; it wern't likely, not till last night, and then I told a gentleman of it in the market place.

11,534. Whom did you tell in the market place?—Mr. Greene; and he is now in court I see.

11,535. Do you know what time it was that it was first mentioned to Mr. Hulme about your brother?—No.

11,536. Are you certain of that?—I did not know what my brother was going to say not till Mr. Hulme told me yesterday. He told me that me and my brother was going to say that we had 5l. each; but I had no faith in it, not that I was going to say it.

11,537. The first conversation was about a fortnight ago with you?—Yes, he requested me to say that I had 5l., what I never had.

11,538. The next conversation was last night?——About 1 o'clock yesterday, the same time he was sent for to come into this court.

11,539. Did you see your brother yesterday?—Yes, several times.

11,540. At what time?—Yesterday morning I saw him before breakfast.

11,541. What other time?—After breakfast. I saw him several times during the day.

11,542. Did you see him about 1 o'clock?—No, I don't recollect seeing him about 1 o'clock. I saw him yesterday, last night when he came to lock up his place, take his things, and so on.

11,543. Did your brother come to your place yesterday to see you?—Yes, he did come down, but I was not there not at the time he did come there, but I was there before he went away, and I was there when Mr. Goreham came and brought the order to come up here.

11,544. Your brother was there then?—He was there then.

11,545. At what time in the day was that?—Half-past 3.

11,546. Then you had seen Mr. Hulme at 1 and had a conversation with your brother at half-past 3, and you had another conversation with Mr. Hulme in the evening?—I had another conversation with my brother.

11,547. What did he say to you?—He said, "You want to see me," I said, "No, I don't want to see you, I only asked if you were there as I come past." That is all the conversation we had.

11,548. In the evening you saw Mr. Hulme again?—Yes, and I went and treated him with a pint or two of beer.

11,549. You still stuck to the same story about the money?—I never mentioned the money at all.

11,550. Not in the evening?—No, I never breathed it.

11,551. Did you breathe nothing about what you were going to say here to-day?—No, I don't recollect breathing such a thing as that. If he brought it up to me I told him I did not want to hear nothing at all about it. I told him so again and again, lots of times, when he brought it up. I said I did not want to hear nothing about it. That is the way I talked to him about it. He and I have had the greatest falling out two brothers could have. I never would have no conversation with him about it.

11,552. (Mr. Dowdeswell.) You have been concerned in other elections, have not you?—Oh yes, a little.

11,553. About how much money did you have at the former election?—I cannot tell you.

11,554. One hundred pounds?—No.

11,555. Twenty pounds?—Nor 20*l.*

11,556. Ten pounds?—I have had as much as 10*l.*

11,557. At which election had you as much as 10*l.*?—1865; Waters', I think it was.

11,558. What had you at the election before?—None at all.

11,559. You can recollect that?—Yes, I recollect that.

11,560. What did you do with the 10*l.* at the former election?—I laid 5l. of it out and gave 5l. of it to Mr. Hulme back again.

11,561. When?—The same day, the election day, directly we found that we had lost the election.

11,562. You lost that election?—Yes; directly Mr. Waters was no use the election was turned up.

11,563. Upon what did you spend the 5l.? How many men did you bribe?—I gave that to one man.

11,564. Who was that man?—Mr. Jarvis in Pottergate Street.

11,565. Was that the only man you spoke to about money or gave money to?—Yes.

11,566. How came you to give him 5l.?—Because he said Mr. Hulme promised him 5l., and he sent it up to me.

11,567. What did he send the other 5l. for?—To go and give it to another man. I could not find the other man.

11,568. That is how you came to return the 5l.?—That is why I returned the 5l.

11,569. You say that Mr. Hulme gave you two sums on the day of the election?—Yes.

11,570. At what time in the afternoon did he give you the first sum, the 30*s.*?—At a quarter past 3, or half-past 3 it might be.

11,571. At what time did he give you the second sum of 10*s.*?—I dare say a little more than a quarter to 4.

11,572. What did you do with the money?—Went and got three men up to vote.

11,573. Where did you pick up the three men?—In St. Swithin's Church Alley.

11,574. Did you see any other men in St. Swithin's Church Alley?—I think I did.

11,575. Whom else did you see there?—I think two or three men. I cannot tell you now. I know I see some men there. I am sure I cannot tell you.

11,576. Had you given or promised no money to anybody else?—I went and offered a man 5s. and he would not take it.

11,577. Who was that man?—Sam Holl, a freeman.

11,578. Where does he live?—In the Church Alley.

11,579. That was after you had paid the three men in the Church Alley?—Yes.

11,580. And before you had got the other 10*s.*?—No, that was after I had got the 10*s.*

11,581. You did not get the 10*s.* till just before 4?—That was just before 4, because they were the last men that voted and the books were closed as soon as they had voted. That you will find.

ELEVENTH DAY.

W. Houghton.

31 Aug. 1869.

11,582. Did you take up any more men besides the three men that you have mentioned, and the other man?—The last man, Mr. Holl, would not go and vote.

11,583. The man to whom you offered the 5*s.* was a grocer was he not?—He was a shoemaker. They were all shoemakers I think.

11,584. What time do you say you offered the man 5*s.*?—Just before 4; there was just time to vote.

11,585. You did get another man to vote?—Yes, I got three.

11,586. Yes, but afterwards?—No, I never got another man after that.

11,587. Then for what reason did you go for the 10*s.*?—Because I had not enough money. I gave the first two half-sovereigns to two women. Do you understand me?

11,588. Yes. What next?—Then I went up and see them men come up, and then I went up and see Mr. Hulme again and he gave me another half-sovereign.

11,589. You went away just before the election inquiry?—Yes.

11,590. And your brother went with you, did not he?—Yes.

11,591. Did you remain away together from the time you went away till you returned?—Yes.

11,592. Who persuaded your brother to go?—Well, I believe I did. I told him Mr. Hulme had been after me, and he wished us to leave Norwich for a time till after the inquiry.

11,593. Did you tell him why Mr. Hulme wished you to leave Norwich?—No, I did not tell him why, because he knew what was meant.

11,594. How did you know that?—I left that to him.

11,595. But you were going to convey to him the message of Mr. Hulme and to persuade him to leave Norwich?—No, I did not persuade him to leave.

11,596. You did not persuade him?—No. I told him what Mr. Hulme had been and said on New Year's night. He said, "Very well," and the next morning I had a man come down to my works, saying I was wanted up at the "Bull," at the Market Place.

11,597. Then you did not persuade him to leave Norwich?—No, I did not persuade him.

11,598. Did not you ask him why Mr. Hulme wanted him to leave Norwich?—I did not know nothing at all what he had done with Mr. Hulme.

11,599. You were going to arrange with him to go away from Norwich?—Yes.

11,600. Do you mean to say that you never asked your brother why Mr. Hulme wanted him to leave Norwich?—I judged what that was for.

11,601. Do you mean to say that you did not talk the matter over with you own brother?—Those are all the words we talked.

11,602. Was that all that was said during the whole of the time that you were away during the election inquiry?—I do not recollect talking about the election affair but very little indeed.

11,603. Did not your own brother tell you what money he had had?—No.

11,604. Did not you ask him?—No, and never thought of such a thing.

11,605. Having yourself received money what would prevent you from asking your brother what he had received?—Because if he had asked me I should not have told him, and I did not want him to tell me.

11,606. Why did you scruple to tell your own brother that?—I am not so wrapped up in my own brother as all that. I don't want him to know my private affairs. What I do I do myself. I don't want my own brother to interfere with it.

11,607. Do you mean to say you would not speak to your own brother about the money you had received?—No, I should not.

11,608. You cannot trust him?—I would not speak to him about any such thing.

11,609. You cannot trust even your own brother?—I would not tell him. What I would not ask him to tell me, I would not tell him.

11,610. Would not your own brother trust you?—I don't know; I never asked him the question.

11,611. You knew Mr. Hulme said that?—Mr. Hulme told me yesterday that I had 5*l.* and I knew I had not.

11,612. When you were talking with your own brother yesterday, and you knew it was alleged that he had had 5*l.* and he said he had not had 20 shillings, do you mean to swear you did not say to him, "How "much had you"?—Not till last night; never before.

11,613. Did you not ask before, when he told you that?—He never told me that, not till last night.

11,614. (Mr. Biron.) We are talking of last night?—He told me how he had been to Mr. Hulme and given him a blowing up.

11,615. (Mr. Dowdeswell.) My question was, When your brother told you that he had not received a pound from Mr. Hulme, how came it that you did not ask him how much he did receive?—I would not do it.

11,616. When it was talked about all over the place?—I would not ask him that. He never told me.

11,617. Did not you ask him yesterday?—No; I was not going to ask him such a thing as that, because if he had asked me a question like that I would not have answered him.

11,618. What time last night was it?—When we were having a glass of ale.

11,619. You think he would not have told you the truth?—He would have told me to mind my own business, the same as I would have told him.

11,620. What time did you see him last night?—Nine or 10 o'clock.

11,621. You had read in the paper what had occurred here?—I had not. I cannot read at all.

11,622. Had anybody read it to you?—Yes.

11,623. And you have talked over this very same thing this morning?—Yes, I think we have.

11,624. You and your brother?—I believe we have.

11,625. Did your brother never tell you this morning what he received?—No, nor I never asked him. I should not ask him.

11,626. You were discussing whether he had received 5*l.* Do you mean to say that your brother never told you what he had actually received?—My brother said he had not received a pound; never.

11,627. That is all he told you?—That is all he told me.

11,628. Who was it that read the paper to you?—Oh, lots of people.

11,629. Just mention one of the lot?—My son read it to me.

11,630. Who else?—Mr. Cotton, where I go and get a glass of ale in the evening. He read it to me. I took every night's sheet last week, so I have done the whole way throughout.

11,631. You say you went some time ago and spoke to Mr. Hulme about this?—I never went at all, only as I have been going past, Mr. Hulme has called me in when he has been standing at the door, and asked me to have a glass of ale.

11,632. A fortnight ago Mr. Hulme did speak to you about the matter?—About a fortnight back about the money?

11,633. Yes?—Yes, about my saying I had received 5*l.* what I never had.

11,634. How did the conversation begin?—He says, says he, "You know when this inquiry takes place "you and your brother will be examined. Your "brother is going to say that he received 5*l.* and you "will have to say the same."

11,635. "Your brother is going to say that he "received 5*l.* and you will say the same?"—Yes, that kind of thing stunned me. I made him no answer.

11,636. "Your brother is going to say that he had 5*l.*" Is that what he said?—Yes.

11,637. "And you will say the same"?—Yes, this is what Mr. Hulme told me.

11,638. You saw your brother constantly about this time?—I never brought it up to him that day; two or three days after, perhaps.

11,639. When you were told that your brother was going to say that he had received 5*l.* and that you had to say the same, did you never speak to your brother about it?—Yes.

11,640. When did you speak to your brother about it?—Three or four days after; I cannot say when.

11,641. What did you say to your brother then?—I said, "How much money had you from Mr. "Hulme"? Just in this way I put it. "You are "going to say you received 5*l.*" He says, "Oh, am "I? but I aren't going to say no such thing." "Of "course," says I, "I am going to speak the truth, if "I am called up, and nothing but the truth."

11,642. You swore some time ago that until last night you never asked your brother how much money he had received?—That is the way I put it. (The shorthand writer reads a passage from the notes.)

11,643. You know over and over again I asked you whether you had not asked your brother "How much money did you receive from Mr. Hulme," and you swore that until last night you never asked him?—Nothing till last night in the way that I put it to you. I did not recollect that not till this minute.

11,644. Then that is all your brother said?—Yes; that is all he said to me.

11,645. Did you see Mr. Hulme after that?—I saw him yesterday.

11,646. Before yesterday I mean. You had seen your brother; he told you he had not received 5*l.* Now, between a fortnight ago and yesterday did you go to Mr. Hulme?—No.

11,647. How came you, having been told that your brother was not going to state that, not immediately to go to Mr. Hulme and say, "My brother never "received 5*l.* He never received so much as a "pound"?—I did not trouble a halfpenny about it. I was not going to interfere with it.

11,648. Although you knew that you were coming here as a witness?—Though I knew I was coming here as a witness. I was not going to dirty my fingers about it.

11,649. (Mr. Biron.) But he was asking you to commit perjury?—I was not going to see Mr. Hulme.

11,650. If your story was correct Mr. Hulme was asking you to commit perjury?—My story is correct.

11,651. Then he was asking you to commit perjury?—Yes. I am aware of that. He told me I was to say I had 5*l.*

11,652. (Mr. Dowdeswell.) He told you he was going to say you had received 5*l.*?—No; I thought I was to say that.

11,653. You knew last night that he had sworn it?—Yes.

11,654. Mr. Cotton or some one read out his evidence that he swore you had received 5*l.*?—Yes.

11,655. What did you say?—That it was a big story, and I should contradict it.

11,656. That did rouse you then. Why did not you say that to Mr. Hulme?—After he said that I was not going back.

11,657. He was inviting you to lie, a fortnight ago. Why did you not contradict him then?—I can please my own self about that. I come here to speak the truth.

JOHN TIMOTHY TODD sworn and examined.

J. T. Todd.

11,658. (Mr. Dowdeswell.) I believe you are a clerk in Messrs. Harvey's bank?—I am.

11,659. Do you recollect on the day of the election changing a cheque for Mr. Webster?—Perfectly well.

11,660. What was the amount of that cheque?—200*l.*

11,661. Was that on his own account?—Yes.

11,662. And was it debited to his account?—Yes.

11,663. In what money did you give him the change?—In half sovereigns.

11,664. In what state were they, loose?—No; they were in two bags, 100*l.* in each.

11,665. Did you get them from your cashier?—Yes.

11,666. I do not know that I ever had 100*l.* in half sovereigns in a bag? Do they feel like peas?—Not very much; peas would be so light.

11,667. How much would the bags weigh?—It would require a little calculation to say; about 3½ lbs. I should think.

11,668. Each package?—I could not tell without calculating it, but certainly they would weigh more than 2 or 3 lbs.

11,669. That would be rather a large sample of peas?—I should imagine so.

11,670. Are you a voter?—No.

11,671. What was the hour in the day when you changed this cheque?—About 2 o'clock.

JOHN HUGHES HULME recalled and further examined.

J. H. Hulme.

11,672. (Mr. Biron.) You told us yesterday that on getting rid of the money you gave a man named John Houghton 5*l.* and another man named William Houghton 5*l.*?—Yes.

11,673. Where was John Houghton when you gave him the 5*l.*?—I should think at the "Pigeons." I think all this took place at the "Pigeons."

11,674. Are those the two Houghtons (pointing to the two men)?—Yes.

11,675. Was anybody present when you gave the 5*l.* to John Houghton?—No, I think not; we do not often give money in the presence of a third person.

11,675. Was anybody there or not?—No, I think not.

11,676. Was anybody present when you gave the 5*l.* to the other man?—No, I do not think anybody else was present.

11,677. In what coin did you give them the money?—In half sovereigns.

11,678. All that the men had, then, was in half sovereigns?—Yes; I had sovereigns of my own in my pocket, but I did not give John Houghton any sovereigns.

11,679. You gave him ten half sovereigns?—Yes.

11,680. And in what coin did you give the 5*l.* to the other man?—That would be in half sovereigns too.

11,681. Did you give it all in one sum at one time, or at different times?—I think I gave it all at one time. I do not think there was time enough for him to come back and report to me. I think I saw John Houghton a second time, but I do not remember seeing William.

11,682. Did you see John a second time before the poll closed?—Yes, just before the poll closed, I know I saw him a second time.

11,683. Did you say anything to him about how he had been using the money?—No; he said he had been down to St. Swithin's and brought up some men to vote; but I did not ask him for any name.

11,684. Did he not ask you for 5*s.* that he had paid to a man for voting?—No, I do not remember anything of the sort.

11,685. Did he tell you that he had paid 5*s.* to a man named Crotch for voting?—I have heard him say since that he was afraid of Crotch; that Crotch had been and told something.

ELEVENTH DAY.

J. H. Hulme.

31 Aug. 1869.

11,687. Do I understand you to say that he did not tell you on the polling day that he had paid 5*s.* to Crotch, and that he did not ask you for that 5*s.* back again?—No.

11,688. No such conversation took place?—No such conversation took place. In fact, he had had the money, and could not ask me for it back again.

11,689. Then you did not give him 5*s.* that day in a separate sum?—No; all I gave him was in gold. I gave no silver to anyone.

11,690. Do you remember whether, when the election inquiry was proceeding, after the petition, you sent for either of those men?—I think John was the Crotch man.

11,691. What did you say to him?—I said, "If "you are afraid of him, you had better go out of the "way." He had not been served with a subpœna at that time, and the object was merely to keep him out of the way of a subpœna.

11,692. How long was this before the inquiry?—I think it was the Saturday before the inquiry that he went away. Friday night was the night that I saw him. I do not know whether I saw them both, or only one of them. I went to their brother's, who keeps a publichouse at the back of the market called "The Wounded Hart." I went to John Houghton's; he was not at home. I then went to his brother David, who keeps a publichouse, and asked him if he had seen either John or William, and he sent for them and they came—I forget whether two or one came; and I said they had better get out of the way if they were afraid of a subpœna.

11,693. Did you see them both that evening?—Yes, I think so.

11,694. Did you arrange that they should go away?—No; I sent them to Mr. Dawson on the Saturday morning. I do not know whether I saw them both, or only one of them, that evening, but I fancy I had to send down to William on the Saturday morning, to tell him to come and see me. I am not certain that I saw them both the evening before they went away.

11,695. Are you certain that John Houghton told you he was afraid of Crotch?—Yes, he said that Crotch was the only man he was afraid of.

11,696. Did he tell you that he had bribed any other man besides Crotch?—He did not give me any other name. He said that Crotch was the man he was afraid of, and that he polled him not long before the poll closed.

11,697. Did you see William Houghton about a fortnight ago?—I have seen them repeatedly, two or three times a week. They often come down to me to see if anything is going on, or anything of that sort.

11,698. But did you see him just before we came down here?—Very likely I did.

11,699. Had you then any conversation with him, or with either of them?—I daresay I had.

11,700. About a fortnight ago did you see William?—I daresay I did.

11,701. Had you any conversation with him as to what you were going to say before this court?—Certainly not, not as to what I was going to say.

11,702. Did you say anything to him about what he was to say?—I might ask him something about what he was to say; but I never told him what I was going to say.

11,703. What did you say to him?—I told him I had every reason to believe it would come out, and that therefore it would be of no use to attempt to conceal anything, and that if he had not spent all the money, he might as well say so at once; and that people would not think the worse of him, and it would be of no use to try and keep anything back.

11,704. Had you seen Mr. Secker (the secretary to the Commission) before you had that talk with him?—I do not know; I have seen this man so often that I cannot say. He would often come down to me in the morning and say, "Is anything going on?" and have a glass of beer, and then he would come again perhaps the next morning.

11,705. Did you say to William Houghton, "Your "brother is going to say he received 5*l.*, and you will "have to say the same?"—No.

11,706. I will repeat the question: did you say to William Houghton, "Your brother is going to say he "received 5*l.* and you will have to say the same?"—I say no, I do not think I said anything of the sort.

11,707. You do not think you said it?—I did not say it.

11,708. Might you have said, "Your brother is "going to say he received 5*l.*, and you will have to "say the same"?—I have no recollection of saying anything of the sort.

11,709. Might you have said so?—I might, but I do not think I did.

11,710. Did you not say so?—I say no; I never said, "and you must say the same."

11,711. Did you say to him, "Your brother is going to say he received 5*l.*"?—I might say that John had had 5*l.*, but I do not remember the circumstance at all. It is possible that I might have said, John had got 5*l.*, but I never said, "and you must say the same." I do not remember saying it at all, and therefore I say I did not say it.

11,712. Did you say to him, "Your brother is going to say he received 5*l.*"?—I do not remember saying anything of the sort to him.

11,713. Had you any conversation with him as to the amount his brother had received?—I do not remember it. I might have said, "Your brother had 5*l.*," but I do not remember saying it. I said to John, "How much did you have?" and he said, "I had 5*l.*"

11,714. How was it that he came to say that?—He was in my shop, and I said to him, "What was it that you had?" and he said, "I had 5*l.*"

11,715. Did you ever say to him, "You know, John, I gave you 5*l.*"?—No.

11,716. And did he then say to you, "When did I have 5*l.*"?—No, he did not.

11,717. Do you mean to say that he never said so?—I mean to say that he never said so.

11,718. Not at all?—Not at all.

11,719. Did you see either of these men yesterday?—I saw John last night.

11,720. After you had given your evidence here?—Yes.

11,721. Did he say anything to you about your evidence?—He was standing at my door just as I was going to close, and I said, "Have you got your subpœna, John?" He said, "Yes." And I said, "Then "you have nothing to do but to go and speak the "truth." He said, "Speak the truth? I never had "anything. I never had a farthing. I am not going "to say that I had." I said, "What nonsense that is, when only last week you told me you had 5*l.*" He said, "What I said to you last week and what I shall say in the witness box are two different things."

11,722. Who was there?—I fancy Mr. Penrice was there; he was reading the paper.

11,723. Who is Mr. Penrice?—A surgeon.

11,724. What time in the evening was this?—It was past 8 o'clock.

11,725. Did he say that what you had been swearing was untrue?—No, he never said anything of the sort. I said, "You had better tell all you know."

11,726. You are speaking now of John?—Yes.

11,727. Did you see William last night at all?—No, I did not see William last night, I think. No, I did not see William last night; I do not think I saw William at all last night.

11,728. Since you gave your evidence have you seen William?—No, not since I gave my evidence.

11,729. Have you seen him this morning?—I saw William in the Lobby waiting room.

11,730. Have you not seen William since you gave your evidence yesterday?—I do not remember seeing him since I gave my evidence until I saw him in the waiting room here.

11,731. Did he say, after you had given your evidence here yesterday, that you had been telling infernal lies, or anything of that sort?—Certainly not.

11,732. You are quite clear about that?—I swear it positively.

11,733. The only one you have seen since you have given your evidence, is John?—Yes; I saw him last night at a quarter or 20 minutes past eight, just as I was about to close the door; he was looking at the people apparently going into the festival at St. Andrew's Hall. He stood talking to a young man named Mays. I said, "John, have you got your subpœna?" He said, "Yes." And I said, "Then all "you have got to do is to speak the truth; if you did "not spend the money you had better say so; the "party will not think the worse of you for it."

11,734. It is right I should tell you what these men have sworn. John has sworn that all the money that you gave him on the polling day was 5*s.*, that that is all you have ever given him; that all the money he received from you was 5*s.*, and that 5*s.* he has sworn you gave him, in consequence of his asking for it, and telling you that he had paid a man named Crotch 5*s.* to vote; knowing that is what John Houghton stated, I ask you is it true?—It is not true.

11,735. Do you, notwithstanding that, still adhere to your former statement?—I still adhere to the statement I made yesterday.

11,736. William Houghton has sworn that you gave him on the polling day in the first instance, three half sovereigns, and only three; that he then came back to you, and got a further sum of half a sovereign, and that he has told us is all that he ever got from you on that day except 5*s.*, which he got later in the day, when the poll was over; is that true?—No, that is not true.

11,737. Knowing that he has sworn that, do you still adhere to the statement that you gave him 10 half sovereigns?—I still adhere to the statement that I made yesterday.

11,738. Do these Houghtons work for Mr. Gedge?—William does; the other is his own master.

11,739. A jobbing dyer?—Yes.

11,740. Have the Houghtons, or either of them, distributed money for you at other elections?—Always.

11,741. You had some at Waters' election in 1865?—Yes.

11,742. What money did you give John at that time?—I cannot remember I am sure what I gave him now. I would not swear to any amount, because I cannot remember; votes now being 5*s.*, when then it is said they were 5*l.* I could not pretend to say how much they had.

11,743. Can you not give any idea?—No, I cannot; they are both men I have trusted, and they always have been trusted with money ever since I had anything to do with elections, and they have generally been paid for their services.

11,744. At Bury and Schneider's election, did you use them?—Yes, but there was another before when there was no money.

11,745. That is so far as you know?—So far as I know, and I think I should have known of it if there had been any.

11,746. (Mr. Mansfield.) When you gave these men 5*l.* apiece to do this work, did you give them any specific instructions how to lay it out?—No; I left it to their discretion, as I always do, to go and do the best they could with it.

11,747. Did they tell you afterwards how many men they had got up for it?—No, and I never asked them. I only knew about John being afraid of this man Crotch. I never knew who they got or who they tried to get.

11,748. You trusted these men and thought they would spend the money fairly?—Yes.

11,749. How had the payment on previous occasions for their services been made?—They have been paid more liberally than others. They have been paid by the day; so many days so much money; but on the last occasion there was no one paid for his services that we were aware of.

11,750. How did you expect they would get remuneration?—I expected they would get it out of the money they got. I did not expect that they would expend the whole of it. I cannot say they expended the whole of what they had before. It was only their word and mine.

11,751. But from your experience on former occasions you put confidence in them?—Yes.

11,752. (Mr. Dowdeswell.) Has it been customary here to arrange about the show of hands?—I believe it has.

11,753. That has been the custom with the Conservatives as well as the Whigs?—Yes; I have not known anything about that except at the election when Sir Samuel Bignold and Mr. Lushington were candidates. I think that at that time I engaged some men to go into the Guildhall for the show of hands in the morning.

11,754. At the last election, who had the management of that affair on the part of the Conservatives?—I never heard that anyone had the management of it. I had not myself, and I do not know that anyone else had. I was not requested to furnish any men.

11,755. Do you know a man named Bowtell?—Yes.

11,756. Do you know whether he arranged the show of hands?—No.

11,757. Had he anything to do with it?—No; he kept my shop while I was attending to the election. He had nothing to do with arranging for the show of hands.

11,758. You do not know anything about it then?—No; I had nothing to do with the show of hands.

11,759. You had no discussion, if I understand you, with these men about the money they had received before you came into court, and heard the contradiction they have given to your evidence here?—No. I had no conversation with them except what I have told you as to what I said to John, and John said he had received 5*l.*

11,760. They never came and said, "If you mean "to say we each received 5*l.*, we tell you that is un-"true"?—No; certainly not.

11,761. Not even last night?—Not even last night; except that John came to me last night and said, "I did not have a penny—not a penny," knocking one hand against the other.

11,762. I understood you to say that when John came to you last night he did not say you had been stating what was untrue?—No, certainly not. He did not say that I had said an untruth; he merely said, "I had not anything," and I said, "You told me last week you had 5*l.*," and he said, "What I told you "then and what I shall tell when I get into the box "is another thing."

11,763. Did you not tell him at once, "You had "better tell the truth, it will be a falsehood and you "will be perjuring yourself"?—I did, and I said, "It will be you against me, that is all; it is much better for you to go and tell the truth."

11,764. (Mr. Mansfield.) Who asked you to take part in this election?—I was appointed at a meeting held at the "Swan," when Mr. Patteson was in the chair.

11,765. You were appointed by a resolution at the meeting?—The question was asked, I think an inhabitant of the first ward named their man, and then I think Mr. Fiske, the draper in London Street, said, "Mr. Hulme has always been our captain of the second ward," and he said, "I propose Mr. Hulme as manager of the second ward now;" it was seconded by somebody else and carried, and there was the appointment.

11,766. This gentleman knew pretty well how matters went at elections before?—No, I think not; Mr. Fiske had nothing to do with any secret matters.

11,767. That was the same meeting at which Mr. Wiseman was appointed?—Yes; Mr. Wiseman was appointed the same day. I do not know who seconded

ELEVENTH DAY.

J. H. Hulme.

31 Aug. 1869.

it. Mr. Fiske and I have been friends for more than 20 years, therefore it was chiefly on that account, and my having been manager before.

11,768. Who had appointed you before at previous elections?—I do not know who appointed me during Waters' election, it would be done by the ward, and the ward would recommend me knowing I had been active before.

11,769. (Mr. Dowdeswell.) You spoke about clubs yesterday, do you know whether there is a club in the fifth ward?—Yes.

11,770. Can you tell me who is the secretary of it?—Mr. Alfred Stockings.

11,771. Do you know who were the members?—No, it is a club that I very rarely go to. I used to go to it sometimes, but some time ago we wanted to make an alteration in the clubs, and we wanted to get the Eldon club in a position to take the lead; the fifth ward rather kicked against it, and since then I have never been to the club. I should think Mr. James Lacey is a member, Mr. Sparrow, the solicitor, and Mr. Fisher, the grocer, in St. Stephen's, and several others.

11,772. Are there rules in these clubs which are drawn up—written rules?—Yes, there are rules.

11,773. And a list of members?—Yes, the secretary undoubtedly has a list of members.

11,774. If you have a meeting of the committee of the ward club, is there any record of the meeting and of the matters which were discussed?—I am not secretary of any of the ward clubs, and therefore I am not aware; the second ward club, which has only been raised within the last few months, and to which I belong, never had a committee meeting, and therefore I cannot tell you the routine.

11,775. Have there been meetings of the old clubs recently?—I do not belong to what we call the amalgamated committee; there are so many men sent out of the wards, who form a committee, which is called the Amalgamated Ward Committee, and to that committee I do not belong, for this reason, that the Eldon club does not recognise the amalgamated committee, and I being chairman of the Eldon club do not recognise it myself, and have not attended their meetings.

11,776. Can you give me the names of the members of the amalgamated committee?—I think you will get them from Mr. Dawson, because he is the secretary to it.

11,777. Did that amalgamated committee exist in November last?—Yes; there was an amalgamated committee in November last.

11,778. Before the election?—Yes; before the election.

11,779. Did you have any communication with the amalgamated committee about the time of the election?—No; I had no communication with them about the time of the election for the reason I tell you. We of the Eldon club went to Sir Henry Stracey some time about the end of July twelvemonths, to ask him if he would consent to become a candidate for the city of Norwich; Sir Henry Stracey said he should be out of town for a little while and he would consider it and let us know. He did not send an answer for some three or four weeks, and after that time I wrote to Sir Henry Stracey to ask him whether he had thought anything more about it, and he then said he thought there was some talk about Mr. Harvey coming forward, and he said if he did come forward it would be with this understanding, that there should be no illegitimate means used. He said, "Hulme, I have asked "your opinion about Norwich elections before, and "you have told me, but I tell you confidently that if "I become a candidate for Norwich there must be no "illegitimate means used to obtain the seat, if I should "be fortunate enough to gain it." Things passed off till October, when the amalgamated committee had got a heading for a requisition to Mr. Harvey. Mr. Harvey had repeatedly refused to become a candidate, and these sheets were sent out to get signatures. In the meantime we knew Mr. Harvey would not consent and people would not sign the sheets, knowing Mr. Harvey would not consent. A deputation of the Eldon club, numbering about ten, went down to Sir Henry Stracey on the Monday morning, and the meeting of the amalgamated meeting was to be on the Monday night; we went down on the Monday morning, and Sir Henry Stracey said he had talked with several of his friends, and thought he was not unpopular at Norwich, and if it was the wish of the Conservative party in Norwich that he should become a candidate, he would do so; and he wrote a letter which I took up to Sir Samuel Bignold, to say, if acceptable to the people of Norwich, he was willing to become a candidate. The amalgamated committee met at night and wanted to know about these Harvey requisitions being signed. I said it was no use, people would not sign them, and I told them then, and in fact I think I got Sir Samuel Bignold to write a letter to the chairman of the amalgamated committee Mr. Sparrow; and Mr. Sparrow read the letter from Sir Samuel Bignold; they were very indignant to think that the Eldon club should have taken upon themselves to go over to Sir Henry Stracey to solicit him as a candidate, and said they would go over the next day, and they selected so many from their body to go and see Sir Henry Stracey, and I was in the second selection; I had to go and try to find his son to know whether he would be disengaged at 4 or 5 in the afternoon to receive them. I saw Mr. Dudley Stracey and asked whether Sir Henry Stracey would be in the way, and he said he would let me know if it would not suit, but he thought it would suit very well; some eight of us, in two flys or cabs, went to Sir Henry Stracey, and then I believe Sir Henry Stracey came to Norwich, and met the heads of the party at Sir Samuel Bignold's, and from that time engaged Mr. Chittock as his agent.

11,780. The amalgamated committee were active in support of Sir Henry Stracey?—Yes, I should think so, every member of it. I do not know that they acted as a committee, but every member was active in the support of him.

11,781. Was there any meeting of the amalgamated committee upon the day of election?—From that time I do not think I ever attended the amalgamated committee again; the amalgamated committee and the Eldon committee did not agree, and I stuck to the Eldon and never attended the amalgamated committee. I was appointed one of the delegates by the ward, but I never attended the meetings; I told them the two could not work together, and that I should stick to the old club, and Mr. Downs was appointed in my place, and I have not been near them since.

11,782. Are there any funds for political purposes provided by the Eldon club or by any of these clubs?—No.

11,783. What is the object of the clubs?—When the Eldon was first established, it was established for young freemen or young men, but since then it has become a different affair altogether; it has now become more of a central city club, and various gentlemen of the club are members. The object of the Eldon club is this, they are all active partizans and watch all political movements which are going on and confer together; they subscribe a small sum a week, which once a year is spent at an annual dinner.

11,784. Is there not a fund provided by those means for the furtherance of their objects?—Not one penny.

11,785. You say there is no fund for political purposes in the possession of the club itself?—No.

11,786. Do you know whether money is provided to carry out their objects by the ward clubs?—I do not know of it, but I should say not.

11,787. What is the object of a club in the ward, being of a political nature, unless it is to a certain extent to carry out its objects?—It is for the same object; it is to bring men together so that one should canvass another and try to get converts in that way; but there is no fund provided for expenditure in elections.

11,788. I suppose the mode in which a meeting of the club is convened would be decided by its rules?—A meeting of the club is convened by the secretary sending out a circular, except in the Eldon club; I generally send them all out myself.

11,789. Is there any Liberal political club in Norwich?—I believe there are some.

11,790. Anything else besides the working man's organisation?—Yes, there used to be a club over the water called the Springfield club, commonly called the "Dirty Shirt Club," because they generally met on Saturday night. I do not know how many of them there are, I never was a Liberal.

11,791. Do they work at elections in the same way?—I believe they do things better than we do. I believe they do raise a little fund when anything is going on. We never have done that.

11,792. Is that the only club of which you know on that side?—Yes, I think so. I do not speak from knowledge, only from report.

DAVID PENRICE sworn and examined.

11,793. (Mr. Dowdeswell.) Are you a voter in this city?—I am.

11,794. Did you vote at the last election?—I did.

11,795. For whom?—For Sir Henry Stracey.

11,796. Did you take an active part in the election?—No, no active part at all.

11,797. Did you canvass any persons?—No, I did not.

11,798. Did you take or induce any voters to go up to the poll?—No, I did not. I neither took any nor induced any to go.

11,799. Do you know of any persons having been paid money for their votes?—No, not anyone.

11,800. Or having received money?—Or having received money, not any to my knowledge.

11,801. Or having promised any money?—Or having promised any money.

11,802. Were you last night at Mr. Hulme's?—Yes, I was.

11,803. Did you see one of those two men (pointing to the two Houghtons)?—Really to speak the truth I did not take sufficient observation so as to speak to either of them. I do not think I have seen them before.

11,804. Do you recollect a man coming into Mr. Hulme's shop and talking to him about some money which was said to have been received by him?—I heard a man say to Mr. Hulme something about not having received any money, but I did not choose to take any heed of the conversation at all, because I did not choose to mix myself up with it.

11,805. Did he say he had not received any money?—Yes, so I understood.

11,806. That he had not received any?—Yes, that he had not received any.

11,807. What did Mr. Hulme say?—I do not know what Mr. Hulme said; I did not listen to what he did say. I went into his shop on business and not on matters connected with the election.

11,808. Nevertheless you might have heard what Mr. Hulme did say?—I did not hear what Mr. Hulme said, if I did I would state it willingly, and as I did not hear I cannot say.

11,809. You say the man said he had not received any money?—Yes, that is what I heard, but I cannot say whether it was either of these two men. I heard a man say to Mr. Hulme that he had not received any money, that is all I heard, and I did not hear the remark Mr. Hulme made to him.

11,810. Did you hear whether the man said anything about the inquiry here?—No, I did not hear any conversation with regard to that at all. I think the man was making use of very bad language.

11,811. The man was angry, was he?—Well, he appeared so, but at what I could not tell, as I said before. I do not know the man, and never saw him, and know nothing at all about what the conversation referred to, except that I heard him say he had not received any money.

11,812. You are sure he did not say any money except a certain sum?—Yes, I am quite sure. If he did say so I did not hear him.

11,813. (Mr. Biron.) Did you hear nothing that Mr. Hulme said to him?—I did not. I did not take heed of a single word that he said.

11,814. When this man said, "I had no money," did Mr. Hulme say, "You told me yourself that you had 5*l.*"?—Mr. Hulme might have said so, but I tell you distinctly that I did not hear him say it.

11,815. I am putting this to you that it may bring it back to your mind?—I am perfectly sure I did not hear what Mr. Hulme stated or I would distinctly state it.

11,816. Did the man state what he had said last week, and what he was going to say to-morrow were two different things?—I did not hear that.

11,817. Or anything like it?—Or anything like it.

THOMAS MACKLEY sworn and examined.

11,818. (Mr. Dowdeswell.) What are you?—A publican.

11,819. Are you a voter in this city?—Yes.

11,820. For whom did you vote?—For Sir Henry Stracey.

11,821. Were you active at the last election on behalf of Sir Henry Stracey?—Very little of that. I was certainly knocking about on that day.

11,822. Did you receive any money from Mr. Hulme on that day?—Yes.

11,823. What did you receive?—15*l.*

11,824. Was that for the purpose of getting up voters?—Yes.

11,825. What did you do with it?—The first man I took up was Mr. Guyton, a tailor.

11,826. And what did you pay him?—10*s.*

11,827. Whom else did you take up?—Not anyone.

11,828. Did you spend any more of the money?—No, I lost it; some London prigs came down and took it out of my pocket.

11,829. Who took it out?—I cannot say.

11,830. Where was it taken out of your pocket?—I do not know.

11,831. When did you find that it had been taken out of your pocket?—When I dipped my hand and found it was not there. I found I had not any.

11,832. When was that?—On the same afternoon.

11,833. About what time of the day was it you received it?—About a quarter-past 3 o'clock.

11,834. Where did you go to?—I cannot say; I was a little bit forward in drink.

11,835. You do not know where you went to exactly?—No, I do not.

11,836. If you do not recollect where you went to exactly, how do you recollect you took up the tailor?—Directly I got the money.

11,837. If you were so forward in drink that you cannot tell where you went to, how can you tell that you took up the tailor?—I will tell you, because I had taken this money sometime before I took the tailor up.

11,838. How do you know that you took the tailor up at all?—I am sure that I took him up.

11,839. How do you know it was taken out of your pocket the same night if you were so drunk that you do not recollect where you went?—I came down about 8 or 9 in the evening and found that I had nothing.

11,840. If you were so drunk between 3 and 4

ELEVENTH DAY.

T. Mackley.

31 Aug. 1869.

o'clock in the day as not to recollect where you went, how was it that at 8 or 9 o'clock you were so sober as to be able to ascertain you had not got the money ?—Eight or nine at night ?

11,841. You said so just now ?—I said it was gone at 8 or 9 at night.

11,842. How can you recollect that ?—I cannot say for an hour or two. On an election day you can't tell to an hour or two.

11,843. What was the money which you got ?—Half sovereigns.

11,844. How can you recollect that ?—I recollect it when it was given to me.

11,845. Now, recollecting that it was in half sovereigns, do you mean to say you cannot tell me where you went to ?—Not after that.

11,846. Had you taken the drink before ?—Some.

11,847. Do you mean to say that you were so drunk that when Mr. Hulme gave you the money you did not know what you were about ?—No, I say I took the money off Mr. Hulme.

11,848. What I want to know is this, how came you to be so drunk immediately after you got the money from Mr. Hulme as not to be able to tell where you went ?—The excitement of the money. I really had not been used to handling so much money for a very long time.

11,849. Not having had so much money for a long time, one would naturally suppose you would take a little care of it ?—Well, that is what I ought to have done.

11,850. You cannot give me any idea of what became of you afterwards ?—No, I cannot. I can tell you a little if you wish to know.

11,851. Are you sure you have not had a little drink this morning ?—Oh yes, I have.

11,852. You must stand down, and we will postpone your examination till you are in a fit state to continue it ?—Very well, I will come again to-morrow morning.

WILLIAM HOUGHTON recalled and further examined.

W. Houghton.

11,853. (Mr. Dowdeswell.) When did you see Dawson last ?—Yesterday morning.

11,854. Did Dawson come and tell you that you must not say you had made away with that money amongst the electors ?—No.

11,855. What did he come to you about ?—He did not come to me at all, I saw him against his door.

11,856. Did you go to see him ?—No ; I never stopped. I only said just, "How do you do, Mr. Dawson ? "

11,857. That is all ?—Yes.

11,858. When did you talk to him last ?—That was about a fortnight before he saw me on the hill at the assize time. and he said, "Any time you are "passing my counting-house you may call in, as I "want to speak to you." And I said, "Do you?" and a day or two afterwards I went into his counting-house. He was not there, and as I was going down home I met him, and said, "What do you want with me ?" "Oh," says he, "you do not want to bring up my name about going away," "Oh," says I, "is that all ? Oh, very well, I am satisfied. Good morning."

11,859. Did you tell him you would not bring up his name ?—I never told him no such thing. I passed on. I would not stop to speak to him at all.

11,860. When a man suggests to you to suppress the truth, and you knew you would be here to tell the whole truth, did you not tell the man immediately I shall tell no lie about it ?—I never exchanged any conversation with him.

11,861. Why not ?—Because I did not think he was worth talking to.

11,862. It was so immaterial a matter that you did not think it was worth any conversation ?—I did not think he was worth anybody's talking to. If a man promises a thing and does not do it, he is not worth talking to.

11,863. What did he promise you ?—He promised me 10*l.*, and likewise my brother was to have 10*l.*, and he never performed his promise, and I thought he was not worth talking to after that.

11,864. Is that what he had promised you to go away ?—Yes, 10*l.* each.

11,865. To say nothing about what had happened ?—Yes.

11,866. You agreed to take 10*l.* to go away ?—Yes.

11,867. (Mr. Biron.) You only had 9*l.* ?—8*l.* was all we had out of the 20*l.*

11,868. (Mr. Dowdeswell.) You agreed with him that he should pay you 10*l.* to go away, and say nothing about what had happened ?—To go away from the inquiry.

11,869. And say nothing about what had happened ?—Yes.

11,870. Although you knew it was a matter that was to be inquired into before the judge here ?—Yes.

11,871. (Mr. Mansfield.) Why did you talk to him this morning if you had such a high sense of morality regarding his conduct ?—I have not seen him.

11,872. Yesterday ?—I saw him yesterday as I was coming through.

11,873. You spoke to him ?—Nothing more than "How do you do ? "

11,874. (Mr. Dowdeswell.) Do you know when he saw your brother last ?—No, I do not.

J. Houghton.

JOHN HOUGHTON recalled and further examined.

11,875. (Mr. Dowdeswell.) When did you see Dawson ?—Yesterday, or the day before.

11,876. What did you say to him then ?—I said "Good morning."

11,877. Anything else ?—Yes, he got on about the inquiry, and some sharp words took place between the two of us—some hard words took place between me and him. I told him he was next door neighbour to a thief ; that he agreed for one thing and did not perform it.

11,878. Why did you say he was next door to a thief ?—Because he did not perform his promise.

11,879. What was his promise ?—To give 10*l.*

11,880. For what ?—To go out of the way.

11,881. To go away and say nothing about it ?—Yes.

11,882. You only got 8*l.* ?—Yes.

11,883. (Mr. Biron.) All you had got to tell was this—that you had given Crotch 5*s.* ?—That is all, and that is all the money I had.

11,884. Did you tell Mr. Dawson that that was all you knew about it ?—No, Mr. Dawson never asked me any question.

11,885. Did you think it worth while for people to give you 10*l.* to get you out of the way, when that was all you had to tell ?—I was asked whether I would go, and I did not know what I was going for until I got on the way.

11,886. Could you not have said, "All I did was to give a man 5*s.*" ?—That is all I did.

11,887. That is all that Dawson knew—that you had given 5*s.* ?—I do not know what he knew ; he never asked me any questions.

11,888. You might have proclaimed it from the market place or anywhere else—it would not have hurt anybody ?—That is all I did.

11,889. (Mr. Dowdeswell.) According to you Dawson is a thorough rogue ?—Yes.

11,890. About as big a scoundrel as you ever met with ?—Yes.

11,891. What did Dawson say was his opinion of you when you had these hard words ?—He had two or three books—he hardly said a word, and what he said I did not understand, because I jawed away as hard as I could go. He went on muttering, and what he said I could not understand; he understood me I know.

11,892. If you spoke as plainly as you have done now, I should think Dawson understood you?—Yes, I should think so.

11,893. Did you tell him what you thought of him?—Did I? Yes.

11,894. In about the same way as you have done to-day?—Yes, and he went marching on with his books.

WILLIAM MILLS sworn and examined.

W. Mills.

11,895. (Mr. Dowdeswell.) Are you a voter?—Yes.

11,896. Did you vote at the last election?—I did.

11,897. For whom did you vote?—Sir Henry Stracey.

11,898. At what time did you vote?—I think it was between two and three o'clock.

11,899. Do you recollect being at William Clarke's beerhouse at the corner of Jenkin's Lane on that day?—Yes.

11,900. Do you know Robert Hardiment?—Yes, I do.

11,901. Do you know young Wiseman?—No.

11,902. Did you see Hardiment there that afternoon?—Yes, I did.

11,903. Were there a number of other voters there? I do not know.

11,904. Were there a number of other men there?—There might be four or five or six, I do not know exactly how many.

11,905. Were they drinking there?—They were.

11,906. How long had you been drinking there?—I went in the morning about nine o'clock, and I came out about half-past 11.

11,907. When did you go in again?—After I had voted.

11,908. Did you not go in before that?—No, I do not think I did.

11,909. Can you give me the names of the men that were there?—Yes, I can; not of the voters I cannot.

11,910. Do you recollect Hardiment speaking to you?—He never did, not in Mr. Clarke's house.

11,911. Do you mean to say Hardiment did not speak to you?—No, he did not, nor I to him.

11,912. You did not speak to him?—No, certainly not.

11,913. Who were the other men who were at the beerhouse with you?—I can give you the names, but none of the voters.

11,914. Who were the men?—There they are (producing a slip of paper).

11,915. You put them down?—Yes, I did, so that I might make no mistake.

11,916. Who told you to put them down?—I put them down because I should make no mistake.

11,917. Who told you to put them down?—No one.

11,918. How did you know we should ask you who were at Clarke's beerhouse?—I was certain of it. I come here to speak the truth.

11,919. Who told you we were going to speak about Clarke's beerhouse? How came you to be prepared with a list of the people?—There (handing the slip of paper) are the names of four men I know that were there who were not voters.

11,920. Who suggested to you to put those names down?—No one.

11,921. Do you mean to stand there upon your oath and tell me such a falsehood as that?—I put them down that I might make no mistake about it.

11,922. How came you to suppose that I should be inquiring of you who were in Clarke's beerhouse?—I could not tell you at all, only those four.

11,923. How came you to think, if there was nothing wrong, we should be inquiring into the names of the men who were in Clarke's beerhouse?—I cannot tell that.

11,924. Were there no voters there?—Oh yes, there were.

11,925. Now you stand down; I will not examine you further till you are prepared to speak the truth.

WILLIAM CLARKE sworn and examined.

W. Clarke.

11,926. (Mr. Mansfield.) What are you by trade?—A boot-closer.

11,927. For whom did you vote?—Sir Henry Stracey.

11,928. What time in the day did you vote?—About three o'clock or nearly three.

11,929. What made you vote so late?—I was engaged at home after my business.

11,930. Do you keep a beerhouse?—Yes.

11,931. Do you recollect on the day of the election Hardiment coming to your beerhouse?—Once or twice; twice, I believe.

11,932. At what time did he come first?—Each time from about ten to eleven.

11,933. When did he come first?—A little after ten, and about an hour after that again.

11,934. What other people were present then?—I should think there were as many as 12 or 14. I had no idea of being brought here, and I did not take any account of the names.

11,935. Have you forgotten all of the names?—No.

11,936. Tell me who were there when Hardiment came?—There was a man of the name of Cutlock, a bricklayer.

11,937. Was he a voter?—Yes, and a man of the name of William Thorpe.

11,938. Was he a voter?—Yes, a freeman.

11,939. Anyone else?—It is rather a difficult place to put me in to recollect all the names.

11,940. Was Morse there?—Yes, William Morse, senior, was there.

11,941. Richard Ross?—Yes.

11,942. Was Charles Morse there?—Yes.

11,943. Is he a voter?—He is a freeman, whether he is a voter or not I do not know.

11,944. Was Robert Thompson there?—Yes, he is not a voter.

11,945. Was Robert Brandish there?—No.

11,946. You are certain of that?—What is he; is he a blacksmith? I know whom you mean, he is a blacksmith, and he is dead; he was not there.

11,947. Was anyone else there?—Many, but I cannot call the names to mind of all the persons that came to my house that day; it is impossible.

11,948. Was Fisher there?—I do not know such a man.

11,949. Did you see Thomas Worledge there?—Yes.

11,950. Do you recollect his coming in the morning?—On two occasions.

11,951. When Thomas Worledge came, what did he say to you?—That is a thing I cannot call to my memory now.

11,952. Did he not make some inquiry about voters and non-voters?—He came into my house and looked round and asked me who I had got there, and I said, "You can go and look," and he went in and looked round the room and after he had done so he came to me.

11,953. How many do you make out there were there?—A dozen, but I cannot recollect the names.

11,954. What was done then; something happened about tickets, did there not?—Thomas Worledge spoke to some of them and then said to me, "What

ELEVENTH DAY.

W. Clarke.

31 Aug. 1869.

"tickets you see with my name and address on let "them have 6*d.* on each ticket."

11,955. That would be for beer?—Yes, that would be for ale.

11,956. Did you give those tickets?—I took them.

11,957. And gave beer accordingly?—Yes.

11,958. Had you a list of the men that had tickets?—I have lost it apparently.

11,959. (Mr. Dowdeswell.) How many tickets were there?—Seven.

11,960. (Mr. Mansfield.) You said 12 just now?—12 men. Two to a man of the name of John Mills, two to a man of the name of Charles Cox, two to Thompson, and one to Robert Thompson; a man of the name of Moss, an old man 85 years of age.

11,961. The beer was served?—Yes, the beer was served according to the tickets.

11,962. They were asked to vote?—Mr. Worledge walked in and asked them if they would oblige him, whether they did or not I do not know.

11,963. Were they not taken off to vote?—No, not there and then; Mr. Worledge walked away.

11,964. How long did they remain drinking there?—They were out and in four or five hours.

11,965. When were they taken to vote?—About two o'clock.

11,966. Who took them to vote?—I did not see anyone take them out of my house; they went of their own accord.

11,967. When Hardiment came in, did he order any beer?—Yes.

11,968. How much?—As regards the order, it was not an order.

11,969. What was it?—He came in, and he saw a very great many men in my house (mine is a thickly populated neighbourhood) and about the house.

11,970. Did he order any beer?—As soon as he came in they were on to him for drink, but he did not give any orders. He came in a second time, and I said, "Mr. Hardiment, these men want to vote, and "if you do not think proper to give them something, "they will not stop;" and he says, "Let them have some beer, Clarke," and they had to the amount of 7*s.* 6*d.*

11,971. Did you hear Hardiment say anything to these men?—Nothing. Mr. Hardiment never came into my house after 11 or half-past 11 o'clock.

11,972. Did he say nothing about money passing?—No, nothing; not a word.

11,973. Did you see young Wiseman come in?—Yes.

11,974. Hardiment was there then, was he not?—I will not be positive about that.

11,975. Did you see Freestone come in?—I do not know him.

11,976. Do you not recollect Wiseman saying to the men, "Come and vote"?—I believe he solicited all he could. I quite believe that he tried to get all he could to the poll.

11,977. You were present whilst he was doing that?—No.

11,978. You are certain of that?—I was behind my bar drawing, and I never paid any attention to what was going on in that way.

11,979. Did they not in your presence tell Wiseman they would not vote?—I did not hear it.

11,980. Are you sure?—I did not hear it.

11,981. (Mr. Dowdeswell.) You do not mean to say you were standing there the whole day and never heard a word?—I came here to speak the truth. Mr. Hardiment, and likewise Mr. Wiseman, both tried to get all they could.

11,982. Did not the men refuse to go?—Yes, I believe there were several refused to go.

11,983. Did not Benfather, of the "Royal Oak," come in?—Yes.

11,984. Did not Benfather say, "Come along you men that have got votes"?—I did not hear him say so.

11,985. You swear that?—Yes.

11,986. Was Thorpe there, and several others?—Yes, William Clare Thorpe.

11,987. Did you afterwards see Benfather go into a back room?—Yes.

11,988. Did he call some people in with him?—No, not in my hearing.

11,989. Did anybody else go in with him?—Yes, there were several went along with him.

11,990. Did they not go first into this back room; who went first?—I cannot tell you; they were going backwards and forwards that way the whole day.

11,991. Did you not hear a word said?—No.

11,992. Not a word?—No, not a word.

11,993. Was nothing said about voting?—Not a word in my hearing.

11,994. Did you hear anything said about 5*s.*?—Not a word.

11,995. Tell me exactly what hour this was when these men went into the back room to Benfather?—Between 1 and 2 o'clock.

11,996. Can you not get nearer?—I will say half-past 1; that is as near as I can get it.

11,997. These people went in one by one, did they not?—I cannot tell you; they might go two or three in a flock, or one by one.

11,998. You might have seen it?—When I was behind my bar doing my business, I did not notice everyone that went the back way.

11,999. Did you see them come out?—I might see them come out.

12,000. Did they go away to vote?—I cannot say.

12,001. Did they not go away at once?—No; Lord bless your soul! no.

12,002. You put this transaction at half-past 1; how soon after that did these men who had the interview with Benfather in the back room go away?—They were backwards and forwards there till half-past 3.

12,003. Did not they leave the house till half-past 3?—Some of them did not.

12,004. Do you not know they were standing out for a little more than 5*s.*?—I did not hear of 5*s.*, nor yet five farthings, or 5*l.*; a word of money I never heard.

12,005. (Mr. Biron.) You knew what was going on?—No.

12,006. Do you expect us to believe that?—I did not know more than you did, if I am to be believed on my oath.

12,007. Did you hear of Thorpe getting anything for his vote?—I never heard of it either that day or since. I will tell you one volunteer is better than two pressmen, and I will give you a statement of all I know. I have been answering your questions all throughout. I will tell you all I saw on the day of the election. In the first place, about 2 o'clock, a man of the name of Blackbourne, a currier, came into my house, and there were three young men standing at the front of the bar, two of the name of Coleman, and one by the name of Larkman; these were two shoemakers, and Mr. Blackbourne being a currier, I supposed they were customers of his. As soon as he came into my house, he accosted these two men, and addressed himself to them. He said, "Coleman, have you voted?" he said, "No, nor neither have my two friends." He says, "What have you got to drink?" "We have had a pint of ale." Blackbourne said to me, "Fetch a gallon of best ale," and I done so. Mr. Blackbourne paid me for it, and took the gallon of ale of me and served it to these three young men, and when he had served them once or twice or thrice, the gallon was not half out; there were four or five people in the other room who came in, and seeing this gallon of beer they brought their pots out of the other room, and said, "Is there anything for me?" and Blackbourne said, "Bring your empty pots, and I will fill them." After that Mr. Blackbourne solicited these three men very sharp for Tillett and Russell. That is the principal case I saw of bribery and treating throughout the day, and it is the only case I know of. I came here to speak the truth, and nothing but the truth.

12,008. You need not keep going through that preamble; people who are speaking the truth are not always reminding others that they are so doing?—I thought you appeared doubtful as to whether I was speaking the truth.

12,009. (Mr. Mansfield.) Do you mean to say you did not see Hardiment canvassing any of these men, or asking them to vote?—He asked a great many.

12,010. Did he not prevail upon a great many?—He did not get a vote out of my house to my knowledge, because he was not in my house after half-past 11.

12,011. Was he not near your house after that?—No, I did not see him during the day after that time.

12,012. Have you never heard since of his paying any men?—Yes, I heard a talk of it.

12,013. The same evening?—I heard a lot of what Mr. Hardiment had done, but I know nothing of the truth; it is hearsay and hearsay always was a story teller. I never pay any regard to hearsay, I always want proof.

12,014. You know Hardiment?—Yes, quite well.

12,015. You have known him intimately for many years?—No, I have known him about 18 months or two years.

12,016. Did not Morse, Mills, Thorpe, Ross and Cutlock, remain in your house until about 3 o'clock that day?—Yes.

12,017. Do you recollect Worledge first giving the tickets for the beer to the particular individuals you named, and then you supplying it?—Yes.

12,018. Did not the whole of them drink the beer together?—I cannot say who drank the beer. Mr. Worledge gave the tickets to Mills, Cox, Thompson, and the poor old man Moss, and the old gentleman that sweeps the streets. Not one of them were voters I should tell you.

12,019. Was not that beer taken into the room were they and the voters were?—Yes.

12 020. Did it not consist of nine pots of ale?—No.

12,021. How many?—Three two's, and a one.

12,022. Was all that drunk?—No doubt about it.

12,023. Was not that drunk by the whole of the men that were there?—I cannot say that.

12,024. Do you mean to swear that that was not drunk amongst the whole lot of them?—I would not swear it was not.

12,025. Will you undertake to swear it was not?—I will not. I think most likely it went round.

12,026. Have you any doubt?—There is no doubt it went round.

12,027. You say you do not recollect Anthony Freestone coming in?—I do not know him.

12,028. Was he the man that came in and spoke to Wiseman?—Wiseman came in and spoke to a good many, but I do not know any man that came in and spoke to Wiseman.

12,029. Did you see a man, whose name you did not know, speaking to Wiseman?—I do not recollect it.

12,030. Benfather came in in a great hurry, did he not?—Yes; he stopped a few minutes, but not long.

12,031. He came in in a great hurry?—Yes.

12,032. Did he not say when he came in, "Come along, you that have got votes"?—I did not hear him say so.

12,033. Where were you when he came in?—Behind the bar, and he was in the tap-room.

12,034. Cannot you hear what takes place in the tap-room when you are in your bar?—No.

12,035. He went into the tap-room?—Yes, he did.

12,036. In a great hurry?—I do not know for a great hurry; he walked in in the usual way.

12,037. He came in very sharp indeed?—No, I did not notice any peculiarity in the man's way.

12,038. You have got a bake office there, have you not?—Yes.

12,039. That was not occupied that day for baking purposes, was it?—No, and never is.

12,040. Is there a little back room adjoining it?—Yes, my room, where I regularly live in; what I may term my back kitchen.

12,041. Did not Benfather go into that room?—Yes.

12,042. Thorpe was there then, was he not?—Yes.

12,043. Did you not hear Benfather say, "I will call you in one by one"?—I did not.

12,044. They did go in one by one, did they not?—I do not know whether they went in one by one or not; there were six or seven in the room at one time. I do not know whether you call that one by one.

12,045. Did they not go in one by one?—They must follow one after the other, because the passage is not wide enough.

12,046. They may have gone in one by one, but there would be a difficulty in passing out?—They followed each other, but what they went for I do not know.

12,047. Who were the men that went in; was Morse one?—I do not know.

12,048. Will you undertake to say he was not?—I may say with confidence, on my oath, I do not know whether Charles Morse went in that day.

12,049. Was he in your house at that time?—He was in my house.

12,050. At that time?—I was doing my business.

12,051. Your business is looking after your customers?—Exactly so.

12,052. These people were your customers?—Yes, quite right,

12,053. You were looking after them?—Yes.

12,054. Do you mean to say Charles Morse was not in the room at that time?—I mean to say Charles Morse was in that room three or four times during that day.

12,055. Have you any doubt he was there at that time?—I cannot say when he was in and out. It is a very curious position to put me in, to speak to that.

12,056. I will not put you upon your oath to swear positively whether he was there. Do you not believe he was there. I am now speaking of what is passing in your own mind?—He was there from eleven in the morning till three in the afternoon, but whether he was there at the time you allude to I will not swear.

12,057. Was Mills there?—Yes.

12,058. William Mills of Bath House Yard?—Yes.

12,059. Francis Cutlock?—Yes, he was there; he is a bricklayer.

12,060. And this man Brandish?—No, he was not there.

12,061. Will you undertake to say Robert Brandish was not there?—I will undertake to say he came into my house once during the day for a glass of ale; he was working nearly opposite, and he drank his beer and went to work again. That is all I saw of him during the whole day.

12,062. Richard Ross was there?—Yes.

12,063. Do you not recollect that immediately Benfather had been in that back room those men I have mentioned, with the exception of Thorpe, went away?—No, they all pretty well stayed for an hour after, and more than that, and then walked away as they pleased, one by one.

12,064. Did they go up to vote then?—No, they did not vote at all, several of the men you have mentioned. Thorpe did not vote, Ross did not vote, and Cutlock did not vote; neither Ross, Cutlock, nor Thorpe never voted at all. Thorpe would have voted.

12,065. That is what I was going to ask you. Did not Thorpe refuse to go because they only offered him 5*s*., and did he not say he would not vote for 5*s*., it was of no use to him?—I will tell you. Mr. Thorpe about half-past 11 o'clock in the forenoon spoke to Mr. Worledge about voting, and he said he wanted

ELEVENTH DAY.

W. Clarke.

31 Aug. 1869.

so-and-so, half a sovereign, and Mr. Worledge says, "Do "you want to get me transported?" he says, "There "is not a farthing." Mr. Thorpe says, "I never "voted in my life without something, and I shall not "on this occasion;" and he carried out his threat, for he never voted at all.

12,066. Did he not say that 5*s.* was of no use to him, and he must have half a sovereign?—I did not hear that.

12,067. Was he not talking in your house?—I am speaking of what he said to Mr. Worledge.

12,068. I am now speaking of what he said when Benfather was there?—I did not hear that.

12,069. After Benfather left did he not say he would not take 5*s.* as the others had done, it was of no use to him, and he would have half a sovereign?—I did not hear it.

12,070. He did not go out to vote?—He did not vote.

12,071. Benfather took some of the people away in a cab, did he not?—I believe he did.

12,072. Who were the men he took away in the cab?—I cannot say that.

12,073. Was not Morse one?—If I was to say he was one, to be positive on my oath, I should be perhaps telling a story, therefore I will not say so.

12,074. You may have forgotten it at this length of time. Do you not believe Morse was one of them?—If I was to say he was not one I might be telling a story, and if I was to say he was one I might be telling a story. I am come here to speak the truth. I am rather inclined to believe he was one.

12,075. We will take your gentle inclination that way?—I am giving you the best of my knowledge.

12,076. Brandish lives down a yard near your place?—Yes, Bath House Yard.

12,077. That is close to your house?—Yes, directly opposite.

12,078. Did you not see Worledge and another man go down the yard into Brandish's smith's shop?—He lives down the yard, but his workshop is next the street.

12,079. Did you not see Worledge and the other men go down to the forge?—I did not.

12,080. Was Brandish a little drunk?—I do not know whether he was intoxicated or not. All I know is he had one glass of ale at my house during the day, and that is all I know if him. He was a poor old man, about 70 or 75 years of age; 70 years at any rate.

12,081. You heard Brandish say he would not vote without money, did you not?—No, I never heard him rehearse such a word in my life.

12,082. Was anything said to Brandish about voting while he was in your house?—No. He came into my house cool and collected as he left his forge, and had a glass of ale and went to work again; that is all I saw of him that day, and what he done is unknown to me.

12,083. Who is your brewer?—Anybody.

12,084. Who regularly supplies you?—Patteson and Steward.

12,085. I suppose you have had a little off your account with Patteson and Steward?—No, I do not want that. I can pay Patteson more than he wants of me, cent. per cent.

12,086. Have you not had any discount?—No, I never asked for such a thing.

12,087. Has he not made a liberal discount?—No, I never asked for any.

12,088. Has no discount been allowed?—No.

12,089. At what time did you vote?—About half-past two; and I should have voted before except for being busy.

12,090. No allowance has been made from your account with Patteson?—I should think not.

12,091. Are you sure of that?—Positive. On my oath I never got a reduction of one farthing from Mr. Patteson in my life. If I order a barrel of beer I pay for it; and I always pay before leaving the counting-house.

12,092. Did you see Mr. Patteson on the day of the election?—Not a glance of him.

G. Ellis.

GEORGE ELLIS sworn and examined.

12,093. (Mr. Biron.) Where do you live?—In St. Martin's, at the corner of Angel Yard.

12,094. Were you at Clarke's beerhouse on the morning of the polling day?—No.

12,095. Where were you?—I was at home, I think, until 1 o'clock.

12,096. After 1 o'clock where were you?—Walking about, but I never was in Mr. Clarke's beerhouse.

12,097. Were you near Mr. Clarke's beerhouse?—No, not nearer than my own home, that might be perhaps 150 yards away from Mr. Clarke's beerhouse.

12,098. But from your home, or from where you were, you could see people going in and out of Mr. Clarke's beerhouse?—No.

12,099. Did you see Hardiment that day?—No.

12,100. (Mr. Dowdeswell.) Do you know George Ellis of Bath House Yard?—No, there may be one of that name, but I do not know him.

12,101. (Mr. Biron.) Do you know any other George Ellis but yourself in the city?—No, I cannot say that I do.

12,102. Did you live at Bath House Yard last November?—No, I never lived in the yard in my life.

12,103. Do you remember the election inquiry before Mr. Baron Martin?—Decidedly.

12,104. Did any gentleman come and take down your evidence before that?—No.

12,105. You did not tell anybody before that that you had something to tell about Clarke's beerhouse?—No, decidedly not, I will swear that.

12,106. You are not a voter?—No.

W. Tillett.

WILLIAM TILLETT sworn and examined.

12,107. (Mr. Dowdeswell.) Are you a voter?—Yes.

12,108. Did you vote at the last election?—Yes.

12,109. For whom did you vote?—Stracey.

12,110. At what time?—Between 1 and 2.

12,111. Are you sure you did not vote between 2 and 3?—No, I voted between 1 and 2.

12,112. It must have been very near 2 then?—Yes, but I know I am right on that.

12,113. Where had you been that morning?—At work.

12,114. Where?—At my own place.

12,115. What are you?—A wheelwright.

12,116. How was it that you did not vote before that time?—Because I had work to finish.

12,117. You had been at the "Woolpack," had you not?—I never saw it until I passed to go and vote.

12,118. Did you not go into the "Woolpack" that day?—Certainly not.

12,119. Do you swear that?—I am on my oath, and I do swear.

12,120. Do you know Hardiment?—Know him! Yes sir, certainly I know him as a neighbour.

12,121. Did you see him that day?—Yes.

12,122. Did you have any conversation with him?—No.

12,123. None at all?—None at all.

12,124. Not about voting?—No, nor yet anything else.

12,125. Did he come and canvass you ?—No.

12,126. Was he never in your house that day ?—No, nor yet at all.

12,127. Is your yard adjoining your house ?—Yes.

12,128. Was he in your yard ?—No.

12,129. When did you see him to speak to him before the election ?—I did not speak to him at all, I often see him go past, but I never speak to him.

12,130. Did you never have any conversation with him ?—None at all ; I see him as he passes my gate as he goes out, that is all I see of him.

12,131. Did not Hardiment make you a promise, or give you something to induce you to vote ?—Mr. Hardiment never made me a promise, he could not make me a promise, for I never saw him to speak to him.

12,132. But did he make you any promise of money, or give or send you any money to vote ?—Certainly not anything at all.

12,133. Did anybody do so ?—Not anyone, I had not a halfpenny from any one, nor a drink of beer only what I paid for myself.

12,134. Nobody promised you anything or paid you anything ?—Not at all.

12,135. Were you a voter before this election ?—Yes.

12,136. Have you ever had money for your vote ?—Never a farthing.

12,137. Or been promised anything ?—I do say so, sir, and it is the truth.

ALFRED MONEY sworn and examined.

A. Money.

12,138. (Mr. Mansfield.) You live, I think, at Rose Yard, do you not ?—Yes.

12,139. Did you vote at this election ?—No.

12,140. Have you a vote ?—No.

12,141. Do you recollect being on the day of election at Mackley's, the "Woolpack" ?—Yes.

12,142. What time of the day did you go there ?—About 3 o'clock.

12,143. Were there a good many people about there then ?—A goodish many.

12,144. How many should you say ?—I should say there might be 20.

12,145. Which room were you first in, the bar, or where ?—The bar.

12,146. Do you recollect while you were in the bar seeing Hardiment come in ?—I saw a man they call by the name of Hardiment.

12,147. What time of the day was that ?—About 3.

12,148. That was at the bar, was it not ?—No, sir.

12,149. Close to the bar ?—Close by.

12,150. Was Mackley, the publican, there at the time ?—He was in the bar.

12,151. Did you see Freestone, the baker, there ?—I saw him there, upstairs on the landing.

12,152. Do you recollect anything being said by Hardiment while at the door ?—I saw him give some men a pound a-piece.

12,153. In what part of the house was that ?—That was upstairs.

12,154. Where were you standing then ?—Upstairs.

12,155. What other men were there at that time ?—Oh, there were several of us.

12,156. That was where Mr. Freestone, the baker, was, was it not ?—Yes, he was upstairs.

12,157. Did they not go from the landing into a room there ?—No.

12,158. Where did they go ?—From a room on to the landing.

12,159. Now tell us what was done in that room ?—That is where the money was paid.

12,160. Did you see the money being counted and paid ?—I did so.

12,161. To whom did you see the money being paid ?—I cannot say.

12,162. How much a head did you see given ?—A sovereign.

12,163. Was anything said by people about what they wanted ?—Yes, by one or two, but I cannot tell who they were.

12,164. Did you hear anybody ask for more than a sovereign ?—Yes.

12,165. Did you hear Mr. Hardiment say he could not give more than one sovereign, or anything of the kind ?—He said he could not afford more.

12,166. Then it was settled that they should have a sovereign, was it ?—Yes.

12,167. Did you see Mr. Hardment pay the money ?—Yes, 4l. or 5l.

12,168. Was it all gold ?—In gold what I saw.

12,169. I think you got a sovereign, did you not ?—Yes.

12,170. They took you for a voter ?—I do not know what they took me for ; I held out my hand and he put it in, and I was very thankful for it.

12,171. You looked so ready to sell yourself that of course he took you for a voter ?—I do not know what he took me for.

12,172. Did you see other men being paid at that time ?—Yes.

12,173. How many people did you see of your own knowledge as having been paid ?—It might be four or five or six.

12,174. Did you see any of these gentlemen writing in a book ?—Yes.

12,175. Who was doing that ?—Hardiment.

12,176. Can you tell us the names of any you saw taking money ?—I heard two give their names, one was Betts and the other Clarke.

12,177. Goodwin ?—No ; I saw the man there, but I saw him in the bar, I never saw him upstairs at all.

12,178. Did you see him get any money ?—I did not.

12,179. Were there not some persons there from the third ward ?—Two.

12,180. And they got paid too, did they not ?—No.

12,181. Was anything said about that ?—They objected to them.

12,182. Who objected to them ?—Hardiment.

12,183. Why did he object to them ?—They did not belong to his ward.

12,184. Did you hear anything said by Hardiment about getting a man to see these men vote ?—Yes.

12,185. What did he say ?—He made use of the words, "How do we know these men will vote ?"

12,186. Did he say anything about getting a man to go and see them vote ?—Yes.

12,187. Was any answer made to that ?—Yes.

12,188. By whom ?—By Freestone.

12,189. What did Freestone say when Hardiment asked for a man to see them vote ?—He told me I should go and see them vote.

12,190. Did you go ?—No.

12,191. You had been paid a sovereign, why did you not go ?—Because I came home.

12,192. But you went part of the way to the poll did you not ?—I went about 200 yards.

12,193. And how far off were they from the poll then ?—Not far.

12,194. How many were there of your party at that time ?—There was three or four.

12,195. Did you hear anything more about money being paid on the day of the election ?—No, not to the best of my knowledge.

12,196. Now how long afterwards did you first mention this ?—It might be two months perhaps.

12,197. (Mr. Dowdeswell.) Do you recollect Hardiment and Freestone, the baker, being together when the men were all there ?—Yes.

12,198. Do you not recollect the men being counted ?—I do.

12,199. And were there not 21 of them ?—No, I think 19, but I cannot positively say.

12,200. Were there not 19 besides two men from

ELEVENTH DAY.

A. Money.

31 Aug. 1869.

the third ward whom Hardiment would not pay ?—I cannot say whether it was 21 or 19.

12,201. But there were two persons whom Hardiment objected to pay ?—Yes.

12,202. Do you not recollect that those two people were not included in the list which was put down by Hardiment ?—I do not think they were.

12,203. Were there not 19, and did not Hardiment put 19 in the list of those whom he had to pay ?—I never saw him count them at all, some other man counted them.

12,204. And reported to him the number ?—Yes.

12,205. Did not some of them ask for 3*l.* each ?—Yes.

12,206. Did not Hardiment say he could not afford as much as 3*l.* each for 19, but he would give them a pound apiece ?—Yes.

12,207. They were all paid then, were they ?—That I do not know, I did not see above four or five paid.

12,208. But they were all there for the purpose of being paid ?—I suppose so.

12,209. Did you leave the room immediately afterwards ?—Yes, as they got paid they went downstairs.

12,210. But you heard no grumbling afterwards ?—No.

12,211. (Mr. Biron.) Did you get anything besides that sovereign ?—No.

12,212. What were you doing the days before the election ?—At work.

12,213. For whom ?—For my master.

12,214. You were not engaged about the election ?—Not at all.

12,215. Not in the evenings ?—Not in the evenings.

12,216. (Mr. Dowdeswell.) What were you doing at "The Woolpack" ?—I went in for half a pint of ale.

12,217. Had anybody sent you there, or told you to go ?—No, I promiscuously called in.

12,218. Did you have any communication whatever with Tillett's party ?—No.

12,219. None at all ?—None.

12,220. Were you not there for the purpose of watching ?—No.

12,221. You were simply there for the purpose of getting some beer ?—I was.

W. Drake.

WILLIAM DRAKE sworn and examined.

12,222. (Mr. Biron.) What are you ?—A master chimney sweeper.

12,223. For whom did you vote at the last election ?—Mr. Stracey.

12,224. What time in the day ?—About 3 o'clock.

12,225. Did you get anything for voting for him ?—No.

12,226. Where were you in the early part of the day ?—I was after my business.

12,227. But you sweep chimnies early in the morning ?—All day long when I am after that.

12,228. What chimnies did you sweep that morning ?—I swept about half a dozen, I think.

12,229. At what hour did you begin ?—I cannot say exactly at what hour I began.

12,230. About 4 o'clock in the morning ?—Yes.

12,231. At all events, by the time you had swept your chimnies you were getting thirsty ; where did you go to ?—I was never at any public house. After I have done my morning's work I go and seek for some for next day.

12,232. Just so, but I am speaking of the day of the election ?—Well, I was after my business.

12,233. Did you see Hardiment that day ?—He came to mine, but I was not at home.

12,234. He came to your missus ?—Yes.

12,235. What did he give her ?—I do not know, I was not at home ; I did not receive anything.

12,236. Your wife told you you ought to vote for Stracey, did she not ?—No ; I never let my wife rule in my matters, I do that myself.

12,237. Did she tell you Hardiment had been there ?—No, she told me some men had been for my vote ; I asked her who they were, and she said she did not know.

12,238. Did you vote for Stracey before that ?—Yes, I always voted that colour.

12,239. Had you been canvassed before ?—No.

12,240. Nobody had asked you for your vote before ?—No.

12,241. Did you see Freestone ?—No.

12,242. Are you a freeman ?—Yes.

12,243. Had you voted for Waters ?—Yes.

12,244. Surely you were canvassed this time ?—I was canvassed, but I was not in the way when they came.

12,245. You did not see the gentlemen who came ?—No, I never saw one of them.

12,246. Did they not leave you a card or something ?—Yes, they left several cards.

12,247. Did they leave any money for you ?—No.

12,248. Did your wife tell you what Hardiment said to her ?—No.

12,249. What time in the day was it that Hardiment went to your place ?—I cannot tell you that.

12,250. What time was it that you got home ?—In the middle of the afternoon ; after I had voted I went home.

12,251. Did you see Wiseman that day ?—No, I never recollect anyone coming to the house at all, I was not in the way.

12,252. Perhaps not at your house, but did you see them anywhere else ?—No.

12,253. Did you see Hardiment that day at all ?—No.

12,254. Did you see Freestone that day at all ?—No, I do not know that I know Freestone.

12,255. Did you have any conversation with anybody about your vote ?—No ; I said I would go and vote the way I always did ; I should vote which way I thought proper, that that was the way I always did vote, and I should vote the same way this time.

12,256. Who did you say that to ?—My wife ; I said I had always voted that colour, and I should vote this time the same.

12,257. Have you got anything since ?—No I have not had anything.

12,258. Has not Hardiment given you anything since ?—No.

12,259. Or Wiseman ?—No.

W. Fearnley.

WALTER FEARNLEY sworn and examined.

12,260. (Mr. Dowdeswell.) Are you a voter ?—Yes.

12,261. Did you vote at the last election ?—Yes.

12,262. For whom did you vote ?—I voted for Sir Henry Stracey.

12,263. What time in the day did you vote ?—About half-past 12, or something like that.

12,264. Was it not later than that when you voted ?—No.

12,265. Were you at the "Buck" inn at all that day ?—No, I was not at the "Buck" at all that day.

12,266. Did you not go into the "Buck" at all ?—No.

12,267. Where were you in the early part of that day ?—I was at home until I voted.

12,268. What were you doing at home ?—I was at work.

12,269. What is your work ?—A boatbuilder, a boatwright.

12,270. Did you not see Wiseman that day ?—No.

12,271. Or Hardiment ?—Oh, I saw Hardiment.

12,272. Where did you see Hardiment ?—About the street.

ELEVENTH DAY.

W. Fearnley.

31 Aug. 1869.

12,273. Did he not speak to you?—No, not at all.

12,274. Did he not come to your house?—No, nor yet near it.

12,275. Do you know Freestone, the baker?—No, I cannot say I do.

12,276. Did a man come to your house that day and ask you to vote?—No, only Mr. Ellis.

12,277. What Mr. Ellis is that?—Well, I saw him talking just as I was going to vote, and he said, "Now is the time to go and vote;" I said, "I am not going to vote on your side, I am going to vote for Mr. Stracey."

12,278. Where does he live?—He lives in the Croft, in St. Martin's.

12,279. He is a Whig, is he?—Yes.

12,280. Then you refused to go and vote for him?—No, I would not vote for him, only for my own principle.

12,281. Had you ever voted before?—No.

12,282. Do you belong to the Conservative Working Mens' Association?—No, no association at all.

12,283. Did you get anything whatever for voting?—No, I got nothing.

12,284. And were promised nothing?—I had no promise.

12,285. Did you get any beer for it?—No; what little beer I had I paid for myself.

12,286. Where did you have your beer that day?—I paid for plenty myself.

12,287. Where?—All over the city.

12,288. I thought you had been at work all the morning?—After I voted I went and looked at the state of the poll all the way round.

12,289. You made a round of them?—And wound up at my own house.

12,290. Where did you get the money from that you spent in beer?—I earned it; when I go out I like to treat people.

GEORGE BARBER sworn and examined.

G. Barber.

12,291. (Mr. Mansfield.) Do you recollect being about on the day of the election?—Yes.

12,292. What public-houses did you go to?—Well, the first public-house I went to was Thomas Warnes', in St. James', the next house I went to was the "Jolly Skinners," in St. Martin's.

12,293. Did you pay for your own beer?—Yes.

12,294. Well, what was the next house?—The next house I went to was the "Garibaldi."

12,295. Did you pay for your beer there?—Yes.

12,296. Which was the next you went to?—The next house I went to was the "Weeping Oak."

12,297. Did you have some more beer?—Yes, but I paid for my own beer.

12,298. What was the next place?—The next place I went to was the house in Rosemary Lane; I do not know whether they call it the "Rosemary Lane" tavern, but I had some beer there.

12,299. That is the fifth time you treated yourself?—Yes.

12,300. Did you try another house after that?—I went into several.

12,301. Did you get to the "Woolpack" at last?—Certainly not.

12,302. Did you see Hardiment in the course of the day?—Yes.

12,303–4. Where was that?—I saw him at this house on St. Mary's Plain, I think it is called the "Rosemary Tavern."

12,305. Did he give you any beer?—No.

12,306. Did he give you any money?—Yes.

12,307. What did he give you money for?—To vote.

12,308. How much money did he give you?—Three halfcrowns.

12,309. Did you see him give money to anyone else?—Yes.

12,310. Who was that?—A man by the name of George Cossey.

12,311. Where does he live?—At Heigham.

12,312. Did you see anyone else?—No.

12,313. Did you hear of anybody else getting money?—No.

12,314. Getting either beer or money from Hardiment?—No.

12,315. Did you see Wiseman during the day?—I cannot exctly auswer that question, whether I did or whether I did not.

12,316. Did you speak to him?—I do not believe I did that day; I could not swear whether I did or not.

12,317. Did anybody else offer you money that day?—Not to me.

12,318. Did you hear of anybody else having money offered to him?—No.

12,319. You are sure of that?—I am sure of it.

12,320. I suppose you were rather forward in drink towards the end of the day?—Well, I believe I was.

12,321. You were in that state when you got the three halfcrowns?—Well, I got my three halfcrowns in the fore part of the day.

12,322. At what time?—I believe it was between 12 and 1.

12,323. You had no vote?—I had a vote, but I did not vote.

12,324. You say you did not vote?—Because he never gave me money enough.

12,325. Then your took you three halfcrowns and wanted some more?—I wanted some more if I could get it.

12,326. Did you ask him for more?—Yes, I did.

12,327. What did Hardiment say?—He would not give it.

12,328. He would not even promise any more?—No.

12,329. And no beer?—No.

12,330. Did you try again later on in the day to get more than your three halfcrowns?—No, sir, I believe I got too intoxicated.

12,331. Were there any of your mates that voted?—No, not to the best of my knowledge.

12,332. George Cossey who got his three halfcrowns, did he vote or not?—I believe he did.

12,333. You did not go with him to the poll?—No.

12,334. Do you know whether he got anything more for his bargain than the three halfcrowns?—Well, I do not believe he did.

12,335. Did he try?—I cannot say.

12,336. Not in your presence?—No.

RICHARD BUTTLE sworn and examined.

R. Buttle.

12,337. (Mr. Biron.) What are you?—A coal merchant.

12,338. For whom did you vote at the last election?—Mr. Stracey.

12,339. At what time in the day?—Between three and four.

12,340. Why did you not vote earlier?—I was very busy on that day.

12,341. You were busy about your work?—Yes.

12,342. Where was your work?—Close by the quay side.

12,343. What were you doing?—Unloading the barges.

12,344. Did that take you the whole day?—Yes.

12,345. What time do you begin it?—We begin in the morning, and sometimes it takes two days to do it.

12,346. You went working on at it the whole day long?—Yes.

12,347. Did you see anybody before you voted?—Yes.

12,348. Was that Mr. Howse Allen?—Yes.

ELEVENTH DAY.

R. Buttle.

31 Aug. 1869.

12,349. Did he give you anything ?—No.

12,350. Not at all that day ?—No.

12,351. Did he not give you 50*s.* ?—No.

12,352. Did he not come to you and ask if you had voted ?—Yes.

12,353. What time was that ?—That was about noontime when he first came.

12,354. That was down by the quay side, was it not ?—Yes.

12,355. Were there not several men there who had not voted ?—There was one or two ; one was working for me.

12,356. What was his name ?—Barker.

12,357. Were there not one or two more ?—Not working for me.

12,358. Were there not others besides the man who was working for you ?—No.

12,359. Did he not ask you if you had voted ?—He asked me if I had voted, and I said I had not.

12,360. Did he not then ask if you could get any votes in your neighbourhood ?—He did so.

12,361. And you said you thought you could ?—I thought I could.

12,362. Did he not then say, "Well, if you can get them for 5*s.* each do" ?—Yes.

12,363. Did not you then go and speak to some men ?—Yes, some little distance off ; 20 or 30 yards off.

12,364. Who were they that you spoke to ?—There was Ellis, Barker, and two or three others standing by.

12,365. Can you not recollect the names of the two or three others ?—Sagar I think was one, and Berwick was the other.

12,366. Where do they live ?—They live in that neighbourhood.

12,367. Just about the quay side ?—Yes.

12,368. There were four or five of them ?—Yes.

12,369. Did you not then say, "Well, give them 10*s.*" ?—No, I did not say so then, not till he came back again, he went away for an hour and a half.

12,370. But later in the day he did say, "Give them 10*s.*, they will not go for 5*s.*" ?—Yes, he did say that.

12,371. And, "Come to me in the morning, and I will pay you the money" ?—No ; he told me to do the best I could, and I did not call upon him until the latter part of the week.

12,372. He intimated that you were to buy them ?—Yes.

12,373. At the end of the following week, did you not go to Mr. Allen ?—I went on the Friday or Saturday morning after that.

12,374. And did he then give you the 50*s.* ?—Yes.

12,375. That was for five of the men ?—For the voters.

12,376. Had you in fact paid five men half a sovereign each ?—I had paid two of them half a sovereign each, and the other I kept for my own purposes.

12,377. You asked him for 50*s.* ?—He asked me what I wanted, and I said 50*s.*, and he gave me the 50*s.*

12,378. Did you get the other men to vote ?—I got two to vote.

12,379. Only two out of the five ?—Only two ; the others I did not see.

12,380. Did you not tell Mr. Howse Allen that you had seen five ?—I told him I thought I could get five when I first came down.

12,381. At half a sovereign each ?—There might be five, or six, or seven, but I did not see the others.

12,382. Who were the men you gave the half sovereigns to ?—I gave one to James Barker, and the other to Charles Barnes.

12,383. You did not vote yourself until after you had seen Allen, did you ?—I did not ; I voted between three and four.

12,384. And you stuck to the 30*s.* ?—Yes.

G. W. Townshend.

GEORGE WILLIAM TOWNSHEND sworn and examined.

12,385. (Mr. Dowdeswell.) Are you a voter ?—Yes.

12,386. Did you vote at the last election ?—Yes.

12,387. For whom did you vote ?—Stracey.

12,388. What time in the day did you vote ?—As near as I can say about half-past two, or 20 minutes after two.

12,389. Before you voted did you see Mr. Howse Allen ?—No.

12,390. Did you see Mr. Howse Allen that day ?—Yes, I did.

12,391. Did he give you any money ?—Yes.

12,392. For what did he give you that money ?—Well, I can hardly recollect the conversation, but I believe the idea was to do the best I could with it, to make use of it.

12,393. In procuring votes ?—Yes.

12,394. How much did he give you ?—2*l.*

12,395. Now what did you do with it ?—Well, I did not do anything with it.

12,396. You did nothing with it ?—Well, it was got too late ; there was no time for me to make any use of it, it was then about 25 minutes to four.

12,397. Did you try to make any use of it ?—Well, not particularly.

12,398. Mr. Howse Allen had given it to you to make use of ?—He had so.

12,399. Do you mean to say you put it into your pocket and did not take any trouble about the matter ?—Oh yes, I did take a little trouble, but it had got so late that it was useless taking any trouble.

12,400. What little trouble did you take ?—I believe I went into the seventh ward and saw two or three men who wanted half a sovereign each, and I was not willing to give them that amount.

12,401. If you had 2*l.* in your pocket, why did you not think it worth while to give them 10*s.* each ?—Why, it was too much.

12,402. What did you do with the 2*l.* ?—I kept it.

12,403. You were told to make the best bargain you could with the men, and when you found they wanted half a sovereign why did you not give it to them ?—For the reason that I thought half a sovereign was too much to give a man for his vote.

12,404. Have you ever been a voter for this city before ?—No.

12,405. And you have lived in this city for some years ?—Many years.

12,406. And I suppose you have heard that half a sovereign and a great deal more has been given for votes ?—I have read and heard, of course, of various sums being given.

12,407. Have you ever heard before of so small a sum as half a sovereign being given for a vote in Norwich ?—Oh yes.

12,408. What is the price ?—Of course we have it in print that men were sold at the last election.

12,409. I am not speaking of the last election, but of the former elections. Did you ever hear before that of so small a sum as 10*s.* being given for a vote ?—Yes, I believe I have heard of 5*s.*

12,410. When ?—Not at the last election but the election before.

12,411. How many voters were bought for 5*s.* ?—That I cannot say.

12,412. You had got 40*s.* in your pocket and contented yourself with keeping it there, and telling the men that you thought 10*s.* too much ?—Yes.

12,413. (Mr. Biron.) Did you offer them less ?—No.

12,414. (Mr. Dowdeswell.) Do you mean to say you did not give any voter at all a single farthing of that money ?—Not a halfpenny.

12,415. (Mr. Biron.) Who were the men that were ready to take the half-sovereign?—I do not know; they were voters in the seventh ward.

12,416. You told Mr. Howse Allen that you had voted for Stracey?—Yes.

12,417. Are you sure that you had voted at that time?—I am positive of it.

12,418. Did you tell Mr. Howse Allen that you had voted at that time?—No, the question was not asked whether I had voted.

12,419. Did you ever tell Mr. Howse Allen that you had not been able to get any voters?—No.

12,420. (Mr. Dowdeswell.) Have you got the 40*s.* in your pocket still?—Well, I made use of it.

12,421. How was it, that having got the 40*s.* in your pocket, and having had it for the purpose of getting voters, you did not go and tell Mr. Howse Allen that you had never got any voters at all?—I did not think there was any occasion; there was no arrangement of that kind made at all.

12,422. Is that your idea of what is honest?—Well, we are not scrupulous at those times.

JAMES ALLEN sworn and examined. J. Allen.

12,423. (Mr. Mansfield.) Are you a voter?—Yes.

12,424. Who did you vote for?—Stracey.

12,425. At what time in the day?—From about half-past 3 to 4.

12,426. Why did you not vote sooner?—Well, I was busy at work.

12,427. What are you by trade?—A coal porter.

12,428. Who asked you to vote?—Nobody.

12,429. Not before or during the election?—No; I was not at home when anybody came round.

12,430. Did anybody come to you and offer you anything?—No.

12,431. Did you get beer?—No.

12,432. Who took you to the poll?—I jumped on to a coal cart and went up myself.

12,433. Then did you go home?—Yes.

12,434. Have you had anything given you?—No.

12,435. Or anything promised you?—Not anything.

12,436. Which way did your master vote?—That I am sure I cannot tell you.

12,437. Did you see Hardiment during the day?—No.

12,438. Do you know him?—No.

12,439. (Mr. Biron.) Have you a wife?—Yes.

12,440. Did she tell you to go and vote?—No.

12,441. Did she not say anything to you before you voted?—No, it is a thing I did not take any interest in.

12,442. Did she not tell you that something had been left with her?—No, and she never took anything.

12,443. No money was left?—No money was left at all.

12,444. (Mr. Dowdeswell.) No money got into your pocket that day in consequence of its being left on the table by someone you did not know anything about?—No.

12,445. You are sure that was not so?—I am quite sure.

HENRY AMIS sworn and examined. H. Amis.

12,446. (Mr. Biron.) What are you?—An innkeeper.

12,447. For whom did you vote at the last election?—Sir Henry Stracey.

12,448. When?—About half-past 10 in the morning.

12,449. What is your house?—The "Britannia."

12,450. Were there any voters there that day waiting?—No.

12,451. None?—None at all.

12,452. Did Hardiment come into your house at all that day?—No.

12,453. Do you know him?—I know the man, but I never saw him in my house in my life.

12,454. Or Freestone, the baker?—No.

12,455. Or Wiseman?—No.

12,456. Nobody came to your house?—Nobody.

12,457. Did you get anything for voting?—Certainly not.

12,458. Or were you promised anything—No.

12,459. Was any allowance made by your brewer?—No, nothing.

12,460. Were you paid for any beer that was drunk at your house that day?—I did not draw any in that way; I drew for my regular customers and that was all.

MICHAEL BELL sworn and examined. M. Bell.

12,461. (Mr. Dowdeswell.) Are you a voter?—Yes.

12,462. Had you been a voter before this last election?—Yes.

12,463. For whom did you vote?—For Russell and Stracey.

12,464. What time did you vote?—About 2 o'clock.

12,465. How came you to be so late in voting?—It was more convenient for me to vote at that time than any other.

12,466. They had urged you to go up early, had they not?—No; I had no person to come to me to urge me.

12,467. You went up of your own accord, did you?—Yes.

12,468. How had you voted before?—For Russell and Warner.

12,469. Did you receive anything for your vote?—No.

12,270. Nor a promise of anything?—No.

12,471. Do you know of anybody having received anything for his vote?—No.

12,472-3. Either upon this or any other occasion?—No.

JAMES BLAKE sworn and examined. J. Blake.

12,474. (Mr. Mansfield.) What are you by trade?—A shoe manufacturer.

12,475. Who do you work for?—Different gentlemen in the county and city.

12,476. At what time did you vote?—As near as I can recollect the time it was about 2 o'clock.

12,477. Who did you vote for?—Sir Henry Stracey.

12,478. What made you so late?—I was not in Norwich.

12,479. Where were you?—I was in Yarmouth.

12,480. Who brought you over from Yarmouth?—The train brought me over.

12,481. I did not ask you what, but who asked you to come?—Why, I went in the morning; I was obliged to go, and I came home on purpose to vote.

12,482. Then you had promised your vote, had you?—No, I had not promised my vote to anybody; I am an independent voter.

12,483. Is this the first time you ever voted?—I have voted for 27 years, and never voted anything else than Conservative; I always voted independent of any gentlemen.

12,484. Do you know Mr. Dumbleton, of Yarmouth?—No, I do not.

12,485. Or Cooper?—No, I do not know any single political gentleman in Yarmouth.

ELEVENTH DAY.

J. Blake.

31 Aug. 1869.

12,486. What has been paid you this time for your vote?—I have never been paid in my life, so I cannot be paid this time.

12,487. Have you had any beer this time?—I never had a drop of beer in my life, or the value of a glass.

12,488. Has any promise been made to you?—I did not want any promise, because I am an independent voter. Barring this election I was never five minutes after eight before I voted, and it was only on account of my being out of town that made me so late voting this time, or else I should have voted five minutes after eight then.

C. Barber.

CHARLES BARBER sworn and examined.

12,489. (Mr. Biron.) What are you?—A weaver.

12,490. Where do you live?—In St. Martin's at Oak.

12,491. For whom did you vote at the last election?—Russell and Tillett.

12,492. At what hour in the day?—About half-past nine.

12,493. Were you about the city that day?—Yes.

12,494. Did you go to any of the public-houses?—I spent the chief of my time in the market place. I went into one public-house, that is all.

12,495. What is that?—At the corner of the market; I do not know the sign.

12,496. Were any voters there?—I did not see any.

12,497. In the market place, there were voters hanging about, were there not?—Oh yes, plenty at different places.

12,498. Waiting for money?—I cannot answer that question; they were waiting about; they had not voted.

12,499. Had not voted, and did not seem likely to vote?—No.

12,500. That is close to the polling place?—Yes.

12,501. And nothing to prevent their voting?—Nothing.

12,502. Did they say anything about a day's pay?—Well, I cannot say that they did.

12,503. They did not say that they should not vote unless they were paid for their day's work?—That was common talk among the men there, but I do not know them personally.

12,504. That is all you know about it?—That is all I know about it.

12,505. You saw nobody paid any money?—No.

12,506. And you got nothing for your own vote?—No, I did not intend; I wish they had all acted as I did.

R. Corrick.

ROBERT CORRICK sworn and examined.

12,507. (Mr. Dowdeswell.) Are you a voter?—Yes.

12,508. Did you vote at the last election?—No.

12,509. How came you not to vote?—Because I was frolicking about all day, and I did not think anything about it.

12,510. What were you engaged about, that you did not vote?—Nothing at all.

12,511. Were you wandering about the whole day?—Yes.

12,512. You passed the polling places pretty often, did you not?—Several times during the day.

12,513. Then why did you not go and vote?—Because I did not think anything about it. I never did vote in my life yet, but I am a freeman of the city of Norwich.

12,514. Were you standing out for something?—Nothing of the kind.

12,515. Had you not promised?—No.

12,516. Had you not promised to vote for Stracey?—No.

12,517. Are you sure you had not?—Yes.

12,518. Did you find lots of men who were wandering about like yourself, and who wanted a day's pay?—There were lots of men wandering about, of course.

12,519. And who wanted a day's pay?—No, there were none of that sort at all.

12,520. Or who wanted some money?—They had some money of their own, the ones I was with; they did not want anybody else's money.

12,521. Did they not say that they wanted to be paid for their day's work?—Well, I might hear some people say so, but I cannot tell exactly.

12,522. A good many, did you not?—I don't know that I did, anybody.

12,523. You talked to the people you met in the street, I suppose?—It was very seldom I was about the streets; I was about from house to house, getting a glass on the day of the election.

12,524. But in the streets you saw people whom you knew, did you not?—Oh yes, plenty of people.

12,525. And you talked to them did you not?—Oh yes.

12,526. And was it not the common talk amongst them that they wanted a day's pay?—I might hear some people say so.

12,527. Did you not?—I think it was very likely I did.

12,528. Now did you think the same?—I never gave such a thing a thought, I never thought about voting at all.

12,529. Although you were wandering about the whole day doing nothing and not going up to the poll, you never gave that a thought?—Not to vote myself. I did not intend. I would not have none of them. I would not vote for one party or the other.

12,530. Why did you not vote at all?—I don't know the reason why I did not do so.

12,531. Why had you not given the thing a thought?—I do not take any interest in electioneering.

12,532. Do you mean to say that having a vote, and wandering about in the neighbourhood where people were voting that you never even gave it a thought?—Not about voting.

12,533. What did you think about then?—I was thinking about enjoying myself, that is all.

12,534. Were you drunk?—No sir, as sober as I am now.

12,535. Then do you mean to say that you were so occupied and engrossed with the enjoyment that you could not think about the poll?—Yes, I can enjoy myself anywhere.

12,536. What was the enjoyment which prevented your thinking about the poll?—Being amongst company, that is all.

12,537. But unless you talked about the poll and what was going on, there would be no enjoyment in that?—There is other arguments to bring up that day as well as talking about voting.

12,538. What were the other "arguments" talked about?—Many things I cannot tell you now.

12,539. However, the election was talked about a good deal, was it not?—Oh yes, all over the place no doubt.

12,540. Now it being the general talk and the great topic of conversation, do you mean to give me the answer that you never gave it a thought?—I never gave it a thought about voting.

12,541. Were you not standing out to see what you could get?—No.

12,542. I suppose if a man had given you 5s. that would have made you think about it, would it not?—No, nor yet 5l.

12,543. That would not make you think about it?—No.

12,544. If it had been 10*l.* would that have made you think about it?—If it had been 20*l.* or 40*l.* it would not have made any difference to me. I did not intend to vote either for Whigs or Tories.

12,545. If they had offered you 100*l.* I suppose you would not have thought about it?—That would be a great temptation, sir.

12,546. I think I need not go further than 100*l.*; you have put an estimate upon yourself which I am sorry to say I cannot concur in. You may go down.—Thank you.

WALTER CHALKER sworn and examined.

W. Chalker.

12,547. (Mr. Mansfield.) What are you by trade?—An ironmonger's assistant.

12,548. What are you rated at?—8*l.*

12,549. Who did you vote for?—Sir Henry Stracey.

12,550. What time did you vote?—Ten o'clock in the morning as near as I can tell.

12,551. Did you canvass at all?—No.

12,552. Did you make any offer to anybody?—No.

12,553. Or promise anything?—No.

12,554. Was any offer or promise made to you?—Not a farthing.

12,555. Had you voted before?—No.

12,556. Who canvassed you?—Not anyone; I am in business all day, and did not see anybody at all.

12,557. You were not at home in the day?—I leave at half-past 8 in the morning, and do not get home till 7 in the evening.

FREDERICK FLOWERDEW sworn and examined.

F. Flowerdew.

12,558. (Mr. Biron.) What are you?—A ostler.

12,559. Where?—At the "King's Arms."

12,560. For whom did you vote at the last election?—Mr. Stracey.

12,561. At what hour of the day?—Between half-past 3 and 4.

12,562. Why did not you vote earlier?—It was not convenient for me to get away.

12,563. How far was the polling booth from your house?—Not a great way.

12,564. How far?—About five minute's walk.

12,565. What were you doing all the morning?—Taking in horses and sending them out.

12,566. Could you not go away for four or five minutes?—No, I could not get away until then.

12,567. Did you ask that you might go and vote?—No, I did not ask.

12,568. How were you able to get away at half-past 3 better than at any other time?—Because my horses were all gone.

12,569. How long had they been gone?—I went as soon as ever they went away.

12,570. Who asked you to vote for Stracey?—I believe a man of the name of Plunkett came round and asked me about a week before the election.

12,571. Who is he?—He is a publican, and lives in St. Augustine's.

12,572. Did you see anyone else about your vote?—No.

12,573. Did anyone come to you that day?—No.

12,574. What did the publican say to you about voting?—Asked me if I would oblige Mr. Stracey with my vote, and I said yes.

12,575. Did he offer you anything?—No.

12,576. Or promise to give you anything if you would vote for Stracey?—No.

12,577. Did you get anything for voting for Stracey?—No.

12,578. Have you been paid anything since?—No.

12,579. Have you received anything?—No.

12,580. Are you married?—Yes.

12,581. Has your wife received anything?—No.

12,582. Did she say anything to you about voting?—No.

12,583. Not that day?—No.

12,584. Did anybody go to the poll with you?—No.

EDWARD FREEMAN sworn and examined.

E. Freeman.

12,585. (Mr. Dowdeswell.) Are you a voter?—Yes.

12,586. Did you vote at the last election?—Yes.

12,587. For whom did you vote?—Sir Henry Stracey.

12,588. What time in the day did you go up to the poll?—I should think about two o'clock.

12,589. Where were you on the morning of that day?—I was at home.

12,590. How far is the polling place from your home?—Well, I do not know, it is a goodish distance, a whole street.

12,591. How many yards?—600 or 800 yards I should think.

12,592. That would be five or six minutes' walk for you?—Yes.

12,593. Now, why did you not vote before that time in the day?—I was engaged. I am a shoe manufacturer, and I was looking after my hands in the morning.

12,594. How many men do you employ?—Eight or nine, according as the trade is.

12,595. Was anything promised you for voting?—Never.

12,596. Or did you receive anything for voting?—Never one halfpenny in my life. I never had a vote until then.

12,597. Did you give anything to anybody to vote?—Not a halfpenny, and I never offered anything, and never was asked for anything.

JOHN GUYTON sworn and examined.

J. Guyton.

12,598. (Mr. Mansfield.) What are you by trade?—A tailor.

12,599. For whom do you work?—Mr. Wormack.

12,600. What time did you vote?—Between one and two.

12,601. Why did you not vote earlier?—Because it was most convenient to me, being in the dinner hour.

12,602. What were you doing in the morning?—I was at work.

12,603. Who did you vote for?—Stracey and Tillett.

12,604. Is this the first time you have had a vote?—Yes.

12,605. Was anything offered to you for your vote on this occasion?—No.

12,606. No promise made?—No.

12,607. You have received nothing?—No.

12,608. Have you offered anything to anybody else?—No.

12,609. Did anybody ask you for your vote?—I was solicited by the blue party, but I made no promise. I voted quite independent.

12,610. Did you go up by yourself to the poll?—Yes.

ELEVENTH DAY.

31 Aug. 1869.

F. Hannant.

FREDERICK HANNANT sworn and examined.

12,611. (Mr. Biron.) What are you?—A publican.

12,612. What is the name of your house?—The "Catherine Wheel."

12,613. Where is it?—In St. Augustine's.

12,614. For whom did you vote at the last election?—Stracey.

12,615. What time in the day?—I cannot say exactly the time. I should think about 12 o'clock, as near as I can tell.

12,616. Were there any voters in your house that day?—Not that I am aware of.

12,617. Did anybody come there to see them about their votes?—Not that I know of; there was nothing particular doing in the house during the day, nothing extra.

12,618. Was Hardiment or Wiseman there?—Hardiment came in during the day.

12,619. What time of the day?—I should say between 11 and 12 o'clock.

12,620. Did he speak to any of the men there?—No, he only spoke to me, that I am aware of.

12,621. What did he say to you?—He asked me if I would vote for Sir Henry Stracey.

12,622. What did you say?—I said I intended voting for Sir Henry Stracey.

12,623. Had you promised your vote before?—I had not promised it to anyone.

12,624. You had made up your mind to vote for Stracey?—I had.

12,625. Had Hardiment offered you anything?—No.

12,626. Or given you anything?—No.

12,627. Or left anything at your house?—Not that I am aware of.

12,628. You would know it, would you not, if it were done?—I did not see anything that I am in any way aware of.

12,629. Are you married?—Yes.

12,630. Did you hear anything from your wife about his having left money?—No, not a word.

R. Moss.

ROBERT MOSS sworn and examined.

12,631. (Mr. Dowdeswell.) Are you a voter?—Yes.

12,632. Did you vote at the last election?—I voted for Mr. Stracey.

12,633. How came you to be so late in the day in voting?—Well, sir, I am a carter, and I was about in my cart.

12,634. What time did you go out with your cart in the morning?—Well, I do not know; eight or nine o'clock.

12,635. If it was nine o'clock you had plenty of time to vote before that?—But I had a piece of business to go after before then.

12,636. Had anybody asked for your vote the day before the election?—No.

12,637. Did anybody come to you for your vote that day?—Yes, there was a man came, but I was not at home.

12,638. Then did you ultimately go of your own accord?—Yes, I went of my own accord.

12,639. Had you ever been a voter before?—Yes.

12,640. Which way had you voted before?—For the Tories.

12,641. Did you receive anything for voting?—No.

12,642. Were you promised anything?—No.

J. Plunkett.

JOHN PLUNKETT sworn and examined.

12,643. (Mr. Mansfield.) What are you by trade?—A publican and a coal seller.

12,644. Where is your house?—In St. Augustine's.

12,645. For whom did you vote at this last election?—Stracey.

12,646. What time in the day?—As near as I can guess between 10 and 11.

12,647. Was your house pretty full the whole day?—Pretty full of what?

12,648. Of people?—No, there was nobody there.

12,649. Did you see Mr. Hardiment there?—No, I never saw him the whole day to the best of my knowledge.

12,650. Do you know him?—Yes, I have seen the man.

12,651. Who asked you for your vote?—I do not know that anyone did.

12,652. Did you promise your vote?—No.

12,653. Then what made you vote?—Because I thought Sir Henry Stracey was the most fit and proper person to represent Norwich.

12,654. Have you received anything for your vote?—No.

12,655. Or been promised anything?—No.

12,656. Did you yourself give any promise of anything to anybody?—No.

12,657. Did you see Wiseman during the day?—Yes, I saw Mr. Wiseman once during the day.

12,658. Was any canvassing going on at your house?—No, mine is not an electioneering house.

12,659. Who is your brewer?—Messrs. Steward and Patteson.

J. Plunkett, jun.

JOHN PLUNKETT, jun., sworn and examined.

12,660. (Mr. Biron.) What are you?—A baker.

12,661. For whom did you vote at the last election?—Stracey.

12,662. At what hour in the day?—After three.

12,663. What did you get for voting?—Nothing.

12,664. How came you to put it off until three?—My business.

12,665. What business?—In the baking line.

12,666. Are you a master baker?—Yes.

12,667. Could you not leave your ovens?—No.

12,668. Who canvassed you for your vote?—Young Mr. Wiseman.

12,669. About three o'clock?—No, not that day—I think it was the day before.

12,670. Did he say he would make it all right if you voted for Stracey?—Not a word.

12,671. Did he not say anything about it? Did he say he would give you anything?—No.

12,672. He asked you to vote for Stracey, and did you say you would?—No, I did not promise.

12,673. Why did you not?—Well, I did not.

12,674. Why not?—I am sure I do not know. I did not promise anybody.

12,675. How came you to make up your mind to vote for Stracey at three o'clock in the afternoon?—I am sure I do not know.

12,676. Oh yes, you do. You must have had some reason. What was your reason?—I am sure I do not know what reason, no further than my father voted that way, and I thought I would do the same.

12,677. Had your father said anything to you about voting?—No, no further than asking me who I was going to vote for, and I said if I voted at all, I should vote for Mr. Stracey.

12,678. When was that?—That was the day before.

12,679. Had he seen Wiseman?—Oh yes, he was along with young Mr. Wiseman the day before.

12,680. Have you got anything from your father since?—Oh, no.

12,681. Has he not given you anything since the polling day?—No.

ELEVENTH DAY.

C. Scotten.

31 Aug. 1869.

CHRISTOPHER SCOTTEN sworn and examined.

12,682. (Mr. Dowdeswell.) Were you a voter?—Yes.

12,683. What time of the day did you vote at the last election?—Before nine in the morning.

12,684. Who did you vote for?—Stracey.

12,685. Did you get anything for voting?—No.

12,686. Or were you offered or promised anything by anybody?—No.

12,687–8. Or did you pay anybody?—No, not anything.

J. Wasp.

JAMES WASP sworn and examined.

12,689. (Mr. Mansfield.) What are you by trade?—A shoemaker.

12,690. Who do you work for?—Mr. Ellis.

12,691. Did you vote?—I did not vote at all.

12,692. Were you canvassed?—No. I was not entitled to a vote.

12,693. Where were you during the daytime?—At work the chief part of the day.

12,694. Were you at any of the public-houses?—No. I did not go into one to the best of my knowledge until the evening.

12,695. Nothing was offered to you by anybody?—No.

12,696. (Mr. Biron.) There are some other James Wasps, are there?—Yes, there are three of us.

W. West.

WILLIAM WEST sworn and examined.

12,697. (Mr. Biron.) What are you?—A photographic artist and a professional singer.

12,698. That is a fine long title?—I am capable of both of them, sir.

12,699. For whom did you vote at the last election?—Stracey.

12,700. At what time in the day?—About half-past 11 o'clock in the morning, as near as possible.

12,701. Did you get anything for voting; in the shape of money or beer?—Nothing whatever.

12,702. (Mr. Dowdeswell.) Or a promise of employment?—No, I did not require it.

J. Wright.

JAMES WRIGHT sworn and examined.

12,703. (Mr. Dowdeswell.) Are you a voter?—Yes.

12,704. Were you a voter before this time?—No.

12,705. Now, at what time did you vote at the last election?—About half-past eleven, as near as I can guess.

12,706. Were you promised, did you receive, or were you paid any money for your vote?—No.

12,707. Or was employment promised you, or anything of that kind?—No, nothing of the sort.

Adjourned to to-morrow at 10.30.

TWELFTH DAY.

Wednesday, 1st September 1869.

TWELFTH DAY.

E. C. Dowson.

1 Sept. 1869.

EDWARD CHRISTMAS DOWSON sworn and examined.

12,708. (Mr. Dowdeswell.) Are you a voter?—Yes.

12,709. Did you vote at the last election?—I did.

12,710. For whom did you vote?—For Sir Henry Stracey.

12,711. Do you keep the "Blackfriars Tavern"?—I do.

12,712. During the day of the election were a number of voters at your house?—Not that I am aware of; I was not there only at the dinner hour.

12,713. Were not a number of voters at your house?—I believe not.

12,714. Were there not voters at your house?—I could not say that, for I was not at home in my house not more than half an hour the whole day; that was at the dinner hour. I never attend to the house myself.

12,715. Where were you all day?—I was at work a portion of the day; I went to my business in the morning after I had voted.

12,716. What is your business?—Plumber, painter, and glazier. I keep men. I very seldom attend to that place; I scarcely ever draw a glass of beer in it; in fact I make it a rule not to attend to it at all.

12,717. Then who attends to your business?—My wife; I leave it entirely to her.

12,718. What money did you receive from Mr. Wiseman that day?—3*l.* 10*s.*; they were in half-sovereigns.

12,719. At what time did you receive it?—I will tell you how I came to receive them, then you will hear the whole statement. I do not want to keep anything back.

12,720. I want to know about what time?—Twenty minutes to four.

12,721. Where were you when you received them?—In the committee room.

12,722. Where was that?—In Calvert Street.

12,723. What is the name of the place?—Mr. Smith's, the shoe manufacturer.

12,724. Was it old Wiseman or the young one?—The elder.

12,725. How came you to receive that?—I will tell you. A man of the name of Pointer had been in the committee room and asked for me; I was not there when he first came; then he came afterwards. He said there were seven men who would vote if they had half-a-sovereign apiece. I said, "I have nothing to do with money matters." He said, "Perhaps you will speak to Mr. Wiseman about it." I spoke to Mr. Wiseman, the elder, about it, and he gave me seven half-sovereigns, and I gave it to Pointer.

12,726. To whom?—Edward Pointer. He came in and said there were seven who would vote

TWELFTH DAY.

E. C. Dowson.

1 Sept. 1869.

for half-a-sovereign apiece. I can prove my statement, because I think Mr. Wiseman would recollect it. There were seven men.

12,727. Where did Pointer live?—In Saint Mary's Church Alley; but he is dead since. It is unfortunate for me to make such a statement, but it is the truth.

12,728. Do you know the men?—The seven men? I never went out of doors with him.

12,729. Did he tell you who they were?—I never asked him. He is a man I have known for 10 or 12 years. I have lent money to him. I took him to be an honourable little chap, and his wife worth the money.

12,730. Did he say where the men were?—That I cannot say. I think he said they were somewhere in St. Martin's or St. Martin's Plain; I won't swear which.

12,731. (Mr. Biron.) Are both places close to the committee room?—Both places.

12,732. (Mr. Dowdeswell.) Who was present when you handed the money to Pointer?—I don't know, but he was there; a man of the name of Webster came and said Pointer wanted to speak to me.

12,733. Who is he?—In the Market Hall he was.

12,734. Where does he live?—I could make it out for you. It is close in St. George's Yard, one of the yards next Mr. Stanley's, the builder.

12,735. What is his christian name?—I cannot tell. I can make it out and send it you.

12,736. You know this materially affects your position?—It does.

12,737. And your interest also?—Yes. I wish I had had nothing to do with it. I come here with the honest truth.

12,738. You told me you were about your business the whole day?—No, I said I went about my business in the morning. I will give you an explanation of where I went the whole day.

12,739. Were you a member of the committee?—No, I had nothing to do with the committee. I went round with Mr. Edward Stracey canvassing. I will tell you anything you like to ask me.

12,740. On what day did you go round with Mr. Edward Stracey?—On the Friday, I think, and on the Monday; the Friday before the election and the Monday previous.

12,741. Were you with him at all on the election day?—I never saw Mr. Edward Stracey on the election day.

12,742. Did you have any conversation with him respecting paying men on either of those two days when you were with him?—I never had any conversation with him about the payment of anything whatever.

12,743. Are you sure of that?—Quite sure of that. I never received not the value of one halfpenny from Mr. Edward Stracey.

12,744. I do not suppose you received anything, but did you not have some conversation with him respecting paying the people?—No, not a word.

12,745. How long have you been in Norwich?—I have lived here all my lifetime.

12,746. And how many years have you been a voter?—I have been a voter about 22 years.

12,747. Then I suppose you have not lived in Norwich without knowing that elections have been carried here by means of money?—I never had the handling of any money.

12,748. You never had the handling of any money, but you knew the fact, and you were interested yourself in the conduct of the election. Now, knowing the fact, and being interested in the conduct of the election, and further, being with a gentleman active in the canvass, and having a prominent part in it, did you not speak to him about it?—I never did.

12,749. Did you not speak to him about money?—I never did.

12,750. Did you go with Mr. Arthur Bignold at all?—I don't know him. Yes I know the Bignolds. I know Mr. John Bignold. I don't know Mr. Arthur.

12,751. You know James Lombe?—What is he?

12,752. I cannot tell you what he is?—I know who you mean. He is a shoe manufacturer, a small shoe manufacturer.

12,753. Was he not in your house that day?—To the best of my knowledge he was not.

12,754. Were you in your house at all about four o'clock?—I was not.

12,755. You were not at home?—No, I was in the committee room from about 25 minutes to four, till the poll was closed.

12,756. You took William Annison to the poll?—No, I never took anyone to the poll.

12,757. Did you not go with him?—Annison? No. I don't know such a man.

12,758. Was there any other committee room besides the one in which Wiseman was, in that ward?—Not belonging to the Conservative party.

12,759. Now, did you not take up, or go with a man to the poll just before four?—I did not.

12,760. Be careful about that, will you?—I don't want to be careful about it, because I know it. Mr. Wiseman can speak to that. I know that he can say so, and so can Mr. Webster.

12,761. Where did you remain?—I remained in the committee room till after the books were brought from the different polling places.

12,762. Men were supplied with beer at your house?—If they were it was at their own expense.

12,763. Did not you have any order for beer?—I had not, and there was none set up. My wife never told me of beer being ordered by anyone.

12,764. Do not you know of any beer that remained unpaid for?—There was nothing of the sort. There was none set up. I was not at home till about a quarter to five.

12,765. Have not you heard from your wife that beer was paid for at your house?—No, I have not asked her that question. She never told me there was anything to pay; therefore I never asked her. I have no doubt she would have told me if there had been.

12,766. Have you not asked for any money since the election?—No.

12,767. Nor your wife?—Nor my wife, for she would not have trusted anybody. She never made it a practice to do so.

12,768. You have got a very deep interest in showing what was done with that 3*l.* 10*s.*?—Yes. I should have liked to show it you, I am sure.

12,769. When did Pointer die?—I don't know what day it was.

12,770. (Mr. Mansfield.) You had known this man Pointer before?—Oh yes, for years.

12,771. Had you any dealings with him before the election?—When his wife died I lent him 2*l.*, and he always behaved honourable.

12,772. How long has he been dead?—Two or three months.

12,773. Who told you of his death?—I know of it because I went to the inquest. He was drowned. He drowned himself.

12,774. Before this election you took some interest in the canvassing?—I did.

12,775. With whom were you canvassing—Mr. Stracey?—Mr. Stracey. He was there.

12,776. And Mr. Hardiment?—Well, I don't consider that Mr. Hardiment was; he met us at St. Martin's-at-Oak. He had nothing to do with the canvass. He walked with us 10 minutes or a quarter of an hour.

12,777. He was canvassing, was he not?—He had no book. Mr. Abel had the books of St. Martin's.

12,778. Did you see Hardiment in the committee room on the day of the election?—I don't recollect seeing him on the day of the election at all.

TWELFTH DAY.

E. C. Dowson.

1 Sept. 1869.

12,779. Had you any communication with him?—No, I am not friendly with Mr. Hardiment. He is no friend of mine. I never knew the man previous to his going into the committee room.

12,780. You knew him during this canvass?—Yes, I did.

12,781. Did you offer any money yourself to anybody?—I never offered money, nor a glass of beer.

12,782. Did you promise anything?—No.

12,783. Have you paid anything since?—No, not of my own money. I should not have used my own money. I should not have done that.

12,784. Did you make any bets about this event?—No, I am not a betting man. I do not give way to bets.

12,785. Have you had anything to do with canvassing at former elections?—Yes, Mr. Waters' election, I did.

12,786. There was a good deal of money going then?—I didn't see it.

12,787. Did you know nothing of it?—No; they merely applied to me because I had lived in the ward all my lifetime, and they applied to me because I could go over the ground well.

12,788. You were not entrusted with any money?—I was not entrusted with any money.

12,789. (Mr. Dowdeswell.) Had you anything to do with the payment of men for their votes at any election?—No.

12,790. Where does the person live who came and told you that Pointer wanted to see you?—On St. George's Plain. I will make it out to you. I will find his christian name and send it up to you.

12,791. We do not care about his christian name—His name is Webster, and he is a tailor. He lives on St. George's Plain.

ANTHONY FREESTONE sworn and examined.

A. Freestone.

12,792. (Mr. Mansfield.) Were you examined before Mr. Baron Martin?—Yes.

12,793. Are you a baker living in St. Augustine's?—Yes.

12,794. Do you recollect being at the "Woolpack" on the day of the election?—Yes; I went to the "Woolpack" in the afternoon of the day of the election.

12,795. At what time was that?—I think about a quarter to three, something like that.

12,796. That was to see Mr. Hardiment?—Yes.

12,797. You had Mr. Hardiment's pony, I think?—Yes, I had.

12,798. Did you find him there?—I gave a lad a penny to stand to the pony the time I went up and spoke to Mr. Hardiment. I went up and saw him on the landing.

12,799. Were any other persons present?—There were two others on the landing; I did not go into the room.

12,800. Did you see Mackley?—I have no particular knowledge of Mackley. There was some man drawing at the bar.

12,801. What was Hardiment doing when you saw him?—Speaking to some man that came out of the committee room.

12,801*a*. What was going on there?—I did not stay; I did not see what was going on. I merely asked to see if he had anyone to take the pony.

12,802. When you went away did you leave all these people with Hardiment?—Yes, I did.

12,803. Can you say how many there were?—No; I did not look in the room.

12,804. Did you see any money going on there?—There was only one man there I knew by the name of Money.

12,805. Did you hear anything of money?—No.

12,806. Did you hear of any bargain?—No. He was speaking to a man; I came away directly. I merely asked him the question.

12,807. Did you hear anything about men being taken to the poll?—Yes. Hardiment said something about taking men to the poll; I said I did not know any man but Money. I am a stranger in that part. That man lives opposite me.

12,808. What did you say about Money?—I said, "There is a man of the name of Money, he can go." Something like that; I cannot say exactly.

12,809. You said he was a man who would go?—I said, "I don't know anyone. There is a man of the "name of Money here." I suppose he went; he went downstairs.

12,810. Did you see how many men went downstairs with him?—I should say two.

12,811. Not more?—There were only three on the landing when I went up.

12,812. Not more than three?—There might be more, but the time I went up there were three men standing there. Money was not one of them.

12,813. Do you know their names?—No, I was a perfect stranger there.

12,814. Which is your ward?—The eighth.

12,815. This was the eighth ward?—Yes; but I don't go into a public-house once a year. I don't know any public-house, particularly in St. Martin's.

12,816. You were canvassing before this election?—No.

12,817. Did you see anything of Wiseman and the others before the day of the election?—Yes, I saw them all one day; I met them in Duke Street.

12,818. You were with them?—No. I walked on my way home with them. I never asked anybody.

12,819. You had some talk about the election?—We were all talking. We met near the "Cherry Tree," and I had a little amusement about the election, and asked, "How are you getting on," but nothing particular.

12,820. That was before the day of the election?—No, I think the Thursday.

12,821. Was anything said about doubtful voters?—No. I had nothing to do with the books then. I did not take any interest in the canvass.

12,822. Did you hear of men hanging back for money for their votes?—I believe there were men hanging out.

12,823. Do you know any of them?—Yes, I know one or two.

12,824. When you were about with Wiseman did you see any canvassing going on?—I was with him 10 minutes or a quarter of an hour. They were very near my house.

12,825. Where was that?—Against Mr. Hills, the grocer. I cannot particularly tell you the name of the place, but not more than 200 or 300 yards from my place.

12,826. Did you see them canvassing any voters?—I saw them go from door to door, but I did not go. I had no interest. I stood in the yard. I went into the "Cherry Tree," and had a glass of ale.

12,827. On the day of the election I think you took up voters to the poll?—Yes, I took up a good many; at any rate I rode with many.

12,828. Were you asked to do so?—After I left Wiseman in the morning I saw Hardiment. He said, "Would you like to ride with me during the day"?—I saw no objection, and so I got into his cart and rode with him during the day.

12,829. Do you remember the names of the voters whom you took to the poll?—No, I cannot.

12,830. Were they voters whom Hardiment asked you to take?—I did not take them. We all rode together, and took any men up.

12,831. How many journeys did you make?—I should think it might be 10 or 20.

12,832. On the average did you take four or five men up at a time?—No. It was only a small pony cart. There were two or three lame old gentlemen. There were only three in the cart at any time.

TWELFTH DAY.

A. Freestone.

1 Sept. 1869.

12,833. Who?—Hardiment, and I, and the voter. There might be occasionally more. Once a fellow was very noisy. He came and jumped into the back of the cart at some part of the day. His name is Barber.

12,834. Do not you know the names of any of the voters whom you took up?—Not any, barring the one I took up in the afternoon.

12,835. Do you know Thirkettle?—Yes.

12,836. Were you engaged with him during that day?—I did not see him at all.

12,837. Nor the day before?—Yes. He frequently came into mine as he went past.

12,838. You got them into the pony cart as soon as you succeeded?—Yes.

12,839. Can you give me any of their names?—Mr. Metcalfe rode with Mr. Hardiment and I. I don't know whether Mr. Hannant did not. I will not swear.

12,840. Any of these persons in St. Martin's?—I do not know anyone only as I have read the names in the paper.

12,841. Will you swear that you do not know their names?—None but Baldwin, the baker, and a man of the name of Mitchell that I let off a shop to, and a bake-house. I know him, and no other person particularly.

12,842. Do you know a man of the name of Thomas Robins?—Yes.

12,843. Did not he ride with you?—He did, and Mr. Mitchell.

12,844. Who is Robins?—A bricklayer that used to work for a man in my yard, Coyte, the bricklayer.

12,845. At what time of the day was that?—Three or a quarter past three, or about that. I do not think later.

12,846. (Mr. Dowdeswell.) Where was Hardiment when you took up these men?—In the "Woolpack."

12,847. (Mr. Mansfield.) You left him there?—I walked the pony up St. Martin's? I saw Robert Mitchell standing there. "Mitchell," I said, "have you voted?" "No," he said. Then I said, "Who will you vote for?" and he said, "Stracey." I said, "You had better make haste; the time is getting away;" and I took those two men up.

12,848. How far would that be from the poll?—About 300 yards. I merely walked the pony about the time he was in.

12,849. Is that the only time you took up voters?—That is the only time I went alone with them during the time I was waiting for the pony.

12,850. Did you give anything to either of these men?—I gave Mitchell 5*s.*

12,851. Who has repaid you that?—Not anyone.

12,852. Have you asked anybody for it?—No.

12,853. Do you expect to get it?—No. I never thought anything of getting it.

12,854. Suppose there had been no inquiry?—I spent 12*s.* 6*d.* on the day of the election. That was all my career at the election. There was a man of the name of John Hewitt that annoyed me very much. He said I had promised him 7*s.* 6*d.* If that man, John Barber, a little fellow that was here yesterday, would come he could tell you. They were both tipsy.

12,855. What did you do with the 7*s.* 6*d.*?—I gave it to John Hewitt or George Hewitt; I cannot say which. I should not know the man again if I were to see him.

12,856. (Mr. Dowdeswell.) Where did George Hewitt vote?—I don't know. In the eighth ward, I think. He voted for Russell and Tillett afterwards I know.

12,857. (Mr. Mansfield.) Have you made any promises to anyone since?—Not to anyone.

12,858. This man Hewitt you say asked you?—Yes; he walked up and down after me in St. Martin's. He said, "You promised me 7*s.* 6*d.*" I said, "No such thing." He was tipsy, and I thought that people hearing that would annoy me; so I gave him 7*s.* 6*d.*, and then he went and voted for Russell and Tillett.

12,859. Did any more of these drunken men ask you?—No; I am a stranger there.

12,860. You heard of them coming to Hardiment and asking him?—I had very little conversation with him. Hardiment was inside and I was outside with the pony and cart. I was staying in the pony-cart.

12,861. Did not you hear persons come and ask him?—What they said I cannot say. I went into a public-house and got a glass of ale, where I saw Hardiment. I think I went into Mr. Clarke's beer-house.

12,862. I suppose Mr. Hardiment was surrounded by the people living there?—No, not many. Both parties were there.

12,863. They seemed very glad to see you?—No, I don't think that. He is a very curious sort of man. The people did not ask Hardiment particularly any more than other parties. There were some asked him for beer, and I believe Hardiment paid for some beer, half-a-gallon or a gallon, I don't know which, at this house.

12,864. Did you hear anything said about giving a day's wages for these persons going up?—I did not.

12,865. (Mr. Dowdeswell.) Were bets made of 5 to 1?—There were some fellows there; a man of the name of Thorpe; I believe he was very noisy, and two or three other people, about money. I heard him say that he had been offered so much money on the opposite side—of course he meant the blue side—that he had been offered money there, but who it was I don't know; several people in Clarke's; they did not ask Hardiment.

12,866. Was Clarke there?—I don't know him. I did not know him till after the time. I saw him here this morning.

12,867. What is about the size of Clarke's beer-house?—Very small. It would hold about 20 people.

12,868. Is it all in one room where the people were, or do the rooms open one into another?—Yes; the people sitting in one can see into the others. There are three or four small places. There is a division, but you can see into every room. It is a sort of little shop as well.

12,869. Have you heard of any money going about besides Hardiment's?—No, only as I have read of in the paper. I think there was very little spent.

12,870. Witnesses have told us of claims made, 5*s.* here and 7*s.* there?—I have not heard of any in any case whatever. I never heard of one.

12,871. Have you heard of any promises being made to people that they would be paid afterwards if they voted, in some public-house or other?—Not anyone. I went into Cartwright's with Hardiment; at least I did not go in till after some time.

12,872. Have you been engaged in former elections here?—No.

12,873. Not taking any active part?—I never took any money from anyone. Whatever I spent was out of my own pocket.

12,874. Have you spent money out of your own pocket at former elections?—No.

12,875. Not a farthing?—Not a farthing.

12,876. Have you carried people up to the poll?—I never knew that I had a conveyance.

12,877. Have you voted yourself?—Yes.

12,878. On which side have you voted?—Always on one side.

12,879. The Tory side?—Always the Tory side.

12,880. Have you ever received anything from any one?—Not a penny.

12,881. Nor the promise of anything?—I never received anything, nor was promised anything in any way whatever.

12,882. Which of these two men did you give the money to—Mitchell or Robins?—Mitchell, 5*s.*

12,883. Did Robins ask you for anything?—Not anything. I believe Mitchell gave Robins half-a-crown out of the 5*s*. I gave the money to Mitchell, and Mitchell gave to Robins.

12,884. They divided it between them?—I believe they did. I am not sure of it. I don't know what he did with it, and I did not care. I heard afterwards.

12,885. Now with regard to Clarke's beerhouse, what time of the day was it when you went there?—I should think about 12 o'clock.

12,886. Was Hardiment with you when you went there?—Yes, where he chose to go I went with him.

12,887. At what time of the morning did you begin to move about with Hardiment?—I should think about 11 o'clock.

12,888. Did you know that Hardiment had got some money to spend?—I never heard of any. Hardiment always told me that whatever money he spent he spent of his own private account.

12,889. Did he tell you early in the morning that he was going to spend a little money?—No, not a bit of it. I never heard a word of him till 11 o'clock.

12,890. Did he mention anything to you then?—Not a word.

12,891. What you have heard you have heard since?—Since that day. Of course there were people who said that day that Hardiment had given money but I had not seen it. I don't know only the first man, Barber, that he gave the 7*s*. 6*d*. to was, I believe, in Cartwright's. I never see of anyone else he gave money to.

12,892. (Mr. Mansfield.) Can you fix the time at which Hardiment was giving money?—I should think it would be about 12 o'clock.

12,893-4. (Mr. Dowdeswell.) You heard as early as 12 o'clock?—That was the time about when he went into Cartwright's, a public-house in St. Martin's Plain.

12,895. Where did you go with him as early as 12?—It was the first house we went into, Cartwright's.

12,896. Where did you go to then?—We drove down to his house up in St. Martin's—came back, and I believe called at Clarke's beerhouse as we came back. There he stopped some few minutes, and he asked me if I would have a glass of ale. I felt thirsty, and had the ale. What was done there I don't know.

12,897. You were with Hardiment the whole day?—Yes, from 11 o'clock.

12,898. After he had gone from his house you say he went to Clarke's. Did he go anywhere between the time of going to his house and going to Clarke's?—I think he called at another place in St. Martin's. I cannot tell you the name of it.

12,899. Did he go into it?—Yes, he did.

12,900. If you go into St. Martin's and look, cannot you tell which house it was?—No. It was very near opposite Clarke's. I don't know the name of it.

12,901-2. Do you know the "Edinburgh Castle"?—No, I don't. That is the only public-house I know of that I could give you an accurate account of.

12,903. If you went there you could perhaps tell me?—I should think I should know the house again. It is up two stairs. Any man in St. Martin's will tell you.

12,904. From Clarke's where did you go?—From Clarke's we went across to his house. I think it was then.

12,905. Did you see anybody at that public-house up the steps?—No, I did not.

12,906. Did you see anybody at the public-house where you went at about 11 o'clock?—Nobody but this Barber.

12,907. Cartwright and Barber?—I don't think it was Cartwright; Cartwright was ill in bed.

12,908. Carry your mind back and see if you cannot recollect whether there was not anyone else?—No, there was not a soul. We went away directly.

12,909. How long did you remain at Clarke's?—About 10 minutes.

12,910. Did you go in at all?—I went to have a glass of beer.

12,911. Where did you stand?—Where the man drew the beer from the cask. You must all stand in a lump. It is a very small place.

12,912. Was conversation going on there?—No.

12,913. No conversation at all?—There was some men; this man Thorpe and others talking very freely. They had been drinking freely.

12,914. Were you situated so that you could hear them?—Not further from me than this gentleman here (pointing).

12,915. In Clarke's bar?—There is no bar. It is a little place.

12,916. Were they talking all the time about money?—Yes. Thorpe is a very singular sort of character. He had been offered 7*s*. 6*d*. I heard him say to a man. Whether he was speaking to Hardiment I cannot say. While I was there he did not ask for money.

12,917. Did he ask Hardiment for money?—No. He was talking to another man that was sitting at the side of him.

12,918. Did anybody speak to Hardiment about money?—I did not hear it. I did not see anybody.

12,919. What was Hardiment doing while you were in?—He asked me to have a glass of ale, and we had one.

12,920. Did he sit down?—No, stood up.

12,921. Was not he talking to the men who were there?—He was talking to the landlord, I think. I think it was the landlord. It was the man who drew the beer. I had never seen him before, and I thought he was talking to him.

12,922. Did you hear what they talked about?—No, I did not stay. I went and sat in the cart again directly after I drank my ale.

12,923. How long did he remain in the house after you went into Clarke's?—Very few minutes; 10 minutes.

12,924. After you left Clarke's, where did you drive to?—After we left Clarke's, there were some men wanted to go to the seventh ward. There was a lame man.

12,925. Whereabouts in the seventh ward?—The polling place is near the "White Horse" yard. That is the place where we drove the men to.

12,926. Did you see him?—I helped him into the cart. He was a very stout man. He said he would vote for Stracey. Hardiment said, "Very well, we'll take you directly."

12,927. Did Hardiment go into the house before you took that man up?—No. The man's wife led him to the steps and we helped him on to the cart.

12,928. How came you to go to him?—Somebody said, "Hardiment, there's an old man there who cannot go unless you take him to vote." He said he would go.

12,929. Then you took him to the poll?—We took him to the poll.

12,930. Where did you go then?—To another public-house. I cannot tell you the name.

12,931. Do not you know the sign?—No.

12,932. Nor where it is?—One part of the road where it is leads to St. Augustine's, in my parish. The name of the landlord is Benjamin Fuller. Oh, it is the "Edinburgh Castle."

12,933. You went to the "Edinburgh Castle"?—Well, we did not go, except just as we was passing.

12,934. That was as early as half-past 11, was it not?—I don't know. That was the second man we took that was not able to walk. I should think it must have been half-past 12 or 1 at that time.

12,935. Was Fuller in bed?—No, he was sitting on the settle against the fire. He was a lame man as well. He could not walk.

12,936. When you arrived at the house did Hardiment go into the house?—Yes, he did.

TWELFTH DAY.

A. Freestone.

1 Sept. 1869.

12,937. How long did Hardiment remain in the house?—I should think about three or four minutes.

12,938. Then did he come out and speak to you?—No. I got out of the cart and went in.

12,939. How came you to do that?—I asked him, "How long are you going to stay?" The pony was very restive. There were some boys with tin kettles frightening the pony. Mr. Fuller was willing to vote, but could not get there without assistance. Some dirty scavenger said, "I'll help him;" and then Fuller went with Hardiment and voted in the seventh ward, near the "White Horse" yard.

12,940. Did you see Hardiment giving any money there?—Not any.

12,941. Or treating?—Not any.

12,942. Are you sure of that?—I think I could swear he did not, but I think this man said, "Fuller is willing to vote, but we want some beer;" and I think Hardiment spent sixpence or something for some beer. I won't say whether it was sixpence or a shilling. There was something for some beer.

12,943. It was the scavenger who said that?—Yes. I should know his name if I heard it.

12,944. He wanted some beer first?—Yes. He said, "Now you shan't vote unless we have a glass of ale," or something. I think Hardiment said, "If a man has a mind to vote let him vote;" and I think Hardiment paid for a pot of ale; 6*d.*, or something. I don't know what it was exactly.

12,945. Do you know of anything having been given to Fuller for his vote?—No; he never had anything at all, not to the best of my knowledge.

12,946. Did you see what was put down on the table?—No. I could not swear whether it was sixpence or a shilling, or what it was. Hardiment paid for the beer that these fellows would have. What it was I could not say.

12,947. Was there not eighteenpence put down on the table?—I won't swear. I thought it was 6*d.* at first. There was some money.

12,948. Was there not eighteenpence put down on the table, and sixpence handed for the beer, and a shilling given to Fuller?—I don't know that. I cannot say. I don't think Fuller had anything for his vote.

12,949. Did not you see a shilling given to Fuller?—I did not. I thought Hardiment laid down the sixpence, or whatever it was, to pay for the beer.

12,950. Did you see any other money given?—Not anything of the kind. If there was I did not see it.

12,951. After that, where did you go to?—I think we went home to Hardiment's after that, and from there we went down to Mackley's. There might be an hour between.

12,952. What did you do in the interval between leaving the "Edinburgh Castle" and going to Mackley's?—I recollect after we left this "Edinburgh Castle" I went indoors and asked for a coat from my wife. It was cold then. She said, "You had better stop for dinner." Dinner was on the table. I said, "I don't care about stopping; I am going with Hardiment." We went down and called at the "Buck," I think it was. There were several people—Hardiment's workpeople.

12,953. Hardiment got down and went into the "Buck"?—I think he called at the "Buck," and spoke to the landlord.

12,954. How long did he remain there?—Not two minutes scarcely.

12,955. Did you go into the "Buck"?—Yes.

12,956. What did he say?—He said something to a man about some feed on the marsh. He said, "You shan't have your horse on my marsh any more;" but what it was I cannot say.

12,957. Did you not hear anything that was said to the men by Hardiment, or what they said to him?—No, not anything of the kind.

12,958. Before he said, "You shan't have your horse upon the marsh any more," was he asking him to vote for Stracey?—I should not think he was.

12,959. What was he talking to the man about?—I don't know the beginning of it. I went in after he had been in a few minutes, and I heard him say, "I won't have your horse on my marsh."

12,960. Did you hear it mentioned in this way, "If you don't vote for Stracey," or "Unless you vote "for Stracey you shall not have your horses on my "marsh any more"?—I should think the man had voted, but which way I cannot say.

12,961. What was his name?—I don't know.

12,962. Did you go out before Hardiment?—Yes, I went and got into the cart directly. I did not see anything.

12,963. So that you did not see the end of the visit?—No.

12,964. Did you see any men going away from the "Buck" while Mr. Hardiment was in?—No, I did not; not anyone.

12,965. Did any of them come out with you to go away?—Not anyone.

12,966. After you left the "Buck," where did you go?—I am almost sure I went to his home then. He was very nigh his home then.

12,967. Did not you call at any place between?—I think not. There was no other place we could call at, I think.

12,968. How many men were there in the "Buck"?—I should think four or five, with the landlord and Hardiment. There might be three or four more. It is a very small room; three or four people besides the landlord and Hardiment.

12,969. After you got to Hardiment's house, did you see anybody there?—No.

12,970. How long did you remain in Hardiment's house?—Very likely half an hour.

12,971. Had you some dinner or anything there?—No, not anything.

12,972. What were you doing at this time?—I don't know. He went into his counting-house for something.

12,973. Where were you?—In the yard. We did not take the pony out, and I did not leave the pony.

12,974. What time was it then?—It must have been drawing on for two o'clock.

12,975. When you left his house where did you drive to?—To St. Martin's, and I believe he went into Clarke's again.

12,976. Did you go into the house at all?—I saw Mr. Wiseman, and he said, "Will you take anything to drink?" I said, "No, thank you; I don't want anything." He said, "You'd better have a glass of ale." "Very well," I said; and I went in, and I think Mr. Wiseman and Mr. Hardiment were there together.

12,977. Who else?—Mr. Blackbourne, the currier, out of St. Stephen's. I saw Ellis, and several other people.

12,978. Was Clarke's beerhouse then pretty full?—Yes, there were several people there then.

12,979. Where did you stand in Clarke's beerhouse?—Close by the door. I had my eye on the pony all the while. I didn't speak to anyone, bar Mr. Wiseman.

12,980. Did you hear the people speaking to Hardiment at all, or where was Hardiment?—Hardiment was talking to some man very near the door.

12,981. Did you hear what they were saying?—No, I did not hear. Hardiment was not there but for a few minutes, and I don't think he would have gone in if he had not seen Mr. Wiseman. He spoke to him about something or other, and then they went and we all had a glass of ale apiece.

12,982. Did you see any men come out with Hardiment?—Not anyone. Oh, I have missed one house. The man's name is Benfather.

12,983. (Mr. Biron.) The "Royal Oak"?—I think that is the name.

12,984. (Mr. Dowdeswell.) At what time did you call there?—It must have been at the time we were going from Hardiment's to get to Clarke's house. We went past the "Royal Oak" to get to Clarke's.

12,985. How long did you remain in the "Royal Oak"?—A very few minutes.

12,986. Did you go into Benfather's at all?—No.

12,987. You stood outside?—Where the men sat. They were sitting very near the door. I did not go in.

12,988. Did you see anybody talking to him at Benfather's?—No.

12,989. Did Benfather come out with him?—Benfather was speaking to Hardiment, but I am not sure.

12,990. Did you hear what Benfather said to Hardiment?—I don't know.

12,991. Did not he say something about men at his house wanting money?—If he did I did not hear it. If he did I should think Hardiment would have said so. I did not hear anything of the kind.

12,992. Did you see Hardiment give Benfather anything?—No, not anything.

12,993. Did you see Benfather come out of this house?—No, I am not aware that he came away from the house. I should not think he did.

12,994. Did he come out of Clarke's while Hardiment was there?—That I cannot say; but I believe I saw Benfather during the day at Clarke's house as I was driving past, or something of the kind. I think I saw Benfather at Clarke's; still I should be very sorry to swear it.

12,995. Was that before or after you had been to Benfather's?—It was after that.

12,996. Did you see any men taken into a little room at Clarke's?—No, not anyone.

12,997. Do you recollect Hardiment going into a little room away from the bar?—No, I don't think there is any little room.

12,998. Yes; there is a place called the bake office?—I did not know anything of it.

12,999. There is a place called the bake office?—Then it is at the back.

13,000. Did you see Hardiment and some men go there?—No, I did not. I never saw them.

13,001. But you did afterwards see Benfather at Clarke's?—I think it was at Clarke's.

13,002. Was anybody with Benfather that you recollect?—Not anybody that I know of, only the people sitting there.

13,003. Did you go into Clarke's beerhouse again?—No, I sat in the cart.

13,004. Where did you go after going into Clarke's, the second time?—I can hardly say where, but I think we went down into St. Martin's.

13,005. Where did you go after that?—I cannot tell whether he went to Mackley's. I don't remember whether he went more than once to Mackley's or not. I don't remember whether he went anywhere else unless he called at Mackley's.

13,006. He did go to Mackley's?—Yes; but you are speaking of before he went to Mackley's.

13,007. After you went to Clarke's what became of you?—I don't think he went anywhere else but to Mackley's.

13,008. Just consider?—I don't think he did.

13,009. Did he go to Mackley's more than once that afternoon?—I believe he went to Mackley's twice; I think he did.

13,010. You stated to Mr. Mansfield what occurred upon one visit to Mackley's. Was that your first or your second visit?—I think Hardiment went in before that.

13,011. Where did you go before the second visit to Mackley's when this occurred which you have told me?—I don't know where he drove to after that. He drove somewhere. There was a party he met, and he drove them to All Saints' Green.

13,012. Where did he go then?—It is some long way from our part there. It must be some two miles from this part to where he drove the man to the poll.

13,013. Where did he take him from?—Somewhere in St. George's, I know. It is a man he knew.

13,014. That is a very wide field. Did he go into the house?—No; he met the man in the street.

13,015. Cannot you tell me whereabouts?—No, I cannot tell you whereabouts we took him up. It was somewhere in St. George's; I cannot say. Hardiment said, "Have you voted?" and he said, "No."

13,016. Where were you driving to? How came he to go up to that place?—I cannot say after he left Clarke's, but he went to Cartwright's and Mackley's, and that is where he was for a long time.

13,017. But in the interval between going to Mackley's the first and the second time he did go elsewhere, and I want to know exactly where?—I don't think we went into any other house.

13,018. But what did you do?—I think after he left Clarke's the second time he met with this man and took him up to All Saints' Green voting place to poll.

13,019. Did you hear what he said to the man?—He said, "Have you voted?" and the man said, "No. "I am too far away from the place. I don't think I "shall trouble myself about it." He said, "I will drive you." The other man said, "I'll go if you won't "take me too much off my work. I have no objection "to go."

13,020. Did you hear of any money?—No.

13,021. Or beer?—No; nothing at all.

13,022. He merely told him that he would give him a drive?—That was all. Whether he worked for Mr. Barnes or not I cannot say. He looked like a man that did something in the engineering work, by his clothes.

13,023. After you had set that man down what did you do then?—I think we brought the man back to where we took him up, near Mr. Brogden's, the grocer.

13,024. Did you go to Cartwright's?—Mackley's and Cartwright's were two of the last places that Hardiment went into. We went to Cartwright's last.

13,025. After you put the man down where did you go?—I think he went to Mackley's. That was for the last time.

13,026. And then that occurred which you have told Mr. Mansfield?—It did.

13,027. After you left Mackley's where did you go?—To Mr. Cartwright's, on St. Mary's Plain.

13,028. You took up Mitchell and Robins at the time he was at Mackley's?—Yes.

13,029. Did you come back to Mackley's then?—Yes.

13,030. Did you find Hardiment there waiting for you, or was he still engaged?—I had not been back two minutes before Hardiment came downstairs, but before he came downstairs Mr. Fisher and Mr. Harper, the dyer, came driving down there. I had seen Fisher and Harper before at Mackley's.

13,031. They came up?—They came up the second time. I heard the men say that Harper was gone, that he could not have been gone 10 minutes. I do not think he was. They stood their head against my pony's face, and I saw Mr. Harper go into the public-house, and several people rushed in, and I heard them say "It's all right." I don't know what they meant.

13,032. Many rushed in?—Yes. They filled the place so that there was not room to move. It filled the place so that if you got in you could not get out.

13,033. Who had come up with Harper originally?—I won't swear that. Fisher came up the first time.

13,034. Where did Fisher go?—He stayed in the dog-cart. Where he got afterwards I cannot say.

13,035. Did Fisher go away with him and come back in a trap with him?—If it was Fisher; Fisher came the last time. I cannot say for the first.

13,036. When Harper came back, did he come back at a trot or a walk?—He came back very fast.

13,037. Were the men running, or how was it?—When Fisher and Harper came back. I cannot say whether Fisher was with him both times. There were several men standing outside in this large yard, and when I saw Harper go in, I heard the men say "It's all right now;" and in they went and Harper was in some time.

13,038. Do you know in what direction Harper had driven in the interval, when he went away, before he came back?—That I cannot say.

13,039. Where did he come from; from which direction?—He came as if he was coming from the city bridge out at St. George's, or he would come over the main street, and he might come into St. Martin's. He came over St. Mary's Lane, that is the way he came.

13,040. Harper went into the house?—Yes.

13,041. And Hardiment was there at the time?—Yes, on the landing, where I had been in and spoken to him. I had been in the house before Harper came the second time, and had got into the cart again, thinking that Hardiment was coming down, and during the time Fisher and Harper drove up and Harper went in. I think Fisher sat in the trap.

13,042. Did you see Harper have anything with him?—I could not say what he had with him I am sure. Harper came in walking in this way (describing). He had not got his hands in his pocket.

13,043. His coat tail was like that?—His hand was under, something like this. What he had I cannot say. I was sitting in the cart as close to him as I am to this gentleman (pointing).

13,044. Harper went up on the landing to Hardiment?—That I cannot say. I could not see.

13,045. It was so full that you could not get in?—It was full to suffocation. If you got in you could not move. A lot of the biggest blackguards you could find anywhere in the world were there.

13,046. When he carried his coat tails in that way, had you a suspicion of anything?—He might have something he was afraid of losing of. He knew St. Martin's very well.

13,047. There were people there that you would not very much fancy?—I should not myself, certainly.

13,048. How many of these people were there altogether?—Thirty or 40. I should be sorry to say. I should say the bar in the room would hold 40 or 50 people. It is a large bar.

13,049. When you had done that how did Hardiment get out?—I don't know whether he came down and whether Harper got into the large room at the side. I think he did, and that Hardiment walked through into the street.

13,050. Did Harper remain in the house until after Hardiment came out?—I think we went away before Harper and Fisher. I won't swear that, but I think so.

13,051. Did Fisher go into the house at all?—I think the latter part of the time, I saw the boy standing with the horse. I do not think that Fisher was in the cart.

13,052. Somebody held the horse when Fisher was out of the cart?—I won't swear that Fisher got out of the cart.

13,053. You did not see Fisher sitting in the cart?—I should be very sorry to say. I think the cart was empty.

13,054. The boy could not be holding the horse when Fisher was in the cart?—No.

13,055. Have you a distinct recollection of seeing the boy holding the horse?—There was so many people there, and it is so long ago, I don't think he was in the trap all the time, but whether he went indoors I cannot say.

13,056. How long was it after Harper went in that Hardiment came out?—I should think it might be five minutes.

13,057. Not more?—Not more, certainly.

13,058. Hardiment came out and got into the cart, and what then?—We drove off.

13,059. Where did you drive to from that?—To Cartwright's, on St. Mary's Plain.

13,060. What time did you arrive at Cartwright's?—I should think at a quarter or 20 minutes past three.

13,061. Whom did you see at Cartwright's?—Cartwright's is another very small place indeed, not room enough for more then four or five people.

13,062. Did you go in there?—I went in and had a bottle of lemonade or something. I know Hardiment was there some little time.

13,063. Did you go in before or after Hardiment?—I did. I saw young Mr. Delph, I think it was, or somebody. I asked him to hold the pony for a minute or two.

13,064. Did Hardiment go into Cartwright's house before you?—Yes.

13,065. How long was it after Hardiment had gone into the house that you went in?—About 10 minutes. I was talking with some people standing there. That is very nigh the poll. There were several people standing there.

13,066. Do you know who the people were?—I saw some people I knew.

13,067. What are their names?—I saw young Mr. Delph, and asked him to hold my pony till I went in and had a glass of lemonade or something.

13,068. Was the house pretty full when you got in?—Yes. It is a very small place. You cannot stand above three or four people in the shop.

13,069. Did you see Hardiment there?—I saw him in the little room.

13,070. What was he doing?—There were several people talking. I understood that Hardiment had given some of the men something to go and vote, but I did not see it. He was talking to the men in the room.

13,071. You had, you say, some beer?—I think I had a glass of ale.

13,072. How long did you stay in the room drinking your beer?—I drank the beer in the tap-room. I don't think I stayed in the room above five or six minutes.

13,073. You went into the tap-room, did you?—No. It is a grocer's shop, and the beer is placed in the grocer's shop.

13,074. Were there a good many people standing about the place?—Yes; a lot outside and in.

13,075. Did you see the people come down and go in during the time Hardiment was there?—I saw two or three of them come out and vote.

13,076. Was that before you went in?—Yes, before I went in.

13,077. Can you tell me the name of any of those people?—No, that I cannot. There was only one man or two that I knew. Mr. Delph, Mr. Nockles, and two or three others. I know them by sight very well. Nockles and Delph I knew very well. Nockles is a voter.

13,078. Can you give me the names of any who you say went to vote?—No.

13,079. Did Hardiment come out then and get into the cart?—I don't think Hardiment came out until after the poll was closed. That was not above 20 or 25 yards off. We could see the polling place very well.

13,080. You saw them go across to poll?—It is not above 25 yards from this window to the polling place.

13,081. During the whole of that time how many men did you see go across from Cartwright's to the polling place?—I should say six or seven altogether. I cannot say that they all came out of Cartwright's, because there is a large yard there. They went into Cartwright's porter-room, as he calls it; it is at the top of a yard, and people rather than go through the shop go through the passage.

13,082. But the people might pass out at the back from where Hardiment was?—No. I think they would have to come out of the shop door.

13,083. Do you know particularly how many there were?—There were several people there who were out and in. I cannot say how many were there. I saw seven or eight go out.

13,084. How long was it that you were at Cartwright's altogether before the close of the poll?—We might be there half an hour till the poll closed.

13,085. During the whole of that time how many persons proceeded from the direction of Cartwright's to the polling place?—I could not say. There were 200 or 300 people standing on the Plain at that time. The Plain was full of persons; several horses and carriages.

13,086. I am speaking of those who went either from the front or the back door of Cartwright's house?—I don't know. It might be six or eight; I could not say. There was a great many of the organisation people, I think they call themselves, I know come up there, and I was sitting in the cart at the time then. That is the second time I went in. A man came up to me and said, "Is this Hardiment's pony cart?" I said, "Yes, it is. What do you want?" "I want to see him;" and I think he went and tried to see him; but they said, "You cannot see him now; the place is so full." The man came back and said, "I cannot speak to Mr. Hardiment. Perhaps you will do it for me." "What do you want?" They said they belonged to the organisation. There was 10 of them. They said, "We want something for our votes." I said, "I thought you would not have asked for anything for your votes." They said, "We have had something from the other side, and our man is gone, and we want something here." I went in and told Hardiment what they said. They wanted 3*l.* I told Hardiment they wanted 3*l.*—about eight men belonging to the organisation party. Hardiment said, "I have not got any money." I believe he asked Mr. Cartwright, the landlord, to lend him 5*l.*, and either Mr. Cartwright or his wife, or somebody, offered the money to Hardiment. Then he said, "Where is the men?" and then handed 3*l.* to this organisation lot of people; and I think out of them there was two of them voted. It was then a very few minutes to four. There was a crowd, and they could not get there. Two of them voted. The names I don't know. They were strange to me.

13,087. Do you know what became of the other 2*l.* which Hardiment got?—I don't.

13,088. That was in Cartwright's room?—That was in Cartwright's room.

13,089. How long before four o'clock was that?—I should think it was not above 10 minutes before four. I said, "Why not have come before? There is no "time to vote now. There is a great many people "there now. I don't think they can poll those that "are there now." "Oh yes," they said, "we can." I watched them particularly. One polled; and another went to the poll window, and the window was closed immediately. Whether he succeeded I cannot say. If so only two polled.

13,090. Where was Hardiment at that time?—Inside the house.

13,091. Did you hear from Hardiment that he had any money from any one?—I never heard him say that he had had a penny except his own money. I have asked him and have said to him, "I have been told you had 100*l.*," and he said "I never had a penny except my own money."

13,092. Did you hear that he had been promised money by anyone?—No, not by anyone.

13,093. Did you see him canvassing with young Mr. Stracey?—I did not. I saw young Mr. Stracey and Hardiment with two or three others. I recollect now his going up to the gas house one night on Tombland; there were four or five together. Hardiment said, "Will you walk up with us?" and I said "I had no objection;" and I walked with them to the gas house about 10 o'clock at night.

13,094. Was that on a Saturday?—It was a day or two before the election. I should not think it was Saturday night; it is not often that I go out on a Saturday night.

13,095. Was Mr. Arthur Bignold with you that night?—No.

13,096. Did you not see him at all?—No, I did not see him at all during the election.

13,097. Did Hardiment ever tell you how much money he had spent on that day?—No. I have heard since that he has said it cost him a good bit of money one way and another, that was going away and all, but I never heard what amount.

13,098. Did he ever say that there was a fund that would repay him for what he had laid out?—Never.

13,099. Or a subscription?—Never; I heard him say that he did not think the party had behaved well to him, for they had never spoken to him from that time to this about the election. I suppose he means the family of the Stracey's; I cannot say.

JOSHUA HARPER sworn and examined.

J. Harper.

13,100. (Mr. Dowdeswell.) What are you?—A dyer.

13,101. Were you a voter at the last election?—Yes.

13,102. For whom did you vote?—For Russell and Tillett.

13,103. Do you know a house kept by Mackley?—There are two Mackleys; you mean Mackley of the "Woolpack."

13,104. Did you go down there on the day of the election?—Yes, twice.

13,105. What was the first time that you went there?—I think between 12 and 1 o'clock.

13,106. Did you find a number of men there assembled?—There were not very many that I saw.

13,107. How many should you say there were?—I saw two or three men about, but there were several women. I saw the landlord.

13,108. Voters?—I cannot say.

13,109. Had you any conversation with the men?—None the first time.

13,110. What took you down there?—I went down there because I rather suspected the house; in fact more than that.

13,111. Why did you suspect the house?—Because I had understood that there had been bribery carried on in that place by the man that kept that house at previous elections; and another thing that carried me down there was this, I was in the central committee room about that time, and I was told there, I do not know who spoke of it, that there were men collected there and also at Mackley's, the "Marquis of Granby," for the purpose, as it was said, of being bribed; that was what took me down there. My object was to see and ascertain the fact.

13,112. Mackley's house had been a house on your side, had it not?—I was informed that it was on our side, and I think that, generally speaking, Mackley has voted on the Liberal side.

13,113. Did you not know also that he had been engaged during that election on your side?—No, I did not; what I knew of Mackley was from my being a member of the organisation and chairman of the eighth ward, and consequently we had meetings there; we hired his place, but there was no bargain for him.

13,114. Then how came you to suspect that that was a house where bribery was carried on?—To tell you the truth, I suspected the man.

13,115. He had voted before on your side, and you had been occupying his room; what led you to suspect Mackley of anything like bribery?—I heard before that he was a professional briber.

13,116. But if he had been a briber on your side he must have been one of your party?—He might have been a briber on the Liberal side, but not on my side.

13,117. What reason had you to suppose that he was bribing on the other side?—I had no further reason than I have told you, than that I had heard that he was not to be depended upon, and consequently I thought I would go down and see if there were any voters there congregated for the purpose of sale; that was the reason why I went down.

13,118. And you say you found a few men there the first time?—Yes, a few men.

13,119. Did they tell you what they wanted?—No.

TWELFTH DAY.

J. Harper.

1 Sept. 1869.

13,120. Not a word?—Not the men; the landlord did.

13,121. What did the landlord say?—He was very loth at first to speak out. I said, "You need not be afraid of me;" he took me into the wash-house, and I said to him, "Now you need not be afraid to tell me what it is that they want." "Well, to tell you "you the truth, they must be sovereigns or half-"sovereigns."

13,122. Did he say how many of them?—He did not, not to my recollection.

13,123. Was anybody with you at this time?—No, no one went into the house with me; there were several outside who started with me to go, but I lost them on the way, and I went alone.

13,124. After you had had that conversation where did you go?—I think I went to the seventh ward committee room.

13,125. What took you there?—That was the ward I was acting in. I was in two wards, and canvassed both the seventh and the eighth wards.

13,126. If this was in the eighth ward, and if you thought anything of this sort was going on in the eighth ward, why did you not go to the eighth ward committee room?—I do not know why I did not. I went to the seventh ward committee room; I had been to the eighth ward committee room. I was going about from committee room to committee room to see how things were going on.

13,127. When Mackley said this to you what did you say?—I said, "I will see you again."

13,128. And then you went away to the seventh ward committee room?—I went there. I do not know that I went there directly; I think I went to other public-houses.

13,129. You went to other public-houses to see whether there were men to be had there?—To see whether they were congregated together. I had heard it stated at the central committee room that men were hanging about, and that they were at public-houses.

13,130. When you got to the seventh ward committee room, who did you see there?—I remember seeing Mr. Sadd, and I think Mr. Ball was there.

13,131. Anybody else?—I think Mr. Jessie Menzies was there.

13,132. To whom did you speak?—Not to anyone in particular.

13,133. To whom did you speak in general?—I spoke to them all; I had no secret; I said I think, they were bribing about.

13,134. Why did you say they were bribing about, when you had only heard from Mackley that the men wanted sovereigns and half-sovereigns?—I had heard that.

13,135. You could not infer from that, that they were "bribing about;" I should have inferred the contrary?—I do not know that those were exactly the words, but my suspicions had taken place, and I was afraid that they would bribe. I do not know that I made that direct statement.

13,136. What did the people to whom you addressed those observations say to you?—I cannot recollect now; there was a general conversation, such as that we could not get the state of the poll; there was a blunder made in the poll.

13,137. But what had that to do with bribery?—I do not know who said it, but the strain of the conversation had been like this: Well, we must do what we can, and we must not bribe.

13,138. You are sure that what was said was, "We must do what we can"?—Just so; that was the general course of the conversation. I do not know who said it, because, as I said before, I had no secrets, and I acted on my own responsibility.

13,139. Did you not know at that time that there had been a subscription on your side for the purpose of conducting the election?—I did not, otherwise than the expenses of the organisation.

13,140. There was a fund subscribed for that?—There were subscriptions I have no doubt, but I had no handling of the money. I subscribed to it myself; I do not know what the amount was.

13,141. Who had that fund?—I think Mr. Copeman was the treasurer.

13,142. When did that begin?—That I cannot say, not exactly; perhaps 12 months before the election; I am not certain as to the date.

13,143. Who were the collectors?—That I cannot say; Mr. Causton was the secretary. I do not think there were any collectors; not that I am aware of, at any rate.

13,144. You knew at that time that there was an organisation fund?—I expected that there was.

13,145. Did you say anything about that fund to these people whom you saw at the seventh ward committee room?—Not a word.

13,146. Was anything said about money there?—No, not a word.

13,147. Did you go anywhere else after you had been to the seventh ward committee room?—I went to the other Mackley's, at the "Marquis of Granby."

13,148. How came you to go there?—I went there hearing at the central committee room it was a house where voters were congregated.

13,149. And where they were for sale?—Where there were doubtful voters.

13,150. Did you do that in consequence of any direction you received at the seventh ward committee room?—No; I acted entirely on my own responsibility, and who I thought I could pick up to go and prevent bribery, if it should happen, I consulted and tried to get them to go with me.

13,151. You went to prevent bribery?—I did; that was my game, and that was my intention.

13,152. At what time did you go down to the other Mackley's?—I think the first time was about 2 o'clock.

13,153. I suppose that having communicated that to the persons in the seventh ward you received some directions about it, did you not?—No, not at all.

13,154. Was nothing said by anybody?—There was something said, but I cannot say what it was; I acted solely on my own responsibility.

13,155. Do you not know that money was sent from the seventh to the eighth ward for the purpose of paying men?—I do not know of any, not a farthing.

13,156. Do you not know that money was sent from the seventh ward committee room down to the eighth ward for the purpose of its being distributed at Mackley's?—I do not know it, certainly not; I should say certainly not one farthing.

13,157. Have you not heard it?—I have not heard that money was sent from the seventh ward.

13,158. Have you heard of money being sent down to be distributed at Mackley's?—I have heard different reports that I myself took money down, but that is a base lie, whoever reported it.

13,159. Then you went down to the other Mackley's?—Yes.

13,160. That was a place where there were men to buy?—That was a place where it was likely there would be voters.

13,161. Did you find a number of men down there?—There were several there, and when I was there I endeavoured to take stock of them to see what quantity they had.

13,162. When you are going to buy an article it is desirable to have the stock counted?—I had other reasons too.

13,163. Can you tell me who the men were?—I do not know their names.

13,164. What was the use of your taking stock of them without knowing their names?—I will tell you the way in which I looked at it; at 12 o'clock, when I got a statement after a great deal of labour from Mr. Coaks, I went about for the purpose of seeing what extent of bribery must take place to turn the election; that was my object in going there. I wanted to ascertain to what extent they would have to bribe. I thought that we could go on polling honestly and straight. I was very anxious about the election, and I wanted to know to what extent bribery was going on.

13,165. Ascertaining the number of men that would have to be bribed on the other side you wanted to ascertain what was the number you would have to meet?—I beg your pardon. I wanted to know whether our election was safe or not. I was very anxious about the election.

13,166. Supposing you had found that your election was not safe, what would you have done?—Nothing at all. I could have done plenty if I had had the opportunity.

13,167. If you were not prepared to do anything, what would be the use of doing what you did?—I was not prepared to do anything further than to go about and ask voters to go and vote on principle; nothing further than that.

13,168. When you went to the second Mackley's, how long did you stay there?—I might be there a quarter of an hour.

13,169. What means did you take during that quarter of an hour to prevent bribery?—It ran through my mind in this way: that we had a new Act of Parliament, and that if the people felt that there was a man there who was opposed to them that that would prevent them from bribing openly.

13,170. You went down as a preventive officer, and you remained there a quarter of an hour?—Yes; I left a man there.

13,171. Who was the man?—I think a man belonging to the organisation, and I will try to remember his name. I know the man if I see him.

13,172. Having taken stock of the article which might be bought at the second Mackley's, what did you do then?—I think I went up to the central committee room to see how the numbers were then, for we could not get them down there.

13,173. Where did you go to when you left the central committee room?—I think I went to Mackley's again, at the "Woolpack."

13,174. Before you went there, did you communicate to the people in the central committee room what was the strength of the men you found down at Mackley's?—If I said anything, and I think I did, but who I spoke to I do not know, what I said was, "There "is no such number as I heard when I was here last "down at Mackley's. I think that at the central "committee room some one put it at 100 or 200 men, "stating that they were ready to be bribed, and the "report that I brought was, that there was nothing "like that number."

13,175. Had you seen how many there were?—No, I had not. I asked the first man I saw there where the voters were, and the man said, "I can soon get them;" so that they were about, and they knew where to drop on to them, and to send for them.

13,176. You said just now that you did not find there was anything like the number that had been first spoken of. If the man said that he could soon get them, but did not get them, how could you ascertain what the number was?—There were but a very few.

13,177. But the man told you he could soon get them; how came you to come to the conclusion that there were not as many as had been reported at the central committee room?—Excuse me, the man said, if I remember right, that he could get 30 or 40.

13,178. Did you inquire of any other man?—Only one man spoke to me.

13,179. Did you not ask any other man how many he could get?—No. I met Mackley coming down the street as I came back.

13,180. Then you took no measures to ascertain the number of men except by asking that one man?—That is all.

13,181. And he told you that he could get 30 or 40?—He said, perhaps he could get 30 or 40.

13,182. Did you communicate at the central committee room that there was one man who could get 30 or 40?—No, I think not; he thought that the men wanted a day's wages; he thought that that was what the body of them wanted.

13,183. Was Wilde in the central committee room at that time?—I did not see him during the election that I know of.

13,184. Was not he in the central committee room at any time during the day?—Not so far as I know.

13,185. After you left the central committee room did you not go to the seventh ward committee room again?—I think I did.

13,186. Did you then go down again to Mackley's?—I went down again to Mackley's, at the "Woolpack."

13,187. How did you go down to Mackley's the second time?—I think Mr. Fisher drove me down; I am sure he did.

13,188. Did you take anything down with you?—Do you mean in the shape of money?

13,189. Did you take anything with you?—Only my clothes and what little money I had in my pocket of my own.

13,190. Did you take nothing with you?—Nothing but the clothes on my back and a few shillings that I had in my pocket.

13,191. Did you hear the men when you came back cry out "It is all right," and rush in after you?—No.

13,192. Did you hear the men say it is all right now?—No.

13,193. Nothing of the sort?—Nothing of the sort; the men were upstairs when I went, the body of the men were. I wanted to get into the room to see their game there, but I could not; there was a great big fellow there outside the door. If I could have got in there, I think I could have prevented a little.

13,194. You had nothing in your pocket then?—Only a few shillings of my own money.

13,195. You had nothing in the tail of your coat?—I might have had my handkerchief with me. I had no money; not a farthing.

13,196. Do you mean to say that you took nothing down with you?—I took nothing down with me, and it was not my intention to take anything; my intention was the other way, to keep purity of election if I could; that was my object, and that is what I come here to say. I am on my oath, and whether Whigs or Tories it would have all come out with me.

13,197. Had you not heard in the committee room that it was advisable to send some money in order to meet any bribery on the other side?—I had not.

13,198. Had you heard anything about spending money?—I had not, not on one side nor the other side; not about spending money; they would think me the wrong man for that; they would not let me know it if that was their intention. I had no secrets then any more than I have now.

13,199. Did you speak to Mackley when you went there the second time?—Yes.

13,200. What did you say to Mackley?—I said to Mackley, "Mackley, you are selling us," or something to that effect. If you will allow me I will tell you the tale.

13,201. How came you to say that Mackley was selling you if you had not made any arrangements about buying voters?—Because I had been up to the door trying for admission.

13,202. Then, having been told that there were men there for sale, if you had said nothing about buying them, how came you to say to Mackley, "Mackley, you are selling us"?—I call it a regular sell.

13,203. If you had agreed with Mackley to buy them, and having gone away for the money had returned with it, and then found that you were forestalled, then, no doubt, you might very well have said that Mackley was selling you, but if you had got no money to buy them with I do not see in what way Mackley sold you?—I will tell you how he sold me; he sold my principles.

13,204. He knew your principles?—I do not know;

TWELFTH DAY.

J. Harper.

but that was the sense in which I spoke to him when I said, "Mackley, you are selling us."

13,205. If you were not a buyer in the market, and this article was for sale, if he allowed the article to be bought in his house, how was he selling you?—The fact was I wanted to ascertain from him whether Hardiment was upstairs buying voters, as I suspected he was.

13,206. Did you ask him?—I said, "Hardiment is now buying voters there;" and he said, "Yes, he is, and you could have had them if you had liked;" that was the answer he made to me.

13,207–8. That was in answer to your observation?—Yes.

13,209. That is exactly the answer that a man would make if you had been prepared to buy, and had been too late?—Yes, but he was prepared to sell.

13,210. How came Mackley to make that answer, unless he thought you were a buyer?—He would not care who was the buyer, I daresay, if he got the money.

13,211. That was the conversation that you had with him?—Yes, that was it.

13,212. Nothing more?—No, I jumped into the cart and drove away; there was no more conversation that I remember.

13,213. How long did you stay at Mackley's?—Five or ten minutes, and then somebody called out Mackley; that was on purpose to get rid of me.

13,214. Why did you not say publicly, "Anybody "who bribes here will undoubtedly vitiate the elec- "tion, and I give them notice that proceedings "will be taken against them," instead of jumping into the cart and driving away, you having gone there, as you say you did, to prevent bribery?—I went about from place to place.

13,215. What good could you do in the way of preventing bribery if you immediately jump into a cart and drive away?—I am sorry to say that I did no good.

13,216. Did you go away because you thought that that market was closed, and another might be open?—No, certainly not.

13,217. Are you sure of that?—I am.

13,218. You did not wait to see any of the voters who were upstairs come down?—No, I did not.

13,219. Why not?—I can give no other reason than that I was going to other public-houses.

13,220. Why did you not take the names of the voters who were there?—It did not occur to me to do so. If I had to do it again I should do it.

13,221. How were you, merely by going to Mackley's, and by talking to Mackley, to prevent bribery?—I did hope I should deter them, and that by their thinking I was an enemy in their camp I should prevent bribery.

13,222. But you did not go into the camp?—I might have prevented it if I had got in.

13,223. You could see the men come down from the room when they were going to the poll?—I could if I had stopped.

13,224. Your object being to prevent bribery, why did you not stop there, and say to the men, "Here I am, "and I tell you that I will not have any bribery, and "that I will take down your names for the purpose of "preventing bribery"?—I am sorry I did not do what you say. One reason was that there was a man on our side at the door to see the people come out.

13,225. Who was that?—A man with a flat nose; I forget his name.

13,226. Is his name Madge?—Yes.

13,227. Did you tell him to take down the names of the people?—He said he was there to see what was going on.

13,228. Did he say by whom he had been sent?—No.

13,229. By whom was he sent?—I do not know. On the election day I had very little to do in the committee rooms. I bolted from one to another.

13,230. Where did you go to from there?—I went down to the seventh ward committee room again. I am pretty sure I did.

13,231. Was Robert Alexander Madge the man?—I do not know his christian name.

13,232. Where does he live?—I have seen him in Pitt Street, against Mr. Clayton's, and I presumed he was a weaver for that. I know very few of the class of voters let in by the last bill.

13,233. Mr. Fisher must have known the men pretty well; he lives in the ward?—Yes, he lives in the ward; he merely drove me there because I asked him. I said I wanted to go there; I said, "Drive me round the city;" and that is how Mr. Fisher happened to drive me.

13,234. (Mr. Mansfield.) Was the "Marquis of Granby" an old Whig house?—Yes.

13,235. A house where Whig bribery had been done at former elections?—I have heard so.

13,236. (Mr. Dowdeswell.) Did you say when you went in, "All right, I can settle with them now"?—I did not.

13,237. Nor any words of that sort?—Nothing like it. I did not speak to Mackley in the house the second time.

13,238. Did you say that to anybody?—To no one.

13,239. Do you swear you did not say it to Mackley?—Certainly; nor to anyone else.

13,240. Do you mean to say that you took no money with you that day anywhere?—I do.

13,241. Did you offer anybody any money that day?—Not a soul. I could have had them for any money the latter part of the day, but I said, "Go and vote like men; not a glass of beer will you have from me."

13,242. How many do you think you might have had?—If I had put any machinery to work I could have had them; if I had said, "Go down there and get beer," I daresay they could be picked up. I assure you they were very reluctant to vote without money.

13,243. How many could you have picked up?—I cannot say; it would wholly depend on the time I had to have done it.

13,244. How many do you think you could have picked up?—If I had went to work the last hour, I think I could have bought scores of voters for a pot of beer each.

13,245. How many in all do you think you could have bought?—I did not go in for the purpose of buying, and therefore I cannot answer the question as to how many I could have bought. I should think if proper machinery had been put to work, similar to what the other side had got to work, hundreds might have been bought.

13,246. You spoke about the machinery of the other side. What machinery are you alluding to?—The one I have heard of since the inquiry.

13,247. Let me understand to what you are alluding, that I may know what is passing in your mind?—I am alluding to the men that have done the work which I suspected they were capable of doing, and it has turned out they have done it; therefore it is, I say, if we had a machinery like that, and were willing to put it in force, as they did, hundreds might have been bought.

13,248. Do you know of any money having been spent in any way on your side in bribery that day?—Not a farthing.

13,249. Do you know of any money having been provided for such a purpose?—I do not. I believe there was none. I believe we were as straight and as pure as ever there was an election in Norwich this time.

13,250. (Mr. Mansfield.) Did you belong to the Tillett party?—Yes.

13,251. You are a member of the organisation?—Yes.

13,252. You said you subscribed to that?—Yes.

13,253. How much did you subscribe?—I do not know whether it was a sovereign or half a sovereign; but the secretary will tell you that.

13,254. When did you subscribe?—It might be a meeting or two from the first formation.

13,255. When was the first formation ?—I can only say what I said before; about 12 months previous to the election, as near as I can guess.

13,256. What are the objects of this organisation ?—The objects of the organisation were, in my mind, and I think in all that joined it, to return a working man's representative to Parliament; that was my object.

13,257. You subscribed funds and had meetings?—The funds were merely, to my mind, for the purpose of paying the expenses of the organisation, and nothing further.

13,258. Were meetings held regularly ?—Oh yes.

13,259. Where ?—We had the meeting places in different wards, and I could give you the meetings almost, if you gave me time, where we held them. I know our eighth ward was for three months at Mackley's, and then afterwards we had the schoolroom in St. Martin's.

13,260. Did you ever see a balance sheet of the expenses ?—No, I did not.

13,261. Do they not produce a balance sheet?—I do not know.

13,262. Who has the management of the funds ?—All I can tell you is that Mr. Copeman, I think, was treasurer, and Mr. Causton was secretary; and further than that I cannot tell you, except as to the committee; of course we had ward committees and central committees, and so on, but as to the funds I had nothing whatever to do with them.

13,263. What part was this organisation taking immediately before the election ?—Canvassing I should say.

13,264. Was Mr. Copeman canvassing ?—I do not know.

13,265. Were any of the committee canvassing ?—Some of the committee canvassed down in my ward.

13,266. The committee were the persons who regulated the distribution of the funds ?—Not that I am aware of.

13,267. You do not suppose that the treasurer would hand over money without authority ?—No, I should think not, but I had nothing whatever to do with the money, nor was I present at any meetings when money matters were discussed.

13,268. Do you know the amount of the money that was subscribed ?—No.

13,269. You have been a member since it first started ?—Yes.

13,270. How was it when you were going round to these public-houses you only went to the Liberal public-houses ? These two Mackleys you knew to be old and great bribers ?—I could not be everywhere. I made the best of my time when I heard bribery was on. I could not be everywhere.

13,271. What made you go first to the Whig places ?—I do not know. As I have said before, I went where I heard the voters were.

13,272. It is very odd that you should select them ?—I do not know that I only went to them; I passed through different public-houses. Those two were clearly what you call Whig public-houses, but I passed a great number of others and there did not appear to be much doing. I went into another public-house near where I live, which is Middleton's.

13,273. Did you go into any Tory public-houses ?—That is a Tory public-house.

13,274. (Mr. Biron.) It does not seem much to matter if there is money going ?—No, I think not; not at all.

13,275. You got to Mackley's about 3, did you not, the second time ?—Yes, about 3 the second time.

13,276. Did you there see a cart outside the door ?—Yes.

13,277. Did you ask whose it was ?—Yes.

13,278. Of whom ?—I asked the man Madge that I have spoken of.

13,279. Did he tell you it was Hardiment's cart ?—Yes.

13,280. After that you had a conversation which you have told us about, "Mackley, you are selling us," and so forth ?—Yes.

13,281. Before Mackley came to you in that backyard, did you see anybody else there ?—Yes, I saw that great man as I have observed at the door.

13,282. Did you see a man of the name of Vines there ?—Yes, he spoke to me.

13,283. What did he say ?—He called out, "Harper, it is no use you coming here; we go in to win."

13,284. Who is Vines ?—I know him by no other name than the Conservative working man. A leader and a Conservative working man, or something of that kind. I know him when I see him.

13,285. Did you ever hear his name in connexion with Yarmouth ?—Yes, I heard that he cut a pretty figure there.

13,286. Is he the man who was examined in the election inquiry at Yarmouth; I do not mean the Commission, but when the judge came the other day ?—Yes, I believe he was.

13,287. Can you give me his address ?—I do not know where he lives. I know where I have seen him.

13,288. This organisation. Were there canvassers belonging to it ?—Yes, that was the object.

13,289. Were they paid ?—No, not that I am aware of. I should think not.

13,290. Can you say whether they were or not ?—I should say not. I know nothing about paying them.

13,291. (Mr. Dowdeswell.) Were you a voter before this election ?—Yes.

13,292. I suppose you knew of a very considerable amount of bribery at the two preceding elections ?—I did not, only as I have heard.

13,293. You took no part in them ?—No, not a bit.

13,294. No part in bribery ?—No.

13,295. Did you pay any money, or know of any money being paid to anybody personally ?—No, I never knew anything of the kind. I should not mix up with bribery.

JOHN WEBSTER sworn and examined.

J. Webster.

13,296. (Mr. Mansfield.) What are you by trade ?—A tailor.

13,297. Who did you vote for at the last election ?—Sir Henry Stracey.

13,298. At what time did you vote ?—As near as I can recollect, about a quarter to 10 in the morning.

13,299. Do you know a person of the name of Dowson ?—Yes.

13,300. Do you recollect being in his company on the day of the election ?—I was in the marking off room a great time during the day of the election.

13,301. Have you seen him this morning ?—Yes, I have seen him this morning.

13,302. When ?—I saw him pass the hall at the time I was in this room.

13,303. Have you spoken to him this morning ?—No.

13,304. Has anybody spoken to you about him this morning ?—No, I have had no conversation about him this morning.

13,305. Or about what he has been saying here ?—No.

13,306. Do you remember on the day of the election seeing him in conversation with a man of the name of Pointer ?—Yes, I think I saw Pointer; he was a servant for Mrs. Snowden; he came into the marking off room and asked for Mr. Dowson, and I told him I thought he was in the other room.

13,307. Did you see any money pass between them ?—No.

13,308. Will you swear that you were not present when money was paid by Dowson to Pointer ?—I am perfectly satisfied of that.

13,309. Is Pointer since dead ?—Yes; I believe he drowned himself.

13,310. Did you know him well by sight ?—Yes, I knew him by sight; I knew him more distinctly possibly by his having his livery on, and he was a very small man.

TWELFTH DAY.

J. Webster.

13,311. Did you hear Pointer say anything about money?—No, I never heard a word of it.

13,312. What time of the day was this?—It was in the afternoon.

13,313. Was it after 2?—Yes, it was after 2.

13,314. Was it before 3?—No, I should say not; I would rather say it was after 3.

13,315. Ten or 15 minutes after?—I could not be positive.

13,316. Put it as near as you can?—I should say it was that, or it might be a little more.

13,317. Say 15 minutes to 20 minutes?—Yes, I should say it might be half-past perhaps.

13,318. Did you receive anything for your vote?—No.

13,319. Who canvassed you?—I was not canvassed at all by either party.

13,320. Has anything been promised to you for your vote?—No.

13,321. Not upon this or any former election?—No.

13,322. No money has been paid to you upon any previous election?—Not a farthing. I have never had a vote before this election.

13,323. (Mr. Dowdeswell.) Did you see Pointer go into the other room?—Yes, I saw him go into the other room. I told him I thought he would find Mr. Dowson in the other room, and I would not be certain, but I almost think I opened the door for him; I saw him go in.

13,324. Have you heard of any bets being made about five to one?—No, I have not heard any bets at all.

13,325. You did not take an active part in the election?—No, I am not a very active man at an election.

A. C. Nottley.

ALFRED CASE NOTTLEY sworn and examined.

13,326. (Mr. Biron.) What are you?—I am a carpenter by trade.

13,327. Did you vote at the last election?—I never voted at all.

13,328. Were you canvassed?—No.

13,329. Did not anyone ask you for your vote?—Yes.

13,330. Who was it?—I am sure I cannot tell you who it was, it is so long ago.

13,331. What day was it you were asked for your vote?—That I cannot tell you.

13,332. Was it on the morning of the polling day?—I leave in the morning a little before six, and I am not at home more than an hour the whole day till after I leave work at night.

13,333. Somebody or another asked you, you say, for your vote; was it the day of the polling?—I am sure I cannot tell you.

13,334. What were you doing all the day of the polling?—Following my own employment.

13,335. Where?—At Mr. Lacey's.

13,336. All day long?—Yes.

13,337. Did you not go home to breakfast?—Yes; I say I have about an hour during the day, once to breakfast and once to dinner.

13,338. Did you go by the polling place?—No.

13,339. How far was the polling place from your house?—I should say it might be 100 yards.

13,340. Surely you could have called in there and voted?—I did not.

13,341. You could if you pleased?—I could if I pleased, but I did not go near the polling place the whole day.

13,342. Were you not asked for your vote on that day?—Not on the election day, not by anybody. I am certain about that.

13,343. If it was not on the election day, when was it?—I cannot tell you.

13,344. How long before the election day?—I am sure I cannot tell you.

13,345. Your mind seems an absolute blank?—Very likely. I am not in any way wrapt up in electioneering matters. I do not trouble myself about them.

13,345*a*. That makes it all the more likely you should remember the man who asked you; did you promise your vote when you were asked?—Yes, I think I did to Mr. H. Lacey. I recollect I did now three or four days before.

13,346. Who is Mr. H. Lacey?—Brother to Mr. James Lacey.

13,347. How was it you did not keep your promise?—Mr. James Lacey asked me which way I was going to vote, and I did not tell him which way I was going to vote.

13,348. Why not?—I do not know particularly what my reason was, but I did not tell Mr. Lacey which way I was going to vote.

13,349. Why did you give that answer to Mr. Lacey?—I do not know that I had any particular reason why I gave it to him.

13,350. You must have had some reason?—He asked me which way I thought about voting, and I told him I did not exactly know, that I had not exactly made up my mind, though I had promised Mr. H. Lacey a day or two before.

13,351. Did you tell Mr. Lacey you had already promised Mr. H. Lacey?—Yes, I told him if I voted I should vote for Mr. Russell.

13,352. He was canvassing you for Sir Henry Stracey?—He only merely asked me, when he came out of the shop, which way I thought about voting, and I told him if I voted at all I should vote for Mr. Russell.

13,353. Did he ask you to vote the other way?—No.

13,354. Did you know that he wished you to vote the other way?—He did not ask me to vote the other way.

13,355. Did you know which way he voted?—I suppose he voted for Mr. Stracey, but I cannot say; I never asked and never heard about it.

13,356. A gentleman came and asked you which way you were going to vote. You knew which candidate it was for whom he wished you to vote?—Mr. H. Lacey asked me which way I was going to vote, and I told him I should vote for Mr. Russell.

13,357. You knew when the other gentleman asked you which way you were going to vote, for whom he wanted you to vote?—Mr. Lacey asked me which way I was going to vote, and I never gave him any answer.

13,358. You knew which way Mr. Lacey wished you to vote?—He did not ask me to vote any way.

13,359. Did he not canvass you for Sir Henry Stracey?—No, he certainly did not.

13,360. Did anyone come to you and canvass you for Sir Henry Stracey?—No, no one canvassed me but Mr. H. Lacey; he asked me which way I was going to vote.

13,361. Did either of those gentlemen offer you 5*s*. for your vote?—No.

13,362. Did anyone offer you 5*s*. for your vote?—There was a man came down to me; I think it was a little after three, and asked me if I had voted, and I said, "No." He said, "Do you intend to vote?" "Well," I said, "No;" and he said, says he, "The price is 5*s*., if you like to vote," but he never offered me any money.

13,363. Who was that?—A man by the name of Gent; he lives in Muspole Street.

13,364. Did you get 5*s*.?—No, I could not get it, because I never accepted it.

13,365. You promised to vote?—I know I did.

13,366. Why did you not keep your promise?—I never intended to vote. I fully made up my mind after breakfast I would not vote.

13,367. Why did you not keep that promise?—I took and made up my mind that I would not vote at all.

13,368. Why?—I had no particular reason.

13,369. When you promised you had made up your mind to vote?—I did not keep my vote back because I wanted money. I was not waiting for that. It is not money that would induce me to vote.

13,370. Did you not get 5*s.* to vote?—No; I might have had 5*s.* if I had liked to have voted.

13,371. Did you not get 5*s.*, to prevent your voting for Tillett?—No.

13,372. Did your wife get 5*s.*?—No.

13,373. That is a very faint "no" indeed. Now, what is the truth of it?—The truth of it is what I now tell you. I came here to speak the truth, and I have spoken the truth. I did not vote, and might have had 5*s.* if I had liked to have voted. I did not vote, and did not receive a shilling. I could have had 5*s.* by the offer of Mr. Gent if I had liked to have accepted it, and I refused it, and did not vote at all.

13,374. Have you never received any money since?—I have not received a penny.

13,375. Or your wife?—No.

13,376. Has any money been left at your place?—Not a penny.

13,377. Did you make any bet about the election?—No.

13,378. Not about 5*s.*?—No, I never heard no more about it from that day to this; in fact if they had left it or offered it to me I should not have accepted it.

13,379. I hope you are speaking the truth; you have a very queer manner with you?—It is as queer as you like. I have told you the truth.

13,380. (Mr. Dowdeswell.) Your tale is a very singular one. You made a promise. You broke it, and you assign no reason; there was a motive which might influence you in breaking it; a sum is offered to you, and after that your promise is not kept. There are certain sequences of reasoning which people go through, and really I cannot say that your tale is at all satisfactory.—I certainly did not promise. I told Mr. H. Lacey if I voted at all I should vote for Mr. Russell; those are the words I said.

13,381. When people make promises and they do not keep them they must not complain that persons should suppose there was something wrong?—I cannot help what people think.

JOHN HART BOWGEN sworn and examined.

J. H. Bowgen.

13,382. (Mr. Dowdeswell.) What are you?—An innkeeper.

13,383. Where do you live?—St. Faith's Lane, at the Hop Pole Gardens.

13,384. In which ward?—In the first ward. I have not been long there.

13,385. Are you a voter?—Yes.

13,386. Did you vote at the last election?—Yes.

13,387. For whom did you vote?—Sir Henry Stracey.

13,388. What time in the day did you vote?—At half-past 8 in the morning.

13,389. Have you had anything given to you for your vote?—No.

13,390. Or anything promised?—No.

13,391. Had your house been engaged?—Yes.

13,392. By the Conservatives?—Yes.

13,393. Was beer supplied there during that day?—No.

13,394. None at all?—No.

13,395. Was there only a committee room in your house?—A meeting.

13,396. What were you paid for the meeting?—3*l.*; there were two meetings; it is a large room, holding about 400.

13,397. Nothing else?—No, nothing else.

13,398. You know Hulme, the chemist?—Yes.

13,399. On the day of the election did you receive any money from him?—5*l.*

13,400. Was that to give voters?—Yes.

13,401. And to get up voters?—Yes.

13,402. Whom did you get up?—I gave the money to Charlie Andrews.

13,403. Why did you not use it yourself if you received it?—He asked me to get it. I asked Mr. Hulme if he could give me anything, and he gave me 5*l.*, and I gave it to Mr. Andrews; but how he laid it out I cannot say.

13,404. What time in the day was that?—Half-past 3 I think.

13,405. Where did he ask you?—In the street against the Charing Cross, St. Benedict's.

13,406. Did you go in to Mr. Hulme?—Yes, to the committee room.

13,407. Why did not the man go in himself?—I do not know I am sure. I was standing about there along with Mr. Hulme.

13,408. Did you know the man?—Yes; he kept a public-house.

13,409. Did he not know Mr. Hulme?—I do not know I am sure.

13,410. Do you know how it was spent?—No, that I cannot say.

13,411. Did he tell you how he was going to spend it?—No; he said he had some friends in his house that would require about 5*l.*, and I asked Mr. Hulme, and he advanced it to me, and I gave it to Mr. Andrews.

13,412. Why did you not, having received this money and handed it over, come and give us information? Did anybody tell you not to do it?—No.

13,413. Has anybody been to you about it?—No, not a soul.

13,414. Nobody has been to speak to you about it, and prevent you from doing it?—No.

13,415. Did not Mr. Hulme come to you?—He came the same day that he came before the court.

13,416. What did he say to you then?—He said merely that he had been before the court and spoken the truth, that is all.

13,417. Did he tell you what he had sworn?—He told me that he spoke before the court of the money he gave to me, and to Houghton, and so on.

13,418. That he told the court of the money he gave to you?—Yes.

13,419. What did he say?—He said nothing else. He called in for a glass of ale, that is all.

13,420. Had you not seen him before that?—No.

13,421. Had he not spoken to you before that?—No.

13,422. Not since the election?—Yes, since the election; he was down on the water with a party.

13,423. Before he came here were you not told to hold your tongue?—No, he did not say a word.

13,424. I do not say Hulme, but did not anybody else tell you to hold your tongue?—No, not a soul.

13,425. Did you see Dawson?—No.

13,426. Was there any meeting to consider what should be done about this Commission?—I have never been to one meeting.

13,427. Did you hear of one?—I cannot say that parties in the different wards going down on the water with me might say it.

13,428. You might have heard that there was a meeting to consider what should be done about giving evidence before the Commission?—I might have heard a talk about it upon the water.

13,429. What was the talk?—I cannot recollect.

13,430. That you were all to hold your tongues?—No.

13,431. Did not these people say what was done at the meeting, and that it was to keep your counsel?—No, I never heard of it.

13,432. Do you mean to say you did not understand perfectly well that to hold your tongue was the best thing?—No, there was no one to teach me anything.

TWELFTH DAY.

J. H. Bowgen.

1 Sept. 1869.

13,433. Did you not hear them say, "This Commission is all very well, but people would be fools if "they told anything;" was not that the substance of the talk?—In the tap-room there was talk, but I had no one to come and teach me.

13,434. Have not people been round to different public-houses telling the people that they would be great fools if they told anything?—I never heard it. No one came to mine and said it.

13,435. When you have been at public-houses have you heard it?—Yes, I might go into a public-house and hear a conversation, but I never studied the interest of public-house talk as far as that.

13,436. That has been the talk in the public-houses? Very likely.

13,437. To hold their own?—It is most likely.

13,438. And not to tell anything; is not that what you heard in the public-houses?—We hear different remarks.

13,439. Lest the city should be disfranchised; lest you should lose your members of parliament for the city?—Yes, certainly.

13,440. Do you know of anything having been given to anybody for their vote?—No.

13,441. Except what you have mentioned?—No, except what I have mentioned.

JOHN METCALF sworn and examined.

J. Metcalf.

13,442. (Mr. Mansfield.) What are you by trade?—I am a fishmonger. I keep a fishmonger's shop.

13,443. For whom did you vote at the last election?—Sir Henry Stracey.

13,444. About what time in the day?—About half-past 12.

13,445. Who asked you to vote for Stracey?—Mr. Freestone came past in a pony cart, and he said, "Have you been to vote?" I said, "Not yet, I am busy now." I had some gentlemen that I was dealing with, and I said, "I will go in half an hour or an hour," and these gentlemen said they would stop; they said, "If you like to go we will stop till you come back."

13,446. Was Hardiment there?—Yes, I rode along with him.

13,447. Did you go straight to the poll?—Yes, and came back again. I had one glass of ale afterwards, and paid for it, and came back again.

13,448. Did they give you a glass of beer?—No, I paid for it.

13,449. What became of you afterwards?—I went home to see after my business.

13,450. You had been canvassed before at this election?—No.

13,451. Who beckoned you in the cart, Freestone or Hardiment?—I got in myself.

13,452. One of them called to you?—He was in the street, and I came out of my house and jumped in the cart. He said, "You had better go and vote now, time is getting short; it is 12 o'clock."

13,453. Had Freestone spoken to you before?—No.

13,454. Had anybody spoken to you before about voting?—No.

13,455. Had you promised to vote before?—Yes, I had promised to vote; I said I should vote for Sir Henry Stracey.

13,456. Had you not promised to vote for Mr. Tillett before?—No.

13,457. Nor Sir William Russell?—No.

13,458. Are you quite sure of that?—Yes.

13,459. To whom did you make the promise to vote for Stracey?—Young Stracey.

13,460. Did he come to your place?—He says, "Will you vote for me?" I said, "I do not trouble about voting." He says, "Will you vote against me?" and I says, "If I vote I shall vote for you."

13,461. Who was with young Stracey when he called?—Plunkett.

13,462. Who else?—Mr. Wiseman.

13,463. And Hardiment?—No.

13,464. Was Freestone there?—No.

13,465. Were there only those three?—Yes.

13,466. That was the day before?—No, that was some time before, a day or two, I cannot say exactly; two or three days I suppose it might be.

13,467. Had you known Hardiment before?—Yes. I cannot help knowing him, because he lives in t'other street.

13,468. You know him to talk to?—No, I never spoke to the man in my life.

13,469. He spoke to you that day?—He said, "Come on, you may as well vote as not;" and I says, "I may as well go and vote, because I want to get back again."

13,470. What did he give you?—Nothing at all. I never see the sight of a farthing. I never had such a thing.

13,471. Was anything left with your wife for you?—No.

13,472. Was nothing left at your house?—No. I never thought about it.

13,473. Did you not go somewhere the next day to get something?—No.

13,474. Nor the day after that?—No.

13,475. Have you received nothing since?—Nothing.

13,476. Is this the first time you have ever voted?—Yes. That is quite right, I can assure you.

13,477. Did you hear of any money going about that morning?—I heard people talking of it, but I did not go out after it. I kept at home, and did not go among any of them.

13,478. Had you known Freestone before?—Yes. I cannot help knowing him; he lives a little way off me, and has lived there for years, so that I must know him.

ROBERT FISHER sworn and examined.

R. Fisher.

13,479. (Mr. Biron.) What are you?—A grocer.

13,480. Did you vote at the last election?—Yes.

13,481. For whom did you vote?—Russell and Tillett.

13,482. At what hour in the day did you vote?—I polled about eight in the morning; I should think it was about 10 minutes past eight when I voted.

13,483. Did you get anything for voting?—No; I always voted for the Liberals.

13,484. Were you about the committee room in the middle of the day?—I believe I went in about 3 o'clock in the afternoon. That is the only time I did go in.

13,485. Did you meet Joshua Harper there?—I met him at that hour in the day, but whether it was there or not I do not know.

13,486. You met him, at all events?—Yes

13,487. Did he ask you to take him for a drive?—He said, "Will you just drive round Mackley's, in St. Martin's; I want to go round that way."

13,488. Can you remember where it was you met him when he asked you that?—I cannot remember.

13,489. Was it anywhere near the central committee room?—Yes, I think it was very close.

13,490. You had got your cart with you?—I was riding in my dog-cart.

13,491. Did you take him up?—He asked me whether I would drive him round to Mackley's, St. Martin's, and I said, "Yes, I had no objection."

13,492. When he was driving with you, did you observe whether he had any heavy bag in his pocket?—No, I did not observe anything of the kind.

13,493. Did he get out of your trap when you got to Mackley's?—Yes, at Mackley's door.

13,494. As he got out, did you observe whether he was holding up his pocket as if he were keeping up some money?—No, I did not see anything of the kind.

13,495. Did you see him go in?—He went just inside the street door; the stairs are just as you enter the front door, and he attempted to go upstairs, but a man stopped him.

13,496. Were there men standing about the doorway and in the passage?—Not outside; I believe not.

13,497. Inside?—Yes, just inside there were one or two. I did not get out of my cart, so that I could not see who were inside.

13,498. Did you hear the men say anything?—No. Mr. Mackley came out a few minutes afterwards and went with Mr. Harper into a yard adjoining, and Mr. Harper said, "You have sold us, Mackley." He made use of those words. Mackley said, "You could have had them if you liked;" and Harper says, "What, by buying of them?" He said, "Yes;" and Harper said, "We do not do that."

13,499. Before Harper and Mackley had that conversation in the yard, did you hear any of the men say, upon seeing Harper, "Harper is come; it is all right now," or something to that effect?—No, I did not; I do not remember those words.

13,500. Could you say whether that passed or not?—I really cannot say; it might have done. I did not get out of my cart, although I was close to the kerb; he was not many minutes.

13,501. Did you see when Harper passed in a lot of voters following Harper?—No; there was a cart standing at the door, and I believe three or four voters came down at the time and rushed off to vote. Three or four got in the cart, and someone drove them off, but who it was I do not know. I did hear it was Hardiment's cart.

13,502. Can you give me the names of any of the men?—I did not know any of them. I did not go into the house.

13,503. Do I gather from you that you did not hear these voters or these men say, "It is all right, Harper has come"?—I heard words like these, that Hardiment was upstairs and voters were there.

13,504. I am talking about Harper; did you not hear it said when Harper came upon the scene, "It is all right, Harper has come"?—I do not think such a thing took place. Harper was not out of my sight half a minute; he went inside and tried to get upstairs.

13,505. I am putting to you what some of the voters said?—No voters round the door spoke to Mr. Harper at all.

13,506. Or hanging about?—No, they were not hanging about, they were secreted upstairs.

13,507. Do not let us misapprehend each other or fence with words; I care not whether they were voters or not, hanging by the door or behind the door. Did you hear any of them say, when Harper appeared, "There is Harper; now it is all right"?—No; there were none standing about the place, they were upstairs, and there was a man standing at the door.

13,508. (Mr. Dowdeswell.) How long did you stand at the door?—I should think it might be five minutes.

13,509. Harper got out of the cart and went into Mackley's; shortly after Mackley and he came out and had this conversation; did he then get into the cart and go away with you?—Yes; it all happened in about five minutes.

13,510. Where did you drive him to?—I believe we went round to the "Marquis of Granby" the other way, just for a drive. It might be about a quarter past 3 then or half past 3.

13,511. Do you know of anybody having been bribed upon that day?—No, I do not know of a farthing being spent upon either side; I never took any interest in elections at all.

RICHARD VINES sworn and examined.

R. Vines.

13,512. (Mr. Dowdeswell.) What are you?—A shoemaker.

13,513. Where do you live?—In St. Gregory's.

13,514. Do you know Hardiment?—If I were to say I did not know the man I should tell a palpable falsehood; I do know the man, but not to know him as knowing him in the usual phrase; I know him by passing him and no more.

13,515. Were you down at Mackley's, the "Woolpack," on the day of the election?—Yes, I was, indeed.

13,516. Did you see Hardiment there?—I did not.

13,517. What time were you at the "Woolpack"?—I was there I might say alternately from 10 in the morning till half-past 3 in the afternoon.

13,518. You were there during the whole day?—Yes, during the whole day.

13,519. Did you hear of Hardiment being there?—I did not.

13,520. Did you see Mr. Harper?—Oh yes, that I did.

13,521. What time did you see Harper there?—I could hardly name you the time, though I so well recollect the circumstance of the man's being there.

13,522. Was Mr. Fisher there?—There are two Fishers, grocers.

13,523. I am speaking of Robert Fisher?—In St. George's?

13,524. Yes?—I do not think that at that moment Mr. Fisher of St. George's was there.

13,525. Did you see Mr. Fisher there?—No, I did not, and if he had been there I could have sworn to it, because I know him so well.

13,526. Did you go outside the house?—Yes, I did.

13,527. Did you see Mr. Fisher there?—No; I saw some gentleman with Mr. Harper, but in the confusion and excitement of the moment I could not say whether it was Mr. Fisher or not.

13,528. Would you undertake to say it was not Mr. Fisher?—No.

13,529. Was there a cart there?—Yes, I think there was.

13,530. Was there more than one cart?—No, I think there was only one to the best of my knowledge.

13,531. Do you mean to say there were not two carts there?—To the best of my memory I saw but one.

13,532. How long did Mr. Harper remain there?—If you will allow me to tell the tale in my own way, I think it will be much better.

13,533. Tell me the whole tale?—The whole tale is this. On the afternoon of the election day——

13,534. At what time?—I think it would be near 3, but I think not 3, and the reason that makes me believe that was the excitement that took place shortly after 3; I should say the close of the poll was near at hand, and great excitement took place amongst the voters then, but I do not think that Mr. Harper came in till after 3, if he did it was totally unbeknown to me; I would not positively swear, so excited was I at the time, that it was before or after 3.

13,535. Do not waste words about it, say that it was about 3?—Well then, I will go to the point. I met Mr. Harper and he wanted to go through the half-bar door to see Mr. Mackley, I said, "Well, Mr. "Harper, what do you want to see Mr. Mackley "for?"

13,536. What concern was it of yours?—Well, my plain answer is this much, and I think you will say it is an honest answer; as a party man, seeing Mr. Harper was an opposite party man to mine, and thinking that he wanted to get at Mr. Mackley at that identical moment, I thought it was my right, as another party man, to stop him from seeing Mr. Mackley.

TWELFTH DAY.

R. Vines.

1 Sept. 1869.

13,537. Why did you try to prevent this particular person from seeing Mr. Mackley?—Because he was on the opposite side.

13,538. And Mr. Mackley was on the opposite side?—To be sure.

13,539. Why should you prevent Mr. Harper, who was upon the same side from seeing Mr. Mackley?—Well, if you ask me why I so particularly objected, I should say that my own idea was that Mr. Harper came there with no pure principles to see Mr. Mackley. Mind you, I do not say that he offered anything.

13,540. What led you to suppose that?—I do not believe it.

13,541. What induced you to suppose that Mr. Harper was not there with pure principles?—I hope I am allowed to draw my own inferences.

13,542. What made you draw any inference; a man comes into a public-house and asks for the landlord, they are of the same politics, and therefore you immediately conclude——?—I beg your pardon, they are opposite politics.

13,543. Mackley's house had been used by the Liberals for their own meetings?—Oh, but that is quite a mistake; it was never so used, and Mr. O. D. Ray will tell you the same.

13,544. The working man's organisation met there?—The organisation met there.

13,545. Tell me your own tale in your own way?—My own tale is this: that I conceived a thorough strong idea that when Mr. Harper walked in that afternoon about 3 or a few minutes past 3, that he did not come there with any very pure idea to see Mr. Mackley, or so earnestly to seek him at that identical time, if he were as I justly remarked 600 ahead, what did he want to see Mr. Mackley for?

13,546. Go on.—I cannot tell you any more.

13,547. Did Mr. Harper then go away?—He went outside the door, but not until I used other means besides that.

13,548. What other means did you use?—The other means I used were these; he stood hesitating a long time, but remembering that Mr. Harper shortly before that had stated at a guardian's dinner——

13,549. I do not care about what occurred at a dinner. I do not want a long rambling tale containing all sorts of rubbish?—You asked me for the truth, and I am bound to answer it.

13,550. I want what occurred there?—If you ask me what occurred there through a circumstance that happened with Mr. Harper, I was obliged to put the females on to him to get him out by that means.

13,551. You put the females on to him?—Yes, I did.

13,552. What did the females do?—They told Mr. Harper that he, as a guardian of the parish, had used Mr. Stuart Mill's idea, that any woman or man who had more than a certain number of children ought to be punished.

13,553. This is a lot of rubbish.—That is the truth; that is how I got rid of him.

13,554. Did he not see Mackley?—To my knowledge he did not; once only.

13,555. Did he see Mackley?—I understood that he saw Mackley after that.

13,556. Did he see Mackley?—To my knowledge positively not.

13,557. Where were you?—In the house.

13,558. Where Mackley was?—A portion of the time.

13,559. Do you mean to say Mackley was not in his bar?—Not at the time I was speaking to Mr. Harper.

13,560. Did you go out and see Mackley and Harper speaking together?—I did not; it is a positive lie if anybody has told you so.

13,561. Did you hear them speaking together?—I did not.

13,562. Where did you sit?—I did not sit, I stood all the time.

13,563. Where were you standing?—In front of the bar.

13,564. It is untrue that Mackley and Harper passed out of the house in front of the bar?—It is untrue that Mackley and Harper passed out conjointly.

13,565. Do you know a man of the name of Bradbury?—Yes.

13,566. Where was he?—He stood up at the time.

13,567. Did he not stand up against the bar?—No, I do not believe that.

13,568. Did you not see Hardiment there at that time?—No, decidedly not.

13,569. Did you not see him before pass up the stairs?—No.

13,570. Did you not see the men pass down the stairs for the purpose of voting?—No, not at that time.

13,571. Did you see them at all?—Yes, I did.

13,572. When?—Some time previous to that.

13,573. Did you see nobody afterwards pass down the stairs to go to vote?—I never saw nobody go for the purpose of voting. If you will allow me to explain——

13,574. Did you go on the Sunday before the election to Sir Samuel Bignold's?—Certainly not.

13,575. Did you see Sir Samuel Bignold on the Sunday before the election?—Decidedly not.

13,576. Did you have any money given to you on that day?—Decidedly not.

13,577. Had you any money to spend in Pockthorpe?—Not one farthing.

13,578. If you stated that it was a gross falsehood?—I never stated it; it is a palpable lie for anyone to say so.

13,579. (Mr. Biron.) Did you have any conversation with Harper when he came there?—The general conversation I had with him amounted to this. He said, "I want to see Mackley." I said, "If you want "to see Mackley what use is it? You say you are "600 ahead." He still said so, and I said, "You shall not." I then stood at the bar, and that is the only circumstance that took place. Harper then hesitated for a few minutes, and I went to speak to some females about the circumstance I have told you of and that was quite sufficient to set them afloat.

13,580. Did you say "It is no use your coming here, we are going in to win?"—Yes.

13,581. Why did you say that?—My simple reason for saying that was, because I imagined that his coming there at that time in the afternoon was with one ulterior object, and that was to bribe. I thought we had no funds to bribe with and that was the reason why I would keep him back as long as possible.

13,582, Who had no funds?—We had none.

13,583. Hardiment was there?—Hardiment was not there at that time, and anyone saying so tells you a lie.

13,584. He had been there?—No, he had not been there.

13,585. At the time you were there had he not been there?—No.

13,586. How long had you been there?—I had been there the whole day.

13,587. In what part of the house?—The bar of the house. Half a moment: just alter that from the bar of the house into the second room. Have an understanding that that has a connection with the back part of the house, but not an open connection.

13,588. From where you were could you see people going in and out?—Yes, I could see plenty of people.

13,589. (Mr. Mansfield.) You swore just now that Hardiment was not there the whole of the day?—That would be a moral impossibility. I could not tell, my being in the front of the bar, what took place in another part of the house.

13,590. You did swear it; it is on the notes?—You may take what notes you please, that is the truth.

13,591. (Mr. Biron.) I put the question to you?—

I tell you frankly Mr. Hardiment was there once in the course of the day, I have no doubt.

13,592. What time was that?—I should say that might have been within a very few minutes of 4. You ask me of my own knowledge, and of my own knowledge I speak, and nothing else.

13,593. Where were you when Mr. Harper came in?—In the front of the bar.

13,594. Did he ask you whose cart that was at the door?—He did not ask me that.

13,595. Did you hear that question asked?—No, I never heard that question asked.

13,596. Did you see a cart outside the door?—It might have been Hardiment's cart, for all I know.

13,597. Did you know Hardiment's cart?—No, I should not know it from a hundred.

13,598. Do you mean to say that you did not know Hardiment's cart?—No, I should not know it from a thousand if I saw it.

13,599. You saw a cart there?—Yes, I distinctly saw a cart there.

13,600. You heard Mr. Harper ask whose cart it was?—No, I did not.

13,601. What were you there for?—Why simply as a party man, urging on my own party's benefit. That was my reason, and no other, for being there.

13,602. In the character of a patriot?—In the character of a good party man; not a patriot who would nobble up all the crumbs, and get all the dust.

13,603. (Mr. Mansfield.) Did you receive nothing for your day's work?—Not one penny.

13,604. Who paid for the beer you had?—My own pocket; and I say this much——

You may stand down, you are a disgrace to the city.

WILLIAM BROWN sworn and examined.

W. Brown.

13,605. (Mr. Mansfield.) What are you by trade?—A shopkeeper.

13,606. Did you vote at this election?—Yes.

13,607. For whom did you vote?—Sir Henry Stracey.

13,608. At what time in the day?—About 10 in the morning.

13,609. In the course of the day you were about the town, I suppose?—Part of the time.

13,610. Were you at the "Woolpack" in the course of the day?—No.

13,611. Are you certain of that?—I am quite certain of it.

13,612. Where were you during the day?—I was about the city part of the day.

13,613. Were you at any public-houses?—No.

13,614. Not at any public-house at all during the day?—No.

13,615. Did you receive anything for your vote?—No.

13,616. Did you receive any promise?—No.

13,617. Have you been paid anything since?—No.

13,618. Is this the first time you have voted?—Yes.

13,619. Who asked you for your vote?—The Tory party came and solicited my vote, but I did not promise it to anybody. I said if I voted, I should not vote against them.

PINFOLD BLACK sworn and examined.

P. Black.

13,620. (Mr. Biron.) What are you?—A caner.

13,621. For whom did you vote at the last election?—Mr. Stracey.

13,622. At what hour in the day?—About 2 o'clock.

13,623. Why did you not vote before that?—Because I had some work to look after.

13,624. What work?—Cane work; I cane chairs.

13,625. Were you very busy that morning?—Yes.

13,626. Had you been canvassed for your vote?—There had been some gentlemen there, but I was not at home; I was out looking after my work.

13,627. That morning?—Yes.

13,628. Did they see your wife?—Not that I am aware of.

13,629. How came you to vote?—That is the first vote I had in my life; I never voted before.

13,630. What made you vote for Stracey?—I do not know, I am sure.

13,631. You are not much of a politician?—No.

13,632. Did your wife tell you you had better vote for Stracey?—No.

13,633. Who asked you for your vote?—No one; I voted of my own accord.

13,634. Did you get anything for voting?—Not a farthing.

13,635. Or any promise of anything?—Not a halfpenny.

13,636. Have you got anything since for having voted?—No, nothing.

13,637. Did anybody recommend you to vote for Stracey, and say it would be better for you?—No.

THOMAS BENFATHER sworn and examined.

T. Benfather.

13,638. (Mr. Dowdeswell.) You keep the "Royal Oak," do you not?—Yes.

13,639. Did you on the day of the election see Hardiment?—I never saw him on that day until after the election was over. That is the truth, sir.

13,640. Did he come to your house that day?—I never saw him in my house that day; he never came to my house that day. I was at home up till 1 o'clock, and he never came there up to that time.

13,641. You are sure he never came to your house that day?—Not during that day. I am on my oath, and I believe I can swear that he never came to my house that day.

13,642. Now will you swear that you did not see Hardiment and Freestone at your house on that day?—I will swear. I am on oath, and I say distinctly that I never saw Mr. Hardiment, nor yet Mr. Freestone, on that day until after the election was over, and then I only saw Mr. Hardiment as he was going home with his pony and cart.

13,643. Do you know Clarke's beerhouse?—Yes.

13,644. Did you go there on that day?—Yes.

13,645. Do you know a man of the name of Thorpe?—Yes.

13,646. Was he there?—He was there when I was there.

13,647. Did you go into a back room at Clarke's?—Not privately I did not, only publicly.

13,648. Do you know a place which is called the bake office?—There is a place called the bake office there, but I never saw no baking utensils to constitute a bake office.

13,649. Did you go into that bake office?—I passed and repassed through there one or two or three times.

13,650. Did you see several men in that room?—Yes, and all about the house.

13,651. Did you give any of them any money?—Not a farthing, I had none to give.

13,652. Did you see the elder Wiseman that day?—Yes, I saw him in the committee room when I went up with two men to vote; I asked him for the voting cards, and that is all.

13,653. Did he not give you some money?—Not a farthing.

13,654. Did he never give you a farthing to give to the voters?—No.

13,655. Did you ask him for anything?—Not a farthing; I did not ask anybody for anything.

TWELFTH DAY.

T. Benfather.

1 Sept. 1869.

13,656. Did you not call four or five men into that bake office separately ?—No, not separately I did not ; I asked several men to go in.

13,657. Did you call them in together ?—No.

13,658. Did they come into you ? — They were passing in and out of the room the same as I was.

13,659. Did you not speak to any of them in the room about money ?—Not any of them.

13,660. Did you see Thorpe there ?—Yes, and if you like I will tell you where I saw him. I saw him lying on a settle, that is the only place I saw Mr. Thorpe on that day.

13,661. Did you not give Thorpe 5*s.* there ?—Not a farthing.

13,662. Did you not say to Thorpe "Here are five "shillings for you," and did you not also say, "If "5*s.* is of any use to you you can have it" ?—No.

13,663. Did not Thorpe say that 5*s.* was of no use to him ?—No, not to me ; he did not say so to me ; whether he did to anybody else I must leave ; but he did not to me.

13,664. Were you in the room when that was said to or by Thorpe ?—That I must leave ; I did not hear Thorpe say so.

13,665. Did you hear anybody say to Thorpe, "If "5*s.* is of any use to you you may have it "?—No, I did not hear anyone say that much.

13,666. Did they mention any sum of money to you ?—Who do you mean by "they," sir ; do you mean an individual or many ?

13,667. The men in Clarke's beerhouse ?—No, not one of them.

13,668. Not one ?—They asked me, "How do the "election get on, Tom ? " and I said, "I believe it is "on a level as near as possible," and I said, "What "are you waiting about here for together ? " They said, "We don't care anything about going to vote." I said, "Go and vote like men, the same as you are ; "you may depend upon it," says I, "that Stracey will "win." I said so, but I never offered no sum to nobody for I had none to offer.

13,669. Did not they say to you anything about their wages, or a day's pay, or something to drink ?—I never heard nobody say anything about a day's wage, or that there was anything to be given.

13,670. Or anything to drink ? — Or anything to drink ; I will tell you what I did do. I treated an old uncle of mine with a pot of the best ale, and that is all I treated on that day, and I should think he was between 80 and 90 years of age. That is all I done on that day. I would have treated Mr. Stracey if I had seen him.

13,671. Did you not lend a 5*l.* note to Hardiment on that day ?—I told you before that I never saw Mr. Hardiment on that day until after the election was over. I should have liked to have seen the shape of a 5*l.* note, it would have been very convenient.

13,672. Do you know John Warren ?—Yes, I do.

13,673. Was not Warren there when you were there ?—Yes, I believe he was there.

13,674. Did you pay him 5*s.* ?—Not a farthing, I had none to pay, I am only a poor man.

13,675. Do you mean to say upon your oath that you gave no man in that house a single shilling on that day ?—I mean to say I had none to give, and even had I been commissioned, I should not have thought about paying a man like Mr. John Warren ; he never was only a lodger.

13,676. Had you no money that day ?—I had no money only my own, and that was very little, I will promise you.

13,677. What money had you in your pocket when you went into Clarke's ?—I might, perhaps, have 5*s.* or 6*s.*

13,678. Not more ?—Not more.

13,679. You did not receive a single farthing to spend on the election ?—I did not.

13,680. From anybody ?—Not from anyone.

13,681. And did not give a single farthing away that day in Clarke's beerhouse ?—Not in the shape of money.

13,682. Will you undertake to swear that you did not give to any man on that day in that house a single shilling ?—No.

13,683. You will swear that, will you ? — I will ; as I told you before, I spent only sixpence in the house while I was there.

13,684. Have you received any money since the election ?—Not a farthing.

13,685. Have you applied for any money ?—Yes.

13,686. To whom did you apply ? — I applied to Mr. Lake.

13,687. Who is he ?—Why, Mr. Lake, I suppose, was one of the committee.

13,688. Why did you apply to him ?—Because I thought I had a right to make some little appliance to him.

13,689. What did you apply to him for ?—To be paid for what I had done for the party as I had done all I possibly could.

13,690. What had you done ?—Got up voters.

13,691. Was that all that you applied to him to be paid for ?—That is all.

13,692. How much did you apply for ?—2*l.*

13,693. Was anything for beer in that ?—Nothing.

13,694. Only for your own self ?—That is all.

13,695. You thought that your exertions in getting up voters on the day of the election were worth 2*l.* ? —Yes, I thought so.

13,696. And you mean to swear that what you applied to him for was simply 2*l.* for getting up voters ? —That is all.

13,697. And not for any money paid by you ?—Not a farthing.

13,698. Now will you tell us who the voters were that you took up ?—Oh, I took up several, I don't know the names of them now.

13,699. You know where you went to ?—I did not go only to Mr. Clarke's to get up voters.

13,700. What voters did you get up from Clarke's ?—I can name one man ; Mr. Charles Moss was one.

13,701. Who else ?—I believe another man by the name of Colman.

13,702. Cannot you mention another ?—I do not know of any more, but I got up several.

13,703. You wanted 2*l.* for getting up voters ; you must have got up a good numbers of voters for 2*l.* Just mention one or two more ?—I don't know about the number of voters. I exerted myself and that like.

13,704. If you got up so many voters you can tell us more than two ?—No, I don't know no more names. I asked them whether they were voters ; I did not ask their names.

13,705. Did you get up any more ?—Well, I should think I did.

13,706. Did you ?—Yes, several.

13,707. That is all you can say for having applied for 2*l.* for getting up voters ?—That is all.

13,708. And that you mean to say upon your oath ? —I mean to say it ; I have sworn it heavenly.

13,709. You got no more than those two voters that you can recollect, and you applied for 2*l.* for your services ?—That is it.

13,710. I think your evidence is so unsatisfactory that you ought not to be paid a single farthing for it. —Very well, sir, I did not ask for it.

G. Harper.

GEORGE HARPER sworn and examined.

13,711. (Mr. Mansfield.) What are you by trade ? —I am a librarian now.

13,712. Are you a voter ?—Yes.

13,713. For whom did you vote at this last election ?—Russell and Tillett.

13,714. What time in the day ?—I think it was 11 o'clock.

13,715. Did you receive anything for your vote ? —Never in my life.

13,716. Were you promised anything?—Never. I never thought about it.

13,717. Have you always voted on the Liberal side?—Not always. I have voted for the Conservatives.

13,718. What made you vote for the Liberals this time?—Well, sir, my principles are quite Liberal.

13,719. Do you recollect hearing any conversation between Mr. Wiseman and Mr. Gedge about the election?—No.

13,720. Are you quite certain of that?—I was ill at the time.

13,721. But after the election?—No.

13,722. You have not heard anything said about the election by either of those two men?—No, I merely was passing to my home, and I have seen Mr. Wiseman and Mr. Gedge very active in the street, but I never heard any conversation.

13,723. Did you ever hear anything?—No.

13,724. Have you ever said you had heard anything?—I never said I had heard anything. I merely supposed there was something going on, but I never said I heard anything.

13,725. Do you mean to say you never said you had heard anything about the election said either by Gedge or Wiseman?—Certainly not.

JAMES WILLIAM GENT sworn and examined. J. W. Gent.

13,726. (Mr. Biron.) What are you?—A plumber.

13,727. For whom did you vote at the last election?—Sir Henry Stracey.

13,728. At what hour in the day?—That I can scarcely tell, but I should say from twelve to two.

13,729. Did you canvass at all before the polling day?—Well, yes. I think I went about one day and a piece of another, but I do not exactly recollect that.

13,730. Did you do anything on the polling day towards getting up voters?—No.

13,731. Did you not go to anybody on the polling day and ask them to vote?—No.

13,732. Try and recollect. Did you not between three and four go and ask for a vote?—No.

13,733. Did you ask a man of the name of Nottley to vote?—Yes, I did. I recollect that.

13,734. At what hour was that?—That I should say was handy on 4 o'clock.

13,735. For whom did you ask him to vote?—He lives just behind where I live, and I asked him whether he was disposed to vote.

13,736. Did you offer him 5*s.* if he would vote?—No.

13,737. Did you tell him that 5*s.* was the price?—No.

13,738. Did you say anything about 5*s.*?—I did say that I supposed he might have that.

13,739. What was it you said to him?—I said I understood that he might have 5*s.*

13,740. Had anybody sent you to him?—No.

13,741. From whom did you understand that he could have 5*s.*?—I heard it spoken of in the committee room.

13,742. By whom?—I cannot tell you; there was three or four talking about it.

13,743. Then give me one of the three?—Well, I really cannot recollect.

13,744. Which committee room was it?—In Calvert Street.

13,745–6. In what ward is that?—That is in the eighth ward.

13,747. Was Wiseman there?—Wiseman was there.

13,748. Was it he who said that —— ?—No, it was not him. I do not recollect its being him.

13,749. If it was not he, who was it?—I don't recollect its being him, but still it might be him. I don't know that I recollect him, but I know it was said there would be 5*s.*

13,750. It made such an impression upon you that you went off to this man to tell him?—He was a man living in my locality; in fact I let him a cottage up the yard in which I live. I asked him if he had voted. He told me he had not, and I said I understood there was to be 5*s.* if he liked to go.

13,751. Did you tell him where he could get it?—No, that I did not; neither could I give it to him, because of course I had no money.

13,752. Why did you not tell him where to go?—I did not think it was any consequence doing that. I thought they would come down to the committee room after they had voted.

13,753. Was that the arrangement at the committee room, that they were to vote first and then come back and be paid?—I don't know anything about an arrangement.

13,754. But you understood something from what you had heard at the committee room?—Yes.

13,755. Was it the understanding that the men were to vote first?—No, there was no understanding that they were to vote first, but after they had voted they would get 5*s.*

13,756. If they voted, and then went to the committee room they would get 5*s.*?—Yes.

13,757. Do you know anyone else who did that?——No, that is the only man that I know.

13,758. Just recollect; who gave you to understand that?—I would tell you if I could recollect.

13,759. Did you get your 5*s.*?—No.

13,760. How was that?—I never was paid for a vote in my life.

13,761. You understood that 5*s.* was to be had for voting?—There was nothing named about money when I went to vote; this was nearly 4 o'clock what I am telling you about.

13,762. Why did you not say you had voted, and ask for 5*s.*?—Of course I did not do that. I considered I had no right to it. I went and voted voluntarily. I never was paid for a vote in my life.

13,763. You had voted without, and therefore thought you were not entitled to it?—Of course I did.

13,764. Now, really I think you can tell me the names of the people in the committee room if you try?—There was sometimes three or four; there was a man by the name of Abel in the room.

13,765. (Mr. Dowdeswell.) John Abel, the horse dealer?—No, a man of the name of William Abel, who lives at St. Martin's at Oak.

13,766. (Mr. Biron.) Was it he who said something that led you to understand that 5*s.* was to be given?—No, I do not recollect that the man said anything about it.

13,767. Who else was there?—There was a lot of them backwards and forwards on the committee.

13,768. That I am aware of, I am asking you their names?—Lake, of St. George's, was there, in and out, but I am not able to say whether he was there at the time or not.

13,769. Do I understand that this was a common topic of conversation between three or four people at the committee room?—Well, it was said it would be 5*s.* if they could get them.

13,770. Whether you can give the names of those who said it or not, give me the names of some more men who were there between 3 and 4?—Well, the clerk of the committee was present at the time.

13,771. Who was he?—I don't know; he was sitting there all day; then Thirkettle was another.

13,772. (Mr. Dowdeswell.) It was the talk in the committee room was it?—Well, it was spoke of by them about that time.

13,773. That 5*s.* would be given for every voter?—He did not say "every voter," but "if you know anybody there is 5*s.*"

13,774. (Mr. Biron.) You told this to Nottley. How

TWELFTH DAY.

J. W. Gent.

1 Sept. 1869.

many more men did you tell it to?—I do not recollect speaking to a soul but him.

13,775. Why did you pick him out?—Because I happen to know the man, the man lived behind where I live, in my back yard.

13,776. You wanted to do him a good turn?—Well, yes.

13,777. (Mr. Dowdeswell.) Have you heard of any other man who got the 5*s.*?—No.

13,778. Have you not been told that some more men went in and got the 5*s.*?—No.

13,779. Was it said who was to give the 5*s.*?—No.

13,780. How were they to get it, were they to come to the committee room or how?—I suppose that would be so.

13,781. It was not said who would pay it?—No.

13,782. Was it said who had subscribed it?—No.

13,783. Simply that there was 5*s.* for them if they voted?—Yes. I asked that man if he would come, because I believed there would be 5*s.*

13,784. (Mr. Mansfield.) Did you not hear of some money being subscribed for this purpose?—No.

13,785. Not before the election?—No.

13,786. Nor since?—On my oath I have not, and I never saw any money in the committee room.

13,787. Where do you think it came from?—I don't know that; I am sure I could not tell you whether it came from their own private pockets.

C. Chaplin.

CHARLES CHAPLIN sworn and examined.

13,788. (Mr. Dowdeswell.)—Are you a shoemaker?—Yes.

13,789. Are you a voter?—Yes.

13,790. Did you vote at the last election?—Yes.

13,791. For whom—Sir Henry Stracey.

13,792. Now, you know a person of the name of Worledge, do you not?—Quite well.

13,793. You were with him a good deal on the day of the election, were you not?—I was.

13,794. He was very active with yourself in getting up voters?—He was so.

13,795. Who did you get up in the first part of the morning?—The first man that I polled was a man by by the name of Taylor.

13,796. Where does he live?—In St. Edmunds.

13,797. Who was the next?—I can hardly answer you that question honestly.

13,798. Then tell me who was the next?—I believe, to the best of my knowledge the next man was John Eldon.

13,799. Where does he live?—In Cowgate Street.

13,800. Who was the next?—To the best of my knowledge I don't remember taking any other men up for somewhere about three hours, and those men's names I don't know.

13,801. Did you go into the houses with Worledge?—I went into some houses with him.

13,802. What time did Worledge begin to give the men money?—I never saw Mr. Worledge part with any money during the day of the election.

13,803. You may not have seen him do it, but do you not know that he gave money to the men?—Upon my oath I do not know.

13,804. Did you not hear it?—Certainly not.

13,805. Did you not hear him talking about money?—No, I did not.

13,806. Do you mean to say that any of the men did not ask for money?—I had men ask me for money, but I never heard anyone ask Worledge for money.

13,807. Did you give them any money?—Not one farthing.

13,808. Did you promise them some money?—Certainly not.

13,809. Did Worledge?—I don't know, not in my hearing.

13,810. Did Worledge take them on one side?—I never saw Worledge take any man on one side during the day of the election.

13,811. Did you see Worledge talking to them alone?—I saw Worledge talking to men alone during the day of the election.

13,812. What men did you take up between 2 and 4?—I don't believe I polled a man between 2 and 4.

13,813. Where were you between 2 and 4?—At 2 o'clock I drove Mr. Worledge home, he was very elevated with drink and noisy, and I drove him home, and set him down at his own residence, and from there I drove up to Heigham.

13,814. What did you do there?—I did nothing there, I polled no man there whatever, I called there to see a brother-in-law of mine, and when I got there I found that he had voted; I believe that he voted for Stracey and Russell, but he had voted and was out when I got there, so I drove back again.

13,815. Not finding him there, who else did you call upon?—I called nowhere else.

13,816. Did not Worledge tell you that he had been giving money for votes?—Certainly not.

13,817. Did he not tell you that he had been promising money?—No.

13,818. Did Worledge give any beer while you were with him?—Not in my seeing.

13,819. Did he go into the public-houses?—Certainly he did.

13,820. Into what public-houses did you go?—The first public-house that I remember going into with Mr. Worledge was Mr. Earles.

13,821. What is the sign of that?—I think it is the "Woolcombers' Arms," in Magdalen Street.

13,822. What was the next house?—The next house I went to, I think, was the "Two Brewers" in Magdalen Street.

13,823. What was the next?—The next house, I think, that we went into was "Clarke's," in St. Martin's.

13,824. What was the next?—The next, I think, was a house in the bottom of St. Stephen's, but I do not know the sign.

13,825. What was the next?—I do not remember going into any other houses with Mr. Worledge.

13,826. Did you go into any other house yourself?—Oh, I stepped into many houses and got a glass.

13,827. What where you in and out of all these public-houses for?—To find voters if I could.

13,828. Did you not find voters in everyone of them?—No.

13,829. For instance, take Clarke's beerhouse, there were plenty of voters there?—I did not see any voters there; there were no voters to my knowledge.

13,830. You would ask whether there were any voters, and you would have an immediate answer?—I did not ask that question.

13,831. Why did you not, if you were in search of voters?—Mr. Worledge was in there prior to me.

13,832. Then what Worledge did in there you do not know?—On my oath I do not know.

13,833. How long was Worledge in there before you went in?—Not more than a minute or two.

13,834. Did he go into the public-house before you went in?—He stepped in just before me, and I stepped in after.

13,835. But was he in all these public-houses for a few minutes before you went in?—Not all of them.

13,836. Several of them?—No, I was not in several houses during the day.

13,837. If you went in search of voters, did you inquire for voters?—We asked perhaps whether there was any voters there, or if we saw men in the bar, we asked if they were voters.

13,838. Did you not learn that at these public-houses there were voters?—No.

13,839. At which public-houses were there no voters?—I do not remember hearing of any, except in the "Two Brewers," that was my father-in-law, which I went expressly for, and that is the only house where there was a man polled from to my knowledge.

13,840. Do you really mean to represent that there were no voters in any of these public-houses except that one?—There might be, but not to my knowledge.

13,841. When you saw people there, did you not inquire whether they were voters or not?—I did not inquire no further than asking whether there was any voters, and whether they had voted, and so on.

13,842. Do you mean to say, that in none of these houses you got the answer that there were voters, except one?—There was one house where they told me there was voters, and I took two men out and polled them.

13,843. What house is that?—It is a house on St. Martin's Plain; I do not know the sign.

13,844. What time of the day was that?—As near as I can say, about 12 o'clock.

13,845. Was Worledge with you then?—No.

13,846. You were there alone?—I was there alone; I was not with Mr. Worledge the whole of the day up to two o'clock; we parted on many occasions.

13,847. Did you see Mr. Wiseman that day?—Yes.

13,848. Where did you see him?—At the committee room.

13,849. At what time in the day?—I saw him from nine to ten, and from one to two.

13,850. Did you not see him after two o'clock?—Certainly not, not until after the close of the poll.

13,851. Are you certain of that?—Quite certain.

13,852. Did Worledge hand you any money?—No.

13,853. Did you see Benfather?—No.

13,854. You know him?—I know him perfectly well, but I never saw him on the election day.

13,855. Did you hear any bets made about the election?—Not before the election; I have heard of some since the election.

13,856. Were there no bets with men of five to one that they would not vote for Stracey?—I know nothing of that, it's Latin to me; I never heard of it before.

13,857. Did you hear anything of the sort?—Certainly not.

13,858. Was Worledge saying to the men, "I will bet you five to one that you won't vote for Stracey"?—Not to me, nor have I heard of it.

13,859. You heard of it afterwards?—Not of that; I heard of betting on the inquiry.

13,860. Do you mean to say that you did not hear that many people betted voters five to one that Sir Henry Stracey would not win, or five to one that they would not vote for Stracey?—On my oath I did not.

13,861. Do I understand you to swear that you made no such bet?—Certainly not.

13,862. Do you know of any money being paid to voters upon the day of the election?—No.

13,863. Do you know of any money having been promised to voters on the day of the election?—No.

13,864. Did you hear on that day of any money being offered to voters?—No.

13,865. Or paid to them?—No.

13,866. Or promised them?—No.

13,867. You never even heard of that?—No.

13,868. Did you see Worledge give tickets to men?—Yes.

13,869. Where was that?—In St. Martin's.

13,870. At what house?—I did not see him giving them at a house at all; I saw only two given, and they were given in the street.

13,871. What were they for?—Sixpenny worth of drink, I believe.

13,872. Who were they to, they must have been directed to some one?—No; they were not directed at all, they were simply Mr. Worledge's address cards, and if they were presented sixpence worth would be allowed.

13,873. To whom did he give those cards?—I cannot tell, I do not know the gentlemen, I do not indeed.

13,874. They were voters, I suppose?—That I must leave.

13,875. Have you any doubt that they were voters?—I have no doubt whether they were or were not, for I am sure I don't know.

13,876. Did he not say that that was what he was doing?—No.

13,877. Worledge told you, I suppose, that there were lots of men who wanted money for their votes?—No, I never heard of that; it was fairly agreed between me and Mr. Worledge that we should not buy any men, or pay any more.

13,878. Did he not tell you that there were men who wanted something to drink, or some money for voting?—I never heard him name it, I did not indeed.

13,879. Do you recollect his talking to Thorpe?—I don't know Mr. Thorpe.

13,880. A person in Clarke's beerhouse?—I don't know Thorpe.

13,881. Were you present when Thorpe came and spoke to him?—There might be a man come and speak to him, and if the man was placed here I might perhaps know him, but I do not know Thorpe.

13,882. You did not go with Worledge, did you, up to Brandish's?—No.

13,883. Have you not heard that Worledge had given voters half a sovereign each for voting?—No.

13,884. Never?—No.

13,885. Have you not heard it reported?—I have heard a report that he bribed.

13,886-7. Has not Worledge told you that he gave it?—Certainly not, and I don't believe he did do so.

13,888. Do you mean to say that having heard that report, you have not spoken to him about it?—I have spoken to him about it, and he has utterly denied such being the fact.

13,889. Where have you heard it reported?—I have heard it reported in different houses. I have been in to have a glass of ale after business hours, I have heard it reported that this, that, and the other has been done.

13,890. Where did you hear it first?—That I could not answer.

13,891. Was it not immediately after the election?—Yes. I heard reports flying about from place to place, the same as reports have been put about about me that I have bribed people, but I defy anyone to say that I have given a single farthing, either on the day of the election, or since the election. I have given no man a shilling, and yet reports have gone about that I have done this, that, and the other, which have been very detrimental to me in business; but I defy any man to stand before me and say I have given him a shilling.

13,892. (Mr. Mansfield.) You were very busy on the day of the election?—Yes, I was.

13,983. Did you hear during that day of any reports of money having been paid?—I never heard of it during the day of the election.

13,894. Is this your first election at Norwich?—The first election I had ever anything to do with.

13,895. Were you a voter before?—No.

13,896. You know a good many of the chief men of the party, do you not, Wiseman and others?—I know Mr. Wiseman.

13,897. And several others?—There is very few others that I know of the leading party.

13,898. You never heard anything about money during the day?—No, I did not.

13,899. Did you hear anything about it that night?—No, but I was thoroughly dissatisfied when I saw by the report in the paper that Mr. Wiseman had received 100*l.*, because he distinctly stated to me, and showed me a letter the night before the election, that there was not to be one farthing spent. He handed the letter over to me, and I read it, and it specified that Sir Henry Stracey would sooner lose the election than spend one shilling.

TWELFTH DAY.

C. Chaplin.

1 Sept. 1869.

13,900. (Mr. Dowdeswell.) That, I suppose, was because he was afraid you would spend money?—Yes; but it does not appear that he spent much himself.

13,901. (Mr. Mansfield.) It was your first election, and they would not trust your inexperienced youth?—Yes, and I am very glad they did not.

B. Clarke.

BENJAMIN CLARKE sworn and examined.

13,902. (Mr. Mansfield.) What are you?—A shoemaker.

13,903. For whom did you vote at this last election?—Sir Henry Stracey.

13,904. At what time of the day?—About a quarter before 9 in the morning.

13,905. Had you been asked to vote by anybody?—I was never asked to vote.

13,906. Had you promised to vote?—No, they came round to mine, but I was not there.

13,907. Did you say who you had promised to vote for?—I said I should always vote for Mr. Stracey.

13,908. Had you not promised your vote before the day?—No.

13,909. Will you swear you had not promised to vote for Tillett?—No.

13,910. Did you not give a promise to Mr. Hart and Dr. Bloomfield?—No.

13,911. You had an interview with them about voting the night before, had you not?—There was some men come, but I don't know who they were; I don't know the gentlemen.

13,912. Did you not promise them that you would vote for Tillett?—They asked me to vote for Tillett, because he was of the Liberal party.

13,913. Did you not say that you would?—No, I said I did not think I should.

13,914. Are you sure about that?—Yes.

13,915. Did they take a note of it in a book?—They said they would do that, but I said, "that is not my intentions."

13,916. Was this the first time you had voted?—Yes.

13,917. Who took you up to the poll?—I went in Mr. Worledge's little cart.

13,918. Was anybody else with you?—A master shoemaker. I don't know his name, he lives in St. George's; the man who just went out I think is the same man.

13,919. What did he give you to vote?—He gave me nothing.

13,920. Did he not give you any beer?—No.

13,921. Are you quite certain of that?—Yes.

13,922. Did he not promise you anything?—No.

13,923. What were you doing the whole of the day of the election?—I went and worked until near dinner time, and I found other people were loitering about, and I thought I might just as well enjoy myself as them.

13,924. Then you went to a public-house after dinner?—Yes.

13,925. Which house?—To my neighbour's, the "Leaping Horse," in St. Edmunds.

13,926. How many other public-houses did you go into?—I did not go into any others during the day.

13,927. You had quite enough at the first?—No; I did not drink a sight of beer, it does not suit me.

13,928. Who paid for your beer?—I paid for it myself.

13,929. What! for all of it?—I paid for two or three half pints, and that is all I had during the day.

13,930. Were there not some men there who asked you to drink with them, as they usually do at election times?—No, unless there was a neighbour who might say, "Have a glass?"

13,931. Are you a married man?—No.

13,932. Has any bet been made with you about this election?—No.

13,933. (Mr. Dowdeswell.) Or any bet about voting?—No.

13,934. (Mr. Biron.) Why did you not go up before Worledge came to you?—I was at breakfast at the time when Mr. Worledge did come.

13,935. Early in the morning, was it?—Yes, and as he was my master I went with him.

J. Gibbons.

JOHN GIBBONS sworn and examined.

13,936. (Mr. Biron.) What are you?—An engineer.

13,937. For whom did you vote at the last election?—Sir Henry Stracey.

13,938. At what hour in the day?—Between 3 and 4.

13,939. Why did you not vote earlier than that?—Because I went out along with some friends early in the morning, and was not home to dinner until 3 o'clock, and I then went and voted.

13,940. Where did you go to?—I was in another part of the city; I was not in the ward at all.

13,941. In public-houses?—Well, I was in one or two public-houses, not many.

13,942. What was the last one you went to before you voted?—I think it was the "Oxford," in the market place.

13,943. Were you not at Cartwright's?—I do not know anybody of that name.

13,944. Don't you know Cartwright's, in Rosemary Lane?—No.

13,945. A general shopkeeper?—No.

13,946. A man who keeps a little grocer's shop, and sells beer?—No.

13,947. Did you see Hardiment on that day?—No, I don't know Hardiment.

13,948. Are you sure of that?—Yes.

13,949. Were you canvassed before?—Only by the blues. They went to my house, but I was not at home. They said they should call again, but my wife told them it would be of no use, because I was going to vote for Stracey.

13,950. Your wife said you were going to vote for Stracey?—Yes.

13,951. Had you ever voted before?—No.

13,952. How long was this before the election?—I think something like three or four days.

13,953. Did you not receive a sovereign for voting?—No.

13,954. Did you get one after you had voted?—No.

13,955. Did you get a sovereign at all?—No.

13,956. Did anybody lend you a sovereign that day?—No sir, I don't want to borrow while I can earn,

13,957. Then you tell me that neither directly nor indirectly did you receive a sovereign or any other money for voting?—No.

13,958. Or for having voted?—No.

13,959. Or a promise of anything?—No.

13,960. Are you an eighth ward man?—Yes.

13,961. Do you live in the Gildencroft?—Yes.

13,962. Were you at Cartwright's that day at all?—I never was in Cartwright's house in my life, and did not know there was a public-house there until after the election.

13,963. When did you first hear about Cartwright's?—When Baron Martin was down here. I wondered what I was subpœnaed for; one of the men said, "You are summoned for taking some money at Cartwright's," and I said, "I don't know where the house is, I never was in the house in my life; I don't know the man; I do just know where the house is, but that is all."

13,964. Were you at Clarke's beerhouse that day?—No, and nowhere in the street.

WILLIAM FISHER sworn and examined.

13,965. (Mr. Dowdeswell.) Are you a voter?—Yes.

13,966. Did you vote at the last election?—Yes.

13,967. For whom?—Sir Henry Stracey.

13,968. At what time of the day?—I cannot say exactly,—close upon 4.

13,969. Where had you been the whole of the day?—I had been out on business.

13,970. What business?—I am a master wood turner by trade.

13,971. That would keep you at home I should have thought?—I should say not, sir; I have to go out after my orders.

13,972. Where were you out?—All about the city.

13,973. Well, if you were all about the city you could have voted very easily?—I could, but I was not in my ward.

13,974. Yes, but you were near your home?—Oh no, sir, I have to go a long way from that.

13,975. You started in the morning, I suppose, and came back to breakfast?—Oh no.

13,976. You came back to dinner?—No, I did not do that, I did not come home until the afternoon.

13,977. Were you never in your ward again until the afternoon?—I was there early in the morning, but I did not return until after dinner. It was after breakfast when I went out.

13,978. You were all about the city, surely you had plenty of time to vote?—Yes.

13,979. Had you been canvassed for your vote beforehand?—No.

13,980. Had not anybody asked you for your vote?—No.

13,981. Did you want a day's pay?—No, I never asked any such thing, and never wished for it.

13,982. You did not want any money for it?—No.

13,983. Have you ever asked anybody for it?—No.

13,984. Or ever suggested to anybody to pay you?—No, certainly not.

13,985. And never received anything for your vote?—Not a farthing.

13,986. Did you go to Clarke's beerhouse?—I believe I went once during the day.

13,987. What time was that?—Somewhere about 3 o'clock, I should say, during the afternoon.

13,988. You know Worledge, don't you?—Oh yes.

13,989. He came there, did he not?—I never saw him there.

13,990. Did you not see Worledge there?—No.

13,991. Pray be careful!—I will speak the truth, sir.

13,992. Perhaps you did not see him in the house. Did you know a man of the name of Robert Brandish?—A smith?

13,993. Yes?—He is dead, sir. I knew him before he was dead, for I live close by.

13,994. Did you see him that day going to his shop?—Yes, of course I did; I live close by, my premises adjoin his.

13,995. Did you go into Brandish's forge that day?—I cannot say, I might perhaps; sometimes I give the man a job to do, and I might run in that day.

13,996. Did you see Worledge there?—No, I cannot say that I did.

13,997. Will you undertake to say that you did not see Worledge there? Now, mind.—Well, I speak the truth.

13,998. When I say "Mind," I don't wish to impute anything wrong to you; I am calling your attention to a thing which occurred now ten months ago, therefore you may have forgotten it. We have got the statement of a person who says he saw you?—All I say is that I might be in Brandish's shop that day; I might go in, but I cannot say that I saw Worledge there.

13,999. Did Brandish speak to you, or did you speak to him about voting?—I should say not.

14,000. But did you not. Consider?—No, I don't believe I did; I remember the time that I saw Brandish, and Brandish told me he was going to vote.

14,001. Did not Brandish say that he wanted 5s. to vote?—No, not to my hearing.

14,002. Brandish did not vote until just before four, did he?—I don't know.

14,003. What time was it he told you he was going to vote?—That was in the morning, I should say, before I went up to town.

14,004. You should say?—Well, I am certain it was in the morning.

14,005. Were you not in there between three and four, and had Brandish omitted to vote up to that time?—I cannot say.

14,006. Now, did you not hear Worledge offer him 5s.?—No.

14,007. Did you hear him ask Worledge for 5s.?—No.

14,008. Did he ask you for 5s.?—No.

14,009. Did he speak to anybody in your presence about 5s.?—No.

14,010. Or any other sum of money?—Nothing.

14,011. Did you see no money put down in the place?—No.

14,012. Not by anybody?—Not by anybody.

14,013. Did you see Brandish go out to vote?—No.

14,014. Can you say you did not?—I should say so, sir.

14,015. But can you?—I should say I never saw the man go away to vote.

14,016. Will you undertake to swear that you were not there when Brandish went away to vote?—This man often goes out of his shop all day long. I don't know anything about his voting; I never had any conversation with him about his voting.

14,017. The polling booth was just opposite, or very close, was it not?—Oh no.

14,018. Where was the polling booth?—The nearest one I could get was in St. Mary's, I believe.

14,019. Was there not a polling booth close to Clarke's beerhouse?—No, not that I am aware of; I live close by, but I am not aware that there was one so near.

14,020. Do you know a person of the name of George Gedge?—I saw an old gentleman they call Mr. Gedge, the dyer, if that is the man.

14,021. Has he ever spoken to you about money for voting?—He never spoke to me in his life.

14,022. You know no other person of the name of Gedge?—No.

RICHARD ROSS sworn and examined.

R. Ross.

14,023. (Mr. Mansfield.) What are you?—A cordwainer.

14,024. Did you vote?—I did not vote at all.

14,025. Did you promise to vote for anyone?—No,

14,026. Have you a vote?—Yes.

14,027. Where were you during the day?—I was in Mr. Clarke's some part of the day.

14,028. Drinking there?—Yes.

14,029. Who paid for the beer, do you know?—Well, I am sure I cannot say; I paid for some myself.

14,030. You did not pay for all of it I suppose?—Well, no, of course not.

14,031. There was a good deal of drinking going on there?—Well, there were several pots during the day, I believe.

14,032. Who did you see there?—I am sure I cannot say the name.

14,033. Did you see Mr. Hardiment there?—I saw him come in once or twice during the day.

14,034. Did you see Mr. Freestone there?—I do not know the man.

14,035. Did you see Mr. Worledge there?—Yes.

14,036. Was anything said about money in Clarke's beerhouse?—I never heard of anything of the sort.

14,037. Did you not hear of some people getting money there?—No.

TWELFTH DAY.

R. Ross.

1 Sept. 1869.

14,038. Was not 5*s.* offered to you ?—No.

14,039. Are you quite certain of that ? — Quite certain. I had no money offered to me.

14,040. Did you not ask for some money ?—No.

14,041. Was not something promised you ?—No.

14,042. Were you not asked to go and vote while you were there ?—Yes, several of them asked me if I was going to vote.

14,043. What did you say ?—I never thought about voting from the first ; I did not trouble about voting.

14,044. You did not choose to vote without getting a day's wages for it ?—Well, if I had got paid I should have voted but not without ; but no one ever offered it to me, and I never asked them.

14,045. You let them know that you would not go unless you were paid for it ?—I had no one ask me that question.

14,046. For how much would you have voted ?—I should have taken anything I could have got.

14,047. Who were you talking to about your vote ? —I never talked to anybody about it, only people asked me to vote.

14,048. Was not Benfather there ? — I saw him there during the day.

14,049. And he talked to you about voting ?—He asked me if I would go and vote like the rest of them.

14,050. And you gave him that answer ?—No, I said all along I did not care about voting.

14,051. Was any sum named, 5*s.* or 7*s.* 6*d.* ?—I never heard anything of the sort.

14,052. Did you not say what you would take to go and vote ?—No, I did not.

14,053. What would you have taken for your vote ? —Half-a-sovereign or a sovereign, or anything like that, perhaps.

14,054. I suppose that was the current price that day was it not ?—I did not hear anything about it. If it was offered me I should have taken it and voted.

14,055. You knew that there was money going ?— No, I did not.

14,056. What made you keep there all the day ?— I was in Clarke's the chief of the day, but I never heard anything about money.

14,057. You were there when Hardiment came there ?—I was there when he came in, but the man never mentioned it to me or I spoke to him.

14,058. The business was very lively after Mr. Hardiment's visit, was it not ?—Not that I know of, only drinking as usual.

14,059. And people going up to the poll ?—That I do not know.

14,060. Do you know a place there called the bake office ?—I know there was a bake office there.

14,061. Did you see people going in there ?—No, I never saw anybody going in.

14,062. Are you certain of that ?—I am certain of that.

14,063. What part of the beerhouse were you in ? —Some of the day I was in the bar and some of the day in the back place, in the tap-room as they call it.

14,064. Did you not see the people going into one of the back rooms ?—I never saw anyone only passing in and out to go out the back way.

14,065. Did you hear any promise made about money ?—No.

14,066. Did you hear people asking for money ?— No, I did not.

14,067. (Mr. Dowdeswell.) You were in there the whole day, were you not ? — I went in about half-past 11 in the morning, went home and got my dinner, and went in again in the afternoon.

14,068. Charles Moss was there was he not ?—I believe he was there during the day.

14,069. William Mills was there ? — Yes, he was there during the day.

14,070. Francis Cutlock ?—He was there.

14,071. George Ellis ?—I never saw him.

14,072. Do you know him ?—I do not know him.

14,073. Do you know George Ellis of Rathbone Yard ?—Yes, I know him, but I never saw him there that day.

14,074. Was Thorpe there ?—Yes.

14,075. Did you see Brandish in the house at all ? —Do you mean poor old Mr. Brandish ?

14,076. Old Mr. Brandish that is dead ?—Yes, I saw him in the house.

14,077. Did you have some of the beer that Worledge paid for ?—Yes, I had some of it, but he did not give none of it to any voters.

14,078. Of course not, that is not the way in which it is done. Do you recollect Wiseman coming in and giving some beer ?—No, I do not recollect seeing Mr. Wiseman come in, and giving any beer.

14,079. Not young Wiseman ? — No, I do not remember it.

14,080. Do you recollect Anthony Freestone coming in ?—I do not know Mr. Freestone.

14,081. Did a gentleman come to you and ask you to vote ?—Well, several of them during the day asked me if I would vote as they in general do.

14,082. Did you not say, "I shall not vote unless "I am paid" ?—No.

14,083. What did you say ?—I said I did not care anything about voting.

14,084. You did not care anything about voting unless you had something for it ?—Well, I did not say that.

14,085–6. But that is what you meant ?—If I had had anything offered me I should have took it.

14,087–8. Was Thorpe there when Benfather came in ?—Yes, Thorpe was there the chief of the day.

14,089. Did not you see Benfather go into a little room, the bakehouse ?—No, I did not.

14,090. You know the bake office ?—I know what it is by going out the back way.

14,091. Did you not see Benfather going in there ? —No.

14,092. Did you not see some men go into the bake office ?—No.

14,093. Did you see Moss and one of the other men go off in a cab with Benfather ?—I did not see him.

14,094–5. Were you quite sober ?—Well, not so very sober of course, being in a place like that during the day.

14,096. Did you see Benfather leave the house ?— I saw him come to the house and leave it two or three times.

14,097. Did you hear what Benfather said ? — I never heard anything.

14,098. Did you not hear the men talking to Benfather ?—No.

14,099. What was Benfather doing there ?—Coming in and asking the people.

14,100. Do you really wish to represent to us that you heard nothing of what was said by Benfather ?— I did not.

14,101. Were you very drunk ?—No, not so very drunk.

14,102. What you call moderately drunk then ?— Well, I might be a little the worse for drink.

14,103. Were you so drunk that you went to the poll, but you could not get up until just after the time for closing ?—No, I did not go at all.

14,104. Do you nor recollect going to the poll and being just too late ?—No, I did not go at all.

14,105. The poll was near there, was it not ?—On St. Mary's Plain, I believe.

14,106. That is close by ?—Close by.

14,107. Were you so drunk that you could not be sent up there in time for voting ?—I did not go at all.

14,108. But could you not see the polling booth from Clarke's, and did you not see that it was closed ? —I did not go back to look.

14,109. You did not go at all, that is very true ;

TWELFTH DAY.

R. Ross.

1 Sept. 1869.

but the only reason why you did not go was that you were too late, was it not?—No, that was not the reason.

14,110. You would have taken money you know?—Yes, if I had any offered me.

14,111. Was 5*s.* offered you?—No.

14,112. Was not 5*s.* offered you, and did you not say that you wanted some more?—No.

14,113. Was anything offered you to vote?—Nothing was offered me to vote.

14,114. Did you talk to Benfather at all?—No, I did not talk to the man, nothing particular; the man asked me once or twice if I would go and vote, and I told him no.

14,115. Did you say that you wanted some money?—I never told Benfather that I wanted any money, and he never offered me any.

14,116. No, but you might ask him for it although he did not offer it, you know. What did you say to Benfather when he asked you to vote?—I told him I did not care anything about it, and I was not going to vote.

14,117. Was that the only answer you gave?—That is all; that I did not care anything about voting.

14,118. (Mr. Biron.) If you wanted money why did you not say you wanted it?—I did not say anything about it.

14,119. (Mr. Dowdeswell.) Do you not know that Moss and these other people were paid 5*s.* a-piece to go and vote?—I do not know anything about it.

14,120. Was it not the common talk?—I do not know anything about it.

14,121. Did you not hear them talk about having 5*s.* for their votes?—No.

14,122. Or 10*s.*?—No.

14,123. They did not bid up to 10*s.* for you?—No, nor yet nothing.

14,124. You would have gone for 5*s.*?—No, I do not think I should have gone for a sum like that; I might perhaps, but I do not know; I never was offered it.

14,125. Perhaps you would have refused 5*s.* at first, but when it got close upon 4 you would have been willing to take 5*s.*?—It was not offered me.

14,126. You would have taken 5*s.* just before 4?—I might have done if it had been offered to me, but I do not know.

14,127. Did you not hang out so long that you were too late for the poll?—No.

ROBERT BRYANT sworn and examined.

R. Bryant.

14,128. (Mr. Biron.) What are you?—A shop keeper.

14,129. For whom did you vote at the last election?—Stracey.

14,130. What time in the day?—About half-past 8 in the morning.

14,131. Did you get anything for your vote?—Nothing.

14,132. Or a promise of anything?—No.

14,133. Did you give any other voters anything for voting?—No.

14,134. Or promise them anything?—I gave no promise whatever.

Adjourned to to-morrow at 10.30.

THIRTEENTH DAY.

Thursday, 2nd September 1869.

THIRTEENTH DAY.

T. Mackley.

2 Sept. 1869.

THOMAS MACKLEY recalled and further examined.

14,135. (Mr. Dowdeswell.) Are you in a sober state now?—Perfectly.

14,136. Do you recollect Mr. Hulme giving you 15*l.*?—Yes, quite well.

14,137. What did you do with that 15*l.*?—I gave a man of the name of Guyton half-a-sovereign; James Guyton.

14,138. Where does he live?—St. Gegory's Church Alley.

14,139. What is he?—A tailor.

14,140. Did you give anybody any more money?—No.

14,141. Did you give any money to any voters that day?—No.

14,142. Were you not at the "Trumpet" just before Christmas, and did you not then boast that you had bribed 50 voters in the course of the day?—No.

14,143. You said there that money had been given to you by Mr. Hulme, the chemist?—Yes.

14,144. You were talking then about the money that had been given you by Mr. Hulme, the chemist?—No.

14,145. I asked you just now whether you did not say there that the money had been given you by Mr. Hulme, the chemist; were you not talking about that at the "Trumpet"?—I was not in the "Trumpet" talking about it.

14,146. Perhaps you were so drunk there that you do not know; what time in the day was it that you received the money?—About a quarter to 3 in the afternoon.

14,147. You recollect that do you?—Yes.

14,148. When did you give the money to this man Guyton?—About 3 o'clock.

14,149. Where did you give it to him?—After I went to the poll I went home. I found that I had lost my money and I went home.

14,150. When did you find that you had lost your money?—Directly I left the poll. I lost it on account of the various persons standing about there.

14,151. Where did you go then?—I went home to my own house.

14,152. Where was it that you lost the money?—I lost it at the poll by some person that was standing about there no doubt.

14,153. In what house did you lose it?—I was in no house. I lost it at the poll, and when I came away from the poll I missed it.

14,154. Did you mention the loss of it to anybody?

THIRTEENTH DAY.

T. Mackley.

2 Sept. 1869.

—No, I was rather ashamed of it to think I was not a little more cuter.

14,155. Did you mention to anybody that you had been robbed of your money?—I have since, but not on that day.

14,156. When did you mention it to any soul?—Not till I came here the day before yesterday.

14,157. Having lost 14*l.* 10*s.* out of your pocket on that day, up to the time you came here you had not mentioned it to a single soul?—No, I thought I should be laughed at, and for that reason I did not mention it.

14,158. Did it not burn a hole in your pocket?—No; I had it in a purse and they took it all away at once.

14,159. You put it in your purse, did you?—Yes, I did.

14,160. Did you happen at the North Norfolk election to have any money in your pocket?—I thought you were here for the purpose of inquiring into the Norwich election.

14,161. Yes, but I am asking you as to the North Norfolk election?—I am not here for that, and I shall not answer as to that.

14,162. I will take care that you shall answer. My question is did you have money at the North Norfolk election?—I am here for the purpose of answering questions as to the Norwich election.

14,163. Never mind that; you shall answer that question?—I do not consider that that is fair.

14,164. We have to estimate your character and to judge of your credibility?—Character, I have got a very good character I know.

14,165. I will have the question answered?—Then I shall take time to consider.

14,166. I will advise you to answer it?—I do not think you are sent here for that purpose.

14,167. If you do not answer the question there is only one alternative, we shall send you away?—If you do I cannot help it. I do not know that it would be of much consequence to me.

14,168. Unless you answer the question I shall commit you to gaol until you do?—Well, I had some money.

14,169. And did you lose that money out of your pocket?—No, I spent it.

14,170. Did you not say that you had lost it?—No, I did not.

14,171. How much was that?—About 7*l.* I think, or something like that. I cannot say to a shilling or two.

14,172. You say you never mentioned having lost this money to a single soul until you came here?—No, I did not.

14,173. Have you seen Mr. Hulme frequently in the interval between that time and this?—Yes.

14,174. Did you ever mention it to him?—I never told him that I had lost the money until I came here.

14,175. Why did you not go to him and say, "I "received that 15*l.* from you, but I had my pocket "picked and lost it"?—I have told you that I did not want anybody to know it lest I should be laughed at; that is the reason why I did not mention it. I did not wish to be laughed at.

14,176. Why should you think that anybody would laugh at a man who has had the misfortune to have his pocket picked?—I think it very likely that I should have been laughed at.

14,177. The idea that you might be laughed at is the only thing that deterred you from mentioning this loss?—That is it.

14,178. You never mentioned it to a policeman?—No.

14,179. Was your reason for not mentioning it, that you would be laughed at, and that not a soul would believe your statement?—I should think not. There is many a clever man picked up, though I am not clever myself.

14,180. Up to the time of the Norwich election you had been in the habit of drawing your beer direct from the cask had you not?—Sometimes.

14,181. Had you any beer engine up to that time?—Oh yes.

14,182. Had you?—Yes.

14,183. Did you not have a new beer engine immediately afterwards?—No.

14,184. Have you not had a new beer engine since?—No; I have had a beer engine; it is an old one.

14,185. What did you pay for it?—I did not buy it at all; it was lent to me by Mr. Probert at Patteson's brewery. I asked him for an engine as I was very poor, and he said, "Well, I will oblige you as long as you draw for me," and he did so.

14,186. Then you have not bought that engine?—No.

14,187. Do you believe that there is anybody in this court or in the city of Norwich who credits your statement?—I am come here to speak the truth, and nothing but the truth.

R. Francis.

ROBERT FRANCIS sworn and examined.

14,188. (Mr. Mansfield.) What are you?—A brickmaker.

14,189. For whom did you vote at the last election?—I did not vote at all.

14,190. Are you a voter?—No.

14,191. Do you recollect on the day of the election being at the "Edinburgh Castle"?—Yes.

14,192. Who keeps that house?—Mr. Fuller.

14,193. Did you see Hardiment and Freestone, the baker, come in?—Yes.

14,194. I think they asked for Fuller, did they not?—Yes.

14,195. He was in bed?—Yes.

14,196. I think Fuller presently came downstairs?—Yes.

14,197. What conversation took place between Fuller and Hardiment?—He asked him to go and vote, and he said that he should not vote without he had something.

14,198. Did you say anything to Hardiment?—I did not.

14,199. Was anything said to him about a shilling?—Yes; Mr. Hardiment stood a pot of beer, and gave him a shilling, and then he went and voted.

14,200. Was any beer had in?—Yes.

14,201. Did you get any of it?—Yes.

14,202. You took up the shilling?—Yes.

14,203. And who did you hand it to?—Mr. Fuller.

14,204. Then Fuller went away with Hardiment and Freestone?—Yes.

14,205. And to the best of your belief he voted?—Yes.

14,206. Afterwards Fuller came back?—Yes.

14,207. And drank out the money?—Yes.

14,208. Did you hear anything else pass about money?—He said he was all right, he did not care.

14,209. Did you hear of any other people getting money?—No.

14,210. Did you see any other money pass?—No.

14,211. Was anything paid for beer by Hardiment and Freestone?—Yes.

14,212. Besides that you have spoken of?—Yes.

14,213. Who was it given to?—Anybody who liked to drink it.

14,214. How much beer—a gallon?—No; two pots of best ale.

14,215. Did you know the men who had it?—Yes.

14,216. Were they voters?—No.

14,217. How do you know that?—I am certain of it. One of them has drowned himself since then.

14,218. (Mr. Dowdeswell.) Did you see anybody else paid that day?—No.

ARTHUR MORRIS FOSTER MORGAN sworn and examined.

14,219. (Mr. Biron.) What are you?—I am a surgeon.

14,220. For whom did you vote at the last election?—For Russell and Tillett.

14,221. I believe that before the coalition you took an active part in promoting Mr. Tillett's canvass?—Both before and after.

14,222. Are you the chairman of the Liberal organisation—the working men's organisation?—I am.

14,223. When was that organisation got up?—It was commenced in the month of October; I believe October twelvemonth, previous to the election, about 13 months before the election.

14,224. And was it originated for the purpose of securing the return of a working man's candidate?—That was its main object. Perhaps you will allow me to state what its objects were, and what induced us to form it.

14,225. The reasons for the organisation are immaterial to this inquiry; the question is whether it was formed for purposes having any reference to the subject of our investigation. Did the organisation take up Mr. Tillett as a candidate?—Not at first; at first it was formed for the purpose of giving the artizans who were newly enfranchised the power of selecting their candidate. It was commenced to be formed in October, and in the middle of July Mr. Tillett was asked to come forward.

14,226. When the association was started, was there any money subscribed?—I believe not, but there was a treasurer appointed who is now in court. I can say that I never subscribed. I believe that the only expenditure I was at was that I paid a bill poster's bill of 7*s.* 6*d.*

14,227. You did not subscribe yourself any money?—No, I did not.

14,228. And you do not know of any money being subscribed?—I do not.

14,229. When Mr. Tillett came forward did the organisation send out canvassers to canvass for him?—The organisation was formed of the working men who took a strong interest in the matter, and who volunteered to be canvassers. The secretary is in court, and at my request he has brought the books; the small canvass books that we sent out, and the minute book of the society.

14,230. May we take it from you that he is better acquainted with the details of the working of the organisation than you are yourself?—Undoubtedly.

14,231. And he knows the details of any payments that were made, and how the money was expended if there was any?—Yes, my duty as chairman was to attend the various meetings, both board meetings and general meetings, and to act as chairman.

14,232. Except as regards the meetings of this society you took no active part in the election?—Oh yes, I did, I continually took an active part in persuading persons whom I knew, or over whom I had some moral influence, to keep right with us. The fact was that we always had a lively anticipation that we should have to fight against illegal means, and we were trying to strengthen these men's minds to withstand the temptation that we feared would be put before them.

14,233. Did you pay or promise anybody anything?—No, never in my life.

14,234. Have you any knowledge of any corrupt practices having been carried on at the last election?—I have no direct personal knowledge of it. I have the knowledge that all Norwich has, but I have no abstract knowledge of bribery.

14,235. You have no knowledge that you think would help us?—I am afraid not. I can only speak as to my moral impression. I cannot speak from any abstract knowledge.

14,236. (Mr. Dowdeswell.) Did you take any part in the election?—During the day of the election I was principally in my own ward. I was considered jointly with the legal manager of the ward the manager, and between that and the committee room, the second ward and the central committee room, I passed pretty nearly the whole of the day. I took two or three personal acquaintances of mine to the poll, but not any large number.

14,237. Was any suggestion made to you or to the committee of that ward that money was being found on the other side, and that it would be expedient to find money on the Liberal side too?—No; very early in the day when the first or second voting card came in we were told by experienced men that there were men on that card who they were certain had been bought, and it was the common subject of conversation in our committee room that bribery was going on, but there was no suggestion as to the advisability or possibility of our meeting it.

14,238. Do you know the men whose names were mentioned to you?—No, I do not.

14,239. Were they men in your own ward?—Yes, but I do not remember their names.

14,240. Who was it that gave you this information in the committee room?—A man named Copland; he put his finger on one or two names and said, "I am certain those men have been bought."

14,241. You have said that you did not know that there was any subscription?—Yes.

14,242. How came you then to appoint a treasurer? We appointed a treasurer before there were any funds.

14,243. How came you to appoint a treasurer if you did not anticipate that there would be funds?—We did anticipate that there would be funds, and I have no doubt that there were subscriptions for the legitimate purposes of the organisation for printing bills and circulars, for hiring rooms for meetings and so on. But I have no knowledge personally of that and I never subscribed.

14,244. You never took part in the distribution of the funds?—Certainly not.

14,245. Not by either directing the distribution of them, or by distributing them yourself?—Neither, with the exception of the 7*s.* 6*d.* which I paid to a billposter.

14,246. (Mr. Mansfield.) You would have to sign the minutes of each meeting?—I think I did; the minute book is in court.

14,247. At what time in the day did you first become acquainted with the fact that bribery was going on?—I think it was between 12 and 1 o'clock. I went from my ward to the central ward to inform them of what we found, and within three or four minutes a messenger came from the third ward, and he was followed by a messenger from the eighth, and then by another messenger from the seventh ward. Four wards sent up those messages in the course of 20 minutes.

14,248. Who were the messengers, or who sent the messages?—The messages were sent from the managers of the wards.

14,249. In consequence of those messages were any steps taken?—Not that I am aware of.

14,250. Were any persons sent down to verify them?—Yes, I think that Mr. Daynes accompanied by Mr. Stevens, and Mr. Ray went to see whether those statements were true.

14,251. And Mr. Harper?—No; I think Mr. Harper was keeping himself in his own ward. I do not think he was in the central committee room until the latter part of the day.

14,252. You say that many of these working men volunteered to act as canvassers?—Yes.

14,253. Are you aware of their receiving any remuneration;—I do not believe they did; one or two of them might, but the great body of those men were working for love of the cause; they canvassed in the evening principally after their labour was over in the day.

14,254. Their object was to try moral and legitimate means. Were you aware that any other kind of

THIRTEENTH DAY.

A. M. F. Morgan.

2 Sept. 1869.

pressure was used by those men on voters?—I do not know it, nor do I at all believe it.

14,255. (Mr. Dowdeswell.) Have you heard of any species of pressure having been used by the workmen to their fellow-workmen upon the subject?—I have not heard one case.

14,256. Because that would be as illegitimate you know as giving money. Coercion is as bad as bribery?—Quite so. I do not think there was any intimidation. We suffered rather from intimidation from a body of roughs who were parading the streets for days. I received continually insults, and on the polling day an absolute assault from 100 of those ruffians.

14,257. (Mr. Mansfield.) Are you aware of any of those persons you call roughs having been hired on the day of election to make a mob in the streets?—I saw a body of roughs adorned with cocked hats made with orange bills, come out of one house in the occupation of either Mr. Clarke, the inspector, or his son.

14,258. And did that gang of persons take an active part in assaulting voters, or people going to the poll?—They were for days about the streets insulting everybody they supposed or knew to be on the other side in politics.

14,259. Was that a public-house?—No; it was a private house in Redwell Street, opposite to the side windows of the house we were using as our central committee room, and we afterwards changed the committee room to St. Andrew's Street.

14,260. Was it the house of inspector Clarke?—I believe it is in the tenancy of inspector Clarke and of his son. We stood and watched the procession come out from the side windows of our committee room; the men had orange bills grotesquely made into cocked hats which they wore and orange ribbons in their waistcoats.

14,261. Did you see any of those men guilty of any acts of violence and intimidation?—Not intimidation; the same body of men assaulted me in the market place. I cannot say the same men but the same class of men; a body of men that looked more like cannibals in their war paint than christian men.

14,262. (Mr. Dowdeswell.) They were not voters?—No, I think not.

J. Copeman.

JOHN COPEMAN sworn and examined.

14,263. (Mr. Dowdeswell.) Are you a voter in this city?—Yes.

14,264. You voted for Tillett and Russell?—I did.

14,265. You are the treasurer of the working man's organisation?—Yes.

14,266. We have heard when that started. When did you begin to collect funds?—There was no decided effort made to collect funds at all.

14,267. When did you receive and up to what time did you continue to receive funds before the election?—I began to receive funds about the month of May 1868.

14,268. Then there had been no collection up to that time?—No, none.

14,269. What was the date of your appointment?—The first official meeting of the organisation, when that was I do not recollect.

14,270. What was the amount of subscriptions you received on the 19th of November last?—The actual receipts did not amount to 2*l.*

14,271. But what did the subscriptions amount to?—I had a verbal guarantee from some five or six friends of ours requesting me to pay the bills as they came in, and to see that nothing corrupt was paid by the secretary.

14,272. Were not names put down as subscribing a given amount?—Not in writing until just before the election.

14,273. Have you got a list of names which were put down just before the election?—I have not that list. I will just explain this if you will allow me. When the organisation was first thought of, it was a mere matter of conversation among some half dozen individuals.

14,274. I want to know exactly what was the number of subscribers, and what was the amount of subscriptions on the day of the election?—Mr. Joseph Smith took charge of that particular subscription, and can furnish you with all those particulars. I cannot. He collected the money which was then for a double purpose; that is, for the organisation and for the election.

14,275. Do you know what was collected for the organisation, and what was collected for the election;—I do not know the amount.

14,276. What money have you received since the election?—Nothing.

14,277. Then although you are treasurer, 2*l.* seems to be the amount of the fund that has got into your hands?—That is all.

14,278. How was it, because it seems a strange thing that you being treasurer the funds did not get into your hands?—The office of treasurer is not exactly a correct description of the office I hold; it was more that of a finance secretary. I paid everything but I have received next to nothing. I can go into the payments of the organisation if you desire it.

14,279. Under those circumstances can you tell me what you have paid?—Yes, I can tell you that.

14,280. Have you the particulars here in a book?—Yes (handing a book to the Commissioners).

14,281. Who is Causton?—The Secretary. I am not sure but I think I have got the vouchers for every one of those payments now in my hand.

14,282. I see here, "Chamberlin 5*l.*," who is he?—He is a man who was kept in the constant employ of the organisation; a messenger or runner to deliver bills and to wait on the secretary.

14,283. Tuxford, what is he?—A stationer.

14,284. I see here is an item for flag making?—There was a soirée held in the hall in May last, and the organisation ordered the decoration of the hall.

14,285. Then there is "Smith, 6*l.* 15*s.* 4*d.*"?—That was for meetings held at his house—the rent of the room.

14,286. Were all your meetings held there?—No; that was the regular meeting place of the committee for several months.

14,287. Are you sure none of that was for any refreshments or anything of that sort on the day of the election?—Perfectly sure.

14,288. "Abel Tillett 50*l.*" What is that?—That was a cheque given to Mr. Tillett from the fund on account of the election petition. That Mr. Smith will pay. That was merely paid by me, and will be repaid by Mr. Smith. We kept the two funds perfectly distinct as far as the expenditure went. Those items are all payments on account of the organisation, and have nothing to do with the election.

14,289. Who are Jarrolds?—The stationers.

14,290. And Kings?—The decorators of flags.

14,291. You paid a great sum for flags?—That was for decorating St. Andrew's Hall at the soirée.

14,292. Who is Gilbert?—That was for some carpentering work at St. Andrew's Hall, or at a public meeting. I really do not know exactly, but it was for work done by him as a carpenter.

14,293. I see here are a number of items, "May 14th, 16th, 21st, 27th?" and there is a bracket against it, something, tickets; what are those?—The soirée. That was in May I think.

14,294. Then you have been out of pocket 340*l.* 9*s.* 3*d.*?—No, not so much. The credits are off.

14,295. 57*l.* odd, leaving a balance in your favour of 222*l.* 5*s.* 10*d.*?—That is about it. I think that is about the amount.

14,296. You know of no sum having been paid improperly away?—I know of nothing. I paid those bills which had the voucher of the secretary and which I was satisfied myself were perfectly legal and had no connexion with corruption in any shape or form.

14,297. Had you some bills sent in which you considered were illegal?—Not in the sense in which you put it. I thought some were excessive, and I cut them down. I would not pay an extortionate demand.

14,298. I do not speak of excess, but of fundamental principle. Were there items which were objectionable in themselves?—There was no payment with which I was connected that could be considered illegal.

14,299. I am not speaking of payments, but of claims made upon you?—There were none.

14,300. Are you aware of the expenditure of any sum of money for the payment of voters, or anything of that sort at the election?—I am not. I was not out on the election day.

14,301. Are you aware of anything that has come to your knowledge in your connexion with this organisation of that sort?—Only as I hear it talked about. I know nothing of that sort of my own knowledge whatever.

14,302. Did anybody come to you and give you any information as to anything, not that which is the general knowledge of the world, but any particular knowledge as to what had been doing with regard to bribery by either side at this election?—I cannot at this moment remember anything that I could definitely refer to.

14,303. Were there meetings of this society at different places; and especially, was there one at a place called Mousehold?—I did not attend all the meetings by a great many.

14,304. But you attended some of them?—Some of them I did.

14,305. Did you attend the one at Mousehold?—No, I did not. I know where Mousehold is.

14,306. Do you know whether there are bills outstanding for refreshments and other things supplied at these meetings?—No, certainly not.

14,307. Has not that been told you by persons connected with this organisation?—No.

14,308. You have received no bill for it?—I have received no bill.

14,309. You have received no claim?—No claim; never heard of it.

14,310. You have paid no claim?—I have paid none.

14,311. At the meetings at which you were present was not beer supplied to the men?—I cannot say that I did not see any men drinking at these places. Our meetings were principally held in the open air.

14,312. But at these meetings which were held in public-houses, was not beer supplied?—No, not by us or anybody connected with us that I know of.

14,313. (Mr. Biron.) Did anybody else pay anything for this organisation but you?—No, I paid everything, and I examined every account before I paid it to see what it was for, and I have got vouchers for it here in court.

14,314. (Mr. Dowdeswell.) Was there a meeting in St. Andrew's Hall?—Yes.

14,315. When was that?—Last May twelve months.

14,316. Were there tickets given to the men then?—No; only there was a choir, and music was introduced, and they had tea provided for them; but every person who went in there had to pay for his ticket with that exception, and they did pay. That payment covered everything that was eaten and drunk.

14,317. (Mr. Biron.) It was two months before Mr. Tillett came upon the scene?—Mr. Tillett was not a candidate then.

14,318. (Mr. Mansfield.) You had a band on the day of the election?—Yes, I was going to mention that.

14,319. Who selected that band?—That was the only thing approaching an illegitimate expense.

14,320. Who got up that band?—It was the night before the election. There was a large meeting held in the city, and several individuals said, "We must have a band," and they put down their names for various sums to pay for it, and I don't know what amount exactly, but 5*l.* or 6*l.* were subscribed. I engaged that band, and paid for it on the strength of those subscriptions.

14,321. Were the members of the band voters?—I don't know. I only saw the bandmaster, Mr. Widdows, and he told me what his charge was and I paid him.

14,322. (Mr. Dowdeswell.) They were hired for the election day?—They were hired for the election day.

14,323. (Mr. Mansfield.) That band account was not entirely paid by the organisation committee?—That is not paid quite now.

14,324. Has Mr. Tillett paid any portion of that?—No, not a farthing. I paid the whole of it the day after the election.

14,325–6. But you said that something is left?—There is something left.

14,327. (Mr. Dowdeswell.) You debited the organisation with that?—It does not belong to the organisation at all.

14,328. I see there is a charge for a band here?—Yes.

14,329. (Mr. Biron.) "Band, election, 1*l.* 4*s.*"?—That was a payment made for persons to carry banners I think.

14,330. (Mr. Mansfield.) Were they voters?—That I don't know.

14,331. (Mr. Dowdeswell.) Who superintended them?—That I don't know.

14,332. Who collected them?—I don't know that I can recollect that.

14,333. To whom did you pay the money?—I forget his name.

14,334. You have a voucher for everything you say?—Yes.

14,335. That would put you in possession of the name?—Is there not a name against the item?

14,336. (Mr. Biron.) "Band, election, November 20th, 1868."—Here it is. Stride was the name of the man who was paid.

14,337. (Mr. Mansfield.) Can you tell us where the money came from for this society?—Mr. Smith will tell you that.

14,338. (Mr. Biron.) You have told us that he was the permanent messenger?—He was one of the messengers. Chamberlin was the more permanent man.

14,339. (Mr. Dowdeswell.) Where does Stride live?—That I don't know. It can be easily ascertained.

14,340. (Mr. Mansfield.) You do not know at all where the money has come from which you have disbursed?—Which money?

14,341. Between 200*l.* and 300*l.*?—It comes out of my own pocket at present.

14,342. (Mr. Biron.) You have received by subscriptions 1*l.* 7*s.* 6*d.*?—That is about it.

14,343. And you have spent as you say for the society (but it rather seems to me for your own self), 290*l.* 19*s.* 3*d.*?—290*l.* and 57*l.* off.

14,344. 57*l.* comes off, and you received 1*l.* 7*s.* 6*d.* in subscriptions?—That is it.

14,345. Then you paid those who provided for the tea and so on?—Yes.

(Mr. Biron.) I should resign if I were you the office of secretary for that society at the earliest opportunity.

14,346. (Mr. Dowdeswell.) I suppose you are an honorary secretary?—I receive no salary.

14,347. (Mr. Mansfield.) You have not received that money back?—I have not yet, not a farthing. That will be all squared up when the time comes.

THIRTEENTH DAY.

E. Thirkettle.

2 Sept. 1869.

EDWARD THIRKETTLE sworn and examined.

14,348. (Mr. Mansfield.) You were at one time in the service of Mr. Hardiment, he fellmonger?—Yes, I was, after the election was over. Monday, the 7th of December is when I entered his service.

14,349. At that time Mr. Hardiment was away?—No, not then.

14,350. When did he leave?—Monday, the 21st of December in the afternoon.

14,351. Before Mr. Baron Martin came down?—Before Baron Martin came down.

14,352. And he did not return during Mr. Baron Martin's stay?—He did not.

14,353. When did he return?—On Saturday, the 23rd of January at about half-past 6 in the morning, but he told me he returned on Friday night, got off at Thorpe station, and came up by the 9 o'clock train.

14,354. Were you at Norwich at the time of the election?—Yes.

14,355. Were you engaged in canvassing?—A very small portion of it. That I will tell you easily. I was clerk in the committee room of the eighth ward at Mr. Wiseman's recommendation. Mr. Dawson, the agent, was the person who engaged me.

14,356. There was a good deal of business going on in the eighth ward?—I will tell you all if you will allow me. I was engaged on Thursday, the 12th. I had the regular business of the committee room to do, in folding and directing circulars. I was engaged on the Thursday, Friday, and Saturday. There was a little dispute on the Saturday between Wiseman and Hardiment because Hardiment had not come to the committee room and Hardiment told Wiseman that he had his own business to attend to. So there was a little dispute. St. Martin's was not canvassed. On Monday Mr. Hardiment said he would be very willing to canvass St. Martin's if anybody would go with him. Nobody offered to do so, so I went with him at about half an hour before 12. We went to a few people. Some said they would vote for Stracey; some said they would vote for Russell and Tillet, and some would not give an answer. They said they would wait and see what to-morrow brought forth. We concluded that matter, which Mr. Hardiment will tell you when he gets in front of you. We concluded that at half-past 12.

14,357. On what day?—Monday, the 16th.

14,358. The day before the polling?—The day before the poll. We concluded that about 20 minutes before 1. I went home to my dinner. Directly I got my dinner I went back to the committee room. That is the extent of my canvassing.

14,359. When you found these men refusing to promise, was any note taken of their names?—We had strips of paper which I made out myself. They were canvassing books, small penny memorandum books, with the almanack at each end of them.

14,360. Have you got any of them?—No. They were returned to Mr. Robert Wiseman, senior. All the papers on the night before the election.

14,361. Did you see Mr. Edward Stracey on the night of that Monday?—I saw one. I should know them both now if I saw them, but I don't know their names. I think they said it was Mr. Edward.

14,362. Were they in company with you and Hardiment?—Not with me. I believe Mr. Stracey, Mr. Wiseman, and, I believe, Mr. Dawson canvassed together, but I had to be attending to the committee room; therefore I had not to go out.

14,363. During the day of the poll what were you engaged upon?—During the day of the poll I was a candidate's check on the part of Sir Henry Stracey, in the eighth ward, compartment No. 1, house of Mr. Henry Atkinson, in the parish of St. Mary.

14,364. During that day did you hear of voters being got hold of by Hardiment?—I did not because I was inside.

14,365. When did you hear of Hardiment having got up voters?—I saw him very busy during the day backward and forward at my own polling place, very busy.

14,366. Did not you know he had been paying voters?—I did not.

14,367. When did you hear that?—I heard the same night of bribery, but I have no positive proof of that. It is only hearsay. It was the same night of the polling, when the bands were going round.

14,368. Are you aware of claims being made upon Hardiment for money promised by him during the election?—You see my time with Mr. Hardiment was very——

14,369. I mean afterwards?—After he came home do you mean?

14,370. Any claims at any time?—A man came. I was in the counting house, which is a very small place, and he took him in there.

14,371. Have you heard of anybody coming to Hardiment for money?—No, I have not. Many have come down to ask me where he was.

14,372. During the time of the election?—No. I mean during the time of Mr. Baron Martin being here.

14,373. I mean on the polling day?—I was in the eighth ward.

14,374. The day after the polling?—I was not with him then. The polling was on the 17th of November. I never went to Mr. Hardiment till Monday, the 7th of December. I was clerk to the committee room but not to Mr. Hardiment, and I never knew there was such a man as Mr. Hardiment till I was clerk to the committee room, and I am very sorry I know him now.

14,375. You can give us no information of improper practices at this election?—Only from what I have heard. I have heard plenty of talk about it in the public places of resort, and also in the newspapers. I know of nothing myself. I have nothing to keep back; therefore any question you ask me I will gladly answer you.

14,376. Did you vote yourself?—I did not for this reason; I asked Mr. Chittock whether it would be right I should vote after being a clerk in the committee room. He said no. Therefore, I did not do so.

14,377. Have you ever voted before?—I never did.

14,378. Did you communicate with Hardiment during his absence?—Yes.

14,379. When he was on the continent?—Yes.

14,380. Where was he then?—He was at Paris, at the house of Mr. Laing, 122, Rue de Bach; the same as I said before Baron Martin. I believe the Laings are some relation of Mr. Hardiment.

14,381. Was he there the whole of the time?—As far as I can say. I received letters from him with the Paris post mark.

14,382. Was it your duty to forward money?—No. He gave me an unlimited order on Gurney's bank to carry on the business and pay money into the bank, unless they were petty payments that went into the current account.

14,383. Did Mr. Hardiment carry on a considerable business?—Yes. We would say about 250*l.* a week. He was away about a month, and I think I spent 900*l.* for him in debts and in cash.

14,384. In how long a time?—From the 21st of December when he went away till the Saturday morning of the 23rd of January, when I first saw him and balanced his cash up and paid him the balance on the Saturday morning.

14,385. You said you were constantly hearing from him?—Oh yes, I heard from him.

14,386. Was anything said about the election then by him to you?—You might easily draw your own inference upon that. Of course there would be remarks made about the election.

14,387, Was anything said about money?—No; only as to how it was getting on.

14,388. Not as to money he had spent himself?—No; he was very discreet about that. He was a man that was not so easy to be got at.

14,389. Have you yourself promised anything with regard to the last election?—No. I never had it in my power and never was authorised. I defy any man to say so.

14,390. Were you asked to promise anything?—Never by no man.

14,391. (Mr. Dowdeswell.) Did you in the committee room hear reports that bribery was going on?—I went in about half-past 7 in the morning and happened to see Mr. Wiseman, who got myself the situation as clerk, as I had nothing to do, and from that time I did not enter till about a quarter-past 4 in the afternoon when there was a large concourse of people.

14,392. There were a good many men who came up to the poll drunk?—There were not so many as you would suppose.

14,393. I do not "suppose" anything, I only want evidence?—I will easily tell you. I have not been a voter, but I have seen a good many elections at Norwich. The citizens of Norwich generally take that as a half holiday. Those that go and vote early in the morning do so as well, because I have been in situations myself.

14,394. Were a number on both sides drunk?—Yes, but not so as they could not answer questions. They made answers to all the questions.

14,395. The stage or degree of drunkenness is not so material. There were a good number who came up intoxicated?—A good number. My ward was rather a low ward.

14,396. You were with Hardiment?—Yes.

14,397. Did you hear men speaking to Hardiment about money he had promised them at the election?—When do you mean?

14,398. You were with Hardiment after he returned?—Yes, but only from Saturday the 23d of January to Friday the 29th, when I left him.

14,399. How many days were you with him before he went away?—From the Monday morning the 7th of December till the 21st, one fortnight.

14,400. During that time did you hear of any persons coming to him and asking him for money which he promised?—I told you I fancied one man came down for that.

14,401. I want to know whether you know of any man who came and spoke to him about anything of that kind?—No; because when people came to speak to him about anything private he went into the other room with them.

14,402. Did Hardiment tell you why he was going away?—I pretty well knew.

14,403. I want to know whether he told you?—He told me he was going to Paris on business.

14,404. Did he say anything about going away because of the election petition?—I had not the slightest doubt he was going away about that.

14,405. You did not have any conversation about the money he spent on the election?—I once spoke to him about that, but he shirked it, and very soon dropped the conversation.

14,406. You spoke to him about it and you found him very tender on the subject?—Yes.

14,407. (Mr. Biron.) He was not to be pumped?—No. He was a very awkward man to be with. He gave me a character which was all I required, and I left him.

JOHN MICHAEL CROKER sworn and examined. J. M. Croker.

14,408. (Mr. Biron.) For whom did you vote at the last election?—Sir Henry Stracey.

14,409. Did you give anybody anything for voting?—Never a farthing.

14,410. Or promised anybody anything?—Never.

14,411. Were you about the city that day?—I was.

14,412. Did you give any man money for beer that day?—No, never.

14,413. Do you know a man of the name of Varvel?—I do.

14,414. A butcher at St. Stephen's?—Yes.

14,415. Did you see him on the day of the polling?—I did.

14,416. Did you send him after a voter?—No. I got him to vote. I got Varvel to vote at about half-past 3. I persuaded him to vote and he voted at half-past 3. At least I did my best to persuade him.

14,417. Did you give him anything for voting?—Certainly not,

14,418. Did you instruct Varvel to give any other voter money?—Certainly not.

14,419. To your knowledge did Varvel give anybody else money to vote on the day of the election?—No. I will tell you exactly how it happened, if you like. I went into the committee room at about half-past 3 and Mr. Stockings, who was the head man, said to me, "Captain Croker, Varvel has not "voted yet. If you can, have some influence with "him." I went to him and said, "Have you voted?" He said, "I don't intend to vote at all." I said, "I "do not ask you to plump for Stracey. Vote for "Stracey and Russell." He said to his wife, "Give me my hat," and he went and voted for Stracey and Russell.

14,420. That is all you know?—Yes. I think he said, "I can get one or two more." I think he said something of that kind, but I do not recollect, when he was going away. I have an impression that he said, "I think I can get one or two more, but it is very late." That is the whole.

14,421. You said nothing about money to him?—Certainly not, not a word.

14,422. Or that if he could get them for a little money it would be all right, or something of that sort?—No; I never heard a word about money till it was sworn in this box before Baron Martin.

14,423. (Mr. Dowdeswell.) Did you go into any public-house with Varvel?—No, I did not. I left Varvel the moment he voted.

14,424. You went straight to the polling place from Varvel's shop?—The polling place was not more than 10 yards from Varvel's shop.

14,425. And you went direct to the polling place?—Yes. When he voted I said, "Thank you," and walked away.

14,426. Do you recollect any subscription which was raised at or about the time of the election for the purpose of conducting the election on the part of Sir Henry Stracey?—I do not recollect it at all.

14,427. Have you not been asked to subscribe?—Not to my knowledge. I do not recollect anything of the kind. I do not think I spent one single farthing at or about the election, that I am aware of.

14,428. Has either of the Stockings spoken to you about supplying money for the payment of anything on the day of the election?—I do not recollect a single word of it, I assure you. If I was asked for anything upon that day I have really no recollection of it.

14,429. Have you been asked since?—I was asked to subscribe to what they call the defence fund.

14,430. That is a totally different thing?—That is all I recollect.

14,431. Who asked you to subscribe to the defence fund?—Stockings.

14,432. When?—That was after Baron Martin was here.

14,433. Did you receive any applications to subscribe to anything before the election petition?—No, not to my knowledge, not a farthing.

14,434. Have you not heard that there was such a subscription?—Indeed I have not.

14,435. Of independent persons?—Indeed I have not. I never heard of it.

14,436. Are you a member of the club of that ward?

THIRTEENTH DAY.

J. M. Croker.

2 Sept. 1869.

—I don't know. I gave them 5*s.* one year, but they have never asked me for it since. That is about four years ago. I have not attended a meeting in my life. I don't know whether they call me a member.

14,437. You have not subscribed to that club lately?—I have not. I think I gave them 5*s.* in 1865, and that is all I ever gave them in my life.

14,438. Then you know of no money being spent or paid through this fund?—Indeed I do not, not a farthing.

14,439. Do you know of any bets being made at the time of the election of 5 to 1?—I have heard of bets being made.

14,440. Of 5 to 1 to voters who were reluctant to vote?—No, I did not hear of that.

14,441. (Mr. Mansfield.) Have you heard of any account being rendered of the expenses of the defence fund?—No. I have not paid my subscription to the defence fund. I don't know whether there is such a thing at all.

T. Hutchins.

THOMAS HUTCHINS sworn and examined.

14,442. (Mr. Dowdeswell.) Are you a voter in this city?—Yes.

14,443. For whom did you vote?—Mr. Stracey.

14,444. You have been a voter at former elections, have you not?—Yes.

14,445. Did you always vote Liberal before this last election?—Yes.

14,446. What time in the day did you vote?—A few minutes after 3.

14,447. Before you voted were you at the "Woolpack"?—I were.

14,448. When did you go to the "Woolpack"?—About half-past 2, or it might be later.

14,449. Did you see Hardiment there?—He came the time I was there.

14,450. Do you know a man of the name of Adcock?—Yes, I know him by sight, not by name.

14,451. Did Hardiment give you any money to vote?—He gave me a sovereign.

14,452. Where did he give it you?—On the staircase, the landing you may call it.

14,453. Did he give Adcock anything there?—He gave Adcock a sovereign.

14,454. Did you see him give money to anybody else?—I cannot say that. As soon as I took my money I went away to vote.

14,455. Were you the first persons who went up to Hardiment after he came into the house?—No.

14,456. Had others gone up before you?—Yes.

14,457. How many?—I cannot tell you, several.

14,458. Can you give me the names of any of those who went up before you?—I cannot tell, except Samuel Robins.

14,459. I will put a few names to you, because perhaps you may remember some of them. Do you know Henry Pleasants?—No.

14,460. William Drake?—No.

14,461. Charles Morse?—No.

14,462. Benjamin Sexton?—I know a Sexton in St. Martin's, at Oak, but he was not in the room that I knowed of.

14,463. George Sexton?—I know George Sexton too.

14,464. Was not he there?—He was not there.

14,465. You did not see him?—Not to the best of my recollection.

14,466. Do you know George Goodman?—Yes.

14,467. Was he there?—He was in the tap-room. I never see him upstairs.

14,468. William Tillett?—I don't know him.

14,469. Walter Fearnley?—I don't know him.

14,470. John Metcalfe?—I don't know him. I know him by sight, but he was not in the room when I was.

14,471. Frederick Crane?—I don't know him.

14,472. William Moore?—I don't know him.

14,473. Henry Newman?—No.

14,474. Jonathan Middleton?—I don't know him.

14,475. Abraham Fitzgerald?—I don't know him.

14,476. Charles Nobbs?—George Nobbs I know.

14,477. Do you know Charles?—No.

14,478. Do you know a man named Betts?—No.

14,479. Can you mention any other man that you saw going up or coming down the stairs when you were there?—I cannot recollect any. I and Robins went up together.

14,480. Adcock?—Adcock was up before I went up.

14,481. How many men were there at the time you were paid?—I should say there was five or six.

14,482. Then some had gone down before you had gone out?—Certainly.

14,483. When you were going down did you see others coming up?—No.

14,484. Getting money for their votes was the common talk of people in Mackley's that day?—Yes.

14,485. Had any money been given at Mackley's before Hardiment came?—I believe not.

14,486. Had any beer been given them?—I believe not.

14,487. You had had none?—Only what I paid for.

14,488. Did you see a man of the name of Vines there?—No, I did not, and I don't believe he was there.

14,489. Did you hear any other men say that they had had money from Hardiment?—No, I can only say for myself and what I see Adcock took. After I got my money I took it and went and voted.

14,490. Adcock did the same?—Yes.

14,491. You recollect Money being there?—No. I don't know the man.

14,492. Did you go and vote with Adcock?—No. I went and voted the same with Robins.

14,493. Do you know of any other men receiving money that day for their votes?—All that were in that room received as much as I did.

14,494. There had been a talk about the Liberal side sending down some money, had there not?—I have heard since, but I never heard it inside. I have heard it since.

14,495. You knew it at the time?—I believe there was talk about it, but there was very little. What I heard was that Mr. Harper had been there for some money.

14,496. That was afterwards?—Yes.

14,497. Do you know Clarke's beer-house?—Yes, I know it, up at the top of St. Martin's.

14,498. Did you go there that day?—No.

14,499. You merely confined your attention to Mackley's?—When I came out of Mackley's I did not go to Mackley's no more.

14,500. Where did you go after that?—I think I went into the "Whip and Nag."

14,501. You did not see anybody paid anywhere else?—Not a halfpenny.

14,502. Or know of its being paid anywhere else?—I didn't know of where it was paid.

14,503. You did not know of money being paid to a voter anywhere else?—No, I didn't. What I have told you is the truth, and nothing else.

G. W. W. Firth.

GEORGE WARREN WATTS FIRTH sworn and examined.

14,504. (Mr. Dowdeswell.) Are you a medical man?—I am.

14,505. Do you know Robert Wiseman, senior?—Yes.

14,506. Have you been his medical attendant?—Yes, for some years.

14,507. Is he now suffering under any disease or disorder?—Yes.

14,508. Of what nature?—Among other diseases he has a dilated heart and palpitation of the heart.

14,509. Is he in a condition in which he could be examined here in a public court?—I think not without danger to his health.

14,510. Do you think it would endanger his life?—It might be endangered.

14,511. But I suppose there would be no difficulty in examining him privately?—No, certainly not.

JOSEPH DE CARLE SMITH sworn and examined. J. de C. Smith.

14,512. (Mr. Mansfield.) I believe you are the secretary of the Organisation Society?—I am not.

14,513. Did you get any money by means of any subscription for the purpose of the election?—I obtained a guarantee list for the expenses of Mr. Tillett's election.

14,514. Have you got that list here?—No, I have not, but I can let you have it.

14,515. (Mr. Dowdeswell.) Can you give us a list of the expenditure?—I cannot give it to you, as I passed the money over to Mr. Copeman. I can give you a list of all the monies I received, from my own cash book. I did not expend the money myself.

14,516. What was the amount guaranteed?—I think altogether it must have been about 1,600*l.*, the guarantee list.

14,517. What was the amount of money actually subscribed that you received under that guarantee?—I could not tell you exactly, unless I referred to the account. I can do so.

14,518. Will you have the goodness to let us have that list, and also the name of the person who had the disbursement of any funds that were provided on behalf of the Organisation Society?—I will do so.

14,519. (Mr. Mansfield.) There were two funds apparently?—I had only to do with one of them.

14,520. We want to know about a fund raised by the Organisation Society?—That I know nothing about. I was not aware that there was a fund.

14,521. Are you a member of that society?—I am.

14,522. You know nothing of their proceedings?—Yes; but I never had anything to do with their funds in any way whatever.

(Mr. Copeman.) Mr. Smith collected the funds and paid the amount into the National Provincial Bank, and I was requested by Mr. Tillett to draw cheques against that fund.

(Mr. Biron, to Mr. Copeman.) You received a certain amount of money from this gentleman (Mr. Smith) which you paid into a bank.

(Mr. Copeman.) He paid it in and I drew against it. I drew a cheque for the sheriff's charges and other expenses. The bank book will show the disbursements.

14,523. (Mr. Mansfield, to the witness.) You had nothing to do with the organisation fund?—Certainly not.

14,524. (Mr. Dowdeswell.) It was a guarantee fund for the expenses of the election?—It was a guarantee fund for the expenses of Mr. Tillett's election, and after the election was lost I went to several of the guarantors and said, "Now, instead of having "money to return you we shall require more money "for the purpose of the inquiry," and they allowed the amount they had guaranteed to remain for that purpose.

14,525. And Mr. Copeman has disbursed that for the purpose of satisfying claims in respect of the election?—Just so.

14,526. (To Mr. Copeman.) Who disbursed that fund?—I drew the cheques. Mr. Stevens, Mr. Tillett's agent, was the principal person who called upon me.

14,527. Can you tell us to whom you gave every cheque you drew?—I will do so if you will allow me to get the book.

(Mr. Dowdeswell.) We shall be glad if you will do so.

(Mr. Smith.) And do you require also a list of the guarantees?

(Mr. Dowdeswell.) If you please.

HENRY PLEASANTS sworn and examined. H. Pleasants.

14,528. (Mr. Biron.) What are you?—A shoemaker.

14,529. For whom did you vote at the last election?—For Sir Henry Stracey.

14,530. At what time of the day did you vote?—Between 3 and 4.

14,531. Did you get anything for your vote?—No.

14,532. Were you at Mackley's when you left to go and vote?—I went from Mr. Mackley's.

14,533–4. Was it Mackley's of the "Woolpack?"—I do not know the sign.

14,535. Did you see Mr. Hardiment there?—Not that I know of; I do not know the man.

14,536. Did you see any man there giving money to the men?—No, I never saw any man give money.

14,537. How long had you been at Mackley's?—I was at work till 2 o'clock.

14,538. You were at Mackley's from 2 o'clock till you voted?—No, I did not go out till 2 o'clock in the afternoon, and I was going that way, and I felt dry and went into Mr. Mackley's to get a glass of ale, and I had a glass or two of ale and then went and voted.

14,539. Had you been canvassed before?—Yes, I had.

14,540. By whom?—By Mr. Sutton and young Mr. Gilbert.

14,541. Did you promise your vote?—No.

14,542. Why did you not?—I do not know about that.

14,543. Oh yes, you do. Had you not made up your mind?—No.

14,544. What induced you to make up your mind at last?—Because I thought Mr. Stracey to be a more fit man to be a member for this city than Mr. Tillett was.

14,545. Did that come into your head about 3 o'clock in the afternoon, or shortly before the poll closed?—No, I thought that all the way through.

14,546. Then why did you not promise your vote?—I did not promise Mr. Sutton and Mr. Gilbert, because they are on the opposite party.

14,547. Did anybody ask you to vote for Sir Henry Stracey?—No.

14,548. Not at all?—No.

14,549. Are you sure of that?—Yes, that is the way I intended to vote all the way through.

14,550–1. Did nobody ask you to vote for him in the afternoon of the polling day?—No, no one.

14,552. Who did you see at Mackley's?—There were several people there, but I do not know who they were.

14,553. Oh yes, you do?—No, I do not know that I can mention one name.

14,554. Did you see Mackley?—Yes, I think Mr. Mackley was in the way.

14,555. Did he give you anything?—No, I did not get a farthing. I got a glass of ale and paid for it.

14,556. Did you get anything afterwards?—No, not a farthing.

14,557. Did you go back to Mackley's after you had voted?—No.

14,558. Where did you go?—I went home.

THIRTEENTH DAY.

H. Pleasants.

2 Sept. 1869.

14,559. Did your wife say anything to you that day about voting?—I have not got one.

14,560. Did you see a man named Hutchins at Mackley's?—Not that I know of.

14,561. You did not go there with your eyes shut, did you?—I did not take any notice of anyone there. I went in and got a glass of ale. That was all I wanted.

14,562. How long were you there?—I do not know. I went in there after 3 o'clock and went and voted before 4, so I was not there long.

14,563. (Mr. Dowdeswell.) What time did you go to work that morning?—About 5 o'clock.

14,564. For whom were you at work then?—I am working for my master, Mr. Nockalls.

14,565. What were you doing for him?—I am a shoemaker by trade, and I was at work in my trade.

14,566. Are you paid by the day?—No, I am paid what I earn in the day.

14,567. Are you paid by the hour or the day, or by the job, or what?—I work and get so much a pair for the work I do.

14,568. Do you work at home or at your master's?—I work at home.

14,569. Were you not out of your house between the time you came to work that morning and the time of your going to Mackley's?—No, I could not go to vote before I did.

14,570. The polling place was close to your house, was it not?—It was not far off.

14,571. Why then did you not go and vote instead of loitering about a public-house?—Because I had work that I was obliged to get done at a certain time, so I could not go before.

14,572. How came it that you could not go out that short distance and vote?—I had not time.

14,573. How came you to go to the public-house before you went to vote?—I had not time to go till I had done my work.

14,574. When did you make up your mind to vote for Sir Henry Stracey?—As soon as the election came on, and before it did come on.

14,575. Did you tell anybody how you intended to vote?—No, I would never tell any man my business.

14,576. How came you not to tell somebody that you intended to vote for Sir Henry Stracey?—I did not tell anybody.

14,577. Did you think you might get something if you kept it a secret?—No, I did not think about that.

14,578. Did anybody suggest to you that it would be better to keep from voting, and that something would be moving in the course of the afternoon?—No; my work was in a hurry and I could not get out to vote before I did.

14,579. Had you no conversation with anybody about voting that day?—No.

14,580. Did you hear anything said at Mackley's about voting?—No.

14,581. Nobody was talking about it?—They might be talking about it, but I did not take notice of it if they were. I got my glass of ale and went and voted.

14,582. Was not the election the great topic of the day?—Of course it was.

14,583. And did you not talk about it?—No, I do not know that I did I am sure.

14,584. Did anybody talk to you about it?—No.

14,585. Did you hear the name of Hardiment mentioned there?—No, not that I know of. I do not recollect it.

14,586. Did you hear of anybody having sovereigns upstairs on the landing?—No.

14,587. Do you mean to say you did not hear that there was a man upstairs on the landing with sovereigns?—No, I did not hear anything about it.

14,588. Did Mackley say anything to you about money?—No.

14,589. Not a word?—No.

14,590. Did you receive any money from anybody that day?—Not a farthing.

14,591. Did nobody offer you any money?—No.

J. Crotch.

JOHN CROTCH sworn and examined.

14,592. (Mr. Dowdeswell.) Were you a voter at the last election?—Yes.

14,593. Did you vote?—Yes.

14,594. For whom did you vote?—For Sir Henry Stracey.

14,595. What were you paid for voting?—Four and ninepence.

14,596. Was that taking 3*d.* discount off 5*s.* for ready money?—Yes.

14,597. (Mr. Biron.) It was 4*s.* 9*d.* and a pint of ale?—Yes, and he took part of it.

14,598. (Mr. Dowdeswell.) Who paid it to you?—John Houghton.

14,599. Did you see Houghton pay anybody else?—No.

14,600. Did you threaten to peach on Houghton?—No, I never said a word to him.

14,601. Did Houghton come to you before he went away on the election petition?—No.

14,602. You had not frightened him, then?—No; He frightened himself, I suppose.

14,603. (Mr. Biron.) Had you told anybody about Houghton giving you the 5*s.* before the petition?—No, I had never mentioned a word about it.

D. Houghton.

DAVID HOUGHTON sworn and examined.

14,604. (Mr. Mansfield.) What are you by trade?—An innkeeper.

14,605. Were you very busy at the last election?—No.

14,606. Not at all?—No, not at all.

14,607. For whom did you vote?—Sir Henry Stracey.

14,608. At what time in the day did you vote?—Between 11 and 12.

14,609. In which ward is your inn?—The fourth.

14,610. Who is your brewer?—Mr. Bircham, of Reepham.

14,611. Did you canvass any voter?—Not one.

14,612. Were there any voters hanging about in your house on that day?—Not that I am aware of.

14,613. Are you certain of that?—Not to my knowledge, at all events.

14,614. Was any canvassing going on in your house?—Not the slightest.

14,615. Was much beer ordered there?—No.

14,616. None at all?—None at all; not a pint, nor half a pint, that I am aware of.

14,617. Did you hear of any money being paid to voters that day?—Not a farthing.

14,618. Did you pay anything yourself?—Not a farthing.

14,619. Had you anything to do with the previous election?—Not beyond voting. I have never been canvassed becasue I have always voted one side.

14,620. Have you ever promised anybody money for his vote?—Never.

14,621. Have you ever received any money yourself?—Never a penny.

14,622. What is your house rated at?—I cannot tell. I do not remember exactly.

14,623. Forty or fifty pounds?—Yes, forty pounds or fifty pounds.

WILLIAM NICKALLS, junior, sworn and examined.

14,624. (Mr. Dowdeswell.) Are you a voter?—Yes.

14,625. Were you a voter at the last election?—Yes.

14,626. Did you vote?—Yes.

14,627. For whom did you vote?—Sir Henry Stracey.

14,628. Were you a check clerk?—No.

14,629. Were you employed on the day of the election?—Not at all.

14,630. Or before the election?—Nor yet before the election. I never had a situation in my life.

14,631. I want to know whether you were in any way paid for any services on the day of the election?—No.

14,632-3. Or before the election?—Or before the election.

14,634. Were you not employed as check clerk in No. 2 compartment in the eighth ward?—That is a son of mine.

14,635. Is he a voter?—No.

14,636. When did you make the arrangement for your son?—I did not make it at all; he went and got the situation himself.

14,637. You had nothing whatever to do with it?—I had nothing whatever to do with it at all.

14,638. It was not promised you if you would vote?—No.

14,639. No arrangement of that kind was made?—No.

14,640. Did you receive anything for voting?—No.

14,641. Did you get any promise?—No, nor a promise; not the value of a glass of beer.

14,642. Do you know of anything being paid anybody for their votes?—No; I take very little interest in electioneering. I just go and vote myself. I never ask anybody.

14,643. Have you been a voter before?—Yes, these 26 years.

14,644. Did you ever receive anything or promise anything to anybody for voting?—No.

14,645. Have you always voted on the Conservative side?—Yes; I always go and vote on the Conservative side, independent of everybody.

HENRY BRADBURY sworn and examined.

H. Bradbury

14,646. (Mr. Biron.) What are you?—A dealer.

14,647. Do you live in Parker's Yard, St. Martin's at Oak?—Yes.

14,648. Were you at the "Woolpack" on the day of the election?—Yes.

14,649. For how long?—Several hours.

14,650. When did you go there, in the morning?—About 11 o'clock.

14,651. There were a lot of voters, were there not, there?—There was a lot of people there.

14,652. In the house?—Yes.

14,653. Do you not know they were voters?—I do not know they were all voters.

14,654. A good many of them were voters?—I daresay they were.

14,655. You know they were, do you not?—No, I do not.

14,656. You believe they were?—I believe there were some of them there.

14,657. Did you see Hardiment there?—No.

14,658. Not at all?—No, not at all.

14,659. Do you remember Mr. Harper coming there?—Yes, I do, twice.

14,660. Do you remember a cart being outside at the "Woolpack" when he was there?—I did not see no cart. I remember Mr. Harper coming there with a Mr. Baldwin, Mr. Theodore Madge, and another man.

14,661. Do you recollect when he came with Fisher?—I do not know about Fisher. I do not know the other man; there was four of them came.

14,662. Do you recollect them driving up in a cart?—No, they came walking into the bar.

14,663. Did you see them more than once?—Twice.

14,664. When was the second time?—About 3 o'clock.

14,665. Did you see Harper try to get up into the room upstairs?—No, below in a cellar.

14,666. You prevented him?—No, I did not.

14,667. Did you say he must not come that way?—No, not me. I sat against the door on a form; not against the door he went through but against the front door.

14,668. Do I understand you to say you did not prevent his going anywhere?—No, certainly not.

14,669. Into any room?—Certainly not.

14,670. Did you say anything to him?—I did when he came the second time.

14,671. I am speaking of the second time?—I heard what he said to Mr. Mackley; he asked what these men were waiting for, and Mackley says, "For a day's pay I suppose." He says, "How many are there of them"? Mackley said, Several, and he says, "Will you give me a quarter of an hour to get the money?" And he came back and brought the money in his pocket like this, and says, "Where are the men, let me see them, I have got the money." I stood right at the back of him.

14,672. Did you see the money?—No, I did not see it; that is what I should like to have got hold on.

14,673. Was Hardiment upstairs at this time?—I do not know; I did not go upstairs.

14,674. You heard what passed between him and Mackley?—Yes, and I heard him say to Mr. Mackley, "Is Hardiment upstairs?" Mackley says, "I do not know, there is somebody upstairs," and he says, "If he is upstairs the election is all over."

14,675. Did you hear him say to Mackley, "Hardi-"ment is upstairs buying men, you have sold us "Mackley"?—No, I did not hear him say that. I heard him say, "If Hardiment is upstairs the election is all over."

14,676. Where was this bench upon which you were sitting?—Just against the door, the bar door.

14,677. Was that close by the door that would lead upstairs?—No, just as you go in the house the front door.

14,678. Could you see people passing up and down stairs where you sat?—No, I could not; they can get in the back way.

14,679. Did you hear that Hardiment was there?—I heard Mr. Harper say to Mr. Mackley, "If Hardiment is upstairs the election is all over."

14,680. What did Mackley say to that?—He said, "There is somebody upstairs, I do not know who he is."

14,681. Did you not hear him say that Hardiment was upstairs?—No.

14,682. Did you not hear him say that Hardiment's cart was at the door?—I did not see the cart.

14,683. Do you mean to say you do not know very well that Hardiment was upstairs?—No, I do not; I saw him in the street, up and down, backwards and forwards.

14,684. Has Hardiment given you anything for what you did that day?—For what?

14,685. For work?—Not he or anybody else.

14,686. Have you ever told anybody that Hardiment gave you 2*l.*?—No.

14,687. Did you vote?—Yes.

14,688. When did you vote?—A little before 4.

14,689. Why did you not vote before?—Because I knew when the poll was shut up, and I voted when I liked. I never knew that there was anything to compel anybody to vote. If the poll had closed at 5 o'clock I should have voted a little before 5.

THIRTEENTH DAY.

H. Bradbury.

2 Sept. 1869.

14,690. Do you mean to say that 2*l.* was not paid to you for voting ?—Certainly not.

14,691. Was anything paid to you ?—No, nothing.

14,692. After you voted was anything paid to you? —No.

14,693. Have you said since the election that you had 2*l.* ?—When ?

14,694. Since the election ?—I have had several 2*l.* since then.

14,695. I mean 2*l.* for voting ?—No.

14,696. Have you said that you kept guard upon the men at Mackley's all day and would not let any of them out of your sight except to go in the yard ?—No, it is not likely.

14,697. Whether it is likely or not did you say it ? —No, certainly not ; I would as soon vote for 10 Straceys as one Tillett. I do not like the lawyers.

14,698. Did you ever speak to Fuller about what you had done on the day of the election ?—What Fuller ?

14,699. Any Fuller ?—No, never.

14,700. You did not speak to any man of the name of Fuller ?—No.

14,701. Did you tell anybody that you took three persons up to the poll ?—No.

14,702. To whom you had to pay half a sovereign each ?—No, certainly not.

14,703. Did you have a fight with a man at the poll that day ?—No, only young Tillett wanted not to record my vote because I had no card, and I said, " Sir, you must record my vote for I am a freeman ; " he wanted to put me back.

14,704. Did anybody hit you outside the poll booth at the " Royal " ?—No ; if he did I should hit him again. I should not care who he was.

14,705. Did you see Wiseman that day ?—No.

14,706. I mean old Wiseman ?—No.

14,707. Did you see Freestone the baker at the " Woolpack " that day ?—I see him come into the bar.

14,708. Did you see him go upstairs ?—You have to go through a little door and go in a cellar.

14,709. Did you see him come in with Hardiment ? —No, I did not.

14,710. Do you know Hardiment ?—Yes, I see him four or five times a week, sometimes four or five times a day.

14,711. Do you mean to say you do not know that Hardiment was at the " Woolpack " that day ?—I did not know that he was. I heard that he was afterwards, but I never see him.

14,712. Did you hear anybody say that Hardiment had given the men money to vote ?—I heard Hudson say afterwards that Hardiment gave him a pound.

14,713. Which Hudson was that ? — Thomas Hudson.

14,714. Do you mean Hudson or Hutchins ?—Hutchins.

14,715. Did you not hear anybody else talk about it ?—No.

14,716. Do you know nothing more than what you have said as to what took place at the " Woolpack " that day ?—No.

14,717. (Mr. Mansfield.) If Freestone says he came in with Hardiment that is not true ?—He might have come in with Hardiment, but I never saw him.

14,718. If Freestone swears that he came in with Hardiment that is not true ?—No ; Hardiment is big enough to see. I see Freestone come in alone.

14,719. You were at the door all day ?—I went in to get my dinner.

14,720. At what time was that ?—1 o'clock.

14,721. How long does it take you to dine ?—It is according to what I have got to eat.

14,722. What time did you go back ?—A little after 2.

14,723. And remained there the rest of the day ?—Yes.

14,724. You saw people go in and out ?—Yes, certainly.

14,725. You did not see Hardiment go in or out ?—No ; there is a back gate which you can go in by and get upstairs without anybody seeing you if you are in the bar.

14,726. (Mr. Dowdeswell.) You were subpœnaed, were you not, to attend before Mr. Baron Martin ?—Yes.

14,727. You bolted out of the house immediately you got it ?—I would not get it ; he tried to serve it to me but I would not have it.

14,728. Why did you bolt away from the man who came to serve you with a subpœna ?—I knew nothing at all about it and wanted to have nothing to do with it.

14,729. That is your only reason ?—Yes, that is my only reason.

14,730. You say you saw Mr. Harper come in ?—Yes, most decidedly I did with three more people.

14,731. You say you saw him come in with his coat over his arm ?—That is the second time.

14,732. Who was with him then ?—Nobody, he was alone.

14,733. Did you hear a conversation upon the first occasion ?—No, I did not. They went into the cellar, and when they came out I heard Mr. Baldwin say to Theodore Madge and Harper, " There, you see I told " you what you would do ; you took us right into " the lion's mouth."

14,734. Did Harper, Mackley, and these other men go down into the cellar ?—No, they did not go into the cellar ; it is on a level floor.

14,735. Where did they go to and have this talk ? —Just against the cellar door.

14,736. They had a conversation with Mackley there ?—They did not stop three minutes.

14,737. They went in there and had a conversation ? —Yes.

14,738. All three ?—Mr. Harper, and Baldwin, and Theodore Madge stood just outside the door.

14,739. What became of the other man ?—He stopped outside.

14,740. Did you hear the conversation that took place upon that occasion ?—No, I did not.

14,741. You heard when they were coming away Baldwin or Madge say that he had taken him into the lion's mouth ?—Yes.

14,742. You have said that upon that occasion he said, " Give me a quarter of an hour " ?—No, not then ; Harper came back again.

14,743. He went away with those three ?—Yes.

14,744. When did he return ?—I should think it would be a few minutes before 3.

14,745. Did he speak to Mackley then ?—He went up to the bar to Mr. Mackley.

14,746. Was anybody present ?—Yes, three or four persons were present besides me.

14,747. Who else was present ?—Mr. Goodman heard it ; he stood at the back of me.

14,748. They could hear what was said ?—Yes ; he went up to Mackley, and he asked Mackley what the men were stopping there for, and he said, " I suppose a day's pay." He said, " How many of them are there ? " He says, " I do not know ;" and then he says, " Give me a quarter of an hour, and I will go to the committee room." He was only gone 14 minutes, because we watched the clock, and he stood with the money like this. I stood at the back of him, and I said, " Get hold of that."

14,749. You watched the clock ?—Yes.

14,750. Why did you watch the clock ?—To see whether he was back in time.

14,751. If he had not been back in time what did you intend to do ?—I do not know.

14,752. Why should you watch the clock ?—To see whether he came back in a quarter of an hour.

14,753. Why should you be so precise to a quarter of an hour ?—I do not know why I should.

14,754. Why should you be so particular to a quarter of an hour ?—I laid plenty of bets to see whether the man could do it in the quarter.

14,755. Did he come back in a quarter of an hour ? —Yes, he came back in 14 minutes. He had only to go into St. George's Middle Street; I should think I could do it in 10 minutes.

14,756. When he came back where did he go to?—He came into the bar.

14,757. Was Mrs. Mackley there?—No, there was only Mr. Mackley in the back of the bar.

14,758. Where were you?—Just behind Mr. Harper; just at the back of Mr. Harper, about a foot off.

14,759. Who was there besides?—Mr. Goodman and several more.

14,760. Can you mention any others?—I do not know whether Gilmore was there, and a man of the name of Jeremiah Cook.

14,761. They could hear what they said?—They were put on sentry at that house; I told them so as soon as they came.

14,762. They were there and could hear what was said?—I do not know.

14,763. They were close enough to hear?—If they were listening. There was a man of the name of Staff, and I told him that he was there sentry, and he went away.

14,764. When he came back his expression was that he had got the money?—Yes, and Mackley said to him, "I dare not let you go, there will be a row about it; I shall get in a row."

14,765. Mackley hesitated because he might get in a row?—Yes.

14,766. You are sure it was not Harper said, "Why Hardiment is upstairs"?—He said, "If Hardiment is upstairs the election is lost."

14,767. Did he ask Mackley whether Hardiment was upstairs?—Yes, he did, and Mackley said, "I do not know; there is somebody upstairs."

14,768. I suppose Mackley knows Hardiment very well?—I daresay he does; the man lives up at the top of the street, and he passes three or four times a day.

14,769. Did you see anyone go upstairs?—No, I could not; I was in the bar, and they came round the back way.

14,770. If Hardiment came in at the front door, must you have seen him?—Yes, I must have seen him.

14,771. Will you swear he did not come in at the front door?—Yes, while I was there.

14,772. Did you see Hardiment go out?—No; I must have seen him if he had gone out. If he went out at the bar door I must have seen him.

14,773. Did you see any man go upstairs?—No; I could not see them where I was.

14,774. Did you see any men pass?—They can go in at the back gate and go upstairs without my seeing them in the bar.

14,775. If they pass before the bar, you must see them?—I would see anybody pass to go upstairs.

14,776. If anybody went in to go upstairs they must have gone in at the back door?—No, I would not say "must;" there are three or four ways of getting up. They can get up two ways without going in at the front door.

14,777. If they went in at the front door and went upstairs, you must have seen them?—Yes.

14,778. You did not see any men come to the door, and crowd round the door, directly Harper came?—No.

14,779. You swear that?—I have sworn it.

14,780. You swear that a number of men did not follow Harper immediately at his back?—I do swear it.

14,781. You must have seen them if they had come?—Yes, I must have seen them if they had come in there.

14,782. You did not hear a single soul say anything about having received money in that house?—No.

14,783. And you did not dream about a single soul having received anything?—Very seldom I dream; I wish I did.

14,784. You did not dream that day?—No.

14,785. You had no notion that anybody received money in that house that day?—I do not say that.

14,786. You felt sure that not a single soul received money in that house on that day?—I never feel my way about. I always look my way about; my eyesight is good.

14,787. Did you inquire about who the gentleman was upstairs?—No, I had no occasion to.

14,788. Mackley came behind you, and was with you?—He was behind the bar.

14,789. You could talk to him?—What had I to talk to him about?

14,790. He is an acquaintance of yours?—I merely go in the man's house.

14,791. You never thought for a single instant that the man upstairs was paying money to voters?—No; I did not know there was a man upstairs.

14,792. Did not Mr. Mackley say there was a man upstairs?—He did say so, but I was not going to undertake to swear there was a man upstairs.

14,793. Did you not believe what Mr. Mackley said?—I should not believe what anybody said.

14,794. You do not believe anybody in Norwich?—Only myself.

14,795. What became of you after the time the summons was attempted to be served, from the time you were served with the summons to appear before Mr. Baron Martin at the time of the election inquiry?—I went after my business.

14,796. Where was that?—Up to Eye, where I am going to-morrow, I hope.

14,797. Did anybody pay you anything for going there?—I wish I had been paid.

14,798. You may wish it, and yet you may have got it?—I never got it.

14,799. Do you swear you never received anything for voting?—Certainly I will.

14,800. Nor a promise of anything?—No, never a promise.

14,801. Not a single farthing?—No, not a single farthing, nor yet a shilling; I tell you I am a thorough-bred Conservative, and I would rather vote for 10 Straceys than one Tillett.

14,802. (Mr. Biron.) Did you tell this story about Harper coming in with the money to anybody?—Yes, several; I told Mr. Baldwin of it over at Yarmouth races the other day.

14,803. Did you mention it before the petition?—I was not called up.

14,804. That is not my question. Did you mention it to anybody before the petition?—Yes, often enough, and so did Mackley and so did this Mr. Goodwin.

14,805. (Mr. Dowdeswell.) Do you mean to say that nobody induced you to go away when you were served with the summons?—No; I went away of my own accord. I was home in time. I was home before Baron Martin came. I was home the day before, and was about the whole time.

14,806. Did you receive information that the service upon you was good, and therefore you had better come over?—No.

14,807. Do you know that they took counsel's opinion as to whether the service upon you was good enough?—I do not know what they did.

14,808. Were you told that they took counsel's opinion as to whether the service that had been effected with the summons upon you before Mr. Baron Martin was good?—Where was I told that?

14,809. Were you told it?—No, certainly not; no one came to see me.

14,810. Were you not told that you must come over, for the service of the summons was good?—If anybody told me that I never heard him, and I never saw anybody to tell me so.

14,811. Did not somebody send to you to come back after you had gone away?—No.

14,812. (Mr. Biron.) Did you not receive a letter telling you you were to come back?—No, certainly not.

14,813. (Mr. Dowdeswell.) No communication was made to you of any sort or kind?—No; I received no communication from anybody.

THIRTEENTH DAY.

2 Sept. 1869.

Alfred Butcher sworn and examined.

A. Butcher.

14,814. (Mr. Dowdeswell.) Are you a voter?—Yes.

14,815. Did you vote at the last election?—Yes.

14,816. For whom did you vote?—Sir Henry Stracey.

14,817. Had anybody canvassed you for your vote before?—I think it was the Tuesday previous I was waited upon.

14,818. Did they canvass you for the Conservatives?—Yes.

14,819. Did you promise your vote?—I was so much engaged in my mind at that time that I did not promise.

14,820. You refused to give him a promise when he asked you for your vote on that particular day at half-past 1; what induced you to make up your mind?—I had no particular reason.

14,821. Did anybody come to you that day, or did you see anybody about voting?—Not anybody at all.

14,822. Did you not go out of your house that day?—I was not out more than an hour at a time, and that was to go on to the ground.

14,823. Were you in any public-house that morning?—No.

14,824. Did you receive anything for voting?—Not one farthing.

14,825. Or the promise of anything?—No.

E. Clarke.

Edmund Clarke sworn and examined.

14,826. (Mr. Mansfield.) Are you a voter?—Yes.

14,827. Is this the first time you have voted?—Yes.

14,828. For whom did you vote?—For Henry Stracey.

14,829. At what time in the day?—Just before 4, a few minutes before 4 o'clock.

14,830. For whom do you work?—I am working for a man of the name of Brewster now, a master bricklayer.

14,831. What made you vote so late?—I was at work outside the gates, and did not leave off until dinner time, and unfortunately I had not the number of my register with me, and I had to get the number, and then I went and voted.

14,832. Did you go into any public-houses?—Yes, only one house to have a glass of ale, and that was to ascertain where I was to get the number of my register.

14,833. What house was that?—The "Flower in Hand," in Pitt Street.

14,834. Did anybody ask you for your vote?—No.

14,835. Did you receive anything for your vote?—No.

14,836. Were you promised anything?—No, nothing at all; no one even canvassed me.

L. Warminger.

Lambert Warminger sworn and examined.

14,837. (Mr. Biron.) What are you?—A weaver.

14,838. For whom did you vote at the last election?—Mr. Stracey.

14,839. Had you been canvassed for your vote?—No; nobody ever asked me to vote for either the one or the other. I was never asked.

14,840. You got nothing for voting?—No, I never do.

14,841. Or the promise of anything?—No, I never get anything for voting. I have been a voter for 48 years, and never got a penny in my life.

J. Brown.

John Brown sworn and examined.

14,842. (Mr. Dowdeswell.) Are you voter in this city?—Yes.

14,843. Did you vote at the last election?—Yes.

14,844. For whom did you vote?—Russell.

14,845. At what time in the day?—About half-past 3.

14,846. Had you been canvassed before for your vote?—Yes.

14,847. By whom?—By a cabinet maker here.

14,848. Did you promise your vote?—No, not to anybody.

14,849. Having refused to promise your vote, how came it that at half-past 3 that day you made up your mind to vote for Russell?—Because I was busy at my work.

14,850. Having refused to promise your vote, how came you to change your mind and vote for Russell?—Yes, I did.

14,851. What made you make up your mind at that time of the day to vote for Russell?—I had no particular reason for so doing.

14,852. No reason at all?—No.

14,853. It came into your head at that hour to go and vote for Russell, did it?—Yes, just so.

14,854. Did anybody come and offer you any money?—No, not a farthing.

14,855. Did you not want some money for your vote?—No.

14,856. Are you sure of that?—Yes, I am.

14,857. Did you not refuse to give a promise because you were in hopes that there would be some money going?—No.

14,858. Did anybody promise you any money for voting?—No, not a farthing,

14,859. Is there another man of your name that lives in your yard?—Yes.

H. Newman.

Henry Newman sworn and examined.

14,860. (Mr. Mansfield.) What are you?—A shopkeeper.

14,861. What are you rated at?—9*l.* assessment.

14,862. For whom did you vote at the last election?—Sir Henry Stracey.

14,863. At what time of the day?—20 minutes after 12, as nearly as I can tell you.

14,864. Had you promised your vote?—Yes.

14,865. When?—When they met me in the "Marquis of Granby."

14,866. Who did you promise it to?—Mr. Patteson, Mr. Samuel Fletcher, and Mr. Dudley Stracey, and I think there were three or four more gentlemen besides.

14,867. Have you received anything for your vote?—No.

14,868. Have you been promised anything?—No.

14,869. Have you promised or paid anybody else for their vote?—No.

JOHN HUNT sworn and examined.

14,870. (Mr. Biron.) What are you?—I am managing clerk to Mr. William Tillett, solicitor

14,871. For whom did you vote?—For Mr. Tillett.

14,872. At what hour of the day?—A little after 3.

14,873. Did you get anything for your vote?—No.

14,874. Or the promise of anything?—No, I would not have voted if I had had anything promised.

14,875. Did you promise anybody anything for voting?—No, I took no part in the election beyond voting.

ROBERT LEECH, jun., sworn and examined.

14,876. (Mr. Dowdeswell.) Are you a voter?—Yes, I am.

14,877. For whom did you vote at the last election?—Sir Henry Stracey.

14,878. At what time?—Between 3 and 4.

14,879. Where were you during the early part of that day?—Part of the time at home and part of the time up the town.

14,880. Wandering about?—Not particularly wandering about.

14,881. Why did you not vote before that time in the day?—I had not made up my mind to vote at all.

14,882. What money had you for voting?—Well, a small piece of gold.

14,883. A half sovereign I suppose?—I believe so.

14,884. That is the current coin of the realm here; who gave it to you?—I cannot say. I never saw the man before in my life.

14,885. Or since?—I do not believe I have; not to the best of my knowledge.

14,886. Where did he give it to you?—I received it in at the "Rosemary" tavern, St. Mary's.

14,887. Is that Cartwright's beerhouse?—Yes.

14,888. How many of you got it?—I was only singular in the room; there was only me and the gentleman who gave it to me.

14,889. He was a gentleman, was he?—I believe he was; he was in the shape of a man, whether or no. I took him to be a gentleman when he gave me half a sovereign.

14,890. Did you never hear his name?—Not to the best of my knowledge; at least I do not know the gentleman.

14,891. Did you never hear his name?—No.

14,892. Did you ask Mr. Cartwright who that kind gentleman was?—I did not; I never spoke to Mr. Cartwright.

14,893. I should have had the curiosity to know who it was who was so liberal with his money?—I did not know Mr. Cartwright.

14,894. (Mr. Biron.) The man who gives half sovereigns was the right sort of acquaintance to make?—There was only one man in the room. They were only allowed in one at a time.

14,895. How many went in before you?—I cannot say.

14,896. Several?—I do not know I am sure.

14,897. Where were you before you went in?—Outside.

14,898. Were you called in?—I was not.

14,899. How did you get in?—I walked in.

14,900. How came you to know when it came to your turn?—I did not know anything about that. I saw a cart stop at the door, and I saw one or two go in, and I had a curiosity to walk in myself.

14,901. Were there two men in the cart, and did one man get out and one stay in?—Not to the best of my knowledge.

14,902. You do not recollect that?—I do not.

14,903. How long after the cart stopped at the door did you go in?—Why not above a minute. It was not above two minutes before I was in and out again and voted.

14,904. Sharp was the word?—It was so.

14,905. It was sharp with some others as well?—I do not know. I can only answer for myself.

14,906. You see a gentleman go into Cartwright's beerhouse; because a gentleman goes in you would not go in, unless somebody gave you the idea that there was something right?—I had no idea at all; only on my own supposition there was something stirring I thought, and I thought I would be watching.

14,907. You were wide awake?—It appears like it. I was not asleep. I can only answer for myself.

14,908. There were others wide awake?—I cannot say.

14,909. Were there a good number outside?—One, I think, came up at the present time the cart stopped.

14,910. You saw several others there?—There were lots of people, but not in the house; it is a very small house.

14,911. Did you meet some people coming out as you went in?—Certainly not. I came direct out and went to the poll.

14,912. You went right away?—Yes, I went and voted, and went right home direct.

14,913. You do not know anybody that was there?—No, I do not.

WILLIAM VARVEL sworn and examined.

14,914. (Mr. Mansfield.) What are you?—A butcher.

14,915. Where do you live?—In St. Stephen's.

14,916. For whom did you vote?—Mr. Russell and Sir Henry Stracey.

14,917. Who asked you to vote?—I had several asked me.

14,918. Who was the last man who asked you, in consequence of which you voted?—I cannot say.

14,919. Did you see Captain Croker that day?—Yes.

14,920. Did he ask you to vote?—Yes.

14,921. What time in the day was that?—I should think about half-past 3.

14,922. Did you go and vote then?—I think it was about three or four minutes afterwards.

14,923. Did you receive anything for your vote?—No.

14,924. Did you go to a public-house?—No.

14,925. Are you quite certain of that?—Yes.

14,926. Have you received anything since for your vote?—No.

14,927. Are you a butcher on your own account?—Yes.

14,928. At what is your house rated?—I stand 30*l.* a year.

ROBERT LEECH, jun., recalled and further examined.

14,929. (Mr. Dowdeswell.) What sort of a person was this man that gave you the half sovereign?—I think he was a lightish man.

14,930. Tall or short, or what?—He was sitting.

14,931. Light hair, fair?—I believe he was, to the best of my knowledge.

14,932. Had he a beard?—Well, I believe he had.

14,933. Was it light hair, not red, but sandy?—Light, flaxen. I never saw the gentleman before.

14,934. Should you know him again if you saw him?—I believe not.

THIRTEENTH DAY.

2 Sept. 1869.

Francis Gittings sworn and examined.

F. Gittings.

14,935. (Mr. Biron.) What are you?—A master bootmaker.

14,936. For whom did you vote?—Mr. Russell.

14,937. At what hour in the day?—Between 3 and 4.

14,938. Why did you not vote sooner?—Because I had a job in hand that I thought I would finish before I went to vote.

14,939. How far is the polling place from your work?—Faith's Lane.

14,940. How far is that off?—Three quarters of a mile.

14,941. From your polling place?—Yes.

14,942. Did you get anything for your vote?—Not a halfpenny.

14,943. Or the promise of anything?—No.

14,944. Did you promise or give anybody anything for his vote?—No, I never promised anything of the sort.

14,945. Have you any knowledge of corrupt practices beyond what you have heard upon the proceedings before Mr. Baron Martin and this inquiry?—No, not any.

John Copeman recalled and further examined.

J. Copeman.

14,946. (Mr. Dowdeswell.) Have you the accounts?—This (producing it) is the banking book, and consists of money paid in by Mr. Smith, and is debited with cheques drawn out by myself. There (producing it) is the cheque book.

14,947. (Mr. Biron.) It amounts to as nearly as possible 1,500*l.*?—I have not cast it up.

14,948. (Mr. Dowdeswell.) I see, "November 12th, cheque to Stevens, 50*l.*" What is that for?—That is Mr. Stevens, the electoral agent, Mr. Tillett's agent.

14,949. Then on the 19th, "Stevens, 150*l.*; ditto, 25*l.*; ditto, 100*l.*;" and then on December 17th, "A. Tillett, 100*l.*" What was that?—That is Abel Tillett: that was on account of the petition. He is the solicitor who conducted the petition and got up the case here in the city.

14,950. There is Tillett again, 50*l.*; Stevens, 400*l.*?—That is the item he mentioned in his evidence.

14,951. Who is Mr. Foster?—The Under Sheriff.

14,952. Abel Tillett and Stevens are the persons who have received the whole of this fund, except the balance which is in the banker's hands?—Yes.

14,953. You know nothing more?—No, nothing more. Mr. Smith will give you the account of the fund, the source from whence that money came.

Joseph de Carle Smith recalled and further examined.

J. de C. Smith.

14,954. (Mr. Dowdeswell.) Have you got the account of this fund?—I have (producing it) a copy of the account, which I found in my drawer just now, copied soon after the election, and I preferred to bring that rather than making a fresh one.

14,955. It is correct?—It is correct as far as I remember. There may have been the addition of a guinea, or something of that sort, but I think nothing more.

14,956. Those are the sums you received?—Yes, those are the sums which my own personal friends, for I asked no one else, guaranteed towards the election.

14,957. 1,605*l.* 14*s.* 6*d.*?—Yes, that is the amount; I believe it is quite correct, though I have not gone through it.

14,958. This was for the election expenses?—That was a guarantee list for election expenses.

14,959. Utterly unconnected with the petition?—In the first instance it was, but after the election——

14,960. If you will pardon me, my question is, whether this was wholly unconnected with the petition, and I can show you that it is so, because I find here two sums put down against the petition?—That has nothing whatever to do with it; that ought not to be on that paper. I will explain it; I merely put that memorandum at the time on the paper because I heard Sir William Russell say that he would pay 100*l.* himself towards the expenses of the petition, and I heard Mr. Coaks say the same thing.

14,961. This was a mixed fund for the purposes of the petition, as well as for the purposes of the election?—The fund was raised as a guarantee fund for the election alone, but when the election was over I went to several of the men who guaranteed the money, and said, "We shall want the whole of the money for the petition," otherwise I should have had only a certain rate to charge them; and they all said, "Keep it, by all means."

14,962. You used the whole fund they guaranteed?—Yes, certainly.

14,963. You can leave this list with us?—Yes, certainly.

Edmund Bunn sworn and examined.

E. Bunn.

14,964. (Mr. Mansfield.) What are you?—A bookbinder.

14,965. For whom did you vote at the last election?—Sir Henry Stracey.

14,966. At what time did you give your vote?—20 minutes past 8 in the morning.

14,967. Had you promised your vote?—No, I had no one to canvass me from either party.

14,968. Where were you in the course of the day, after you voted?—Sometimes at work, and sometimes walking about, as most people.

14,969. Were you at any of the public-houses?—I do not know, without I was in for a glass.

14,970. Where?—Sometimes about the market, and sometimes in at home.

14,971. Were you at the "Woolpack?"—No, I was not the whole of the day.

14,972. Have you received anything for your vote?—No, I never did.

14,973. Were you promised anything?—No, never.

14,974. Was this the first time you voted?—No; 35 years I have been a voter.

14,975. Did you vote at the last election?—Yes.

14,976. For whom did you vote then?—Waters I think it was.

14,977. Did you receive anything then for your vote?—No, I never did.

14,978. Have you had nothing whatever to do with any bribery at this election?—No, never.

Robert Alexander Madge sworn and examined.

R. A. Madge.

14,979. (Mr. Biron.) What are you?—I am a clerk.

14,980. Have you a vote?—Yes.

14,981. Did you vote at the last election?—Yes.

14,982. For whom?—For Sir Henry Stracey, about 11 o'clock.

14,983. Did you get anything for your vote?—No.

14,984. Or the promise of anything?—No.

14,985. Did you promise anybody else anything for voting?—No.

14,986. Or for having voted?—No.

14,987. Were you outside Clarke's beerhouse on the afternoon of the polling day?—No.

14,988. Or outside Mackley's?—No; I think you are referring to a Mr. Madge who lives lower down the street, named Theodore Madge.

14,989. During the whole of the polling day what were you doing after you voted?—I am sure I hardly know. I was attending about my own house.

14,990. You were about your own business?—Yes.

THOMAS TAYLOR sworn and examined. T. Taylor.

14,991. (Mr. Dowdeswell.) Are you a voter?—Yes.

14,992. Did you vote at the last election?—Yes.

14,993. At what time?—Between 10 and 11.

14,994. For whom did you vote?—Mr. Stracey.

14,995. Where had you been that morning?—At work.

14,996. For whom?—For my master.

14,997. What are you?—A horsehair weaver.

14,998. Did not somebody give something to you for voting?—No.

14,999. Had you been canvassed for your vote?—I was canvassed, I believe, but I did not vote for the blues.

15,000. Did you say you would not vote for them?—I told them I thought I should vote purple.

15,001. Who asksd you to vote for Sir Henry Stracey?—No one; I had a paper come that was sent by post. No one came to me.

15,002. Are you sure no one spoke to you that morning and offered you some money?—No, not a soul.

15,003. Or promised you some work?—No. I work for Mr. Gunton.

15,004. Do you know which way Mr. Gunton voted?—No.

15,005. Had he canvassed you and asked you to vote for Sir Henry Stracey?—I think Mr. Gunton is a blue.

15,006. Are you sure you voted independent?—Yes, and never had a farthing.

15,007. Had you voted at former elections?—No; this was my first vote.

15,008. Have you had any rates paid for you?—No; I paid them all myself.

15,009. Have you had any money furnished to pay rates?—No, not a farthing.

GIOVANNI BIANCHIA sworn and examined. G. Bianchia.

15,010. (Mr. Mansfield.) What are you by trade?—Artist.

15,011. For whom do you work?—For myself; for whomsoever likes to employ me.

15,012. Is this the first time you were a voter?—Oh no; I have had a vote more than 30 years.

15,013. Have you always voted?—No, not always; about 20 years.

15,014. Upon which side have you generally voted?—I have generally voted the other side, except this time.

15,015. About what time did you vote?—10 o'clock.

15,016. Did anybody ask you to vote?—No.

15,017. What made you change your party this time?—Because I promised Sir Henry Stracey.

15,018. To whom did you give that promise?—To him himself.

15,019. Did he canvass you himself?—No; about 10 years back I was working for him, and at the time I told him if ever he came to Norwich I would vote for him.

15,020. That is a good reason enough. Have you ever received any money for your vote?—No, never.

15,021. At any time in your life at Norwich?—No, never.

15,022. No promise?—No.

15,023. Have you ever had your rates paid for you?—No.

15,024. Have you ever asked anybody else to vote and promised them anything?—No.

15,025. You have not been employed in that sort of work?—No; I generally vote early and then go to work.

15,026. Which side do you vote at municipal elections?—The Liberal side.

15,027. Is there much money going at municipal elections?—I do not know, because I do not interfere with it.

WILLIAM JAMES BURRELL sworn and examined. W. J. Burrell.

15,028. (Mr. Biron.) What are you?—A baker.

15,029. For whom did you vote at the last election?—Tillett and Russell.

15,030. At what hour in the day?—About 20 minutes after 12.

15,031. Did you get anything for voting?—No.

15,032. Or any promise of anything?—No, not any.

15,033. Did you promise anybody money for voting?—No.

15,034. Or for having voted?—No.

15,035. (Mr. Dowdeswell.) Do you know of any money having been paid to anybody to vote?—No, not a farthing.

WILLIAM MOORE sworn and examined. W. Moore.

15,036. (Mr. Dowdeswell.) Are you a voter?—Yes.

15,037. Did you vote at the last election?—Yes.

15,038. For whom did you vote?—Sir Henry Stracey.

15,039. At what time did you vote?—12 o'clock.

15,040. Had you promised your vote?—No, I never saw anybody that came and solicited me for it.

15,041. Had anybody asked you for your vote that day?—No.

15,042. Did you get or were you promised anything?—No, nothing at all.

15,043. Is this the first time you have been a voter?—No, I voted at the last election.

15,044. Did you get or were you promised anything on the former occasion?—No, not a farthing.

15,045. Which side have you always voted?—On the Tory side.

JEREMIAH TILLETT sworn and examined. J. Tillett.

15,046. (Mr. Mansfield.) You are a fishmonger, I believe?—Yes.

15,047. For whom did you vote at the last election?—Sir Henry Stracey.

15,048. At what time in the day did you vote?—Between 3 and 4 o'clock.

15,049. What made you vote so late?—I had a little business to go after for my governor.

15,050. In what part of the town do you carry on your business? Not far from the polling place, is it?—Not far.

15,051. You had been out before during the day?

THIRTEENTH DAY.

J. Tillett.

2 Sept. 1869.

—Yes, I was riding about in my master's cart about my business.

15,052. Who asked you to vote ?—Not anyone.

15,053. Who paid you to vote ?—No one.

15,054. Have you been paid anything since ?—No.

15,055. Have you been promised anything since ?—No.

15,056. Do you know Cartwright's shop ?—No.

15,057. Do you know Cartwright's beerhouse ?—No, not that I know of.

15,058. What beerhouses were you at during the polling day ?—I was at Mr. Appleton's, down at St. James'.

15,059. What is the sign ?—The "King's Head," St. James'.

15,060. Were any voters there with you ?—No, I never see any.

15,061. Do you know Hardiment ?—No.

15,062. Did you never see him to your knowledge ?—No.

15,063. Did anyone else offer you any money that day ?—No.

15,064. Nor before ?—No.

T. Burrell.

THOMAS BURRELL sworn and examined.

15,065. (Mr. Biron.) What are you ?—I was a weaver when I could weave, but I am not a weaver now.

15,066. Did you not vote at the last election ?—Yes.

15,067. For whom ?—For Sir Henry Stracey and Mr. Russell.

15,068. At what time in the day ?—Some time in the afternoon ; it was after 2 o'clock.

15,069. Why did you not vote sooner ?—I had a mind not to vote sooner.

15,070. Why was that ?—I had a mind to vote against Mr. Tillett.

15,071. Why did you not do it sooner ?—I did not like his actions.

15,072. If you did not like him why did you not do it sooner ?—That was because Mr. Tillett thought he was sure to be in.

15,073. Did you get anything for doing it ?—No.

15,074. Or a promise of anything ?—Nor a promise made me in no shape whatever.

15,075. Have you voted before ?—I voted free of expense.

15,076. Did you ever vote before at any other election ?—Oh yes ; ever since 1815 I have been a freeman.

15,077. For whom used you to vote, the Tories or Radicals ?—I voted for Richard Gurney, and all that came in that party.

15,078. Did you ever get anything before for voting ?—Never.

J. Middleton.

JONATHAN MIDDLETON sworn and examined.

15,079. (Mr. Dowdeswell.) Are you a voter ?—Yes.

15,080. For whom did you vote ?—Sir Henry Stracey.

15,081. At what time did you vote ?—12 o'clock.

15,082. Had you been canvassed ?—Yes.

15,083. Who canvassed you ?—A party of gentlemen came round ; I do not know whether it was the Friday before the election.

15,084. Did you promise your vote ?—I promised my vote to Sir Henry Stracey.

15,085. Were you at the "Buck" on the day of the election ?—Yes.

15,086. At what time ?—I was going to say off and on the chief of the forenoon. I attended to my business. I should have went before to vote, but I attended to my business before I went.

15,087. You were in and out of the "Buck" the whole of the day ?—No, I beg your pardon, the chief of the forenoon till I went to vote.

15,088. You say you voted for Stracey ; there must be some mistake ?—I think there is a mistake in the poll book ; there is one John Middleton that voted for Tillett and Russell, and I think if you look it is put down Stracey. I voted for Stracey, and I think it is put down Tillett and Russell. I voted for Stracey, and I am not ashamed of it ; I gave a conscientious vote.

15,089. Did anybody offer you anything for your vote ?—No, and I never asked such a thing.

15,090. Do you know Hardiment ?—Yes.

15,091. Do you know Wiseman ?—Yes, I know Wiseman.

15,092. They were at the "Buck" that day ?—I never see Mr. Hardiment till 8 o'clock at night, but Mr. Wiseman I see him in the forenoon, so I did Mr. Dowson, so I did Mr. White.

15,093. I want to know whether you did not see Hardiment before you voted that morning ?—No, I did not ; I never see him till 8 o'clock that night.

15,094. Where did you see him that night ?—In at the "Buck."

15,095. Young Wiseman you had seen in the early part of the day ?—Yes, I had seen him in the early forenoon.

15,096. Did Wiseman give you anything to vote ?—No.

15,097. Or talk to you about anything for voting ?—No.

15,098. Or promise you anything for voting ?—No; and I did not ask for it, and did not intend.

15,099. You saw a lot of men at the "Buck ?"—There were five voters went up, four besides myself.

15,100. Young Wiseman was there before they went up to vote ?—He came in once or twice in the forenoon.

15,100*a*. You were in and out of the "Buck," did you not see a lot of other voters ?—I do not think there were above two more the whole blessed day, besides those that went with me.

15,101. You were not there at all in the afternoon ?—No.

15,102. You cannot say what occurred in the afternoon ?—I went home to my dinner a little after 1 o'clock ; soon after I came back from voting, and never went in any more till nearly 5.

15,103. You do not know what took place at the "Buck" afterwards ?—No ; I know nothing of other people's business.

15,104. You got nothing for voting ?—No, not one farthing, and never asked for it. It was the first vote that I ever had, and I did not intend to do anything of the kind.

W. Fisher.

WILLIAM FISHER recalled and further examined.

15,105-6. (Mr. Biron.) You were asked about Robert Brandish and Hardiment yesterday ?—No, I do not think I was.

15,107. Yes, you were. You were asked whether you went to Clarke's beerhouse during the day ?—Yes.

15,108. And you were asked whether you saw Hardiment ?—I never saw him during the day.

15,109. You were asked whether you saw Hardiment there ?—I never remember it.

15,110. At Clarke's beerhouse ?—I never saw him.

15,111. You were asked whether you saw him there ?—No, I do not think I was.

15,112. Did you see Hardiment that day ?—No.

15,113. After you left this box you talked to some people outside ?—Yesterday ?

15,114. Yes, yesterday ?—I might be talking to a great many people.

15,115. You said you —— thought they would get the whole thing out of you, and they had not done it ?—I do not think that.

15,116. You don't think it. When you went outside you began swearing, and saying that you were afraid that at one time the whole thing would come out ?—I do not believe that.

(Mr. Dowdeswell.) The expressions you made use of were a gross contempt of court, and if you do not speak the truth I will instantly send you to gaol.

15,117. (Mr. Biron.) What the chairman says to you will be carried out; away you will go unless you tell us all you know ?—I cannot tell you any more than what I have said.

15,118. You said yesterday, when you left the court, "I kept the —— thing back; I thought the "—— thing must have come out, but I kept the "mainspring back"?—I should say I did not say anything of the kind.

15,119. You may say it once more, but if you do away you go to gaol ?—You would not like me to say what I did not say.

15,120. You were outside the court using coarse language, and saying you kept something from us ?—I do not know anything about the thing myself, if I did I would say so. There might be a lot of people round me, bullying, and saying, "What did you say ?"

15,121. You went out there thinking you had done a very clever thing in deceiving us, and you said, "I kept the mainspring back ?"—No, I did not say that.

15,122. That is an expression you cannot forget ?—No, I did not say it.

15,123. Do you mean to say you did not say, when you left the box, "I thought at one time the whole "—— thing would come out"?—I say I did not.

15,124. Did you or did you not?—I say I did not.

15,125. What did you say?—I do not know that I said anything.

15,126. When you left the witness box did you speak to anybody ?—There were several people outside who wanted to know what I said.

15,127. What did you say ?—I said that I had been asked some questions and I had answered the questions.

15,128. Did you not say that you thought they would ask you about some other things you knew about, and they had not done it ?—No.

15,129. Did you not say, "They thought they knew "a good deal more than they did," and you managed to keep something back after all ?—No.

15,130. Or anything of that sort ?—No, nor anything of that sort.

PHILLIP PEARCE sworn and examined.

P. Pearce.

15,131. (Mr. Biron.) What are you ?—A whitening manufacturer and licensed victualler.

15,132. Were you outside the court yesterday afternoon ?—Yes.

15,133. Do you know Fisher ?—I know he is the man that came out.

15,134. Were you outside when that man came out ?—Yes, I was.

15,135. Did you hear him say anything ?—Yes, I heard him talking to four or five more men.

15,136. Can you name any of the men ?—No, I do not know them, only by sight.

15,137. Were they men who had been examined here yesterday ?—I do not know. I was not in court yesterday.

15,138. Should you know them if you were to see them ?—I think I have seen one in the court to-day who was with him at the time; there were four or five got round him and asked him when he came out how he got on.

15,139. What did you hear ?—They congregated round this man and asked him how he got on, and he said he thought that the Commissioners knew as much as he did, and that he thought that at one time they would get it out of him. They got it up as far as here (pointing to his throat), but he endeavoured to keep the —— trick back, or something of that sort, and he said they asked him something about a man of the name of Brandish, and about his going there on that day; and he said he got over it by telling the Commissioners he done some jobs for him; and he said he was asked something about Hardiment and about Mr. Gedge, but I then went away and saw Mr. Self the gasfitter, and asked him whether he knew the man, and he followed him and told me his name was Fisher, and I told Mr. Self that I thought he was coming out of court and making a complete laugh of the Commissioners.

15,140. Did he say, "I kept the —— thing back ?"—He said it got about as far as here (pointing to his throat), but "I kept it back."

15,141. Did he say, "I kept the —— mainspring "back; they knew more than I thought they did, and "at one time I thought the whole thing would come "out ?"—Yes.

15,142. (To William Fisher.) You hear what Mr. Pearce has stated ?—I say it is quite false.

15,143. Now you go to gaol; it will be a warning to you and to others. You will be kept here until the warrant is made out to take you to gaol.

(Mr. Dowdeswell.) You have an opportunity now, if you choose, to tell the truth and save yourself from gaol.

HENRY BALDWIN sworn and examined.

H. Baldwin.

15,144. (Mr. Dowdeswell.) What are you ?—A baker.

15,145. Are you a voter ?—Yes, and have been for these 40 years.

15,146. Did you vote at the last election ?—Yes.

15,147. For whom did you vote ?—Tillett and Russell.

15,148. Do you know a person of the name of Freestone ?—Yes, quite well.

15,149. Do you know a man of the name of Hardiment ?—Yes, I know him quite well.

15,150. Do you recollect on the day of the election seeing Hardiment ?—I see him several times backwards and forwards.

15,151. Did you ride with him in his pony carriage at all that day ?—Certainly not; it was not hardly likely.

15,152. Have you ever ridden in his cart ?—Never in my life; that is why I come up without being subpœnaed, because I see it inserted in the paper that I went up in his cart with Freestone. I think I was the third voter the second hour, and should have been in the first hour provided I could have got away; when I saw it in the paper I thought it was my duty to come here and contradict it.

15,153. All that he says of you is that you got into a pony cart. He does not implicate you as to anything improper.—It is false, I never rode with him in a cart in my life. It is all false. Every word that he has said about me is false.

15,144–5. It is most likely a mistake in the name.—I cannot say that it is, because there is not ere another Baldwin a baker in Norwich. I think not.

15,156. You see all that he says of you is that you rode in the cart. He is asked, "Who rode in the cart besides yourself ?" and he says there were several persons rode in the cart, but he knows none but

THIRTEENTH DAY.

H. Baldwin.

2 Sept. 1869.

Baldwin the baker, and a man of the name of Mitchell. I never rode in a cart with the man in my life.

15,157. It is quite immaterial; it will not affect your character in any way, and if you voted for Tillett and Russell certainly it will not.—Still it does not do you any good.

15,158. Our impression is that you are not a very likely man to have been selected to ride in the cart. —I would sooner have Mr. Freestone to take me up.

15,159. (Mr. Biron.) A 20-stone man does not generally get invitations to ride in a pony cart?—No, they are rather too heavy.

15,160. (Mr. Dowdeswell.) I do not think Mr. Hardiment would have selected you to ride?—No, because Mr. Hardiment, Mr. Freestone, and I have belonged to an association these two or three years, and I know their principles and they know mine, and they would not come and ask me.

15,161. There is another Henry Baldwin; possibly he has made a mistake?—I thought I was right to come to you and contradict it.

(Mr. Dowdeswell.) You are quite right. No imputation is cast upon you.

H. Baldwin.

HENRY BALDWIN sworn and examined.

15,161*a*. (Mr. Mansfield.) What are you by trade? —A shoemaker.

15,162. For whom did you vote?—Sir Henry Stracey.

15,163. At what time of the day?—Between 11 and 12.

15,164. Who asked you to vote for him?—Not anybody.

15,165. Did anybody pay you for voting for him? —No.

15,166. Did you see Hardiment during the day?— No.

15,167. Or Hart?—No.

15,168. Did you see Freestone during the day?— No.

15,169. Worledge?—No.

15,170. To what public-houses did you go?—I only went to one up the market, and that was at the corner of Golden Lane, next to St. Giles'.

15,171. Has any money been paid to you since?— No.

15,172. Has anything been promised you?—No.

15,173. Have your rates been paid?—Yes.

15,174. By whom?—The landlord paid my rates.

15,175. Who is your landlord?—Mr. Veitch.

15,176. Did he pay your rates before the election? —Yes.

15,177. Did he tell you to vote for Stracey?—No, he is a blue. Of course he did not tell me to vote for Stracey.

15,178. Have you paid anybody to go and vote?— No.

15,179. Or carried any money to people?—No, I had nothing to do with it.

15,180. You did not take an active part in the election?—No.

15,181. You only voted?—Yes, that is all.

15,182. Is this the first time you have voted?— Yes.

W. Barnes.

WILLIAM BARNES sworn and examined.

15,183. (Mr. Biron.) What are you?—A basket-maker.

15,184. For whom did you vote?—I voted for Tillett and Stracey.

15,185. At what time in the day?—About half-past 3.

15,186. Why did you not vote earlier?—Because I had an order that I was forced to complete.

15,187. Were you at it all day?—Yes; and when I went out of my house I went and voted.

15,188. Did anybody ask you for your vote?— About a month before I was asked for it.

15,189. Did you promise it then?—Yes, I did.

15,190. By whom were you asked?—Mr. Castle.

15,191. How came you to vote for Stracey and Tillett?—Because I always was a Tory man.

15,192. Then what made you vote for the Liberal? —Because I knew the man right well.

15,193. You voted for one for principle, and the other for friendship?—Yes.

15,194. Did you get anything for it?—No.

15,195. Or any promise of anything?—No.

H. Stangroom.

HENRY STANGROOM sworn and examined.

15,196. (Mr. Dowdeswell.) Are you a voter?— Yes.

15,197. Did you vote at the last election?—Yes, I voted for Mr. Stracey.

15,198. At what time in the day?—Between 3 and 4.

15,199. Had you been a voter upon former elections?—Yes, I have always voted Liberal at elections, but this time I thought I would change it.

15,200. You have always received something for voting at former elections?—Yes.

15,201. What did you receive at this?—Nothing at all.

15,202. Are you sure of that?—Yes, that I am sure of.

15,203. Where were you on the day of the election? —I was at home at work until 3 o'clock, and then I carried home a job, and went and voted directly.

15,204. Why did not you vote before 3 o'clock?— Because I had a job, and I was obliged to do it before I could go away from my own home, and then I went and voted directly.

15,205. Were you at any public-houses that day? —No, not until after I had voted.

15,206. Did anybody come to you for your vote?— No; no one never solicited me at all for my vote.

15,207. Did anybody go with you to the poll?— No, I went all alone.

15,208. Did anybody see your wife?—Not that I know of, because when I went away I left my wife at home. I never saw nobody, but came down the street and went and voted.

15,209. For whom were you at work?—Well, I had done a job for Mr. Nobbs, and took the job home and went and voted direct.

15,210. Did he promise you some work if you voted that way?—No, I have worked for him off and on for the last four years, doing little jobs for him.

15,211. But you have always received money before?—Well, if I have received money it has been what you may call as a runner. I have been put on to deliver circulars, and have got paid for my work.

15,212. You received money as a runner, but did you not receive money without running at all?—No, I had always to work for it.

15,213. Are you sure that you were not promised anything for voting upon this occasion?—Nothing at all. I never saw any, nor nobody ever promised.

15,214. Have you or has your wife received anything since?—No, nothing at all. Nobody never came to speak to me about it.

EMANUEL SIMON HOWARD sworn and examined.

15,215. (Mr. Mansfield.) What are you by trade?—A shoemaker.

15,216. For whom did you vote at this election?—Sir Henry Stracey.

15,217. At what hour in the day did you vote?—About half-past 2.

15,218. I think you had been at the "Woolpack," had you not?—I think I was there about one hour, between 1 and 2.

15,219. How long did you stop there?—About an hour.

15,220. Did you have some beer?—Well, I had one glass I think.

15,221. Who gave you that?—I bought it myself.

15,222. Did you pay for it?—Yes.

15,223. There were a good many other people there, were there not?—A great many.

15,224. And a good deal of beer going?—Only what people paid for.

15,225. Did you see Hardiment there?—No, I don't know him, that's the truth.

15,226. Who did you see there?—Well, a few people what were in the habit of using the house.

15,227. Do you know any of their names?—There was Bradbury and two or three more. I do not know their names.

15,228. Where was Bradbury?—In the bar.

15,229. That was between 1 and 2, was it?—Yes.

15,230. Was Bradbury there the whole time you were there?—Yes.

15,231. Were you where you could see everybody going in and out of the place?—Yes.

15,232. Did you hear there was somebody upstairs?—No.

15,233. Did you hear there was some money going?—No, I did not hear anything about money.

15,234. Did you see a cart at the door?—No.

15,235. Did you see two carts there?—No, I never saw any at all.

15,236. Did you see Mr. Harper come?—No.

15,237. You swear that you did not get anything for your vote?—Yes.

15,238. Were you promised anything?—No; in fact I did not wish for anything, because I always did vote that way, so I did not request much money.

15,239. But you might be paid for all that?—Oh no; I did not wish for it.

15,240. What took you to the "Woolpack?"—That is the house I am in the habit of using. I am a bird breeder, and Mr. Mackley is a bird fancier, and so I went there.

15,241. I suppose Mr. Mackley being your friend, told you there was some money going?—No, he did not.

15,242. Then he behaved very badly to you, because he told all his friends of it?—I am too much of a party man to do that for money.

15,243. Then you had nothing before to vote?—No.

15,244. Have you voted before?—Oh, yes; I voted for the Conservatives four times.

15,245. And you swear that you did not know that there was money going at that time in the "Woolpack?"—I can swear there was no money at the time I was there.

15,246. That you knew of?—Not that I knew of; there was none in the bar, I can swear to that.

15,247. But there were people going upstairs?—I never saw anything of it the time I was there.

WALTER JOHNSON sworn and examined.

15,248. (Mr. Biron.) What are you?—A shoe manufacturer.

15,249. For whom did you vote?—Sir Henry Stracey.

15,250. At what time in the day?—About 3 o'clock.

15,251. Why did not you vote before?—Because business kept me at home. I did not go out until after dinner.

15,252. How far was the polling place from your house?—About a quarter of a mile.

15,253. You were busy all the forenoon?—Yes.

15,254. Did you get anything for voting?—Not a farthing.

15,255. Or a promise of anything?—No promise.

15,256. Or did you promise anything?—Not anything.

15,257. Or give anything to anybody for having voted?—No.

15,258. Or to vote?—No.

15,259. Had you been canvassed?—No.

15,260. Had you voted before?—No.

GEORGE SARSBY sworn and examined.

15,261. (Mr. Dowdeswell.) Are you a voter?—Yes.

15,262. For whom did you vote?—Sir Henry Stracey.

15,263. At what time of the day?—A few minutes before or after 10 in the morning.

15,264. Did you receive anything for voting?—No.

15,265. Or the promise of anything?—No.

15,266. What ward is yours?—The second ward.

15,267. Do you know the Houghtons?—Yes, by seeing of them on the day of the election, and from the canvass.

15,268. Did you have any conversation with the Houghtons?—Not on the day of the election; they were not canvassing with me.

15,269. Although you were not canvassing with them, were they talking to you on the day of the election?—I am not aware that I spoke to them at all.

15,270. Did they speak to you?—Not that I am aware of.

15,271. Was not something said by the Houghtons respecting money?—Not a word.

15,272. Did you say anything to either of them about it?—No.

15,273. Had you seen them upon the previous day?—I cannot say. I think it is likely I did.

15,274. Had you a conversation with them upon any day?—Yes, about the canvassing, and so on, because I was canvassing a week before the election.

15,275–6. But about money?—Not a word was mentioned between me and the Houghtons about money.

15,277. You know Hulme the chemist, do you not?—Yes.

15,278. Did you go to him on the election day?—I did.

15,279. Did you ask him for money for some people?—I asked him for some for one man.

15,280. Who was that?—I cannot tell you his name; he lives just past St. Andrew's Hall, up a yard just past the "Red Lion." He came from Attleborough, and he asked me to pay his expenses. I said I could not do it, but I would go and hear what Mr. Hulme said. I went to Mr. Hulme, and Mr. Hulme said, "I cannot do any such thing," consequently it was dropped.

15,281. What time of the day was that?—That would be between 12 and 1.

15,282. Did you get no money from Hulme?—Not a penny.

15,283. You have seen Hulme since, have you not?—Several times.

15,284. Has he spoken to you about money?—No.

15,285. Not about some money which he had?—No, he never mentioned the money to me on that day,

THIRTEENTH DAY.

G. Sarsby.

2 Sept. 1869.

and I was not aware that he ever had any until I saw it in the papers yesterday. I was altogether surprised that if he had any I should not know anything at all about it, being canvassing, and that like, because he knew of this voter that I asked him to pay his expenses, and my being on the committee, that he should not ask me to go for him again. I was taken by surprise that he had the money at all, and I have stated publicly several times that I did not believe any money was spent in the second ward, because I was very active in canvassing from the time Sir Henry Stracey was brought forward.

15,286. You went to him for money to pay expenses?—To pay the railway expenses.

15,287. Had the man voted?—I cannot tell.

15,288. Cannot you tell me his name?—I cannot; I can only tell you he lives up that way, and the reason I cannot tell you is that after the election I was taken very ill, and it was pretty near 12 weeks before I got well again, and for that reason the election matters have gone from my mind, or I might have known something further about it.

15,289. Did you pay anybody for voting?—Not anyone, nor offered anyone anything.

15,290. This was the only transaction which you ever had with any person?—That was the only one.

15,291. Had you been a voter before?—No.

W. Annison.

WILLIAM ANNISON sworn and examined.

15,292. (Mr. Mansfield.) What are you by trade?—A shopkeeper.

15,293. Where do you live?—I live in Bedford Street now.

15,294. What is your shop rated at?—14*l.* 10*s.*

15,295. What time did you vote?—Between 3 and 4 in the afternoon.

15,296. Who did you vote for?—Stracey.

15,297. Who asked you to vote?—No one.

15,298. Why did you not vote sooner?—Because it did not suit me.

15,299. Who took you up to the poll?—No one.

15,300. Did you see anybody who asked you to vote that day?—Of course I saw several going through the streets.

15,301. Who spoke to you that day about voting?—I don't recollect speaking to anybody. I went down to the poll and voted by myself.

15,302. Did you receive anything for your vote?—No, certainly not.

15,303. Were you promised anything?—No.

15,304. Did you give any money or promise of money to any other voter?—No.

15,305. Do you take much part in elections?—No part whatever.

15,306. Is this the first time you have voted?—Yes.

15,307. Were you at any of the political public-houses during the day?—No, I never went into one.

15,308. Were you in no public-house?—No.

15,309. Have you heard of any money going?—No.

R. Bunting.

RICHARD BUNTING sworn and examined.

15,310. (Mr. Dowdeswell.) Are you a voter?—Yes.

15,311. For whom did you vote?—For Russell and Tillett.

15,312. What time did you vote?—About half-past 2 or a quarter to 3, I cannot exactly say.

15,313. How came you to vote so late?—Because I went into the country to see a cousin of mine. I started off first thing in the morning, and did not get back until dinner time.

15,314. But you could have voted in the morning before you went out?—No, I could not, because I started before six o'clock.

15,315. Did you vote as soon as you came home?—Yes, directly I had had my dinner I went and voted.

15,316. Did anybody come and speak to you about voting?—I believe there was someone called at my house in the morning, but I was not at home.

15,317. Did you see anybody about voting that day?—When I was in the country I did not.

15,318. Were you a member of the organisation?—No; they came to me once about it, I forget the gentleman's name now that came, but I did not join the organisation.

15,319. Nobody pressed or threatened you to induce you to vote?—No.

15,320. Did anybody pay you?—No.

15,321. Did anybody promise you any payment?—No.

15,322. Have you never received any money?—No.

15,323. Has your wife received any?—No.

R White.

ROBERT WHITE sworn and examined.

15,324. (Mr. Mansfield.) What are you by trade?—A game dealer.

15,325. How long have you been a voter?—Only once.

15,326. This was the first time you had voted?—Yes.

15,327. Who did you vote for?—Sir Henry Stracey.

15,328. What time in the day?—Half-past 10 in the morning.

15,329. Who asked you to vote?—Nobody.

15,330. Do you know Mr. Wiseman?—Yes.

15,331. I think you had some talk with him about voting?—No.

15,332. With young Wiseman?—No.

15,333. Do you know George Delph?—Yes.

15,334. I think you saw him that day?—Yes.

15,335. What did he tell you about voting?—He never told me nothing.

15,336. Where were you all the day?—At home, after my business.

15,337. Where is that?—St. Augustine's Gate.

15,338. How far is that from the polling place?—As near as I can guess about 200 or 300 yards.

15,339. What public-houses were you in during the day?—I went to get a glass of beer now and again.

15,340. Where?—At my own house where I am living.

15,341. Was any money given to you during the day?—No, and I did not want none.

15,342. Was any promised you?—No.

15,343. Nor given you since?—No.

15,344. Have your rates been paid for you?—No, I can pay them myself.

15,345. Of course you can pay them, but they might have been paid for you?—No.

15,346. Has no promise been given you in any way whatever?—No, no promise, and no one ever spoke to me.

15,347. Who did you promise your vote to?—Nobody.

15,348. Did you not see Wiseman before you voted?—No.

15,349. Nor Delph?—No.

15,350. They are both of them friends of yours, are they not?—Friends or not makes no difference. I vote which way I like; I have got an independent voice, and can vote Whig or Tory if I think proper.

15,351. But you are rather more willing to vote for their party than the other, are you not?—No, they never asked me.

RICHARD NORMAN OSBORNE sworn and examined.

15,352. (Mr. Dowdeswell.) Are you a voter?—Yes.

15,353. For whom did you vote?—I voted for Tillett and Russell.

15,354. Did you promise to vote for the other side?—No.

15,355. Had you been canvassed by the other side?—Not that I am aware of; I should not think they would.

15,356. Had you not said that you would vote for them?—No, certainly not; I never saw any of them; if they called at my house I did not see them.

15,357. Did your wife say that you would?—No, I am sure she did not.

15,358. Did you get anything for voting?—No, certainly not.

15,359. Were you promised anything?—No.

15,360. Have you had your rates paid?—No, they would not like to pay mine, I think.

15,361. Were you a voter before this election?—Oh yes, for 17 or 18 years.

15,362. Did you ever receive anything for voting before?—Never in my life.

15,363. Have you always voted that side?—I have always voted on the Liberal side.

15,364. You have never received or been promised anything?—Never.

EDWARD BULLEN sworn and examined.

15,365. (Mr. Mansfield.) What are you by trade?—A boot and shoe maker.

15,366. What time of the day did you vote?—Just before the close of the poll.

15,367. For whom did you vote?—Tillett.

15,368. Why did you wish to vote for him?—I had no wish to vote at all, only I promised to do so if Mr. Tillett was behind at the close of the day.

15,369. What made you vote?—Nothing; I had promised to do so; I did not wish to vote at all, but I had promised to vote for Mr. Tillett if he was going back at the close of the day. If Mr. Tillett had remained in the same position the last hour of the day as he did at the first, you would not have seen the name of your humble servant on the books at all.

15,370. You had friends on both sides?—I had friends on both sides.

15,371. And you preferred not to vote?—No, I don't trouble myself about political affairs, not the slightest.

15,372. I suppose nothing was offered you for your vote?—Not a single farthing, not only at this election, but at any other in my life, and I never received a penny in my life.

WILLIAM MILLS recalled and further examined.

15,373. (Mr. Dowdeswell.) You were in and out Clarke's beerhouse on the election day?—Yes.

15,374. And you saw the men who were there?—I did.

15,375. You recollect Hardiment coming, do you not?—I do.

15,376. How many voters were there in Clarke's beerhouse when he came?—I could not tell you.

15,377. How many men were there altogether?—There might be from 10 to 12.

15,378. Now, who were the men that were there?—The voters?

15,379. Yes, the voters?—Well, I cannot say.

15,380. Oh, come?—I recollect so far as this, there was a man by the name of William Clare Thorpe there.

15,381. Who else?—I don't know the names.

15,382. Do you recollect George Ellis being there?—I recollect George Ellis being there; I saw him there.

15,383. Do you recollect Charles Morse being there?—Yes.

15,384. Francis Cutlock?—Yes.

15,385. Do you know a man of the name of Platfoot?—No.

15,386. Was Enoch Colman there?—I don't know him.

15,387. William Yaxley?—I don't know him.

15,388. Henry Newman?—I don't know him.

15,389. Abraham Fitzgerald?—I don't know him.

15,390. Charles Nobbs?—I don't know him.

15,391. William Clarke was there, was he not?—The landlord of the house was.

15,392. Did you see young Wiseman there?—No.

15,393. Do you recollect Jeremiah Cunliffe being there?—No.

15,394. You recollect Charles Chaplin?—No.

15,395. Was Robert Brandish there?—Yes, the old gentleman who is dead.

15,396. Richard Rose?—Yes.

15,397. William Fisher?—No.

15,398. John Warren?—No.

15,399. Thomas Taylor?—No.

15,400. Benjamin Clarke?—No.

15,401. You do not recollect his being there?—I don't recollect.

15,402. Do you recollect anybody else being there?—No, only them that were not voters.

15,403. Who were they?—I recollect four of them by name.

15,404. Who were they?—Myself, Snowley, a man by the name of Cox, Mills, and another man whose name I have forgot apparently, but those are men that I know.

15,405. Do you recollect anybody coming in and giving some beer amongst the men?—Yes.

15,406. Who was that?—A shoe master, a man that is a shoemaker.

15,407. What is his name?—I should know it if I was to hear it.

15,408. Worledge?—Yes.

15,409. Did he give tickets?—I saw him give tickets to the men that I have now mentioned.

15,410. And then did you all drink the beer?—Yes.

15,411. Now, after Worledge left, did you see Hardiment come the first time?—I did.

15,412. Did he go into the bar?—Yes.

15,413. Did he say anything to the men who were there?—He was talking to several, but I did not hear him say anything; he was talking there some little time.

15,414. After he had seen them, did he say anything to you?—He never spoke to me, nor I to him.

15,415. He went away?—He did.

15,416. And came back again afterwards?—That I do not know.

15,417. Did you not see him there a second time?—No, not to the best of my knowledge.

15,418. Do you recollect Benfather coming there, and going into the bake-office?—No.

15,419. Now, remember; were you not there when Benfather came in?—So I was.

15,420. Don't you recollect Benfather coming there?—I think I saw him, but I would not swear.

15,421. Is there any doubt about it?—I never saw Benfather go backward into the bake-office at all.

15,422. However, Benfather was there?—He was, I believe.

15,423. Was he talking to the men?—Yes.

15,424. Did you hear him talking to them about the election?—About going to vote.

15,425. Did they ask him for money?—I never heard them.

15,426. What did they say to him when he asked them to vote?—I never heard him say anything to

THIRTEENTH DAY.

W. Mills.

2 Sept. 1869.

them about money, nor yet about anything else, only "Come and vote."

15,427. Did not they say anything to him about money?—Not to my knowledge.

15,428. Was not something said by them about money, that they wanted a day's pay, or a day's wages, or something to drink?—I never heard a word of that at all.

15,429. Did you see him give anything?—Not a farthing, or a drop of drink.

15,430. Did you see them go into the bake-office?—I did not.

15,431. Where were you sitting?—In the tap-room, or I might be standing sometimes; but I never saw him.

15,432. You know the bake-office very well?—Perfectly well.

15,433. The voters went into the bake-office, did they not, one by one?—I never saw them go in, not one.

15,434. Were you drunk?—I was not drunk, I was a little elevated.

15,435. Very much elevated?—I don't know; not such a deal.

15,436. Did you go to sleep at all?—No, not there, to the best of my knowledge.

15,437. Did you see Morse and another man go away with Benfather in a cab?—No.

15,438. You see that man Fisher there, do you not (pointing to Fisher)?—Yes.

15,439. Did you see him go down the yard?—No.

15,440. Did you see him go down to Brandish's?—No.

15,441. Did you see Benfather speaking to Thorpe?—No.

15,442. Did you not hear him?—No.

15,443. Now, only consider, did you not hear Benfather ask Thorpe to give his vote, and did not Thorpe say that he wanted some money?—No.

15,444. And did not Benfather say, "Come along you that have got votes," and go right back?—I did not see him go back; I heard him say, "Come along and vote."

15,445. Did they go out and vote then?—No.

15,446. Did the men go and vote?—No, not then.

15,447. They wanted something to vote?—That I don't know.

15,448. Oh, you know well enough?—I never heard.

15,449. You were there, and you heard the conversation; you must have heard what their answer was?—I never heard it.

15,450. Did you not receive some money?—From whom?

15,451. I do not ask you from whom. Now, be careful; did you not receive some money?—Yes.

15,452. From whom?—The fellmonger.

15,453. From Hardiment?—From Hardiment.

15,454. In Clarke's beerhouse?—No.

15,455. Where?—At his own house.

15,456. What did he give you?—Half a sovereign.

15,457. Was that to vote?—Yes.

15,458. What time in the day was that?—Not on the election day; it was two or three days after when he gave it to me.

15,459. You had seen him on the election day?—I had seen him, but not spoke to him, on that day.

15,460. Who had spoken to you about the half-sovereign?—Mr. Hardiment, a day or two before.

15,461. Hardiment had told you a day or two before that he would give you half a sovereign?—Yes.

15,462. If you voted for Stracey?—Yes.

15,463. Do you not know anybody else that he told that to as well?—No.

15,464. And you went down to his house to get it?—I did.

15,465. Have you not heard any other man say that he got the same from Hardiment?—No.

15,466. Where was it that you spoke to Hardiment?—Down in Bath House Yard he spoke to me.

15,467. Did he come round canvassing you then?—Yes, he and Thirkettle, his clerk.

15,468. Was anybody else with them besides?—No.

15,469. Did Thirkettle hear him say that to you?—He took my name down in his book.

15,470. Thirkettle did?—Yes.

15,471. Had he got a regular book?—He had.

15,472. And he heard what Hardiment said to you?—Certainly.

15,473. Were you very tipsy when you voted?—No, quite sober.

15,474. What time in the day did you vote then?—Between 2 and 3.

15,475. Did you see where Hardiment and Thirkettle went after they left your house?—They were not at my house, they were in the yard, and they went up the yard together.

15,476. Do you know who they went to after they saw you?—No.

15,477. Did you see who they had been to before they saw you?—No.

15,478. Did you hear anybody in the yard say that they were to have some money from Hardiment for voting?—No.

15,479. (Mr. Biron.) Did you tell anybody else about Hardiment having promised you 10*s.*?—No.

15,480. (Mr. Mansfield.) Did you hear of anyone else going to the house for 10*s.* after the election?—No.

15,481. When you went to his house did you see anybody but Hardiment, or did you see Thirkettle?—Nobody but Hardiment himself.

15,482. In his counting-house?—Alone, by the counting-house door.

15,483. (Mr. Biron.) Has any man told you that Hardiment gave him money for voting?—No, not one.

J. Tibbenham.

JAMES TIBBENHAM sworn and examined.

15,484. (Mr. Mansfield.) What are you by trade?—A shoemaker.

15,485. What time of the day did you vote?—About 3 or a little after.

15,486. For whom did you vote?—Stracey.

15,487. What made you vote so late?—Business detained me.

15,488. Who do you work for?—Myself.

15,489. How many men have you got?—Not any.

15,490. Was this the first time you voted?—No.

15,491. Who did you vote for before?—Goldsmid and Waters.

15,492. Have you received anything for your vote this time?—No.

15,493. Nor the last time?—No.

15,494. Have you ever been promised anything?—No.

15,495. Has any money been left for you anywhere?—No.

15,496. Or have your rates been paid?—No.

15,497. Have you handed over money to any other persons for their votes?—No.

15,498. Or been instructed to promise money?—No.

15,499. Where were you during the polling day?—At work.

15,500. Did you not go about the town at all?—No, not to any of the houses.

15,501. You voted and went back to your work, did you?—No, sir I understood you to say before I voted.

15,502. Did you go to any public-houses?—I went to one, but there was but two men in.

15,503. Which public-house was that?—Plunkett's house.

15,504. Was anybody there?—Well, there might be two there.

15,505. Were any voters there?—I don't think there were.

15,506. Did you hear anything about money going?—No.

15,507. Did you hear anything during the day about money going anywhere?—No.

15,508. You are sure of that?—That I am sure of.

JAMES HOWARD sworn and examined. J. Howard.

15,509. (Mr. Biron.) What are you?—A shoemaker.

15,510. For whom did you vote at the last election?—Stracey.

15,511. At what hour in the day?—Between the hours of 3 and 4.

15,512. How came you to vote so late as that?—Because I was at home at work, and I could not leave off before. I had some ordered work to get in.

15,513. Did you not see anybody about voting?—No.

15,514. Did nobody ask you for your vote?—No.

15,515. Did you promise your vote at all?—Not on that day; I was canvassed for my vote.

15,516. By whom?—By some men, I don't know their names.

15,517. Did you promise your vote?—Yes, to Mr. Stracey.

15,518–9. Were you employed as check clerk?—No.

15,520. Were you not employed at all?—No.

15,521. In no way?—No.

15,522. You got nothing for your vote?—No.

15,523. Nor any promise of anything?—No.

15,524. Did you promise or give anybody else anything for having voted?—No.

ROBERT SILVEY sworn and examined. R. Silvey.

15,525. (Mr. Dowdeswell.) Are you a voter?—Yes.

15,526. For whom did you vote?—Russell and Tillett.

15,527. At what time?—A quarter before 9 in the morning.

15,528. Had you promised your vote?—Yes.

15,529. Are you sure that you voted in the morning?—Quite sure, before breakfast.

15,530. You are returned as having voted in the afternoon; are you certain you voted in the morning?—Quite certain, sir; that is a mistake; it was a quarter before 9 in the morning.

15,531. Did you receive anything for your vote?—Not anything.

15,532. Or were you promised anything for it?—There was no promise at all made.

15,533. Were you a voter before?—Not until this last election.

15,534. Did you promise anybody anything for voting?—No, not anything.

15,535. Or pay anything?—No.

15,536. Do you know of anybody having promised or given anything for voting?—No, not personally.

15,537. Have you heard anybody say he did it?—No, only by report.

WILLIAM COX sworn and examined. W. Cox.

15,538. (Mr. Mansfield.) What are you by trade?—A shoemaker.

15,539. What time did you vote?—A quarter to 4.

15,540. Who did you vote for?—Mr. Stracey.

15,541. Who asked you for your vote?—No one.

15,542. Is this the first time you have voted?—Yes.

15,543. What made you vote for Stracey if nobody asked you?—That is the reason I voted.

15,544. That is the reason you voted, that nobody asked you?—That was my opinion.

15,545. Where were you in the daytime?—At work.

15,546. When did you leave your work?—About 20 minutes to 4.

15,547. Had you been indoors the whole day?—Yes.

15,548. Had you not been to any beerhouse?—No.

15,549. Not once?—No.

15,550. Had you been to any public-house?—No, not until I went and voted.

15,551. Did anybody come to you to get you up to the poll?—No.

15,552. Had you been promised anything for your vote?—No.

15,553. Were you paid anything?—Yes.

15,554. Who paid you?—Mr. Hardiment.

15,555. Where did he pay you?—At a public-house.

15,556. What public-house was that?—Mr. Cartwright's.

15,557. What time in the day was that?—A quarter to 4.

15,558. How did you hear there was money going on?—I heard there was money given, and I went.

15,559. Who told you?—I do not know who it was; some men in the street.

15,560. How much money did he give you?—Half a sovereign.

15,561. It was being talked of in the street?—Yes.

15,562. Do you recollect anybody who was there, talking of it?—No, I do not.

15,563. Were there many people at Cartwright's when you went there?—Yes, it was crowded.

15,564. How was the half-sovereign paid you; did you go into a room by yourself with Hardiment, or were other people present?—Yes, there were three or four.

15,565. Do you know who they were?—No, I do not know who they were.

15,566. Did you see them taking money?—Yes.

15,567. And then you went away altogether to vote, I suppose?—Yes.

15,568. Do you know the names of the men who went and voted with you?—I cannot say that I do.

15,569. Had you ever seen them before?—No.

15,570. Had you ever seen Hardiment before?—Yes.

15,571. (Mr. Biron.) Do you know the names of anyone in the house?—No, I do not know one of them.

15,572. (Mr. Mansfield.) Do you know nobody by sight except Cartwright and Hardiment?—I know the landlord of the house and Mr. Hardiment.

15,573. Do you know the others by sight?—I know the others by sight; and the man who took us to the poll.

15,574. Was Cartwright present when this money was paid?—No.

15,575. Who was present?—Some man standing in the door took us into the room.

15,576. Was that Cartwright?—No.

15,577. Do you know who it was?—No, I do not know who the man was, I am sure.

15,578. Did you see other people going into a room

THIRTEENTH DAY.

W. Cox.

2 Sept. 1869.

besides the three or four that were there?—Yes, several came in while I was there.

15,579. Did you hear that they were all taking money?—Yes.

15,580. How many?—Some did and some did not; some wanted more than others, and they did not get it.

15,581. Do you know at all how many there were getting the money?—No, I do not know how many there were; I saw three or four I know.

15,582. Did you hear that it had been going on before?—Not before I went into the street, I did not.

15,583. Was the money all paid in the same room?—Yes.

15,584. Which room was that?—The backward room.

15,585. Behind the shop?—Yes.

15,586. You all went round to the poll together you say?—Yes.

15,587. Did you all go to the same polling place?—Yes.

15,588. That was a quarter to 4, was it?—Somewhere about that time.

15,589. (Mr. Dowdeswell.) Is that the polling place immediately in front of Cartwright's?—Just by the side, by the Church.

15,590. How many did you see go up to the poll?—Three or four besides me.

15,591. Some of them were too late, were they not?—I do not know; I believe so.

15,592. You got up to the poll?—Yes.

15,593. And those who were with you got up to the poll?—Yes.

15,594. It was pretty nearly the close of the poll then, was it not?—Yes, I believe it was.

15,595. The poll closed almost immediately afterwards?—Yes.

15,596. When you went up into the street there was a goodish crowd round Cartwright's?—Yes.

15,597. And was it the talk that Hardiment or someone was in there giving money?—Yes.

15,598. Did some of them say they got it?—Yes.

15,599. And that is what attracted your attention to it?—Yes.

15,600. And as many of you got in as could?—Yes.

15,601. You got in, and then came out and went and voted?—Yes.

15,602. And the others too?—Yes.

15,603. Can you not recollect anybody else whom you saw there on that day amongst the crowd; you know it is near your house?—I cannot say I do, sir; I was there all alone by myself; I don't know that I knew anyone at all.

15,604. (Mr. Biron.) Have you any politics?—No, not much.

15,605. You care more for half-sovereigns?—Yes.

15,606. (Mr. Mansfield.) Was anyone with Hardiment helping to pay the money?—No, he saw the men by himself, with the exception of a man to take you into the room.

15,607. (Mr. Dowdeswell.) Did the others get half-sovereigns?—I believe they did.

J. Staff.

JOHN STAFF sworn and examined.

15,608. (Mr. Biron.) What are you?—A match and pill box manufacturer.

15,609. For whom did you vote?—Mr. Tillett and Mr. Russell.

15,610. Do you live at Queen Caroline Yard?—I do.

15,611. Were you at Mackley's, the "Woolpack," on the day of the polling?—No.

15,612. Not at all?—Not all the day; it is a house I never use.

15,613. You had a namesake who died the other day?—My son.

15,614. Did you get anything for your vote?—All I got was my walk to the poll and back again.

15,615. Nothing further?—Nothing further.

15,616. That was a bad day's work, a little exercise and that was all?—That was all.

15,617. Your son voted for Stracey, did he not?—I believe he did.

15,618. (Mr. Dowdeswell.) He was at Mackley's that day, was he not?—I believe he was.

15,619. Do you know what he got for his vote?—No.

15,620. Did he ever tell you?—I have asked him, but he kept it to himself.

15,621. (Mr. Biron.) He did not tell you that he got 10*s.* for it?—He did not tell me anything, for I was very much against it.

15,622. (Mr. Dowdeswell.) He refused to tell you anything, I suppose?—Nothing upon the electioneering affairs; he and I differed in principle; therefore he would not let me know anything.

J. Warnes.

JAMES WARNES sworn and examined.

15,623. (Mr. Dowdeswell.) Are you a voter?—Yes.

15,624. For whom did you vote?—Stracey.

15,625. What time of the day?—Between 3 and 4.

15,626. What was the little money that you had to vote for Stracey?—Not a farthing.

15,627. Come, now?—No, sir, no.

15,628. How came you to be so late in the day?—I did not care much what particular time I voted.

15,629. Where were you during the whole of the day?—In different places.

15,630. Loitering about?—Yes, I was.

15,631. Looking out for what you could get?—No, sir, I was not.

15,632. Then if you were not looking out for what you could get, what were you loitering about for?—For pleasure.

15,633. How many public-houses did you go into?—Not above one.

15,634. What was that?—I went into the "Oxford" just for a glass of ale, that is all.

15,635. Any other?—No.

15,636. Were you wandering about the whole day without going into any house at all but one?—Yes.

15,637. How long did you remain in the "Oxford"?—Not above five or ten minutes.

15,638. And you were wandering about over the town the rest of the day?—Yes, I was.

15,639. Why did you not go and vote?—I thought there was plenty of time for me to vote.

15,640. You knew it was of importance that people should vote early, if they felt any interest about it, did you not?—There was plenty of time for me to vote.

15,641. Plenty of time if you could get anything for it?—I never got a farthing, nor yet thought about it.

15,642. Did anybody ask you to vote?—No.

15,643. Not a soul asked you to vote the whole day?—No, not a soul.

15,644. I suppose if anybody had offered you anything you would not have refused it?—I did not want a farthing.

15,645. But if anybody had offered you something, I suppose you would not have refused it?—I would not take a farthing.

15,646. Did you not take a farthing?—No, nor yet half a farthing.

15,647. Not any money whatever?—Not a farthing.

15,648. Had you a promise of any money?—No.

15,649. Have you received any money at any time since?—Not a farthing.

15,650. Had you any bets?—No.

15,651. Had you any rates paid?—No.

15,652. Had you ever promised to vote for Stracey before?—No.

15,653. Do you know Hardiment?—No.

15,654. Do you know Wiseman?—No, that I do not.

15,655. Did you go into any of the committee rooms that day?—No.

THIRTEENTH DAY.

J. Warnes.

2 Sept. 1869.

MICHAEL GREEN sworn and examined.

M. Green.

15,656. (Mr. Mansfield.) What are you by trade?—A weaver.

15,657. What time did you vote?—About half-past 1.

15,658. For Tillett, I believe?—I voted for Tillett.

15,659. Are you one of the organisation?—No, I do not belong to any society of the sort, and never would.

15,660. Do you know Hardiment?—Yes.

15,661. Did you see him about on the day of the election?—Yes, I did.

15,662. Did he ask you to vote for anybody?—He asked me to vote for Stracey.

15,663. Did he offer you anything?—He offered me half-a-crown.

15,664. What time of the day was it?—Between 12 and 1.

15,665. On the day of the poll?—Yes.

15,666. Where was it that he made that offer?—Not far from my house.

15,667. Where do you live?—At St. Martin's Gate.

15,668. Was anyone else there?—No, he followed me up and asked me if I would vote for Stracey, and I told him no, I should not.

15,669. Did you see him make offers to any other people?—No, I did not.

15,670. You went away then?—I went indoors.

16,671. Having refused the 2*s.* 6*d.*?—He said, "Will you vote for Stracey?" I said, "No, I shall vote for no such a man." He says, "Why not?" I said, "Why, I don't know much about that;" then says he, "What do you want?" "Want," I says, "I don't know that I want anything." He says, "We are giving half-a-crown, and you can have it if you like."

15,672. And you did not like, I suppose?—No, I did not like it.

15,673. When did you first mention that this offer of half-a-crown had been made by Hardiment?—I should say about a day or so after the election took place.

15,674. Do you recollect who you mentioned it to?—I don't know exactly; I did not keep it secret; I said it openly.

Adjourned to to-morrow at half-past 10 o'clock.

FOURTEENTH DAY.

Friday, 3rd September 1869.

FOURTEENTH DAY.

J. Middleton.

3 Sept. 1869.

JAMES MIDDLETON sworn and examined.

15,675. (Mr. Dowdeswell.) Are you a voter in this city?—Yes.

15,676. Were you a voter at the last election?—Yes.

15,677. For whom did you vote?—Sir Henry Stracey.

15,678. At what time did you vote?—I think between 12 and 1 o'clock.

15,679. Did you receive anything for your vote?—No.

15,680. Have you been paid anything?—No.

15,681. Were you promised anything?—No.

15,682. I believe you keep a public-house?—Yes.

15,683. What is the sign of it?—The "Hope" tavern.

15,684. In which ward are you?—The eighth ward.

15,685. Did you see Hardiment in your house that day?—No.

15,686. Or Worledge?—No, I do not know him.

15,687. Or Wiseman?—No; I know Mr. Wiseman, but he was not in my house.

15,688. Neither the young nor the old man?—I do not remember seeing either of them.

15,689. Did anyone come into your house that day canvassing or in search of voters?—I do not remember any person coming except Mr. Harper and a friend or two who I do not know.

15,690. Was not young Mr. Wiseman in your house that day?—I am not aware that he was.

15,691. You were managing your business that day, were you not?—No, I was in and out of my house at different times.

15,692. But you can tell me whether Wiseman was there or not?—I do not remember seeing him. I think he was not.

15,693. Do you not remember his coming to your house during the day, and taking voters to the poll?—No, I do not remember it.

15,694. Have you not heard that he did?—No, I have not heard anything about his coming.

15,695. Who was guarding the door of your house that day?—Not any person; people could come in and out as they pleased.

15,696. Who served the customers?—Sometimes I did, and sometimes my wife did.

15,697. Had you any servant in the house?—Yes, there was a servant in the house.

15,698. Was that a female servant?—Yes.

15,699. Did she attend to the business?—I think not; we always do that ourselves.

15,700. Was there not a person who was taking care of the door at your house?—No.

15,701. Was there nobody watching there?—No, not that I am aware of. I do not think I saw anybody watching. If any persons were watching they were not ordered to do it by me.

15,702. There were a number of persons there who were not voters, were there not?—I do not think there were; there were some out and in as they usually do come.

15,703. Had you not a goodish day that day?—It might be a little better than usual, but we have customers out and in all day long.

15,704. Was all the beer that was drunk in your house that day paid for?—Yes.

15,705. On the day?—Yes.

15,706. Are you sure that you had no reckoning at the end of the day against anybody in respect of beer supplied in your house?—Not a farthing.

15,707. Had you any tickets given to you for beer?—Not one; I never saw such a thing.

15,708. Had you cards given to you with the

FOURTEENTH DAY.

J. Middleton.

3 Sept. 1869.

names of any persons written down upon them?—No, not anyone.

15,709. Did you supply any beer?—No.

15,710. Did you see persons making bets about the election?—No; I never heard of anything of the kind.

15,711. Did you canvass people to vote?—No.

15,712. Had you been canvassed yourself?—Yes.

15,713. Who canvassed you?—I think Mr. Stracey and Mr. Wiseman came in a few days before.

15,714. Was it young or old Mr. Wiseman?—The young one.

15,715. Are you sure that young Wiseman was not in your house several times that day taking voters to the poll?—I think I might say I am sure he did not. If he did come, he came when I was absent; but I was not away long each time I was away.

J. Paice.

JOSEPH PAICE sworn and examined.

15,716. (Mr. Mansfield.) You are a clerk in Gurney's bank?—Yes, I am.

15,717. Do you produce one of their books?—I do (producing it).

15,718. Is that the book which contains Mr. Hardiment's account?—Yes.

15,719. Did you make that account up yourself?—I did.

15,720. Will you point out, if you please, the page in which Mr. Hardiment's account appears; what we want is the last year's account?—What month?

15,721. November. (The book is handed to the Commissioners.) Supposing a person pays in a number of cheques or a cheque, that would only appear as cash paid in by him, I suppose?—That is all.

15,722. Have you any means of showing what the cheques were that were comprised in the item which is entered as cash in your books?—Yes.

15,723. So that if a particular sum of, we will say, 500*l.*, was paid in in half-a-dozen cheques you would be able to ascertain by your books whose cheques they were?—Yes.

15,724. Do you know who the person is who is put down as Dawson here?—No, I do not.

15,725. Have you a customer named Dawson?—I do not know. I only know the accounts that are kept in my room.

15,726. According to this account on the 18th of November he appears to have drawn a cheque in his own favour for 60*l.*?—Yes.

15,727. That would be to himself?—Yes.

15,728. Then again on the 20th there is 30*l.*, and on the 25th 45*l.*, and on the 27th 20*l.* On the 18th had he any balance, or was there a balance against him?—He had a standing credit to draw against, 1,000*l.*

15,729. A guaranteed credit?—Yes.

15,730. The last item to his credit before the 18th appears by this book to have been 632*l.* 19*s.* 2*d.*?—Yes.

15,731. He paid nothing in to you between that and the 18th?—No.

15,732. Then on the 25th I see there is credit given to him for cash 51*l.* 2*s.*?—Yes.

15,733. Can you tell us of what that consisted?—I can furnish you with it.

15,734. We should be glad if you will do so, and we should like to have also the particulars as to the next item of credit on the 16th of December, 101*l.* 8*s.* 11*d.* We shall also be glad if you will inform us how the 60*l.* on the 18th, the 30*l.* on the 21st, the 45*l.* on the 25th, and the 20*l.* on the 27th were paid, whether they were paid in cash or in notes?—I will get those particulars for you.

J. Allen.

JOSEPH ALLEN recalled and further examined.

15,735. (Mr. Dowdeswell.) Upon the day of the election were you at all with Inspector Clarke?—No; I do not think I saw him at all that day; if I did I have no recollection of it.

15,736. Just consider for a moment, and try to remember whether you went to the "Ship," in Cowgate Street, St. Paul's?—No; you asked me that question the other day, and I stated that I had not been there.

15,737. Do you recollect hearing, or do you know of bets having been made in your presence on the day of the election?—No; I denied that the other day. I am certain I did not hear any.

15,738. Did you hear of no bets being made on that day?—No.

15,739. In your presence were not bets made by a person of five to one that the parties would not vote for Stracey, or that Stracey would not win?—No; no bet at all was made in my presence.

15,740. Did you know a man of the name of James Goldsmith, of Crook's Place?—No.

15,741. He was a person in your employment, I believe, or in the employment of Mr. Clarke?—No, I do not know Goldsmith, of Crook's Place.

15,742. Did you know a person named Goldsmith?—Yes; a farmer.

15,743. Do you recollect any money being given or promised to him for his vote?—No.

15,744. Did you see a man named Stamp on that day?—Not that I recollect.

15,745. Do you know a person of the name of Townsend, a shoemaker?—Yes.

15,746. Did you give him anything on the day of the election?—Not on the day of the election. I gave him a sovereign, I think, a day or two days before, but not on the day of the election.

15,747. What did you give him a sovereign a day or two before the election for?—It was partly to pay him; he had run a lot of messages for me; he was at the first ward.

15,748. Connected with the election?—Yes, he was running about, and he had posted up some of the Will o' the Wisp placards, and it was also for some beer for himself and one or two. He said they were all going to vote early in the morning.

15,749. Can you tell me the names of those men who Townsend said would poll early?—No, I do not know who they were.

15,750. He is a shoemaker himself?—I believe so; he belongs to the militia as well, and he is an active man, living in Pig Lane.

15,751. He voted at this election?—He did.

15,752. In which ward?—In the first ward.

15,753. Do you know a person named Traxton?—Yes.

15,754. What is his Christian name?—Edward, I think it was.

15,755. He lives, I believe, in the Close?—Yes.

15,756. And he has been very active about the election, has he not?—Yes; he is always an active man.

15,757. Did you give him anything for his services?—Yes, some months after the election. I do not exactly know when.

15,758. About when?—It was some time this year.

15,759. Did you give him a sovereign?—I think it was over a sovereign, but I am not certain as to the amount; he made a sort of bill out, and I said, "I do "not want a bill," and then he said he was all that money out of pocket. He did not charge for his own expenses; and rather than the man should lose it I paid him.

15,760. He made out a sort of bill. Was that for any payments that he had made to anybody?—I think so, and I fancy he had been in various public houses and given beer. I told him I did not want a bill. He gave me a bill, and I burnt the bill.

15,761. Had you anything to do with hiring some men who were assembled at Mr. Clarke's on the day of the election?—No; you mean Inspector Clarke?

15,762. Yes.—No; I had nothing to do with that.

15,763. Do you know of a number of men who were furnished with cocked hats made of the colours of Sir Henry Stracey, and who paraded the town?—I believe there was a procession of some kind. I believe he paid that.

15,764. Do you know who arranged that?—I fancy that he arranged it entirely.

15,765. Mr. Clarke?—Yes.

15,766. You took no part in it?—No; he might have mentioned to me that he was going to do it some days before.

15,767. But you had no active management of that?—No.

15,768. Do you recollect paying any other sum (now that you have had time to reflect upon it) in respect of the election?—I think there is one man of the name of Tadman, or some name like that, that I gave a sovereign to, some time after the election; where he lives I do not know.

15,769. Is he a voter?—No, he is no voter, but he had been working hard that day, and he was out of work. He had no vote, I fancy.

15,770. Did you pay him for any purpose connected with the election?—He had been busy running about several days.

15,771. Did you pay him with a view that he might hand the money over or share it with anybody else?—This was after the election.

15,772. Did you give it to him on account of his having given any money or beer?—I thought it likely that he might have given a glass of beer away.

15,773. Did he tell you that he had done so?—I did not ask him any questions. I knew that he had been busy, and he said he wanted some money.

15,774. What did you give him?—I gave him about a sovereign.

15,775. Do you know of any other persons who did the same sort of thing as you had done yourself with regard to these cases?—No, I do not. I think that most of the gentlemen were afraid of doing anything of the kind, and they kept the money themselves.

15,776. You were engaged upon the former elections, I suppose?—One former election.

15,777. There was very considerable corruption at that election, was there not?—I understood so.

15,778. Was that the election of 1865?—It was Mr. Waters' election.

15,779. Was money expended to a very large amount?—I do not know the amount. Mr. Hulme stated the other day that he had 70*l.* or something like that.

15,780. Did you know, or have you heard from anybody, anything of the funds that were provided for the purposes of the election?—I know that some had money to distribute.

15,781. Do you know who provided those funds?—Mr. William Kitton. I believe he was the person who generally managed that.

15,782. Was that upon your side?—On our side.

15,783. And who on the other side?—Mr. William Wilde. I think he was alive then.

15,784. He is dead since?—Yes; he and his sons used always to do a great deal, and Mr. O. D. Ray.

15,785. Had you any securities in your possession by which monies were raised for the purposes of the election in 1865?—Yes.

15,786. What was the amount of those securities?—I forget; it was somewhere near 1,000*l.*, I think.

15,787. Who deposited those securities in your hands?—I think I received them from Mr. Waters, and cashed them, and handed a certain sum to Mr. Kitton. They were cashed at Harvey's bank, the shares were sold, and I drew out 500*l.*, either the day before or two days before the election, and that was handed over to Mr. William Kitton, and he disbursed it, how I do not know, but the rest went for regular expenses.

15,788. For legitimate expenses?—Yes, entirely so.

15,789. 500*l.* was paid to Mr. Kitton for sinister purposes, we will say?—Very likely it may be supposed so.

15,790. Do you know of any other sum beyond that having been paid over to Mr. Kitton for that purpose?—No; I do not think there was any more, unless he provided it himself.

15,791. Who deposited the securities with you?—I think Mr. Waters himself asked me to get them cashed.

15,792. He gave them to you in order that you might raise the money as you thought proper?—Yes.

15,793. And you took them to Harvey's bank and cashed them there?—Yes.

CHRISTOPHER WILLIAM HUMPHREY sworn and examined.

C. W. Humphrey.

15,794. (Mr. Biron.) What are you?—A cabinet maker, manufacturer, and joiner.

15,795. For whom did you vote at the last election?—For Sir Henry Stracey.

15,796. At what hour in the day did you vote?—At 20 minutes to 12, as near as I can say.

15,797. Were you canvassed for your vote?—No; I always voted Conservative; no one came nigh me at all. I went there alone by myself.

15,798. Did you get anything for voting?—No.

15,799. Were you promised anything?—Never in my life. I always voted for the party.

LEGGETT COBB sworn and examined.

L. Cobb.

15,800. (Mr. Dowdeswell.) Are you a voter?—Yes.

15,801. Did you vote at the last election?—Yes, I did.

15,802. For whom did you vote?—For Sir Henry Stracey.

15,803. What are you rated at?—7*l.*

15,804. What time in the day did you vote?—Between 3 and 4 o'clock.

15,805. Had you been canvassed?—Yes; I had been canvassed a few days previous to that.

15,806. Who canvassed you?—One of the young Straceys was one. I do not know who the other was.

15,807. Who was with him when he called upon you?—I do not know, but I think young Wiseman was with Mr. Stracey, and there was three or four came in at the time.

15,808. Do you know Hardiment?—I do know the man.

15,809. Did he call upon you?—No, he never came near me.

15,810. Did you promise your vote when you were canvassed?—No, I did not; but I had voted for Mr. Stracey before.

15,811. Where?—At East Norfolk.

15,812. How came you, if you had voted for him

FOURTEENTH DAY.

L. Cobb.

3 Sept. 1869.

before, not to promise him then ?—I did not intend to vote at all.

15,813. What induced you to change your mind ?—I do not know ; we do change our minds sometimes. I am not crazy like some people about electioneering. I did not care whether I voted or no.

15,814. Did anybody make it worth your while to vote ?—No, I never took a bribe, not even a glass of beer, in all my life.

15,815. Did you receive anything for your vote ?—No, and I never was offered anything.

15,816. Were you promised anything ?—Never in my life. I never had an offer made to me in my life, and I have voted at many elections.

D. Beck.

DANIEL BECK sworn and examined.

15,817. (Mr. Mansfield.) What are you by trade ?—A tailor.

15,818. Did you vote at the last election ?—I did not vote at all.

15,819. Had you a vote ?—Yes.

15,820. Were you asked to vote ?—Only by a voter coming to my house and asking me if I would go and vote.

15,821. Where were you all the day ?—I was in my garden all the forenoon, and at dinner time this man called upon me.

15,822. Were you at any public house ?—Only one.

15,823. Where was that ?—The "Marquis of Granby."

15,824. Were there a good many people there ?—I suppose there might be 20 or 30.

15,825. Was there a good deal of beer going ?—I did not get any. I saw half a gallon or perhaps a gallon ; I should not like to say which.

15,826. Did they ask you to vote ?—They asked me whether I would vote.

15,827. And what did you say ?—I said I do not know what I may do yet.

15,828. How long did you stop there ?—Ten minutes or a quarter of an hour.

15,829. What were you waiting there for ?—I was waiting for a man who was to come up to my house after a pony I had to sell.

15,830. Do you recollect who the men were that you saw at the "Marquis of Granby" ?—I cannot call many of them to my mind. I do not think I could mention more than one or two.

15,831. Give us their names ?—It was a man named Thompson that came and called upon me.

15,832. Did you see Hardiment there ?—No ; if I saw the man I did not know him.

15,833. Did you not know him then ?—I did not know the man if I saw him there.

15,834. Did you not hear when you were in the house that the price of votes was 7*s.* 6*d.* ?—No ; I never heard any money mentioned.

15,835. Did they not talk about money being paid ?—They said that if I waited there would be some money ; that is all I heard about it.

15,836. And you waited ?—No, I had a little deal, and thought I could earn more at that than at the other.

15,837. They knew where you lived ?—Yes ; I lived next door to this "Marquis of Granby."

15,838. I suppose you stood about outside after that ?—I stood against the gateway.

15,839. How long did you stop there ?—I might wait, perhaps, till about 2 o'clock.

15,840. What became of you then ?—I went away, and went along with the man I was dealing with.

15,841. Who was that ?—Brown.

15,842. At what time did you go back to the "Marquis of Granby" ?—I never went back there that night.

15,843. Where did you go then ?—I went home.

15,844. You found a good many people in the street, I suppose ?—I did not find but very few people when I went home.

15,845. There were a good many people about the door, were there not ?—Not about his door.

15,846. Did they not at that time tell you that there was a little money going ?—No, only what I have stated.

15,847. Not the second time when you went back to the place ?—No.

15,848. There were more people when you got back the second time, were there not ?—I did not go back.

15,849. How was it that you did not vote at all ?—It was so late, the man closed the book ; that was the way of it. I was along with a man after a deal, and when I went to vote it was too late ; they had closed the books.

15,850. How was it that you made up your mind just at 4 o'clock, and that when you went to poll it was too late ?—I had made up my mind before, but I could not get near the polling place at half-past 2, and so I went away with this man, and had a deal with him, and then returned again.

15,851. Where was that ?—On St. Paul's Plain.

15,852. Why did you not go and vote instead of going home ?—I did not leave home till 2.

15,853. And you said you went back ?—I went back at night after they closed the books.

15,854. How much did you get for your vote ?—Nothing ; and I never was offered anything ; I never saw or heard of any money.

15,855. To whom did you promise your vote ?—To no one.

15,856. Who asked you to vote ?—Mr. Thompson, or some such name.

15,857. Who did he ask you to vote for ?—For Tillett.

15,858. You could not then make up your mind ?—I told him that I had not made up my mind. Of course I was after my employment. I never run after electioneering.

15,859. Was anything said to you about being paid if you voted ?—No ; he said he was sent to gather up a lot of people, all he could, and that he had no doubt but what it would be right.

15,860. At the "Marquis of Granby" was not anything said about money for voting ?—No ; I never heard anything of that kind inside the house at all. A man called me out of my door and told me about it.

15,861. (Mr. Dowdeswell.) You say you went up to vote, and found you were too late ?—Yes.

15,862. Was the polling place close to your own house ?—No, I went into Magdalen Street the second time.

15,863. How far is that from your own house ?—About a quarter of a mile.

15,864. There was a polling place close to you ?—Yes ; I went there at half-past 2 o'clock, but the place was very full and I went away, and then I went with this man and had a deal, and when I left him I went to this other polling place.

15,865. You did go up to the polling place at half-past 2 ?—Yes.

15,866. Was there such a crowd about the polling place that you could not get up to poll ?—Yes, there was a great crowd indeed.

15,867. What polling place was it where there was so great a crowd ?—St. Paul's Plain.

15,868. For whom were you going to vote ?—I was going to vote for Tillett.

15,869. You had Tillett's card in your hand, had you?—I had a paper from both parties sent to my house.

15,870. Which card did you take with you to the poll?—I had them both with me; they were both in my pocket.

15,871. Did you show either of them?—No, I had not the means of getting near.

15,872. Did you tell the people there which way you were going to vote?—No; I was not near enough to vote.

JOSEPH PAICE recalled and further examined.

J. Paice.

15,873. (Mr. Dowdeswell.) How do you find that the cheque for 60*l.* was cashed?—We cannot tell. We cannot see without the cheque, the cheque Mr. Hardiment has. It may have been cashed in notes or in gold; we cannot tell, our books do not show it.

15,874. And does the same thing apply to the other cheques?—With regard to those cheques we do not take any account how they are paid.

15,875. If you pay them with your own notes do you enter the number of the notes?—No.

15,876. If you give Bank of England notes you do, I suppose?—No.

15,877. Then there are no means by which you can inform us in what money those cheques were paid?—Not now, because Mr. Hardiment has the cheques.

15,878. The cheques are returned to the customer, are they?—Yes.

15,879. With regard to the sums that were paid in, can you tell us of what they consisted?—51*l.* 2*s.* was a cheque on Oakes, of Stowmarket, drawn by Webb and Son, payable to himself, and the other cheque was drawn by J. and J. Hephnenen and Son on Glyn's, payable to himself.

15,880. Are those the only two sums?—Those are the only two sums you inquired about. You wished to know whether it was his practice to cash his cheques in notes or specie; he does it in both ways according to the amount. If it is 50*l.* or 60*l.* it would be notes, but if a less sum in gold.

15,881. His practice was to draw small sums in gold?—Yes, generally.

15,882. Whether that was so on these occasions or not you cannot tell?—No.

15,883. He may even have got half-sovereigns without your knowing it?—Yes.

GEORGE HEWETT sworn and examined.

G. Hewett.

15,884. (Mr. Biron.) What are you?—A shoemaker.

15,885. For whom did you vote at the last election?—Mr. Tillett.

15,886. At what hour in the day?—Between 2 and 3.

15,887. Why did you not go up sooner?—Because I was about my work, and could not get done before.

15,888. Were you at Clarke's beerhouse?—No.

15,889. Were you not there at all on the day of the polling?—No.

15,890. Did you see Hardiment that day?—I saw him about St. Martin's.

15,891. Were you not in any public house that day?—Yes, the "Garibaldi."

15,892. Did Hardiment come in there?—No.

15,893. Did Hardiment ask you to vote?—No.

15,894. Did he say anything to you about voting?—No.

15,895. Do you live at New Buildings, St. Martin's?—Yes.

15,896. Do you know George Barber?—Yes, he is next door.

15,897. Have you ever told him that Hardiment gave you 7*s.* 6*d.* to vote for Sir Henry Stracey, and that you took it and voted for Tillett afterwards?—No; I did not get 7*s.* 6*d.* from him.

15,898. From whom then did you get it?—From Freestone.

15,899. He gave you 7*s.* 6*d.* to vote for Sir Henry Stracey, and you took it and then went and voted for Tillett?—I did.

15,900. Where were you when he gave you the 7*s.* 6*d.*?—Inside the Chapel opposite St. Mary's Church.

15,901. Was anybody with you?—No; he pulled me in, and gave it to me.

15,902. Did you see him give anybody else anything?—No.

15,903. Did you see Hardiment give anybody anything?—No.

15,904. Do you know any man who got anything for voting?—I do not know anybody else.

15,905. Did Barber get anything?—I do not know whether he got anything or not.

15,906. He did not tell you?—No.

ROBERT GEORGE BARNES sworn and examined.

R. G. Barnes.

15,907. (Mr. Mansfield.) What are you by trade?—A shoemaker.

15,908. For whom did you vote at the last election?—For Sir Henry Stracey.

15,909. At what time in the day?—At about half-past 3.

15,910. What made you vote so late?—Because I had to finish my work before I went and voted.

15,911. How far do you live from the polling place?—About half a mile.

15,912. Had you not been out all day?—No.

15,913. Did you go to any public house that day?—Not before I voted.

15,914. What public houses did you go into afterwards?—I went to several.

15,915. Did you go to the "Woolpack"?—No.

15,916. Did you go to the "Oxford" or the "Fishmongers' Arms"?—Yes.

15,917. Any others?—Yes, several more. I went to the "Rose."

15,918. Did you go to Cartwright's?—No.

15,919. To Clarke's beer shop?—No.

15,920. To the "Marquis of Granby"?—No.

15,921. Who paid for your drink at these different public houses?—I paid for it myself.

15,922. It must have cost you a good deal of money then?—No, you may go into a good many public houses for 1*s.*

15,923. Who canvassed you?—No one.

15,924. Had you been promised anything?—No; I always had voted a Tory, and for that reason I voted this time.

15,925. You had voted at other elections?—Yes.

15,926. How many?—Three or four.

15,927. Were you promised anything for your vote?—No.

15,928. Not your rates?—No; I voted a free man.

15,929. Have you made promises to anybody else?—No.

15,930. Or been the means of getting money for anybody else?—No.

15,931. Have you had anything?—No.

15,932. Who did you go to the poll with?—I went by myself.

15,933. Did you hear of any money going that day?—No.

15,934. When did you first hear of money going?—I never heard of any at all.

15,935. I suppose you heard it afterwards, did you not?—I heard some people talk of it afterwards.

15,936. Do you know Hardiment?—No.

15,937. Or Wiseman?—I know Mr. Wiseman.

FOURTEENTH DAY.

R. G. Barnes.

3 Sept. 1869.

15,938. Did you ever talk to him about the election?—No.

15,939. Did you see him at or near the time of the election?—No.

15,940. Had you seen Worledge?—No.

15,941. Did you know him?—Yes, I know him.

15,942. How lately before the election had you seen Worledge?—It might be several weeks before the election. I passed him in the street.

H. W. Cartwright.

HENRY WILLIAM CARTWRIGHT sworn and examined.

15,943. (Mr. Biron.) What are you?—A publican and shopkeeper.

15,944. Did you vote at the last election?—Yes.

15,945. For whom did you vote?—For Sir Henry Stracey.

15,946. At what time in the day?—At half-past 8 in the morning.

15,947. After voting, did you go back to your shop?—Yes.

15,948. During the day were there a lot of voters in your place?—That I cannot say.

15,949. Were there a lot of men there?—I cannot say.

15,950. Why not?—Because I was taken very bad with spasms and cramps that I am subject to, and went upstairs before 10 o'clock in the morning, and was obliged to get into bed.

15,951. Were you in bed all day?—I was till 3 o'clock in the day.

15,952. Did you send for any doctor?—No, I did not send for any doctor. Dr. Hutchinson is my doctor, but I did not send for him, because I am so often taken that way that I know what to do.

15,953. You got better by 3 o'clock?—It was after 3 o'clock. It was some time after 3 before I could get downstairs.

15,954. When you did get downstairs, were there a lot of men there?—Yes.

15,955. Can you give me their names?—No.

15,956. Can you tell me some of their names?—I do not know any of their names; they were all strangers to me. Mine is only a very small place of business. I am more in the general line than in the public line.

15,957. Can you not give me the name of any one who was there?—I saw Mr. Hardiment there; he was there when I came downstairs.

15,958. What did you see him do?—I saw him in my room.

15,959. Was he paying men money?—Yes, he was.

15,960. How many men did you see him pay?—I am sure I cannot tell you, for I was out and in the room, and I cannot say.

15,961. How long was he doing this; half-an-hour?—He was there till near 4 o'clock.

15,962. Can you give us a notion what number of men you saw paid?—If I were to try to tell you I should tell an untruth. He might pay 10, 12, or 14, or he might pay 15.

15,963. Or perhaps 20?—Perhaps it might be 20, but I was not in the room all the time.

15,964. When it got towards 4 o'clock, did he borrow anything of you?—Yes.

15,965. What did he borrow?—I lent him five sovereigns. I am not sure whether it was three sovereigns and 2*l.* in silver, or whether they were all sovereigns; but I think it was three sovereigns and 2*l.* worth of silver.

15,966. Has he paid you that back again?—Yes, he paid it me back the next morning. He gave me a 5*l.* note the next day morning.

15,967. Can you not give me the name of any man who was there?—I am so little out that I hardly know those that come to my shop, what I call regular customers. I am so much of an invalid that I cannot get out much. I am suffering from paralysis and cannot get out often.

15,968. Were not any of these men your regular customers?—No; they were all strangers to me. Excitement is a very bad thing for me with my infirmity.

15,969. (Mr. Dowdeswell.) There was a considerable crowd about your house, was there not?—I did not look outside. I did not attempt to go outside.

15,970. Surely you can tell me whether there was not a considerable number of men coming in and out of your house?—There was a good many came in and out.

15,971. Your door was open, and you could see outside?—My door was open certainly.

15,972. And you could see who were there?—Yes, of course there was a lot of people hanging about.

15,973. Did you hear them ask for money?—I cannot say that I heard them ask for money. To speak the truth I cannot say that.

15,974. Hardiment was there paying money?—He was paying money when I came into the room.

15,975. Had your wife lent him any money before that time?—I never heard her say so. She had too much to attend to in the other part of the business.

15,976. Has Hardiment ever paid you anything besides the 5*l.*?—Never in my life. He never treated me even to a glass of ale. I never had a glass from anybody.

15,977. Did you hear any persons afterwards speak about having received money from Hardiment there?—No.

15,978. Or about anybody else having paid them money?—No.

15,979. Do you know of anybody else having paid money that day?—No, I do not. How should I when I was upstairs.

15,980. Was Hardiment actively engaged paying money the whole time you were downstairs?—I was out and in the room, and could not see everything.

15,981. Were the men going in and out?—They were going in and out.

15,982. How many men should you say went in and out while you were there?—There might be 10, or 15, or 20. I cannot say how many there were.

15,983. Do you know Charles Miller?—No, I do not.

15,984. He was a publican in the Market Square?—I do not know him any more than I know you.

15,985. Do you know a man of that name who at one time had the Cremorne Gardens?—No, I do not know him.

15,986. Did you pay any money to any voter on that day?—No; I never took anything in my life, or paid anything away in my life. I only voted twice in my life.

15,987. Was there any beer given away in your house that you know of?—Yes.

15,988. Who gave it away?—I was paid for it by Mr. Hardiment.

15,989. How much?—I think it was 9*s.* 10½*d.* I think that was the amount for glasses and bread and cheese and biscuits.

15,990. Given away that day?—Different people had it, and told me to put it down to Mr. Hardiment.

15,991. Do you know when that order was given?—That I do not know. I cannot tell you that, because my wife when I came downstairs had got it on a piece of paper.

15,992. Was there a considerable amount down on the paper when you came downstairs?—No.

15,993. Was there a good deal added after you came down?—If I had not destroyed the paper I might have told you, but as it was settled, I put the paper on the fire.

15,994. I want to know what proportion of the entire amount had been supplied before you came downstairs?—I am sure I cannot tell you. It is a thing, I assure you, I never kept in my head at all.

15,995. Did you hear of any votes being bought for Tillett?—No.

15,996. Did you see any person who was inquiring about votes for Tillett?—No, I did not.

15,997. Or did you see any person who you had reason to believe was buying votes for Tillett?—I could not, because I was not downstairs till the time I tell you.

15,998. (Mr. Mansfield.) Had Hardiment been to you before the election about this?—Yes; he was a customer of mine.

15,999. Had he been in your house a day or two before the election?—I am sure I do not know. I cannot recollect.

16,000. Did anybody canvass you or ask you to vote?—I was not at home when they came. I believe both parties came, both Tillett's and Russell's party, and Mr. Hardiment and Mr. Stracey, and others.

16,001. Did Mr. Stracey ever come to your house?—I was not in the way, and so I cannot tell you.

16,002. (Mr. Dowdeswell.) Did you see Mr. Stracey about with Hardiment?—I do not know him.

SAMUEL CLARKE sworn and examined. S. Clarke.

16,003. (Mr. Dowdeswell.) I believe you are an inspector of nuisances for this city?—I am.

16,004. You were a very active man, were you not, in support of Sir Henry Stracey at the last election?—I have heard it reported so, and I admit that I took very active steps.

16,005. You voted, I suppose, for him?—I did so.

16,006. I do not suppose you ever took a bribe in your life, or thought of taking one?—No, nor I might say did I bribe anyone.

16,007. Follow my questions, and I will give you full opportunity of saying whatever you please. You recollect, do you not, that a number of persons were provided for the show of hands?—I do not recollect that. I was at breakfast at the time, and I came out, I think, about half-past 8 or 9.

16,008. I am speaking of the show of hands, the day of the nomination.—I have heard in this Court that there was a show of hands provided for the Radicals.

16,009. You know as well as possible that I am not speaking about the Radicals.—I am here to give you the fair and honest statement of all I know.

16,010. You know as well as possible what I was asking you.—You said a show of hands.

16,011. I asked about a show of hands on the nomination day. Do you know of anybody provided on your side for the show of hands?—Certainly not. I heard with some little disgust, after an arrangement that there should not be a show of hands on either side, that there was on the Radical side a show of hands provided for. I had nothing whatever to do with it. I was at home.

16,012. Did you take any part with regard to providing persons for the show of hands on the Conservative side?—Certainly not.

16,013. Did you provide or arrange for a number of persons who attended next day?—No.

16,014. Do you know of a number of persons having been provided, and coming from your place the next day?—No.

16,015. Do you know of a number of persons who were dressed up with cocked hats?—No. I will explain that if you will allow me.

16,016. Very well.—I read this morning in the Norfolk News—

16,017. Never mind that.—I may have to allude to other papers.

16,018. Do not go on with that.—I will give it you in detail, as you wish me to tell you. You asked me about persons with cocked hats. I read in the supplement to the Norfolk News, and it may be in other papers, or perhaps the shorthand writer here may have got it, that there were a number of rough individuals coming out of my house or my son's office in Redwell Street dressed up in cocked hats, and that they were in my employ. That was a statement by Mr. Morgan. I will merely say, I do not wish to put any preface to it, or use any stronger language, than saying it is a lie. They did not come out of my house, and they were not employed by me. They might have surrounded my office, but I had nothing in the slightest degree.—I will give you an explanation if you will allow me.

16,019. Where is your son?—He is now in Canada.

16,020. Was your son residing in your house?—He was.

16,021. Had your son an office in Redwell Street?—He had.

16,022. How far is that from your residence?—I should say pretty well nearly half a mile.

16,023. Could you see his office from your house?—No, I could not.

16,024. Would persons passing from his office come by your house?—No, they would not.

16,025. If they went in either direction, would they not come by your house?—No, they would not.

16,026. How far was your son's office from your office?—About 50 yards.

16,027. In which direction?—Up a sort of alley by the side; there is the main street, then the office is up an alley in the main street.

16,028. I suppose persons coming from your office might pass your house?—I think not.

16,029. They could not pass your house?—There is a passage that very few people know of; but they would not come that way. The general traffic is the street.

16,030. There is a passage by which they could come to your house?—There is a passsage by which they might come past if they knew of it.

16,031. Did you see any persons that day with cocked hats made of Sir Henry Stracey's colours?—I saw some men in the street with orange hats and decorations on the breast, and I also saw a number of men with Tillett's colours in the same street.

16,032. I am not asking you about that. I assure you we know or shall learn everything about Tillett.—That is your opinion.

16,033. Did you see a number of men come by your house with those colours and those hats on?—No.

16,034. Did you see them nowhere in the neighbourhood of your house?—I saw one or two parties in the street, that I had not the slightest to do with, whatever.

16,035. Your son was then residing in your house, was he?—Yes, he was.

16,036. Do you know from him that he paid those men?—No.

16,037. Do you know from him that he arranged with those men that they should come to his office?—No; I arranged with the men to come to his office.

16,038. When did you arrange for the men to come to his office?—At the time when there was an intrusion upon his occupation by Mr. Wilde.

16,039. How many days was this before the election?—That I cannot say exactly; one or two days I think.

16,040. How many men did you arrange with to come to your son's office?—Two.

16,041. No more than two?—Oh, I did not arrange with any, and I would save you time if you would allow me to give you an explanation as to how exactly it occurred. I happened to put on a poster "Vote

FOURTEENTH DAY.

S. Clarke.

3 Sept. 1869.

" for Stracey " on the outside of this office that my son was a tenant of Mr. Wilde, and a sort of drunken clerk that he had came down there and attempted to pull it down. I said I should not allow that, but he afterwards insisted upon it, and came and broke the door open and took possession of my son's office, and pulled the bill down out of the window. I said " This is not proper treatment to my son ; as he is " a minor I have a right to protect him and I shall " do so." A man of the name of Carter happened to pass at the time. I called him in and said " Carter, " I want you here to protect this room and stop any- " one from interfering here," and he did so.

16,042. Who is Carter?—I think he lives at Catton.

16,043. What is he?—I don't know exactly. He is not one of the smoothest of men nor one of the roughest. He was just such a man as I should pitch upon to throw out such a drunken reptile as this fellow that got into my son's office that had no right to be there ; and I put him out, and I afterwards made the application.

16,044. You spoke to Carter to throw out a " reptile " ?—Yes.

16,045. Who was the other man to whom you spoke ?—I did not speak to any other.

16,046. Did you ask Carter to provide any other ? —I think I did say " If you find anyone else, bring " him here."

16,047. That was one or two days before the election ?—Yes.

16,048. Did not you think that a police officer would have afforded you a little better assistance than a man of that sort ?—Certainly not.

16,049. Was there any question about the occupation of this place ?—There was, so far as my son was in possession and this was an intrusion.

16,050. You told him to procure, if he could, another person. Did he ?—One other.

16,051. Who was that ?—I think his name was Lombe.

16,052. Where does he live ?—Somewhere down in Lambeth, some part in London, at the present time.

16,053. Were you at your son's office the day of the nomination ?—No, I was at home, at my usual avocation.

16,054. Were you there upon the day of the election ?—I think not.

16,055. You " think " not ?—I might say not.

16,056. Were you at David Houghton's house on the day of the election ?—I think I was there on the evening of the election.

16,057. Were you there on the morning of the election ?—I believe not.

16,058. Would you undertake to say that you were not ?—I think I might swear that I was not. David Houghton is a particular friend of mine.

16,059. I want to know whether you will swear that you were not ?—I will swear to anything that is correct. It is quite possible I might be there, but I don't remember.

16,060. Is your memory so defective as to what occurred on the day of the election as not to recollect that ?—My memory is retentive enough to know that I won't give evidence falsely.

16,061. Do not put that on me. Is your memory retentive enough to know whether you were there on the day of the election ?—It is possible.

16,062. Anything is " possible " of that sort. Do you believe you were there ?—I do not believe I was.

16,063. You won't swear you were not ?—I could almost swear that I was not.

16,064. Were you there upon the nomination day ? —No.

16,065. Not at all ?—No.

16,066. That you will swear ?—I will swear that I was not there. I did not go up to town till after the nomination was over.

16,067. But will you swear you were not at Houghton's house on the election day ?—To the best of my knowledge I will swear that I might.

16,068. " Might " ?—After taking one over several months, and then to come into court to ask him if he was in a man's house, as Houghton is a friend of mine, or any other house, to ask me if I was there, I might say I was not there ; any house, I don't care which house I was in. I challenge anybody to say I was guilty of any practices with regard to bribery or intimidation whatever.

16,069. Do not you know that a number of men were collected at Houghton's house ?—I don't know that.

16,070. Did you see no men at Houghton's house ? —No, I did not.

16,071. Did you not hear that men were collected at Houghton's house ?—No.

16,072. Did you ever pay any money to any men who were collected at Houghton's house ?—I paid several lots of men money, and it might be, I believe, I started a band from Houghton's house one night.

16,073. Tell me the first lot of men you paid ?— That I cannot remember.

16,074. Tell me the second lot of men you paid ?— I cannot, if you were to ask me whether it was half a dozen or a dozen times that I made my payments.

16,075. Tell me the third lot of men that you paid ? —I cannot tell you. It might be one night I took them into Houghton's house to pay them, and perhaps gave them some beer after the very great fatigue they had had.

16,076. You paid men for their " fatigue " on the day of the election ?—I did.

16,077. Did you pay men for their " fatigue " on the day of the nomination ?—Certainly not.

16,078. Which was the first day on which you paid them for their " fatigue " ?—That I cannot call to mind.

16,079. Do you mean to say that you have paid men money for " fatigue " which they undergo at elections so often that you cannot tell me when it happened ?— Sir ?

16,080. Really, do reflect ?—I don't wish you to say that. It is not necessary for you to refresh my memory. It is not the first court of justice I have been in. I hope I can bear an oath as well as I can bear a cross-examination, but I would say this, whatever I have paid I have paid it away, but as to the days, whenever they might have been, I cannot call to my mind. It is over, and it has gone from my mind.

16,081. What was the " fatigue " at the election, whether on the nomination or on the polling day, for which you paid these men ?—Neither the election nor yet the nomination day.

16,082. When was it then ? — Previous to the election.

16,083. Now you recollect that it was previous to the election ?—I had said so, only you put questions upon me so.

16,084. Upon what occasion ?—I paid them for going round along with the band, in carrying banners, torches, and that is all, banners and torches.

16,085. How long was that before the election ?— I should think it might be perhaps a week before.

16,086. Who was the head of the men whom you so paid ?—Oh, I paid them indiscriminately as they came. I had plenty of applications.

16,087. You can tell me the names of those persons whom you so paid ?—They are a very peculiar lot of gentlemen, I thought you would ask me that question. I will give you a list of some of them.

16,088. Perhaps you will give me a list of the whole ?—That would take all my time.

16,089. Was there a great number ?—There was.

16,090. To how many would they amount ?— Perhaps they would amount to 50.

16,091. What did you pay them ?—Well, I paid them according to their substance and value.

16,092. How much did you pay them on the whole?—I was very indiscreet. I paid my money out of my own pocket.

16,093. What sum did you pay on the whole to those 50 men?—I should think not more than 2*s.* each.

16,094. Then you would pay 5*l.* to the 50 men. Would you undertake to say that is all you paid?—I would not, because there is a lot of loafers and hangers on. Your hand is pretty well always in your pocket.

16,095. What did you pay during the election to loafers and hangers on?—That is a very difficult question to answer, and I won't undertake it.

16,096. Give me the best information you can?—I cannot answer it beyond this, I paid them at the rate of about 2*s.* each.

16,097. Were there no more than 50 loafers and hangers on whom you paid. You said that was for a different class of men, as I understood you?—I paid about 50, I think.

16,098. Altogether?—I should think so.

16,099. Not more?—I should think not.

16,100. Men indiscriminately picked up or men that you knew?—No; they indiscriminately came to me.

16,101. You have a list there. Look at it and tell me how many there are upon it?—Eight.

16,102. Are eight all you can tell out of 50?—That is all I can remember at present.

16,103. Do they happen to be persons not one of whom is a voter?—I think there is not a man amongst them that is a voter.

16,104. I thought not. Now will you tell me, out of those 50, how many are voters?—I cannot tell. I don't believe a single one.

16,105. Can you tell me their names?—Yes.

16,106. Give me their names?—I will give you them directly. I took a copy. (The witness hands a paper to the Commissioners.)

16,107. Are these all the names with which you can furnish me—seven out of 50?—Yes.

16,108. Will you swear that?—I swear it.

16,109. That these are all the names with which you can furnish me?—I ran it over in my mind, and they were the best lot I could remember uppermost in my mind.

16,110. You undertake to swear that you do not remember the name of a single other one?—I will undertake to swear that I do not. I remember those men.

16,111. Do you mean to say you did not pay more than 5*l.* altogether?—Oh, yes; I paid for a band.

16,112. What is the whole sum which you have paid out of your pocket for matters connected with or immediately preceding the election?—I would answer that in saying that I have not paid a single penny to bribe a single individual.

16,113. I do not ask you that.—I will answer you.

16,114. I ask you what is the amount?—I cannot tell. I never took any account.

16,115. Do you mean that you cannot approximately tell me what is the amount which you paid for matters connected with the election?—I cannot tell you that, and I should be a blockhead to attempt it, because I don't know.

16,116. Was it 100*l.*?—It might have been, and it might have been less.

16,117. It might have been 100*l.*, might it?—I should think nothing approaching it.

16,118. Will you swear it is not?—I won't swear to anything but what I know is the truth.

16,119. That is the refuge of a person who is evading a question.—I don't wish to evade.

16,120. I want to know what is your belief?—I believe I spent a lot of money out of my own pocket, but as to that amount I cannot tell you what it is, and if you wish to extract from me more than the truth I am not prepared to say that.

16,121. Do you mean to swear that you cannot tell me whether it was 100*l.* or 200*l.*?—I did not say anything about 200*l.*

16,122. Can you swear that?—I said it might be 100*l.*, or it might be less.

16,123. Might it have been more?—No.

16,124. But how much less than 100*l.* you will not swear?—I should think perhaps 20*l.* or 30*l.*, as near as I can say.

16,125. Will you tell me, inasmuch as it may have been 100*l.*, for what you did pay. We have got 5*l.* to these 50 men?—I will give you the best explanation I can, but you must understand there was a band w nt round.

16,126. Quite so. What did you pay for the band?—Well, I got put into the county court by one of the men. He was not satisfied with what his master paid.

16,127. I am not asking about one of the men?—If you would give me notice of the question I could answer it.

16,128. You knew that we were going to ask about these men, and what you paid them?—I expected you to ask about the men, but not as to the whole of the details.

16,129. You know you were coming here to be examined about any expenditure connected with the election, and whether it was properly or improperly expended?—I knew I had spent money out of my own pocket, and I felt that I had a right to do that.

16,130. You paid 5*l.* for these 50 men according to your account, and you said you paid for the band. Now tell me what you paid for the band?—I will tell you, as near as I can, without looking at the receipt.

16,131. Have you got the papers that will show you?—Not here.

16,132. Can you get them at your house?—I don't know that I can.

16,133. According to your recollection, what did you pay for the band?—I should think somewhere approaching 4*l.* or 5*l.*

16,134. That is getting up to 10*l.*?—Yes.

16,135. Now what other sum did you pay?—Then there was the hire of banners.

16,136. What did you pay for the hire of banners?—That I don't know.

16,137. Of whom did the band consist?—Do you mean the individual members?

16,138. Who was the leader of the band?—I think his name was Tuddenham.

16,139. Where does he live?—That I don't know.

16,140. He is a well-known man, I suppose?—Yes; they talk of "Tuddenham's band." I don't know whether it is Tory, Whig, or Radical.

16,141. When did the band go round?—Upon several occasions.

16,142. On the day of the election as well?—No; the Radical band went round on that day.

16,143. Your band did not go round that day?—No; we kept quiet.

16,144. Did it go round on the day of the nomination?—The nomination? That I am not exactly quite prepared to say. I think not.

16,145. Will you undertake to say that it did not?—I will not undertake to say whether it did or did not; but I think not.

16,146. For how many days before the election did it go round?—Oh, very little time.

16,147. I want to know how long?—It could not be long, because our candidate was not announced more than 10 or 12 days before the election.

16,148. How many times?—Four or five times.

16,149. What was the next sum that was paid by you?—I might pay for drink.

16,150. How much?—That I don't know.

FOURTEENTH DAY.

S. Clarke.

3 Sept. 1869.

16,151. To whom did you pay that money for drink?—I think we started out of Crook's Place. We went to the "Trumpet." We went round the town and stopped at different places.

16,152. What sum of money did you pay at these public houses?—That I cannot swear.

16,153. Will you swear you do not know?—I will swear I don't know it.

16,154. Have you no idea?—No idea. I had a lot of loose papers.

16,155. Within 20*l.*?—Oh yes, more than 20*l.*

16,156. Just tell me then?—I put my hand in my pocket and spent money, and I cannot tell how much.

16,157. You mean to stand there and tell me that you cannot say within 20*l.* how much you spent?—Well, I cannot. I put the money into my pocket, and I took it out as I went round, and I asked them to drink at the different houses.

16,158. I ask whether you can tell me within 20*l.*?—I have told you that I have no idea.

16,159. Did you keep any banking account?—No.

16,160. You keep no banking account?—I don't know that I have a right to answer that.

16,161. You are bound to answer it?—Well, then, I say that I do.

16,162. Have you no means by which you can inform me what money you put into your pocket those days?—No, I have not.

16,163. Have you no memoranda in your diary or cash book as to monies which you paid?—I did not. I will swear upon my oath which I have sworn.

16,164. You paid that at public houses. Was that all paid before the day of the election?—All before the day of the election, and all out of my own pocket.

16,165. Will you tell me what other sum you paid?—I do not recollect paying another penny piece.

16,166. 5*l.* and 5*l.*, and what you paid at public houses, you mean to say constitute every sum you paid before or after the election?—Yes.

16,167. Did you not go to public houses upon the day of the election?—No.

16,168. Were you at no public house in this city on the day of the election?—Not to canvass any voter.

16,169. I am asking you whether you were in any public house?—I should think I was.

16,170. In what public houses were you on that day?—Well, I don't remember a single one, because I drove round the town. I might call at one and at another and have a glass of ale.

16,171. Is it your habit to drive round the town, calling at different public houses, so that the circumstance of your doing so would make no impression upon your mind?—It would not be my habit generally to drive round the town and go into public houses, but on the election day I drove round the town on purpose to see how things were going on; but if you ask me which house I called at to get a glass of ale, or which house I stopped at, I should think I would be a great blockhead to attempt to tell you that which is impossible for me to tell you.

16,171*a*. Will you undertake to swear that you were not at several public houses on that day?—I will undertake to swear that I did not stop at any public house beyond taking what refreshment I thought proper, and that in a very limited space of time.

16,172. That is not the question I put to you. I put to you this, whether you did not on the day of the election call at several public houses?—I say no, then.

16,173. Did you call at one?—I should think I did.

16,174. Will you undertake to swear that you called at one?—Oh yes, I will swear that.

16,175. Did you call at two?—Perhaps I might.

16,176. Did you?—I should think I did.
